—BY ABIGAIL—

One can't figure out what Mother Nature has in store for us anymore. One day you almost melt with the sweltering heat and the next few days you are deluged with rain. Not content with that, violent rain and electrical storms descend on our district, making you believe that perhaps Mother Nature's machinery has gone haywire. Just take last Thursday for instance. Things were going along fine and hot, when suddenly a severe wind and electrical storm swooped down on us, knocking out our power for more than an hour and uprooting several large trees in and about the district. Then last Saturday, you know, was the "longest" day of the year. Sunday and Monday brought more showers and Wednesday and Thursday set records as the hottest days of the season to date. Yes, the weather is very uncertain these days. Many blame the existing conditions on the atomic bomb experiments, but to our notion that is fallacious. There is no good reason to believe such poppycock. If so, why doesn't this sort of phenomena exist in the direct locality of the explosions? However, you will hear any number of well-meaning citizens expressing the opinion that the bombs are causing it!

Just reminiscing a bit, I happened to think: Whatever became of our promised dial telephones we were supposed to get some three years ago? And what ever happened to the substation the power company was supposed to build on the outskirts of town? And do you realize that half of 1952 has passed and nothing has been done to improve Route 15? And it runs in my mind that we were promised a free garbage collection system about two years ago?

The town already has been stricken with parade fever and enthusiasm has risen to the bursting point as the date of the big parade draws near. At least half a dozen organizations have appointed committees to arrange for preparing floats to represent their groups. Invitations have been sent to over 200 local and neighboring fire companies, auxiliaries of all types, bands, drum and bugle corps, etc., and to date the response has been gratifying, the committee reports. A number of residents are busy fixing up old cars for entry in the affair, which will officially open the second annual carnival, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, assisted by most local organizations which have generously consented to again aid the Chamber in promoting the activity which is being held for the benefit of the Memorial Hall building fund, which now is over $2,000. Don't forget the big date folks, July 17.

The rest of this year promises to be one filled with expectancy and anxiety. Right now the battle between Eisenhower and Taft is really raging and will proceed to get hotter and hotter as the convention date draws near. Indications are that Mr. Taft has pulled a "fast one" on Mr. Eisenhower and has "rigged" things at the big conclave, with what his men in most of the key positions, such as the powerful rules committee and the keynote speaker, General MacArthur, in his corner. But if we know Ike, he will appeal the decision to the powerful court of public opinion, which will render a verdict in favor of Ike in the spirit of "fair play." Price controls and wages are expected to be removed shortly and an air of anxiety as to which way the cost of living will proceed, hovers overhead. Will inflation spiral to a new zenith or will the law of supply and demand regulate the situation to the betterment of all? We are of the opinion that if the Government is kept from meddling with wages and prices everything will return to normal.

Lions Club Enters Float In Parade

The Emmitsburg Lions Club met in regular session Monday night in the Lutheran Parish Hall, President C. A. Elder, presiding.

Lion Clarence Hahn reported that the club had been asked to man the game booths at the annual carnival being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, and a number of volunteers agreed to do the job.

President Elder reported that the installation of new officers will take place at the next regular meeting on July 14 and asked for 100 per cent attendance.

The club is anxious to obtain a new Scoutmaster for the local chapter of Boy Scouts. The vacancy occurred with the resignation of the present Scoutmaster, Dr. John Spangler. Any local resident interested in this type of work is asked to contact any members of the club.

A donation was authorized for Father Flannigan's Boys' Town. The club will sponsor a float in the big parade which will open the second annual carnival on July 17. Mrs. Robert E. Daugherty was named chairman of a committee to prepare the float.

WOLFE—CALLAHAN

Miss Susan Irene Callahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Callahan, Baltimore, formerly of Emmitsburg, became the bride of Victor LeRoy Wolfe, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Geesie, Emmitsburg, at a nuptial mass last Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Francis Xavier's Church, Gettysburg. Rev. Fr. Stanley Scarff, pastor of St. Anthony's, Emmitsburg, was the officiating clergyman.

The altar was decorated with summer flowers and candles. Mrs. George F. Eberhart, organist, played wedding marches by Carlo Bossini and accompanied the vocalist, Paul Colsey Callahan, Gettysburg, cousin of the bride, who sang several religious selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of ivory faille taffeta with a fitted bodice shirred at the waist and a full skirt ending in a cathedral train. Her long, tapering sleeves were buttoned at the wrists and her jewelry, a strand of pearls, was a gift of the bridegroom. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a colonial-type bouquet of calla lilies.

Miss Alma Marie Callahan, Baltimore, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of orchid faille taffeta, fitted at the waist, a cape-like design over the shoulders and a full skirt with a bustle-effect. She wore matching mitts and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and lavender carnations. Her headdress carried out the theme of the bouquet in the form of a tiara made of fresh flowers and orchid tulle.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. John T. Ross Jr., Philadelphia, sister of the bride and Miss Mary Louise Callahan, Gettysburg, a cousin of the bride, who wore similar gowns in pale rose. They carried arm bouquets of pink carnations and blue delphinium and matching tiaras of fresh flowers and rose tulle.

William Paul Walter, Emmitsburg, cousin of the bride, was the best man. The ushers were Louis Killian Callahan, Baltimore, brother of the bride; Dr. John T. Ross Jr., Philadelphia, brother-in-law of the bride; Albert J. Rosenwald, Emmitsburg and Dr. Thomas J. Norris, Jr., Emmitsburg.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of shell-pink crepe and a wide-brimmed hat of pink straw. Her corsage was a lavender orchid.

