BY ABIGAIL

On rare occasions I am happy to relinquish my weekly space here to others. This week, with a blush I haven't enjoyed in many a year, I turn the column over to one of my old friends, who speaks a piece so very frankly that many an Emmitsburgian should feel thoroughly ashamed. But here's a letter from this week's mail:

Dear Abigail:

As an "alien" transplanted from the North to the South, I have been accepted by my local friends as an Emmitsburgian. Last Saturday was a holiday. Could it be that a holiday here is just a day off?

Some 32 years ago, on the 11th hour, of the 11th day, of the 11th month, the first World War ended. That war cost Americans plenty of what Winston Churchill has called, "blood, sweat, toil, and tears." But Time, the Great Healer, works wonders.

In Emmitsburg, for many years, Armistice Day has just been—Nov. 11. This year, joint action by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 6658, and the Francis X. Elder Post, No. 121, of the American Legion, decided to honor the men who died for their country in the first world conflict. Both posts have a number of members who qualified for membership through service in that war. The turnout of members was scant. A firing squad was assembled. A color guard was present. Of the numerous members who served in the first war, only two turned up to honor their buddies. It was the children of those veterans, and in some cases, grandsons, who turned up to take part in the ceremonies.

Yes, Emmitsburg had a parade. A sorry, sickly sight it must have been, with a firing squad, a color guard, and about four others as marchers with two veterans' posts having a total membership of over 350. It was cold, I know. As those volunteers stood at attention, hands became very cold, almost numb, but they were raised in salute at the proper time.

Our local State Police and the lad in charge who is always willing to help, led that parade. My apologies to him—he must have felt very foolish, trailing the middle of the road and waving traffic aside for a squad of marchers.

At "The Doughboy," these few veterans went through the brief ceremony. Apparently to Emmitsburg, this required an explanation. It isn't a display of marchers; it is supposed to be a tribute to those who never returned: TO THOSE WHO DIED, THAT YOU, HERE, CAN ENJOY LIFE AS YOU WISH!

The crowning insult was from the scattered audience who watched those ceremonies. They were out sweeping sidewalks, and all that sort of thing. But while many of them joined in the salute to the dead, not even the National Anthem slowed down the sweeping exercises of others. It was the most disgusting and open display of apathy it has been my experience to witness.

There was one heart-warming moment. On a curb sat a group of youngsters. One and all, they stood up, saluted, and stood at attention at the proper time. The adults—swept leaves.

To those who were sweeping—we regret that we bothered you. Could be that you didn't lose anyone in that war. Could be that you have forgotten. In Arlington, Va., is a marble tomb, a mass of crumbling bones. All that is left of the Unknown Soldier, who, as the plaque states, is "Known Only to God." He might have been your friend. He might have been your son or uncle. That monument to the Doughboy, represents a part of him—Emmitsburg's part.

If any of those stalwart marchers embibed too freely of

GOP MAY ELIMINATE ROADS BOARD

The Frederick County Roads Board will become Republican-controlled for the first time during the administration of Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin, the best available information indicated this week.

That is—it will become Republican-controlled if it remains in existence. There are reported to be quite a few Republicans who would like to see the Board abolished and its duties returned to the County Commissioners.

With a Republican governor, a Republican senator, and a 5-1 Republican delegation in the House of Delegates, such a move is not as unlikely as might appear at first glance.

Certain Republicans have felt for years that the Roads Board was primarily set up 11 years ago as a Democratic political instrument and they point out there has never been a Republican appointed to the Board since its inception in 1939. All the appointed members of the first Roads Board were named in the bill giving it life and all were Democrats.

There was reported to be considerable talk of the possibility of doing away with the Board by certain candidates during the recent election.

If the Board remains in existence, Governor-elect McKeldin, by the terms of an act passed by the legislature in 1947, will be required to name Republicans to the Roads Board in 1951 and in 1952. He can also be expected to name another GOP to the Board in 1953.

The act passed in 1947, among other things, made this provision: That the Governor, in making appointments to the Board, shall appoint persons solely because of their character and fitness "except that beginning in the year 1951, the Governor shall make appointments so that not more than three appointive members on the Board shall be of the same political party * * *"

There are five appointive members of the Board, whose terms are for five years. One term expires May 1 of each year. Next May 1 the Governor, under the law, will name a Republican to succeed a Democrat and he will have authority to follow the same procedure in the following two years.

With the three Republican members of the Board of County Commissioners members of the Roads Board by virtue of their office, this will provide a 4-4 political split on the Board after next May and a 5-3 division in favor of the GOP after May, 1952.

The club will hold concerts this year in Baltimore, Annapolis, Harrisburg, Mt. Carmel and various other places.

The accompanist for the concert will be Joseph Roszmarski, Baltimore, who is a graduate of the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

A music appreciation course has been added this year at the Mount. The course is also taught by Fr. Shaum.

Officers of the Glee Club are Joseph Kinder, president; John Yodzis, vice president; Joseph Jones, secretary-treasurer. Rev. Peter A. Coad is moderator.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hankey and son, Harrisburg, Pa., spent the week-end with Mrs. Hankey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burdner, E. Main St.

Mr. Andrew Annan was a dinner guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Frailey.

RABBIT SEASON OPENS; GAME SEEMS PLENTIFUL

Hunters had their most successful opening day in many years Wednesday, game wardens reported. Reports from all sections of the counties indicated that more rabbits were bagged than on any opening day in a decade.

