From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Just a Little "Outdated"

Back in December we sent out our yearly calendar. It listed the last date for renewing drivers' licenses, and things like the dates for registering to vote, when the hunting and fishing seasons open — even suggested you note down the wife's birthday, too.

I figured dates like these were important to keep in mind—and this was a good way to do it. Unfortunately, it now turns out I never really paid close attention to my own calendar!

Not 'til today that is—so here I am not able to drive the car this weekend until I get my driver's license renewed on Monday!

From where I sit, I guess good advice, like charity, should begin at home. I'm always advising all of you to worry less about your neighbors (what they do, or say, and whether or not they should enjoy a temperate glass of beer) and pay more attention to whether you yourself are doing the right thing. Guess I'll "make a note" to follow my own formula!

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

Sponsored by the Local Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — The word "essential" promises to become one of the most controversial in the Congressional vocabulary this year.

Its interpretation on Capitol Hill will have tremendous effect on the success, or failure, of the Eisenhower administration's new federal economy drive, which Congress is asked to support.

Next month the federal departments and agencies must submit revised spending estimates for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, with totals less than those in the proposed budget that Mr. Truman submitted to Congress before he left office in January.

Hiring by the agencies and departments now is restricted and no more vacancies are to be filled until it is determined that specific jobs cannot be eliminated.

All federal construction projects are to be screened in order to eliminate those not "clearly essential."

Those money-saving directives from Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge will raise many questions of essentiality.

Which departmental functions and projects are least essential and can be most easily eliminated in a downward revision of the departmental budget? Which departmental services are least essential, permitting the elimination of jobs in those areas? When is a construction project "clearly essential?"

Agreement on the answers to such questions will have to be reached between the Executive Branch and Congress, which holds the federal purse strings, and within Congress itself. In many instances it will be a highly argumentative process.

It is quite likely that President Eisenhower had that in mind when he recently told Congress that elimination of the annual deficit "demands the concerted action of all those in responsible positions in the government and the earnest cooperation of Congress."

In appreciation of the position of members of Congress in this matter, the President said, too: "Getting control of the budget also requires that state and local governments and interested groups of citizens restrain themselves in their demands upon Congress."

The President's words recognize that in certain cases some members of Congress voluntarily seek new federal projects or services for their districts or states to win political favor, while in other cases some members are under pressure from their constituents to obtain or retain projects or programs of dubious necessity.

Lindsay C. Warren, who heads the general accounting office, has said: "Everybody has a strong feeling that there is a great deal of waste in government, except when it comes to his own pet projects. Then there is always a sincere conviction that the expanding need for the program and the rising level of costs make necessary a larger appropriation. This is one of the most interesting and wide-spread types of self-hypnotism practiced by even some of our best legislators and administrators."

Viewed from Capitol Hill, it is one thing to commend proposed reduction of the federal payroll but quite another to handle the protests that forthwith stream into the Congressman's office from federal workers in his district who are about to be fired.

Similarly, it is one thing for a Congressman to support Executive Branch review of new civilian public works projects, of which there are $1 billion worth in the proposed new budget, but quite another to agree to eliminating a hospital or river and harbor improvement or reclamation project from his district or

Q.—I have recently been retired by my employer. Is my retirement pay taxable income?

A.—The terms "annuity," "pension," and "retirement pay" are often confused with each other. For income tax purposes all of these plans, including the Federal Civil Service Retirement System and most State and Municipal systems, are treated alike.

Q.—I sold my personal residence in 1952 and made a profit. Do I have to include this profit on my tax return?

A.—In 1952 and prior years, if a taxpayer's personal residence was sold at a gain, it was taxable even though he replaced the old residence with another one which he purchased or constructed.

its cost reduced by the amount of gain not recognized upon the sale of the old residence. Assume for example that taxpayer John Doe acquired his old residence in 1935 at a cost of $6000.

Under existing law, a loss from the sale of exchange or your personal residence is non-deductible.

Q.—I have recently been retired by my employer. Is my retirement pay taxable income?

an annuity, pension or retirement check is allowed to recover his own investment, if any, tax free.

If the taxpayer has contributed to his pension plan during the years of his employment, a portion of each annuity payment that the taxpayer receives represents a partial return of the contribution the taxpayer has paid in.

Two problems face taxpayers who receive annuity payments. The first is how to determine the portion of annuity payments which represents the interest that has been earned and what portion of such payment is tax free.