The bridegroom's aunt wore a larkspur blue crepe dress with white accessories and a white straw hat adorned with white flowers. She also wore a lavender orchid corsage.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast for 100 was served at Banker's Gettysburg restaurant. The three-tiered cake was topped with wedding bells and a heart. Later the couple left on a honeymoon of undisclosed destination.

SEIDEL—KAAS

St. Anthony's Shrine Catholic Church, Emmitsburg, was the scene of a lovely wedding Saturday, June 14, at 9 a. m., when Miss Mary Ruth Kaas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Kaas, Jr., Thurmont, became the bride of Robert A. Seidel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Seidel, Sr. of Altoona, Pa. Rev. Stanley F. Scarff, pastor of the bride, officiated at the nuptial mass and the double ring ceremony.

The bride was escorted to the altar by the best man and wore a gown of chantilly lace, tight-fitted sleeveless bodice, with mitts to match and nylon net over satin skirt. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of seeded pearls trimmed in nylon lace. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and baby breath, tied with a white satin ribbon.

Miss Rita Kaas, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of pale blue nylon over satin trimmed with nylon lace, with mitts to match. She wore a blue floral headdress with veil. Her bouquet of white and pink rosebuds was tied with pink satin ribbon.

Pfc. Francis Seidel, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Private Seidel is stationed at Camp Lejeune, N. C., serving with the Marine Corps.

Mrs. Ernest Seltzer, church organist, gave a recital before the ceremony and played the traditional wedding marches. The church choir sang, "Hail Holy Queen," "Ave Maria," "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy," and when the bride presented her bouquet to the Blessed Mother the choir sang, "On This Day O Beautiful Mother."

The bride's mother wore a pale blue rayon and nylon dress with white accessories while the bridegroom's mother chose a steel blue nylon print dress with accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a breakfast was served at the home of the bride for the bridal party and the immediate families. Rev. Stanley Scarff and Rev. Leo Wetzel, were guests.

A reception was held at the bride's home in the evening at 7:00 o'clock for relatives and friends. A four-tier wedding cake was the centerpiece of the table, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, was cut by the young couple. Following the reception the couple left for Virginia, where they will reside.

Mrs. Seidel was employed at the Fairfield Shoe Co. and the bridegroom was just recently discharged from the Army, after serving four years, of which half were spent overseas in Korea and Hawaii.

M. Frank Rowe Ends Long Business Career; Retires At 86 Years of Age

Sixty-five years at the same stand is the enviable record of Emmitsburg's oldest business proprietor, venerable M. Frank Rowe, who this week announced his retirement from the business world.

Mr. Rowe has plied his trade, shoemaker, at the same location on W. Main St., that is so familiar to both young and old residents of the town. Learning his trade under his grandfather, James A. Rowe, the younger Mr. Rowe was taken into the concern as a full-fledged partner at the early age of 21. That was in 1887.

A native son of Emmitsburg, Mr. Rowe recalls that his grandfather had the distinction of making boots for the cavalry officers when they were engaged in conflict at Gettysburg. He reports the boots then sold for $16.00 a pair. At that time the concern measured and cut the patterns for the custom-made footwear. Not content with shoe-making alone, as a business, the energetic Mr. Rowe opened a grocery annex in the same building 14 years ago, at aged 72 and continued operation of same until this week when he suddenly decided to sit back and take it easy.

Today at 86, the enterprising Mr. Rowe has a keen sense of humor and is an active conversationalist, well-versed on current topics and possesses a keen memory for events of long ago days.

A favorite anecdote Mr. Rowe tells about himself concerns a local tanner who tried to coerce him into a deal he wasn't interested in. As Mr. Rowe tells it, the tanner had six sheets of leather, one of which had been attacked by woggle worms, rendering the leather useless because of the worm holes. After much debating over the deal, Mr. Rowe acquiesced and bought the six sheets, including the ruined one, after the tanner insisted the holes "wouldn't hurt the leather." Following the sale the tanner ordered a pair of boots from the buyer. You guessed it . . . the boots were made out of the woggle worm leather which the seller had assured Mr. Rowe was all right. When he learned of the situation he (the tanner) was very much put out, but Mr. Rowe reminded him of his own words when selling him the leather, the holes won't hurt the leather . . . nor your boots.

The Rowe storeroom will not go unrented. Francis S. K. Matthews, local gas and gas appliance dealer, has rented the building and is remodeling it in preparation to opening a store of his own, where he will sell metered gas, stoves, and other allied appliances. Mr. Matthews said he expects to be open for business in the immediate future.

Cashtown Trounces Locals 4-3 In Sunday Contest Here

Cashtown nipped Emmitsburg last Sunday 4-3. Emmitsburg filled the bases with two out in the ninth on a walk to Hoke, Bubbick's single and another walk to Jordan. Dick Pitzer replaced Kane for Cashtown and passed Mick to force in a run. Piney Rebert then replaced Pitzer and fanned McMahon.

"Pinhead" Mick was in fine form Sunday striking out 6 and failed to give up a base on balls. Bill Fuhrman, Littlestown hurler, turned in another superb pitching performance as Littlestown blanked New Oxford, 6-0, on the winner's field. Fuhrman gave up one safety, a single by Noel in the sixth inning, and whiffed 16 batsmen.

The league-leading Thurmont team smothered Westminster, 15-0. Wilders fanned 15 for Thurmont. McCleaf secured four of the 15 safeties.

