A catastrophe has struck our little hamlet in the form of insidious polio. That one word strikes terror into our hearts as deeply imbedded as if it were driven by a pile-driver. Fear has an iron grip on most of the populace. However, after looking at the situation with a cool, calculating eye and an analytical mind, the condition here is not as serious as first believed. Investigation of rumors that had the toll mounting daily, reveal that to date only four confirmed cases have been registered. An inspection trip here by the County Health Officer, Dr. Burgess, accompanied by Dr. James R. Strain, epidemiologist, of the Maryland Health Dept., has allayed much of the frenzy that prevailed earlier this week when about a dozen cases were believed current. These were traced down to the rumor stage and at this writing there is no sign of the local outbreak spreading. But this does not necessarily mean that there won't be any more new cases.

Taking first things first, we must do all we can to eliminate any possible center of contamination or suspected harboring places of the virus. Even the school child realizes that untreated sewage is a breeder of the disease and that any such exposures should be wiped out of existence. Long have we been aware that nearly half of the town, practically the whole north half, has been allowing raw sewage to flow into Flat Run, north and east of town. Two years ago the Frederick County Health Dept. posted signs to this effect and warned parents of children to keep them away from that body of water which tests proved to be heavily polluted.

Practically all of us have felt the high cost of living the past 10 years and we know what construction of any kind will amount to, but here exists a condition right in our midst which simply must be remedied and the only way to do that is to provide adequate sewerage facilities for all homes in this town—not half. We must take an intelligent approach to our problem for the time now has come for immediate action! Like most of us, we are prone to let what we think are little matters, slide by. Which is exactly what we have been doing regarding sewerage. Like most other towns we had to learn the hard way, but fortunately there have been no fatalities to date.

While it has not been definitely established that this stream provided the harboring of the polio germs, it must be recognized as one of the most likely sources of this germ as well as others. It must be rendered impotent by eliminating all traces of pollution and as soon as possible. We believe officials have been hesitant about spending the huge amount of money necessary for a sewer project. It is believed that it might possibly cost a quarter million dollars, but apparently it must be done. We feel that plans for the necessary bond issue should be drawn up now for presentation to the State Legislature early next year asking for permission to issue bonds for the necessary amount of indebtedness. Undoubtedly it will mean higher taxes for the property owners, but a few dollars spent now might be the means of preventing a horrible scar on the health of our youth of today and tomorrow. I don't want the Town Council to think I am grinding my ax for their scalps. They have done a courageous job for the amount of funds available to them. But I am placing the blame on every single one of us who could not force this potential dagger pointed at our general health.

While on the subject of sanitation and polio, my attention is called to the unpleasant and insanitary conditions of some of our alleys. There being no free garbage disposal system in our community, many of our citizens have been depositing this filth in the alleys, creating a distinct threat to the health of others as well as to themselves. Reports of gallons of garbage exposed for several weeks have trickled in and if there is anything more threatening to the general health than open sewerage, it is careless handling of garbage which is a breeding

Health Dept. Checks Polio Outbreak Here

Polio struck Emmitsburg last week when young Dennis Boyle, 6, was stricken with bulbar poliomyelitis and rushed to a Baltimore hospital. Citizens awaited the development with bated breath hoping there would be no more. However, early this week a mild outbreak occurred and seems confined to the East End of Emmitsburg and Federal Hill.

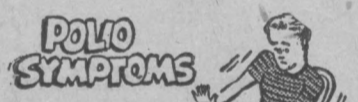

While the outbreak could not exactly be termed an epidemic, local and county health officials are keeping a constant watch for new developments in the area. To date there are three confirmed cases of the dreaded disease.

Rumors spread like wildfire and at one time it was said that at least a dozen were afflicted. Contacts with Dr. W. R. Cadle, local physician, and the Frederick County Health Dept., immediately branded these rumors as pure gossip, so to date the score stands at four juveniles.

Statistics for the county show a total of 12 cases in widely scattered areas. Dr. Burgess, the county health officer, stated that he contemplated no quarantine of schools, theatres, and other centers of human congregation.

At the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening it was decided to have a spraying concern cover the entire town with a solution of DDT mixed with an oil base. However, contact with well-informed sources believed that the method would accomplish little, if any good, and the idea was abandoned unless a widespread epidemic occurs. Specialists in the treatment of polio believe that little can be accomplished by spraying, even though several cities have tried this method of combating the disease.

Dr. Burgess, and a polio expert, Dr. James R. Strain, epidemiologist of the Maryland State Health Dept., Baltimore, visited Emmitsburg yesterday to look into the situation here in an effort to determine, if possible, the source of contamination. Close inspection of Flat Run was made by the Health Dept. and an analysis of the water is being made.

It long has been common knowledge that Flat Run is heavily polluted and county officials have been trying for several years to get the town to take remedial measures with additional sewerage facilities, but for some reason or another the issue has been sidetracked. At many points, raw, untreated sewage flows into the stream. Small boys have been seen wading, playing, and fishing in the stream. It is definitely known the present victims had been in that locality recently. Informed sources state definitely that the stream could be the source of origin of the disease.

Health officials pointed out that while there is a natural fear of the disease, there is really no basis for alarm to date. Actually four cases represent a very small percentage of the pop-

Thurmont Woman Files Answer In Court Suit Involving Will

The action of Miss Jeanette E. Wakefield, 80, now of Hagers-town, in turning over certain sums to her niece, Mrs. Caroline F. P. McGill, Thurmont, and writing a will leaving her property to her niece were her free and voluntary acts and were not in any way influenced, Mrs. McGill says in an answer filed to a bill of complaint in Equity Court, asking dismissal of the proceedings.

Miss Wakefield, who left her niece's home at Thurmont to live with another relative in Hagers-town, recently entered the court action in Frederick for accounting and injunction, claiming that her life savings were reduced by over $4,000 while she was at the home of Mrs. McGill and her husband, William McP. McGill, who were named as defendants.

Mrs. McGill, in the answer, says that her aunt came to her home in February of 1952, from Baltimore because she had been told that she could always come there if she so desired, Mrs. McGill being one of two close relatives. She said Miss Wakefield is now living with another niece, Mrs. Henry Yellott, in Hagers-town.

Miss Wakefield was ill and four days after she arrived at the McGill home, asked Mrs. McGill to obtain an attorney to write her will and other documents necessary to arrange her financial affairs, the answer says. Thomas S. Glass, not the McGills' regular attorney, was asked to come to the house and prepared a will, at the direction of Miss Wakefield, leaving the estate to Mrs. McGill. A few days later a power of attorney was prepared, read to Miss Wakefield several times and she said it was just what she wanted, according to the answer.

No demand was made that the will be delivered to the complainant until just before the suit was filed, the answer says, and the original was turned over to the attorney for the complainant, Robert E. Clapp, Jr. At the time of the execution of the will, and power of attorney, naming Mrs. McGill, the defendants say, Miss Wakefield was actually not extremely ill and was of sound mind and understanding.