Assume for example that a taxpayer retires on January 1, 1952 and receives during the calendar year payments totaling $1500.

If a joint return is filed and an executor or administrator is later appointed, he may disaffirm the joint return previously filed and may file with one year after the due date a separate return for the decedent.

Maryland Farm Front

Farmers will receive notices of approval of their 1953 Agricultural Conservation Program practices during February, according to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee.

The approvals, which will be mailed by county PMA committees, represent a portion of the practices that farmers requested when contacted by community committees in November, December, and January.

The state PMA chairman said that all the practices for which ACP assistance was requested by farmers would cost $12 million to complete.

The ACP budget for Maryland is $1.2 million. It was necessary, Mr. Martin said, to reduce approval of practices according to the funds available.

Farmers receive approval of guaranteed assistance for certain needed practices. Other needed practices are conditionally approved with assistance to be paid to the extent that funds are available.

ACP payments will be made only for practices carried out after notice of approval is mailed by the county PMA committees, Mr. Martin pointed out.

All soil building work performed under the ACP must meet certain requirements, or payment of the government's share of the cost cannot be approved.

Sen. Butler Reports On Waterfront Activities

With the opening of the 83rd Congress and his appointment to the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, Senator John Marshall Butler of Maryland initiated a study of waterfront activities in connection with the port of Baltimore, the results of which indicate conclusively that Baltimore's great port is not plagued with the serious and ominous conditions which are prevalent at other ports.

It will be recalled that Senator Tobey, Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, has recently announced that the unsavory conditions at the nation's major ports, particularly New York, are to be thoroughly investigated by the committee in the near future. Senator Butler felt strongly that Baltimore's port reputation was unblemished, and in anticipation of the move by the Committee, the Senator's independent survey has confirmed his original conviction.

In revealing the substance of the study of the port of Baltimore, Senator Butler made the following statement:

"Racketeering, extortion, bribery and such practices are almost unheard of here. In recent years there has been some evidence of minor and petty instances, but nothing that would be classed as anything more serious than a misdemeanor.

"When valuable goods are in transit, there is always some pilferage. That holds at Baltimore as it does at every port. However I believe that this pilferage is an isolated and infrequent matter of individual thievery on the part of waterfront employees and is in no way organized or on a large scale. This petty pilfering is a far cry, however, from the organized thievery of large lots of cargo that prevails at New York.

"Among the important reasons for the favorable situation at Baltimore are the following:

"1. The workmen are a fairly high type of laborer. They are home-owners and citizens of this community and are not transient. Many of them are second and third generation waterfront workers. They are well-paid and value their jobs.

"2. The type of cargoes handled at Baltimore are not as tempting as those handled at other ports. While a substantial quantity of general cargo is handled, and this type of commodity is increasing at the port, the large volume of costly goods that goes through New York is not handled in Baltimore.

"3. The ocean terminals at Baltimore, for the most part, are carefully fenced and well-policed. In New York the majority of the piers and terminals open directly onto public streets.

"4. The shape up system of longshoremen hiring is not used at Baltimore. Gangs are hired through hiring halls. Workmen take a pride in their jobs and in their gang and usually work the same piers and the same ships for long periods of time.

"5. The number of longshoremen in Baltimore is adequate to do the job, but there is not a great surplus of waterfront labor. In New York there is a huge surplus of waterfront labor and a great deal of rivalry and petty practices exist in obtaining a day's work or rather working with some regularity.

"These are among the more important reasons, as I see them, for our favorable situation in Baltimore.

"Baltimore is also fortunate in having intelligent and honest leadership on the waterfront. Waterfront labor is covered in locals of the International Longshoremen's Association. These locals are headed by August Idzik, I. L. A. vice president, and Jefferson Davis, I. L. A. vice president. Waterfront labor is about equally divided between white and colored, with Mr. Idzik heading the white locals and Mr. Davis heading the colored locals.

"Wages, conditions of employment, vacations and similar matters are negotiated by the leaders of the I. L. A., an organization comprising the steamship lines serving the port, stevedoring companies and similar firms. Naturally, there are controversies between the two groups, but they are settled by negotiating and usually in an amicable manner."

Miss Rosemary Sanders, Wash., D. C., spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard I. Sanders.

