

Most Anything At A Glance

—BY ABIGAIL—

As though the streets of the town weren't had enough as they were, along comes the State Roads Commission last week and adds insult to injury, by heaping tons of rough stone atop the present highway. Everybody knows we have about the worst streets in the state for a small town, but this disgraceful abortion they call a road really places us in the category of having the worst streets, with no challengers to the dubious title.

Citizens are angry (and rightfully so), complaining that the Roads Commission should do this to us. Following the laying of the stone last week, (in 100-degree temperature), cars were permitted to immediately travel over the freshly compacted tar and stone surface—the rest is history.

Several windshields and headlights on cars were broken and an untold number badly pitted, not to mention the harm done to paint jobs, as the new "road" quickly became a nightmare. Information from individuals who have contacted the Commission about the situation have met with a cold rebuff and the short answer that "we are finished and that's all there is to it." We had hopes that when a new section manager was appointed for this district we could expect a half decent "shake" but the one we got wasn't what we bargained for.

While other towns have a sleek topcoating of fine stone and tar (blacktop), the Roads Commission officials elected to use about a No. 3 grade of rough stone, which is really suitable for roadbeds and construction of new roads as a base material, as the final product on our main thoroughfare through the town. Local roadmen claim that at least a No. 7 fine stone should have been used. About four miles have been "resurfaced" at a cost and waste of thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money and nobody here is at all contented with the situation, but the State Roads Commission. It is understood that town officials were not consulted beforehand and that several of the members of the Town Council tried to have the action stopped in the process, but their efforts were in vain. "We have our orders," those in charge of the project responded to inquiries of angry citizens as to "when the road would be completed."

When it was stated that it was "completed," several citizens "blew" their tops, and rightfully so. Property owners have been busy for a week sweeping wheelbarrow loads of stone off their sidewalks and combing their lawns and motorists still are reporting damage to their vehicles from the nying stones. All we can say to the officials who gave those "orders," is that they had better return to school and take a modern course in roadbuilding and resurfacing technique. Engineers, huh? What a laugh! Our local street man could do a better job with a spade and a wheelbarrow. Already the center of the highway is bare and a drop from the roadbed to the gutter curbing is enlarging daily and up to this time a drop of six inches has appeared in several stretches. . . . And while the Commission is at it, perhaps they could use a few new "inspectors"?

The people of Emmitsburg shouldn't take this thing lying down. After all, just because we gave the Commission jurisdiction over the roads, doesn't say we relinquished all our say-so as to what goes on or through our town! I feel certain that if we can't get satisfaction from the Roads Commission, perhaps we can get it from higherups, for instance, the Governor? If the officials of the Commission weren't so high and mighty, perhaps they would consult the town officials as to what they thought would be best for all concerned, but no, they choose secrecy and out of a clear sky, move their trucks, men and equipment into the area and begin work without consulting anyone.

Now do you think this is

New Oxford Downed 8-7 By Locals

"Pinhead" Mick pitched and batted his team to victory over New Oxford in a surprise win Sunday by winning a contest played on the Pennsylvania diamond. Emmitsburg took the contest, halted by rain in the seventh inning, 8 to 7.

Mick held his opponents to nine scattered blows and batted in the winning run when he slammed the second of his two two-baggers with men on the pats. Besides the long blows, Mick also collected a single for a total of three hits to lead his mates in the offensive department of the club.

While still mired in the second division of the Pen-Mar League, the locals have been steadily improving their brand of ball and will meet Fairfield today at the latter's diamond. The game had originally been scheduled for Emmitsburg, but later changed to the Pennsylvania town.

Fairfield scored its second upset of the week when it turned back pace-setting Thurmont, 6-5. The Adams Countians had beaten the second-place Union Bridge, 11-4 in a ram game last Thursday evening.

Fairfield is now tied with Littlestown for fourth place in the league, only half a game back of third-place Cashtown. Littlestown upset Cashtown, 3-2 in Littlestown.

Union Bridge moved to within a game of first place by shelling Westminister, 18-0. The winners scored a dozen runs in the first three innings. Union Bridge connected for 11 hits, including two homers by Gernand and one each by Bloom and Shaffer. M. Blizzard and G. Blizzard, who pitched for Westminister, walked 11 men. Gilbert was the winning pitcher, turning in a five-hit job. Emmitsburg AB. R. H. P. E. ## To Entertain Plane Spotters

Members and guests will attend a meeting of the Air Observation Corps Thursday evening, July 10, at 8:30 o'clock when the Corps will show a movie, "Air Defense." The affair will be held in the Fire Hall, said Lumen F. Norris, supervisor of the Corps in the Emmitsburg District.

It also was announced that a 24-hour vigilance will be maintained starting Monday, July 14,

Miss McCoy Becomes Bride Of Richard Florence

Miss Carol McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. McCoy of Washington, D. C., became the bride of Richard B. Florence, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Florence, Emmitsburg, on Saturday, June 28, at two p. m. in St. Francis De Sales Church, Washington. Rev. Walter Read performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of white flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white organdie floor-length gown. Her veil of illusion was fingertip length and was held in place with a coronet of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Richard Berger, Roslyn, Pa., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and was attired in a ballerina length lavender organdie gown with matching net picture hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses.

The bridegroom chose as his best man J. Walter Jennings Jr., Baltimore. The ushers were Loren Hiddleston, College Park, and Barry Obercash of Harrisburg, Pa.

The traditional wedding marchers were played along with "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

The bride's mother wore a rose beige lace street dress with a navy blue accessories and the bridegroom's mother chose a navy blue chiffon street dress with matching accessories.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride.

After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the couple will make their home in Emmitsburg.

Mrs. Florence attended the University of Maryland where she was a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority. Mr. Florence graduated from Emmitsburg High School and the University of Maryland. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Tru Social Fraternity and Kate and Key Honorary Society. He served two years with the U. S. paratroops during World War II. He is now employed as Maryland district manager of National Grange Insurance Co.

SANDERS—STONESIFER

Miss Robbie H. Stonesifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stonesifer of E. Main St., and Joseph G. Sanders, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Sanders, Emmitsburg, were married Friday evening, June 27, at 8 o'clock in St. Joseph's Rectory, Emmitsburg, by the assistant pastor, Rev. Michael J. O'Brien. The bride wore a white nylon marquisette street-length dress over white taffeta with a full skirt and fitted bodice with short sleeves, and an oval neckline with appliques of lace circles around the neck and down the front to the hem of the dress. She wore white accessories and an old-fashioned corsage of multi-colored sweet peas and roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Joseph Shuttlesworth of Baltimore, who wore a white nylon marquisette street-length dress over a pink taffeta slip with white and pink accessories and an orchid corsage.

The best man was Leo G. Sanders, brother of the bridegroom. Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a trip to Atlantic City, N. J. They are now residing at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a graduate of the Emmitsburg High School, class of '47 and has been employed by the Hanover Shoe Co. at Emmitsburg. The bridegroom is employed by the Cannon Shoe Co., Thurmont.

Miss Jean Topper and Miss Elizabeth McCullough, Washington, visited over the week-end with their parents.

Grange Active In Free Garbage Removal Demand

The regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Grange was held on Wednesday evening in the Emmitsburg High School, 25 members present, with Master Edgar G. Emrich, presiding.

