BY ABIGAIL

There are all sorts of suggestions floating around town as to what should be done by way of furnishing housing for the many families who are scheduled to move into this vicinity in the very near future. Some are sensible and practical, others aren't worth the breath it takes to voice them. One thing is certain, though . . . This is Emmitsburg's chance to expand itself and become a little city all in itself. We should certainly not lose sight of this fact!

These families are folks who will be working for the government. They're not just itinerants. The government is a very permanent thing here in our good country (thank God) and the fact that they're spending billions of dollars to build up this part of the country for their work and workers certainly would indicate that they intend it to be not just a temporary project, but a very, very permanent one. I'm well aware of the mixed emotions with which Emmitsburgians are receiving the present influx of people here. Some are grateful for the chance to pick up the added income, what with the high cost of living, etc. Others are definitely displeased with some of the newcomers. We mustn't lose sight of the fact, however, that whenever there is a great movement such as this one, there is always a group of desirables as well as a group of undesirables. Certainly the later category is much smaller than the first . . . At the present, Emmitsburg's living quarters are filling up rapidly . . . What then is to happen to the additional families who are desirous of locating here? Are we going to sit back and let them go to some other, more enterprising and aggressive little town? Are we always going to let things pass us by? Remember, some time ago in this very column I expressed the fear that unless something was done and done soon, Emmitsburg would become a "ghost town" not too many years hence . . . Well, I firmly believe that Providence itself has lent a hand, and somehow maneuvered it that Emmitsburg would have the chance to find itself through the outsiders. To me, it looks like a veritable transfusion of new whole blood into the veins of our little hamlet. If we refuse this so-called "transfusion," then I'm afraid that Emmitsburg will die a long, lingering, slow death . . .

As I said before, this new group of workers certainly won't be just a temporary arrangement. These people have families to raise and children to educate . . . Certainly we have the very best of schools here for people of every creed. Let's put our best foot forward and show them what we have to offer in this lovely town of ours. Let's make them WANT to stay. Which brings to mind a couple of rumors wherein a few people are reported to be in favor of erecting some temporary barracks-type houses for the newcomers. This, in my estimation is the very thing I WOULD NOT do. People would be satisfied for a while in dwellings like that, but you can bet your bottom dollar that as soon as they see opportunity to grab a nice little PERMANENT home in one of our neighboring towns, they'll kick up their heels and head for it. And why not? It's permanent and offers security, and since their jobs are going to be permanent, they'd be crazy not to.

So let's give them some incentive for wanting to make Emmitsburg their permanent home. Every business place would profit by it to be sure. More people, more business, more chance for improving our town. Now is the time for a group or corporation to band

CITIZEN PROTESTS DISPLAY OF RACIAL DISCRIMINATION

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle—

I am writing this article in protest to the discriminatory treatment which our race (colored) received at the recent circus held here for the benefit of the Memorial Hall Bldg.

We were herded like cattle into the tent and placed in a segregated area similar to European stockades as if we were to be confined for carrying some dreaded malady. Even though we paid top prices for reserved seats we were allotted only a small section in the rear where we couldn't possibly see the show. And now what happens? We decided that if we can't see the show after paying top prices, we will ask for our admission fee to be refunded. We were practically laughed out of the tent by the officials in charge of the show and when we appealed to a local deputy for assistance in gaining our end, he also sided with the management and we feel that his effrontery was needlessly displayed for our benefits.

As you and I know that most any bona fide entertainment organization will without discourtesy, return an admission if the customer is not satisfied, it seems that the local deputy isn't aware that a citizen has any rights when a slick fly-by-night operator tried to "swindle" us and the local law coincided in the effort, that was the cardinal sin and we feel our protest justified.

We colored people of Emmitsburg feel discriminated against, inasmuch as we have displayed demeanor almost above reproach in the past and felt it our duty to help in raising money for the new Memorial Hall; but honestly, don't you feel we have a legitimate gripe?

They take our breed and stand them up in the front lines in Korea, but when we want to take our families to the circus, they plunk us in the rear, may I ask how come?

Trespass Suit Entered

An action in trespass was filed yesterday by Mathias and Mathias for Stanley Francis Pumphrey against Alfred C. Dunn. Both are of Thurmont.

Pumphrey is the operator of an Amoco station at the junction of Routes 15 and 81 near Thurmont, the complainant says. On July 19, Dunn has issued a writ of attachment which directed the Sheriff of Frederick County to seize the effects of Stanley Preston Pumphrey, father of the plaintiff, to the value of $800. The Sheriff was directed to take goods located on the premises operated by the plaintiff.

The plaintiff states that most of the property seized was his own. As a result of this action, he charges the station was closed and he lost a great deal of trade and was caused annoyance, inconvenience, embarrassment and expense. The plaintiff states that the damages were $2500.

LIGHTNING SAID TO BE CAUSE OF CRASH

An Emmitsburg area youth was painfully injured early on Monday in an automobile accident at Rocky Ridge.

Charles H. Bollinger, 16-year-old son of Charles W. Bollinger of Motters Station was removed to the Annie M. Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, about 1 o'clock Monday morning for treatment of injuries he sustained in an automobile collision at Rocky Ridge shortly after midnight Sunday.

Bollinger's injuries were described as a severe laceration of the left thigh, fracture of the left collarbone and shoulder and shoulder blade, lacerations of both elbows and brush burns about the body. He was reported in a satisfactory condition at the hospital.

Details on the accident were incomplete pending completion of an investigation by Trooper H. J. Brown. It had been reported that the youth had been struck by a lightning bolt just a few seconds before the accident and his dazed condition may have caused the wreck.

Thurmont Wreck
A southbound car driven by a sailor from Williamsport, Pa., crashed into the rear wheels of a stake body truck which was carrying 14 Negro laborers. The wheels were torn loose from the rear of the truck, but none of the occupants of the truck was injured.

Trooper Brown who investigated, identified the driver of the car as Frederick M. Moore, of Route 3, Williamsport. Driver of the northbound truck was identified as John Shiver, of Florida.

Trooper Brown said the dual rear wheels were knocked loose and the body of the truck was resting on the tires. Following the accident he expressed amazement that no one was injured. About $350 damage was done to the car and several hundred dollars damage done to the truck. The trooper charged Moore with failure to keep to the right of the center of the highway.

Mr. Wormley tried the channel repeatedly, and had no trouble in getting Omaha when he wanted it.