THE MACARTHUR RULING

The Pentagon has set a bad, and indeed un-American, precedent in ruling that it is okay for General MacArthur to engage in campaign politics though still on the Army's active list.

Understandably, the Pentagon must play by ear on the so-called five-star act of Congress, there being no similar military position in the nation's history. The five-star rank, created by a grateful Congress after the last war, corresponds more or less with that of European field marshal. Generals and admirals of five stars may remain on the active list for the rest of their lives and be assigned at any time to specific duties. But they may also voluntarily retire, as did General Eisenhower, and they may also resign their commission, as General Eisenhower has said he will do if nominated for the presidency.

This Eisenhower precedent is the one that the Pentagon should have enforced in the case of General MacArthur. Army regulations clearly forbid the kind of political speechmaking that General MacArthur, while on the active list, has made and will make. They clearly forbid his exertions in behalf of Senator Taft. Yet the Pentagon, apparently afraid to require General MacArthur to abide by the rules of the game, has interpreted those rules in a way that compromises our traditional concept of civilian superiority to the military.

General MacArthur, says the Pentagon, may take part in political activities while on active duty because he has no specific command now and thus may be considered on retired status. Of course, the General will continue to draw $19,541.84 annual pay as an active duty officer. Presumably, there is nothing in the Army interpretation to prevent General MacArthur from wearing his uniform while making partisan speeches.

The Pentagon ruling is wholly out of keeping with the spirit and letter of Army regulations. Beginning with the Declaration of Independence, one of whose complaints against the King was that: "He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power," this country has scrupulously limited the political activities of its military officers. The price has sometimes been high, what with episodes of tragic unpreparedness, but the people have long agreed that at no cost should men in uniform or on active duty presume to seek votes or publicly tell others how to vote.

This is a tradition worth guarding, especially when some two-thirds of our national budget goes to the military. The Pentagon ruling has weakened that tradition, and if the President does not promptly alter the decision—General MacArthur or no—Congress should do so.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

The Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee is urging Maryland banks and lending institutions to enter into lending agency agreements with the Commodity Credit Corp. for making loans to farmers on crops stored on farms and in approved warehouses.

The policy of using existing institutions in the loan program, according to the State PMA Acting Chairman James A. Cottman is in accord with the CCC charter that "to the maximum extent possible" the corporation shall "utilize the usual and customary channels of trade and commerce."

Where local banks and lending institutions do not enter into such agreements, the acting chairman explains, county PMA committees are authorized to make loans by drafts drawn on CCC and to retain notes and supporting loan documents in county PMA offices.

The loan program, according to Mr. Cottman, is a means to assist farmers to tide over periods of marketing, transportation and storage difficulties which often occur at harvest time and to enable farmers to retain ownership of their commodities for later use or disposal.

The main crops grown in Maryland for which CCC loans are available are wheat, corn, barley, rye, oats, soybeans, and Koke lespedeza.

To be eligible for a loan, the acting chairman said, the commodity must be stored in an approved structure on the farm or in an approved warehouse. Loans also are available to enable farmers to construct needed storage space and to buy drying equipment.

Storage Facilities Loans

With the nation facing a bumper 1952 wheat crop, growers are being reminded they can borrow money to build grain storage facilities on or near their farms, Mr. Cottman explained.

About a third of the national wheat crop normally is marketed during July and August. Because this tends to overload the market and depress prices, many foresighted growers store some of their wheat and market it later.

Quoting figures to show improved income from wheat marketed in later months, Mr. Cottman said 1946 crop wheat brought 66 cents per bushel more in March, 1947, than when harvested during the previous July or August; that 1947 crop wheat was 71 cents per bushel more in January 1948, than during the previous August; and that similar profitable differentials, ranging from nine to 25 cents per bushel, existed during the crop years 1948 through 1951.

Either tenants or owner-operators are eligible for CCC loans to build farm or near-farm storage facilities, Mr. Cottman explained, pointing out that the CCC will make the loans directly or will guarantee loans through lending agencies.

For loan application forms and further information about the program, grain farmers should contact their county FMA office.

A classified ad will sell that piece of furniture, range, etc.

SOMETHING SPECIAL IN SPAGHETTI: Charming Mrs. Al Capp enjoys the antics of L'il Abner as much as anyone. Wife of the famous comic strip artist, Mrs. Capp enjoys good food, too, and knows her way about a menu. When she plans for a crowd she chooses a dish for flavor, nutrition, economy. Her favorite budget beater is Spaghetti Casserole. The recipe comes from the Research Kitchens of Blue Bonnet Margarine.

SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1 cup uncooked spaghetti, in 1-inch lengths
1½ quarts boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup soft bread crumbs
¾ cup melted Blue Bonnet Margarine

3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1½ tablespoons chopped onion
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cup grated sharp cheese
1½ cups scalded milk
3 eggs, separated

Cook spaghetti in boiling water with 1 teaspoon salt, until tender. Drain. Add bread crumbs, melted margarine, chopped green pepper, onion, salt and grated cheese. Pour hot milk slowly onto egg yolks, beating constantly with rotary egg beater. Blend into mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, and fold carefully into mixture. Place in a greased 1½ quart casserole. Bake in a slow oven at 325°F. about 65-70 minutes, until just firm. Serves 6.

"How Much Government?"

When the average American citizen goes to Washington as a tourist he sees such sights as the beautiful Capitol Building, the famed Washington Monument, and the shrines built to honor Lincoln, Jefferson, and others. He probably visits the Smithsonian National Museum and drives around to see the Pentagon. On every side as he goes about Washington are the great masses of stone buildings which house the government bureaus and agencies.

