This interesting bit of information concerning the modernization of Emmitsburg's homes came to our desk this week via a local citizen. The last residence to be electrically wired took place last week. The home, located on S. Seton Ave., and tenanted by Mrs. Martin Kelly and John Miller, was completely wired for lights by Ralph McDonnell, local electrician. Thus, all of the town's houses are now modernized. First electricians to begin work in town were said to be Charles Hoke and Luther Zimmerman, both deceased. First establishment to use the "new fangled thing" was the old Chronicle Bldg., owned by the late Joseph Hoke. The installation was made by Messrs. Hoke and Zimmerman. Just how many years ago this occurred is a matter of conjecture. Anyway, Emmitsburg has seen the last of the old-time kerosene lamps.

Speaking of modernization in a sense, the town is learning to cooperate more and more each year. A perfect example of this was displayed several months ago when practically every organization in Emmitsburg and Thurmont united in an effort to have Route 15 improved. We believed they accomplished their mission. Now comes an even greater challenge to test our cooperative strength—the Community Hall. Twenty-nine local organizations will participate in making the Chamber of Commerce's "Old Home Week" the gigantic success it is expected to be. I feel this will be one of the biggest events to hit Emmitsburg in decades. Two parades are contemplated, a carnival, a chataqua, old relic window displays, etc., and all the proceeds derived from the week-long event are to be deposited in the building fund of the Community Hall Assn.

Committees are hard at work and weeks of preparations lay ahead. Emmitsburg has, I believe, at last found itself . . . that is to say that it sees what can be done by the complete cooperation of everyone. Gone, it seems, is that old bickering and jealousy that for so many years impeded the town's progress. Organizations can now appoint committees and meet together with constructive results, accomplishing the many needed improvements to the town. However, these committees and organizations are no greater than the membership represented, so when you see such a united effort in the future, lend a hand, won't you, neighbor? We sort of liked the democratic way in which President Ed Enrich handled the selection of the site for the Community Hall. In the paper last week he stated that several sites will be proposed for adoption and the public will select the one they like best—at the polls. That is the most democratic way of settling the matter to all concerned.

Town officials appear to be in quite a dilemma concerning the appointment of Chief Woodring's successor. It is understood the "Chief" is resigning at the end of the month. A successor was named but complications have set in and the appointment cancelled by the appointee himself. However, don't become alarmed, the Commissioners have on file at least a dozen other applications, so we won't be without police protection when the time comes.

One organization that is consistently working for the welfare of the Emmitsburg District is the Community Fund. Working quietly and efficiently the group reviews many cases each month and deals collectively with all of them. None is overlooked and action is forthcoming in most cases, only after careful investigation. It has lessened the heavy burden

Mr. Baker will receive as his prize, a Johnson Motor, Voodoo fishing lures, a Pal hunting knife and a year's supply of Pal hollow-ground razor blades.

Announcement of Mr. Baker's selection was made Thursday of last week on the radio program which stars Guy Kibbee.

Samuel C. Hays, president of the Emmitsburg Water Co., announced this week that Rainbow Lake will be open to restricted bass fishing Sunday.

COMMUNITY FUND PLANS BENEFIT GAME

The Community Fund of Emmitsburg met in regular session Monday evening in the VFW Home, President Thornton W. Rodgers presiding. Paul A. Keepers, appointed on a committee to investigate several shut-ins in the community, reported that several Viewmasters had been placed in the homes of the sick. In all, four of these interesting projectors were distributed, and another is planned for a small boy afflicted with a serious kidney malady.

An erector set was placed in the home of a St. Anthony's boy, who is suffering with a dreaded bone disease. C. A. Elder was placed in charge of promoting the annual summer ball game. This is one of several fund-raising events promoted by the organization and is the only means it has of obtaining funds, except for small contributions by thoughtful residents.

The event is planned for July 26 and will feature the Emmitsburg baseball team versus the American Legion Juniors. Currently the two teams stack up rather well in their respective leagues, the Juniors belonging to the Penn-Maryland League, and the "big" team to the Pen-Mar League.

Tickets for the affair will go on sale next week and will be distributed by the member organizations and can also be obtained at Community Field on game day.

June Proves Wet Month

June now appears likely to become the sixth month since the weather records were compiled in the County, starting in 1889, to reach the 10-inch mark in precipitation.

The Frederick airport listed a total of 9.30 inches as of Saturday morning.

The month's total soared by 1.1 inches Friday afternoon and night as a result of the thunderstorm and heavy showers early Saturday.

June is now the wettest of any month of the year in the past 14. Not since Oct., 1937, produced 9.36 inches has this June's total to date been exceeded. The last 10-inch rainfall month was Sept., 1934, which had 10.64. The record is held by June, 1928, with 11.14. June, 1916, had 10.56. In August, 1933, there was 10.39 and in August, 1911, the total was 10.22.

The wet weather has been coupled with high humidity to make extremely uncomfortable conditions during the past week and it remained unchanged over the weekend.

Some Hay Spoiled

County Agent Henry R. Shoemaker said the only direct damage from the wet spell has been hay spoilage in the fields. Indirectly, however, the rains have cut into the barley crop. Barley in the fields was hammered down by the heavy showers and has become impossible to combine in some sections which will affect the net yield.

The county agent estimated that possibly 50% of the barley crop has been harvested. Wheat, he said, looks good and has been so far unaffected by the wet spell. The crop is late and it will probably be a week or more before any of this grain is cut.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shuff, Merion, Pa., were week-end guests of M. F. Shuff Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Velky and son, Baltimore, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John M. Roddy Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Keating and family, Chicago, are visiting with Mrs. Keating's parents, Prof. and Mrs. Thomas J. Norris.

Bernard Seltzer Jr., Baltimore, is spending the summer with his grandfather, John M. Roddy Sr. David Martin spent the week-end visiting with relatives in Lexington, Va. He was accompanied home Sunday evening by Mrs. Martin who had been visiting for several weeks there.

Ancient Paris was captured and plundered several times by the Vikings.

Locals Drop Two; Play Here Sunday

Fairfield continued its hot pace in the Pen-Mar Baseball League by disposing of Thurmont, 9-4, last Sunday at Fairfield. L Sites pounded out a home run, two doubles, and a single to pace the winners' 17-hit attack. Cease and J. Weikert formed the winning battery. Frailey and Heiston hurled for the losers.

Cashtown topped Littlestown, 9-5, on the former's field. Kitzmiller and Rebert divided the pitching for the winners.

Westminster crushed McSherrystown, 8-2, in a game on the Marylanders' field.

A five-run rally in the last of the fifth inning gave Taneytown a 6-1 win over Emmitsburg at Taneytown. Emmitsburg was held to three hits by Gilbert, McMahon securing two the blows.