Applications for membership received were from Mr. and Mrs. Roger Zurgable and Richard Florence. Mrs. Paul Beale was reinstated.

Reports were given by the float committee, John Gatrell, chairman, and the committee in charge of garbage disposal, Norman J. Shriver, chairman.

The Youth Camp will be held this year at Camp Rocks, Md., on July 26-27. Those attending from the local Grange will be Kathryn and John Wivell, Crystal Mohr, Betty Smith, and Mary Rohrbach.

Following the business session a panel discussion was held with John Kincaid, soil conservationist, of Thurmont, representing the Soil Conservation Program and the members of the Grange putting up the problems for discussion.

The regular meeting of the Juvenile Grange was held with 30 members present. Master John Krom presiding. Plans were laid for organizing a softball team and practice was held. This team will represent the Emmitsburg Grange at the Fomona picnic. The Juvenile Grange joined the adult Grange following the meetings.

The next regular meeting of both chapters of the local Grange will be held July 16 at the home of Mrs. Ethel Baumgardner at which time the sewing and cooking contest will be held.

Carmen Topper Heads Auxiliary

The July meeting of the Francis X. Elder Unit 121, American Legion Auxiliary, was held Tuesday evening in the post home, 36 members being present with Mrs. Martha Rosenstein, president, presiding.

It was voted to make a donation to the Memorial Hall Fund; the Public Library and the Vigilant Hose Co.

Newly-elected officers of the unit who will be installed at the August meeting are:

President, Carman Topper; 1st. vice president, Anne Topper; 2nd. vice president, Charlotte Sanders; secretary, Mary Miller; treasurer, Ruth Gillelan; chaplain, Madeleine Harner; historian, Ann Shorb; sergeant at arms, Ada Myers; corresponding secretary, Frances Stinson and the executive committee, Helen McNair.

The refreshment committee for August comprises Charlotte Bollinger, chairman, Loretta Hardman, Melva Hardman, Helen McNair, Frances Stinson.

The bingo committee for July 12 is composed of Mary Miller, Mary Theresa Miller, Ethel Topper and Margaret Brown. Mrs. Emory Wagaman won the door prize.

Two Arrested For Burglary

Chief of Police Robert L. Koontz Monday night jailed a 15-year-old Emmitsburg youth at Frederick juvenile detention quarters and James Roberts, 18, on a charge of breaking and entering the Emmitsburg Recreation Center on June 2.

Chief Koontz finally traced the theft of $6 in quarters to the two, who he had apprehended last month and put on probation for stealing working clothes off a neighbor's clothesline.

According to the arresting officer, the juvenile unlatched a window at the bowling alley before closing time June 22, returned and opened the ingress to crawl through and take the $6 in quarters, leaving a much larger amount of bills and change in the rifled cash register. Roberts is being held under $1,000 at the county jail in Frederick, awaiting a trial by jury.

BITTEN BY COPPERHEAD

Harold M. Hoke was treated at the Warner Hospital for a copperhead snake bite received last Friday. Mr. Hoke and three other sportsmen were on the near-by game reserve in the Rainbow Lake vicinity when the snake bit Harold.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosensteel were Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Bal-dachino.

Rodgers Again Heads Local Legion Post

T. Eugene Rodgers was elected Tuesday night for a second term as commander of the Francis X. Elder Post, American Legion.

Other officers elected for the coming year at the regular meeting of the Post were Robert E. Daugherty, first vice commander; Richard Yoemans, second vice commander; Allen Bouey, finance officer; Thomas Harbaugh, chaplain; Louis F. Rosensteel and Andrew T. Shorb, sergeants-at-arm, and trustee, to serve for a one year-term, J. Ward Kerrigan.

The Post will hold its annual crab feast on Friday evening, July 25. A committee of six was appointed to handle the affair. Members, auxiliary members and guests will be invited to attend the event, usually held at Kump's Dam.

Philip B. Sharpe, head of the committee for repaving of the sidewalk and construction of a wall fronting the Legion Home, reported the work complete and it conforms with the proper distance from the street. The new sidewalk eliminates the one curb on both the street and alley side.

Through co-operation of the Potomac-Edison Co. and the C. & P. Telephone Co., the pole on N. Seton Ave. fronting the honor roll was removed. Also relocated at another spot was the "no parking sign" near the honor roll.

Cmdr. Rodgers complimented the Legion drill team on its fine showing in turning out for drill practice. More than 20 members attend each rehearsal. The drill team accepted an invitation to appear in the July 4th parade in Gettysburg today. The parade starts at 3 p. m.

Three new members were accepted into the Post, swelling the membership to 205.

J. Albert Saffer, a member of the executive board of the State Dept. of American Legion, was a guest at Tuesday's meeting.

Promising Bass Season Opens

What everyone is predicting will be the best bass season in years got under way Tuesday for the start of the annual quest for small and large mouth species of the bass family.

All reports indicate that there are more bass of legal size in not only the Potomac and Monocacy Rivers, but in smaller tributaries as well. Most fishermen have been catching bass for the past month and others have reported seeing large bass in small streams like Middle Creek.

There should be no shortage of bait, all reports say. Streams seem to be plentifully supplied with minnows in recent years. Not so long ago they were getting so scarce the State Inland Game and Fish Commission had to put a limit on removing the small fish from streams for use as bait. The regulation seems to have corrected a growing serious condition, all reports indicate.

Regional Game Warden Benjamin F. Phebus Sr., is also inclined to think a lot of bass will be caught this year. Observers all report seeing legal bass in small streams; breaking water as they haven't for years, and being caught before the season opened.

The rules on taking bass remain the same: Don't take 'em under 10 inches and don't take more than 10 bass a day. Anglers are limited to two hooks to a line and not more than two lines to a fisherman. Plugs may have more than two hooks in a gang, the unit being considered single.

LIONS CLUB BUYS FOUR PAIRS OF GLASSES

Dr. D. L. Beegle, chairman of the Emmitsburg Lions Club sight conservation committee, announced this week that his organization has just purchased four pairs of eyeglasses for needy children of this district. Money for this project is raised annually by promoting a horse show, which this year will be held on September 21.

Mrs. Hester Burton is spending some time with Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Burton, Weston, W. Va., where she will care for Mrs. Burton, who is ill.

Lands Season's Largest Trout

"Gene" Hardman, local fly fisherman creeled the largest trout this season at Fishermen's Paradise, Thurmont, and won first prize in the trout fishing contest sponsored by Hoke's Hardware Store. The speckled beauty was 25 inches long and weighed six pounds. The fish struck on a white streamer.

Other contest winners announced this week by Mr. Hoke were Rev. Philip Bower, who netted a 23-inch rainbow trout weighing 6 1/2 pounds, and Raymond Baker, with his take of a 17 1/2-inch rainbow, which tipped the scales at 1 1/2 pounds. Both fish were taken with white streamers.

The sixth annual "Fish-That-Didn't-Get-Away" Contest for small mouth bass got under way Tuesday as the bass season opened in the state. One grand prize will be offered to the largest one caught by Hoke's Hardware. The contest is open to all local fishermen. Mr. Hoke said he will later announce the prize and the contest runs from July 1 to Sept. 1.