For most citizens visiting the seat of our Federal government the seemingly endless blocks of huge office buildings create an impression of big and impersonal government; in fact, the buildings, in their massed effect, seem to me to present a somewhat forbidding appearance. A tourist from Gary or Butte or Searcy is likely to be awed. Inside these huge stone buildings is his Federal government, but it is too big for him to measure with the usual yardsticks of everyday living in his home town.

Yardstick for Size
We need to understand more clearly the size of our Federal government and the rate of its growth. The National Conference Board, an independent private research organization, has put together a group of official government statistics on the size of our government—local, state, and national. The booklet is entitled "How Much Government?" To any student of history this booklet reveals an alarming situation. History shows that no nation ever enjoyed progress for long. The growth of government has always sooner or later smothered it out in nation after nation.

The Conference Board's authentic booklet shows that the rate of growth of our own government in the past half century. Under the heading "Dimensions of Government" the Board presents a graphic listing of yardsticks on government. The first stick deals with the government payroll. The total payroll of all governmental units in 1951, including the armed forces, reached $29 billion, or 16 per cent of the total paid in wages and salaries throughout the entire nation. There were more than six million civilians on government payrolls.

One Out of Eight
The civilian workers on just the Federal government payroll were costing taxpayers $10.6 billion annually in wages and salaries in 1951. And the latest official report on Federal government employment shows that approximately 10,000 new Federal civilian jobs are being created each month! In 1900, there was one civilian government worker for every 25 privately employed persons; and in 1951, there was one civilian government worker for every eight persons privately employed. This is perhaps the most striking measurement of the growth of government.

Government jobs and other government spending must, of course, be paid for by taxpayers. In 1951, total taxes collected by all governmental units amounted to 32 per cent of the total national income. At the height of World War II they amounted to 28 per cent; in 1940 to 21 per cent; in 1929 to 12 per cent; in 1913 to seven per cent.

LOOKING AT RELIGION

ST. JOHN THE DIVINE, AS A RESULT OF PERSECUTIONS, HAD BEEN BANISHED TO THE BARREN ISLAND OF PATMOS IN THE AEGEAN SEA AND IT WAS THERE THAT HE RECEIVED THE REMARKABLE VISIONS, GREATEST OF ALL VISIONS IN THE BIBLE, UPON WHICH HE BASED THE BOOK OF REVELATIONS.

Government Needs Whittling

Tax money comes from everybody's pocketbook. Today the lowest income brackets are paying about 18 per cent of what they earn, the highest about 9 per cent. The tax payments of citizens earning less than $7500 annually amount, when totaled, to about 80 per cent of all income taxes paid in the nation. This demonstrates clearly that big and growing government must, of necessity, impose the big tax load on the millions of citizens of moderate means, taking a bigger and bigger percentage of their earnings. The Conference Board's booklet cites figures showing that each American family today owes, as its share of the national debt, approximately $5700, which is 140 times what it was in 1910.

Yet our government grows and grows. The figures show that non-defense spending has tripled in the past 12 years. The dominance government has reached in today's economic and social life in America could be dramatized by dividing the earners of the nation into groups of five people. Four out of every group would represent the American citizenry and the fifth would represent government. When put together the statistical yardsticks indicate this ratio. That's too much government! We'd have a stronger nation and a far more secure future if the ratio were whittled down to one part government to 25 parts American citizenry. And it can be done!

Home "Ranch" For Chinchillas

FAMILY HOBBY PAYS OFF—The W. H. Brown family of Shelby, N. C., is striking it rich with an entertaining hobby. They have converted a part of their home into a "ranch" for chinchillas. While these little animals, whose average weight is only about 20 ounces, have all the pleasant characteristics of other household pets, their fur value is very high. A pair of adult chinchillas is worth about $500. They produce from four to eight offspring a year, thereby increasing their family value to thousands of dollars within a few years. Although the diet is relatively simple, extreme care must be taken to assure proper room temperature. The Browns solved this problem by installing a modern Fedders room air conditioner which automatically keeps interior temperature and moisture at the ideal level.

Nowadays It's Chicken Every Day But The Bird Is Still A 4th Of July Treat

SERVE CHICKEN on the Fourth of July and everybody will be happy. Chicken is a traditional Sunday and holiday bird and even now, when it's a thrifty everyday choice at many tables, it carries an air of festiveness. So it's still first choice for the Fourth.

The reason why any day can be chicken day nowadays, according to George R. Vail of the Birds Eye Division of General Foods, is because Birds Eye introduced a new concept of poultry processing in developing specially bred commercial fliers, and so helped produce the new all-year-round chicken plenty.

A new kind of chicken cookery has developed, too, because of our prodigious supply of this delicious bird. Whereas once, in this country, we had chicken fried when young poultry was available, and roasted or fricasseed most of the rest of the year, we now have all sorts of delicious adaptations of famous European dishes, like this Chicken Camille, starring quick-frozen fliers in a real gourmet dish.