Mrs. McGill admits that at the request of the complainant she withdrew certain sums from Baltimore banks, which were transmitted by drafts to Thurmont, payable to Miss Wakefield, which she endorsed to the respondents. She admits that upon one occasion Miss Wakefield inquired as to the form of the account in the Thurmont bank and, being advised that it was in Mrs. McGill's name, indicated she would prefer it was in their joint names, which was immediately done.

Mrs. McGill denies that she treated Miss Wakefield "coldly or cruelly," but said her aunt was always treated carefully and considerably and continued to reside at the McGill home for a month after the alleged incident and when she went to Hagers-town it was with the intention of making a short visit and then returning to Thurmont. When she later returned to the McGill home to get her clothes she said nothing about any funds, Mrs. McGill said, and there was never any request for an accounting. Mrs. McGill admits certain funds were used for the benefit of her home, which was done with the knowledge of the complainant as it was to be her home for the balance of her life.

It is denied that Miss Wakefield was incapable of comprehending fully her acts and the various documents were prepared at her request. Mrs. McGill denies there was any undue influence. She said that on numerous occasions Miss Wakefield said that everything she had was the property of her niece and she wished her to use it as she saw fit.

Mrs. McGill said she always believed that her aunt had made a gift to her of the property in question and it was not until Miss Wakefield inquired about the form of the savings account in the bank that she had any other impression, at which time the aunt was given the passbook. Mrs. McGill says she was merely the agent in arranging for the preparation of the various documents signed by her aunt. She denied any confidential relationship, saying that for many years she hadn't seen Miss Wakefield, who was independent and did not rely on the family, having been a companion to other elderly ladies for some years. She did all she did for her aunt, Mrs. McGill says, without any expectancy of reward, and had no knowledge when Miss Wakefield first came to her home whether or not she had any money. William McP. McGill says he had nothing to do with any financial transactions and always treated Miss Wakefield with kindness and courtesy and took her on automobile rides.

Death Takes Roy Bollinger, Local Merchant

Roy Charles Bollinger, 55, widely-known Emmitsburg butcher, died Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, of the effects of a stroke. He had been stricken Tuesday afternoon at his home on E. Main St. and was removed then to the Gettysburg hospital.

Operator of a meat market in town for a quarter of a century, he had sold the business Monday to Joseph N. Welty. During the years he operated a meat route through Gettysburg and nearby communities in addition to his shop here.

The stroke was preceded by illness, caused by several heart attacks, during the past 18 months.

Pleads For Children's Safety

Editor's Note: We reprint below an anonymous letter published recently in the Knoxville News Sentinel. It is so appropriate at this season of the year, when millions of little girls and boys are starting back to school.

Today my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is Coot, sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the fall of education as she waved goodbye and started off to the hall of learning.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, the girl with yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and the trees in the school yard, and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things, and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm.

You guys wouldn't hurt her would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl!

Route 15 Plans Bared

Surveys and plats are being acquired but the proposed Frederick by-pass will not be constructed until more funds are forthcoming. State Roads Commission Chairman Russell H. McCain, told a meeting of rural and urban leaders Tuesday night at the Francis Scott Key Hotel in Frederick.

At the meeting sponsored by the Rural-Urban Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, at which streets and roads were a major topic of discussion, Mr. McCain said that rights of way are being acquired and a line will be set down for the highway. This is being done in order that construction will be able to go ahead without delay when the necessary money is available, he stated. Without the line set down housing developments and other construction could build on the proposed route and necessitate some change of plans for the SRC.

In a general run-down of State Roads' construction in this county, Mr. McCain announced that Route 71 to New Midway will be completed in seven or eight weeks. He also mentioned removal of the present Pipe Creek bridge between New Midway and Keymar.

On the promised relocation of Route 15, improvement was assured but it is not planned to advertise and put the construction out to contract before next spring. Between Thurmont and Emmitsburg the road will need a complete face-lifting it was stated. Surveys there are completed but a consulting engineer will have to draw plans. At St. Anthony's and Franklinville there will be major relocations. The road is to be constructed so that it can be used as one lane of an ultimate dual lane highway from Frederick to the Pennsylvania state line, near here.

Edgar G. Emrich represented Emmitsburg at the meeting.

Chaplain Receives Bravery Award

Rev. Fr. Joseph F. Sheehan, a captain in the chaplain corps and a former three-sport letterman at Mt. St. Mary's College, was recently awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action in Korea.

Fr. Sheehan used a page from his sports book when he threw a flying block to protect two American soldiers from artillery fragments during a heavy barrage on the western front. The wounded soldiers were awaiting blood plasma outside a medical station on the front lines when the artillery blasts began.

Before entering the service Father Sheehan had served at Star of the Sea Parish in Long Branch New York and at St. James parish and Red Bank Catholic High, New York.

Herbert Allen Glass, QM 1/c, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Glass, and husband of the former Doris Jean Trimmer, Gettysburg, was recently initiated into the Royal Order of the Polar Bears when his ship, the hydrographic survey vessel, Requisite, crossed the Arctic Circle. Glass, a graduate of Emmitsburg High School, entered the Navy on Nov. 7, 1945.

The Requisite is scheduled to return to New York in October.

be held Sunday at the Emmitt Gardens, located about a mile and a half east of town on Route 32. The site proved a hit with the crowd last year, and it is through the generosity of the Emmitsburg Development Co. that the show will again be held there.

General chairman of the show this year is Robert E. Daugherty, who says activities will begin promptly at 11 a. m. Sunday morning and continue throughout the day to about 7 p. m.

Refreshments will be available on the grounds for all those desiring them and a buffet supper for the horse exhibitors will again be held in the Fire Hall immediately following the show.

W. Prestop Howard of Hagerstown, who has acted as ring marshal since the inception of the show, has agreed to handle those duties. Admission prices will be the same as that charged last year, 30c for children and 60c for adults.

150 Horses Expected

The show first began back in 1949 and has steadily increased in size and attendance each year and now represents one of the largest in the state for small towns. Attendance Sunday is expected to break all previous records for the affair.

Over 150 of the best show horses in a four-state radius are expected to be exhibited in the show.

Show manager, Robert E. Daugherty, stated that the field is just about ready for the presentation Sunday. The ring has been constructed, toilets installed, the jumps placed and the inside of the ring scraped by a bulldozer. Bleacher seats will be installed tomorrow afternoon.

Admission Chairman John J. Hollinger stated early this week that general admission and ring-side duets were selling at a rapid clip and expressed the opinion the show will draw well over 1,000 people.

President of the Lions Club J. Ward Kerrigan announced that the show has been expanded considerably this year and a resultant increase in entries is expected.

DELUSION AND THE TAFT-HARTLEY LAW

That political rumpus over the Taft-Hartley Law being kicked up at the AFL convention in New York seems phony in view of the Democratic nominee's attitude on the law.