As a result of winning the trout fishing contest, Mr. Hardman will receive a fly rod, and Rev. Bower, a landing net, for finishing second, and Mr. Baker, a fly line.

Surprise Party

On Tuesday evening a surprise linen shower was given by Miss Ann Marie Sterbinsky at her home on S. Seton Ave. for Miss Mary V. Smith of Taneytown, whose wedding will take place July 12.

The affair was held out doors and the decorating theme was pink and green with little green umbrellas decorating the tables and Japanese lanterns were strung about the porch. The theme was carried out even in the refreshments which were served buffet style during the evening.

Guests were present from Taneytown, Gettysburg, Littlestown, Thurmont, Westminister, and Emmitsburg. Included among the guests were Mrs. Harold Willard of Thurmont, Miss Virginia Troxell of Gettysburg, Miss Caroline Shriver, Mrs. George Harmon, and Mrs. John Smith from Taneytown, Miss Cornelia Krom, Miss Frances Miller and Miss Jane Ann Hughes of Westminister. Also present were Mrs. William Sterbinsky and Miss Blanche Dukehart.

Miss Smith received many lovely linen articles.

Crackdown Planned For Holiday Speeders

"Motorists convicted for speeding during the Fourth of July holidays, will have their driving license suspended for a period not less than 15 days," said Thomas B. R. Mudd, commission of motor vehicles.

"It is my opinion as well as the opinion of others interested in reducing accidents on the highways, that speeding motorists are responsible for the major portion of injuries and fatalities happening daily along the roads."

Commissioner Mudd further stated: "These grim three-day holiday sieges of highway slaughter that sicken the most hardened wreck investigators is the reason for the adoption of the not less than 15-day license suspension for motorists convicted of speeding during the Fourth of July holidays."

CHILD INJURED IN FALL

Kenneth Baker, 7, Emmitsburg Rt. 2, broke his left wrist last Sunday in a fall from a fence. He was treated at the Warner Hospital.

Hall Assn. Studies Plan For Swimming Pool

All incumbent officers of the Memorial Hall Assn. were returned to office at the annual election of that association held Tuesday night in the Fire Hall. Elected were Edgar G. Emrich, president, George Martin, first vice president; Col. T. J. Frailey, second vice president; Carroll E. Frock, Jr., secretary and Thornton W. Rodgers, treasurer.

D. D. Martin, local feed and coal dealer, offered free a young heifer which will be auctioned off sometime this summer and the proceeds will go to the building fund.

President Emrich stressed the importance of those individuals who have made monetary and material pledges to turn them in immediately and he personally, will appear before all local clubs to solicit these pledges in the near future. Everyone belonging to organizations that not yet have made any donations to the cause, bring the matter up at the next meeting of their respective group. Several ways and means of raising additional revenue for the fund were discussed and it was decided to operate a series of bingo games this fall and winter.

Bernard H. Boyle, general chairman of the annual carnival, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and other supporting local organizations, appeared before the group and gave a report on the progress to date. The affair is being sponsored for the benefit of the building fund. Mr. Boyle asked for the cooperation of all local organizations, as well as individuals, in helping with the carnival.

It was proposed to hold the regular meetings at quarterly periods instead of monthly, in the future, and the matter will be voted on at the next regular session.

It was agreed to extend the local VFW an invitation to place a booth at the carnival in an effort to help the local ambulance maintenance fund. That organization recently held a block party for that purpose, but rain greatly hampered the financial result. Treasurer Rodgers reported a balance in the building fund of $2,200.89 and considerable discussion took place as to whether or not to place the sum in an interest-bearing account.

Talent To Help Fund
Two local youths, very talented in the musical and entertainment field, will be extended an invitation to help along the fund by appearing on a talent TV show in the future. Arrangements are being made to enter Jasper Wantz and Richard Frock on the "Reward For Talent" program for the benefit of the hall.

May Add Swimming Pool
Addition of a swimming pool to the Memorial Hall project was discussed and a committee of Mrs. Helen Daugherty, Bernard H. Boyle and Col. T. J. Frailey was appointed to explore the possibilities and report back at the next meeting.

President Emrich listed the following cash donations to date:

Grange	$100.00
Bingo receipts	204.64
Ladies Aux. VFW	50.00
Old Home Week	1447.07
Boy Scouts	30.00
Explorers' Post	25.00
Minstrel Show	230.00
Grange Scrap Drive	264.90

Money pledges:
American Legion $1000.00
Veterans of Foreign Wars 1000.00
Homemakers' Club 100.00

Material pledges:
Morris Zentz, 500 concrete blocks
Edgar Emrich 500 concrete blocks
Gingell Bros., all gravel needed.

Weekend Weather To Be Hot

A return of that warm and humid weather that plagued the Emmitsburg District last week, will provide the heat fireworks here today, the Weather Bureau has forecast, after an extremely cool night which brought some unofficial readings in the high forties.

The 90-degree weather, if it comes, shouldn't be as protracted or as extreme as the recent run of six days of 94-99-degree temperatures. The forecaster predicted cooler weather by Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and family spent the week-end in Johnstown, Pa.

ONE HEARTENING NOTE

As the truth about the extent of deaths, injuries and property destruction on our streets and highways in 1951 pours in from every part of the country, it becomes increasingly difficult to find a heartening note in the whole shameful mess. Yet, there is one fact that offers real hope, if we have the plain common sense to put it to work.

It is the fact that while motorists have been busier than ever killing and maiming one another, the fatality rate for pedestrians in traffic accidents has decreased sharply. The note of hope is not to be found in the fact that many pedestrians still lost their lives under the wheels of motor cars last year, but in a comparison of pedestrian statistics with 20 years ago. It is all on the good side, and better still is the reason for this change.

In 1950, the last year for which the figures are really complete, 9,400 pedestrians were killed by motor vehicles, which is terrifying enough. But it is nothing like as terrifying as the 15,580 pedestrians who were destroyed by automobiles in 1930. That is a saving of 6,500 lives, despite the fact that 20,000,000 more cars travel the road today than in 1930. The saving is not enough, to be sure, but it is a trend in the right direction and it didn't just happen—it was planned!

About 25 years ago the death rate of children reached such alarming proportions that the grade schools made consistent instruction in how to cross and use the streets and highways safely part of its fixed curriculum. Not just a few schools took up this life-saving form of education; all schools did it. As a result, now only 15 percent of the pedestrians who are killed in traffic accidents are children under 15 years of age, as against 37 percent in 1930. So here we have undeniable proof that safety education, when it is done completely and with determination, really pays.

Furthermore, it stands to reason that when a person learns to walk safely in the habit-forming school years, that lesson remains a good habit throughout life. Some credit must be given, of course, to the traffic lights and other devices that protect pedestrians and motorists alike. But we think most of the credit is due to the fact that a great many modern adults learned the lesson of pedestrian safety along with reading, writing and arithmetic. If this were not true, the lights and other traffic devices would be saving motorists at the same rate as pedestrians, which they most definitely are not.

Thus we come to a logical and hopeful conclusion. If people can be taught to walk safely while they are still going to school, they can also be taught to drive safely at the same time. People who have devoted their lives to studying the traffic accident problem are unanimous in agreeing that safer driver education can produce future generations of good drivers who know how to avoid accidents. Unless we have developed a national suicidal complex, therefore, we should lose no time in making safe driver education a part of the required high school curriculum—not in just a few high schools for comparatively few drivers, but in all high schools for all students in the country.