Priest Burned In Freak Mishap

The Rev. Fr. William F. Culhane, vice president of Mt. St. Mary's College, was reported "resting comfortably" at the Warner Hospital this week where he is recovering from first and second degree burns suffered Sunday in an unusual accident at the college.

Fr. Culhane was walking across the campus at the college when the ground suddenly gave way beneath him, dropping him five feet into a steam pit. He escaped from the pit as rapidly as possible, but suffered first and second degree burns of both legs.

An investigation disclosed that live steam had escaped from a pipe and tunneled for 25 feet under the ground and then formed a pit about five feet deep just under the surface.

Gov. McKeldin Adresses Group At Thurmont

"Here is America," Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin told a large crowd at Thurmont last Sunday as he pointed to the new fire hall being dedicated as the opening feature of the town's bicentennial celebration.

The Governor pointed out that Paris is observing its 2000th birthday and world shattering events are occurring almost constantly throughout the troubled world, but it is things like Thurmont's 200th anniversary and dedication of fire halls all over America that makes this nation great.

About 500 persons attended the dedication service. The Governor was accompanied by his wife, son and daughter. He was introduced by State Senator Jacob R. Ramsburg. D. Saylor Weybright, president of the Guardian Hose Co. presided and Howard Damuth, chairman of the Bicentennial Committee read a history of the fire company. The county commissioners were among the guests of honor.

An open house followed the program, when Mayor E. S. Barnhart, town and fire company officials and members conducted guests through the new fire hall. Following the program, Gov. and Mrs. McKeldin were guests of the committee at a supper at Camp Cozy.

"Here in Thurmont is a part of our great and powerful nation — part of the bulwark of freedom and liberty in a world where powerful seeks to enslave the bodies and souls of men," the Governor said, explaining that people are smiling and well-nourished in Thurmont because they enjoy the freedom this nation won and has successfully defended against all enemies.

"We can, and we must, retain our calmness and our confidence, without becoming lax in our determination to remain free, in the face of wars and threats of war—in spite of socialistic trends that creep into our own National government and in spite of the fakery that is peddled by our false prophets and our Utopian dreamers.

"That is the lesson of history and history's repetition in our times," he declared.

He spoke of the false promises of Hitler's reach for glory and gain and denounced the present Russian idealism that seeks to drive God from the churches and from the hearts of the people. Great masses of people have come under the power of Russia, he explained.

"Yes, there are fire stations in Russia, too—but not Firemen's Halls. They don't belong to Ivan, Serge and the ladies of the auxiliary. They belong to the Kremlin—to Joe Stalin," the Governor said, pointing again to the Thurmont fire hall.

"Vladimir and Igor may belong to the fire company—but they are not volunteers. They are assigned there by the commissars. Anton and Bogdan do not drop into the fire station for a social evening with the boys. They may go there under orders for a party meeting. They may go there to be told their production is too low, or to be questioned about some remark they were heard to say.

"But Thurmont, Maryland, thank God, is not the Russia of today. This new Firemen's Hall is as American as the seventh inning stretch. This is yours. It is the club, the gathering place of the men—the volunteers—who are organized to extinguish fires in Thurmont and surrounding territory—not start world conflagrations."

Urging his hearers to keep their freedom, the Governor warned them to be "calmly determined to keep control of local affairs and institutions — your schools, your park sites, your recreational activities, your police and all of those things that belong to you as a community—including your Firemen's Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Wiegand and Mr. and Mrs. Matt Paidakovich, Washington, D. C., spent the weekend visiting Mrs. Genevieve Elder and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Elder.

ST. JOSEPH'S PICNIC STARTS TOMORROW

One of the oldest picnic affairs of Frederick County will get under way Saturday afternoon when the annual picnic of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg, will begin activities destined for a two-day affair.

Annually this function is one of the largest drawing affairs to be held locally. One of the main features of the picnic will be a good old-fashioned ham and chicken supper with all the trimmings. All food for this supper will be donated from local farms and will prove a fresh and tasty dish for those attending.

Heading the list in promoting the affair this year is Mrs. Guy A. Baker Sr., who is chairlady of a committee consisting of Mesdames Marie Rosensteel, Helen Sanders, Mary Sanders, Lewis Kelly, Alice Kugler, Carrie Rodgers, Ethel Topper, Earl Adams, Mrs. Marie Topper, and the Misses Jeannette Taylor and Barbara Rosensteel.

Heading the two-day "game you love to play" is Mayor T. W. Rodgers and Paul A. Keepers. Picnic-goers will find an array of entertaining booths and good eating and novelty stands to their delight and amusement.

Music for the occasion will be by the jukebox.

All suppers, beginning at 4 p. m. Saturday and 12 noon Sunday, will be served in the cafeteria of St. Joseph High School. The "game you love to play" will operate Saturday and Sunday, it was announced.

Lions To Picnic Monday

Members of the Emmitsburg Lions Club will participate in their annual picnic Monday at the Gettysburg Country Club. The affair is open to Lions and their families, Chairman Robert E. Daugherty announced this week, and the food will be prepared.

The picnic will begin at 6:00 p. m. promptly. For supper the Lions will enjoy fried chicken, potato salad, pepper slaw, celery, pickles, olives, cheese and crackers and iced tea.

Lion Daugherty, also in charge of the recent food sale for the benefit of the playground, announced that approximately $35 had been cleared.

Prime heads of cabbage should be reasonably solid, hard, or firm, and heavy or fairly heavy for their size. Worm injury, decay, yellowing of the leaves and burst heads are the most common defects.

OLD HOME WEEK AGENDA BARED BY FORM LETTER

The Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce's plans for "Old Home Week" are gradually rounding out smoothly and are taking a concrete pattern, Bernard H. Boyle, general chairman of the affair announced this week. Mr. Boyle said form letters had been mailed advising the public of the different activities planned.

Of special interest to the merchants is the turtle race planned. The present plan calls for each merchant to engage a boy to catch a turtle for him and groom the hard-back in preparation for the big race on Labor Day. Some ridiculous name will be assigned each terrapin and he will be displayed in the windows of those merchants placing entries in the contest.

Another interesting feature of the celebration will be the contest for the Beauty Queen. According to the committee in charge of this contest, the following requirements are to be met:

Single, female, aged 16 to 21, must be from the Emmitsburg District. Anyone may submit the name of a contestant but the committee reserves the right to ask the contestant for a snapshot for identification purposes only. The winner will be judged on personality, popularity, appearance, etc. All entries must be in the hands of the parade committee on or before Aug. 20. The winner and the runners up who will be her escort, will ride the parade committee's float, dressed in evening gowns, at the head of the parade. A trophy will be given the winner of the contest.

