—BY ABIGAIL—

What a relief to have that snow removed from the streets of town. I thought the stuff would never melt . . . and it didn't much. The good Town Fathers went right to work on Monday and for a while things really hummed. Trucks were scooting back and forth as a scoop shovel groaned and struggled with the packed snow and ice. In two days the whole thing was over and Emmitsburg went back in circulation again after being snowbound for the better part of two weeks. Parking meters now are in operation, so you had better watch out. The respite is over and now you can start spending those odd pennies again. Anyway, the Solons are to be commended for the removal, at a very nominal cost, I am told. It was getting so that we would have paid any price to rid the streets of the stuff. It is understood that some plan of a permanent nature for snow removal will be drawn up at the next meeting of the Council, which is always the first Monday of the month. It just goes to show you that if you ask the Town Council in the proper manner, instead of standing on the street corners yelping to high heavens about local conditions, they are human and will, if at all possible, honor bona fide requests about sensible matters.

Well the holidays are all over for a while, and I am darn glad of it. This thing of exchanging presents, eating two roast turkey meals a day and trying to dring yourself into oblivion, has just about got the best of most of us (skip me on the drinking part, I'm a teetotaler). I am always glad to see this time of the year come and I also am darn glad to see it go.

Folks really went all-out to trim their homes this year. Pine trees by the hundreds were sold and there were so many nice displays that the judges of the exhibits conjectured at length to pick the winners and then had to name a lengthy list of honorable mentions. Truly, it was a glorious occasion and a real thrill to see all these beautifully-decorated homes and business places, silently sleeping, wrapped in a blanket of white snow. Several homes that might have had a good chance to win prizes, were darkened on the night of the judging. The judges tried their best to locate the owners, and in some cases did, but several were not able to be contacted and lost out in the contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Well, I see the Government boys are still at it! Seems as though the orders for army pants that are let out require suspender buttons to be sewed on the pants . . . millions of them at a cost of thousands of dollars to you and me . . . Yep you guessed it—the army will not permit soldiers to wear suspenders! And around goes the dizzy circle in Washington.

Just an idle thought as a new year rolls around. Wonder what ever happened to Emmitsburg's dial phone system that was promised here about three years ago. Rates are higher, but do you honestly believe you are getting any more service? Up goes the rates but the service remains stymied. Thought the fact that the "Pentagon" being built so close now and the chance that Emmitsburg might expand considerably might stir the phone utility into action, but nothing on the horizon yet.

Homemakers Hold Annual Party

The annual Christmas Party of the Emmitsburg Homemakers Club was held at the Green Parrot Tea Room, Dec. 27. Luncheon was served at 1 p. m., followed by games of "500," bingo and bridge. Presents were exchanged by all 42 members and guests present. Treats of oranges and candy were given, to all by the local Lions Club.

A gift of money was presented to the president, Mrs. J. Laurence Rendorff, who announced the next regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Orendorff, Thurs., Jan. 24.

Health Dept. Plans Crackdown On Restaurants

January 1 launched a vigorous ly administered clean-up campaign for Frederick County eating and drinking places, said Dr. Forbes Burgess, county health officer.

Health department sanitarians estimate at least 45% of such places are violating seriously the city-county code and these offenders will be notified of their shortcomings and given 30 days to comply with the law. Failure to remedy offensive conditions will bring prompt closing of the places of business, the health officer said.

Restaurants, soda fountains, taverns and all other places where food or beverages are served the public are subject to periodic examination by Health Dept. sanitarians and are required under law to post prominently the resulting rating cards. Many proprietors of substandard places are violating this regulation, Dr. Burgess says, and "C" ratings are tucked away from public view or torn down entirely.

Can Post Signs
Under the sanitary code, the Health Dept. has authority to post a sign giving the restaurant's rating and removal may be followed by prosecution. The dept. also has authority to mark menus of offenders with a notice of the substandard rating.

It is estimated that of the 230 eating places in Frederick City and County, about 25% have been graded "A" and comply with all sanitary requirements; some 30% are classified "B", indicating minor variances from standards not sufficiently important to be remedied through compulsion; the remainder, sanitarians say, are a menace to public health and must be brought up to an acceptable level or closed.

Offenses most commonly noted are in kitchen management and design. Dirty and broken flooring and walls are frequent. Inadequate dish washing and faulty sterilization methods also are common. Use of tobacco in any form is banned in all public kitchens, yet many workers continue to smoke and ashes in food served the public are common, it was said.

Dirty storage spaces and filthy toilet facilities are equally common. Garbage disposal often is unsatisfactory and many restaurants fail to provide tight lids for containers of waste. Rodents and insects often are found in kitchens and in serving rooms.

Dr. Burgess points out the danger of epidemic infection through lack of sanitary control in eating and drinking places. Trench mouth, tuberculosis, intestinal disease, typhoid and the common cold are among those frequently spread in this way.

Master Emrich said the committees will be notified well in advance the date for their programs.

Community service projects for the year will include Route 15, scrap drive, rural road and housing aiming at fire protection and other purposes. Mr. Emrich said the Grange will continue to support the Memorial Hall and other worthy charity organizations and encourage farm youth education by offering at least one prize in this connection. The secretary announced the men won the contest with the women for obtaining the largest number of new members in the past year and that the women will finance a banquet for the Grange. It was decided to hold the banquet near the end of January.

A membership goal of doubling the present roster by each member getting another member, was announced for the year. Another announcement was a proposed picnic together with the Thurmont and Creagerstown Granges for sometime in the early summer. The master appointed Charles R. Fuss on the Community Fund board of directors and Mrs. Ethel Baumgardner as chairman of a reception committee for the year.