If common decency and common sense don't demand that this be done, then self-preservation does.

Milk Production Of State Cows Shows Increase

According to figures released recently by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, the average milk production of all dairy cows in Maryland has increased 620 pounds of milk per cow during the five-year period from 1945 to 1950. Only two states in the country show a greater increase in milk production per cow than that attained in Maryland during this period.

"This remarkable increase in milk production per cow has been the result of improved dairy cattle feeding, breeding, and management practices employed by Maryland dairy farmers," comments J. W. Pou, head of the University of Maryland Dairy Dept.

"The wide use of improved pastures seeded to taller-growing legumes and grasses, and grazed, fertilized and clipped in such a manner that lush grazing is available throughout the growing season, has been one of the important factors in this increased production," Dr. Pou says. "More attention to the making of better quality hay and silage has also been a contributing factor."

BEGINS 26TH YEAR Clerk of the Circuit Court El-

"While Maryland dairymen have been improving their feeding and management practices, they also have been increasing the inherited ability of their cows to produce milk by breeding their cows to production-tested sires, and using production records to cull unprofitable cows from their herds," Dr. Pou adds.

His C. Wachter Tuesday began his 26th year in the office in the Frederick Court House. Mr. Wachter was appointed a deputy in the office on July 1, 1927, by the late Clerk of the Court Eli G. Haugh. He was named Clerk of the Court in November, 1936, following the death of Mr. Haugh, was first elected clerk in 1928 and has been re-elected three times since then.

A Ticket Is A Favor

You knew a ticket was coming when the siren sounded behind you and the flashing red light blinked in your mirror—and you knew why.

But did you even stop to think the officer was doing you a favor? Well, he was! Traffic patrol officers know their business. They are the ones who help clean up the gory messes on the highways, but their big job is to prevent accidents from happening.

There's no personal animosity in a ticket—and it may be saving your life and the lives of others in a positive way. Remember, driving is a responsibility as well as a privilege.

When you see a speeder getting a summons, be glad the law is dealing with another traffic violator—making your trip on the road safer. And if you ever drive out-of-turn—exceed the speed limit, go through a red light, cross a traffic line at a "no-passing" point, or violate some other rule of the road—recognize the fact that you are a candidate for a ticket.

And when the officer hands it to you—even if you don't say it out loud—think: "Thank You."

Repairing Courthouse

There was plenty of dirt in the Court House Monday, but it was the kind that comes from personal contact and not from rumor.

Workmen were engaged in ripping up, piece by piece, the old slate flooring which apparently has been down in the corridors since the Court House was built in 1862. Beneath the slate was a compact material that looked like hardened sand and under that was the dirt. Lawyers and others had to pick their way gingerly through the debris.

A new terrazzo flooring will be laid. Meanwhile, virtually all first floor office occupants kept their doors closed to keep out the dust.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clingan, Baltimore, daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Fuss, returned home Saturday evening from a trip to Niagara Falls and Canada.

Fairfield Opens Big Carnival

The annual Fairfield Firemen's Carnival opened to a large crowd last evening. The twenty-seventh annual affair will continue today and tomorrow.

Three bands have been engaged for concerts on the carnival grounds and they will play nightly. Dinners will be served and ice cream, soft drinks, sandwiches, candies and other articles will be on sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Hoke, W. Main St., returned last Thursday evening from a two-day trout fishing trip at Bellefonte, Pa.

Those attending the wedding of Mr. Richard Florence and Miss Carol McCoy in Washington, D. C., last Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Romanus Florence, Miss Loretta Florence and Mrs. Bernard Sprinkle of Emmitsburg, Mrs. Martin Redding of Gettysburg, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Frick of Baltimore.

YOUR UNITED STATES

BY FLOYD CRAMER
PRESIDENT, NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE PRESERVATION OF FREE ENTERPRISE, INC.

In their anxiety to keep the country from going socialist, an alarming number of well-meaning people are undermining free enterprise from within. The tragic thing is that these people aren't aware of what they are doing. They are acting, many of them, from good motives; yet all the while they are weakening the system they are trying to defend.

So today I'd like to take three minutes of your time to point out three kinds of thinking which, to my mind, are doing free enterprise more harm than good.

First, there are the people who are insisting that we take "all out" measures of one kind or another. These are the kind who argue that if you won't do one thing, you will have to do its exact opposite.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. There is always a sensible middle way between extremes. In Germany, Italy and Japan before the outbreak of World War II, there was a swing to the extreme right, known as Fascism. These nations set out to conquer the world. And where are they today? All are third or fourth rate powers.

And the nations which swung all the other way to the left, and embraced Communism, are not a bit better off than their Fascist cousins are. They find themselves cut off from the free world and doomed to regimentation, thought control, and the terrorism of secret police.

All of these nations are striking examples of what happens to people who fly to extremes. There's a wonderful, midie ground which we can find with patience and courage and faith.

Free Enterprise is also undermined by people who place too much emphasis on materialism. Freedom of thought and action, the dignity of mankind, the security of life and property do not depend on materialism.

This fact is one that the British nation forgot or overlooked. For a hundred years its Empire grew and grew on a basis of sheer materialism. Today, that Empire is crumbling.

In their haste to achieve material gains, the Empire builders lost sight of the freedom of the individual man. So today, Britain is losing its material gains, bogging down in its own brand of socialism and feeling the cruel pinch of continuing shortages.

Thirdly, Free Enterprise is not helped in any way by placing too much emphasis on political groupings and regroupings. Let the advocates of political factionalism learn a lesson from the French. That unfortunate nation is now so split by its dozens of political parties, that the difficulty of establishing and maintaining a government is simply staggering. Constant splintering and regrouping have brought the French almost to the point of actual paralysis.

In our natural desire to preserve Free Enterprise, let's never forget that America is the land of the happy medium.

The "all-or-nothing" philosophy of Hitler's Germany and Stalin's Russia, the "money first" philosophy of the British Empire builders, the excessive Factionalism of modern France—none of these is for us.

Savings Bonds Increase Sale 33 Per Cent

Sales of the improved Series E Bonds and the new Series J and K Bonds totaled $4.1 million in the state during May 1952, which compares with total sales of Series E, F, and G Bonds of $3 million during May of 1951. May sales of all Defense Bonds during 1952 (which was the first month of the improved Series E and the new J and K Bonds) increased 35.3 per cent over the sales of Defense Bonds during May 1951. Sales of the improved Series E Bonds accounted for $3 million of the total sales for May 1952, which compares with the sales of the old Series E Bond of $2.7 million for May of last year.

These sales figures, of course, do not include sales of the new current income bond Series H, which is being issued to individuals only and is dated from June 1, 1952. The H Bond, added to the Savings Bond group, is a current income bond designed for individuals desiring current income which will be paid semi-annually by treasury check and return interest yield on a graduated scale equal to that earned on the "Improved E Bond."

The new H Bond provides an investment yield of approximately three per cent per annum if held for nine years and eight months, to maturity.

E Bonds Earn More Money
Now every Series E Bond you buy begins earning interest after only six months. It averages three per cent, compounded semi-annually. It reaches full maturity value earlier (nine years, eight months) and the interest it pays is now bigger at the start.