The complete agenda for "Old Home Week," as released in the form letter just mailed out is as follows:

Thursday, Aug. 30 — Registration, parade, welcome by Mayor, carnival, Crazy Daze—staged by local talent.

Friday, Aug. 31—Registration, carnival, Crazy Daze, fireworks, entertainment at carnival grounds.

Saturday, Sept. 1—Water festival, bonfire, carnival, entertainment at carnival grounds.

Sunday, Sept. 2—Services in local churches with churchgoers to be dressed in apparel of 1851, ball game, Sunday evening program with combined choral group composed of citizens of Emmitsburg and district.

Monday, Sept. 3—turtle races, inspection of Mt. St. Mary's College, St. Joseph's College, Hanover Shoe Co., Rainbow Reservoir and grave of Samuel Emmitt, founder of Emmitsburg; contests of various descriptions, carnival, entertainment at carnival grounds.

NO GAME

President Edgar G. Emrich of the Memorial Hall Assn., announced this week there will be no "game you love to play" by his organization this Saturday or next. First possible date for the game is tentatively set for Saturday, Aug. 11. The association has been holding the affairs to raise monies for the erection of a new community hall. Other functions caused the postponement.

Inn Changes Management

A favorite eating establishment of Emmitsburgians is now open under new management. The change took place the later part of June.

Hillside Inn, located 2½ miles north of Emmitsburg on Route 15, now is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Reid of Two Taverns, Pa. The place was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. William Shorb.

The inn will feature dinners, seafood platters and all kinds of sandwiches, the new owners said this week.

CORRECTION

It is erroneously stated on page four of this issue that the Glass-Smith wedding was held last Saturday. The marriage took place on Sunday instead.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

A scene like this may tempt the movie maker to pan. But don't. Shoot—hold it—and shoot some more.

A Tip for New Movie Makers

NINETY NINE out of a hundred new movie maker (and some not so new) have a common tendency to approach the first scenic view and panoram like mad. As a result, the movie they put on the screen is jerky and hard on the eyes.

In making movies, the camera's function is to record motion, not to provide it. So when you want to film different areas in a vast scene, take your finger off the exposure button as you move the camera to take in the next part of the subject.

Panoraming isn't a good idea in amateur movie-making because it is an unnatural way of looking at the scene. When your eyes survey a big scene they don't sweep across it. You may gradually turn your head to take in the whole view, but your eyes fasten on one spot until they're ready to go on, and then jump to the next point of interest, skipping over any dull area that may be in between. Since you want your movie screen to reflect a scene as you saw it, you'll be better off shooting it that way.

Why does panoraming make my movies jerky is a frequently asked question. The answer lies in the way the camera works. Most amateur movies are filmed at 16 frames per second. That means the film pauses that many times behind the lens while the shutter opens and closes. When you hold the camera still in shooting, this doesn't show on the screen because it happens so fast the object being photographed is in the same position in several successive frames. But when you start panning, the object is varied in its position relative to the camera in successive frames. And that is what gives you eye strain and a film that isn't as good as it could have been.

If you just have to pan with your camera—do it s-l-o-w and s-t-e-a-d-y, moving from the point of least interest to the peak—and never retracing the scene.

—John van Guilder

To rinse, cup the entire stole in your hands before you lift it from the sudsy water, place it at the edge of the basin while you fill the basin with clear lukewarm water, then repeat the gentle squeezing action in clear water until the suds disappear. Again cup entire stole in your hands before lifting it from water, and squeeze as much water from it as you can while holding it in this way. Roll it in a towel to remove excess moisture. Never twist. Then transfer to a folded sheet for drying. (ANS)

Government Planning Comes High

When the Economic Planners of England's Labor-Socialist government blithely wasted $100 million of hard-pressed Britain's money on a scheme for growing peanuts in British East Africa, and were obliged last January to publicly admit utter failure, the limit seemed to have been reached on the high cost of bureaucratic bungling. But the facts regarding our own Interior Dept.'s plan for irrigating a small section of Arizona desert land, would suggest that the English Socialists are, after all, only small-time spenders.

The construction cost of our own Economic Planners' Arizona irrigation project, together with its so-called "multi-purpose" trimmings, is to be $708.7 million. But that's just the beginning of what the American taxpayers would have to pay. The Interior Dept. itself admits that actual cost to the taxpayers, counting interest on the borrowed money necessary to build it, would be $2.7 billion. That's almost 10 times the total value of all farm lands and buildings in the whole State of Arizona as recorded by the U. S. Census Bureau.

A Fantastic Proposal

The astonishing facts about the Interior Dept.'s "Central Arizona Project" are disclosed in an article by Towner Phelan, distinguished economist, in the July 16 issue of The FREEMAN Magazine. "From the standpoint of costs in relation to expected benefits," he writes, "possibly nothing more fantastic than the Central Arizona Project has ever been proposed."

Mr. Phelan points out that the $2.7 billion figure is the Economic Planners' own estimate of the ultimate cost, with interest, and that actually the cost probably would be two or three times this amount—or from $6 to $10 billion. "History shows," he says, "that in most cases the initial cost estimate of a government project is very low, later estimates much higher, and the final cost higher still. The Hoover Commission gives many examples such as the Hungry Horse Project in Montana. It was originally estimated to cost $6.5 million but actually cost $93.5 million."

Passed Senate

Since the bill to authorize the Central Arizona Irrigation Project is now before Congress, and has passed the Senate, it is well that citizens know the facts. They constitute an example of what makes our taxes so high. The project affects every citizen's income, for it must be financed with funds borrowed by the government on the strength of the taxpayers' ability to pay. It provides direct benefits for six million Arizona land owners, but only speculative or intangible benefits—if any—for the remainder of the nation's 150 million people.

According to Mr. Phelan's well-documented article, the object is this: Water is to be diverted from the Colorado River to provide irrigation for 152,500 acres of land now being irrigated by a dwindling supply of "ground" water pumped by private means, and an additional 73,500 acres of desert wasteland. To reach the land to be rescued the Colorado's water must first be raised nearly 1000 feet by pumping, and then transported some 300 miles, by canals and pipelines.