Others in the supporting cast are Margaret Wivell, Margaret Kane, Gail Sanders, Earl Wetzell, Joseph Doyle, Raymond Sanders, Leo Topper and Joseph Scott. Government Buys More Land Near Here

Deeds for purchase of three separate farms in the Hagerstown area were filed this week in Washington County Courthouse by the U. S. Government. Purchase price was announced at $35,670.

The farms are all in the vicinity of Tilghmantown, a few miles south of Hagerstown. They total about 212 acres. Government representatives have been negotiating for the purchase of seven farms in that area, but this week's deeds were the first indication of any actual purchases.

Federal officials have not announced their purpose in buying the land, but it is known they have been shipping in 90-foot poles and quantities of wire. Conjecture is that power relay stations of some type will be installed.

Phone Company Allots Four Million For Improvements

Expenditures of $3,983,000 for the improvement and expansion of telephone facilities throughout Maryland were authorized today by the board of directors of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore City.

These expenditures bring the total approved for new telephone construction in the state during 1951 to approximately $20,000,000.

The major portion of the total authorized at today's meeting was $3,144,000 which will be allocated to a number of projects involving the expenditures of relatively small amounts for the construction and replacement of telephone plants in Maryland during the first quarter of 1952.

An expenditure of $554,000 was approved for the provision of additional toll cable facilities and associated outside plants to take care of service demands as a result of increased defense activities in Western Maryland.

A total of $84,000 was authorized for the installation of aerial and underground cable in the northwest section of Frederick, in the Hamilton central office area in Baltimore and the vicinity of Bayside Beach and Indian Village served by the Armiger central office.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Rhodes and family, Baltimore, were today guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Annan, Jr. and Mrs. Edgar Rhodes.

The will directs that the real and personal property be sold and the estate divided into six equal shares, to be divided among a brother, William E. Welty, and sisters, Mrs. Louise Sophia Eck-enrode, Mrs. Harriet Julia Dorsey, Mrs. Bernadette Spalding, and the children of two deceased sisters, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Spalding and Mrs. Cornelia May Orndorff.

A special bequest of all cash, stocks and bonds was made to a nephew, Joseph Patrick Spalding, was made in the will. The will appointed Mrs. Dorsey as executrix. The paper was dated November 6, 1933 and was witnessed by M. F. Shuff, Jr., and Ruth Shuff. No valuation was placed on the estate.

Duck Hunter Drowns When Canoe Capsizes

A former Thurmont man lost his life and another nearly was drowned Tuesday, New Year's Day, when the canoe in which the pair were duck hunting on the Monocacy River, capsized.

The body of Ray Munshour, well known around Emmitsburg and Thurmont, but now residing in Frederick, was recovered entangled in bushes at 4:39 p. m. Tuesday, several miles below the spot where his canoe capsized between the Furnace Ford and Greenfield bridges.

Munshour's companion, Elmer Bokesch, Frederick, saved himself by swimming in hip boots, fully clad in hunting clothes, 25 yards through ice-chunked waters of the swiftly-running, swollen Monocacy.

Describes Accident

Bokesch gave this version of the accident which proved fatal to his friend:

The pair found the river filled with floating chunks of ice and covered with fog when they embarked in a canoe near the Buckeystown bridge for a morning of duck hunting on the Monocacy.

About 8:15 o'clock when their light vessel was about a half-mile below Lily Fons, Bokesch, who was in the bow of the craft, heard Munshour quickly shout, "ducks!" The steersman in the stern abandoned his paddle before Bokesch turned. The survivor said he presumed Munshour lurched for his gun and in so doing turned the canoe over spilling us both into the icy water.

Munshour kept calling to Bokesch, "save yourself!" The swimming man went down twice trying to bottom the river and gave himself a push towards shore. All but exhausted, Bokesch said he finally made it to land, 50 yards downstream from the site of the accident.

Was Holding to Canoe

On land, Bokesch called to Munshour, who was hanging on to the overturned canoe and twice was informed the latter was okay, then received no answer.

Bokesch returned to Frederick, after notifying police and organizing a searching party, to change his frozen clothing, then returned to the river to help in the search.

Horace M. "Buck" Alexander, former county sheriff found Munshour's body entangled in brush along the opposite side of the river from where the accident occurred and about a half-mile upstream from the Greenfield bridge.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Regina Culler Munshour and a daughter, Jean Lee, at home; two brothers, C. Earl Munshour, Frederick; Lee Munshour, Thurmont; a sister, Mrs. Oleg Leichter, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Funeral services will be held this morning at 11 a. m. from the M. R. Etchison & Son funeral home, 106 E. Church St., Frederick.

GILLESPIE—BEEGLE

The engagement of Miss Nancy Beegle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. Luther Beegle, Emmitsburg, to Glen Gillespie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Gillespie, Taneytown Route 2, was announced at her home after a family dinner on Christmas Day.

Miss Beegle, a graduate of Gettysburg High School, is employed in the office of the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, and Mr. Gillespie is employed for the Dairy Herd Improvement Assn., of Frederick County, as a milk taster.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Commissioners Raise County Taxes Six Cents

Frederick County's tax rate for 1952 has been set at $1.40 on the $100, an increase of six cents over the 1951 figure.

The county budget, announced last week by the Board of Commissioners, totals $2,088,807.44. This year's rate increase is the first since 1946. The taxable base for the county is $98,056,000. That for 1951 was $92,000,000.

The allotment for the Board of Education is $140,000 more than that for last year, but still represents a cut of $65,000 in the school board's request for funds. The total to that department in 1952 will be $1,327,941.59. Broken down to special items, the figures are: General appropriation, $920,175; the Maryland State automobile tax, $50,000; transportation for parochial schools, $10,850; capital investments (building program), $300,000; interest to State of Maryland for loans from local banks, $5,000.

