—BY ABIGAIL—

Many inquiries have been received as to the entrance of New Zealand beef into this country. The reason was not, as popularly believed, to break the price structure of the American cattle raiser. It was done in an effort to stave off a meat shortage here. Actually, it was a four-country deal. As many of you know we import large quantities of meat from Canada and last year the hoof-and-mouth plague hit the Canadian sources. Immediately the U. S. erected protective barriers to protect our health, and clamped down on the importation of the foreign meat. A deal was worked out, however, to save the meat. It was shipped to England, which has no rules against the import of such beef; England in turn, sold the commodity to New Zealand, which in return sent their product to the U. S. In other words, all that has transpired is that instead of us getting Canadian beef, we are eating the delicious New Zealand steaks, and at 39 cents a pound. Why couldn't we make this arrangement permanent at 39 cents? Oh, boy.

Well, at last it has happened. Another familiar landmark of the Town has disappeared. Yes, the blinker pylon on the Square is no more. It was dismantled by workmen of the Water Co. this week. Erected about 25 years ago, the blinker had finally out-lived its usefulness. Really, the death-knell was sounded years ago with the advent of the trucking industry, but it was not executed until this week. Only minor arguments against removing the traffic regulator were registered and these protests were easily overwhelmed by the large number of complaints concerning the pylon that the State Roads Commission and the Town Council received. Without a doubt, it will be a big improvement to the appearance of the Square and the absence of the regulator is expected to expedite traffic much to the convenience of all. What probably hastened the demise of the blinker was the fact that it lost its blink years ago. It will be missed, I assure you, but then I feel that the new traffic light will take on a host of new friends and admirers. I, for one most certainly will miss the structure, as it has been the subject of many of my recent columns. What the heck can I gripe about now? Don't worry, I'll find something or the boss will be looking over a new columnist's shoulder.

Well, if it isn't almost Spring again! That reminds me to remind you that good ole baseball will soon be rolling around again, and as you and I know it takes a lot of that green stuff to operate a club. As usual the Booster passes are going on sale and the advance sale of these ducats greatly helps the club to get off to a fresh start. You can do your bit to help the cause of baseball a lot if you get your pass early. Incidentally, prospects for a cracker-jack team look bright as several star players of the defunct Fairfield club have been signed to Emmitsburg contracts this year. These stars, along with our own local talent, are expected to greatly augment the local squad. And it has just been announced that Frank Apichella, the baseball coach at the Mount, has been signed to take over the managerial spot. Yes, things are shaping up well on the baseball front here. Get your tickets early.

Speaking of tickets brings to mind the fact that the Memorial Hall fund needs a lot more money. Not only that, YOU need good entertainment. After a mighty dull winter in entertainment, your opportunity soon will come to see some really bang-up entertainment. Remember the minstrel show last year. I know that you won't want to miss another grand performance by many of those same characters who played hilarious roles in last year's production. Don't forget the date, April 9-10, and be sure to get your tickets early... they're on sale right now.

Rural Red Cross Workers Appointed

Dr. Sponseller, professor of religion and philosophy at Hood College Wednesday night addressed a gathering of county Red Cross workers who are presently conducting the annual drive of that organization. The speaker said: "As many and as varied as are human needs are the services your Red Cross is performing for Frederick Countians and, if you are a contributor to this greatest of all organizations of neighbors, somewhere, every hour of the day, you are being thanked by people unknown to you for whom aid has been extended in your name," he told the campaigners.

Continuing, Dr. Sponseller explained: "There is a great host of unknown neighbors whose gratitude to your agent in extending help, the Red Cross, is being expressed in many ways. Some of them owe their lives to the blood you collected for use in hospitals here at home as well as on the battlefield. Some are children, whom you have saved from the crippling effects of polio. Others are families who had lost home and possessions because of fire or flood. Many you have aided over financial crises. Some have been brought home on leave to attend their loved ones in serious illness. Many hundreds of parents right here in this county can thank the Red Cross for teaching home nursing, first aid or water safety to their children to keep them from harm, and many a service man has been visited at the front with news of home and has been urged to write that anxious parents who hadn't heard from him for a long time."

While the Frederick City campaign was formally launched on Wednesday, the county, under the leadership of campaign chairman Tobias Zimmerman, has been organized since March 1 and already has collected a large part of its share of the $20,000 which the Red Cross is raising locally as part of the national total of $93,000,000.

Emmitsburg Drive Half Finished
Mr. Robert G. Fite, Emmitsburg chairman, said that collections here were excellent and said that about half of the territory has been canvassed. He also announced the appointment of the following rural solicitors: Edward Smith Sr., Mrs. Arvin P. Jones, Miss Mary Fieri, Mrs. Roy Sanders, Mrs. Charles Valentine and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fite.

Mr. Zimmerman stated "I am more than pleased with the way the chairmen of the various districts and their teams of volunteers have been forging ahead."

Many substantial increases over last year's drive have been reported.

Mr. Zimmerman said this week that "We hope to set a record this year, not only in contributions, but also in speed in making our canvases which should take our volunteers to every family in the county. We don't want to fail to give everyone a chance to share in the great humanitarian work. This is a case of neighbors helping neighbors to help themselves throughout the land and helping too, to save lives and relieve distress and hardship. Every good citizen must feel this a personal opportunity to discharge an obligation he owes to his country and to his immediate community."