Every Series E Bond you own can now go on earning interest for 10 more years after it reaches the original maturity date—without your lifting a finger!

During the 10-year extension period, every unmatured bond earns at the new, higher interest rates, trust funds, common trusts, compounded semi-annually. Your original $18.75 can now repay you $33.67. $37.50 pays back $67.34. And so on.

The new J and K Bonds now provide a 2.76 per cent return for 12-year holding and materially higher intermediate redemption values than the F and G Bonds.

The new Series J Bonds may be bought by individuals and also offer an increasingly attractive investment for churches, fraternal organizations, labor unions, state and local governments, corporations, and small businesses which desire a steady, medium-term security not subject to market fluctuations.

The new Series K Bonds with improved return and increased intermediate redemption value offer an ideal investment for estates, trust funds, common trusts, pension trusts, and for organizations, elderly persons and others desiring current income. New limit provision of J and K Bonds also, or in combination, has been increased to $200,000 maximum annual purchase.

During the past 13 months, May 1951 through May 1952, $2.6 billion of Series E Bonds have matured; amount redeemed $662 million; amount matured E's, unredeemed end of May 1952, $19 billion, or 75 per cent outstanding and still held by individuals.

Robert Shorb, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Myers and children and Jack Myers left Sunday for Indianapolis to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Gene Myers. Gene is stationed in Indianapolis with the Army.

Mrs. John A. Long and daughters, Edith, and Mary, have returned home after spending several days of last week visiting friends in Salisbury, N. C., and vicinity. While in North Carolina they attended the wedding of Mr. Robert Simpson and Miss Ruth Lumpkin, of Charlotte.

With the days at hand when hatches of different stream insects will be taking place more frequently, your old guide would like to talk with you about fly fishing for trout.

Here's where attention to details often counts heavily—such as the type and position of your artificial flies (wet, dry, or nymph; on the bottom, part way up, or on the surface); the pattern of fly; size of hooks; length and taper of leader; clarity of water; stream currents; direction and velocity of wind; and similar conditions.

You closely observe the water and stream bed, search for the types of insects present, and note the pools and stillwaters. If the trout are grubbing along the bottom, it's likely that the use of imitation creeper nymphs will bring your best results; but if the fish are feeding part way up then fly nymphs or regular wet flies are in order; and if the trout are breaking the surface it's your cue to cast dry flies of the nature resembling the live ones at hand.

Usually, the smallest sized flies are best when the water is low and clear, or during the daylight hours; the larger and brighter flies (such as the fan-wing patterns) work better in the evening or when the water is slightly discolored. You watch the conditions, and the life stages of the insects found at the stream, then choose your method and fly pattern accordingly.

Valuable tips on this subject, together with specific flies to try in trout waters across the country, are given in Old Hi's illustrated booklet

"Fishing For The Millions." It's suggested that you send to me, in care of this newspaper, for your free copy so as to stand a better chance of meeting with success this season.

You will also want to see the new colored movie, with sound, in which Old Hi appears. In it I show a fellow and his wife how to fly fish for huge brown trout in the West Canada Creek, and how to take bass on the bait casting rod in Otsego Lake.

The movie is called "Fishing With H-I Power Glass Rods," and it has interesting flashbacks from the angling scenes to the factory to reveal how tubular and solid glass rods are made. This is an unusual feature giving you a better appreciation of what goes into forming a swell glass rod.

It can be seen in your locality, without cost, by getting your nearest tackle dealer to arrange for a booking date. Then round up your fishing pals and run off this 22-minute long movie in someone's home, a store, or the local school.

Each season mighty salmon are captured in coastal waters from California to British Columbia, along with striped bass and many other species. The best tackle and lures to use for these fish are discussed in Old Hi's booklet "Pacific Coastal Fishing," and a copy is yours for the asking.

For those who like to tangle with all kinds of sea fighters—from tuna to tarpon—along the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico shorelines, there is Old Hi's other free booklet "Salt Water Sports Fishing."

Some Types Of Insurance Rates Hiked; Other Forms Granted Reduction

State Insurance Commissioner Harvey M. Chesney has approved a revision in automobile physical damage rates for the National Automobile Underwriters Assn. on behalf of its member and subscriber companies to be effective on all new and renewal policies written on or after June 30, 1952, and on all policies effective on and after Sept. 1, 1952, regardless of when written.

Maryland law requires that rates shall not be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory. Pursuant to these provisions the rates have been revised in accordance with the latest experience of the companies for the various classes; such as, comprehensive physical damage, $50 deductible and $100 and over deductibles for each of the Maryland rating territories, Baltimore City and the remainder of the state. While the revised rates result in some increases and some reductions for the various classes and respective territories, the average state-wide change is a slight increase of nine tenths of one per cent (0.9%).

The approved rate changes are as follows:

Private Passenger Cars

Comprehensive coverage: rates increased 20% in Baltimore City and decreased 20% in the remainder of the state.

Collision rates, $50 deductible and broader: Rates unchanged in Baltimore City and increased by 7.9% in the remainder of the state.

Collision rates, $100 deductible and higher forms: rates decreased 11.2% in Baltimore City and decreased 4.0% in the remainder of the state.

Commercial Cars

Comprehensive fire and theft, fire, theft and combined additional coverage rates for local, intermediate and long distance hauling risks, decreased 12%.

Collision: Local hauling, $10 deductible and all broader collision coverages rates decreased 20% with some increases for higher priced vehicles. The combined effect is a reduction of 9.6%.

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

(Sponsored by the Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce)

WASHINGTON — It appears most likely that the State Department "ambassadors" to the capitols of Michigan and California will be withdrawn at the insistence of Congress.

The method of Congress for enforcing the cancellation of these two State Department assignments is simply to cut off the money to pay for them.

The Senate Appropriations Committee in handling the State Department appropriation bill for the next fiscal year put the matter this way in an amendment to the bill:

None of the money shall be used for "any foreign service post or mission, exclusive of consular posts, in any state or country prior to confirmation by the Senate of the appointment of the first chief of mission or other diplomatic representative to that state or country."

That was a wordy, Congressional way of saying that the sentiment of a majority of the Senate, as expressed a few days previously, was dead against this new idea of the State Department assigning representatives to state governors.

The main reason for the objection, as stated by Senators Welker (R-Idaho) and Hickenlooper (R-Ia.), among others, was the suspicion that the State Department might be using this device to propagandize certain of its controversial programs thru the country via state capitols.

The matter was brought before a rather startled Senate, which is jealous of its right to pass on all regular ambassadorial appointments, by Sen. Bridges, (R-N. H.), minority leader. He had read a news account which noted, among other things, that the Foreign Service man assigned to Lansing, Mich., was a former college classmate of Michigan's Governor Williams, a Democrat, and the man assigned to Sacramento, Calif., was a native Californian and a graduate of Stanford University.

The news story said the purpose of the assignments was to keep governors in closer touch with foreign affairs developments and bring Foreign Service officers, who are overseas most of the time, in closer touch with public affairs at the state level.

Disclosure of the subject set off only thinly veiled sarcasm from senators of both parties.

Hickenlooper wondered whether the states "will send ambassadors back to the State Department or to the Federal Government. Will there be an exchange of diplomatic relations between the Federal Government and the state governors?"