More than half the land to be watered by the government's engineering colossus is owned by 420 landowners with 500 acres or more—thus more than half the multi-billion-dollar cost would actually be expended for the direct benefit of only 420 farmers. Mr. Phelan estimates that the cost allocated solely to the irrigation phase of the "multi-purpose" project calls for $7159 of taxpayers' money to be spent for each acre of land to be irrigated—on the basis of the government's own estimates. On past performances, this figure likely would be closer to $25,000 per acre.

pro-rata basis the Economic Planners are proposing to bring water to the 420 larger farms at an average cost to the taxpayers, counting interest, of $2.1 million per farm! His articles also states significantly that the Central Arizona Project is only one of a batch of such projects that have been officially planned by the Planners at an estimated cost of $57.5 billion and which would probably cost $500 billion—half a trillion dollars!

Yes, planning by government Economic Planners comes high! It is bankrupting England and pulling the citizen down to socialized poverty. Must we too become its victims?

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

'Bossy' Youngsters

What is the best approach to a five-year-old who is inclined to boss her younger playmates?

Inasmuch as you imply your daughter's "bossiness is not extreme," there is no cause for alarm on your part. Five-year-olds frequently tend to boss younger children, although it also ought to be noted that many at this age become a bit less "bossy" than formerly.

As you supervise the play of these children, suggest to your daughter that it's fun to take turns doing what each one wants to do, and then quietly hide their activities so that the younger children have some of their fishes shared.

In doing this you may need to guard against the tendency to pay more attention to the young children's wishes than to your own child's desires. In their words, try to see that there is air play on the part of all.

If your child should become extremely demanding in her play with younger children, it may reflect a resentment against older children who boss her, or even against you and your husband. I don't believe this is the cause of your daughter's behavior, however.

Therefore, let me recommend quiet suggestions rather than scolding or any form of extraneous punishment. Sometimes parents tell their children that they can't play with younger children until they are willing to do so without bossing them.

At times this may be effective, although there is a danger that it may tilt qualities of leadership that temporarily are expressing themselves in his unfortunate manner.

Paying for Home Work

Should children be paid for doing work at home—washing dishes, mowing the lawn, and so forth?

This problem of whether or not one should pay children for work done at home cannot be separated from that of an allowance.

As a member of the family each child should have some of the privileges that go with family membership. One of these is a share of the family income. This will take the form of an allowance, the amount to be determined by the age and needs of the child and the status of the family bank account.

Generally speaking, the allowance should be large enough to meet the basic needs of the child and to provide a few luxuries, but should not be so large that he feels no need for saving or wise spending.

Just as the child should have some of the privileges that go along with family membership, so should he assume some of the responsibilities that go with it. These involve work around the home and yard. Let children and parents decide together what are to be the responsibilities of the children.

If, for example, washing dishes and mowing lawns are included, as well they may be, certainly children should not be paid for them. There will be emergencies, also, when it is necessary for the entire family to pitch in and help, without any thought of monetary award.

On the other hand, if over and above the duties regularly assigned to children, they are asked to do specific tasks for which the family ordinarily pays someone else, then I see no reason why they should not be paid for doing them. But these will be exceptional cases and I would guard at all times against letting children think of work at home primarily in terms of monetary award.

The Family Circle

We hear much about how important it is for families to be together. Our children are reaching the age when they want to be with the gang most of the time. They don't like to hang around home, play games with the family, etc. Frankly, we like for them to be with their friends and see like to be with ours. Should we try harder to keep the family together?

I'm not sure that you should.

When children are young, many happy hours may be spent playing games and having other interesting family experiences. There comes a time, as it has come for your children, when youngsters want to be out with members of the gang most of the time. You are quite right in feeling that they should have the privilege of being with their friends and you with yours. Certainly you should not chide them because they are not spending more time with you.

Nevertheless, it is unfortunate if, as children grow older, families never have any time together for fun and fellowship. Perhaps members of the family can make definite plans to stay at home and enjoy each other one night a week, or, if that is too often, one night a month.

Some families may enjoy making popcorn and candy and playing games together; others may enjoy listening to records; still others may want to work on individual hobbies, or just to talk. Occasional trips together as a family may be enjoyed. Some families enjoy going to a ball game together. In other words, it is wise to plan for occasional family "get-togethers."

It should not be forgotten that gangs usually must have some place to go! Encourage your children to bring their gangs to your house, and then to be sure to remain discreetly in the background while they are there. Let them use the living room and the kitchen for their activities.

Your house may not remain as quiet and span as it would otherwise, but after all, youngsters are more important than having a house in perfect order!

Hugo R. Hoffman, Maryland District Director for the Office of Price Stabilization, has announced that he has been advised by Bernard J. Flynn, U. S. Attorney, that injunction proceedings may now be instituted against violators of Ceiling Price Regulation 11, the Restaurant Regulation, without first obtaining the approval of the National Enforcement Office and the Dept. of Justice. The new procedure, Mr. Hoffman said, makes it possible to institute injunction proceedings against violators upon the recommendation of the district enforcement director, and a vast amount of time and paper work will be saved.

MARYLAND FEED & GRAIN MARKETS

Reports from the Maryland Feed Market last week showed the trend higher, while the demand was light. The market condition continued steady and the supply was plentiful. Standard middlings showed an increase of about 3 three per cent. Other increases were less than two per cent.

National Feed Market

The market for feedstuffs strengthened materially last week as floods in the southwest reduced production and distribution of milfeeds, alfalfa meal, animal protein feeds, and commercial mixed feeds in that important producing and consuming area, reports to the Dept. of Agriculture indicated. Prices of wheat milfeeds advanced $4-$5 per ton in the affected area and $2-$3 at other distributing centers. Alfalfa meal was up $5-$6 per ton with production limited. Oilseed meal markets were not greatly disturbed by flood conditions and prices were barely steady, influenced by favorable prospects for 1951 oilseed crops. The feedstuff index advanced more than 3 1/2 points to 242.3, compared with 257.7 a year ago. The feed grain index declined slightly to 241.9 compared with 217.8 for the corresponding week last year.

Maryland Grain Market

The Maryland grain market was steady to weaker last week while the trend seemed to be lower. No. 2 red winter wheat was down about three cents per bushel; No. 2 yellow shelled corn showed practically no change while yellow ear corn was up about a cent a bushel; No. 2 barley also was up about a cent a bushel, and No. 2 soybeans were down two to three cents per bushel.