Some hunters, who failed to get a full day's bag the entire season last year, retired from the field before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning with the legal take of four.

Regional Game Warden Benjamin F. Phebus Sr., and District Warden Durward W. Kettells said practically every hunter they checked during the day had rabbits. Few had birds, but most of them reported having seen covies.

The only human casualty of the opening day was Robert E. Warfield, 40, colored, Rt. 1, Silver Spring, who was treated at the Mt. Airy office of Dr. J. Stanley Grabill for removal of shotgun pellets in his left leg, abdomen and left hand.

While no other hunters were reported hurt, some of their feelings were shocked when caught violating the game laws, wardens reported. Several were arrested in Frederick County for hunting after sundown, using unplugged guns and hunting without licenses.

Deer Are Spotted

Several hunters reported seeing four small doe deer foraging along the Monocacy River near Utica. Another walked up on a large buck feeding on tree leaves in the mountains. The deer season doesn't open until Dec. 4, for a six-day run.

Pre-season reports from the State Conservation Dept. had indicated the quail and pheasant population was unusually low in this area, but hunters reported surprise that they encountered as many quail as they did.

Despite the large amount of land posted against hunters, the opening day turn-out was probably larger than reported in recent years, wardens said.

Carroll County Okays Bingo

The Republican sweep in Frederick County was paralleled by Carroll County, where only two Democrats seeking county offices emerged victorious.

A bill to permit raffles, bingo, etc., in Carroll County carried by a wide margin on a referendum. The figures showed the measures adopted by 5632 to 2818.

Mrs. Dorothy Freshman and daughter, Thurmont, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarence Sanders.

Thomas Dillon Receives Degree

Professor Dillon is instructor in business administration at Mt. St. Mary's College.

Noted Lecturer Addresses County Teachers

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., author, journalist, photographer, globe-trotter, soldier of fortune and a dynamic speaker, addressed a large gathering Monday evening in the auditorium of Frederick High School. His appearance was the second program in a series being sponsored by the Frederick County Teachers Assn.

He wandered the globe as a journalist and his name was open sesame to such world figures as Gandhi, Nehru, Chiang Kai-shek, Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain, Roosevelt and Churchill—all world leaders.

During his boyhood Mr. Vanderbilt was a close friend of Theodore Roosevelt and later an intimate of FDR. He saw six years of active service in two wars. Among other decorations, he received the Distinguished Service Cross of the FBI. Each year he crosses the Atlantic to make a new survey of post-war Europe.

Norris, chairman of the Community Fund, reported on the same case and explained the action taken thus far. It is believed that both organizations will aid the girl financially in securing at-home tutoring. It has been reported the girl has been crippled for about 15 years and has never attended school.

Businessmen Approve Universal Training

Thousands of independent businessmen have placed a "must" tag on universal military training. In signed ballots sent to their Congressmen this month, they called for favorable action on this matter as soon as the lawmakers return to Washington. At the same time, these businessmen, all members of the National Federation of Independent Business, called on their Congressmen to curb exports of goods and commodities in short supply in our own country, to guard against any attempts by career and other government officials to decrease the number of businesses in operation by appeals to "national emergencies," and to insure continued vigorous prosecution of all anti-trust cases now docketed for action.

Ballots sent to Congressmen this month are from the latest of the Federation's regular soundings of business and professional men's sentiment on important legislative issues. The votes recorded were based on distribution of 127,000 Mandate ballots to Federation members directly through the mails and to Federation non-members directly by Federation field representatives.

RENT CONTROL TO EXPIRE HERE DEC. 31

The Mayor and Commissioners met in regular session Tuesday night in the Town Office in the Fire Hall. The full Board was present. Board Chairman Lloyd G. Ohler presided at the meeting.

A delegation from the Vigilant Hose Co. was received by the governing body and heard their plea for financial assistance from the Town. The delegation consisted of Herbert Roger, J. William Rowe, and Guy R. McLaughlin. It was pointed out that most incorporated Towns render financial aid to their fire companies and that Emmitsburg in the past, has been doing so, but the contributions were considered inadequate. After a lengthy discussion, unanimous approval of an outright grant of $400 was okayed by the Board for the firemen's fiscal year, which begins Jan. 1. It is believed the donation will be an annual one, and to be able to stabilize this grant, the Town Board is expected to appeal to the State Legislature for authority to keep on after its expiration, the 15-cent bond tax. The bonds will all be redeemed in about another year, and it is expected the fire company will share the major portion of the tax receipts after that.

After reading and adopting the minutes of the previous meeting, Col. Thomas J. Frailey turned the deed to the recently purchased lot over to the Town Clerk. Purchase price was announced as $1050.

The lot is located on S. Seton Ave, adjacent the Elizabeth Neck property and it is expected to be the future site of the new community hall.

Town Treasurer Sebald reported a verified bank balance of $10,163.10. To date $4823.17 has been paid on the parking meters. It was agreed by the Board to pay the remaining balance on the meters before the first of the year, which will save the taxpayers nearly $400.

Emmitsburg's share of utility and incorporated business taxes was announced this year as $7850. A letter of appreciation was ordered sent Charles D. Gillelan, who did some recent street painting for the corporation gratis. Mr. Ohler was appointed as a delegate to a health department meeting to discuss defense measures pertaining to sabotage of water and sewerage lines.