CHICKEN CAMILLE

1 quick-frozen frying chicken, country style, thawed
Seasoned flour
3 tablespoons butter or other fat
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
¾ cup water
Separate pieces of chicken, dry, and roll in seasoned flour. Saute in fat until brown on all sides. Remove chicken from skillet.
Combine soup and water with drippings in skillet, blending well. Return chicken to skillet, cover, and simmer 30 to 45 minutes, or until done. Makes 4 servings.
Note: If desired, 1 or 2 boxes (1 pound each) Birds Eye Chicken Drumsticks or Chicken Thighs may be substituted for the frying chicken. Use only 2 tablespoons butter with 1 box chicken. Makes 3 servings with 1 box chicken or 6 servings with 2 boxes chicken.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By J. GLENN BEALL

Representative In Congress

Sixth District of Maryland

The House passed a bill extending some of the President's emergency war powers but dropping his authority to seize the railroads. The bill continues until June 30, 1953 some 48 grants of emergency powers which expired on June 15. Most of them are non-controversial, dealing with such matters as uniform allowances for reserve officers. The President had asked to continue 60 of his war powers but the House Judiciary Committee refused to extend 11 on the ground they were no longer needed.

Legislation establishing a 12-member bipartisan commission to recommend future American foreign policy was unanimously approved by a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. This commission would submit plans for future foreign policy directly to Congress. The legislators would then determine what to do with the report. The commission would be composed of two members from the government and two private citizens. The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House would appoint two Congressmen and two laymen, from both parties. The commission would particularly survey existing international organizations to determine the extent of American participation, in the interests of world peace and security. Such a plan would be the first to enlist the best brains from private life in assisting in moulding a foreign program.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill broadly revising the immigration laws. The bill had cleared both chambers and the compromise bill clarified the differences. The bill raises to 154,653 the number of aliens who could enter this country annually for citizenship. This is an increase of 380 over existing law.

The Senate passed legislation extending wage, price and rent controls through next Feb. 28. This bill now comes to the House. The House Banking Committee has voted for a full year's extension of these controls and dropping all controls over real estate and consumer credit. An effort was made in the House committee to adopt the Senate extension terms. When the House bill is finally passed, there will have to be a conference between the two bodies to iron out the differences. A compromise between the extension dates probably will be made. Other important provisions in the House bill stipulate support prices of not less than 90 per cent of parity on six basic agriculture commodities—corn, wheat, cotton, peanuts, tobacco and rice, and denied the administrations request for restoration of livestock slaughtering quotas.

The Federal government now owns one-fourth of the total land area in the U. S., acquiring much of it in the last 15 years, according to a report by the Council of States Chambers of Commerce. Since 1937 the Federal government has added about 65 million acres to its holdings. By 1949, the property holdings of government had climbed to a total of 455,470,000 acres and about four million acres have been added since then. This situation has created serious financial problems in communities, counties and states since this land is removed from local tax rolls. For many years it was the established policy of the government to dispose of its more accessible lands to private owners who put it to productive use. Unless this trend is reversed, many states will become the satellites of the Federal government which is a socialistic concept.

The Grocery Manufacturers of America Assn. calls attention to the fact that the food bill of the nation in 1951 was an estimated $57 billion while the nation's tax bill was about $75 billion or almost 30 per cent more than the money spent for food. In the grocery bill, according to the association, there are $11 billion of hidden taxes, taking one out of every $5 of the housewife's grocery bill.

Oysters are native to many parts of the world and about 190 different species are known.

QUESTION: We are planning to install a bath in our 7-room house which has two rooms on the second floor. Would it be better to install it on the upper floor or in a room which we are adding to the house?

ANSWER: For the sake of convenience it is best to locate a bathroom near a second floor bedroom, with a lavatory on the first floor. Should economy be important, an unfinished room is more easily converted. There is no need to rip out the finish and repair it later. It is easier to conceal pipes, brace fixtures into walls and build semi-recessed fixtures.

QUESTION: The outside of my garage is covered with asphalt shingles leaving the nail points showing on the inside. Would roll roofing placed between the 2x4's on the inside to cover the nails and also to act as an insulator cause the garage to sweat?

ANSWER: While roll roofing can be used, anything rammed against it will cause punctures. The garage will not sweat, but moisture trapped inside the walls will condense and drip down the wall or, worse, into the garage if the garage is not sufficiently heated. Using standard insulation with a dry wall finish will turn out a much neater job.

QUESTION: I would like to use boiled linseed oil to dress up my tile floors. Can you tell me how long I must boil the oil before using it and if it will make my floors slippery?

ANSWER: Both boiled and raw linseed oil are obtainable at your local paint store and boiling at home is not necessary. Used like a floor wax on tile, it is an excellent polish. It is not sticky when dry and will not make the floor slippery.

Keep Up With Latest Poultry Raising Methods

With new developments constantly coming onto the poultry scene, the modern-day poultryman is almost compelled to keep up with his reading and attend as many poultry meetings as possible. This may sound like a big task, especially with the many duties that the average poultry-raiser has today, but successful operators will testify to the importance of such activities.

A lack of knowledge, an ignorance of poultry facts, is a severe handicap to the poultryman. Operating on such a basis, he decreases his farm's efficiency rather than increases it. By missing out on new and better ways of carrying on his poultry operations, he deprives himself of extra poultry profits—and, in many cases, eventually forces himself out of the poultry business.

One of the best ways to keep informed is through reading. There are countless poultry bulletins, circulars, books, and periodicals on subjects of interest to every poultryman. These writings cover many of the facts underlying modern poultry and egg production, and the smart poultry-raiser will be quick to take advantage of them. Here's an example of what is available in poultry literature for today's poultry-raiser:

Consider the subject of poultry diseases. Diseases are a constant threat to poultry flocks, and at one time or another most every poultryman has experienced an outbreak of some kind in his flock. There is much material that can be obtained on this subject. For example, there are bulletins, folders, and manuals which describe poultry diseases, tell how they usually appear in a flock, and also give treatment recommendations. Such information as this can be of great value to the poultry-raiser.