Electrical Device Installed

S. E. Breth, Potomac-Edison Co. district manager for the Taneytown District, has announced that a new 5000 kva capacitor bank is now in service in a new substation southeast of Thurmont. This $55,000 installation will provide better regulated electric service for this area and is part of PE's continuing improvement program for this section.

The capacitor bank, which regulates voltage supplied by PE generating stations, will operate through a 34.5 kv oil circuit breaker, Manager Breth stated. This breaker is so constructed that it will automatically switch the capacitor on and off the line, in order to maintain constant voltage on the 33,000 volt lines in this area.

Within the last 25 years, hydrocarbons from petroleum and natural gas have become a source of raw materials for more than 2,500 different chemical products.

The petroleum industry uses 2,800 aircraft in its complex and varied operations to supply petroleum for America's needs.

Couple Celebrates Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sanders, Route 2, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary March 1 at an open house social affair. Over 200 relatives and friends called to offer felicitations. Mrs. Sanders is the former Miss Erma Null, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Null and Mr. Sanders is the son of George H. Sanders, W. Main St., and the late Mrs. Sanders.

The couple are parents of the following children: Roy, Jr. (deceased), James, David and Wayne. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders attended services at the Lutheran Church for the occasion and a large basket of flowers was presented by Mrs. Sanders' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Moser. Over 100 gifts were received by the celebrants who were married in 1928 at Middletown by the Rev. Charles Day, who for a number of years was the pastor of the local Lutheran Church.

'Bill' Simpson Writes of Observation Of 'Rabbie' Burns Celebration

Another interesting letter from "Bill" Simpson has arrived and we feel that it will interest you as we are publishing it.

Clad in full Highland regalia, the Pipe Major marched proudly into the room piping "A Man's Man for a' that." Behind him, and just as proudly, came the Chief carrying 'The Haggis' on a tray held high above his head. Up and down the room they paraded and then, proceeding to the head table the Pipe Major stopped piping and stood at severe attention; the Chief lowered the tray and placed it before the one who was to "Address the Haggis."

Solemnly the address began—every eye attentively focused on the speaker and his subject. As the Scottish dialect sounded in every ear, the spirit of Rabbie once again was perceived. The speaker became more dramatic and as he spoke he picked up a very long knife, wiped it carefully with a napkin, and in a climactic moment struck the Haggis through! The limp figure suffered the completion of the oration only to be then taken back to the kitchen and prepared for the guests of the Burns' supper.

In the meantime, Scotch broth was served. On the program we noticed a quotation written under "Scotch Broth"—"God bless your honours a' your days wi' soups o' kail." But the Haggis with its attendants (tatties and neeps), being the most important on the Bill o' Fare, were not to be outdone. Under this listing we read, "What wad ye wish for Mair, Mon!" (After eating this delightful but filling course we certainly did not wish for more).

With hunger appeased we (four Americans) sat back in our chairs to await the program of the evening. If we had read the Bill o' Fare carefully the next shock would not have been so great for carrying the door came waitresses carrying plates and dishes filled with roast gigot of mutton, potatoes and vegetables. As if this were not quite sufficient, full dishes of Sherry Trifle were later served followed by coffee.

Throughout the supper, in fact before and afterwards, the contents of the delectables were continually disappearing. (According to the information available, the present-day celebration of the Burns' supper is a modified one. At many Burns' suppers the only beverage served are soft drinks. But for many years this was not so. Only the men joined in these celebrations which lasted into the early morning. One very old tradition, apparently no longer observed, was that each man would have a long, clay pipe called a 'Church Warden' for his smoking. If, when the celebration was over, any man yet possessed a whole clay pipe he was a disgrace in the eyes of his companions).

Finally, after a five-course supper, lasting an hour and a half, it was time to begin the 'Programme.' The first toast was given, as at all public dinners in Britain, was "To Her Majesty, the Queen." Before the second toast was given, several of the boilers fuelled from tanks holding 2,000,000 gallons of oil. The proud success of this great new ship is another indication of the way in which American ingenuity, industry and skill bring about record-breaking results.

When the new 53,000-ton ship S. S. United States raced across the Atlantic to bring speed record honors to this country for the first time in 100 years, her four massive propellers were driven by Burns' songs were played and sung. For the second toast to the "Immortal Memory" an enthusiast of or an authority on Burns is sought out. The word 'toast' is inadequate here for the Immortal Memory includes a 15 or 20-minute talk on Rabbie Burns. This talk highlights the first part of the programme but an equally important part follows, namely, the reciting of poetry, the singing of songs, a toast "To the Lassies," and the ever-present vote of thanks.

While the soloist sings one of so songs, the elocutionist adjusts his Highland Bonnet in preparation for the reciting of "Tam O'Shanter." The songs soon end and the elocutionist is called on. He begins rather lightheartedly but Tam O'Shanter's plight is really a serious one, and we find ourselves leaning well forward as the elocutionist rapidly and with many gestures, relates Tam's terrible experience. Not until Tam has safely crossed the middle of the running stream, escaping the witches, do we relax into our chairs.

The evening has woven its spell over the gathering and time is forgotten. The patriotic songs, the songs of home and the love songs are sung by all; the gay toast, "To the Lassies" made. Only the clock with its persistent striking brings the guests back from the past (two more hours have passed since supper). With the final vote of thanks, we reluctantly stand, join hands, and together sing "Auld Lang Syne."