In a postponed game played Tuesday evening, McSherrystown shut out Emmitsburg, 5-0. The loss placed the locals in a three-way tie for fourth place.

Two Weddings Of Local Interest Performed

Miss Catherine Seiss, daughter of Mrs. Mary J. Seiss, Rt. 1, Emmitsburg, and Paul E. Eckenrode, son of Charles E. Eckenrode, Emmitsburg, were married last Saturday morning, June 23, at 9:30 o'clock in St. Anthony's Shrine Catholic Church by Rev. Fr. Francis Carney of Mt. St. Mary's College. The double ring ceremony was used.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Charles A. Seiss. She wore a lace and net gown over white slipper satin. The tight-fitting bodice and the sleeves which pointed over the hands were of lace with a high neckline. The nylon net skirt was full and extended into a long train. Her fingertip veil of nylon net edged in deep lace fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and baby breath centered with gardenias. Her only jewelry was a gold miraculous medal and chain, a gift of a Sister of Charity.

The maid of honor, Miss Ann Eckenrode, wore an aqua gown of lace and marquisette, made similar to the bride's gown, with short sleeves and matching mitts and small hat of matching material. She carried a bouquet of red rosebuds.

Francis Seiss, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Louis Seiss and Benjamin Seiss, brothers of the bride.

The church was decorated with lilies, red roses and lighted candles. The church organist, Mrs. Ernest Seltzer, played for the wedding. Charles and Leo Eckenrode, brothers of the bridegroom, sang "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," "O, Lord I Am Not Worthy," "I Need Thee, Precious Jesus" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother." During the last hymn the bride presented the Blessed Mother her bouquet.

The bride's mother wore a dark blue printed dress with black accessories and a white rosebud corsage. A wedding breakfast was served to about 50 relatives at the White House Inn. On the bride's table was a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

The couple left on a week's wedding trip through Virginia. They will visit on their way home with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eckenrode, Petersburg, Va.

The bride wore a light green gabardine suit with white accessories for her going away outfit. They will reside on the Mothers' Station Rd. Mr. Eckenrode is an employe of the Gettysburg Furniture Factory.

SLAYBAUGH-OVERHOLTZER
Miss Coralea Romaine Overholtzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin F. Overholtzer, Harney, became the bride Monday of Bernard W. Slaybaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Slaybaugh, Taneytown, Route 2, at a double ring ceremony in Elias Evangelical Lutheran Church, Emmitsburg, by the bride's pastor, Rev. Philip Bower, at 2 o'clock.

The bride was dressed in a white slipper satin gown with a long train, a princess neckline and fingertip sleeves and veil. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried an orchid bouquet.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Raymond Rose, sister of the bride, and wore an ice blue slipper satin gown with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of rosebuds. A brother-in-law, Raymond Rose, was best man. Ushers were George E. Koontz and Roy B. Overholtzer.

The bride's mother was dressed in a rose crepe dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. The mother of the bridegroom wore a navy blue dress with matching accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. The church was decorated with palms, ferns and candles. Jasper Wanz preceded the ceremony with organ selections and played the traditional wedding marches.

Following the ceremonies a reception was held at the Harney Lutheran parish hall. A four-tier wedding cake with a miniature bride and bridegroom was a feature of the gathering. Following the reception the couple left for Niagara Falls on a wedding trip and will live in Littlestown upon their return, July 15.

BROKEN ARM

"Shorty" Stonesifer, young son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stonesifer, R.D., suffered a broken arm last Monday when he fell from a hay wagon on the Stonesifer farm. After preliminary treatment by a local physician, the child was sent to the Warner-Hospital, Gettysburg, Pa., where X-rays showed the arm broken in three places. This is the second time "Shorty" has broken his arm in the past two months.

The Chamber of Commerce committee will meet next week with the Community Hall Assn. to map out the final plans for a new location.

Locals Injured In Car Crash

Keilholtz was not injured. The injured were taken to the Frederick Hospital for treatment and were later discharged.

State Police Sgt. Richard Stallings, who investigated, said the accident occurred about 10:30 o'clock Sunday evening about three miles north of the radio towers on Ridge Rd. He said the car, which was proceeding toward Fishing Creek, ran off the side of the road, traveled about 10 feet down an embankment and into a large boulder.

Keilholtz was charged with reckless driving by Sgt. Stallings. About $800 damage was done to the car, a 1950 Pontiac, it was reported.

Mt. Tabor Park Services Begin

The Mt. Tabor Park services, Rocky Ridge, will open for the summer Sunday night, July 1, at 8 o'clock. The program for the opening service will be a men's song service. There will be selections by local and visiting groups. Included will be men's choruses, quartets, duets, vocal and piano solos. The two local pastors, Rev. E. Taylor and Rev. R. Poffenberger will take part. Services will continue in the parl. each Sunday night during July and August.

The committee in charge, composed of Bernard H. Boyle, chairman, Mrs. Robert E. Daugherty, and Rev. Philip Bower, met in session Monday night to map out a preliminary program for presentation to the Community Hall Assn., for adoption. The Hall Assn. is expected to co-sponsor the event with the Chamber of Commerce. All proceeds derived will go to the building fund for a new town hall.

Arrangements already have been made to have a chataqua come here for two nights during the proceedings. A carnival is planned and possibly two parades. All the 29 organizations comprising the Community Hall Assn. are expected to cooperate in this gigantic effort to help raise the necessary funds.

Hundreds of former residents are expected to be contacted and notified of the event and a registration booth will be placed on the Square to obtain names of all those coming back to the old home town.

Elder residents of the community are expected to be honor guests at the affair. Several ball games are contemplated and contests of all descriptions are planned.

Expected to return to the scene are the old style country suppers. Band music and hill-billy units are planned to provide musical entertainment every night. Round and square dancing also is planned.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

The Importance of Age

How important is it for a ten-year-old boy to play with boys his own age outside of school? The boys his age live several blocks away—and this association could be encouraged. At present my son plays with a seven-year-old who lives in our block.

It is exceedingly important that your boy play with those of his own age. It is in the rough and tumble play with one's peers that a child learns that give and take which is so essential if he is to adjust himself happily to his fellows.

If he plays only with the seven-year-old, he is likely to dominate him that soon he will have an exalted opinion of his own powers and abilities. When he finds himself with those of his own age whom he cannot dominate and with whom he cannot have his own way, he may develop feelings of inferiority and insecurity that will remain with him throughout life.

Let me suggest, therefore, that you have boys of his own age in your own home frequently—and encourage him to visit them. The seven-year-old neighbor can play with the older boys, too, and of course there will continue to be many occasions on which your son and the younger boy will continue to play alone.