Before he was nominated, Governor Stevenson said he thought Taft-Hartley ought to be modified, with which Senator Taft himself has long agreed. True, Stevenson did find it expedient to shift after his nomination and to come out, in a Labor Day speech at Detroit, for repeal, rather than modification. But the shift, as even the Governor now indicates, was much more apparent than real. Here, for example, is how he clarified it this week:

"... I expressed, in the speech in Detroit, about a new labor act, that it would be better perhaps to proceed by a repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, rather than modification, where I had said previously that it would seem to me that it could be done by modification. I would say again that it could be done by modification, but the political symbolism of the old act seems to be such that it would be better to proceed the other way."

Stevenson is being perfectly honest on that score of mere "political symbolism." For when you note what he would like in a new labor law, as he sketched out in Detroit, many of his aims do not differ from the features in Taft-Hartley against which some labor leaders howl so. The latter leaders, for example, have been especially riled because T-H, unlike the Wagner Act, makes a union liable for unfair practices. Yet here's what Stevenson said on that in Detroit:

"The Taft-Hartley Act, like the Wagner Act, prohibits certain types of unfair labor practices by employers. . . . The Taft-Hartley Act added a list of unfair union practices. The unions have protested vigorously against this addition.

"Yet I think it is only common sense to acknowledge that we must forbid such practices as jurisdictional strikes, and strikes or boycotts attempting to force an employer to deal with one union when another has been certified as the representative of his employees."

Now the point in all the hair-splitting over repeal vs. modification is that, aside from the emergency injunction (though here Stevenson is vague), there is little or no fundamental difference between Stevenson and Eisenhower on T-H. AFL President Green may fume against that "obnoxious, dirty Taft-Hartley law" and he may spend more of his members' money "to bring about the repeal of this un-American act at the earliest possible date." But he's either deluding himself or trying to delude others if he imagines that in Governor Stevenson he has a candidate who will undo all or even most of the things about T-H that irritate Mr. Green and his fellow labor leaders. About the best these gentlemen can hope for, since very few responsible Americans ever did or do take seriously that nonsense about T-H being a "slave-labor" law, is a change in the law's "political symbolism."

Considering the labor views of Stevenson and Eisenhower to date, considering that a substantial majority of House Democrats voted to override the Truman veto of T-H, it seems clear that for all the bluster of Mr. Green & Co., the big labor issue in this campaign simply boils down to whether a modified T-H is to be tagged with those same two names or with two different ones.

the college symphony and became assistant conductor. His graduate work in further study of voice, composition and arranging was done at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y. While in the army four years, he played in both stage and movie versions of Irving Berlin's "This Is The Army." More Persons Insured Under New Social Security Law

Any person who has been in work covered by social security continuously since Jan. 1, 1951, and is now 65 years old or over, is now insured and eligible for benefit payments, if he retires, Mr. King, manager of the Hagerstown office said this week.

The 1950 changes in the social security law make it possible for many persons in the newly-covered groups to qualify for retirement benefits for the first time, Mr. King said. These groups include the self-employed, regular domestic workers, regular farm workers, and others.

To get payments based solely on work brought under the law as of Jan., 1951, these wage earners and self-employed persons must be covered by social security for at least six calendar quarters—about a year and a half—after 1950.

Benefit payments to a retired worker will range from $25 to $85 monthly. Monthly benefits to a retired worker and his wife would range from $37.50 to $127.50 monthly.

Mr. King pointed out that in cases where a claim is based on self-employment the $85 benefit rate can be reached if the claim is filed before Jan. 1953.

Mr. King suggested that persons anticipating retirement talk their situation over with the Hagerstown social security office. Their retirement date might be very important in deciding the amount of their future benefits. He also stated that informational pamphlets describing the new

Home Corner HOW TO HANG EVERYTHING

In the early days of the movies hanging a picture was a hilarious scene which usually ended with half the wall on the floor and the hero on his back. That was the time when all the homemaker had to hang were a few pictures. But today, Americans are hanging everything—bookcases, flower pots, even desks and TV sets.

Designers and decorators, conscious of the new trends, are dreaming up more and more "hanging furniture." Luckily enough for today's homemaker, developments in the technique of hanging have kept up with the new trend.

For safe hanging take a tip from factories and industrial installations which are constantly faced with the problem of hanging heavy equipment. They have found the secret of secure hanging lies in a mighty plastic mid-get, the Scru-tite screw anchor. Shown below is the method of using Scru-tites which are widely used industrially for everything—from large outdoor signs to heavy machinery, and which can be safely used in the home for everything from simple pictures to hanging bureaus.

RULES FOR HANGING
1. Pick your location carefully.
2. Hang at the proper level for the particular job. Pictures at eye level, desks to suit your own needs, flower pot holders to allow for plant growth as well as room beauty, etc.

3. Hang flat against the wall. That eliminates dust-collection.

4. Hang safely. Normal vibrations or an accidental push can unhook a suspended piece or cause plaster to crumble. A sureproof method is to bolt directly to the wall with Scru-tite screw anchors and eliminate all possibility of accidents.

Knowledge is Power

(1) Absolutely, insists Noel Barber in Realities magazine. He points out that the West is using three leaders to fight three wars in Korea, Indo-China, and Malaya. "The Americans believe Korea is 'their war,' the French fight a lone battle in Indo-China; the British are bogged down in Malaya. . . . The West has no over-all plan. The Russians have.

"There must immediately be an over-all military plan for South-east-Asian nations," he urges. To achieve a unified approach to the advance of Communism in the Orient, Barber advocates that the nations of the West select an over-all commander in chief for the Orient.

(2) At least three centuries ago, asserts Carlos Davila in his book, "We, of the Americas" The Mexicans were using watertight rubber shoes 332 years ago. They called the material the "tears of the weeping tree."

When, in 1492, Columbus saw American Indians playing with bouncing balls, he could hardly believe his eyes; nor could Hernando Cortes when Emperor Montezuma entertained him with similar games in 1520.

(3) Yup. There was one once.

At least, that's what George Estes of Troutdale, Oregon, maintains in his book, "The Rawhide Railroad." "This," wrote Estes, "is the story of a remarkable steam railroad actually constructed and successfully operated in the beautiful Walla Walla valley . . . on which rawhide, overlaying wooden beams, was used in place of iron or steel rails."

When the original wooden rails splintered from the metal wheel movement the operator faced the rails with rawhide. Two factors kept this tall tale—and it is a tall tale—alive. One is the imposing reputation of rawhide in all western communities. The other, the author's delicate sense of balance in the use of exaggeration.

Local Soldier Visits Ancient German Monastery

BERLIN, Germany — Pvt. J. Kenneth Joy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert L. Joy, 203 S. Seton Ave., has returned to duty in Berlin after making a seven-day retreat to the old Benedictine monastery in Beuron, Germany. He was one of 25 soldiers who made the trip through arrangements with the Catholic chaplain of the Berlin military post. The men were excused from military duties for the occasion under the Army's policy of encouraging its soldiers to participate in religious services. They made the trip from Berlin to Stuttgart by train and the remainder of the journey by bus. Pvt. Joy entered the Army in October, 1951, and has been in Europe since last June. He is a former employe of the Chronicle Press.

