SPREADING IT ON

It is difficult to reconcile President Eisenhower's rather bitter press conference statements about butter with what his administration did recently to keep the price of butter high for another year as of last week.

The President told the press that it would be a crime to let any of the 150 million pounds of butter owned by the government spoil in storage while some people are starving. He also expressed the opinion that butter was pricing itself out of the market.

Well, nearly everyone but the dairy lobby will agree with both conclusions. But where there is so much agreement, why didn't the Administration have the courage to do something about lowering the support price of butter effective April 1? Secretary of Agriculture Benson, it will be recalled, has talked loudly about putting the American farmer back on his own feet instead of having him dependent upon the government for subsidies.

So what happened? When the time came recently to do something about renewing the support price of butter, Mr. Benson was ready to slash the price from 90 to 75 per cent of parity as he was permitted by law to do. But the dairy lobby set up a howl of protest and some one, presumably the President, said no. So the taxpayers must continue to support butter at artificially high prices to fill Government warehouses while the butter market dries up. Now who's kidding whom about butter?

SCHEDULED FOR IMPROVEMENT IN FREDERICK COUNTY

Here's a section of Maryland Route 71, between Woodsboro and Ceresville, in Frederick County, that is due for improvement in the first phase of the 12-year highway improvement program proposed by the Maryland State Roads Commission and now under discussion in the General Assembly. Traffic records show that, although the highway is only 16 feet wide and has virtually no shoulders and many places where sight distance is dangerously restricted, it is carrying 2419 vehicles per day. The planned improvement would give the road a uniform 24-foot width, would eliminate many of the curves, hills and hollows and would include a new surface.

Odds And Ends

The first of these is to make studies on the subjects it is concerned with, which means applying the modern scientific approach to solving a problem by first collecting all possible information relating to it (say the problem of population distribution and increase, or of the status of women in the world). The second is to make recommendations on the matter studied to individual Members of the UN, to the whole Assembly, or to the particular specialized agencies interested in that problem. A different kind of action is to prepare what are known as "draft conventions" to submit to the Assembly; these have nothing to do with conventions in the usual sense but are suggestions intended as world standards of attainment in some special field, that of basic human rights, for example, or labor-management relations. Governments are of course not obliged to ratify these, but it can be seen that they may serve as an inspiration or a challenge to their own practices in that field. And the final activity it seems important to mention (it does not exhaust the list!) is the calling of international conferences, when it seems desirable, on matters within its authority.

Getting away with some difficulty from the crowded section of the UN action-program, Part II, that belongs to the Economic and Social Council, we come to the less numerous and extensive but very important assignments in the long-range efforts for peace given to the Trusteeship Council.

The UN Trusteeship System was mentioned some paragraphs back in connection with the controlling influence of the General Assembly on both these Councils, and it now must be mentioned again, for the Trusteeship Council is its special organ. But first another point. What seems to me one of the most thrilling things (and best examples of true Christmas spirit) in the Charter is its reflection of keen interest in and genuine concern for the non self-governing territories of this world. There is the general "Declaration on Non-Self-Governing Territories," setting forth what all Members of United Nations who administer such territories have agreed to do for them as part of their Membership obligations, these things adding up to a pledge to make the welfare of the people themselves their main concern and to promote this in its political, economic, and social aspects—a challenging set of standards to be observed in their control over these territories and their people, whether in colonies, protectorates, or trust territories.

And there is the definite system set up for United Nations itself to supervise the administration of the UN acts not take over their responsibility arbitrarily. The Council has these assignments to carry out: (1) the examination of annual reports submitted by each Administering Authority on progress being made in that territory; (2) the considering of petitions from individuals or groups concerning affairs in the territory; (3) the sending of visiting missions for on-the-spot checks on conditions; (4) the formulation of a detailed questionnaire, to be used as a basis for the Authority's report; (5) reporting annually to the Assembly on its own activities and conditions in these territories and making suggestions for recommendations that the Assembly might give to the Administering Authorities. Here, as in the case of the Security Council's procedure but quite different from the Economic and Social Council's, there is just one unified line of action, but it does seem as if the Trusteeship Council has plenty of worthwhile things to do! (Note: There are 11 Trust Territories, in Africa and the Pacific. What has actually been done for them is part of the story to follow).

TABLE TALK

Give Yourself a Washday Lift!