National Grain Markets

Grain markets turned downward last week despite flood losses in the Kansas City area and prices lost most of the previous week's gain, reports to the Dept. of Agriculture indicated. Good progress of winter wheat harvesting outside of the flooded section, favorable spring wheat prospects in the U. S. and Canada, together with slow export inquiries were principally responsible for the wheat market weakness and prices declined five to six cents per bushel at the leading Central Western markets. Improved prospects for corn, notwithstanding the lateness of the crop, together with some increase in market offerings were weakening factors in the corn markets and prices declined three to five cents per bushel. Rye was independently firm with traders having difficulty in liquidating July contracts because of limited supplies at terminals. Barley and grain sorghums held about unchanged in the market while oilseeds were weak. Flaxseed declined 15 cents per bushel and soybeans nine cents in Minneapolis.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

The march of events is proving that the most dangerous game men can engage in is altering basic truths and principles.

America was founded in the principle that by encouraging free enterprise, this nation would lead the world toward ever increasing improvement by setting an example. Today, the nation founders close to the brink of disaster because so many officials and bureaucrats see nothing wrong in allowing just a little Socialism; just a little monopoly.

It is akin to a home owner feeling a few termites can't do much harm. But there is a distinct clear division between truth and untruth.

A government, playing fast and loose with basic truths, sponsors moral decadence whereby everybody comes to feel a little truth twisting is OK.

The ruinous price wars launched by killing a part of the Fair Trade laws paints in sharp relief how even businessmen succumb to the decadence.

Max Hess Jr., head of Hess Bros. Department Store in Allentown, Pa., summed the matter up in a statement in which he said that manufacturers, who also face ruin with a continued price war, have brought it on themselves by selling fair-trade items to price discount houses and other "sharpies" through the backdoor, thus sabotaging responsible dealers.

Right now, as demanded by Rep. Donald O'Poole, (D. N.Y.) the Federal Trade Commission @National Federation of Independent Business could minimize damage, but FTC apparently refuses to act for fear of political unpopularity.

This is similar to the situation that would result if America's military men refused to fight.

With a fanfare, Marshall Plan announced the end of gifts to Britain as of January 1, 1951.

But now, Marshall Plan announces British have been given another $7,700,000 to exploit African and Asian colonies. So not only are reserves needed by American business for expansion confiscated by taxes to help British business expand, but at the same time American taxpayers money is used to encourage further British exploitation of coolie labor.

While RFC battles Britain over gouging tin prices, Marshall Plan gives away almost a million dollars of tin plate to Portugal, a half million dollars worth to Yugoslavia.

This last points up another slant on the times. Americans are dying to fight communism. Taxes are boosted to fight communism. Tito's Yugoslavian government is communist despite supposed friction with Moscow.

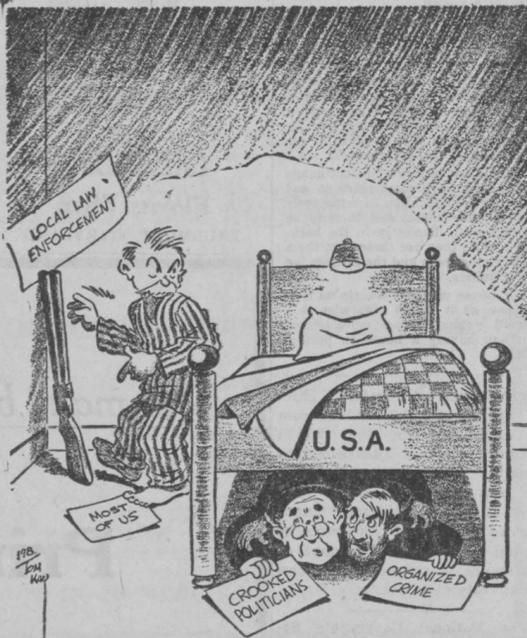

So the Marshall Plan now takes American dollars to pour into Communist Yugoslavia.

Besides tinplate, ECA Bulletin 2294 announces gifts to communist Yugoslavia of $2,300,000 worth of steel needed at home, $1,450,000 worth of coke, $1 million in ocean transportation, plus pig iron, pulp and paper.

This all goes on while orators talk about a "fight to the death" with communism.

The death will be that of the American middle class being taxed and bled to death to promote world Socialization schemes.

Suntan Without Sunburn

We are now in the midst of the sunbathing season and, weather permitting, beaches, lawns and parks are dotted during daytime hours with people trying to "soak up a little Vitamin D."

The truth is, we are not much concerned with healthful benefits as we bask in the sun. Most of us feel that a tan or even a "glow" on the skin is becoming to us and makes us look healthier.

Sunbathing is beneficial to the average person—if it is done gradually and proper precautions are taken. But bad sunburn is neither attractive nor healthy. While over-exposure to the sun is seldom a direct cause of death, it can be dangerous because it can cause skin infection and strain on the heart and blood vessels.

The person who wants an attractive tan without going through a painful sunburn stage should get to know his own type of skin, how sensitive it is, whether or not it burns easily. Blondes or redheads with fair skin are ordinarily more sensitive to the sun than brunettes. Even so, a person's dark coloring is no guarantee against sunburn. Skins vary widely in their sensitivity to the sun's rays and everyone should get to know just how much sun his skin can take.

There are a few precautions on sunbathing which apply to everyone. Regardless of coloring, one should always acquire a tan slowly and gradually. Ten minutes, or fifteen at the most, are sufficient for the first day's sun bath. Each day following, the exposure time can be lengthened by about 15 minutes until a protective tan is acquired.

It is a good idea for all sunbathers to "stay out of the noonday sun." Burning is more likely when the sun is directly overhead and its rays are short and direct. On the beach, the noon sun is especially hazardous with the added reflected glare from the sand and water.

If one of the many suntan preparations on the market today is used, it should be remembered that the best preparations can give only partial protection from

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

What's So Funny?

Just finished reading a magazine article that "proves" you and I don't know what's funny.

A bunch of psychologists came to this sad conclusion after telling jokes to college students. Very often they would give out with what they considered a side-splitter—and not get even a chuckle in response. Other times the students would laugh their heads off at stories that weren't considered really funny.

Maybe I'm wrong, but what makes a psychologist such a better judge of humor than the rest of us? If a man gets a kick out of a joke that proves it was funny to him—doesn't it?

From where I sit, when psychologists try to set up a standard for a sense of humor they're getting too serious for me. Stands to reason that different people laugh at different things, just as they have different tastes for most everything. I'm partial to a glass of beer with meals myself—but I promise not to make any "wise-cracks" if you prefer tea.