The true value of the Burns' celebration has been questioned, particularly when the controversial character of Robert Burns is discussed. It is not for us to judge this man, rather let us possess a greater wisdom by the study of his achievements and failures. One of Burns' early biographers, for several reasons, did justice neither to the man nor to his works. The tragedy was not so much the direct effect of this biography on the public, but the great influence it had on following biographers. Three books by present day scholars have been recommended to us for further study. They are Robert Burns, the Man and His Work, by Hans Hecht, and the books by the American scholars, Snyder and Ferguson.

Robert Burns made two very important contributions, among others, to Scottish culture. First, he wrote or revived at least three hundred and fifty songs—one of his chief aims being to preserve the old Scottish folk tunes. Second, "he saved the Scottish language from extinction."

In summary, noting a glimpse of Rabbie Burns' work of the past and his relation to the present and even the future, let four lines from the song, "A Man's a Man for a' that" be sufficient. "Then let us pray that come it may (As come it will for a' that), That Sense and Worth o'er a' the earth, Shall bear the gree for a' that."

Bloodmobile Coming Here March 24

Two hundred people willing to give their blood to save the lives of servicemen wounded in battle and to save children from the crippling effects of infantile paralysis are being called for by Mrs. Harry Boyle, blood program chairman, when the Red Cross Bloodmobile comes to Emmitsburg Tuesday, Mar. 24.

A large part of the quota will be provided by the students and staff of Mt. St. Mary's College, who are being enrolled as life-savers by James Adams III, and Richard Kelly, while a strong representation from Sabillasville is promised by Mrs. Thomas Ginnell, recruitment chairman.

The Office of Defense Mobilization has asked for a 50 per cent increase in donations over last year in order that more serum albumin, a plasma derivative, may be had to overcome shock and permit more wounded men to be kept alive until they can be hospitalized, and to obtain a by-product of processing blood for military purposes, gamma globulin, which is the only thing yet discovered which will prevent paralysis from polio. Mrs. Paul Willard, general chairman of the Frederick County blood program said. Gamma globulin can be obtained only from human blood.

On the last visit of the Bloodmobile to Frederick in February, there was an increase of 47 per cent in pints obtained. Last year's April donation in Emmitsburg yielded 142 pints and if a 50 per cent increase is to be had now, more than 200 donors must volunteer.

A special effort is being made at this time to obtain women volunteers and the Red Cross Motor Corps will transport those who need transportation to and from Mt. St. Mary's College, where the bloodmobile will be from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on the 24th.

The President's letter to the legislator said, in part:

"Nothing could be more intriguing to Mrs. Eisenhower and me than an opportunity to get to work on our farm near Gettysburg."

"Whether or not we can spend much of our summer periods there is a real question."

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

U. S. Senator from Maryland People trying to promote Federal control of the Tidelands have given the impression that money from tideland oil leases would pay for the operation of public schools throughout the United States.

Hearings on Senate Joint Resolution 13, which affirms and establishes the titles of the States to such lands, have ended, and the resolution will undoubtedly be favorably reported out of committee, and personally, I believe it will be passed by the Congress and signed by President Eisenhower.

Because of the very effective propaganda put out by the proponents of Federal control, however, I think the public is entitled to more complete information.

The Truman Administration and his followers have said that the revenues from tideland oil leases could be used to aid the State's public education system. They used this idea because it sounds attractive—provided you don't look too closely.

Maryland for the current year is spending over $35 million for public education. What would our state receive if the Federal government distributed the revenues from tideland oil leases?

The total amount of all such revenues received by the three states of Texas, Louisiana, and California over 30 years is $77.2 million—or about twice the amount Maryland is spending on education in this one year alone.

Now, if the Federal government during that 30-year period had distributed the $77.2 million to the 48 states each individual state would have received a total of $1.6 million. As the Federal contribution to Maryland's educational system, we would have received roughly $53,666 for the current year.

That is exactly how cheaply these land grabbers had hoped to buy control of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. Marylanders will never consent to Federal control of its fishing industry for such a trivial sum.

This is one of the reasons which has convinced me to vote for the passage of Senate Joint Resolution 13.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde

It was my privilege last week to act as judge in the oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion at Leland Junior High School in Montgomery County.

Though many people seem to see fit to criticize the teachings in our schools, it was obvious from the speeches that the young people gave that they are getting a much better grasp of the real meaning of American freedom than many of the critics are willing to acknowledge.

Three items of legislation were passed in the House of Representatives last week. I voted with the majority on all three—to provide $300,000 for the investigating expenses of the Committee on Un-American Activities, to require an annual review of personnel requirements in the military departments, and to increase by $500,000 the amount the Federal Housing Agency is authorized to insure.

Much of our work, now, is in our various committees, where all proposed legislation is studied before it comes to the attention of the whole House. Last week I accompanied other members of our District subcommittee on health and education on a tour of the National Training School for Girls and the School for Dependent Children, in order that we might see first-hand what is needed to improve these institutions.

Miss Irene Middlekauff of Hagerstown, writes to point out that the existing system of Federal rent controls has encouraged development of more and more small apartments where children generally are not permitted, rather than large homes where families can settle permanently. This is a good point. A decision on rent controls will be one of the major jobs of this Congress, and perhaps trends such as Miss Middlekauff pointed out can be stopped.