A poultry-raiser can also increase his knowledge of poultry and management methods by attending educational poultry meetings. There are many poultry farming short courses, community courses, or other formal poultry education groups which welcome interested persons to their meetings. The information obtained at such meetings can be of considerable help in poultry-raising.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Articles by David Lillenthal, ex-Tennessee Valley Authority head, ex-Atomic Energy Commission head, attacking the nation's anti-trust laws and business philosophy, cause some amusement in Washington.

It is recalled that although appointed to AEC for a five year term, Lillenthal resigned after Congressional investigation which included 24 public sessions, and 21 closed door sessions.

C. W. Harder

Due to security, it is doubtful full facts of these hearings will ever be made public, but those that were made public did not boost the Lillenthal business abilities.

For example, the Hanford Plant, started on an estimated cost of $6 million actually cost $25 million. An AEC built junior high school started out to cost $1,786,000 finally wound up costing $3,980,000.

Other testimony indicated AEC played fast and loose with security regulations, bypassing the FBI to grant emergency clearances at secret plants.

There were undoubtedly great information leaks. Current Saturday Evening Post articles report how a British physicist gave Russia vital secrets.

It is held significant that Lillenthal, as the resigned head of AEC, emerges, despite his lack of private business experience, as tom-tom beater for destroying the nation's anti-trust laws.

Atom bombs have captured the headlines. Properly so, their details are guarded secrets, but commercial uses of atomic energy in the next few years will result in the greatest development since the application of power to machines.

Petroleum opened a whole new field of power. Control of the world oil supply is new in the hands of a very few. Atomic energy has opened a bigger field.

The development of atomic energy cost the U. S. taxpayers billions. Yet one or two of the biggest corporations in the country have been permitted in on the ground floor.

Hence Washington feeling current drive to abolish the anti-trust laws is paving way for a super-atomic energy monopoly.

The effect on the entire economy of not only the nation, but the world will be vast when atomic power is used for heating, transportation, and many other planned peacetime uses.

Today, the motorist cannot shop for gasoline. He finds gasoline price identical. Monopoly control of peacetime atomic energy will also eliminate all competition; force on the public non-competitive fixed prices.

This is one facet of background to scuttling anti-trust laws that prohibit price fixing.

Further evidence piles up that there is no limit to degree a bureau will set itself up as a little super-government ruling by edict. The latest example is the Wage Stabilization Board.

Washington stationery stores have discussed summer Saturday closing. But first the Wage Stabilization Board must approve, because to work employees shorter hours at the same pay is equal to a pay increase, the bureaucrats argue. It is hard to reconcile this docile submission to petty official rulings by a people who dumped taxed tea in the bay.

LITTLE THINGS about the Stars

TELEVISION - RADIO - HOLLYWOOD

By GEORGE LILLEY

NEW YORK, N. Y.—First of the regular television shows to throw itself into full gear with the political picture is NBC-TV "We the People." For the next three months, the program's sponsor has arranged with the editors of Life to produce the program, bringing to the show that magazine's wealth of resources and journalistic background through to, including, the conventions in Chicago.

"We the People" originated in 1936, is one of the oldest dramatic news programs. It was the first—in 1948—to be regularly simulcast on TV. The same year, Life was the first to present complete coverage by television of the national political conventions. Now that the showmanship and news facilities of the two pioneers is combined, viewers get a week-by-week examination of the major campaigns and issues that is both dramatic and informative.

Andrew Heiskell, publisher of Life, and veteran producer Frank Telford are among those working on the series. Averell Harriman and Senator Taft are in the line-up of coming Friday night guests.

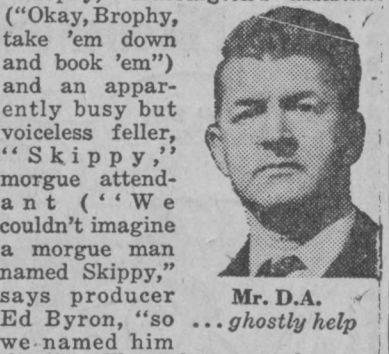

CLAUDIA GETS ABOUT
"Claudia" is one of the most traveled heroines in American fiction. The creation of Rose Franken appeared in a magazine 14 years ago. From magazine "Claudia" went into book form. She became a Broadway star and at one time five theatrical companies were performing her role simultaneously, three in America, one in England, one in Sweden. "Claudia" became a hit in the movies, went on into radio, and, since the first of the year, "Claudia" the Story of a Marriage, has been on television. Joan McCracken, who danced her way to fame, is the TV "Claudia" and young Hugh Reilly is "David." The show switched networks, now is seen Mondays, CBS-TV.

MR. D.A.'s "LITTLE HELPERS"

On radio's 13-year-old Mr. District Attorney, Friday nights, ABC (television, alternate Mondays, ABC-TV) a number of characters have grown popular—although they have never been seen and never heard. There are the ethereal "Brophy," Harrington's assistant ("Okay, Brophy, take 'em down and book 'em") and an apparently busy but voiceless feller, "Skippy," morgue attendant ("We couldn't imagine a morgue man named Skippy," says producer Ed Byron, "so we named him that"). Then there you hear of "Pete," lab attendant; "Gary," a police photographer; "Red," the D.A.'s assistant, and Dorothy, "lovely" switchboard girl, but you never hear them talk. Mr. D.A. (Jay Jostyn) likes his ghostly help. "They're always on time," he says, "and never fluff a line!"