By BETTY HUDSON

Nothing gives the busy homemaker's spirit more "lift" than a clothes line of sparkling white clothes! Gently waving in the warm breeze, shining in the sun, her husband's shirts, the children's play-clothes, all those sheets and pillow cases . . . to Mrs. Homemaker, they spell real achievement. Her efforts have been rewarded; she has gotten rid of that dingy gray!

You, too, can share this proud woman's secret—it is a simple matter of "reconditioning" by means of the washer or the wash tub! Start now—and here are the directions for this wonderful beauty treatment:

You will get best results using a mechanical washer, and really hot water—from 120° to 140°.

Add a half cup of bead-bleaching and double quantity of a good water softener. Wash as usual, and rinse. It will take about five such treatments to complete the reconditioning, but use the double dose of water softener only in the first wash—after that use only enough to soften the wash water plus an all-purpose soap or synthetic detergent along with bead-form bluing.

You can recondition in the wash tub, too, but the process is slightly different. Soak the clothes in a solution of twice the usual amount of water softener for from 10 to 15 minutes. Then remove the clothes, put through a wringer, and put into fresh wash water, as hot as the hands can stand, and containing only a half cup of bead bluing. Continue with the same directions given for washer reconditioning.

Once those drab clothes are really white again, the best method for keeping them sparkling is frequent washing BEFORE they get too heavily soiled—and with the addition of bead-bleaching in each wash, you can be assured of a plus white performance.

Distillers Resent Canadian Influence On Legislation

Washington, April 9—Charges that Canadian distillers are the chief opponents of a bill that would benefit the United States were made here today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

John W. Woelfle, of Schenley Industries, Inc., voiced the indictment of the Canadian interests as U.S. distillers fired their opening salvos in a battle to obtain extension of the 8-year limit on the time whiskey may be kept in government bond before payment of the Federal excise tax of $10.50 per gallon.

"Public notice that there will be opposition to the Saylor bill has been given by some companies. Two of the largest opponents have distilleries in this country, but are owned and controlled in Canada," the Schenley executive said. He added that certain U.S. distillers are aligned with the Canadian interests.

Woelfle spoke in support of H.R. 1215, introduced by representative John P. Saylor (R., Pa.). The Schenley spokesman pointed out that the bill would extend from 8 to 12 years the time in which distilled spirits could be kept in U.S. bonded warehouses before payment of the Federal tax, and would apply only to distilled spirits in warehouses at the time of enactment of the legislation.

"Historically, U.S. distillers have favored extension or elimination of the bonding period in this country," according to Woelfle, "while Canadian interests have frankly boasted of the advantage which they enjoy in the absence of any limitation on bonding in their country."

The public, the Federal government and a large segment of the U.S. distilling industry would benefit by enactment of the legislation, Woelfle told the committee. He listed three public benefits that would follow enactment of the Saylor bill saying it would offer protection against loss of tax revenue, promote orderly distribution and remove a barrier which presently restricts consumer choice of U.S. whiskeys.

Passage of the measure would be determined to no one, Woelfle said, and its adoption would finally give the U.S. distiller the same benefits under U.S. law that are now enjoyed in this country by his foreign competition.

The present 8-year bonded limitation is unique to the U.S. the Schenley spokesman said. He added that there is no bonded period whatever in Canada but that Canadian companies are distributing Scotch whiskeys in the U.S. with statements of age much greater than that for bourbons and ryes produced in this country.

"It is not surprising," Woelfle said, "that among the so-called 'compromises' suggested within the industry is one in which opposition to enactment of the Saylor bill would be dropped if U.S. distillers would limit age statements on their labels to 8 years, regardless of how much older than that the whiskey might be."

According to the Schenley executive, no country in the world, outside the U.S., requires the producers of distilled spirits—whether whiskey or brandy—to pay the excise tax at a fixed time, whether or not the products can be sold. He declared foreign producers may store their products until a market somewhere is found, and that this applies to imported products resting in U.S. customs warehouses.

Woelfle told the committee that if the U.S. continues to use the same proportion of four-year-old and older whiskeys as were used in the 1948-52 period, taxes of about $1,900,000,000 would have to be paid by 1960 on approximately 183,000,000 gallons of whiskey for which there would be no market.

Although farming is one of the oldest human occupations, the teaching of agriculture in schools is of comparatively recent date.

Tree Planting Quota Reached

The quota of 300,000 trees for the Frederick County spring reforestation program has been ordered, according to C. F. Bowers, vice chairman of the County Forestry Conservancy Board.