I may draft a bill making Federal provisions for compensation to disabled railroad workers, regardless of whether the injury was the fault of the employer. This would be similar to our Maryland state law.

Homemakers' Corner

Oysters For Lenten Meals

Serve your family creamed oysters as a special Lenten dish. This recipe, which took top honors in the junior section of the Chesapeake Bay Oyster Cooking Contest, was made by Mabel Potter, a Dorchester County 4-H'er.

One pint oysters (well drained and chopped coarse); two tablespoons butter; two tablespoons cream; two egg yolks; two tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt; one-quarter teaspoon paprika, and one teaspoon lemon juice.

Melt butter in a saucepan; add flour and blend well. Stir in cream and through oyster liquor to make three-fourth of a cup. Add seasonings. When sauce is smooth and boiling, add chopped oysters. Bring to boiling point. Stir in well-beaten egg yolks. Cook one minute, or until thick. Fill individual patty shells or serve on toast.

Check Location of Kitchen Radio

Take a look around your kitchen for what might be home accident hazards. For instance, check the location of your radio.

Many homemakers like to listen to the radio while working in the kitchen.

See that your kitchen radio is located far enough from the sink for safety. Specialists say that's a chance of being electrocuted or badly shocked if you happen to touch the radio while standing in a damp place—or while in actual contact with water.

Guides For Buying Patterns

Try to avoid buying a nice dress pattern, then cutting it to pieces to get the pattern to fit your figure. Clothing specialist says that's alright if your goal is a "jig-saw puzzle, but it's not a reliable guide for making a dress.

Before buying that pattern for your new spring frock, make sure you're getting the size nearest your body measurements. As a general rule, select your dress or blouse pattern in the size nearest your bust measurement. For your skirt pattern use your hip measurement.

That's not saying you won't need to make certain adjustments to most patterns you buy. If you're an in-between size, it's usually easier to make a pattern smaller than to enlarge it. For example—if the bust measure is 35 inches, a size 36 pattern is likely to be a better choice than a 34. That's especially true if your figure is of the broad-shoulder, flat type, if you're a rounded figure, size 34 will probably fit better.

Standard patterns in small and medium sizes allow for a hip measure three inches larger than the bust. Even if the hips are large in proportion to the bust, it's better to buy a dress pattern according to the bust measure. That's because the skirt sections are likely to be easier to alter than the blouse part of the pattern.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

The national average level of price support for the 1953 corn crop will be $1.58 a bushel, according to a recent announcement for the Department of Agriculture. This represents 90 percent of the parity price of corn as of February 15, 1953. The support level will be priced upward if 90 per-cent of parity at the beginning of the marketing year (October 1, 1953) is higher than $1.58. In no event will the national average price support level be lower than the announced minimum.

The Maryland support price usually is about 15 cents a bushel higher than the national average, according to Geo. J. Martin, Chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing State Committee. The final Maryland support price for corn will be determined October 1.

The volume of sales of the 1951 crop of Maryland tobacco, marketed in the 1952 season, was the second largest in history. But George J. Martin, Chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing State Committee, reports that prices were down for all grades, with the general average price the lowest in four years.

Producers' sales, at auction and hogshend, totalled 4 1/2 million pounds—about 3 million more than in the previous season, and second only to the record sales of the 1946 crop.

But the general average price was 44.9 cents a pound—about 3 cents below the previous crop, and the lowest since the 43 cent price in 1947. The highest average on record, at 57 cents was recorded for the unusually small 1945 crop.

Quality Horses At Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va. — The weather beaten little old man had

Auction markets opened May 6th, with prices relatively low in relation to the quality of the offerings—much better quality than in the previous season. This situation continued until the final month, when the market strengthened on indications of a smaller '52 production of tobacco types used in cigarette manufacture. The markets closed on August 8th, with small clean-up sales the following week.

The hogshend market at Baltimore opened for competitive bidding on May 8th, and closed on September 10th. This review of the Maryland tobacco markets for the 1952 season was prepared by the Tobacco Market News Service of the Production and Marketing Administration—which prepared and issued daily reports on the progress of trading.

Price supports on Kobe lepedeza seed will not be available in Maryland during 1953, Mr. Martin announced. This is in line with a decision by Secretary of Agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson, to remove supports from all pasture and hay seed.

The secretary pointed out that supports in past years were undertaken to encourage production of adequate supplies of these seeds. Supplies now are sufficient to meet present needs.

Kobe lepedeza, the only hay and pasture seed supported in Maryland, has sold on the open market for prices above the support level since the 1949 crop, when approximately 300,000 lbs. of Kobe seed were put under price support loans.

finished exercising his horse and came wheezing in out of the cold sharp wind sweeping the Charles Town track to sit in the warmth of the stable tack room. As soon as the heat dug in and increased his wrinkled face a familiar smile spread out and 81-year-old "exercise boy" Al Finley expanded on his favorite subject—race horses.

As the good-humored Al tells it there's nothing like being around thoroughbreds to keep spry and healthy. If that's the case the one animal he has at the Shenandoah Valley course—Ring Fleet—should keep him going for a long time. He can be seen almost any morning working out the gelding or some other animal.