BABSON Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Sept. 18—The time has come for John L. Lewis to demand increased wages, pensions, and fringes for his coal miners. Although he will curtail some of his demands to enable the coal operators to "save face," nevertheless he will get substantial gains. This is because his labor union controls what is now an important source of power, light, and heat. The Coal Outlook

However, Mr. Lewis's power is gradually diminishing. For instance, 10 years ago the annual output of bituminous coal was 514 million tons. While our total national industrial production has risen about a third since 1941, the output of coal has increased only about four per cent. Yet every "victory" by Mr. Lewis means an increase in the price of coal and downward pressure on production.

This does not mean that any investor should sell his coal securities. Coal is very rich in vital chemicals. A hundred years from now our descendants will wonder why we permitted valuable coal to be burned up. Already coal is being used to make textiles, plastics, dyes, building materials, and important pharmaceutical products. The list includes hundreds of products, from clothes which keep us warm to the vitamins which keep us well.

Oil Outlook Experts once thought that the oil supply would be exhausted in about 30 years. But today there is more proven oil available than ever before. New fields are being discovered. One of the most marvelous fields is the new Williston field in the Dakotas and Western Canada.

When I was a boy, small water powers were the source of most of the power then used by the mills of New England. In my home town of Gloucester, the corn was then ground by two tide-water mills. I can even remember a windmill which provided power for one industry. Then almost every American farm had a windmill, which has now been superseded by gasoline engines or electric motors.

Atomic Power Many magazine stories have been written to the effect that atomic power will take the place of coal and oil in connection with public utilities, steamships, and airplanes. I doubt if any readers of this column, though, will live to see this change. Atomic power may postpone World War III for many years. The dangers of using atomic power appear now to make it impossible for any but very large users.

President Conant of Harvard University suggests that before atomic power is used the heat of the sun will be harnessed. Already this heat is being used by householders in southern Florida as a source for hot water. Houses have been built in New England heated by the sun's rays. But no cases exist where the sun is operating factories of any kind. When, however, a method of harnessing the sun's rays to operate irrigation pumps is discovered, the deserts certainly will "blossom like a rose."

Gravity Power I am writing this column while attending the annual conference of the Gravity Research Foundation at New Boston, N. H. Here are gathered scientists, metallurgists, and mere "dreamers" like myself, who are interested in finding a partial insulator, deflector, or absorber of gravity waves. When this is done we will have a differential which in turn will give us free power for our farms and small factories, free heat for our homes, and which will greatly reduce the cost and increase the safety of transportation by highway and air. If you have any doubts as to the force of gravity, just jump off the roof of a 10-story building! Or attempt to walk up the Washington Monument, or drop a window weight on your toe.

(These opinions of Roger W. Babson are published in the Chronicle every Friday.)

Gov. Proclaims National Chiropractic Week

Whereas, it is necessary for a nation to have a foundation of enlightened people who cooperate with the men of science who administer to people in pain and sickness; and

Whereas, it is well established that chiropractic has contributed a large measure toward the health and well being of the people of our great land and especially those of the great State of Maryland; and

Whereas, chiropractic celebrates its 57th anniversary on the 18th of September, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifty-two; and

Whereas, chiropractic is the foremost natural healing art in the world administering to the sick and diseased

Now, therefore, I, Theodore McKeldin, governor of the Free State of Maryland, do hereby proclaim the 18th day of Sept., as Chiropractic Day and I urge all residents of the Free State to give special consideration to the fine record that this profession has built in its span and of its great service to the community at large.

LOOKING AHEAD

This Man Is Whipped

Last week in Little Rock I visited a small business. The owner has a problem that he can't solve. No one person can solve it. The unified action of millions of citizens would be required. My friend's problem is high taxes. His story and his problem is one that should concern every American.

Twenty years ago he made his living working flat on his back on the grease-spattered concrete floor of a little neighborhood garage probing the insides of road-worn automobiles. He was a mechanic's helper. But he was ambitious. Occasionally he would buy a junk-heap car and at nights work it over mechanically. Then he'd advertise it in the paper. Each sale brought a few dollars profit. On such shoestring financing, and with a large capacity for work, he gradually established a little one-man business. By 1940 he was making a comfortable living, had remodeled his home and was looking forward eagerly to expanding his business and employing other persons.

When I visited him last week he grinned good-humorously and said: "I guess I've got 'the small businessman's blues.'" He explained that although his business was better than ever before, and his annual gross profit larger, the problem of taxes had him "whipped." His gross profit each month for the past three years had been between $1000 and $1500. And yet he is not getting ahead sufficiently to give him the sought-after feeling of security.

"Every three months," he said, "I've got to scrape up $900 to $1000 for Federal income taxes. Taking it out of operating capital is not easy. There are only my wife and I at home, but my household expenses are just about double, in dollars, what they were four or five years ago." He pays a healthy state income tax, a number of state and Federal fees for doing business and has to employ an accountant to keep the various records required by the state and Federal governments.

In A Rut
"At the end of each of the last five years," he laments, "I found that my bank account had only a few hundred dollars more in it than when the year began. And inflation more than cancelled out this gain. It's not so much the problem of making money. I could make more. I could expand my business, employ two more men and probably boost my gross profits at least 30 per cent. I want to do this."

"But in any business expansion you've got to invest capital, and there always is an element of chance. I would take the chance if it weren't for the fact that if I did boost my profit 30 per cent I would then be in an income tax bracket in which I'd be working half of my time to earn money to pay taxes; and in the end I would have only a few hundred dollars more each year. Its not worth it. So I'm in a rut. Taxes and the high cost of living have whipped me into submission. I've no incentive for further progress."

Killing Incentive
Here we have an example of the killing of the very incentive that has provided the driving force in the building of America through making more jobs and producing more goods. Big government and big taxes are doing it. As I walked from my friend's place of business,

Roads Commission Lets Big Contracts

The State Roads Commission placed $16.3 million worth of highway work under contract in the first eight months of this year, a survey of Commission records from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 shows.

This total represents construction or rehabilitation of 174 miles of road and is approximately $3 million higher than the award total reached by the same date last year.

A breakdown of the 1952 award figures shows that the jobs given out included 18 primary construction projects covering 13.5 miles and costing $7.1 million and 24 widening-and-resurfacing projects covering 71 miles of highway and costing $6.7 million.

In addition, some 60 miles of roads, divided among 150 projects in various parts of the State, are being improved by Roads Commission crews at a cost of $319,165.

Including the contracts awarded since the first of the year and those on which work was started prior to 1952, the Commission, as of the first of September, had 118 jobs in various stages of completion throughout the State.

I began thinking about government's dominant place in our lives. In the last 30 or 40 years it has become an economic crutch for about 25 million people now directly and indirectly on government pay-rolls, a powerful controlling influence in the whole social, economic, and business pattern of the nation. More and more the population is coming to be dependent on government for more and more things that used to be done by the people for themselves.