A communication from the rent control office of the State was read and the Board agreed there was no dire shortage of housing facilities in this community. Unless further action is taken on rent control here, Jan. 1 will see the law go out of existence as far as Emmitsburg is concerned.

The Board decided to take action in having a map of the Town drawn up. There have been many heavy demands for an improved map of Emmitsburg recently, listing the number of feet of hard and improved streets, water lines, power and communication lines and street names. A representative of the Chamber of Commerce was present and the subject of street and alley markers was discussed.

The Town will go all out this year in seeing that Emmitsburg is appropriately decorated for Christmas. Town Officials are working on a plan to have the Potomac-Edison Co. handle the whole job, from all extremities of the corporate limits to the Square. The plan is contingent, however, depending upon acceptance of the power company.

Mayor Thornton Rodgers reported on a recent joint meeting between Emmitsburg and Thurmont officials concerning the construction of a common incinerator. To be situated between the two towns. If plans go through as expected, Rocky Ridge, Emmitsburg, Thurmont, and Graceham will be included. The county commissioners and the county health department have been invited to attend the next joint session, and it is thought possible financial assistance from the county might be forthcoming.

Charles Wivell, Hagerstown, spent Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wivell.

Cranberry Time Is Here Again

If you want a really economical fruit that's easily prepared, cranberries are for you! And, best of all, they go well with almost any meal.

For breakfast you can make a hot cranberry butter sauce for pouring over pancakes and waffles. Simply add two tablespoons of butter and two tablespoons of brown sugar to a cup of whole cranberry sauce. Heat the mixture till it boils and then serve it piping hot.

For a dinner dessert you'll find that cranberry festival cake is hard to beat. First prepare a standard cake recipe or the contents of a box of cake mix and have it all ready to go into the baking dish. Then put two cupfuls of cranberry sauce into a baking dish that is preferably flat and about eight inches square. Next you stir into the cranberry sauce one-third cup of orange juice.

Now take the cake batter and carefully spoon it over the cranberry-orange mixture. Bake it in a moderate oven for 40 to 50 minutes. While it is still warm remove it from the baking dish just as you would a regular upside down cake and let it cool.

Paging Popeye

Over-cooking spinach will not only destroy its flavor, but it ruins its nice green color, and causes loss of food value. The right way to cook it is in the water that clings to its leaves after washing. When the leaves are tender take it quickly from the stove.

No More Mashed Fingers

When starting to drive a nail, grasp the hammer close under the head and tap lightly. Then after the nail is started, grasp the end of the hammer's handle for long, more powerful strokes. More than a few fingers have been saved this way.

Price Of Farm Land Rising

Farm land prices are going up again. They have risen more than two and one-half per cent in Maryland since March, according to Dr. S. H. DeVault, head of the Agricultural Economics Dept. at the University of Maryland. Furthermore, he expects them to continue to rise due to the Korean situation and the strong prospect of a sustained armament program.

The economist advises farmers to consider this important factor before buying land. "Although prices received by farmers for their products are still relatively high, they should beware of heavy indebtedness during this unsettled period in farm real estate," he warns.

The recent restrictions put on credit requirements, he believes, will help prevent farmers going too far in debt during the period of high land cost. He offers other proposals to help curb further inflation of land values. These are (1) all lending agencies should investigate and review farm loan applications carefully, (2) individual lenders should make sound investments such as U. S. Savings Bonds and not speculate in farm mortgage loans, and (3) as a last resort in a critical situation, investment in agriculture by persons who are, or will become, absentee landlords should be discouraged.

Dr. DeVault believes that, at present, farmers are generally able to meet mortgage payments but a slump in agriculture prices could create a serious problem for farmers with heavily mortgaged property. "A little discretion in buying farms now," he says, "can help prevent the danger of many farmers losing their farms when prices again decline."

POULTRY POINTERS

How Long to Keep Chickens?

The molting time of a hen does not only depend on inherited factors, but more on proper management practices. Most birds do not lay any eggs while molting, and it is a discovered fact that the early molters usually are the slowest ones to regain their laying capacity. Therefore, they are the least profitable ones to keep for the next year, if you do not practice the yearly replacement of hens by pullets.

A molting hen eats during her molting time, between 25 to 40 pounds of feed without paying for, while a baby chick does not eat more feed up to laying time than a hen during her molting or "egg laying strike." Moreover a pullet lays more eggs than a hen, and has also a better chance to survive than a hen, which with other words means that the mortality rate of pullets under normal conditions is much lower than the death rate of hens.

While previously mentioned facts lead the poultry farmer to conclude that raising pullets every year in order to maintain efficiency, may be better for flock-owners of less than 150 birds to save the best ones for one more year of laying; particularly leg-horns which have a small sales value after laying. Brooding of small flocks is comparatively more expensive and bothersome. If your flock is small and you do not want to raise replacements this year, dispose of the early molters, but better keep the late ones.

(How to feed and manage molting hens will be discussed in the next Pointer).

If you have two year old birds, dispose of them, as they start molting, because birds lay in their third year less eggs than it is profitable to feed them.

New Phone Books Are On Way

The new 1950-51 Frederick telephone directory is being delivered this week, according to an announcement by F. K. Simmons, manager for the Frederick area of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore City.