Finley, who was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1872, started out in racing at the age of 15 and in 1890 went out on his own as a trainer around the "bull rings" or secondary ovals. Later on he switched to riding. Shortly after the turn of the century he was contracted to fabulous Edward Riley Bradley.

"You should have seen him ride races," a visitor said. He rode one particular race I'll never forget. Bradley had a top notch horse named Bad News. Well, sir, Al had quite a time that afternoon, you know, the boys tried to rough him up a bit, but he was just as much a scrapper as they were. That was some race.

Finley, who has an adequate riding frame of 105 pounds, then picked up the conversation. You know, I didn't weigh less than I do now. But in those days jocks kept fit in a different way. Most of them stayed trim by boxing. Fact is you had to use your "dukes." Don't forget there were real good riders out then—George Odom, he's training horses today; Tod Sloan, Walter Miller, Snapper Garrison and a lot more.

Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.—(Isaiah 1, 18.)

The Divine blessing of forgiveness—being forgiven of our sins once, and yet again and again—is wondrously available to each and all of us, if we but seek it with humility and sincerity, and in faith. It is the miracle on Earth that a man can change wholly and lastingly from sinfulness into goodness and, in the Lord, make his life a happy and useful one.

Along about the 1930's Finley quit riding and turned again to training horses. He campaigned throughout the country, even outside the continent, at Cuba, and while he has not come up with a world beater he manages to win enough races to keep in action—or, as he puts it, get a horse, exercise him yourself, train him and keep young. That's probably as good a philosophy as any.

Q. This is my first year at raising chicks. What do you advise?

A. Put good chicks in a good house. Feed 'em well and -- give 'em Dr. Salsbury's Ren-O-Sal from the start! It gets chicks off to a great start and keeps 'em out ahead. Use Ren-O-Sal in each gallon of drinking water. It's easy, economical, and successful—as millions of poultry-raisers know. Buy Ren-O-Sal when you get your chicks or starter.

Mrs. Lottie Gall Heads Easter Seal Drive Locally

Frederick County will benefit in the Easter Seal campaign being conducted March 5 through April 5, by the Maryland Society for Crippled Children and Adults, in which a quota of $120,000 has been set this year. Of this total, 91.7% will remain in the area in which it is collected, and the other 8.3% will go to the National Society to support a three-point program of research, education and supplementary direct services to the handicapped.

Mrs. Lottie Gall, Thurmont, has assumed chairmanship for this section of the county, and she urges people to buy and use the Easter seals, or contribute thru the canisters placed conveniently around.

The Cerebral Palsy School for Frederick County is located in the Federated Charities Bldg., in Frederick, where rooms were renovated and made suitable for the school by service clubs. Seven children, their ages ranging from six to 11, attend the school. Mrs. Marian Daugherty, their teacher, reports that the children are making splendid progress. The school is under the Frederick County chapter of the Maryland Society.

Assistance by the local chapter in the form of rehabilitation has been furnished to two men. One man was furnished an artificial limb, enabling him to provide a livelihood. The other man was supplied a small frame building in which to do carpenter work. This man has no use of his legs and with the building, which he constructed himself, he is able to do carpenter work and earn an independent living. The amount expended in each case was $300. Both of these men are now self-supporting and lead happy, normal lives.

The Frederick County Chapter urges parents of handicapped children, or adults, to get in touch with them so that the handicapped may participate in the program of rehabilitation.

LOOKING AHEAD

by GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Scary, Arkansas

Doing The Big Job

At the end of World War II, General Eisenhower wrote a book entitled "Crusade in Europe." It gave a detailed account of the preparations for and the actual invasion of Nazi-held Europe—the greatest military action in the history of modern warfare. Every American had a vital stake in Gen. Eisenhower's "crusade" in Europe. It was the freeman's crusade against advancing tyranny. It routed and defeated the vast armed might of Hitler's Nazi empire. In a very real sense it preserved the American way of life.

The success of the invasion was due not only to Gen. Eisenhower's leadership as Supreme Commander but to the know-how and experience of the team of subordinate leaders whom he chose. His book clearly shows that when he selected his subordinates he placed great importance on military know-how, on actual battle experience, and on experience in coordinating a big military operation. With the safety of his own nation and of all other free nations at stake, he called in the best military minds and the most experienced combat leaders to make up his "team."

Experience Is Priceless

"I left the United States on Jan. 13, 1944," he wrote in his book, "to undertake the organization of the mightiest fighting force that the two Western Allies could muster." Then he listed the subordinate commanders: "Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, and Admiral Bertram Ramsay, all tested battle leaders and all experienced in the problems of developing real allied unity in a large operation."

In his long, active military career Gen. Eisenhower had learned a lesson that applies anywhere. In warfare, as in business, and also in the business end of government, there is no substitute for know-how and experience. A battle leader is not chosen for his ability to recite a military treatise. A man is not elected to the post of corporation president because he holds a degree from a school of business administration. And in a government that has become big business a degree in political science or a man's political savvy is not as valuable to the taxpayers as business know-how and experience.

$75-Billion Business

Most citizens, I'm sure, have been heartened by two qualities that have been consistent in the President's appointments to his governmental "team"—Christian character and fitness for the assignments given. It remains to be seen how well the Cabinet and the other key appointees withstand the terrible political pressures of Washington. These pressures have been known to wreck Christian character and thwart the use of sound business judgment.