Let's suppose that a band of Americans felt that socialism and enslavement were inevitable here and they picked up and moved to an island in the Pacific to start a new nation. What kind of government would they devise on their island? Would it be set up to abolish the hardship of primitive living and provide cradle-to-grave security? Or would it be a small non-burdensome government restricted to keeping the peace and protecting individual freedom? If they chose the latter they would be doing exactly what another group of Americans did—345 years ago. These were the first American settlers, of Jamestown and Plymouth Rock. When they got around to forming a government its principal functions were to keep the peace, protect individual freedom and promote the general welfare. It promoted the general welfare not by taxing away incentive but by enlarging incentive. That's how America grew up. It's the key to human progress.

A trailer is the only kind of home these youngsters at Barnwell, S. C. have ever known. Dad works in the Atomic Energy Commission's H-bomb project on the Savannah River. YOUR UNITED STATES

BY FLOYD CRAMER

PRESIDENT, NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE PRESERVATION OF FREE ENTERPRISE, INC.

Letters from readers are not only welcome, but helpful; and they are especially helpful sometimes when they express disagreement. For example, one reader asks me to say what I mean by socialism, and also to please tell him where on earth the kind of socialism I am talking about can be found. This is a helpful letter, because I had thought I had already made these points quite clear. But, apparently, I hadn't succeeded, and so I welcome the opportunity to try again.

These articles of mine do not discuss socialistic theories; they deal only with the facts of socialism in actual practice.

My correspondent is apparently well informed on the theory of socialism—that is to say, socialism as it is described in books written by people who want us to go along with them. Admittedly, these books paint a very pretty picture. But the picture is picture of a kind of society which some people think might come into existence some where, some day. I am concerned with socialism as actually practiced in those areas of the world where avowed socialists took things over.

In theory, socialism puts ownership and control of the means of production "in the community as a whole." But it is obvious, on the clear basis of recent history, that the men and women who make up a nation must turn over their supposed "ownership and control" to the management of some smaller administrative group or agency. And then what happens?

Adolf Hitler was the leader of the National Socialistic Party. How did the Nazis meet the problem of selecting the agency which was to exercise the public's control? They formed a so-called elite which turned out to be the Nazi party itself.

In Russia, the controlling group is supposedly the proletariat. But all the evidence shows that the actual working class in Russia has very little to say about what goes on. Whoever runs the Communist Party runs all of Russia, too.

Even Mussolini's Italy, where control of the means of production was put in the hands of various "corporations" ostensibly made up of the most able people, real control was exercised by the Fascist party alone.

There is very little difference in fact between the so-called Fascist State and the so-called Socialist state. Fascism and Communism are only the two sides of the same counterfeit coin. They are alike because control of every source of wealth winds up in the hands of a small self-perpetuating group. Such a group holds not only supreme political power but also supreme economic power as well. And in every instance a "police state" has been created.

When I write the word Socialism I don't mean any set of theories which exist only on the printed pages of books, or in the minds of oppressed people. I mean actual socialism, which has cost millions of people their liberties.

David J. Hoffman Displays Quality Used Automobiles

Only a comparatively few years ago, there was no such thing as a used car display. Today, owing to interruption in car manufacturing during the past war and re-current strikes, there are more dealers in used cars than in new.

Each year hundreds and thousands of these cars are put upon the market, and thus we are able to buy a car for a lower price that serves as well as a new one. When in the market for such a car, you will find no better place to make your selections than at the David J. Hoffman Used Car Lot on West Main St. Extension in Waynesboro. This firm maintains a roomy establishment for the benefit of their patrons in making their choice of many different models and makes.

It makes no difference if you are looking for a family car, or a small car for your business, you will find your needs satisfactorily met at Hoffman's. One of the outstanding features of Hoffman's is the thorough checking and reconditioning of all cars sold on a retail basis in order to provide the buyer the assurance of dependable transportation. A Hoffman used car is not misrepresented.

Established over five years ago, this used car lot, under the ownership of Mr. David J. Hoffman, has come to occupy a significant place in its line of endeavor, both on a retail and wholesale basis through its straightforward business dealings. Can you give the price of three late model used cars currently on display at the David J. Hoffman Used Car Lot?

Waynesboro Ice & Cold Storage Co. Leading Area Firm

Though there has been comparatively little written on the subject, the refrigeration industry has made it possible to ameliorate our standard of living by making it possible to bring to the American public the finest storehouse of perishable foods and beverages. The progress of this industry in the last half century has been inseparably woven with progress of the food industry, and this is the main, traceable to the efforts of many firms to bring to dealers, growers, and general public the most improved facilities and services.

In Waynesboro, located on Cleveland Ave., the Waynesboro Ice & Cold Storage Co. has earned a place of distinction in everything pertaining to ice and cold storage facilities. In their services as ice dealers they serve homes, commercial firms, institutions, truckers, etc., with any amount or size desired. With their cold storage facilities, they serve large area growers by providing space to store any type of perishable crops and the general public by maintaining 3760 lockers for rental purposes.

Here, too, the Waynesboro Ice & Storage operates as the exclusive distributors for a complete line of Borden Frozen Food products. In this line they serve retailers and home freezer owners and are currently expanding their scope of operations to include eight counties in Pennsylvania and Maryland surrounding Waynesboro.

The Waynesboro Ice & Storage Co., which was established in 1901, and operating lockers for the public since 1932, has always followed the latest developments in this highly specialized line of endeavor. Mr. Harper Miller, general manager, and the entire personnel are to be commended for the way that they have aided in the building of this business to its present high standards and for their unparalleled services. Do you know how many frozen food lockers are available for public rental at the Waynesboro Ice & Storage Co.?

Farmers' Cooperative Assn. Inc., In 30th Year Of Service

The emphasis that has been placed in the past few years upon decentralization and diversification of industry and agriculture has been the result of careful study on the part of economists and the Dept. of Agriculture. The effect of these investigations has been to show how necessary it is to successful farming to have a well-balanced plan of operation and to make the farm as self-sustaining as possible, as well as increase the annual income of each farm family.

In accomplishing the independence of the farmer, livestock and poultry play a most important role. Properly-bred and housed livestock and poultry are among the best revenue producing units on the farm.

With the assistance of the reputable feed, seed and farm supply organization such as the Farmer's Cooperative Association, Inc., headquartered at 35 E. South St., in Frederick, farmers can be assured of keeping fowls and animals in an excellent productive state. This organization is in a class by itself, in that it not only handles a complete line of feeds, seeds, fertilizers, farm supplies, etc., but renders a complete custom mixing and grinding service, following the specifications set up by the University of Maryland and the County Farm Agent.

The Farmers Cooperative Assn., Inc., also serves this entire area with a complete line of Standard Oil Co. farm products which include fuel oils, farm tires, batteries, tractor lubricants, etc.

This organization was established in 1922 and has, since 1924, been under the general management of Mr. P. D. Koons. He and his entire organization are worthy of much commendation for their contributions to this area's agricultural development. Do you know how many branches are maintained by the Farmers' Cooperative Assn., Inc.?

Daniel L. Yingling A Decided Asset To Area Agriculture

In our present day standards of living the farmer has gained equal standing with all other businesses and professions by keeping abreast of the needs of the nation and by supplying these needs through methods that are becoming more and more modern each year.