Watch the Luxuries!

To what extent should parents provide their children with all the toys and luxuries the children want? Is there a danger that children will get to expecting anything they may take a fancy to, and get the idea that in life they can have whatever they want?

You have placed your finger on one of the most frequent mistakes that parents make. In their desire to make their children happy and to see to it that they have some of the joys they missed as children, parents not only give them all the toys and luxuries they want, but in many cases more than they want. Is it any wonder, then, that children go out into life utterly unprepared for the hardships and deprivations that fall to the lot of all?

When children are small, therefore, let us guard against giving them everything they want. Our primary concern will be to help them discover how to be happy with what they have.

As children get older and the things they want become more expensive most family incomes automatically put a stop to the getting of everything they want. It is exceedingly important that boys and girls should learn to get satisfaction and happiness out of experiences that do not require a large expenditure of money.

Family Councils

Do you approve of family councils? If they are democratic, the majority opinion will rule. What about the needs of the minority—let us say the child who is overruled by the others? Should not his needs be considered?

Yes, I heartily approve of family councils if they are entered into willingly and cheerfully by each member of the family and if they are conducted on a democratic basis.

Free Brochure Describing Nurses' Training Available

An illustrated folder explaining requirements, procedures and environment for student nurses at the Franklin Square Hospital School of Nursing are now available for the asking, it was announced this week.

High school graduates may enroll immediately for the Septem-

To be sure, majority opinion will rule, as you suggest, and yet it is likewise true that in a democracy the needs and wishes of the minority are taken into account. Certainly the needs of the child who is overruled by the others should be considered. At times he should accede to the decisions of the majority. At other times, the majority should either accede to his desires, or make it possible for him to follow his own judgment, even though it may conflict with theirs.

It should be remembered that if the same child is more or less consistently in the minority, this may be his method of getting attention or by expressing hostility that has developed out of his feeling of emotional insecurity. It may be that he needs more love and affection from the parents, and the opportunity to engage in activities in which he is skilled, so that his own sense of worth may be enhanced.

Playground Quarrels

Is it natural for children to quarrel? In our neighborhood the children play sound as if they hated everybody—they continually quarrel, sometimes they fight. My husband and I try to encourage our small boys to be more gentle but without success.

I suppose that wherever you find live wide-awake, alert, and aggressive children playing together without adult guidance, some quarreling not only is inevitable but desirable.

The very fact that they quarrel indicates that they are normal, healthy youngsters who are in the process of learning how to express their own ideas, to persuade others of their correctness, and to stand up for their own rights. If occasional fights result from the aggressiveness of the children, there is nothing especially to worry about. If quarrels did not occur, it would suggest that too many members of the group were supinely yielding to the selfish demands of the more aggressive ones.

At the same time, quarrels can be too bitter and too continuous. This is especially likely to be true when there is no adult guidance. Youngsters need to receive suggestions as to how they may settle their disputes in an amicable fashion and to have experience in doing so.

Sometimes these suggestions may come from parents, although parents need to guard against always trying to settle quarrels. Neighbors or teachers on the public school ground may be helpful at this point. Boys and girls need to learn how to make decisions on a democratic basis, how to take turns, and how to yield gracefully when the decision of the crowd is against them.

These lessons will not be learned suddenly or easily but they can be learned. Under wise guidance quarrels may be reduced to a minimum.

ber class, Miss Brink said. Interested students may obtain the folder by dropping a card to Superintendent of Nursing Services, Franklin Square Hospital, Fayette and Calhoun Sts., Baltimore 23. Personal interviews will be granted to students calling at the nursing office.

World's Champ Typist Teaches Students Speed Technique

UNCHALLENGED WORLD'S CHAMPION TYPIST, Miss Stella Pajunas, is featured in a new film, "Electric Typing Time," now being produced by RKO-Pathé for International Business Machines Corp. The production, the first full-color educational typing film to be made, brings to students everywhere a close-up of championship typing technique. Above she displays trophies she won in establishing the official one-hour record of 140 net five-stroke words a minute on an IBM electric typewriter. She was the first person to win all four major typing titles: professional champion, amateur champion, novice and women's champion. In the film, Miss Pajunas types 185 words a minute, and, through slow motion, young typists can learn the technique that gives her speed and accuracy.

Pitches 1-Hitter

Don Joy came within one hit of pitching a perfect baseball game last Sunday here, as the American Legion Juniors won their fourth game in a row.

Biser, Sabillasville second baseman, spoiled the no hit affair with a single, while the Juniors were only making three hits off the visiting pitcher.

The lone run scored by Sabillasville was unearned and denied Don Joy a shutout. The victory gave the Juniors their fourth win in a row and boosted them into sole possession of third place in the Penn-Maryland League.

"Pinhead" Mick lead in the hitting department with a long triple and was later scored by McNair's single.

Manager Jack Rosensteel said the Juniors are playing heads-up ball now. The team spirit is high and the hustling of the players account for their win streak.

The Juniors face a crucial test Sunday when they are pitted against Fairview, who now is in the second slot in the league standing. Fairview was victorious over the Juniors at a previous meeting.

Weekly OPS Summary

Maryland OPS Director Hugo R. Hoffman cautions consumers to check the ceiling prices on cuts of fresh beef before purchases are made at the store. As of May 14, butchers are required to display different cuts of beef in separate trays with the ceiling price clearly shown. As soon as retail meat dealers receive ceiling price charts from OPS, somewhere around June 25, they are to be posted in the store. This gives the consumer an easy method of checking the ceilings on beef by cut and grade.

When OPS was established last January, only one regulation, the General Ceiling Price Regulation, was in effect to govern the prices charged for commodities and services. Since then, dozens of "tailored" orders have come through for thousands of American businesses. OPS points out that a tremendous number of businessmen are still covered by this first freeze regulation and that they are required by law to maintain certain records for inspection. Almost every business is covered by at least one OPS regulation.

Need a haircut or your suit cleaned? OPS advises you to check the ceiling prices which were required to be posted by service operators by June 15. The order covers the majority of services from auto repairs to zipper installations, professional fees, such as those charged by doctors, are exempt.

The enforcement section of OPS operates for the protection of the consumer as well as the businessman. If you have a complaint on possible evasion of a regulation, first check your facts. Then, contact OPS at 306 W. Franklin St. OPS special agents follow through on all complaints. It is always advisable to keep a receipt of sale for the complaint.