Budgeted for the Frederick County Dept. of Health is $23,603.75, a cut of $1,840 in the sum requested by the agency.

The Board of Public Welfare, only county department presenting a budget lower than that for the current year, was given $57,191.11, the total requested. That sum is a reduction of $3,144 over the 1951 figure.

Allotted to the Children's Aid Society is $30,000, $4,707 below the amount requested.

The Board of Election Supervisors' request for $34,730 also was cut by the County Commissioners who allotted $30,000 for that office.

Exemptions, including $1,500 on farm machinery and 25% on corporation inventories, set up by the State Legislature, have the effect of canceling out some $5 million increase in the county taxable base.

A Tribute To Rev. Charles S. Owen

Nearly 10 years ago Rev. Chas. S. Owen, pastor of the Emmitsburg Presbyterian Church, arrived in our midst a stranger. Soon he will depart from Emmitsburg and Taneytown as a beloved friend, taking with him the love, affection, and best wishes of a grateful people, of all classes, ages, faiths, and of civic organizations.

Few men have endeared themselves to the people, to the same degree, in so short time, as Rev. Owen. On every side you can hear people say how they like him. They like him for his cordiality, readiness and willingness to co-operate wherever he can render service, and whenever called upon to take part in projects for the welfare of the people, and for the general good of the community.

It means so much to the leaders of community affairs, or to an organization, to know there is one among them on whom they can ever depend for assistance. Such a person is Rev. Chas. S. Owen. But we are going to lose him. Will he be missed? Listen to the conversation of many on the streets and in the stores.

Denomination is no barrier when one has the good of the people at heart. The benefactors of mankind have been and are those who surmount barriers of races, nationalities, political affiliations, and creeds. Like his Master whom he represents, Chas. S. Owen goes about doing good. Will he be missed? Any man of his qualities always is missed.

A line most appropriate to the subject of this tribute is one from the poem: "The Eagle that is Forgotten" by Vachel Lindsay. "To live in mankind is far more than to live in a name."

Returns From Active Duty

Trooper James R. Stonesifer, who was for some time stationed in Emmitsburg, has just returned from active duty with the U. S. Marine Corps. "Stony" had the rank of staff sergeant and was assigned to an artillery unit at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Dr. and Mrs. William A. Frailley have returned home after spending the holidays visiting Mrs. Frailley's mother, Mrs. Carl C. Hetzel, of Cumberland, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burdner, Long Island, N. Y., visited over the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burdner.

Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd W. Seiss were dinner guests Christmas Day of Lewis Kelly and sister, Alice.

Dr. Green, Fire Hall Christmas Prize Winners

Winners in the Chamber of Commerce's annual Christmas decoration contest were announced this week, after it was learned that the judging took place Friday night between 8 and 10 p. m.

Judges were Charles Stonesifer, editor of the Taneytown Carroll Record; Saylor D. Weybright, manager of the Thurmont Cooperative, Inc., and Robert M. Shaeffer, McSherrystown businessman.

Competition was keen in the affair and it was only after a long period of deliberation that the winners finally were revealed.

Decorations were judged according to themes, amount of work and expense required, design and installing exhibits, continuity of themes, attractiveness and originality.

The district had many more exhibits than previous years and the judges were hard-pressed to make their decisions in every class. In fact so many nice displays were encountered that numerous honorable mentions had to be made.

First prize winner in the commercial category went to the Fire Hall; second prize to the American Legion and third place to the Beegle Apartments. Honorable mentions in this class were given the Pastry Shop, VFW Home, Houck's, Utility Shop, and the Bella Vista tourist home.

In the residential class, first place was awarded Dr. George Green's attractive home on S. Seton Ave. Dr. Green also won last year's first place award. Second award was made to Vincent L. Hartdagen, also of S. Seton Ave., and third place was won by Richard Harner's home on E. Main St.

Honorable mentions in the private homes division were made to Lumen F. Norris, Clyde Eyer, Dominic Greco, Roy Little, B. H. Boyle, Russell B. Ohler, Wilbur Dutrow, Edward Ohler, Earl Sheel-ey, Clarence Wachter and T. W. Rodgers.

Several excellent exhibits known to exist, could not be judged as the occupants were not at home to light up their displays. The judges made several phone calls to these places and several contacts finally were made.

President Samuel C. Hays of the Chamber of Commerce stated that checks will be mailed to the winners in the near future.

Tasty Breakfast Treat

If you're having company and want something special to serve for breakfast, why not try making these delicious Blueberry Griddle Cakes. To make from nine to 12 cakes, follow this recipe:

One cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons sugar; one egg, two-thirds cup of milk, two tablespoons melted fat, and two-thirds cup blueberries.

Sift the flour, salt, and baking powder, and sugar together, and add the unbeaten egg, milk, and melted butter. Beat with a rotary beater until thoroughly mixed, then, just before baking, stir in the blueberries. Serve with butter or oleomargarine and confectioners sugar.

Skirt Your Figure Problem

Do you have trouble with the seams on your ready-made skirts pulling to one side and causing uneven hemlines. According to Clothing Specialist Helen Shelby this pulling to one side often results if one hip is slightly larger or higher than the other. She gives a simply remedy for the common problem.

First take off the belt and then lift the low side until the seams hang straight. Put markers or a row of pins on the new waistline and then attach the belt. It's as easy as that.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

The late New York columnist, O. O. MacIntyre often claimed "the biggest rubes in the world are found along Broadway". Today he would include Washington bureaus.