This tendency to streamline the farm has come about largely through the efforts of such concerns as Daniel L. Yingling, located at Littlestown R. D. 1.

This firm has proven to be a vital asset to farmers throughout this area by offering a complete sales and service on Ferguson tractors and equipment, Minneapolis-Moline tractors and equipment, New Holland farm implements and many other items identified with modern, present day farming.

Mr. Daniel L. Yingling, the owner and manager of this firm has kept constantly and thoroughly abreast of the latest developments in farm machinery and is ever willing to pass on his knowledge of the latest innovations and improvements. Whether you are interested in the purchase of new equipment or need servicing or repair on the equipment that you now have, he will gladly go over your problems with you and help you solve them with a minimum of cost and a maximum of quality and service.

We commend this firm for the significant position it holds in the agricultural welfare of our area. Do you know what brand of gasoline is dispensed at Daniel Yingling's?

Bollinger's Dairy Contributes To This District's Health

The origin of the wholesale and retail milk business dates back to the time when milk was delivered from door to door in a can and each housewife was measured out her purchase in a cup or pail. The quality of the milk was a thing of question, the percentage of butter fat, the health of the cows, and the cleanliness of the dealer was highly problematical.

But today, specialized methods of production employed by such firms as Bollinger's Dairy, located in Thurmont, assures the housewife and her family of milk and dairy products that are of better quality and consistent purity. The advanced technique of sterilization of equipment, refrigeration and delivery, has eliminated any question of purity and has substituted a confidence in an invigorating, health building,

Helm's Abattoir Supplies Quality Meat Products

The food industry in America has many important phases, ranging from the growing of foodstuffs, their processing and their distribution to the ultimate consumer. Regardless of what phase of the industry it is engaged, each concern has a responsibility to safeguard the public health and welfare.

Helm's Abattoir, located at Waynesboro R. D. 4, is an independent firm where one is assured of receiving only the choicest and freshest meats obtainable, either on a wholesale or retail basis. They have long been known for the high standard of their quality meats. Quality is not only the watchword of this firm, it is their creed. Their plant is kept scrupulously clean and sanitary throughout. All pure food laws are met in a most satisfactory manner, the meats held at just the right temperature in their coolers.

At Helm's Abattoir, you may obtain home-dressed quality meats such as beef, pork, veal or lamb and a wide selection of processed meats, the largest amount coming from livestock bought from local producers. If you are not familiar with the various cuts of meats and their relative values they will gladly explain these to you. On a wholesale basis all meats and meat products are delivered to markets, restaurants, institutions, etc., in the trading area.

Helm's Abattoir is under the ownership of Mr. Ralph E. Helm, who along with his employees are thoroughly conversant with all phases of this business. We believe that this firm is to be commended upon the fine quality products they handle and upon their modern business methods. Do you know how many different types of processed meats are produced by Helm's Abattoir?

Hess Manufacturing Co. Products Widely Distributed

With economic conditions that have prevailed during recent years, no firm has progressed or appreciably expanded with out giving their patrons a real service, or dependable products, and we believe that it is to the interest of every resident of this trading area to note the growth and progress that has been made by the Hess Manufacturing Co., with plant and offices in Quincy, Pa.

At this firm, they are the manufacturers of complete lines of either aluminum or Philippine mahogany storm doors and windows. They employ only expert workmen who are thoroughly familiar with their duties and who carry out instructions according to specifications, men who can be depended upon to turn out flawless, first-class work. In addition to contributing much to the general prestige and welfare of this bi-state region, the Hess Manufacturing Co., through its many and varied trade channels has brought into this section many dollars that would have gone to other communities, to other states and perhaps to other countries. In the distribution of their products, this firm serves the entire Eastern United States.

To estimate the value of a firm such as the Hess Manufacturing Co. would indeed be difficult. To merely state that a certain number of people are given employment through their efforts is hardly a fair gauge of their value. Some idea can be gotten, however, from the fact that an average of seventy local people are gainfully employed by them.

The manner in which the business is directed by Mr. Harold Hess, president, and entire personnel, has, we believe made the Hess Manufacturing Co. a definite and important factor in the development of this section. Do you know how you as an individual are directly and indirectly benefitted through their meeting of payrolls, payment of taxes, contributions, etc.?

Velvet Ice Cream Co. Produces Bricks For Special Occasions

Famous for the quality and flavor of its Velvet Ice Cream, the Velvet Ice Cream Co., with office and plant at 148 Cleveland St. in Waynesboro, has become well-known throughout this entire trading area. There is no better known or more popular make of ice cream, and each year since the establishment of this firm 35 years ago, the demand for these products has increased so the growth of this concern is closely interwoven with the progress of this section itself.

Finer ideals and highest standards of quality are being constantly promoted by the Velvet Ice Cream Co., and their frozen refreshments are improved wherever possible. They maintain a most sanitary plant equipped with the latest and most improved machinery. The cream flavoring and fruits, etc., are placed in containers and go from one process to the other until it is ready to go to the trucks and all the goodness put into these

Farm Equipment Center Stresses Quality And Service In Its Dealings

Farmers in this bi-state area have contributed largely to the agricultural wealth of the nation, and in a proportionate measure, the efforts of such farm supply firms as the Farm Equipment Center, located in Thurmont, deserves part of the credit for keeping the farmers supplied with essential supplies and up-to-date on the latest information and developments.

The Farm Equipment Center was established at Thurmont some 10 years ago and is a headquarters for International-Harvester farm supplies, appliances, Farmall Tractors, McCormick Implements, etc., as well as stocking for their patrons such allied products as New Holland equipment, Bready Garden Tractors, Reo Power Mowers, U. S. Royal farm tires, Sherwin-Williams paints, and many other items de-

Hoover Plumbing & Heating Performs Full Services

A man's home or business building represents a major investment and for this reason the prospective property owner will seek a plumbing and heating firm whose record of service stands for honest effort, and who is not merely an installer, but a heating and plumbing specialist whose installations make for serviceability and permanence.

Throughout this bi-state trading district, the firm of H. E. Hoover, plumbing and heating contractor, with headquarters at 11 Mulberry St. in Waynesboro, has gained a creditable reputation in plumbing and heating circles. He has taken great pride in his successful activities in this field and has left nothing undone which would keep his work from holding a conspicuous place in this section.

As plumbing and heating contractors, the firm of H. E. Hoover maintains complete sales and service on nationally known and advertised plumbing supplies and heating equipment. They perform full services on installations, cleaning, and repairing and are thoroughly conversant with all heating equipment such as coal, oil, gas, or automatic heating systems.

If you are thinking of building, you will do well to consult with Mr. Hoover. Submit your ideas to him and let him incorporate them into plans for you. He will be glad to go over any plans with you, whether you are intending to install now or in the future.

Associated with this line of endeavor since 1930, has enabled Mr. Hoover to review with pride a satisfied list of contented and comfortable property owners that have used his services. Do you know what types of water heaters are currently on hand at the firm of H. E. Hoover?