The Maryland District OPS Office states that the Office of Price Stabilization is now engaged in a study of dollars-and-cents price ceilings at wholesale for veal. Provisions for a retail veal price regulation already have been studied. The two real regulations will be issued together and will be patterned after the beef orders now in effect.

practically all types of women's, children's and infant's apparel is brought under new price control by CPR 45. The purpose of the new order, with which the manufacturer must comply by Aug. 15, is to adjust any cost margins that have been increased since pre-Korean days and to restore normal cost-price relationships. OPS had previously issued a similar regulation controlling manufacturer's shoe prices.

OPS has exempted from controls the sales of used and waste goods by the Salvation Army, or official 4-H Club supplies and official Camp Fire Girl supplies. Sales by the Veteran's Canteen Service have also been exempted.

Retailers and manufacturers of mixed feeds who do not themselves manufacture the feeds they sell, are not required to file base-period ceiling prices under Regulation 7. Only those who manufacture the mixed feeds are required to file.

Stern Stuff

Believing the horse had sustained a broken leg, after the wagon it was drawing collided with an automobile, a New York City patrolman fired two bullets into the six-year-old animal's head. The horse thereupon leaped to its feet and pulled the wagon to its stable. It is expected to live.

Fruit whips, ices, cocktails, melons and junkets are light desserts to complete a heavy meal.

Safety In and On The Water

Swimming and boating are fine exercises, good fun, and among the most popular of summer sports. Water sports are safe, too, when those taking part in them practice a few rules of common sense and avoid taking chances.

No one should ever go swimming immediately after eating. It is best to wait an hour or more after a meal before going into the water. Going for a swim can also be dangerous when one is tired or overheated. A full stomach, fatigue, or extreme heat, coupled with the shock of cold water and sudden exercise, can bring on cramps or exhaustion and make the swimmer powerless in the water.

A swimmer should always have companions with him in the water so that help is near in case he needs it. Long swims are only for qualified experts and even they should never swim long distances unless somebody is following nearby with a boat.

It is a tragic fact that many people are drowned while trying to save someone else. Anyone who swims often should learn the techniques of life-saving so that he can take care of himself as well as others if the occasion should arise.

Small boats like canoes, row-boats, and motor boats are safe as well as enjoyable when people who use them know how to handle them and exercise a little caution.

Passengers, as well as pilots, should know how to swim before they get out into deep water in small boats. But enforced swimming on a boating trip can be avoided when the boat is managed properly and passengers know how to behave.

A small boat that is overloaded or off-balance is apt to tip over most easily. Passengers should be reminded to enter the boat by stepping in the center and, once they are seated, to stay where they are and sit still.

Changing seats in a small boat, or even just standing up, can be dangerous. If the boat does tip over, passengers should cling to it and wait for help, if possible. Going out in a small boat when a storm is coming up is locking for trouble. Anyone who is out on the water when a storm breaks or threatens should head immediately for shore instead of staying out in the hope that it will "blow over."

Most swimming and boating accidents can be avoided. A person can get the most out of both sports if he uses common sense and makes safety first the rule in and out on the water.

The Bogus Security

Out of all the debating that has swirled around the issue of "economic security" during recent years one concrete fact stands out unassailable. It is that the economic welfare of the people of America depends on the volume of goods and services produced in the nation. Economic welfare comes only from this production. If the wealth-melon doesn't grow bigger, then no matter how you slice it, it won't go any farther. This is a simple economic fact on which a lot of people ought to do a lot of thinking.

All the bookwork that could be done by all the bureaus in Washington couldn't change that fact. If American business and industry and agriculture do not boost their employe productivity and the over-all volume of their products during the next 10 years, the living standard of the average American will not improve—no matter what political party is in the White House, or who is Secretary of the Treasury or Budget Director. And "liquidating" the big personal incomes won't change it, for all this money only adds up to a few dollars per person for our 150-million people; and since it pays for the management brains which keep our production progressing, appropriating it for tid-bit distribution throughout the whole population would be far more damaging than helpful.

Jamestown's Lesson
What happened at Jamestown in 1609 is a good illustration of what production means. The settlers at Jamestown first tried communalism—a form of communism—as a way of life. All the production of the fields, the vineyards, herds and flocks was pooled in one communal storehouse and everybody got equal shares. But the least industrious of the colony soon discovered their equal-shares would come to them whether they worked or not. They ceased working and loafed.

When a number of others did likewise, production dropped sharply and the storehouse supplies dwindled. The curtailment of food reached everybody. The community leaders called the situation to the attention of the Jamestown people and communism was discarded. A system of private property and individual responsibility called "private enterprise" was established. The loafers had to work or starve. They began to work. And as everybody began to enjoy the fruits of their individual labors, the total production in Jamestown rose and in the process everybody's welfare and economic security improved.

Production Does It

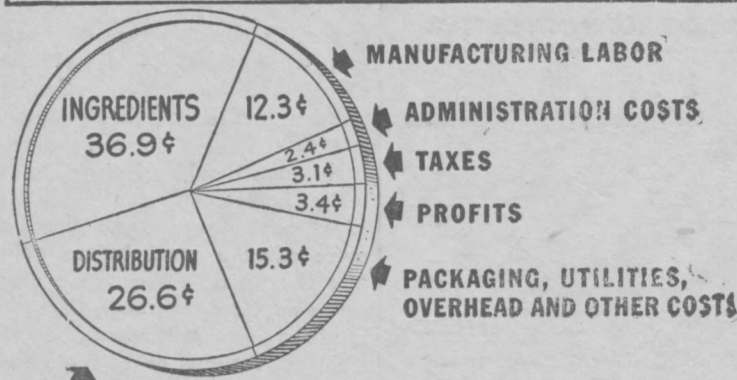

That's exactly what has happened, on a larger scale, in the whole of America. Among Americans there have developed production geniuses such as Ford, McCormick, Chrysler, Kettering and others who have been able to make goods faster and at lower cost, to develop labor-saving devices and techniques, and constantly invent and produce new and better products. Our productive system has, since Jamestown, created a national economy which today provides jobs and a constantly improving living standard for nearly 60 million persons in private employment.

But what happened at Jamestown could under the communal system (and would) happen here if the wealth produced in agriculture and industry and the service trades were to be funneled into the Federal treasury and doled out on a share-the-wealth plan to everybody without regard to ability, personal initiative or willingness to work. Under such a program, the lazy people would quit work and live on their dole; the energetic, unrewarded, would soon quit doing their best; production would stop and so would the American living standard.

Lesson in Europe
Almost without exception the nations of Europe, enticed by the political siren's song, "Something for Nothing," have voted in governments that are gradually installing the old communal storehouse plan of economics.

How Bakery Dollar is Divided

Includes salesmen's pay, truck operations, advertising, etc.