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

(Sponsored by the Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce)

WASHINGTON—One question overshadows all others on Capitol Hill at the moment.

Can Congress finish its business of the year in time to adjourn rather than merely recess before the July political conventions?

Most members hope so. None professes to know for sure.

Lurking in the background, meanwhile, is the possibility of a special session after July.

If Congress does not perform to President Truman's satisfaction before quitting for the year, he may call them back—as he did from the rostrum of the Democratic National Convention on the muggy night of July 14, 1948, in Philadelphia when he accepted the nomination for re-election.

That was just 24 days after Congress had adjourned at 7:14 on the morning of Sunday, June 20, when many yawning Republican members boarded trains for their Philadelphia convention without having had a wink of sleep. The Senate had had to sit continuously for 44 hours and 14 minutes before being able to clear its docket to the satisfaction of a majority. Adjournment was with the provision that the Republican leadership of that 80th Congress, as well as the President, could recall Congress.

The question of whether Congress could adjourn in time for the conventions arises now for the same reason it did in 1948—the backlog of unfinished business that remains.

The steel strike also has been a factor.

The big legislative snag, as usual, is the appropriations bills—money to run the government during the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. The House and Senate are arguing over the best method to reduce the Federal payroll. The Senate favors a flat 10 per cent cut in agency payroll funds. The House prefers enforcement of a requirement that most agencies refill no more than one of each four job vacancies after July 1 until a total reduction of 10 per cent in employment has been achieved.

This argument is delaying the conferences of members of the House and Senate Appropriations committees who are trying to iron out differences between House and Senate versions of the various money bills.

The very same House-Senate argument arose last year and an obstinate House kept sending appropriations bills back to conference with demands that the reduction formula be applied. A compromise was not reached until October and, meanwhile, Congress had to grant government agencies several temporary spending authorizations—because regular spending authority stops automatically at the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

It is generally expected that this year's stubbornness will be tempered by the desire for adjournment.

Most members of Congress would rather go home from Chicago and work at campaigning rather than return here after the conventions. More than 20 states will not hold their primary elections until after July. And most of those members of Congress who have passed the primary hurdle want to campaign for the November elections.

Should Congress recess and return after the conventions, it would be difficult to keep enough members on hand to get any work done, because of the desire or necessity, or both, of many to be home campaigning. It has been difficult for the leadership of Congress to do this in the last few months chiefly because of primary elections in various states. And that has contributed to the very situation that now makes adjournment by the Fourth of July questionable.

There are both optimists and pessimists in Congress where pre-convention adjournment is concerned. House Democratic Whip Percy Priest (D., Tenn.), whose job it is to keep things moving, is among the latter. "I'd like to be optimistic, but I can't," he says. "There's just too much work left."

State Tomato Crop Provides Large Incomes

Maryland's 1951 crop of canning tomatoes, largest since 1944, provided an estimated $12.7 million in wages to farm hands and cannery employees in the state, according to American Can Co. estimates.

The figure is based on the state's production last year of more than 228,000 tons of tomatoes for canning a pack of 8.3 million cases of whole tomatoes and purée.

The big payroll to farm and cannery workers is only part of the story of the value of tomato canning to Maryland, according to Dr. H. E. Michl, economist for the can-making firm which helped widen markets for Maryland tomatoes by developing special containers for them.

"Millions of dollars also went to workers in the various industries that made more than 200 million cans for the packs, produced 23,510 tons of tinplate and 437,800 pounds of solder, enamel and compound required to make the containers, and manufactured hundreds of tons of other materials used by canners and farmers," he said.

Maryland led the nation last year with the production of an estimated 193 million cans of whole tomatoes. Value of this pack was more than $36 million, the can company said.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Charles B. Harner and Mrs. Roy Sanders in honor of the coming marriage of Catherine Brewer, Emmitsburg, the daughter of Mr. Samuel Brewer and the late Mrs. Brewer, to Ira Ambrose, Taneytown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ambrose, in the Lutheran Parish House last Thursday evening. The color scheme used was pink and white with a decorated sprinkling can suspended over the center of the gift table giving the effect of a shower of presents. Approximately 50 friends and relatives attended from Fairfield, Biglerville, Littlestown, Washington, Taneytown and Emmitsburg.

Whitey Sure "Rang the Bell"

Telephone woke me out of a sound sleep last Friday about eleven-thirty. "This is Whitey Fisher out on River Road," says a voice. "I just wanted to tell you how much I like this week's Clarion."

"Thanks, Whitey," I told him. "But why in blazes call to tell me at this time of night?" "Simple," he says, "your paper boy just delivered it a short while ago. Been waiting for it all evening."

Next day, Buzzy Wilson tells me he delivered Whitey's paper late because he stayed for the school dance and thought it would be OK to drop it off on his way home.

From where I sit, I can't blame Whitey for his joke. He was just reminding me we owe other people the same respect we expect from them. Since I'm always talking about respecting the other fellow's rights—including his right to enjoy a glass of beer if he chooses, it was only fair that Whitey should "wake me up" to his right to get his copy of the Clarion on time. Thanks again, Whitey!

Juniors Extend Win Streak To Two By Defeating Sabillasville Sunday

Dick Yeomans' Penn-Maryland League Juniors made it two-in-a-row Sunday by topping Sabillasville 6 to 4 in a contest originally scheduled for Sabillasville, but played instead, at Community Field, here, due to the wet condition of the opponents' field.

The game was played following the Pen-Mar League game between Emmitsburg and Cash-town.