Victor Kifer Firm Maintains Highest Service Standards

This great enterprise which we call the building industry has many phases, some of which loom up as being highly important because of their magnitude, and some of which are regarded as inconsequential because of their smallness, but in any forward step which the industry undertakes, it must assume the burden and responsibilities of its activities and hence, no phase of its insignificant.

When the need for building work occurs or the repair, alteration, or remodeling of a present structure, it will be well to consult with the contracting firm of Victor Kifer, whose office is located on Water Street, in Thurmont, Md. Let them outline for you some of the fine work they have accomplished to date, and assist you with your plans and give you an estimate of costs.

No detail of the business is considered by them as unimportant and from the beginning of the foundation to the completion of the job, every detail is carried out according to plans and specifications by men skilled in their respective trades and all work is done under the supervision of people who are thoroughly conversant with every phase of this work.

It is a pleasure to point out this firm as a foremost specialist in the building field and to compliment the owner and manager, Mr. Victor Kifer on the truly invaluable service they are offering the people of this trading area. Can you name three outstanding contracts recently completed by the firm of Victor Kifer?

Joins Navy

BAINBRIDGE, Md., Sept. 14—William H. Umbel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Umbel, N. Seton Ave., is now undergoing recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Center here.

The center, which trained more than a quarter-million men for the fleet in World War II, was re-activated last year. Already more than 50,000 sailors have been trained here since its re-activation.

Sgt. and Mrs. John P. Glass spent the past week with his parents. They are stationed at Mitchell Field, D. C. Sgt. Glass expects his service discharge the latter part of this month and will take up residence near Emmitsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Peters and daughter, Susan Ruth, Baltimore, visited with Mrs. Peters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Baker Sr., over the weekend.

Hess Stone & Supply Co. Handles Diversified Lines

This great enterprise which we call the building industry, has many phases, some of which loom up as being highly important because of their magnitude, and some are regarded as inconsequential because of their smallness, but in any forward step which the industry undertakes it must assume the burden and responsibility of its activity and no phase of it is insignificant.

For accurate knowledge on the subject of lumber and materials we must depend upon the members of the building industry; the architect, the contractor and the supply house. In this respect, the Hess Stone & Supply Co., located on Hamilton Ave. in Waynesboro, has always rendered a most complete and satisfactory service. With a wide variety of building materials such as crushed stone, sand, cement, plaster, building blocks, terra-cotta pipe, insulation, doors and sashes, they are in a position to supply nearly everything in the building lines.

There too, they maintain a service whereby they not only assist one with their plans but give the exact cost of materials that are needed and can, in many ways, advise as to the proper type of construction.

Under the active direction of Mr. Floyd Hess, the Hess Stone & Supply Co., which was established in 1928, has steadily progressed to whereby they serve this entire trading district and have supplied materials for many of the finer buildings throughout this section. Do you know what types of building blocks are produced in the plant operated by the Hess Stone & Supply Co.?

Invaluable Services Rendered By Jones Auto Wreckers

An auto wrecking concern such as the Jones Auto Wreckers, located on N. Potomac St. Extension in Waynesboro, is a firm whose activities aid in no small measure to the progress of the entire trading area. At this firm they purchase your old worn-out car or truck or one that has been in a wreck. It is taken to their place of business, torn down, and good parts, such as fenders, engines of running order, axles, transmissions, etc., are salvaged and the remainder placed upon a scrap heap to be sold as junk.

From the segregated piles of good salvaged parts at the Jones Auto Wreckers, you may often find just the part needed to replace old worn parts of your car or truck. By making these parts available to the public this firm saves patrons many dollars and avoid much loss of time that would be entailed if parts had to be ordered from out of the area sources.

It will be distinctly to your interest to see their supplies before purchasing any parts. Under the direct supervision of Mr. Martin E. Jones, owner and manager, this concern has become well-known for the service that they render. All the employees at this firm are familiar with automobiles and trucks and you will find them courteous and accommodating at all times.

The Jones Auto Wreckers has grown steadily since it was established some eight years ago by Mr. Martin. You will find it advantageous to acquaint yourself with the savings realized there, prompt response is given in all matters whether in person or by calling Waynesboro 853. We believe that the Jones Auto Wreckers are due commendations for the enviable position it has come to occupy. Do you know upon what basis cost for used parts computed by the Jones Auto Wreckers?

Highlights of one of the top movies of the season, "Just For You," Paramount's high-stepping, high comedy musical co-starring Bing Crosby, Jane Wyman and Ethel Barrymore, opens at the Majestic Theatre, Gettysburg Thursday for three days, Sept. 18, 19 and 20.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Many farmers lose millions of dollars each year because they don't look ahead, according to James A. Cottman, acting chairman of the State Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

Mr. Cottman was referring to the way most farmers rush their crops to market right after harvest time.

"If a farmer would just look ahead a bit and provide enough storage so that he could level out his marketings over a longer period of time, he wouldn't have to take the lower prices that extra-large marketings bring. Orderly marketing of crops really pays," Mr. Cottman says.

If a farmer needs a little ready cash until he can market his crop, a government price-support loan is available to help. Or if he just wants price protection until the end of the season, he can get a purchase agreement. Under either plan, the farm price

HAY FEVER

"Atchoo!"
"Coming down with a cold?"
"No, it's only my usual hay fever."

The mistake in that very common bit of conversation is the word "only." Sneezing, sniffing, eyes watering, about two and a half million people in the U. S. spend part of every year trying to get through the day's work with the handicap of hay fever. They dread the coming of fall, one of the most beautiful seasons in the American year, because fall means ragweed. And ragweed means exhausting attacks of sneezing, loss of sleep and appetite, and lowered efficiency to many hay fever sufferers.

If you have hay fever, it means that you are sensitive, allergic is the medical word, to the airborne pollen of certain trees, grasses, or weeds. Other common allergies are hives, eczema, asthma, some headaches, stomach and intestinal upsets. People can be allergic to almost anything which can get into the body by eating or drinking, by inhaling, by contact, or by injection.

A tendency to allergy seems to run in certain families. Your hay fever may be related to Aunt Sally's hives, Grandmother's sick headaches, and Uncle Joe's asthma. Perhaps you can't do much about this tendency. But you can do certain things to make your lot easier.

If you have symptoms of hay fever, it is wise to see your doctor at once. Infections of the nose, ears, and throat, and sometimes bronchial asthma may develop late in the season if the symptoms are not treated. Allergic disorders are almost never fatal, but even mild forms are uncomfortable and inconvenient. Severe forms such as bronchial asthma, where there is difficulty in breathing, cause much misery.

The doctor will first try to find out what kind of pollen is causing your attacks of hay fever. Once this is known it may be possible to avoid the pollen to some extent and to build up your resistance to it. Shots of pollen extract, called desensitization treatments, are sometimes used to build up resistance. Mechanical devices to filter pollen from the air of rooms where you spend most of your time may be advised. Your doctor may suggest a trip to a pollen-free area for your vacation. He may prescribe anti-histamine medicines, drops, or sprays to relieve your discomfort.

Because the emotions have a strong effect on allergic disorders, the doctor will advise you to avoid worry, fear, anger, resentment, or excitement. If you let small annoyances "get you down," you invite an attack of hay fever.