For A Cheerful Kitchen

SPACE PROBLEM in your kitchen? Take a tip from Peg Riley, stylist for Waverly Fabrics. Using inexpensive plywood, she built a breakfast counter beneath the corner windows, covered the top with new Bonded Glosheen print "Fiesta Plaid" and tacked on a ruffle of the same cloth with a roll-binding along the edge so that it may be removed for washing and easily replaced without disturbing the shirting. The bar stools fit nicely under the counter when not in use. For color, the tier draperies were made of washable Glosheen "Sweet Stuff" pattern in blue and yellow on white, complementing the canary painted walls. This type window treatment is excellent for light control, permitting sunlight to enter from top or bottom.

the Montrose School for Girls, Reisterstown, surpassed the 5,000-pound mark last year. They were the state breed leaders when longtime production certificates were awarded recently at the state Jersey and Holstein breed association meetings. The awards were given by the breeder associations in cooperation with the University of Maryland Dairy department.

The Jersey leader, Charming Betsy, produced 129,499 pounds of milk, and 6,105.5 pounds of butterfat in 13 lactations. That amounts to about 7,600 pounds of butter, or better than 58,000 qts. of milk. The McGrady cow was 18 years old last year when she was retired from the herd. A total of 54 Jerseys qualified for longtime production awards, by producing better than 2,000 lbs. in their lifetimes.

The leading longtime producer among 130 Holsteins qualifying for certificates, the 15-year old Montrose cow has poured out 158,642 pounds of milk and 5,576.3 pounds of butterfat in 10 lactations. She is still in production. Her record is equal to more than 71,000 quarts of milk, or nearly 7,000 pounds of butter. This Holstein's yearly average production is 15,864 pounds of milk, and nearly three times the state average of 5,500 pounds a

As today's business demands modern methods so today's cooking demands a MODERN ELECTRIC RANGE

Maybe you are not in business for yourself but you've heard enough about present day problems to realize the importance of modern methods and equipment. Besides making work easier—they save money when every penny counts.

And you know a home is much like a business. It has problems of income and expense, depreciation and maintenance, expansion and replacement—even personnel problems.

That comparison started me thinking. If a commercial business needs modern equipment, a "home business" deserves the same consideration. So I did some checking on stoves.

I found an electric range would save time and work because it is cleaner, fully automatic and more convenient. It would save money because I would always get perfect results, no spoilage and lower operation costs. I would also get a cooler kitchen and better, tastier food. So for "business" reasons I bought a modern electric range.

For the sake of your "home business" I suggest that you consider an electrical range.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BABSON PARK, Feb. 12—I don't believe in A Universal Business Cycle. I do believe in many Business Cycles. Under Newton's Law of Action and Reaction, Business Cycles are inevitable with human nature as it is. When someone tells you he does not believe in the Business Cycle it is because he pinned his faith on one Business Cycle and tried to make the same Cycle apply to the stock market, interest rates, real estate, labor strikes, building, retail, manufacturing, etc.

Chronicle Press
EMMITSBURG, MARYLAND

Not only do all the above have their own Cycles, but different industries may have different Cycles. For instance: wheat has a 9.6-year Cycle; iron and steel a six-year Cycle; automobiles a 13-year Cycle, etc.

The Main Cycles
Although there may be a score of different Cycles, all working at the same time, 90 per cent of the readers of this column are tied up with five main Cycles. These are: (1) the 35-year Cycle, which applies to agriculture, weather, insect pests, etc. Every other 35 years the Cycle is very severe. Hence, some talk also about a 70-year Cycle; and others about a 50-year Cycle.

The Cycle which affects us all is (2) the approximate 9-10-year Cycle. Every other 10 years this Cycle is especially pronounced. Hence, some talk about (3) the 20-year Cycle. This particularly applies to real estate, new building, wholesale prices and general business—although, as above stated, different lines of business vary as to when their special 20-year Cycle starts and ends. Edward R. Dewey, who is perhaps the best living authority on Cycles, shows that a 9-10-year Cycle applies to forestry, fish life, ozone supply, atmospheric electricity and psychological changes in our desires and ambitions.

Stock Market Cycles
The other common Cycles are the 42-month Cycle and the related 6-year Cycle. This last is the Cycle used in the Addenda of my autobiography recently published by Harper & Bros. of New York City. Here I show how $2000 invested in 1901 in the Dow-Jones stocks, approximately according to this Cycle, could (as subsequently adjusted to include latest data) amount to over $1 million today without borrowing a penny. This is known as the Chapin Hoskins Cycle and appears in records of barometric pressure, sun spots, tree rings, certain commodity prices and the sales of some 25 leading U. S. corporations.
Of course, all brokers ridicule this Cycle theory. If too many of their customers bought stocks only once in six years, they would starve to death. Even the Mutual Investment Funds, which last year did a business of $4 billion, cannot afford to go without dividends for three years while waiting for the market to drop. Besides, their sponsors could not support a sales force under such conditions.