Rising costs of labor involved in the manufacture and distribution of bakery products, and not higher farm prices or greater profits, are largely responsible for increases in prices of bakery products in recent years, the Senate Committee on Forestry and Agriculture reported recently. Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana is chairman of the committee.

A study of operating costs and profits in the baking industry conducted by the committee revealed that baker profits after taxes in the first quarter of 1951 averaged 3.4%. On a pound loaf of bread, this would be approximately one half cent. The profit was the smallest reported in the past five years.

"Today a pound of bakery products reflects 1.9 cents higher costs for ingredients and 2.5 cents higher costs for manufacturing labor and distribution than in 1945," the report said. "The baking industry has maintained approximately the same profit ratio to total sales since 1946—three to five per cent.

"Farm products now make up a smaller proportion of the retail cost of bakery products than at any time since the end of World War II. Distribution costs have increased sharply in recent years. Packaging materials costs increased more than one-third."

Bakers are taking a steady increasing total supply of American farm products, according to the American Bakers Association. Latest figures show that bakers are purchasing annually nearly 13 billion pounds of flour which requires 300 million bushels of wheat; three hundred million pounds of eggs, nearly 300 million pounds of milk, more than a billion pounds of shortenings, two and a half billion pounds of sugar, and millions of pounds of fruit, berries and other farm products.

Know Your Social Security

By ED. R. YOUNG

While it is true that the great majority of Federal employes are covered under Civil Service retirement system, the armed forces retirement systems, or under some other system established by a law of the United States, Congress has long recognized that many other employes had no such protection. The recent amendments to the Social Security Act, which brought insurance protection to so many added groups, was the logical solution therefore to these miscellaneous, loyal Federal employes.

It has been estimated that upwards of 200,000 employes would be covered by this provision. Since most of them are either short duration employes or without permanent or indefinite appointment, they did not come under the protection of the Civil Service retirement system. In addition, they rank the risk of losing Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance protection gained prior to their Federal employment because of the time involved. Another great segment work for the Federal Credit Unions, the Army and Air Force exchange services, and allied organizations. Certainly these people, doing their magnificent jobs, are also due Social Security protection for themselves and their families. Various other groups, although somewhat smaller in number, were also included, so that now virtually every employe of the Federal Government has the protection not only of future retirement benefits but also payments to his survivors in the event of his death.

the Butler (Pa.) High School, is studying conditions in Europe this summer under Harding College sponsorship. From country after country he reports: "The workers are rapidly losing their incentive to do a full day's work. After all nothing unpleasant can happen to them if they don't. The government takes care of everything." Production, he adds, "has begun to fall rather sharply." This deteriorating situation in Europe is the result of people being deceived into believing the falsehood that economic juggling by politicians can control the economic welfare of the people in a free land. Only production can do that. We mustn't allow our welfare to be jeopardized by being led further down this bogus "security" road here in America.

100 Families May Move to Camp Ritchie

It is reported that 100 families might be moved into the Camp Ritchie project area, where the Army is building a big communications center.

The Washington County Commissioners are looking to the Federal Government for some school money if such a move were made. At the present time there is only a small school now in the immediate vicinity of Camp Ritchie.

The Commissioners said they understood the Government has stepped in with aid in similar cases where a sudden concentration of government personnel overtaxed normal school facilities.

The Navy, for example, put up most of the money for a school built by St. Mary's County at the gate to the Patuxent Naval Air Test Center. The exact nature of the installation to be built at and near Camp Ritchie has never been disclosed by the Army.

It is generally understood that Camp Ritchie is to be a support base for an underground facility in the mountain, serving as home for the troops and civilian personnel to man, supply, and guard the installation.

Maryland sold Camp Ritchie to the Federal Government on June 1 for $2.3 million.

Brothers Meet on Battlefield

S/Sgt. Marshall Sanders and his brother, Corp. Thomas Sanders, of Emmitsburg, finally met up with each other in Korea, according to word received by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanders of Emmitsburg.

They are in different camps only 10 miles apart and hope to be able to visit each other frequently. Marshall, learning that Tommy was near him, made a surprise visit to his camp one night at eleven o'clock.

Your Personal Health

By DR. D. L. BEEGLE

Past President of the Maryland Chiropractic Association.

Self-Control Is Aid In Aging Gracefully

It has been said that the way for a person to live to a ripe old age is to acquire a chronic ailment while young and take good care of it. Are these words of wisdom, or merely of wit?

It is true that many people, who have become chronically ill in their youth, have regained their health through required observance of strict health rules and have lived long and useful lives. It is equally true that many people who have had comparatively good health during the earlier periods of life break in middle age. If you have not "enjoyed" the doubtful advantage of being chronically ill in youth and if you have arrived at the middle period of life, this health article should be of special value to you.

In our health chat in August Healthways, we pointed out that two of the most important factors in postponing the onset of old age are good nutrition and good posture. These two factors are fundamental but they are by no means all inclusive. Many other matters are of great importance. Some of these are presented briefly in the following rules for men and women of 40, and over 40:

Slow Down

You may be able to go as fast as before, but if you do you are inviting old age to come prematurely. "Make haste slowly" if you would live a longer, more useful life.

Avoid Fatigue

Fatigue produces poisons that injure the nervous system and hasten the onset of old age. When you are tired, rest promptly and completely. To drive yourself to the point of exhaustion is to court disaster.

Learn to Relax—Even at Work

Let your muscles do your job more easily and save wear and tear on your nervous system. And if you can lie down and rest during the day, even for 30 or 40 minutes, you will lengthen the span of life.

Don't Whip Your Nerves

With Your Emotions

The habit of making emotional "scenes" will sooner or later play havoc with your digestion, or lead to constipation, high blood pressure, or heart disease. Ill-will, jealousy, suspicion, accumulated resentment—all makes a needless drain upon vital forces and induce nervous diseases.

Cultivate Patience—

You Will Need It

You CAN control yourself. Cultivate an unruffled attitude toward people, circumstances and your work. Be calm—learn to wait. Impatience is a handicap to good health.

Develop a Hobby

Do something different from your regular work to enliven your spare time. Play, read, take pictures, collect something, make something, or engage in some kind of activity interesting to you.

Be Your Own Sanitary Engineer

Look well to your bowels; see to it that they move every day. Avoid harsh laxatives, drastic purgatives. Cultivate the habit of going to stool at a definite time each day and never fail to go at that time. This procedure is most effective.

Watch Your Waistline

Excessive fat after 40 is detrimental—it interferes with the normal function of the liver, the kidneys, the heart.