The Defense Production Administration is staffed thickly in top positions with Broadway "rubes". The recent DPA announcement on the newspaper situation indicates how little national knowledge most bureaucrats possess.

C. W. Harder

DPA Bulletin No. 170 reports five big newsprint firms have received certificates for rapid amortization of building costs for new production facilities.

But in the next sentence, the report says nothing will happen in the near future, because no priorities are planned at this time for construction of newsprint plants. DPA uses a large quantity of scarce newsprint to announce nothing will be done.

Washington observers point to this "ring-around-the-rosy" action by DPA as another example how bureaucrats are led around by the nose when the interests of small business are concerned.

The U. S. newsprint supply is closely controlled by a small group, and to meet the shortages, this group has continuously raised prices threatening the existence of weekly newspapers.

But many things have thrown a scare into the firms controlling newsprint supply. One is that the Senate Small Business Committee, headed by Sen. John Sparkman, Ala., is investigating.

Sausage Shortcake

Cold weather sharpens the appetite for meats such as savory pork sausage links. One suggestion is to brown the sausage links in a hot oven, drain them, and cover with your favorite drop biscuit or corn bread batter. Bake in a hot oven and when done, turn over a serving dish. There you have a mouth-watering 'sausage upside-down shortcake.

Gore Announces Senate Candidacy

Recently I filed my candidacy in Annapolis for the U. S. Senate. When I signed my name, I was humble with the knowledge that behind that signature are thousands of fine men and women who have urged my candidacy by postcards and letters and by verbal pledges of support.

This will not be a campaign for Grady Gore. This will be a campaign for all the Marylanders who are tired of government of the politicians, by the politicians, and for the politicians.

For several years I have felt that our present Administration is not a true reflection of the American people's desire for clean, constructive self-government. With other real Americans I have watched the management of our magnificent Republic degenerate into a greedy fight for personal prestige, special privilege and reelection. As the head of a family, as a taxpayer and as a good citizen, I determined to take a more active part in the next election.

I believe firmly in political principles which rise from the will of free people. I do not believe in national politics that start with handpicked nominees for high office. Therefore, I propose to make the coming primary a real contest for all candidates instead of a typical election controlled by a few top-level professional politicians. This is to be a fight for the political principles that made us a great country.

I have had personal contact with thousands of voters and party workers in practically every voting precinct in the state. Their heartwarming reaction to me and what I stand for prompted my filing. Citizen committees are being formed in every county to bring out a record Republican vote. These Gore-For-Senate committees are planning full campaigns to bring all the facts to the voters of both parties so that they can make decisions on men and issues next fall.

Either we get our government back in the hands of capable men with obvious integrity, or we perish as a nation. No matter how rich a nation is, it cannot stand up against bribery, corruption and crackpot planning. The people will elect a man who draws from the strength of purpose and wisdom for a hard fought, honest campaign, and for honest and efficient government.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

How are parents to teach their children the value of keeping clean morally?

I suppose fear of the stigma attached to immoral behavior has been a factor in some cases in keeping one morally straight, so far as behavior itself is concerned. At the same time, it is quite apparent that this fear has not been too effective in the past.

The basic cause for wholesome, clean living is not so much fear of the stigma that may be attached to a violation of the moral code, as it is an intrinsic appreciation of all that which is fine and true and good, and a respect for the sacredness of personality. This appreciation must be developed through the years and begins in early childhood. It develops in a home where parents and brothers and sisters maintain high ideals and have happy experiences together. One cannot overestimate the importance of example.

But example is not enough. Boys and girls need to be educated about sex and its place in life. As their questions are answered honestly in the home, as they are helped through books and classes in boy and girl relationships to understand the other sex, as they have opportunities to consider with skill and understanding teachers what is involved in preparation for marriage, they are receiving the finest kind of foundation for clean and wholesome living.

Let us not minimize, also, the contribution of religion to the building of high ideals and standards. An appreciation of the sacredness of all persons and a desire to help others become their best selves are tremendous deterrents to immoral behavior.

It should not be forgotten, furthermore, that our boys and girls need to learn the art of self-discipline. Children who are given everything that they want, whose whims are always catered to, and who grow up utterly self-centered and selfish, have not developed those inner disciplines that provide a steady force when faced with temptation and the pull of intense emotional desires.

We have two children—a boy of seven and a girl of three. How can we handle this business of Santa Claus? Is there danger of disillusionment when the children find out about him?

This problem of what to tell their children about Santa Claus is a real one to many conscientious parents. It may be helpful to look at three different ways parents have dealt with the problem.

1. There are those who feel it is wrong to tell their children there is a Santa Claus. A young man brought up in such a family as this, reports that so far as he can recall, he and his brothers and sisters never did believe in Santa Claus and that their Christmas was as joyous as was the Christmas of those in homes where Santa was the center of attention.

2. At the other extreme, we find parents who scoff at the above viewpoint and feel that it robs children of one of the most precious memories of childhood. They frankly tell their children that there is a Santa Claus, that he lives at the North Pole, that he receives letters from boys and girls, and may even go so far as to say that he is especially eager to please "good" little boys and girls. There is no hemming and hawing on their part when children ask questions about him. They take the position that when a child becomes old enough to know different, he will realize the truth without any great disillusionment. Experience suggests that whereas this is true for many children, for others the discovery that Santa is not an actual person is a tragic experience.

3. Between these two extremes are the parents who neither tell their children there is or there isn't a Santa Claus. At the same time, they go ahead and talk about Santa Claus, and may even encourage their children to write to him. In their conversation about Santa, however, they frequently refer to him as the "spirit of giving"; they encourage their children to notice that there are several Santa's in the stores at Christmas time; and as the children get older and begin to share gifts with others, they talk about "our playing Santa to this child or that."