If Your Bathroom Light Casts Annoying Shadows and Glare...

DON'T think you have to center one fixture over the bathroom mirror. A lamp placed in this position casts shadows on the neck and chin, makes shaving and other close-seeing jobs difficult.

DO install two fluorescent or incandescent fixtures—one on each side of the mirror. For shadowless, glarefree light, center the lamps at 5 feet, 2 inches high and cover them with translucent shields.

Sure, leben, it's always darkest before the dawn — and who ever heard of the dawn not coming?

Worrying just makes extra problems that maybe didn't even exist before — so if you want to use your imagination, give it something to work on besides worries.

Whenever you get to thinking things couldn't be any worse, how about sitting some place quiet and letting your mind go back on all the other times you were thinking just that? That way, you can see that things always can be worse... but somehow they never are as bad as you thought!

Report From Washington Discusses Korean Aftermath

Controls continue to be one of the highly controversial topics in the Congress. With next Tuesday the expiration date for the 30-day extension under which controls are now being administered, the conferences scheduled to begin on Wednesday, between Senate and House Conferees, will have great influence, many believe, upon the economic situation of the great masses of our people during the months and possibly years ahead.

The lull in and possible end of hostilities in Korea have, for the moment at least, dulled the edge of public interest in price controls, and the slow-up in buying of automobiles, television sets and many other items has apparently caused some to lose interest in efforts to keep prices, wages and rents in check.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the situation in the months ahead will be radically different than it has been up to now, a difference that will affect greatly both the supply of consumer products and the prices at which they will be available.

The national economy has not begun to feel the full impact of the defense effort which not only will absorb a vast amount of available materials, thus reducing supplies for civilian use, but will pour into circulation vastly increased spending power, to bid for the lesser amount of products on the shelves of the stores of the country.

Under the circumstances, many contend it would be unwise in the extreme to deny authority to apply the brakes should the economic situation get out of control as it could well do in the not too distant future, with the factors of lessened production and higher spending operating to squeeze the consumer and to boost prices to inflationary heights.

The meeting of the Senate and House Conferees during the latter part of the week must produce a more realistic bill than that passed late in June if there is to be any guarantee to the great mass of consumers that their already reduced buying power will not be limited to an extent that would create a chaotic situation throughout the land.

Interest in the efforts of the State Department to aid Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis, now confined to prison in Czechoslovakia on trumped up charges of spying, will be centered around the deliberations of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this week as that body prepares to consider ways and means to free the American newspaper man.

Chairman Tom Connally has announced his committee will take up the resolution which I introduced in the Senate last week calling for a three-pronged retaliatory action against the Czechoslovakian government.

This resolution would bar correspondents of Communist countries from gathering or sending news from the United States, would break off all trade relations with Czechoslovakia immediately and would place the matter before the United Nations in an effort to marshal the force of public opinion throughout the world against the Czechoslovakian

Manpower Shortage On Farms Acute

As our national mobilization effort gains momentum, the outlook for the last half of 1951 is for a tightened labor supply and a rising level of farm wages. However, the situation may not be much more difficult than in 1948, a year of virtually full employment and a record year of farm output. This assumes only partial defense mobilization, as announced in the goals for the size of the armed forces and military expenditures.

The announced goal for the size of the armed forces is 3.5 million, to be reached by the end of 1951. Present strength is about two million. If the net increase should be drawn from civilian males 19 through 25, agriculture would supply 12 per cent or about 140,000 young men. If the increase were drawn from non-veterans in this age group, however, nearly 17 per cent, or about 200,000, would be drawn from agriculture. Women, youths, and older workers would provide replacements in full or in part.

The situation now apparently differs from that at the beginning of World War II in several respects: (1) Agriculture relies less on young men between the ages of 18 and 24, (2) there is a far smaller reservoir of young men for military manpower on farms, and (3) the potential contribution would be only about 250,000 if the number of young men of these ages employed in agriculture were reduced to the number at the end of World War II, when manpower mobilization provided an armed force of more than 12 million.

Another significant difference: the situation is found in the greater inventories of farm equipment and machinery at present, and the greater potentialities for substituting machinery for labor. For example, the expected increase in the number of mechanical cotton harvesters next year may reduce the number of cotton pickers needed during the season by about 50,000.

Increased use of spreaders for applying lime and fertilizers to the fields is another prime example of how improved mechanization will alleviate the manpower pinch on the farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Rodgers and son, Donald, and Mrs. Marie C. Rosensteel, returned home Sunday after spending a week touring the New England States. The trip covered 1,700 miles and was made entirely alone.

From communications pouring in from all sections of the country to my office, it would appear that the people of our country are aroused to a high pitch over the injustice visited upon Mr. Oatis. They resent bitterly the recurring instances of violations by the Communist governments of all international amenities in an effort to harass American citizens and to depreciate American prestige before the world.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET Art Is Long but Life Is Short, Full of Lumps and Black Eyes

By BILLY ROSE

"If you can come quick," my Aunt Frieda said over the phone, "come quick. Your Uncle Charlie is in trouble."

Half an hour later I was in the flat on the lower East Side where Frieda has been keeping house and hearth for my uncle for the past 30 years.

"What's up?" I asked. "Charlie is hiding in Brooklyn with his brother," said Frieda. "Hiding from what?" "From Herman Schloomp, the butcher, who is telling how he is going to knock out your uncle's eye."

"What did Charlie do to Schloomp?" "What didn't he do!" said Frieda. "But better I should tell it to you in sequins..."

"So happens last summer your uncle and me, we are one afternoon taking the air on Delancey Street. On the sidewalk, like always, is all kinds of chalk-marks and scribbles from children, which your uncle has been seeing all his life.

"Is very touching," says Charlie. "Is here on the sidewalks the soul of the East Side trying for some kind expression. Some day should be a real painter to draw up the neighborhood."

"WELL, LIKE YOU KNOW, with Charlie to think is to do something crazy. The next night he is going to the settlement house and joining a art class. And in the room is sitting a fat girl in a kimono on a platform, and the scholars are holding out their thumbs and squinting with the eyes.

"Draw exactly what you see," says the teacher. "Half hour later, when the teacher comes for a to-look-see what your uncle has done, he begins making noises like busting. On Charlie's drawing board is a picture of a thumbnail sitting on top a big pencil.

"This is a class in drawing, not manicuring," says the teacher. "Take your business someplace else."