While the cover color has been changed to green, the familiar symbolical drawing of the "Spirit of Communication" still occupies its usual place in the center of the page. According to Mr. Simmons, 18,500 copies of the new book have been ordered although all of these will not be required immediately, some being held in reserve for expected connections of new customers.

Featured for the first time are business bold faced listings in the alphabetical section which coupled with the yellow page buyers' guide will be of further assistance to customers in readily locating the telephone numbers of business firms.

While the number of pages remains about the same, Mr. Simmons pointed out that 8500 changes have been made in the listings. He emphasizes that customers could save time by verifying all numbers before calling. "By checking personal telephone number lists with the new directory and calling the correct number," he said, "customers can help us give faster service on all calls."

The new directory covers Frederick County just as has been the practice for a number of years and includes the following telephone exchanges: Braddock Heights, Brunswick, Buckeystown, Emmitsburg, Frederick, Middletown, Mt. Airy, Myersville, New Market, Thurmont and Walkersville.

Car Registrations Set New Record

Special state taxes collected each year from Maryland motorists will jump by at least $3,604,000 because of the 1950 increase in motor vehicle ownership, J. P. Lanigan, executive secretary of the Maryland Petroleum Industries committee said this week.

His computation is based on preliminary estimates of 1950 car, bus and truck registrations recently released by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

"Without any increase in present tax rates, the increase in vehicle ownership expected during 1950 should mean a nine per cent increase in registration fee collections and a minimum increase of $2,090,000 in gasoline tax revenues to Maryland. Increased use of motor vehicles and new registrations in future years will further increase state highway user tax collections," he stated.

The Bureau of Public Roads estimated that Maryland will have 669,000 registered motor vehicles at the beginning of 1951, compared with 610,866 at the start of 1950. "In the course of this year, the Maryland motorist will pay an average of about $90.00 in state and federal levies just because he owns and operates a car or a truck."

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 17—In view of a report in "The Commercial and Financial Chronicle," America's leading business weekly, that I have recently been putting my hard-earned pennies in a certain drug stock, many inquiries have come to me asking the reasons. Hence, this week let me give ten reasons therefor.

(1) Drug stocks fare well both in times of peace and war. In these uncertain days, when our country is "betwixt and between," the wise investor will not gamble on either peace or war. He will invest his savings in an industry which will be safe in either case.

(2) Some great new discoveries which may protect our families against polio, arthritis, and perhaps cancer are "on the way." As these come along drug stocks should boom as television and electronic stocks boomed last year.

(3) The chemists and pharmacists of drug companies are given especial consideration in connection with labor laws and perhaps the draft itself. They are recognized as important workers and entitled to such exemptions from rules and regulations as are possible to give.

(4) Drug stores are permitted by law to be open any number of hours per day and seven days a week including Sundays and holidays. As the modern stores have lunch counters, this long opening period is a public convenience as well as necessity.

(5) Drug stores usually have the choicest locations in a city, at corners, or adjoining bus stations or at otherwise frequented localities. Instead of owning the property, they rent so as to be able to move as the trading areas of the city change.

(6) Drug companies are constantly increasing their lines of merchandise which is no longer limited to sick-room needs. From electric heating pads and gadgets for warming baby's milk, modern drug stores now carry most all home electric appliances and—in addition—an unlimited variety of household supplies.

(7) The public likes to buy at drug stores whatever these stores carry, both on account of the higher quality of the merchandise and the intelligence of the sales clerks. For several reasons the drug industry insists upon higher standards for their employees than any other group.

(8) Earnings of drug stocks are now temporarily depressed due to the industry's over-expansion during the past five years and the need of new capital to pay therefor. This fact should now make such stocks more attractive to the wise investor than other stocks which are, at the moment, very popular.

(9) Drug companies, like other good merchandising corporations are especially good hedges against inflation. The capital of such companies is almost wholly invested in commodities which rise in price as the purchasing power of the dollar increases.

(10) There is also another personal reason for my investing in drug stocks. I have been most successful when investing in stocks of companies which are saving life or property and thus performing a national service. Certainly, the drug industry is both saving lives and improving the health and happiness of every community.

I even look forward to the time when humane-minded persons who now seek positions in social service, or in educational fields, or even in church work will see the great opportunity for helping others by serving in a high grade drug laboratory or store. When this time comes it should give the industry a very high standing which should result in a much greater volume of sales at a larger margin of profit.

Just a word regarding merchandise stocks in general. I believe that most "store stocks" are preferable to "manufacturing stocks." I hope to see the Dow-Jones Industrial Average divided between these two groups. Investors will be greatly surprised when this is done. Finally—for several reasons—I prefer the "chains" to the large department stores—whether they are drug chains or variety chains or shoe chains. Moreover, chains which sell to women have better records than chains which sell only to men.

MARYLAND HOME FRONT

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan has announced that to assist in assuring an abundant production of meat and other livestock products, there will be no marketing quotas in effect for the 1951 crop of corn. He has also stated that acreage allotments for this important feed grain will be set at levels high enough to provide a substantial increase in production next year. (Acreage allotments for corn are required by the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended.)

Sec. Brannan explained that "this announcement should make it possible for farmers to go ahead with plans for breeding an increased number of sows and for preparing their land for corn in those areas where this is done in the fall."