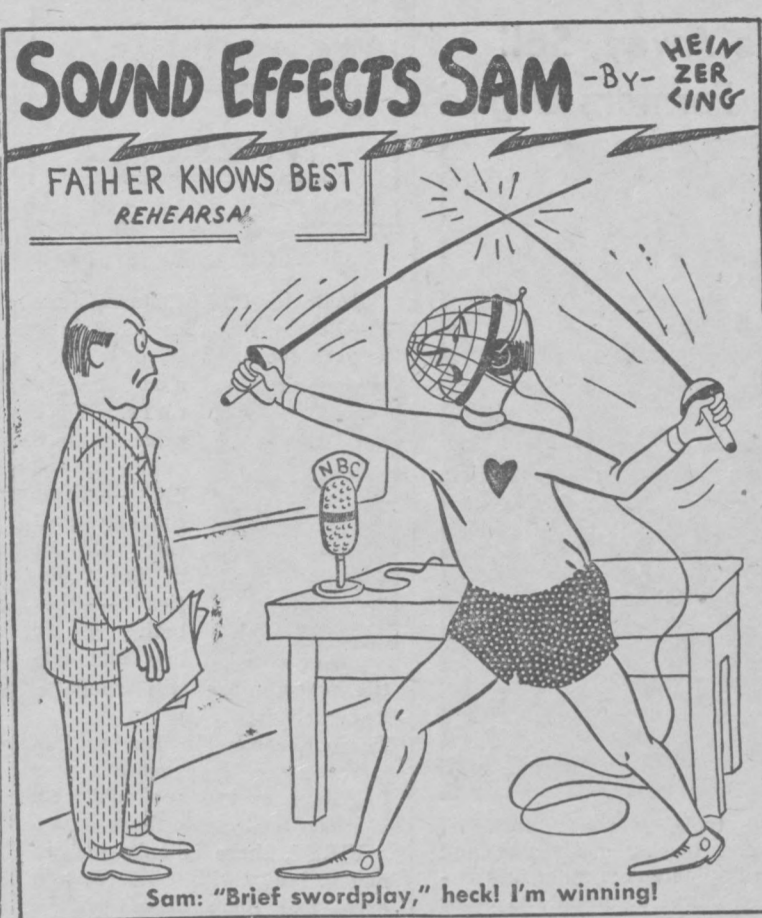

Watch for Danger Signals

Chronic indigestion, insomnia, headache and fatigue should not be considered middle-age symptoms. They may be warning signals that your body needs attention—that you should see a doctor.

Resolve Not to Grow Old

People who live in the past grow old accordingly. Don't yearn for return of "the good old days." You live in the present and in the future. Keep your mind young and elastic, and make middle-age the healthful, happy productive time of life it can and should be.

Fluoridation of water supplies ultimately may reduce the tooth decay problem to a point where the present dental personnel and facilities may be able to control this almost universal disease.

The Cow That Can't "Run Dry"
Sandy Johnson showed me his Jersey cows last week. It was a warm day and they were all under the trees near a watering trough. And darned if one cow wasn't pumping water into the trough! It's a fact—she'd raise the pump handle with her nose, and use her throat to push it down again. "That's Mabel," Sandy explained as she moved away. "Sometimes they drink that trough dry, and she's learned how to fill it again. But she doesn't know her own strength—turns the place into a swamp if we don't watch her."

HOMEMAKERS'
Now is the time for all black-berries lovers to start their marmalade making. Apples make a delicious "stretcher" for marmalades, so why not try this tasty blackberry and apple marmalade recommended by Natalie Russell, nutrition specialist at the University of Maryland.
First crush four cups of black-berries and boil them in their own juice for 10 minutes in a covered saucepan. Then strain the pulp through a double layer of cheesecloth and save the juice. Now for the apples. Peel and core three medium-sized apples, slicing them paper-thin. Put them into a large saucepan, add 1/2 cup water and boil gently, covered, for 10 minutes. Next add the blackberry juice and three cups of sugar to the apples and bring the combined juices slowly to a boil. Cook rapidly until the mixture gives the "two drop" test, usually after about 20 minutes. To make the "two drop" test, take some of the hot mixture on a cold spoon and allow it to fall from the side of the spoon. If the juice forms two drops which drop at the same time from the spoon, the marmalade is done. Marmalade "Musts"
When marmalade you're making is done, it should be immediately poured into hot sterilized jars. Next pour a thin layer of melted paraffin over the marmalade while it's still piping hot. After the marmalade is cold, wipe the jars clean and dry their side and top edges. Then pour on more paraffin and while it is still liquid, slant each jar and turn it around so that the paraffin can do a good job of sealing that delightful marmalade for next fall or winter.

MARYLAND HOME FRONT

The price of the 1951 crop of barley will be supported through loans and purchase agreements. This was announced this week by Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee.

The loan rate, according to the announcement, will be $1.43 per bushel for terminal stored barley grading No. 1. This rate applies only to barley shipped by rail from county shipping points to Baltimore or Philadelphia. Paid freight bills, duly registered for transit privileges, must be shown as evidence.

The county loan rate on barley grading No. 1 is to be $1.26 in all counties.

Mr. Blandford describes eligible barley as:

Eligible barley is barley produced in 1951 in any class grading No. 5 or better, provided such barley does not grade weevily, tough, stained, blighted, bleached, ergoty, or smutty.

To be eligible for a farm stored loan the barley must have been in the granary at least 30 days before inspection by the county committee for measurement, sampling and sealing.

Mr. Blandford suggests that farmers seriously consider the loan program even though the market price at harvest time might exceed the loan rate. By putting the crop under loan, they may hold it for any price rises which may occur during the loan period.

He points out that loans and purchase agreements will be available through Jan. 31, 1952. They will mature April 30, 1952, but the farmer may repay the loan at any time to sell on the open market.

A service fee on farm stored barley under loan shall be charged at the rate of one cent per bushel or $3 which ever is greater.

A service fee on farm stored barley under a purchase agreement shall be charged at the rate of 1/2 cent per bushel or $1.50 which ever is greater.

Full information concerning quantity discounts and storage regulations and other particulars may be had at the county PMA office.

ANGLING ANGLES by old Hi

For sheer fun and sport, one of the most obliging groups of fish to catch in the spring is the "pan" variety. They are a lively, sociable bunch of bait and fly nippers that are always ready to play for you.

There are a lot of them to choose from, and close at home you probably can take your share of sunfish, bluegills, crappies, yellow perch, rock bass, white bass, catfish or other species in lake, pond or stream. Or, if you are near the seashore there are cunners, white perch, sheepshead, croakers, flounders, tautog, rockfish, kelp bass and dozens of others.

This gives you fellows who live along the West Coast, as well as those along the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico Seaboard, and several million "inlanders," the chance to enjoy plenty of variety and action at almost any time of the year. We anglers aren't happy unless we're dunking live bait or shipping out artificial lures . . . and pan fish give us that chance often and at small expense.