SCIENCE and HEALTH

BASED ON EARLY STUDIES IN NEW ZEALAND, MORE RECENT OBSERVATIONS IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE WORLD SHOW THAT DIETS REQUIRING VIGOROUS CHEWING MEAN A LOW RATE OF TOOTH DECAY...

THE RESULTS OF THESE OBSERVATIONS SEEM TO BE BORNE OUT BY THE CONCLUSIONS OF A CONTROLLED EXPERIMENT AT CHILDREN'S VILLAGE IN NEW YORK.

More Chewing — Less Tooth Decay

Teen-agers who give their teeth added "exercise" by chewing on hard, fibrous foods are only half as likely to develop new cavities as those eating diets in which these substances are lacking. These conclusions are drawn from an 18-month study of 266 boys at Children's Village, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. Collaborating in the work were Dr. H. H. Neuman and Dr. N. A. DiSalvo, both of Columbia University and Dr. Wm. Lefkowitz, of the Dental Department of Montefiore Hospital, New York. The experiment was prompted by Dr. Neuman's observations in widely-separated parts of the world that diets requiring vigorous chewing are often associated with a low rate of tooth decay. In the study, 102 boys daily received 6-inch sections of sugar cane, a tough fibrous plant, which they chewed under supervision. The other 164 were divided into two control groups. One drank sugar cane juice in amounts equivalent to that contained in a section of the cane. The second got neither cane nor juice. The results showed that the first group—"the chewers"—had only half the increase in decayed, missing and filled teeth as either of the other two. As a consequence of their tests, the research directors have adopted a working theory that lack of resistance to tooth decay may be the result of structural changes in the teeth which, in turn, result from too little hard mechanical exercise.

Red Cross Acts Swiftly to Bring Father Home

Four days after his six-year-old son was stricken with bulbar type polio, Army Corporal Joseph B. Boyle was home from Europe and at the boy's bedside in Baltimore City Hospital.

Upon definite diagnosis of Dennis Boyle's serious illness on Sept. 8, his family requested the Frederick Chapter of the Red Cross to intercede in obtaining an emergency leave for the father, stationed in Germany.

A telegram was sent from the county chapter to the home service in Washington, D. C., and 22 minutes later a reply was filed saying the Army Adjutant General's Office had approved the furlough.

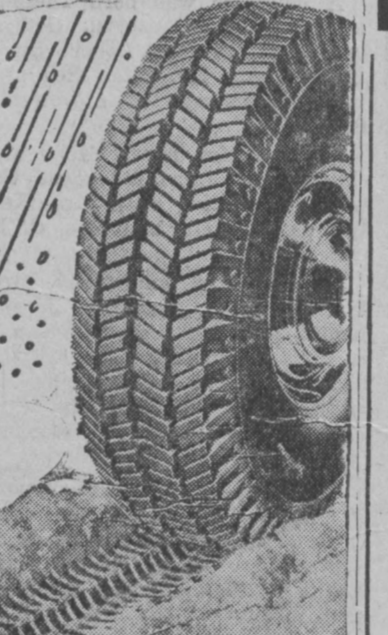

GRAVESIDE SERVICES HELD Graveside services were held yesterday afternoon at St. Anthony's Shrine Cemetery, near Emmitsburg, for John Jeffrey Martins, day-old son of George E. and Ruth Miller Martins, Thurmonth Rt. 2, who died Tuesday in the Warner Hospital. The Rev. Fr. Stanley Scarff officiated. Besides his parents, the infant leaves a sister, Patricia, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Martins, all of Thurmont Rt. 2.

nest for rats, mice, flies, mosquitoes and the like, which are generally known as carriers of the germ. Some citizens have gone to the extent of driving up the alley a good distance away from their own home, and throwing their refuse in the backyard of their neighbors. This is a dastardly trick and should be stopped immediately before our outbreak of polio is enlarged. We have a private enterprise removing garbage for a nominal fee and these offenders certainly can afford this service in an effort to better their own community.

ulation. They state that most everyone has some of the virus on them and act as carriers, but those who actually contract the disease are in a weakened condition. They advise extreme cleanliness, a substantial and wholesome diet and extra rest to combat the disease. It was learned yesterday that if any suspected cause or origin of the present outbreak can be learned, that experts from Johns Hopkins will be brought here for inspection and consultation.

Parents are cautioned to watch for early symptoms of polio and to report them immediately to their physician. Early treatment can go a long way in helping restore the victim to normalcy. Dr. James Allison, who is physician for one of the new cases, said "the number of cases is getting near the epidemic mark if it has not exceeded it." Three of the four children who have the disease live within a block of each other.

The two youngsters reported Tuesday were Charles Wastler, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wastler, and Sterling Myers, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Myers.

The Myers child, who was described as having a "very mild" case by Dr. W. R. Cadle, his physician, is being treated at home. The Wastler child, who became ill Sunday and was diagnosed as having the disease Tuesday, was removed to the Baltimore City Hospital where two other Emmitsburg children are patients at the present time with the disease. The three-year-old was described as having no actual paralysis, but with having weakness in the arms and back.

GRANTED DIVORCE

Helen G. Deatherage this week was granted an absolute divorce from Don A. Deatherage and was granted custody of the child. The defendant was ordered to pay $10 per week for maintenance of the child and court costs.

Knowledge is Power

1. DO WIVES EXPECT TOO MUCH OF THEIR HUSBANDS? 2. ARE PRIZE CONTESTS ON THE UP-AND-UP? 3. WHICH HOBBIES ARE BEST FOR RETIRED PERSONS?

(1) Jane Whitbread and Vivian Cadden don't think so. They have some advice for the confused husband in their book, "The Intelligent Man's Guide to Women." The wife, they suggest, wants you to make conversation with her, tell her what happened at the office and let her in on what you are thinking about. She doesn't expect you to peel potatoes, but she would like you to take over the children when you get home. Then, once in a while she would like to get away from the house and the kids.

(2) They have to be. The way Zenn Kaufman and Lester Cone, Jr., recite the routine of professional prize contest judges, it's highly unlikely that a contest will be a phony. In the first place, their book, "Successful Prize Contests," states, there's a federal law which requires that contest entries actually be opened, read, and evaluated. The winning entry cannot be picked from a hat (the way some were in past years).

Most big contest sponsors employ professional contest judges. They know how foolish the sponsor will look if the prize goes to an extremely poor entry. Then too, a postoffice inspector may walk into the sponsor's office any time and ask embarrassing questions about his judging methods.

(3) "Be sure," advises Dr. George H. Preston, "that your chosen activity suits your physical condition as it is now and as it seems likely to be for the next several years."

In his book "Should I Retire?" he checks off some of the hobbies which retired persons enjoy. "Remember," he cautions, "to choose an activity which you can give up at any time without serious loss."

Drawing, painting, writing, composing music, choir or quartet singing—all can be developed into rewarding retirement activities. "Church work offers the widest range, the most absorbing interest, and the greatest comfort. Some people with little faith can cultivate what they have and find it profitable."