Over two-thirds of the trees ordered have been planted, he said. The goal set by representatives of the 15 agencies cooperating in the program was for actual plantings.

Of the trees ordered, over half have been requested by farmers cooperating with the Frederick and Catoctin Soil Conservation districts to be used in connection with soil conservation planning.

At the average rate of 1000 trees per acre, approximately 300 acres will be reforested as a result of the tree planting campaign. Most of the plantings are of white pine.

The local foresters pointed out that not all trees should be expected to grow. Survival ranges from 75 to 90 per cent, depending upon such factors as how long roots were exposed, how roots were bedded and the care used in planting.

Besides being valuable as a hardy tree which will grow in almost any type of soil, the white pine can stand more exposure before planting, and survival rates of this variety are usually highest, foresters said.

Suggestions and assistance on planting trees are available from the local forester and soil conservation district technicians.

Pimlico Purses Record High

The pot of gold at the rainbow's end will be located at the Pimlico racetrack during the forthcoming spring running race meeting which opens May 4. Many of the best thoroughbreds in the nation will fight it out for the more than half a million dollars in overnight purses that will be distributed during the 21-day session. A daily average of $25,000 in purse money is being programmed by the Maryland Jockey Club with the amount of the prize increasing in ratio to the quality of the starting fields.

In addition, the four stakes at the Baltimore course, the Dixie, Baltimore Spring Handicap, Black Eyed Susan, and the Preakness will carry an added value of $160,000. These stakes are designed to attract the nominations of the top runners in the U. S. and 135 have already been named for the Preakness.

To date, every important three-year-old stakes decided since the first of the year has been won by a Preakness nominee. The imposing list of triumphs by those named for Maryland's greatest

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

Pressure grows for Congressional action on oil situation.

Several months ago the Federal Trade Commission's secret report on a world-wide oil cartel was forced into the open.

Many allegations were uncovered.

One was that the U. S. Navy was overcharged for Mediterranean oil during World War II. Another was that the Marshall Plan C. W. Harder was overcharged for Mediterranean oil given to Europe. The latter is the basis for a present suit against several major U. S. oil companies.

Now in Washington independent U. S. oil producers, the National Coal Association, demand an end to current flood of cheap imported oil.

The problem, quite involved, affects the nation's economic welfare and national safety.

It is estimated 1,000,000 barrels of foreign oil land in U. S. daily. During 1952, 128,000,000 barrels of residual fuel oil were imported. This residual fuel oil is upsetting U. S. economy.

Residual fuel oil is a by-product of oil refining. In U. S. refineries this by-product amounts to only 18 to 19% of total crude refined. But in the Caribbean and South American oil operations of major U. S. oil companies, the by-products amount to 57 to 65% of the refinery volume, which is dumped on the American market at any price it will bring.

The result has been that foreign oil underbids domestic coal for industrial users of fuel.

OUR DEMOCRACY — by Mat ELECTRICAL WIZARD

GERMAN-BORN CHARLES STEINMETZ WAS A PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED GENIUS WHO, IN 35 YEARS IN AMERICA, ACCOMPLISHED PRODIGIOUS THINGS IN BENDING ELECTRICITY TO THE SERVICE OF MANKIND. ALMOST 200 PATENTS CAME OUT OF HIS RESEARCH LABORATORY — AND HIS GENIUS EXTENDED BEYOND RESEARCH — TO THE APPLICATION OF ITS RESULTS.

STEINMETZ FOUND, IN HIS ADOPTED COUNTRY, FULL OPPORTUNITY FOR DEVELOPMENT OF HIS TALENTS. AMERICA, TRADITIONALLY, IS QUICK TO RECOGNIZE ABILITY, TO SUPPORT AND ENCOURAGE IT, TO HONOR IT BOTH WITH PUBLIC APPRECIATION AND MATERIAL REWARDS.

LOOKING AHEAD

by GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Washington—In the midst of my conversation with Sherman Adams in the White House, just across the executive offices foyer from the President's work-a-day office, a telephone at his elbow jingled. He excused himself. "I have a trans-Atlantic call working," he explained. The man came on—an American with business holdings in Europe. Adams told him that the President and several associates had been discussing him for a particular job for which he had outstanding qualifications.