"When Charlie comes home mad, I tell him, 'Let sleeping dogs stay sleeping.' But you know your uncle—next day he is going uptown to the Museum from Modern Art, and when he gets back he is all agog-gle.

"Frieda," he says, 'to be a painter, a man don't need perspective. What he needs is guitars. A picture can be a piece of fruit or a chair with one leg—makes no difference so long as in the corner is a guitar.' "So, for the next week he is painting guitars—Moon Over Stan-

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

NEW BOSTON, N. H., July 27—I have invested the bulk of my savings in the stocks of merchandising companies. This probably is because of the advice of my good father who once owned the leading "dry goods and variety store" in Gloucester, Mass.

"Don't be a manufacturer and be dependent upon one location and one product with accompanying labor troubles. Don't be content to be always working for others. Start out by being a salesman of investments, insurance or merchandise with the ultimate goal of having a business of your own. In other words, be a middleman or shopkeeper, free to grow and to serve."

The above was my father's advice and he would sometimes add, "The live merchant who cleans up his bank loans once each year and puts half his profits back into the business can't help but succeed. But remember, Roger, that the best floor covering for a successful store consists of the footprints of the owner!"

What About Merchandise Investments?

First, I would advise a young man to have a store in a small city. Likewise, I advise investors to put their money into helping to build up a local independent store, rather than in the stock of any big department store of some large city. If you can't invest money in such a local store, then buy stock of one of the good chain stores operating in your town. It may be one of the grocery chains like the A&P, or one of the variety stores like Penney, Woolworth, Kresge, etc.—although some of these stocks seem pretty high priced to buy now.

Large department stores have prospered the last few years through the sale of furniture, electric refrigerators, television sets and other household goods which are not carried by the variety stores. When, however, hard times or a crop failure come, department store sales fall off sharply; while the variety store sales often increase. Besides, having stores in many different states, as do the chains gives the advantage of diversification both of merchandise and locality. Most such chains have excellent management and no debt. The stock of all are listed on a Stock Exchange; if you buy into one which has a store in your own community, you can keep an eye on what it is doing.

What About Inflation?

Dollars may decline in purchasing power until they reach 25 cents. If World War III should come, dollars could go even lower. Hence, it is common sense to have your money in good merchandise rather than in cash or government bonds. But, insist upon investing in those stores with an annual turnover of four to seven times a year, and which charge off to zero every article held more than one year.

The live merchant—chain or independent—has nothing to fear if he follows the above rules, using his profits to improve his store and buying only quick-selling goods. Or, he can use his profits to open another store in an adjoining community, putting in charge thereof the best clerk in his present local store. This not only makes a success of the new branch, but also serves as an incentive to all employees. Such a policy will soon make you a chain owner.

A Word To Children

Let me add a word of advice to young people—boys and girls—whose father has a good store. Learn to know and serve in your father's store. This is the way I started and today—with my savings alone—apart from my regular business of writing and advising on investments, I am the largest owner of a chain of over 200 stores, the stock of which is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. At your father's death he can

Your New Social Security

By ED. R. YOUNG

Many inquiries are being received by the Hagerstown Social Security Office concerning household employees. The Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance and the Bureau of Internal Revenue have brought out a small booklet, issued jointly and entitled, "Do You Have A Maid?"

It is, I think, a model of clarity and brevity. It enables the household employer to determine quickly whether her worker comes under Social Security. Its back cover is an addressed and postage-free card to be torn off and mailed by those whose workers will be eligible for old-age and survivors' insurance. In response to this card, the employer will receive the special form and the few instructions she will need for reporting her employees' wages and, for remitting the Social Security tax.

As I have said, not all domestic employees will be eligible for Social Security; consequently, not all household employers will need to mail in the postcard contained in the booklet. Those who have a maid not more than one day a week will not make a report on that employee. Housewives who have a household worker on at least two different days a week, however, need the report form.

I say an average of two days weekly because that would add up to at least 24 days in a three-month period. Any household employer who works for you on at least 24 different days in a calendar quarter meets the days-of-work condition for Social Security. They need not be full days. For instance, if you have a maid one morning to do the laundry, and on the afternoon of another day in the same week to clean house or get the dinner, she will have worked for you on two different days in that week. If that is her regular weekly schedule, she will have worked for you on at least 24 days in the calendar quarter.

Does the reference to "calendar quarter" puzzle you? Well, it won't once you've seen the little explanatory diagram in the "Do You Have A Maid?" booklet. What it means is simply this: The year is divided into four quarters. These are the three-month periods, January through March, April through June, July through September, and October through December. Each is a calendar quarter. Your maid must be employed by you on 24 different days in a calendar quarter, not just in any three consecutive months like March, April and May.

If you employ a maid on 24 different days in a calendar quarter and pay her not less than $50 in cash wages for work in that quarter, she will come under Social Security and you will need to have the special report form that the postcard from the "Do You Have A Maid?" booklet will bring you.

Just one thing more. The word "maid" in the title to the booklet means more than it says. It means any kind of household employee, male or female. A gardener or a governess, a chauffeur or a nursemaid will be eligible for Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance protection beginning in January wherever their work for one employer meets the 24 days-$50 cash wages conditions of the new Social Security.

If you have a household employee who is covered, get your copy of "Do You Have A Maid?" It is available now at Social Security Offices, Internal Revenue Offices, and at postoffices everywhere.

MARYLAND HOME FRONT

Recent announcement that the 1951 crop of corn in Maryland is expected to reach 22 million bushels calls for construction of more on-farm corn storage, according to Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State committee. This figure will top Maryland production in 1950 by three million bushels.

Use of the tractor, corn picker and other labor saving machinery along with good prices and the request for more corn by the Dept. of Agriculture last spring all helped bring about the present bumper crop, Mr. Blandford stated in calling attention to the fact that Maryland farmers had exceeded their requested plantings for 1951 by four per cent.

While new machinery helps increase production, it also creates storage and conditioning difficulties by shortening the harvest period and bringing about the harvest while corn is still damp, according to Mr. Blandford. This has led to the practice of selling corn as soon as harvested in most of Maryland's commercial corn producing area.