Commenting on the announcement, Sec. Brannan said, "While our present feed grain situation is excellent, with a total of more than 150 million tons in the supply for all uses in the 1950-51 year, high level production will be needed again in 1951. All indications are that demand for meat will be even greater next year. We must have the feed to support expected increases in meat production, while at the same time maintaining safe reserves for the future."

"Corn is our most important feed grain. It is the key to the feed grain situation. We have nearly four billion bushels of corn in the total supply for the current feeding year, including 1950 production of more than three billion 100 million bushels and a carry-over from former crops now estimated at 859 million bushels. In spite of this near-record supply, there are facts in the over-all corn situation which emphasize the need for a big crop next year in order to obtain a big production of meat."

"The carry-over of old corn is now known to be nearly 100 million bushels less than the earlier estimate of around 950 million bushels. Record utilization of corn during the past year—more than 3 billion 300 million bushels—was well above 1950 production, and total use during the year ahead is expected to be even larger. This means that we will have to cut into reserve stocks during the year, probably by at least 200 to 300 million bushels. Present indications are that the carry-over of old corn when the 1951 crop comes in will be not more than 600 million bushels.

"A 600 million carry-over will be an adequate reserve if we have good production next year, but it is essential that we set our sights for a big 1951 crop to be on the safe side in the national defense effort. That is why we plan to set the acreage allotments high enough to encourage increased production, at levels which will at least meet our annual requirements and protect our reserves. And there will be no marketing quotas."

No Vegetable Supports In '51

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture plans no price support program for vegetables in 1951. However, Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland PMA State Committee, points out that assistance has been given in the past to truck crop growers in the form of surplus removal purchase operations. Similar help may be given during 1951 but no requests will be considered in areas where growers have substantially exceeded the suggested acreage for the commodity.

Mr. Blandford warns growers that although the USDA is suggesting acreage and production deemed desirable for vegetables the Department has made no commitment to support the price of vegetables. Growers of vegetables should, before planting time, take reasonable precautions to assure themselves that marketing facilities and outlets will be available to handle the production they expect.

Mr. Blandford explains that, "because of the improved demand anticipated in the spring of 1951, adjustments from the 1950 level of production are not as great as otherwise may have been necessary. The acreage suggested is two per cent less than the 1950 spring acreage, three per cent more than the 1949 spring acreage and six per cent less than the 1944-48 average acreage. The suggested acreages, with average yields, would result in a total production two per cent less than in 1950, three per cent less than in 1949 and one per cent more than the 1944-48 average production.

Just to mention a few of the many early vegetable crops produced in the State, the recommendation for snap beans is for the same acreage as in 1950; less, and spinach the same as in 1950.

SHORT STORY

Vanity All

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

EVERY MAN," said Inspector Joe Warren, frowning over the letter which he held in his hand, "has a weak point. In the case of 'The Flash,' most daring criminal of this city's criminal history, it appears to be vanity."

3-Minute Fiction

"He gestured toward the letter. The fellow has become drunk with his success in accomplishing two outstanding robberies. And now he has taken to writing us letters, stating just where he's going to be at a certain time and what he plans to do."

Detective Fargo blew smoke rings at the ceiling and evaded his chief's eyes.

"So far," he said, "he seems to have been pretty successful in carrying out his plans. This is the third letter we've received."

"Each time The Flash has appeared where he said he would at exactly the time denoted in his letters. And while we've stood idly by he's committed his crimes and escaped."

"What's he up to this time?"

"The Devonshire party," Warren growled. The truth of Fargo's statement scored him. "Mrs. Devonshire is planning to wear that valuable emerald her husband brought her from Europe a month ago. The Flash states in this letter that he intends to steal the emerald and defies us to stop him."

Fargo crushed out his cigarette. "Have you taken any steps to prevent the robbery?"

"Fargo, as you know, the Flash's disguise is perfect. He'll appear at that party as a guest, or servant—someone with whom the Devonshires are but slightly acquainted. I want you to go up there early, meet Mrs. Devonshire when she comes down stairs and stick with her until the last guest has gone. Then see to it that the emerald is stored away in a safe before you leave. I'll have Johnson and a couple of other men mingling with the guests."

At 11 O'CLOCK on the night of the Devonshire party Inspector Warren drew his roadster up before the palatial mansion and ascended the steps.

The moment the Devonshire butler opened the door Warren knew something had happened. The butler's face was white and drawn and over his shoulder Warren could see a group of guests huddled in the hallway, with Detective Johnson standing guard.

Warren stepped quickly inside. And at that moment Mrs. Devonshire, accompanied by her husband and Detective Fargo, came flying down the stairs.

"What's happened?" Warren barked at Fargo, ignoring the incoherent babble of Mrs. Devonshire.

"It's gone," Fargo grated. "About an hour ago. I was standing behind Mrs. Devonshire in the reception line. Someone poked a gun in my back and told me to walk backward. When I saw the fellow's face I knew it was The Flash, because he was a dead ringer for myself."

"A ringer for you?" Warren gasped. "What the devil do you mean?"

"I mean," said Fargo grimly, "that his disguise this time looked like me, generally speaking. He forced me into a closet and cracked me over the head. Naturally, I noticed that anything was happening, as Mrs. Devonshire was exhibiting her emerald at the time. And when The Flash returned and stood in my place, it occurred to me that it was not me."