As in his "crusade" in Europe, President Eisenhower feels there is a great deal at stake for every citizen in the new job to which he has been called by the American people. With World Communism dedicated to the destruction of our nation from without or within, with grave domestic issues threatening our unity, and with government expanded in this crisis to a $75-billion-a-year business, every American can agree that he personally has a genuine stake in how the government is operated. His freedom is at stake, and so is what's in his pocketbook.

Man To Fit Job

The most obvious fact in the whole Federal governmental picture today is that defense spending accounts for approximately 65 per cent of the entire Federal budget. The administration of this vast military establishment, with its service arms scattered 'round the globe and its multi-billion-dollar armaments program constituting the biggest production job in our peacetime history, is a job for a big man—a man of character and with business know-how and experience in big operations.

President Eisenhower chose such a man—Charles E. Wilson, the top executive of General Motors. And Wilson, in turn, chose as his "teammates" men of unquestioned ability, with outstanding records of success in the dynamic American business world—where intelligence, sound judgment, imagination and courage are indispensable ingredients for success. As a non-partisan citizen, with a citizen's stake, I'm grateful to President Eisenhower for appointing these men of unusual ability. Next week I'm

Boarding house reach

Although it has long been the subject of amusing remarks, few people would consider it the best way to serve a meal. The old-fashioned "pass the butter please" has always been a better way of getting food around the table. Like most rules of courtesy, it is simply a better way to get things done. When it comes to party lines, courtesy in keeping calls reasonably brief and allowing intervals between calls also means better service for all.

Ready... and able

In the event of a war emergency, our communications system is our first line of defense. The first calls to action will be telephone calls. Your telephone company, always alert to this fact, has carefully integrated its vast communications system into the Civil Defense Program. Should danger strike, the telephone is ready and able to play a vital, lifesaving role.

March is a good month to—

Look for nicer weather... Seed clover and alfalfa in winter grain crops... Get a list of the best vegetable varieties from your County Agent... Plan for poultry pastures to save on feed bills... Build range houses... Check and oil the electric motors that have been neglected all winter... Creep feed lambs and pigs... Make sure nests have plenty of litter—it will reduce the number of broken and dirty eggs... Plan your garden on paper to insure a steady supply of vegetables this summer... Fertilize fruit trees with nitrate of soda... Have your dealer put your farm tractor in good shape for heavy spring work... Spray sheep for ticks after shearing.

NEWS IN SHOES IS LEATHER!

A classic pump in a brand-new spring treatment is this taffy-colored style in aniline calf leather.

For daytime wear, a great many women choose a leather platform shoe with a built-up 'easier' heel.

The spirit of '76 in a pump for '53 is this patriotic number in a combination of red, white, and blue leathers. A broad band of white suede and a narrow strip of glowing red calf lend eye-opening interest to the smooth blue leather that covers most of the shoe.

Swirls of piping in red, aqua and pink leather give sparkling side interest to this purple kid sandal.

Strippings of black and white patent leathers swirling across the vamp give fresh style interest.

The U. S. has about seven per cent of the world's population.

COED MAKES 21 BILLIONTH CAN

Elizabeth R. McDaniel, Junior at the University of Maryland, will reign as honorary queen of Maryland Commercial Canning Week, designated by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin, for observance March 15 to 21. As one of her first duties, Miss McDaniel appeared at American Can Company's Maryland plant in Baltimore to manufacture the 21 billionth can produced by the can-making industry for Maryland food products since commercial canning started in the state in the 1830's. G. A. Vaughan, assistant plant manager, inspected the historic container made by Miss McDaniel and announced that the can will be mounted on a plaque commemorating the growth of canning into a $75,000,000-a-year business in the Free State. The plaque will be presented to Governor McKeldin in Baltimore, on March 20, at a commemorative luncheon which will be a highlight of Canning Week. The presentation will be made by Wilson A. Heaps, president, Maryland Farm Bureau, Inc.; Edward F. Holter, master, Maryland State Grange; William E. Lamble, Jr., president, Baltimore Canned Foods Exchange, and vice president, Tri-State Packers' Association, and S. D. Arms, vice president, American Can Company.

So this is HOUSEKEEPING

Having just won a signal victory, I'm prepared to state that some simple experimenting in typing your mate will save many precious hours trying to persuade a husband to go somewhere, do something, buy something!

As mute testimony to prove my point, our house is now graced by a new Whirlpool clothes dryer to match my automatic washing machine in a beautiful set!

Over a period of days as opening wedges I tried:

Sly Hint: Me: "This is another of the 269 bad days the Weather Bureau says we can look forward to this year so I can't hang out the clothes and your shirts won't get done."

Jeff: "Doggone it, I've got to have a shirt tomorrow!" (Only a few men will see the point without further prodding.) Flattery: Me: "You're so much smarter than I am, explain something to me. One of the features of the dryer I'd like to get is that it automatically shuts off both the heat and tumbler when the door is opened accidentally or on purpose. That's an important safety factor but I don't know how it works."

Jeff: "Sorry, I don't know either." (Some mechanically-minded men will jump at this opportunity.) Practical Approach: Me: "The new dryer I have in mind has all sorts of wonderful advantages like an ultra-violet lamp to keep clothes air-fresh, capacity of 20 pounds of wet clothes, an automatic safety thermostat, a smoother tumbler surface that's gentle on clothes, only two dials to operate..."