With respect to your seven-year-old boy, is it not possible for you to talk to him about how much the idea of Santa Claus meant to him when he was young and that now he has an opportunity to help his little sister enjoy the make-believe story of Santa? Help him realize that gradually his sister will realize it is a make-believe story, but that in the meantime all of you will go on playing Santa at Christmas.

BABSONWrites . . .

By ROGER BABSON

Babson Reviews 1951

BABSON PARK, Mass. Jan. 3
—(1) The world situation today is much like the cold war which existed in the U. S. between the North and the South during the 1850s. The basic conflict in both periods was, and is, a conflict between those who "have not" and those who "have." The difference is that the airplane, radio, etc., have made the 1951 conflict worldwide, instead of local. Without revolution in Russia, World War III will sometime be inevitable. This winter will be especially critical. If, however, Russia does not strike within six months, there should be no World War III for some years.

(2) Preparedness: Our Government's 1951 policy of appropriating huge expenditures for military preparedness is sound. In addition, however, those living in large cities should own a small house with a few acres of land at least 60 miles away. Moreover, everyone should build up character, health, and education as the best security in case of World War III.

(3) The New Industry: Heretofore, our war preparations have been "on and off" affairs; but our 1951 Military Preparedness Plans will develop into a permanent new industry. Manufacturers have been wise during 1951 in taking on some of this new type of business without neglecting their regular business.

(4) Other New Products: Important inventions, revolutionary processes and wonderful new products were developed in research laboratories during '51. Manufacturers, retailers and consumers have been wise in keeping inventories low and avoiding purchases of goods soon to become obsolete.

(5) New Houses: 1951 witnessed a decline in sales of new houses. Too many were hastily built, on too small lots, and have poor locations. The best "buys" in 1951 were well built "near-in" old houses in which modern streamlined kitchens and bathrooms were installed. These improvements, with new paint and paper, have produced wonders.

(6) Railroads: Transcontinental railroads and the southwestern roads acted well during the year; but the New York Central, the Pennsylvania and certain Midwestern lines may be headed for bankruptcy. The only Eastern roads which interested me in 1951 were the three Gravity Roads—the Norfolk and Western, the Virginian Railway and the Chesapeake & Ohio.

(7) The Oils: Most of the oil stocks during 1951 had tremendous rises. The wise investor took profits on at least one-half of his oils. McCarthyism will soon campaign for cheaper oil, just as Rooseveltism fought for lower electric rates. Remember what happened to the electric stocks during that campaign?

(8) Labor Unions: I believe in labor unions; but their 1951 actions suggest they will bring about the next business depression. Yet, should we blame the labor leaders? They are pressed by the union members who are egged on by their wives made discontented by tempting 1951 advertising. The more effective such advertising becomes, the more certain another depression will come.

(9) Stocks to Buy: There were many good "buys" for income during 1951 in stocks of chain stores and other companies which do cash business. Those who want profits, however, have built up bank accounts for purchases when stocks are 100 points lower. Business volume has held up well during 1951, but most stock prices during the past quarter have lost about 10%.

(10) Diversification: Diversification was practical during 1951. Those too lazy to diversify bought Investment Trust Shares or stocks of Fire Insurance Companies which combine an Active Business with an Investment Trust.

(11) Inflation: Inflation has existed during 1951 and will continue to go on. The business cycle, however, will likewise always revolve and fortunes will continue to be made by those who have the patience to store up cash in times like these, and the courage to buy stocks later when no one will want them. Fortunes come from patience, courage and supervision.

(12) Religion: During 1951 there have been signs of a return to the Church, which is the only hope for individual or international peace.

YourPersonal
Health*GOUT

There are quite a few people whose New Year's resolutions at this time include a vow against over-indulgence in rich food and liquor.

With the exception of gaining a few unwanted pounds, those who enjoy sound health probably enjoy the hearty eating of the current holidays without serious after-effects. But for many gout patients, holiday indulgence means severe attacks of pain associated with their illness.

Gout is a disease of the metabolism characterized by pain, swelling, or tenderness in some joint. While over-indulgence does not cause gout (the exact cause is unknown), the rich food and drink served on occasions like Christmas holidays bring on painful attacks for gout sufferers who yield to temptation.

Some think that gout is an illness of the past, a painful retribution once visited on old men who ate and drank to excess in youth and middle age. But many people in this country suffer from gout, and the number of its victims seems to be increasing. Some very young people have the disease, and the symptoms usually first appear among people 35 or a little over; rarely does gout strike for the first time in people over 60 or 70.

Gout upsets the body metabolism, or regular tissue changes involved in utilizing nourishment and excreting waste. Ordinarily, the body expels some of the worn-out cell matter by converting it to a chemical called uric acid which is excreted with urine. With gout patients, the uric acid accumulates instead in the blood and may be deposited in and around the joints, in certain cartilages or in some internal organs. As these abnormalities develop, the patient suffers acute attacks of pain from time to time.

The first attack of gout comes on suddenly, usually awakening its victim at night by a severe pain in one of the joints. The acute stage is over in about a week but the attack reoccurs, often about a year later, and involving a different joint. Attacks then become more frequent.

Gout is one of the oldest ailments in the history of medicine. It is still the painful and crippling condition that it always was, but today medical science believes it has in sight a cure for the ancient disease, perhaps one of the new drugs that are proving so promising in treating other ailments now.

Meanwhile, good medical care, including a prescribed diet and whatever medicines the doctor advises can give the gout patient much relief and help him ward off the acute, painful attacks. The person who suspects he has gout should see his doctor without delay to get the proper diagnosis and prompt treatment if his symptoms prove to be gout.