"Ten minutes ago I came to and began to kick on the door. Devonshire opened it. I rushed to Mrs. Devonshire and discovered that she had just missed her emerald.—The Flash has outsmarted us again!"

Warren slumped wearily into a chair.

"Tomorrow," he groaned, "every newspaper in the city will have the story. It will be the most humiliating moment of my life."

Fargo smiled bitterly.

"Every man has his weak point," he said. "Yours seems to be vanity."

MARYLAND FEED & GRAIN MARKETS

Baltimore grain markets strengthened last week. Wheat advanced about three cents per bushel on the market. Kiln-dried yellow shelled corn grading No. 2 made a sharp advance of about nine cents per bushel while yellow ear corn dropped about six cents per bushel. Barley was firm. Western white oats strengthened on the Baltimore market with gains of about five cents per bushel noted in No. 2 white oats. Soybeans advanced sharply about nine cents per bushel for yellow and three cents per bushel for blacks.

National Grain Market

Grain markets were unsettled last week, influenced principally by developments in the Korean situation and by the national election, according to reports to the Dept. of Agriculture. Wheat markets weakened slightly as demand continued slow and well under last season. Feed grains held firm as a result of an active request from feeders and processors. Corn, oats, and malting barley advanced about five to six cents per bushel. Soybeans fluctuated over a wide range and closed five to six cents per bushel higher than a week ago.

Maryland Feed Market

The Baltimore feed market made further advances during last week. Distillers' dried grains showed the most strength gaining almost seven per cent bringing the week's average price up $4.54 per ton higher. Brewers' dried grains advanced more than three per cent on the Baltimore market — $2.14 per ton higher than a week ago. Cottonseed oil meal gained over two per cent — $2.09 per ton more. Gluten feed, the only feed that showed weakness worth noting, dropped about $3.66 per ton—more than five per cent.

During the week, Maryland broiler producers paid an average of $96.64 per ton for feed and received an average of 24.6 cents per pound for broilers. Based on this average retail cash price of 20% broiler mash on

National Feed Market

Feedstuff prices advanced to the highest level since August during the week ending Nov. 7, influenced by colder weather, sharp advances in grain and oilseed markets, and unfavorable war news from Korea, reports to the Dept. of Agriculture indicate. Demand became more active with colder weather and rapid deterioration of grass pastures and ranges. Sharply advanced soybean prices and the active demand for meal advanced soybean meal prices an average of over $4 per ton with other oilseed meals making somewhat smaller gains. The index of wholesale feedstuff prices advanced nearly eight points to 222.2 which compares with 209 a year ago. With sharp advances in corn and oats prices the feed grain index advanced over 12 points to 219.8 or about equal to the feedstuff index. The feed grain index a year ago was 167.8.

Compared with the 10-year average, grain sorghums and gluten feed are now the cheapest feeds with cottonseed meal the highest relatively. Based on prices at the principal markets, last week grain sorghums were about the 10-year level while hominy feed is 21 per cent above. Millfeed prices average about 22 per cent higher and alfalfa meal 20 per cent. With smaller supplies of cottonseed meal, prices averaged 40 per cent above the 10-year level while soybean and linseed meal were 27 per cent higher. Tankage prices were 30 per cent above average while fish meal prices were 18 per cent above.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Look for the latest bureaucratic move, the new credit regulations on home buying, to be a focal point of attack when Congress goes back into session late in November.

In fact, this action may well be reflected in November elections.

The heavy protest is coming from cities under 25,000 where the new ruling is hurting.

In communities of this size, the independent building contractor, and his suppliers such as the independent lumber yard, plumber, hardware store and others, are a key factor in the community economy. Together they account for about two-thirds of the nation's home building.

The building boom to fill current needs for housing has resulted in some inflationary trends in large metropolitan areas where big corporations, big financial institutions, and big labor has created artificial price levels.

But in the Heartlands of the U.S.A., the common sense of both buyers and independent operators in the building industry has kept inflation down. In fact, records show that in 1949 four out of five homes were sold to families with incomes from $2,000 to $5,000.

But these facts were obviously waved aside by the bureaucrats.

They proceeded on the theory that there is only one way to get rid of mice in a house. Burn the house down.

So look for a slump in building. Look for unemployment. People thrown out of work by this latest bureaucratic fantasy cannot be absorbed in defense work.

©National Federation of Independent Business

The military will take less than 10% of the lumber supply next year; only 5% of the steel.

This is going to cause Congressmen embarrassment. They voted these arbitrary powers to bureaucrats without any necessity.

Congressmen may try to wiggle out of this by pleading, "forgive us, for we knew not what we did." But from all reports, stupidity is becoming a defense that the people in the smaller cities of the country are getting very reluctant to accept.

People are already starting to ask such questions as this.

"Why were such powers given to men like Carl Gray of the Veterans Administration who at one time was general superintendent of a large corporation and is now a director of a large investment syndicate, or to Ray Foley, head of the Federal Housing Administration, who has been on government payrolls continuously since 1933. What do they know about our local problems?"

Back of this entire move is the underlying drive.

The bureau in charge of rent control wants its powers back. The bureau that wants to build socialistic multi-million dollar public housing projects now see their opportunity.

But all this has no effect on the Frenchman, for just prior to this order, ECA Bulletin No. 1765 announced this information.

The Marshall Plan has just granted France $19,000,000 for building homes. This will not cause inflation in France... because American taxpayers foot the bill.