Jeff: "That's nice." (Practicality is the thing a number of husbands can't resist.) Facts and Figures: Me: "Whirlpool Corporation is the world's largest manufacturer of home laundry appliances and they say that a clothes dryer actually saves 2,973 hours over clothesline drying!"

I needn't go into detail but it's the Facts and Figures that paved the way toward convincing my-type spouse. Now that I know the format I won't waste time with hints, practical approaches or flattery. As I say, once you have him typed, the rest is easy!

Q FEVER

You probably never will get Q fever unless you work in a stockyard, dairy, meat packing plant, or research laboratory. But you can't be sure.

Members of the U. S. 449th Bomb Group leaving Italy at the end of World War II never expected to get Q fever, either. Yet one man in every three of a total 1638 men were stricken with Q fever while they were on their way home or after they had already arrived in this country. Just how they got this has never been satisfactorily explained.

This little mystery is one of the reasons this obscure and relatively new disease is called Q fever. It was first identified among cowboys in Queensland, Australia, as recently as 1935, and is often called Queensland fever, and in this country, Nine Mile fever. The "Q" stands not for Queensland, but for "Query," or "Question Mark," just as "X" represents the unknown quantity. "Nine Mile" takes its name from the town in Montana, where the virus was first identified in this country. It's the same disease.

Q fever is an acute, protracted fever, somewhat like typhus. It is seldom fatal, but is often accompanied by pneumonia. Q fever is marked by chills, sweats, severe persistent headache, slow pulse, weakness, and pains in the and limbs. The fever itself is in severity and duration.

The germ that causes Q fever, rickettsia burneti, is known to infect cows, sheep, and goats and has been found in the milk of these animals. Less is known about the way it is spread. Q fever germs have been found in ticks, in raw milk, and, in rare cases, in milk that has been pasteurized, and in dust-laden air in areas where cows, sheep, and goats are known to have been infected. Communicability from person to person has not been established and is believed to be rare.

Q fever occurs most commonly among workers with livestock and in meat packing plants. Laboratory workers investigating the disease often get it. Outbreaks have been reported in California, Illinois, and Texas. Q fever has also been found in other states and in many parts of the world. In most cases, Q fever responds to treatment by modern drugs. But no satisfactory way of preventing the disease is known, other than established hygienic and sanitation methods.

A Difficult "Situation"

Did you see that "Classified Ad" last week? The one that wanted a farmhand who had to be "an expert agriculturist, sheep herder, tractor driver, bridge player," plus being "an authority on chemistry and mathematics"?

Slim Thomas, who ran that ad more or less as a joke, called and said, "I got 23 answers and almost every one claimed they could meet all those qualifications! That means I want to keep the man I have—Handy Peters."

"He was thinking of quitting but now I've got to talk him into staying. Handy never pretends to be an expert, he's just a good all-around hired hand."

From where I sit, Slim's smart to be wary of people who consider themselves to be all-around "experts." Some folks will "expert" on anything—from the clothes a man should wear to whether he ought to drink beer or buttermilk. Personally I don't want to "classify" myself as knowing all the right answers.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

The decision to permit Chiang Kai-shek to invade Chinese mainland, if he wishes, poses economic problems receiving close attention in Washington.

The prime purpose of the decision was to encourage action to end the Korean War, and loss of American lives.

But in the attainment of this worthy objective, new problems can and will arise.

One of them: "Has Chiang learned to quit?" When head of China, his in-laws, the fabulous Soongs, held such a monopoly on Chinese industry and business that it was referred to as the "Soong Dynasty".

The Soongs had closer ties with British interests, because Britain has no anti-trust laws such as America, to hinder British monopolies entering into unholy cartel alliances.

So Chiang escaped to Formosa, but British cartels continue to do business with China, even while Americans and Britons die.

Today two 64-dollar questions are asked about China, if Chiang overthrows Communists.

1. Will Chiang encourage free enterprise or restore system that lead to Communism. 2. If he does try to set up free enterprise, will British monopolists aided by American connections permit it?

In rubber, petroleum, light metals, and chemicals, there is a great deal of evidence that some American firms have understanding with British firms to control markets.

© National Federation of Independent Business

Washington feels further investigations may be made of presumed alliances between American firms and British monopolies. Continued British-China trade, plus British protests against Administration's foreign policy, may be arousing ire.

Not the least of this information would be facts on who pressured MacArthur ouster.

Many hold his work in Japan in breaking up age-old cartels and introducing free enterprise to Japan was his greatest achievement. Since his removal, Japanese cartels again wax strong, and one time infinitesimal Japanese communist party is becoming a big factor.

On the surface, it appears government becomes more acutely aware of the problem of monopoly business, and anti-trust law enforcement.

For example, the Senate and House Small Business Committees have been reappointed.

But on the negative side, the House Judiciary Committee has dropped its special Monopoly Subcommittee.

This committee, headed by creator, Emmanuel Celler, (D., N. Y.) did outstanding work on the aluminum and newsprint situation.

Many Congressmen report that they are finding that independent businessmen are not alone in their alarm with concentration of economic power into a few monopoly enterprises, and lax enforcement of anti-trust laws.

They report that farming, white collar, and laboring people are voicing alarm over the situation. Some feel it is reaching crusade proportions; may well become major issue of 1954 campaigns.