State Food
Growers Setting
New Records

Maryland growers of snap beans, sweet potatoes, and lima beans have helped push U. S. consumption of canned varieties of the three vegetables to record levels.

A recent report of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture revealed that per capita consumption of snap beans reached a new high and that of sweet potatoes and lima beans tied old records during 1950. According to the department's study, the average American now eats annually 3.4 pounds of canned snap beans, almost half a pound of canned sweet potatoes and 9.6 ounces of canned lima beans.

The increasing popularity of the three foods is in line with the doubling of the per capita consumption of all canned foods in the past 25 years, reported the America Can Co., which perfected the convenient metal container which makes seasonal foods staple year-round items.

Another example of the upward trend in consumption of canned foods is tomatoes, Maryland's No. 1 vegetable, which has reached the highest mark since 1943, with a rate of 5.1 pounds per person.

The latest USDA crop reports list state production of the three crops in 1951 at 13,700 tons of snap beans, 1.1 million bushels of sweet potatoes, 2,526 tons of lima beans and 248,400 tons of tomatoes.

Candidate Allen Receives Backing

W. Prescott Allen, Montgomery County newspaper publisher who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in Maryland's Sixth District, this week received the endorsement of James H. Pugh, county Democratic leader and former State's Attorney.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Pugh called upon the Democratic Party in Montgomery County to support Mr. Allen's candidacy and avoid a primary fight. He said:

"Mr. Allen for many years has contributed to the civic growth and betterment of our community and our county. He is a man of unquestioned honesty and integrity. In 1950 he offered himself as a candidate for the same post he seeks now—Representative in Congress from the Sixth District. Although he did not obtain the nomination, he did make an excellent showing, carrying three of the five counties in the District. It must be remembered, too, that he was running at that time without organization support. After the primary he showed himself to be a real sport and a loyal Democrat by coming out in support of his primary opponent, Gen. Russell P. Hartle. If all Democrats would likewise, the Republicans would never get elected in this county and state.

"In my opinion and in the opinion of Democrats I have talked with, Mr. Allen deserves to be the party's nominee in this election without opposition."

Mr. Pugh, who has been a political leader in Montgomery County for many years, served as State's Attorney from 1934 to 1938, during which time he prosecuted the celebrated Ann Lydane case and the "mistaken identity" murder of Earle Wilson, newspaper route agent. Mr. Pugh played an active role in the 1950 county elections as a member of the steering committee which sponsored the Democratic slate of candidates.

who will operate the great new Fairless Works of the United States Steel Corp.
The sprawling plant will bring a healthy expansion to America's peacetime economy, benefitting every citizen in the country, and will pour vast new strength into the nation's military production effort. Its capacity of nearly two million tons of steel is enough to make 900,000 automobiles or 45,000 tanks a year.
Makes New Wealth
In a very real sense this new steel plant is a producer of new wealth, converting an unspendable natural resource, iron ore in the earth's crust, into a saleable product worth tens of millions of dollars. And the significant thing is that it is being built out of profits made and the promise of profits to come. In fact the Fairless Works is a good example of the workings of our American profit economy; likewise it may be pointed to as a dramatic example of the value of corporation profits to the American workingman and to the public generally.
In all, 25,000 people will be employed in the new plant. The jobs they will occupy are new—they didn't exist before the plant was built. Each of these new jobs will represent an investment, a hard cash expenditure by the company, of about $25,000 per worker. And most of the income from sales by the new enterprise will be paid in wages and benefits to the employees and for raw materials.
Where It Goes
The profit to the corporation will be a few cents of each dollar of income (perhaps six cents), and with this profit: (1) the stockholders must be paid dividends big enough to keep their money coming; (2) a sum must be set aside for replacing machinery and plant facilities as they wear out; (3) another sum must be set up as surplus so that slack earning periods may be weathered; and (4) still another sum must be set up to help finance expansion of production, such as the Fairless Works which makes more jobs for the children of U. S. Steel families.
The public benefits by the millions in new money flowing into the channels of commerce, as reflected in: (1) pay checks being spent at grocery stores, department stores, for automobiles, television sets, washing machines, on entertainment, etc.; (2) increased demand for allied materials which other workers in other plants must make and which are needed in steel making; (3) expanded transportation needs; and (4) the making available of more of the basic steel for a limitless array of other products whose production now can be expanded, requiring more workers, more allied materials.

Wholesome Incentive
Thus the bringing into production of such a great new source of wealth-making as a new steel plant starts an almost endless cycle of expanding industrial activities—more automobiles, more washing machines, more buildings made of steel, more machine tools, more everything that makes life in our America better, in a material way, for everyone.
And at the base of the whole cycle, the element that feeds it and keeps it alive is the profit motive. The people who want to see the Government take over our industries and regiment our lives according to a planned blueprint, are constantly trying to undermine respect for the profit motive. In truth, they know they cannot abolish the profit motive—it comes from one of God's laws. Instead, they merely want to get the industries into their control so that they and a handful of political favorites and bureaucrats will be the sole beneficiaries. Profits then would go down the rat-hole of political greed and corruption.
Every American has a stake in seeing that our industries are kept free of Government control and operating under the wholesome incentive of the profit motive.

Artificial Insemination Setting New All-Time High in Maryland

More Maryland dairy cows were artificially bred in November than in any previous month in the five and a half-year history of the Maryland Artificial Breeding Cooperative. The new high of 4700 first services is approximate, since final figures for two counties are not yet available.
The previous record month was last December, when 3682 cows were bred. The November, 1951, figure is 35 per cent higher than the total for the same month in 1950.
In the first five months of the 1951-52 fiscal year, 13,208 first services were recorded in the state, compared to 10,159 for the same period last year.