Self-Control and Patience
Operating under any Cycle theory requires great self-control and patience. It requires selling when the government, brokers, and magazines are bullish; likewise, it requires buying when everyone is discouraged and sees no hope for stocks at any price. On the other hand, those who do so operate on this Cycle theory perform a great public service in helping to level out business and employment conditions.

Some conservative bankers do not believe in any Cycle theory because it misses once in a while when different cycles connect. Furthermore, although they admit it might have worked under a gold standard, it cannot be depended upon—they

INFLUENZA

Influenza is a serious disease which often leaves its victims exposed to attack by pneumonia and other complications even if it does not cause death itself. The combination of influenza and pneumonia and other diseases is now blamed for many of the 20 million deaths the world-wide influenza epidemic of 1918.

Fortunately, modern medicine has since developed effective claim—with a planned economy and paper money. My answer to them is that they can operate on an actuarial basis the same as insurance companies do. Stock losses can be averaged the same as can fires, accidents, and deaths.

means of combatting pneumonia and some of the other complications. But no medicine is known which can cure influenza.

Influenza is an infectious disease, caused by a virus, which is spread from person to person, most commonly through coughing and sneezing. Influenza usually occurs in epidemic form. It attacks suddenly. Symptoms of influenza include fever, chills, sweats, headache, sore throat, runny nose, bronchitis, aches and pains in the back and limbs. It often starts like a common cold, but is different in that chills accompany fever in influenza.

If you have a cold with a fever, call your doctor immediately. Your doctor can do much to protect you against dangerous complications. Follow his instructions. Be sure to stay in bed until he says that all danger of pneumonia is past.

The fever usually lasts only two or three days, but the patient is often left as exhausted as if he had gone through a long illness. This is the dangerous period, the time to build up your health as surely and carefully as possible. Plenty of rest and sleep and nourishing food are essential.

There is a vaccine now available which gives limited protection against some forms of influenza. Strains of influenza virus however, may vary from one epidemic to another, and, although the search continues there is no single vaccine capable of preventing all types.

The precautions that all of us can take are: first, keep in as good health as possible, and, during the usually short duration of an epidemic, stay out of crowds as much as possible, and away from people who don't cover their coughs and sneezes.

Brass doorknobs and knockers polished with wax will preserve their sparkle in spite of winter weather.

MANY HEAT LAMP USES

PUT YOUR HEAT LAMP TO WORK—Today's modern heat lamp can be used in more ways than one. The infra-red heat lamp you drag out of the closet for that once-in-a-while muscular pain or sackache has dozens of other uses around the house. Home consultants of the Sylvania Electric Company have come up with many interesting ideas on how your heat lamp can be put to work—like de-frosting the refrigerator, drying your hair, de-lousing your dog, quickly heating baby's room. Once considered for therapeutic use alone, the heat lamp is today an essential household item.

From France—With Love

Sacre Coeur, Paris

I am an enthusiastic adherent to an old French custom—the aperitif at a sidewalk cafe. For the price of a cognac, or if you prefer, tea or coffee, any sunny afternoon at a sidewalk cafe anywhere in France you can have a grandstand seat for one of the most fascinating shows in the world, the va-et-vient of the French people. You will become aware, too, of how much a part of French life the sidewalk cafe is. Frenchmen read their newspapers over coffee, write letters, play cards, argue politics, and meet their loved ones at the small marble-topped tables outside the cafe.

The scenes observed from a sidewalk cafe table are not the only spectacles in France that cost next to nothing. You will find that the museums, and the chateaux that are open to the public, are either free of charge, or have a minimum admission price. 50 francs, approximately 15 cents, for instance, for admission to the Louvre, affords a firsthand study of the Mona Lisa by Da Vinci, the Winged Victory of Samothrace, the Pilgrims at Emmaus by Rembrandt, among others of the world's art masterpieces in this museum.

Needless to say the scenery, the gentle climate, and the architecture of palace and town, a feast to the eye everywhere in France, are yours for the asking—and the seeing. A happy combination of all three in the Spring is the Basilica of the Sacre Coeur crowning Montmartre. Not only is this comparatively modern landmark of Paris a lovely church, but from the steps you will behold a spectacular view of the City of Light.