"If an ambassador is to be appointed," remarked Sen. Case, (R-S. D.), "it is very thoughtful of the State Department to select a former classmate of the governor of Michigan for the position."

"Yes," replied Bridges. "I do not know whether the State Department will be able to find enough classmates of governors to send one to every governor in the country. . . . In the case of Michigan, undoubtedly, there will be a cozy club of classmates whenever the governor and the ambassador get together, with the taxpayers of the country paying the bill."

Sen. Douglas, (D-Ill.), decided the subject invited quotation of the verse from William S. Gilbert's Bab Ballads, which begins: Ambassadors cropped up like hay . . .

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), who is a friend of California's Gov. Warren and said he knew in advance of the "ambassador" to California's department, said defensively: "Perhaps our Foreign Service officers should remain overseas for so long a time that they would lose all touch with the realities of American life."

"(Laughter)," reports the Congressional Record.

Hickenlooper said the Foreign Service Act of 1946 provides that officers returning from overseas may be assigned to industry or business organizations to see, as he put it, "what makes America go." That, he added, was a good thing but this was something quite different.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) asked Bridges if he thought the Appropriations Committee could determine where the State Department would get the funds "with which to pay the ambassadors to Michigan and California." Bridges, a committee member, said he thought it could.

QUESTION: I plan to build a small brick house and would like the correct formula for mortar. We have mixed some but it seems to dig so fast we can lay only a few bricks at a time.

—F. G. Peoria, Arizona

ANSWER: Best formula is 1 part mortar cement, 2 to 3 parts sharp sand, enough pure water to make a smooth, workable mass. Water should be pure enough to drink, sand should be damp, and bricks soaked with water just before laying.

QUESTION: Am building a 2-car garage with a 2-room efficiency apartment above. Can you tell me what insulation and flooring to put over the garage to prevent seepage of cold drafts and fumes from the garage into the upper rooms?

—E. F. A., Pittsburgh, Penna.

ANSWER: Most communities require a lining of masonry, stucco, or metal between garage and dwelling where the two are joined. We'd suggest stucco on metal lath. Use mineral wool batts or metal foil insulation between joists over the garage, and tar paper or felt between sub-flooring and finish floor in the overhead apartment. This combination will serve all purposes.

QUESTION: Can you tell us how to plaster cracks in our ceiling without considerable cost, and how to tell if the plaster is loose and needs to be removed?

—R. R., Chicago, Illinois

ANSWER: Press upward on any bulging sections of plaster, and if these break loose the ceiling is in bad shape and for safety's sake should be completely renovated. Small cracks can be scraped clean of loose material with a pointed tool, and reshaped to form an inverted V with the point outward. Wet the inside of the crack and fill with spackling compound or plaster-of-paris. Sand smooth when dry, size with glue or shellac before repainting or papering.

How Selfish Can We Be?

A good psychiatrist once told me that the basis of much of the mental illness among mankind was man's habit of "doing things he wants to do instead of things he ought to do." Once he forms the habit of doing the things he wants to do, he becomes mentally frustrated when the time comes that he cannot do some of those things. Such frustration, or the lack of ability to adjust oneself to it, is the root of many kinds and degrees of mental illness.

If for no other reason than for the sake of his mental health, man should be either less selfish or more adjustable, according to our psychiatrist.

friend. The Bible admonishes that "The love of money is the root of all evil." This supports the more fundamental axiom: "Selfishness is the root of all evil." We need to better understand the basic impulse—selfishness—for it is common to all humanity, and while Christianity seeks to temper and discipline it, charlatans and demagogues appeal to it to gain political office and power, and finally, to enslave the people.

Normal Selfishness

It's normal for me, or you, to want to get "the most for our money." Likewise the inclination to accept all proffered gifts is normal. When we see our neighbor with a shiny new automobile, which we can't afford on our income, it's normal to want one like it. If we cannot adjust ourselves to not having one, we either become frustrated or we buy the new automobile and plunge ourselves head over heels in debt.

Most of us adjust ourselves to living within our incomes. But should someone come along and offer us a new automobile, just like our neighbor's, in exchange for our old one plus only a few dollars, our impulse would be to take it. An acquaintance of mine did that one time, and the new automobile turned out to be a "hot" one, stolen in another city. The police soon came and took it. His old one never was found.

"Promising" Candidates

In many states political primary campaigns now are underway. The other day one of the candidates for governor said: "When I'm elected I'm going to give the 'old folks' more money." Such "promising" politicians have frequently dominated the political stage in America. Since one form of selfishness is to want to come by things for the least cost, the politicians who have promised the most things for the least cost, to the most people, quite often have won the elections. When these politicians are elected they usually try to fulfill their promises regardless of cost — if for no other reason than to retain the votes of all the groups to which the promises were made. That's how government grows big and costly and political power becomes entrenched and dangerous.

During the 12 years of our Harding College National Education Program we have recognized the existence of man's normal selfish impulse. The various phases of our program have constantly discussed the nature and value of liberty, man's individual freedom. But in striving to awaken a better appreciation of our American freedom system we've placed the heavy emphasis on how the individual's personal economic well-being can best be served. For people who have experienced freedom all their lives, the term "freedom" has only an abstract meaning. But "plenty to eat and plenty to wear, good housing and a college education for the kids"—these are meaningful things. The "promising" politician touches this sensitive point over and over again.

Our Real Self-Interest

Where, actually, when we stop to think, does the best self-interest of the American voter lie? In reliance on political office holders? Or does it exist in the kind of wide-open opportunity every citizen has in our great productive private enterprise system? Are politicians more reliable as producers of wealth, goods and services, than the men who have built factories and developed such wondrous devices as the automatic washing machine?

Mr. and Mrs. John "Bud" Warthen and daughter, Karen, Havre de Grace, Md., spent the weekend with Mr. Warthen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Warthen.

And if we're to be helped financially by the "promising" politicians, where does the money come from? If it is to come out of somebody else's pocket, extracted forcefully by "equalizing" law, would we be morally justified in taking it? And even forgetting the morals, would this kind of socialistic "equalizing" in the long run work to our best economic self-interest? As the political candidates take the stage this summer, these are questions every American should ask himself, searching deep in his soul and his rational mind for the answers.

Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

NEW BOSTON, N. H., July 2—The death of a friend has brought to my attention this week both the economic loss to the country and the personal loss to relatives from needless automobile accidents.

First, let me admit that these accidental deaths have not increased proportionately with the number of motor vehicles, although the deaths may have increased proportionately with the mileage operated. When I was a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, there were only four automobiles in the U. S. When I was married in 1900, this had increased to only 8000 automobiles, one of which I owned. Today there are about 45 million automobiles and about nine million trucks in operation. Truly this is a miraculous industry.

Unfortunately, most of the roads used today were laid out before automobiles were even dreamed of. The improvements in these roads have not begun to keep pace with the number of automobiles. This is primarily responsible for most accidents. We, however, are now entering a new road building industry of tremendous proportions. Great toll-roads, and super-highways, underground parking, outdoor theaters and allied developments.

Statistics On Conditions

It is estimated that there were about 50,000 persons killed by automobiles last year, and many, many times this number injured. Over one-third of these deaths were due to collisions; and about one-third from non-collision accidents, such as running off the road. About 10,000 needless deaths were the result of hitting careless pedestrians.