Sanders Bros. Garage Now Taking Orders For 1952 Dodge and Plymouth Cars

Here's Plymouth's smart hardtop club coupe, the Belvedere, the pace-setter in the lowest price field with its new concepts in styling and beauty. The car has glistening, lively two-tone colors: Suede Tan with Sable Bronze top; Belmont Blue Polychromatic with Sterling Grey top; Mint Green with Black top. The color used on the roof follows the Belvedere's streamlined contours around the spacious rear window and down over the rear deck, giving the car the continental look. Sparkling chrome molding outlines the top and carries back to separate the two colors at their junction at the rear quarter-panel. The interior is luxurious, with colorful quality fabrics and vinyl blended in perfect harmony with the shades used on the exterior.

Changes Made In Reporting 1951 Farm Income

The principal amendment to the Federal Revenue Act in 1951 affecting farmers concerns the treatment of the sale of livestock (that is, draft, breeding, and dairy animals.)

Farmers are allowed, under certain circumstances, to report the sale of livestock as the sale of capital assets rather than sale of farm products as ordinary income.

In order to be treated as sales of capital assets, the animals sold must meet certain requirements. First, they must have been owned by the farmer for at least 12 months. Secondly, the animals must have been held for draft, breeding, or dairy purposes. Thirdly, the animals cannot be those which are primarily for sale in the ordinary course of the farm business.

These new requirements apply for the tax business years beginning in 1951. However, the new method of reporting sales of such animals as capital assets is retroactive for all returns for the business years 1948, 1949, and 1950. It is also retroactive back to 1942 under certain circumstances, in which case the taxpayer should consult a revenue agent. Where retroactive years are involved the animals in question must have been owned for only six months or longer, instead of 12 months or longer.

Farmers who reported, in previous years, gains from the sale of livestock as ordinary income, might wish to amend their previous returns in order to get the tax reduction benefit possible under the 1951 act which treats the sale of certain livestock as capital asset sales. They may file amended returns or make claims for refunds.

Whether or not a farmer is justified in claiming refunds under the new provisions of the law depends largely upon the amount and type of livestock sold. In making claim for refunds the individual's account will be re-opened and, consequently, subject to inspection. This means that records must be available to substantiate such claims.

The 1951 Federal act states specifically that, beginning in 1951, sales of poultry cannot be considered as sales of capital assets.

Since the tax rate applied to income from sales of capital assets is approximately one-half the rate on ordinary income for most farmers, it is important that farmers properly report such income. Sales of livestock as capital asset sales are reported on Schedule D, rather than on the Farm Schedule 1040-F.

The Social Security tax paid by farmers on wages of farm workers is a business expense and should be included in farm expenses. Therefore, in reporting farm expenses the wages paid (including the 1½ per cent withheld from the worker) should be itemized separately from the 1½ per cent tax paid by the employer. The 1½ per cent tax paid by the farmer should be reported under farm expenses as social security tax on farm wages.

In 1940, there were more than 24 million consumers of all kinds of gas supplied by public utility companies in the U. S. Of these, 142 million were consumers of natural gas.

Telephone Company Lists Expansion Efforts Of Past; More Scheduled This Year

Telephone operations in Maryland in 1951 were highlighted by further expansion and improvement of the service—a record made possible by the splendid performance and teamwork of C. and F. men and women.

As in the previous year, the company in 1951 continued to do its full part in helping the nation build its defensive resources by strengthening and enlarging its telephone communications network. The company's accomplishments in this connection were noteworthy, with the increased telephone demands of Government and military defense agencies being met on schedule. Worthy of mention is the installation of telephone facilities to serve the reactivated U. S. Naval Training Center at Bainbridge, Md. In addition to a dial switching system for the handling of administrative business, an expanded toll circuit network was required and three attended public phone centers were opened for the use of naval personnel.

Telephone progress in Maryland was carried forward on other fronts in 1951. Illustrative of this progress is the fact that about 163,000 telephones were installed, resulting in a net gain of 53,000 which is more than the total gain for the three-year period, 1937-1939. The total now in service is at an all-time high of over 700,000—a five-fold increase in 20 years.

Long distance calls originating in Maryland averaged about 104,600 per business day, which is equal to the average weekly business in 1925.

In approximately doubling its plant investment in the postwar years, the company has carried out a construction program equivalent to the building in the state of a new million dollar factory every 15½ days during the five-year period.

Third Session Of Police School Is Set for January 8

The school will begin at 6:50 p. m. with roll call and terminate at 9:50 p. m., with a question and answer period.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

The effectiveness of grass and legumes in holding soil against erosion seems so well known that telling about it is a waste of time except for the fact that good top-soil still goes down the river with every heavy rain and too many farmers are losing the best part of their farms from erosion, says Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee.

To bring out his point, Mr. Blandford calls attention to a study made at the Northwest Appalachian Conservation Experiment Station at Zanesville, O. The study showed that bluegrass, limed and fertilized, was 5227 times more effective in holding soil and 10 times more effective in conserving rainfall than continuously growing corn on the same land.

An acre of bluegrass lost an average of 38 pounds of soil annually for eight consecutive years while the same kind of land continuously cropped to corn lost 198,000 pounds.

The Chairman suggests that when Maryland farmers go over their farms this winter to plan the conservation practices to be carried out in 1952, consideration be given to the effectiveness of grass and legumes in holding and building the soil. Not only do the roots and foliage hold the moisture and keep the land from washing away, but they add humus which makes the soil more fertile and more easily worked.