Prices at harvest time, when cash markets are glutted, average well below the figures quoted later when the market has had time to recover from the depressing effects of an oversupply. Price support on the 1951 corn crop in Maryland will be available through non-recourse loans and purchase agreements and is expected to run well above $1.50 per bushel for corn that will grade No. 3 or better carrying not more than 20.5 per cent moisture if stored on the ear. Corn to be eligible for support will, in nearly all cases, be stored on the farm. Going into the realm of prediction, Mr. Blandford forecasts that enough money will be lost by Maryland farmers through lack of storage for the 1951 corn crop to equip the average farm producing corn for sale with enough top-notch storage to care for the average crop.

Plans for corn cribs which will be approved for price support loans can be had free of charge from the county agents of the Maryland Extension Service. In addition to this, farmers who are unable to bear the financial burden of providing suitable storage without help may secure low interest bearing storage facility loans if storage structure proposed can meet reasonable specifications. Details on storage loans can be secured at the county PMA offices.

Farm Safety Week
Proclamation of the week of July 22-28 as National Farm Safety Week by Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture, was this week brought to the attention of Maryland farmers by Mr. Blandford.

Farm accidents, many of a very serious nature, are usually caused by the farmers' neglecting some simple safety precaution or failing to complete some minor repair job in the pressure of other work. Shortages of labor, machinery, repair parts and the many other items necessary to operate a modern farm will all tend to push up our accident rate this year. Because of this, farmers should take double precautions to keep our supplies, machinery, and labor operating at top efficiency. One way of doing this is to avoid loss through farm accidents, Mr. Blandford pointed out.

Now well beyond the half-way mark and scheduled for opening to traffic in less than a year, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge, most ambitious engineering undertaking in Maryland's history, offers this view to thousands of tourists who are daily using the Sandy Point-Matapeake ferries this summer. This photo, from the Maryland State Roads Commission, was made from the Sandy Point ferry slip and shows graphically the sweeping curve and carefully-designed incline that will carry the structure out and over the main Chesapeake Bay ship channel. Starting about 20 feet above the water at the shore line the structure will climb steadily to provide a clearance of 183 feet over the channel before starting its gradual descent to meet the Kent Island shoreline.

Juniors Tie For Second In League

The Legion Juniors, by defeating Middleburg last Sunday afternoon, 10-5, went into a tie with Fairview for second place in the Penn-Md. League.

Scoring one run in the second frame, two in the fourth inning, and rapping the game up in the fifth frame with four big runs, the Juniors held off a desperate rally by Middleburg.

The Juniors found the Middleburg pitching very inviting and rapped them for a total of 15 hits. The visitors only collected five hits off the offerings of J. Mick and Herring.

Last Sunday's win was the sixth out of its last seven games and they have only lost one contest away from home.

This Sunday Wakefield plays here meeting the Juniors at 2:00 p. m. If they can win two out of the remaining three games remaining to be played, it will assure them of a birth in the playoffs.

Safe Braking Margin Varies

Importance of driving in accordance with highway conditions is illustrated by this diagrammatic view prepared by Chevrolet in the interest of traffic safety. Standard braking tables reveal 190 feet is required for a stop at 50 miles an hour, allowing three-quarters of a second for a driver's reaction to an emergency. When the pavement is wet, however, the distance increases to 250 feet. On icy pavement 472 feet will be covered before a car brakes to a complete stop.

HOMEMAKERS' CORNER

Looking for an ice cream treat too add zest to a summer menu? Here's a recipe that's sure to set your family's taste buds a-tingle. Recommended by the University of Maryland Extension Service, it's called chocolate Chip Ice Cream.

To prepare from four to six servings of this dessert you begin by whipping one cup of heavy cream and adding 1/2 teaspoon of vanilla. Next you beat two egg yolks until they're thick and then beat in two tablespoons of sugar.

Now beat the two egg whites until they're stiff, but not dry, and beat in one tablespoon of sugar. Fold the egg yolk mixture and the cream into the egg whites. Finally, you fold in 3 1/2 ounces of semi-sweet chocolate, broken into bits, and into the freezing compartment of your refrigerator goes a real summer taste thrill.

Jiffy Boxer Shorts
You can make a pair of boxer shorts in a jiffy if you follow these suggestions offered by Helen Shelby, University of Maryland clothing specialist. You may use the regular shorts pattern you already have on hand—simply overlap the pattern at the side seams and add two inches across the top for a basting. Insert elastic and presto! There's your pair of boxer shorts! In making them you've eliminated the need for darts, pleats, placket and band.

Chambers' Daughter Wins Essay Prize

Ellen Chambers, 16-year-old daughter of the one-time courier for Communist spies, has won an essay contest on "What America Means to Me."

Her father, Whittaker Chambers, was the Government's chief witness against Alger Hiss, former State Department official, who is serving a prison sentence for perjury. Chambers confessed on the witness stand he had been part of a Communist spy apparatus in Washington in the late 30's and said Hiss was a member of the organization. Hiss had denied this before a grand jury.

The essay contest was sponsored by a VFW post among students at Westminster High School, where Ellen will be a senior next year.

To keep your long draperies off the floor while cleaning, sew a curtain tieback ring on the wrong side of the lower hem. Hook this ring in a small tack nailed inconspicuously at the edge of the window frame or under sill. This keeps draperies tucked out of the way of vacuum cleaner or dust mop.

County Firemen Plan Frederick Convention

The 17th annual convention of the Frederick County Volunteer Firemen's Assn., comprising 14 companies in Frederick County, will be held in Frederick on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 30 and 31, it was announced.

The dates were set this week at the first meeting of the general committee on arrangements for the convention, appointed by President W. Bartgis Storm. The committee is composed of three members from each of the city's four volunteer companies.

More than $500 in prize money, it was reported, will be awarded at the annual parade, which will be held on the evening of Aug. 31. Parade classifications and specific prize offers will be announced later.

Invitations are being extended to volunteer fire companies in the Maryland counties adjoining Frederick, including companies in Carroll, Montgomery, Washington, and Howard, to participate in the parade with the units of the Frederick City and County companies.

The business sessions of the convention will be held in Independent Hall and the annual memorial service, honoring those members who died during the year, will take place on the evening of Aug. 30.

Members of the association in addition to Frederick companies, are Emmitsburg, Thurmont, Graceham, New Midway, Walkersville, Middletown, Myersville, Braddock Heights, Brunswick, and Rocky Ridge, the latter company having just been admitted in the past year.

It will be the first full fledged convention of the association to be held in Frederick since the first, which took place in 1935. During the war years—1942-45—each one of the Frederick companies took turns in sponsoring a modified convention. However, this year, all the Frederick companies join in the sponsorship.