These new super-highways and improvements in existing roads should reduce the collision and non-collision accidents, as well as save time, gasoline and maintenance. (The only group to suffer is investors in railroad stocks, which so many people are now rushing to buy due to temporary high defense earnings). Very little is now being done, however, to reduce the deaths of pedestrians. Ninety per cent of these are in cities and towns and could be eliminated. Any reader of this column may be the next pedestrian to be needlessly killed.

Obey Existing Police Rules

Every up-to-date community has traffic lights and traffic officers, but neither of these safety measures supply the necessary brains and self-control to prevent people from disobeying traffic regulations. Pedestrians cross streets in any place without regard for themselves, their families or the unfortunate auto driver who runs them down. In addition to 10,000 pedestrians being killed, 200,000 were injured.

Readers should resolve at once to cross streets only at intersections, and to obey carefully traffic lights where they exist. Children, at home and at school, should be trained to do this. Diagonal crossing of streets should be forbidden. Those who are caught doing so should be fined, and the money used to employ more traffic officers.

A New Source Of Traffic Officers

One economic problem today is finding work that the aged can do. While automobiles are increasing the number of deaths, modern drugs are increasing the length of life. This situation is being met by pensions, social security, relief, and old-age assistance. Unfortunately, politics has seriously entered the latter and the politician are fighting over whether names should be made available to the public. Relief and old-age assistance are greatly increasing each year; in many cities the cost is second only to school costs. A large percentage of the tax dollar now goes to old-age assistance and relief.

Now here is my suggestion. Let us organize the able-bodied men and women who are now on relief as "safety monitors" in uniform. These individuals would work only a few hours a day; but contribute their time without pay. They should be stationed at different locations to prevent people from crossing the streets except at marked places. The very presence of these "safety monitors"

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Wheat farmers will be acting in their own interests if they make the fullest use of the available price supports in marketing this year's big crop. James A. Cottman, acting chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration Committee said this week.

The acting chairman explains that about one-third of the nation's wheat crop goes to market at harvest time, mostly in July and August. This strains shipping facilities, overloads the markets, and tends to force wheat prices below those prevailing during the remainder of the year.

If a grower is in position to store his wheat, either in a commercial warehouse or on the farm, he can get a price support loan or a purchase agreement, thus assuring himself of a price at least 90 per cent of parity.

If the price of wheat is higher than the support price during the time the wheat is under loan, he can sell it on the open market, pay his loan and take his profit.

If the price is below support level at loan maturity time, he can deliver his wheat to CCC in full payment of his loan.

To demonstrate the advantage of marketing wheat at a time other than when it is harvested and overflowing market, Mr. Cottman cites recent wheat prices during August compared with the prices during later months: 1946-crop wheat sold for an average of 66 cents per bushel more in March than when harvested the previous August; 1947-crop wheat sold for 71 cents per bushel more in January than during the previous August; 1948-crop wheat was nine cents more in December than when harvested; 1949-crop wheat was 25 cents higher the following May; 1950-crop wheat was 24 cents higher in February; and 1951-crop wheat was 17 cents higher in December than in August.

From these figures, the acting chairman points out, it is clear that farmers can materially benefit when they store during years of large production at least a part of their wheat for later sale. And while it is stored, the farmer need not be without working capital because a price support loan may be obtained on the wheat in storage.

would tremendously reduce the death and accident toll. By taking the names of those who fail to observe the traffic rules, fines could be collected which would materially reduce the cost of relief assistance. I am very serious about this suggestion and hope that every one of the 400 communities in which this column is published will give some thought to it.

Summer Care Of Poultry Important

In summer, when the flock is taking advantage of the sunlight and green forage of the range, the poultry-raiser should watch his birds just as carefully as when they are in the poultry house. Irregular range conditions can quickly bring about disease troubles in the flock.

There are a number of ways in which diseases are spread during the range period. However, an alert poultryman, acting quickly to correct any management fault, can usually prevent disastrous disease outbreaks.

During this period one of the principal sources of trouble is contaminated water. Open water vessels, puddles, and even lakes and brooks can become contaminated. That's why careful attention should be given to the water supply furnished for the birds. If it is allowed to become insanitary, the poultry flock will be placed in serious danger. An effort should be made to provide an abundance of clear, fresh water during the range season—or during all seasons for that matter.

In keeping the water supply free of contamination, many poultry-raisers use poultry drinking water sanitizers. This practice can be of considerable help in reducing the threat of disease transmission through the water. Another source of poultry diseases is the range site. When chicks are moved from the brooder houses they should be placed on ranges where chickens have not been permitted for at least a year, preferably two years.

Mosquitoes, flies, ticks, and dung-beetles—and other insects—can bring trouble to the flock. As a precaution against disease, poultry-raisers should take swift action against the insect population. Spraying regularly with a good insecticide will help keep the flock comfortable and will help prevent disease.

Diseases also can be transmitted through mechanical means, such as shoes, feed sacks, wild birds, dogs, and by contaminated feeders and waterers being moved from one pen to another.

Still another source of disease is the shipment of growing stock from one location to another. When this is done, it is a good practice to isolate the birds brought in from the outside for a week or 10 days before they are placed with the other chickens.

Polio Shows 10 Pct. Gain In No. Of Cases

During the first five months of 1952, nation-wide polio cases have increased 10 per cent over the comparable period last year, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has revealed.

The figures, based on an analysis of U. S. Public Health Service reports, show a total of 2166 cases in the U. S. from the first of this year, compared with 1951 in the first five months of 1951. This represents an increase of 36 per cent above the average level for the same period during five years, 1947-1951.

To meet the situation, the National Foundation is distributing educational materials on polio precautions through its local chapters. In accordance with the annual distribution, the Maryland office of the Foundation is circulating "Polio Pledges" throughout the state. County chairmen are distributing the pledges through several media, including school children and women's organizations. This pledge gives certain fundamental facts regarding precautions the family can take during the epidemic season and calls attention to where to apply for financial assistance if it becomes necessary.

The purpose of the publication, principles of which are illustrated in "1952 Polio Precautions," is to allay fear and give information. It has been endorsed by leading public health officials and educators throughout the country.

Bay Bridge Dedication Set For July 30

Gov. McKeldin has selected former Senator George L. Radcliffe to head a State-wide committee for dedication of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and has designated Wednesday, July 30, as the probable date for the ceremony.

Mr. Radcliffe, one of Maryland's best-known public figures, is president of the Maryland Historical Society and a former president of the Eastern Shore Society. He served Maryland in the U. S. Senate from 1935 to 1947.

Selection of the committee to assist Mr. Radcliffe will be undertaken at once and the personnel will be announced later. In the meantime, Mr. Radcliffe, immediately upon his appointment began outlining a general plan for the ceremony and celebration to mark the opening to traffic of the $44 million structure that will link for the first time in history the Eastern and Western Shores of the Chesapeake Bay.

In fixing July 30 for the historical making event Gov. McKeldin said he had been assured by the State Roads Commission that the bridge and its approach roadways on either side of the Bay would be ready for use by that time.

Following a conference with Gov. McKeldin, Mr. Radcliffe said that unless unexpected construction delays necessitate a postponement the dedication ceremony will begin at 11 a. m. on the July 30 date, with the bridge scheduled to be opened to toll traffic later that day.