Indeed the best things in France are free, or almost so. You can be sure that a small budget will not prevent you from having a wonderful holiday in France, so make plans for an early visit, perhaps just before or after the Coronation in London this June.

PASS THE CREAM

The most popular pieces of chinaware with Marylanders is probably the coffee cup. According to American Can Co., estimates, Free Staters use it about one and one-third billion times a year.

In reporting on the state's coffee drinking habits, the container-making firm which developed the vacuum-pack coffee can, also pointed out that on a per capita basis the average person now drinks at least 14 more cups of the fragrant beverage than he did when the key-opened vacuum container was first introduced in 1921.

The company's Maryland estimates were based on a national average consumption of 560 cups of coffee per person annually.

Maine was separated from Massachusetts and admitted to the Union as a separate state in 1820.

St. Joseph's High School News

Thursday, Feb. 5, augmented the girls losses to a total of four games as the team lost to Emmitsburg High School, 35-17. In a 46-46 thriller at the end of the game, it was necessary for five minutes extra play before St. Joe's boys could overwhelm their opponents 54-47, making a total of five wins and four losses for the boys. Both boys and girls attribute most of their success to the fact that the cheer leaders loud, animated cheers from the floor, give them new hope and with this hope they were spurred on to victory.

Mr. Louis Rosensteel has been confined to his home for several days with the flu.

Schenley Industry Has Safety Record

Cincinnati, O. — All production divisions of Schenley Industries, Inc., showed better safety records during 1952 than the latest national averages reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This was disclosed today by Harry B. Spanagel, Schenley safety coordinator, who said four of the five company divisions also bettered their own 1951 accident-frequency rates.

Spanagel gave the following comparison between the last-time frequency rates per million man hours worked by Schenley divisions and by the corresponding industries reporting to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

- Distilleries-Schenley, 5.7; BLS, 9.1; Cooperages-Schenley (wood containers), 4.3; BLS, 38.0; Schenley (saw mills), 24.0; BLS, 54.6; Breweries-Schenley (Blatz), 4.8; BLS, 24.4; Wineries-Schenley, 12.5; BLS, 25.2; Pharmaceuticals-Schenley, 3.5; BLS, 10.3.

Mrs. Estelle Watkins flew by plane Saturday for Miami, Fla., where she will spend several weeks. She was accompanied to Washington to board the plane, by her daughter, Mrs. George L. Wilhide.

A full statement of expenses incurred while lobbying must be filed with the secretary of state.

Homemakers' Corner

In considering food for older folks, for the pre-school child and for anyone who just doesn't like milk, dried milk has many possibilities.

Nutritionist Janet Coblentz, University of Maryland Extension Service, says dried milk is ideal extra protein, mineral and vitamin content to everyday foods. You'll find both non-fat dried milk and dried whole milk on the market. Non-fat dried milk, made from fresh pasteurized whole milk, has only the fat and water removed. In dried whole milk, only the water content is missing.

Because non-fat dried milk lacks the fat of whole milk, it is low in calories—the caloric content is cut about in half. The vitamin A of butterfat is missing, the protein, milk sugar, Vitamin B, calcium and mineral in milk remains the same.

Miss Coblentz gives suggestions for using concentrated non-fat milk powder in food preparation. Add two to four tablespoons of dried milk to the dry ingredients of your favorite baked custard to make it double-rich in protein and calcium. Fortify basic white sauce with two to three tablespoons of dried milk added to flour. Use the same amount of fluid milk suggested in the recipe.

Try adding dried milk to regular fresh milk for drinking, to the prepared mix for cakes, cookies and pancakes. Use two tablespoons for each cup of dry ingredients. Don't increase the liquid.

Dried milk is a natural for mashed potatoes. Add it to the drained, mashed potatoes. Beat in potato liquid until the potatoes are fluffy. This is a good way to avoid wasting vegetable juices. For eight medium potatoes, use three tablespoons of dried milk powder.

that Frederick goes on the dial telephone system the latter part of this month. Announcements to that effect were handed out this week and I can't help wondering if this is a step near the "dialing" of Emmitsburg? Soon all nearby communities will have dial phones and then we will have to be next. Seems to me we were promised something to this effect about three years ago. I should remember, as I lost a buck bet on it!