Yep, you don't need a lot of high priced tackle to make swell catches of these fish.

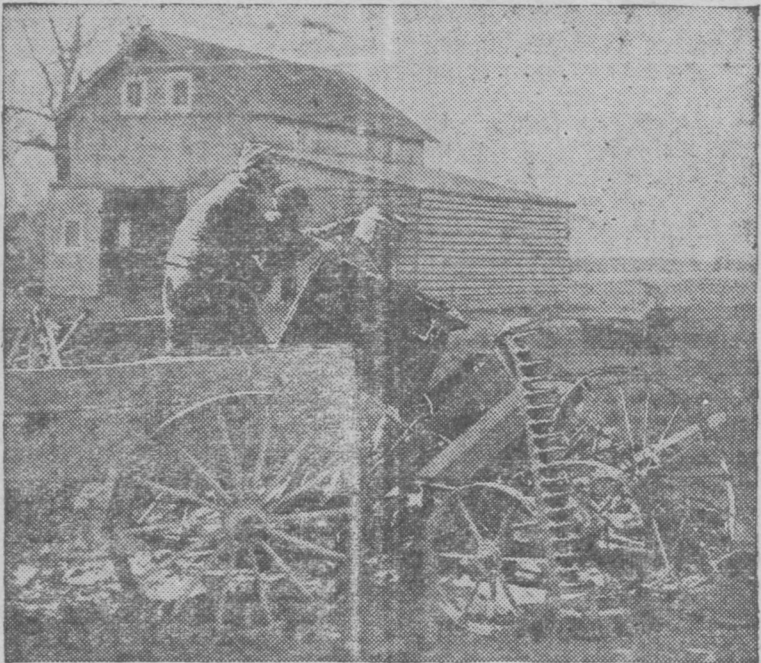

Just get yourself a steel telescope rod, seven-foot tubular steel bait rod, or staunch three-piece tonkin bamboo rod in nine and a half foot length and you are set for tops in sport for fresh and salt water pan fish. With any one of these rods you could use a level-wind bait casting reel of 100 yard line capacity and 100 yards of waterproof hard braided nylon casting line from 12 to 20 pound test, according to the species of fresh or salt water fish you intend to catch.

The right tackle to use for the different, specific kinds of pan fish is described in Old Hi's fresh water booklet entitled "Fishing For The Millions," and also in his booklet for the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico Coast-lines, entitled "Salt Water Sports Fishing." You may get your free copies of these books by sending a postcard to me in care of this newspaper.

For Old Hi's readers living along the West Coast or anyone else who is interested, a copy of his new booklet called "Pacific Coastal Fishing" will be available very shortly. This book tells about catching the five species of Pacific salmon, and the principal species of general salt water fish found along the Pacific seaboard. You may send for your free copy of this new, illustrated booklet now, and it will be sent to you as soon as it is off the press.

If you have any questions about pan fish, or any problems on angling, shoot them to me and I'll be glad to do my best to help you. Please print your name and address plainly.

Don't Let Scrap Waste Away, Sell It to Aid Defense, Farmers Urged

Will steel output be increased? That depends to a great extent on whether farmers move their iron and steel scrap promptly, says the Committee on Iron and Steel Scrap of American Iron and Steel Institute.

Thousands of tons of scrap—vital material in steelmaking—are idle in junk piles on farms, and some of it is wasting away, says the Committee. If farmers promptly sell this material to local scrap collectors, it will be moved to steel mills or foundries for the production of defense equipment and essential civilian items. All scrap is urgently needed—whether a few pounds, a few bushels or a ton or more.

Farmers will help themselves by the sale of the scrap and will help strengthen the United States. Each day about 2,000 carloads of purchased scrap are required by steel mills and foundries. The mills are operating at a record high rate and using more scrap than ever before.

Old tools, wornout parts of tractors, trucks, cultivators and other implements; broken and discarded pieces of metal and other scrap should be taken to town and sold right away to the local scrap dealer. Every pound of scrap which comes back to steel mills helps to make two pounds of new steel, on the average.

If the scrap is unusually bulky, preventing its easy transportation by the farmer, the scrap dealer can be called or the local farm agent can be asked to work out an arrangement.

"Farms are one of the big sources of scrap," says the Committee. "Never have farmers had a greater stake in the nation's steel output."

"More scrap from farms means more steel."

"This vital material must not be allowed to waste away. There is no place for waste in the United States today."

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 30—People say that most land is now too high to buy. I do not believe this.

Roger W. Babson

The price of new homes seems high—three times what they sold for in the "thirties"—but both good lots and fertile acreage are still comparatively cheap.

Three Reasons For Buying Land There are three reasons why I believe everyone should own a little land somewhere—

FIRST, there is only just so much land within a certain area—and there never will be any more. It is easy to make more stocks and bonds. The government can always print more dollar bills when taxes do not balance the budget. New houses, factories and stores can be built; but the amount of land is fixed. There is today no more land within five miles of your post office than there was thousands of years ago and there will be no more a thousand years from now. So, you had better own some that you can use or rent.

A SECOND reason why I like to see everyone own a little land is because land is the source of everything we have. Land gives us not only food, but also clothing and shelter. We just can't get on without it. The THIRD reason is that to own a little land is a human instinct like the craving for food, children or other basic things. Therefore, land will never go out of style.

Buy Land Which Carries Itself

When buying land get something which carries itself or "pays its board," so to speak. Vacant lots or unused acreage can quickly "eat their heads off." If you pay $1000 for a vacant lot, the taxes and interest on what you pay could amount to $1000 in 10 years. This means you must then sell it for $2000 in order to make a penny. Hence, the importance of getting enough income to pay these carrying charges. These—in case of a building—must also include cost of insurance and maintenance.

This explains why I like woodland, upon which the taxes are low. The trees will grow enough to balance the taxes and interest cost. Moreover, trees grow seven days a week, including Sundays and holidays! They have no labor unions which limit them to growing only eight hours a day, nor do they practice "birth control" to prevent them from multiplying. Their only enemies are fires and debt. Fires are getting better controlled every year; and you can now get mortgages which can be paid off over 20 years, as you get the money.

Don't Hoard Land

The above is not written for rich investors. It is just as dangerous to HOARD land as to HOARD anything else. Thus, don't attempt to buy too much land. Too many family buildings might some day be divided and sold very cheaply by the U. S. government, as has been done by several other governments. Or, there might be a graduated real estate tax, increasing as the number of acres increase.