Mike Joy turned in a creditable performance behind the plate in his first game of the season, which was called because of darkness in the eighth inning.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 26—Now that the first half of the year 1952 is nearly over, income tax reckoning still leaves in its wake a raft of questions. For instance, if some one should ask about the effect of income taxes on profits, the answer would seem to be obvious. Taxes bite into profits and apparently bring about slimmer margins between sales and costs. Business tries, however, to make up for this shrinkage in profits by expanding the volume of sales.

Taxes May Help

Business Temporarily

There are also other "silver linings" to the cloud. I hate high taxes as much as any reader does, but we should realize that indirectly such taxes may have certain advantages: (1) high taxes make us all work harder; (2) as high taxes are hardest on retired people living on a fixed income, these higher taxes are forcing many of them to again become producers; (3) high taxes should make us all more interested in electing a better government; (4) high taxes may result in increased gifts to churches, hospitals, and charities.

Even "excess profits" taxes have certain compensations. For example, at maximum rates, 77 cents of every dollar of excess profits may go to the Government in taxes. But if the corporation decides to spend what would go into its excess profits for research, advertising, or employing more salesmen, it could do so advantageously. Every dollar of such outlay would then cost the corporation only 23 cents. Companies in a position to make use of these "thrifty" dollars might better maintain buildings and expand sales efforts.

Taxes and The Stock Market.

Now, with some degree of certainty of earnings at the level where excess profits begin, there might even be a reflection thereof in higher prices for the company's shares. What would be the position of the stockholder in such a case? The higher stock prices might bring about long-term capital gains if more of the earnings are later converted into dividends.

By spending money that otherwise would go to taxes, the competitive position of the company should be improved. It should have an advantage over competitors who do not have excess profits for expansion of business out of tax money. Excess profits may well increase the advertising in newspapers and magazines. Government Must Permit Profits To Continue

CONDITION CRITICAL

Miss Esther Irene Masser, 18, Fairfield R. 1, whose neck was broken in an automobile crash near Camp Penn, Franklin County, Pa., Saturday, is reported in critical condition at the Waynesboro Hospital.

Corporate profits provide over one-third of the income of the Federal Government. It is a paradox that the tax program, which eventually might be a drag on incentive, may, for a time, itself provide an incentive to expand. In addition, the Government needs the success of every business it taxes to continue its defense program.

Some firms, which may otherwise barely break even, may then remain in the field, due to the high level of economic activity. So the tax program, which threatens to take away with one hand, also gives advantages with the other. There is opportunity to expand and freedom to look forward to profits.

Businessmen Should Not Get Discouraged by Bad News

Stockholders can be sure there is no stock market behind the Iron Curtain! A stock market depends upon free enterprise by those companies whose shares are treated. Buying and selling then depends on available money and the existence of confidence in the future.

But taxation is not lacking behind the Iron Curtain! Taxes are collected in Russia so as to retard enterprise and activity. To meet the challenge of those governments, however, we must show by our actions and faith that the fuller life, offered by the free world, pays. We must maintain not only the freedom to work, save, and invest, but we must work and save and invest.

Governor McKeldin Proclaims Maryland Land Week

Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin recently signed a proclamation designating the week of July 20-26 as Maryland Land Week.

In proclaiming the third annual Land Week the Governor said, "In the past two years, the observance of Maryland Land Week has done much to promote a better understanding of the importance of soil and water conservation throughout the state."

Maryland, he said, "Has been blessed with a fruitful land whose benefits, if wisely used, will always be available to us and to future generations . . . Although much progress has been made in conserving and rebuilding our soil, large areas are still being wasted through erosion, lack of drainage, and improper use.

"These losses of soil and water from our agricultural land," the Governor continued, "are closely related to the problems of water supplies, forestry, flood control, stream pollution, wildlife preservation, and the siltation of rivers, harbors and reservoirs."

Gov. McKeldin concluded, "I urge all citizens of the Free State to support and take an active part in the activities to be held during Maryland Land Week, the success of which will contribute to a more bountiful and prosperous Maryland."

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Glass and children, Beulah and Eric, spent several days in Front Royal, Va., and on the Skyline Drive.

Mrs. Austin Joy, E. Main St., was admitted this week as a patient to the Warner Hospital in Gettysburg.

You will find these displayed at many soda fountains. The cereal and milk luncheon makes a most satisfactory and inexpensive hot weather luncheon. The Baltimore Oriole and Syracuse Chiefs meet in the main game. Secretaries of the three Baltimore organizations are urging the organizations in other cities to set up special bus or train accommodations, or to arrange motorcades to arrive in Baltimore in time for the big parade and pre-game activities.

Ticket supplies are available through headquarters of each of the Baltimore groups, B'nai Temple on Mount Vernon Place; the K. of C. on Cathedral St. at Madison, and B'nai B'rith, in the Jewish Community Center on Monument near Howard St.

Maryland To Adopt Letters And Figures In New Car Licensing System

Due to the steel shortage, the state of Maryland will use one tag for the registration year of 1953-54. Various authorities suggested the use of clips for another year but due to public resistance Thomas B. R. Mudd, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles held out for and finally secured enough steel for one tag instead of two clips to validate the present tags.

Motor vehicle registrations in Maryland are approaching the million mark and provisions must be made to meet this increase with a serial type of registration, consisting of letters and figures. Therefore, anticipating this expansion, Maryland next year will inaugurate this new system which has proved very popular in other states.

Under the new system of registration there will be no more reservations of special numbers.