He points out that many agricultural conservation program practices are available to help farmers get the most effective conservation results through the seeding and growing of grass and legume crops. He urges farmers to check up on seed supplies without delay to be sure of getting the kind best adapted to local conditions and to get orders in early for whatever lime and fertilizers may be needed. Insecticide and Fungicide Supplies Outlook for 1952

As a guide for farmers planning their next year's production, Mr. Blandford this week outlined the prospective 1952 supply situation for insecticides, fungicides, and herbicides (weed killers). As determined by the USDA, the situation indicates that farmers could help avert possible bottlenecks in supplies of these necessary materials by buying some part of their estimated requirements now and through continued orderly purchases in advance of actual needs.

The manufacture and distribution of the large quantities of insecticides, fungicides, and herbicides required for agricultural production can not be accomplished in the relatively few weeks before and during the growing season. This has become a year-round job which is dependent upon forward planning by the farmers. Although production capacity is generally adequate, storage facilities will not accommodate the quantities of pesticides being made and this situation threatens to hamper continued manufacturing at an inopportune time.

Shortages of the chemicals and metals used in the manufacture of insecticides and fungicides are becoming more acute as the defense effort expands. Shortages of sulfur, copper, and lead, already exist. Alternate materials will have to be used to extend supplies of pesticides using these basic materials, if farmers' requirements are to be filled in '52. Orderly purchases of at least

Maryland Feed And Grain Markets

The Maryland grain market last week was steady to higher, and the market trend higher. The supply was ample with demand slightly less than normal. No. 2 yellow shelled corn was up about one cent per bushel; yellow ear corn was down about two cents; No. 2 barley up about part of the 1952 needs of fungicides, insecticides, and herbicides by farmers now, coupled with careful storage until time of use, could help prevent the danger of short supplies which might come with increased competition for scarce chemicals and metals later. Obviously, such action would reduce the pressure of manufacturers' storage stocks against further production and would help prevent sudden unmanageable strains on shipping and storage during the growing season.

one cent, and soybeans up about two cents.

The condition of the feed market was steady with the trend higher. Scarcity in some items were noticed and a heavy demand.

Fascinating Fashions By Judy Seaton

A flared skirt of gleaming white felt, dramatized with an inset of inky black lace—a cinched-in waist—topped off with a décolleté blouse of black jersey are the ingredients for a perfect holiday outfit... and one which you can wear right on through the year. Add elbow-length gloves and a three-strand pearl choker for a soigne effect. Virginia Kaye, leading lady on CBS's daytime serial, "Rosemary," points out that there is no outfit more comfortable or appropriate for country weekends, at-home entertaining or for "a party for two" in front of a roaring fire.

Virginia, a tall, well-proportioned girl with red-gold hair, loves nothing better than an excuse to really dress up. She chooses a gown like the one illustrated above, which is equally flattering to the tall, slender girl or the "petite" type of small girl. Its tight fitting bodice is glamorous satin and its voluminous skirt is layers and layers of filmy tulle. A stiff crinoline underskirt contributes its share to the ultra-feminine, billowing effect. A crinoline of net, with a firmer rigidity, is preferable to a less sturdy underskirt, since the heavy satin needs support.

Gasoline Now Called "Taxoline"

BALTIMORE—Due to recently enacted Federal gasoline and automotive tax increases, the typical Maryland vehicle owner will pay a record-breaking $99.50 in special motoring taxes next year, J. P. Lanigan, executive secretary of the Maryland Petroleum Institute predicted today.

The car and truck owner's special tax bill will hit an all-time high because tax rates are now at their peak, Mr. Lanigan explained.

He stated that "the full impact of the heavier Federal taxes will be felt in 1952, when the motorist finds how drastically they add to his driving costs."

Under the new scale of Federal automotive excise taxes, which took effect on Nov. 1, the gasoline tax is increased to two cents a gallon from the previous 1½ cents. The excise tax on new passenger cars is up to 10%, from seven per cent and the former five per cent taxes on trucks, buses, truck-trailers, automotive parts and accessories have been boosted to eight per cent.

"Just the higher Federal gasoline tax will mean that Maryland motorists must pay seven cents in state and Federal taxes on every gallon of gas they buy," he added. "This equals a 35% sales tax on gasoline—the heaviest tax imposed on a non-luxury product in our state."

He pointed out that the Federal gasoline and automotive excise taxes are not connected with highway development but are used for the support of general government. These taxes were first levied as temporary measure in 1932 "to help meet a depression emergency," he said.

"Not only have the Federal gasoline and automotive taxes been retained all these years, but they have been increased with each following emergency," he declared.

He concluded: "As soon as the world conditions clear up, the heavily overtaxed motor vehicle owners should be the first to receive deserved—and long overdue—tax relief from their Federal Government."

Tall, lean Lyle Sudrow, who has taken over the leading male role of "Harry Davis," on ABC's "When a Girl Marries," got his first taste of the theatre at eight—and immediately settled on his future career.

The blond, blue-eyed youngster's debut was in a YMCA minstrel show in Scranton, Pa., and the very next year he made his first radio appearance—having persuaded his mother to take him for an audition. All through high school Lyle was active in every amateur dramatics undertaking that he heard of and could reach. By the time he was sixteen, the ambitious Lyle's casual, easy style of singing turned out to be the opening wedge into professional radio.

A spell with the Coast Artillery during World War II interrupted Lyle's singing and acting career—and introduced him to his future wife. They were married during the war, and are now the parents of a small daughter named Nicole, who is six. . . . Following in her dad's footsteps? "She sure is," says Lyle, laughing, "she's already asking me to get her auditions on the air!"