In fact, it is wisest not to concentrate on any form of investment. Don't get hip on anything; railroads, motors, steels chemicals, department stores or anything else. Proper diversification is the first rule of successful investing. Yes, you can even become "land poor" by having too much land that produces no income in the form of rents, crops, or woodland growth.

My European Friend

I have a European friend who, only 10 years ago, was a very rich woman in Poland. She has a beautiful home of 60 rooms; she had 50,000 acres of forest land; she had valuable paintings and other works of art. But when the Russians overran Poland, she could not take away any of these. (She had no stocks or bonds except Polish governments, which became worthless.)

My friend, however, had some valuable jewelry, including many diamonds. These she concealed on her person and got away. She is now in the United States living humbly on these diamonds and such work as she can get. This friend of mine advises all women to di-verisfy their investments by having some good jewelry. Don't put everything in stock or bonds or even in land!

No Farm Tour This Year

Herman Stockslager, president of the Four-State Farmers' Committee, has announced that the annual Farm Tour will not be held in 1951.

"The committee made this decision for several reasons," President Stockslager stated, "among which are the scarcity of farm labor, generally unsettled world conditions making it difficult for farmers and farm equipment dealers to plan ahead, and the curtailment of the manufacture of new types of farm equipment."

Mr. Stockslager said that Four-State Farm Tours have been such a success in the past that the committee refuses to lower the caliber of this year's program. "We think it is better to have no Tour than to have an inferior one," he announced.

Farmers and county agents from this area who are members of the Four State Farmers' Committee include Landon Burns, Horace Brauning, Paul Herring and George Mullan of the Potomac Edison Co.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Thousands of letters have poured in from independent businessmen on the Supreme Court action on the Fair Trade Laws. "What can be done?" the majority of them ask.

For one thing, the National Federation of Independent Business, and other organizations, has taken steps to get new legislation introduced. Small businessmen can aid by writing their Congressman, demanding not only new legislation but also that the Federal Trade Commission immediately investigate and enforce all provisions of the Robinson Patman Act.

In writing Congressmen on the Fair Trade Laws it should be borne in mind that uncontrolled price cutting can throw the nation into a severe depression.

Naturally, the chaotic price wars of the past few weeks will eventually harm labor, but it is probably too much to ask that anybody in power in Washington today have vision beyond the ends of their noses.

Don't be blind to effect of this price war. It can do more to wreck economy of country; deliver all business into the hands of a few monopolies than the so-called "police action" in Korea.

And as usual, Washington is months behind. In face of price war, official talk is all on plans to combat rising prices. That's a smoke screen to hide other plans.

It will be up to the businessmen to bring order out of chaos. And while working for stronger Fair Trade Laws and a useful Federal Trade Commission there are several ways that businessmen can protect themselves.

Remember, in the states that have Fair Trade Laws the law can still be enforced. The only big upset by the court decision was that a Fair Trade Agreement is not binding unless the merchants agree in writing to uphold the manufacturer's price.

So, check with your suppliers. If your supplier has required distribution outlets to sign such an agreement, make sure the supplier enforces compliance.

If the suppliers have been lax in this respect, or have not required the agreement in writing, do not buy his merchandise except in small lots just to meet demands of your trade from day to day. You may lose some sales, but lost sales are better than lost inventory dollars.

Where you can, switch to lines that are not being dynamited by the big outfits. You can, with a little extra salesmanship, sell your customers different lines that have quality.

Insist on your suppliers selling you at a price that will enable you to meet the lowest price his line is being sold in your area.

For the immediate present, it will be well to follow this rule.

Keep your inventories as low as possible, even though it hurts, but as stated above, it will be better to lose sales, than lose inventory dollars.

These measures are for your short range protection. Your Congressman supported by organized small business can help you on long range protection.

So, write him, insisting that Fair Trade legislation be enacted immediately, and at the same time protest any vote toward any tax increase of any kind until such legislation is enacted.

Mrs. Harold Ditzler and daughter, of Biglerville, visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sanders, Wednesday of last week.

The Topper reunion was held last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Orndorff and was largely attended, about 150 were present.

Bible School Draws to Successful End

The Emmitsburg Vacation Bible School, which has been in session for the past two weeks, will close this week, with a promotion and special reward assembly and picnic Friday morning from 9 to 11:30 o'clock at the Lutheran Parish House, where the school is being held this year.

There also will be a program given by the children of the school under the direction of the teachers and workers in the Hall on Sunday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. Philip Bower, director of the school, said he was greatly pleased with this year's school. Almost 75 per cent of the boys and girls will have a perfect attendance record and the children have been exceptionally good in their work and behaviour. The teachers and workers have been very loyal and are a capable group. In addition to the class work there has been a half hour opening devotion each day and a half hour assembly sing. The music has been directed by Miss Sue Hays and Jasper Wantz, pianist.

This week devotional leaders were Marjorie Crist, Barbara Hays, and Helen Bushman. Special music has been included each morning in the devotions. Sue Hays, Barbara Hays, Beulah Glass, Jean Troxell, Helen Bushman, and Ruth Umble sang "Faith Of Our Fathers" Monday. Carl Crist gave a piano solo and Thomas Bushman sang a solo Tuesday morning. Thomas Wilhide and Becky Hays sang a duet Tuesday.

Rev. Edmund Welker told a story to the children on Thursday and Friday mornings of last week. There will be an assembly Friday morning when special recognition for good work and attendance rewards will be given to the children, and there will be games and refreshments for all. The parents and friends of the children are all invited to come for the assembly and refreshments. An interesting program which will be given entirely by the children has been arranged for Sunday evening in the Parish Hall at 7:30 o'clock. The program is open to the public and will include special music, exhibition of work done and a play by the older boys and girls.

McKeldin Urges Safe Driving Over July 4th

Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin at a meeting of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, called upon all the citizens of the state to make July 4th, 1951 a day free of traffic accident fatalities.

Gov. McKeldin stated, "the Fourth is a day on which to put out the flag and drive carefully, thus avoiding the putting out of the crepe on the fifth." The Governor urged all motor vehicle operators to remember and abide by the following slogan:

"No traffic deaths in Maryland on the Fourth of July" recalling that Memorial Day, 1951, was celebrated without a traffic fatality, and offering this fact as proof "that it can be done," the Governor requested all users of the highways of Maryland to again exercise due care and caution in the operation of their motor vehicles.

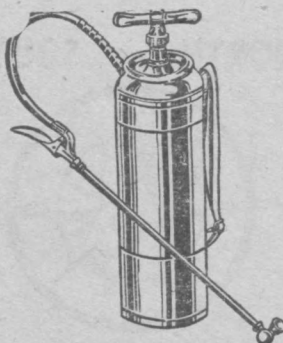

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission joined the Governor