Thanks

Thanks to the people of Frederick County for their fine support on November 7!

Your Stake In Inflation

For generations life insurance has been a mainstay of economic protection for the American family. It still is one of the most important security props in most American homes. Today three out of every four families own life insurance through the investment of their savings with private insurance companies. In comparatively recent years the pension idea mushroomed and now approximately 50 million workers are participants in the Federal government's Old Age and Survivors Insurance (Social Security) program through which a fixed monthly pension is paid at retirement age.

Thus these two sources—private insurance and public Social Security—constitute primary bulwarks of economic security for the homes of America. But day by day, week by week, both are being sabotaged by inflation. Every day the inflation continues the the holders of 170 million insurance policies with a face value of $214 billion are being robbed, their future made less secure. Every day it continues, these people are seeing this promised "security" evaporate with the declining value of the dollar.

Sapping The Dollar

The $100 monthly old age pension of today may be so sabotaged in purchasing power by inflation within a few years that it wouldn't pay a week's grocery bill for a retired man and his wife. So long as inflation continues, pensioned "security," life insurance "security" and savings account "security" can only be a mirage. The $100 pension of 1939 has now dropped to $56 worth of purchasing power for food and clothes and the decline continues.

The 1950 Congress doubled old age pension payments under the Social Security program but the increase in dollars barely took care of the loss to inflation during the last 10 years. Congress didn't do anything about the "security" loss sustained by the nearly 40 million families who have invested over the years in insurance policies. The insurance owned by these families has lost about $100 billion in purchasing power due to inflation. Hardly anybody has escaped injury.

An Illustration

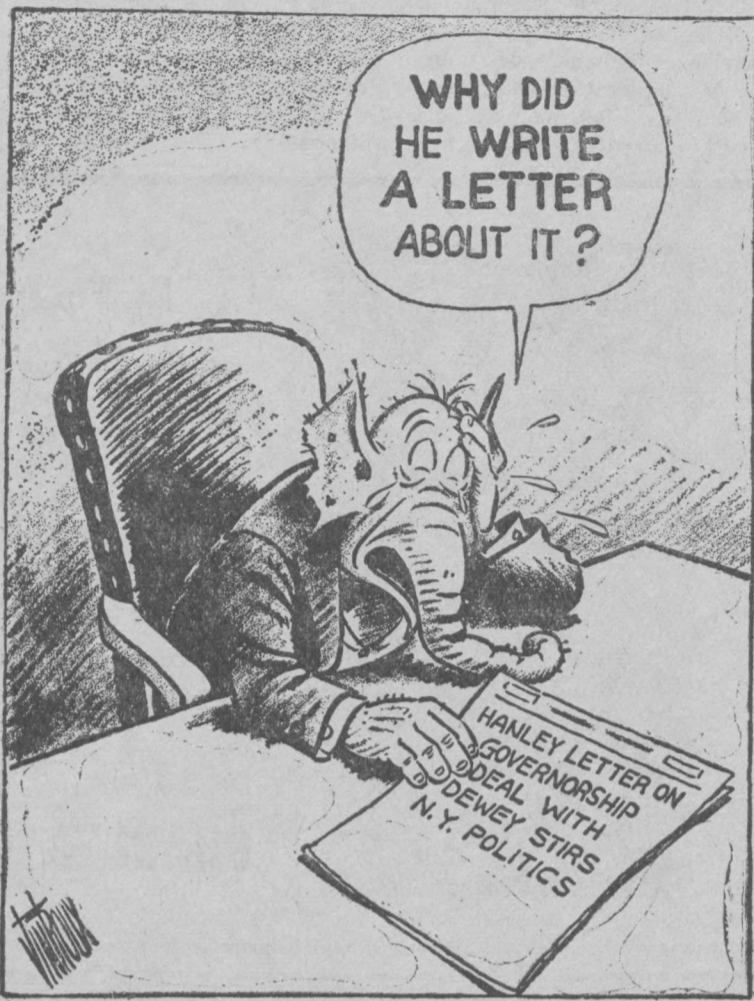

What inflation has done to such savings is strikingly illustrated by the plight of my friend, Joe. He's a salaried man. For 20 years he denied his family many wished-for things in order to pay for a six-unit apartment building which he felt would provide ample "security." In 1939 he made the last payment. Then he got an offer of $14,800 for the property. To Joe, that much cash seemed a small fortune. He sold and put the money in a savings account to await the day when he would buy another investment property. The money's still in the bank. Today it would scarcely pay the down payment on the apartment building Joe sold 11 years ago—priced now, in inflation-hit dollars, at $45,000.

Joe's salary is another illustration of the damages of inflation. He's had four substantial raises since 1940 but his present salary actually has only five per cent more purchasing power, in food and clothing, than his much lower salary had in 1940. The industrial wage earner has probably had twice as many raises; his income has increased about 150 per cent since 1940. But inflation has hit wages so heavily, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that in actual purchasing power the weekly income of the average industrial worker has increased by only $9.22 since 1940. That's about enough to buy an average price pair of shoes—with our cheap 1950 dollars.

What's The Answer?

Obviously, higher wages and salaries cannot bring a permanent improvement in living standards so long as we continue to have inflation. But if inflation can be halted and wages and salaries should thereafter be based on a rising productivity, then permanent, wholesome improvement

Marine Corps Modifies Physical Requirements for Former Soldiers

A further modification of regulations governing the re-enlistment of men with previous U. S. Marine Corps active duty service was announced this week by the Marine Recruiting Service.