According to the general plan which Mr. Radcliffe has outlined, there will be a double dedication ceremony, the first part to be staged in the vicinity of the toll plaza at the Sandy Point end of the bridge, the second part at the point where the bridge causeway meets the Kent Island shoreline in Queen Anne County.

Knowledge is Power

(1) Picture-story books, one picture to a page, with a caption under each, have long been the favorite reading of Chinese peasants. The communists used this form of reading matter to pave the way for their conquest of China. Edward Hunter describes the propaganda booklets in his new book, "Brain-Washing in Red China." Even Chinese college graduates read the booklets. The communists assigned their very best artists and writers to present stories which conceal subtle propaganda by their great dramatic impact.

(2) "There are almost as many men as women among doll collectors nowadays," reports Francis Parkinson Keyes in the May "Catholic Digest." Students from military academies in Staunton, Va., are among visitors who view the famed Walter doll collection in a Staunton residence. (3) Yes, says Evelyn Petersen in "Pathfinder" magazine. Motion studies made for the benefit of heart patients show that if a housewife takes everything she needs from the refrigerator at once and puts it on a wheeled cart, she can save more than 25 miles of walking in a year.

Pedestrians Safer
Today Than
Two Decades Ago

Are pedestrians safer today than they were 20 years ago?

They're either safer or smarter—or both—according to traffic safety specialists who have studied the pedestrian tolls of 1930 and 1950 and noted the changes in accident patterns that have taken place during the last two decades.

Intensive safety education campaigns, directed continuously at pedestrians, apparently have paid off in a big way, with large numbers of lives saved among those who walk. This is especially true among children under 15 years of age, who comprised more than a third of those killed by automobiles 20 years ago, the Assn. of Casualty and Surety Companies points out. Drivers and passengers, however, are not nearly as safe as they were in 1930, and much greater education of motorists in safe driving practices is urgently needed to reduce their accident toll similarly, safety leaders declare.

Pedestrian fatalities have been reduced to about one-fourth of the annual motor vehicle toll, compared with nearly one-half two decades ago, despite the fact that the nation's population has grown sharply and there are some 20 million more automobiles on the roads. In 1950, for instance, nearly 6500 fewer lives were lost in pedestrian accidents than in 1930, the toll having dropped from 15,850 in 1930 to 9400 in 1950.

Fatal accidents among children under 15 years old have had the biggest drop, from 37 per cent of pedestrian fatalities 20 years ago, to 15 per cent in 1950. In 1930 more than 5900 victims were under 15, compared with 1440 in 1950. Safety specialists declare that this decline strongly reflects the value of pedestrian safety work among grade school children. Greater efforts in this direction, they say, can reduce the toll among children still further. Fatalities among the group over 15, however, increased during the same 20 years from 63 per cent of total pedestrian deaths in 1930 to 85 per cent in 1950.

Acts of pedestrians that cause death or injury have undergone some significant changes, the record shows. The leading cause of pedestrian fatalities still is crossing between intersections. Accidents at intersections rank second. These accidents include crossing at intersections with the traffic signal, crossing against it, crossing where there is no signal, and crossing diagonally. Fatalities at intersections where there is no signal showed the biggest increase percentage-wise, jumping from 8.1 to 13.5 per cent, while a sharp decline occurred in deaths which occurred while crossing with signals, from 8.5 to 2.8. Fatalities while walking on rural highways moved from fourth to third rank in point of frequency, with 1845 deaths, or 11.9 per cent of the pedestrian toll in 1930, compared with 1220, or 13.9 per cent in 1950.

One of the biggest declines, both numerically and percentage-wise, was in fatal accidents among children playing in the street. In 1930, this was the third most frequent type of pedestrian fatality, with 2310 deaths representing 14.9 per cent of the toll. In 1950 it had moved down to fifth place, with the number of deaths while playing in the street dropping more than 75 per cent to 540, or 5.8 per cent of all pedestrian deaths. Injuries among children playing in the street, however, remain third in frequency.

Walking from behind parked cars into the path of an oncoming vehicle ranked fifth in 1930 and fourth in 1950 in pedestrian fatalities, indicating that campaigns against this common unsafe practice are taking hold. But one of the biggest and most encouraging declines in casualties has happened in accidents involving riding on or "hitching on" to vehicles, the highway safety experts declare. Against 402 fatalities of this type in 1930, there were only 60 in 1950. There were only 2100 injuries in this type of accident in 1950, compared with 5610 in 1930, indicating that schools and parents have educated children against the dangerous practices of "stealing a ride" or hitching a sled or play wagon to an automobile.

Juniors Lose

Errors partly accounted for the defeat of the American Legion Juniors last Sunday as they played the Taneytown Club of the Penn-Maryland League. A combined total of eight miscues set the stage for the locals' downfall as Taneytown smothered them, 16 to 6.

Joy, the locals' mound ace, was relieved with a sore arm in the second inning. He was replaced by Mick, who went the distance. The club also was hampered by the lack of its regular first string catcher. Manager Yeomans reported that of the three regular receivers, not one was available for Sunday's contest. He is seriously perturbed over the lack of enthusiasm by the local boys who could play baseball but do not show up for the team.

Paint Posts

Just in case you haven't noticed, a group of local volunteers have painted the 200 and some posts circling the Community Field in a two-tone black and white paint job. Thanks for their free services goes to Brooke Damuth, Guy Baker, Sr., William Sterbinsky, Chick Topper, Charles Hartdagen, Charles R. Fuss, Clloyd W. Seiss, Lester Wastler, Frank Wastler, Ambrose Eckenrode and George F. Rosensteel.

TO GIVE GARDEN PARTY

Mrs. J. Laurence Orndorff, the president of the Emmitsburg Homemakers' Club, will entertain members of that group and their friends at a garden party next Thursday at 6:00 p. m. for the benefit of the Memorial Hall Assn. building fund. In case of rain, the affair will be postponed to the following Thursday.

the intelligent thing to do? A little cooperation would eliminate a lot of this trouble and needless expense.

Every organization in town should send a letter of protest to the Commission (a waste of time), better to the Governor. The Town Council should vociferously express their dissatisfaction with the condition of the road. If we all pull together we can accomplish a lot. Remember the old saying: "United we stand, divided we fall"? Let's put that expression into action folks! And while we are at it, whatever happened to the improvements that were promised this year to Route 15? An army of surveyors is at work (practicing, I presume, as nothing is ever done after the survey), on 15 so we had better find out what it is all about before some more "improvements" such as occurred last week, are rammed down our throats. It's beginning to look as though the old Commission "stall" is in effect again. What say, Route 15 Improvement Association?

AMBROSE—BREWER

Miss Katherine Louise Brewer, daughter of Samuel D. Brewer and the late Mrs. Brewer, Emmitsburg, was married to Ira R. Ambrose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ambrose, Taneytown Rt. 1, Saturday afternoon, June 28, at four o'clock in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg. Rev. Michael O'Brien, assistant pastor, performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a white street length dress with a full marquisette skirt and fitted lace top with Peter Pan collar. Her corsage was red rosebuds topped with a white gardenia.

Mrs. James Winebrenner, Fairfield, Pa., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her dress was pink made identical to that of the bride's. She wore a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds.