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON—Congress soon will consider a problem as did as the government itself—Federal-state relations.

It is being asked to authorize a commission—to be appointed by Congress, the President and state governors—to study Federal-state programs in such fields as taxation, social security, and public assistance.

The study's objectives would include more efficiency and economy in government—with consequent lightening of the taxpayer's burden—and decentralization of present Federal power—which is felt by many to have reached a point threatening the Constitutionally founded state-Federal balance of power.

This project has the blessing of Congressional leaders, the Governors' Conference and President Eisenhower, who has initiated it as he promised during his election campaign.

Those interested in this problem are using as their basic text a report on Federal-state relations made a few years ago by the Council of State governments to the Hoover Commission.

"The question of Federal-state relations prior to 1900 was largely a legal problem," the Council said in its report, which was printed as a Senate document. "Since that time it has become increasingly an economic problem."

"Grants-in-aid from the national government to the states (to help finance various programs), multiplied 250-fold within the last generation, demonstrate graphically the drift or shift of responsibility for public services from the states to national-state joint responsibility."

"Through the grants-in-aid, the national government influences, and to some extent controls, 75 per cent of the total activities of state governments. With control goes power. With power goes centralization—and in too much centralization lies danger to our entire Federal system of government."

The Council made these recommendations among others, for Federal remedial action:

1. Federal grants should be only for public services "national in character" or having "a definite and measurable national interest."

2. "National grants, where and when available, should be made for broad categories of public services."

3. Grant programs should be based on close Federal-state cooperation, with the Federal government "in no case" dealing with a state's political subdivision or with individuals.

4. Federal supervision of grant programs should be confined to "initial approval of over-all plans, postaudit of expenditures and technical assistance and guidance during operation."

5. "The present patchwork of grant-in-aid programs should be systematized, with provision for cooperative planning, appraisal and administration on a continuing basis."

6. "Definite, specific machinery should be established for implementing Federal-state relations in the development, operation and administration of cooperative inter-governmental programs."

The Council made these recommendations to the states:

1. Revise and modernize state constitutions, many of which "severely restrict the resources of the state governments, hamper the effective solution of urban problems and, frequently, interpose barriers to the fulfillment of needed services"

2. Extend home-rule powers to state political subdivisions, increasing their discretionary power and lessening their dependence upon the state government.

3. Revise and reorganize state tax systems "to reduce inequitable and overlapping taxes and to improve tax administration."

4. Revise and modernize state legislative processes and procedures, giving legislatures "adequate tools, expert assistance, reasonable compensation and sufficient time in which to do their important jobs."

5. Reorganize government administrative branches to improve the quality of public administration.

6. Make increasing use of interstate compacts and agreements "for the solution of common problems" thereby maintaining interest in and control of "activities and programs of vital interest to them."

"If our system of federalism is to be maintained," the Council said, "states must equip themselves and order their facilities to accept and exercise their responsibilities as well as to proclaim their rights."

The white rhinoceros is the world's second largest land mammal, exceeded in size only by the elephant.

Benefits Of Tree Planting Shown By Experts

Sponsors of the Frederick County tree planting program called attention this week to the value of white pine trees for fence posts as an example of the benefits of farm reforestation.

Foresters recommend white pine as the best tree for planting in the county because it will grow best under most any soil and climatic conditions. Seedlings are furnished without cost by the State Dept. of Forests and Parks.

Treated with a chemical called pentachlorophenol, commonly known as "penta," white pine can be protected from rotting and termites and will last three to four times as long as untreated wood. White pines grow to sizes suitable for fence posts in about 15 years.

The tree planting program, initiated by the Frederick Forestry Conservancy District, is being carried out with the support of at least 15 civic and farm organizations. Requests for trees this week reached the 200,000 mark, against a goal of 300,000 set for planting this spring.

The pentachlorophenol treatment of fence posts can be applied by farmers themselves with equipment usually available on the farm. Instructions for mixing and handling are supplied, and penta can be obtained in farm supply stores.

A stock tank or three oil drum halves welded together make satisfactory treating tanks. Single oil drums are sometimes used when only butt-treatment is wanted, but this is not as satisfactory. Posts should be peeled, allowed to dry and then kept submerged in the penta solution for at least 48 hours, and they are ready for use after they have drained and are dry enough to handle.

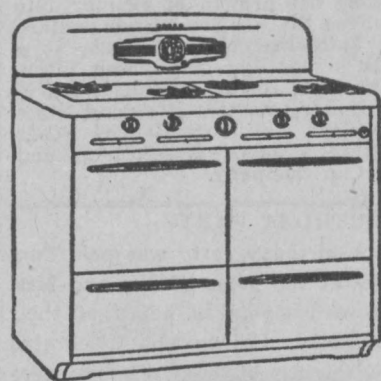

This new treatment, according to foresters, is less expensive and easier to apply than creosote. Such treatment makes possible using pine to replace the increasingly scarce hardwoods which have been used for posts.

Trees for fence posts are just one of the values resulting from tree planting, sponsors of the tree planting program said. Thinning for Christmas tree sale, and later the use of trees for many timber purposes are other values. In addition, trees have long been recognized as important in preventing soil erosion and holding water.

Orders for trees for reforestation in the county can be placed by calling MOnument 3-5441 in Frederick or through local agricultural agencies.