The revision makes it possible for former Marines, honorably discharged in the rank of sergeant or below, to return immediately to active duty in the same rank held at the time of discharge. Formerly such men voluntarily returning to active duty could not be appointed to rank higher than private first class.

Volunteers wishing to take advantage of this program may not exceed 32 years of age plus all active service in any branch of the Armed Forces. They may be married and have dependents.

Our costly preparations for full-scale war will bring serious new inflation pressures to bear unless strong measures are applied immediately in the management of Federal government finances. Every person has a stake: his pocket book is involved; and, at longer range the stability and strength of our nation. Every Congressman and every Federal official knows what must be done to stem inflation. They will take the necessary action when sufficient people ask them to do so. So far sufficient people haven't. Have you?

Students Participate In Scholastic Art Exhibition

Baltimore will again be the scene of the Maryland Scholastic Art Awards Exhibition, to which art students in junior and senior high schools throughout this region will submit entries for recognition of their abilities in art. Hochschild, Kohn & Co. will serve as regional sponsor of the 1951 Scholastic Art Awards, which is conducted nationally by Scholastic Magazines. Last year the national program drew over 115,000 entries from all 48 states and possessions.

The 1951 rules booklet, giving full details of the program, has already been mailed to principals and art teachers throughout Maryland. It announces that there are 25 art classifications which students may enter in pictorial art, graphic arts, design, advertising art, sculpture, and ceramics, crafts, and photography.

Regional winners will receive gold achievement keys and certificates of merit. Pieces selected by the jury will go on display at the store from Feb. 3 through Feb. 17. After that show the key-winning pieces will be forwarded to Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, where they will be judged by juries of distinguished artists and educators for cash awards totaling $15,000 and 140 tuition scholarships to leading art schools throughout the country.

Dahlias Can Be Saved In Winter

Many growers of dahlias lose their stock during the winter months when the roots are stored. However, by taking the following precautions offered by Dr. D. T. Morgan of the botany department at the University of Maryland, the root clumps may be wintered with little or no loss.

Roots with broken necks will not grow. Therefore, breakage should be avoided by carefully loosening the soil around the roots with a spading fork before lifting the clump from the soil. The roots should be dug soon after the first killing frost.

The roots should also be kept from shriveling or rotting in storage. This may be done by packing the clumps in dry soil and placing them in a cool part of the cellar. They should be checked about every two weeks and if they show signs of drying out, a moist burlap bag should be placed over the clump. Rotten or moldy parts of the roots should be cut away and the sur-

All of which does not mean that a local or temporary power shortage can never develop due to unforeseen circumstances. It does mean that, generally speaking, the country is in good shape as far as electricity is concerned.

Front end styling improvements of Studebaker's 1951 passenger car offerings center around the new grille, silver-hued "spinner," and bumper support splash shield. Design changes in the rear are reflected principally in the new trunk deck handles enclosing lock, lid release and license plate lamp, and the re-designed tail lamps which give much greater lighting both rearward and laterally. Other features include the use of wider rear springs to improve lateral stability, one-piece windshields, centerpoint steering, new instrument panels, and one-piece rear windows on all models except the 5-passenger and business coupes. Photo shows the 1951 Studebaker 2-door Custom Champion.

New Studebaker Models Displayed At C. W. Epley's

Studebaker's 1951 passenger car models, paced by a new Commander series powered by a rugged, compact, new V-8 engine, are now being displayed by C. W. Epley, Gettysburg Studebaker dealer.

"The new engine for our Commanders has been designed not only to prepare for any foreseeable boosts in compression ratios, but to utilize the most modern machinery and manufacturing techniques in producing it," says Mr. Epley. "Rated horsepower of the new engine is 120 at 4000 r.p.m., while taxable horsepower is 36.4. Compression ratio as released is 7-to-1.

The new power plant for the Commander model is but one of an impressive list of changes in the '51 Studebakers.

"We believe the new models will not only set new standards for beauty, but for safety, performance and riding comfort as well," Mr. Epley said. "One-piece windshields, for example, which have been used on Studebaker's post-war five-passenger coupes, convertibles and Land Cruisers, are now standard on all Champions and Commanders. One-piece rear windows are also standard on all but the five-passenger and business coupes. The increased visibility thus provided, will, we feel, make an important contribution to motoring safety," Mr. Epley was quoted.

Tennessee Firewater following the ceremonies, it was just an expression of disgust that others had so completely forgotten. They thought of the living who returned, not only from the First World War, but also from the Second. They wondered if they, too, would be forgotten so soon—even during their lifetime. They wondered about war. They lived over the mud, hunger, hardships of only a few short years ago. They saw the dead and the dying; the bombed buildings; the devastated towns of the war zone. They wondered if, after all, it wouldn't have been right for some of this to be levied on the American towns and cities to show those who remained behind, just what it was like to be on the receiving end.

A year hence, these two veteran organizations, will probably decide to once again honor those whom the Doughboy represents. They will hope for more co-operation from veterans and the respect of civilians who can momentarily lay a broom aside to join in a brief prayer for the type of men Lincoln once said, "... shall not have died in vain."

Sincerely,

"VET"