Would he, asked Adams, consider coming to Washington and working with the Eisenhower team for awhile? The President felt he was the best man available anywhere on earth to handle the assignment. The man's request for a few days to consider the appeal was readily granted by Adams, who is chief of the President's staff. Neither the nature of the job nor the salary was mentioned. The incident seemed to me to dramatically demonstrate the effort being made by the present administration to obtain the best know-how available for all important jobs. As I sat in other Cabinet-rank offices, I heard similar telephone conversations.

"Toughest Job"
Meeting Sherman Adams in the White House was an interesting experience. I had been told by friends in Washington that he has "the toughest job in the Eisenhower administration." He is, in every sense of the word, "assistant president." His office is within a few steps of the President's and a large portion of his work is of presidential calibre.

As the No. 1 executive assistant and confidant of the President, Adams handles duties and functions and interviews which ordinarily would be handled personally by Mr. Eisenhower. By placing reliance in him and giving him as much authority as he needs, the President is much freer to devote his time to the tremendous problems of national and international character.

The Ex-Lumberjack
Sherman Adams is slight in build but his vigor and endurance already are legendary. He has one of the squarest jaws I've ever seen, and his character seems to be built to match his jaw. He is courteous and has a sense of humor but in his executive responsibilities in the White House he's all business. This is in character with his past business and political careers.

Born in Vermont and reared in Rhode Island, he early developed a liking for the outdoors, especially the mountain country. He moved to New Hampshire when he entered Dartmouth in 1916. After serving in the U.S. Marine Corps in World War I, he chose the timber industry as a career. Successively he was a lumberjack, scaler, surveyor, lumber foreman, plant manager, and operational manager for a big New England paper and lumber concern. The devastating hurricane that hit the Atlantic seaboard in the fall of 1933 left New Hampshire forests cluttered with fallen timber which was a serious fire hazard. Adams toured the state, as one of the leading timber men, speaking out with logic and passion for unified salvage work in the forests.

Liked Ike
His "cause" and the way he backed it made a hit with New Hampshire people. In 1940 he was elected Governor; and when candidate Eisenhower called him as his No. 1 aide in the presidential campaign following the Chicago convention, Governor Sherman Adams was serving the last few months of his second term and looking forward to retiring from public life. But like so many of the men now working with the new president in Washington, he was "smitten" with the ability, the political philosophy and the crusading zeal of Dwight Eisenhower.

Governor Adams was with Eisenhower on every step of his 40,000 mile campaign back and forth across the country. And it was noted that the two worked in almost perfect harmony, as a team. Adams emerged as perhaps the most intimate associate and adviser of Eisenhower, and with his characteristic determination to "see the thing through," he accepted the hard working job as the President's chief

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture has recently taken steps to help beef cattle producers who executive assistant, passing over opportunities for various Cabinet posts. Both he and Mr. Eisenhower felt that as the President's "good right arm" he could be of greatest value to the new administration.

have seen beef prices drop a third within the last year. According to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee, these steps include:

A "plentiful foods" drive in cooperation with producers, slaughterers, packers and distributors to increase the consumption of beef; offers to buy boneless beef for later distribution to the non-profit school lunch program and other eligible institutions at prices no higher than 90 per cent of parity; and a renewed offer to buy a quantity of frozen beef for export to Greece under a mutual security administration requisition.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has also requested beef producers to "follow a more orderly system of marketing," in an effort to prevent lower prices as a result of large-scale marketings.

Turkey Growers Warned Against Over-Production

Secretary Benson has warned turkey growers not to depend on price supports unless they use self-discipline in holding turkey numbers in bounds.

The Turkey Industry Conference meeting in Washington early in March unanimously agreed that "unless our turkey industry makes the recommended downward adjustment, this committee feels that no surplus removal program should be considered for the 1953 crop." The recommended 1953 production of mature heavy turkeys was 12 to 15 per cent below last season's record crop of 44½ million birds.

"The time to adjust production to probable demand for turkeys is now," Secretary Benson said. "Turkey growing in many cases has become big business and growers often are financed by feed and processing companies. Turkey growers, along with companies financing them, should recognize the risks of possible over-production and be prepared to accept the market price for the birds which they grow this year."

Last year, the government bought about six per cent of the crop through a surplus removal program at a cost of about $27 million. The turkeys were donated to the school lunch program.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION
"Cancer Control Month"
April, 1953

Within the boundaries of this state last year 3532 homes lost loved ones to cancer.

Such a burden of tragedy compels the attention of this Administration.

It is true that combatting so widespread a disease as cancer requires a concerted effort of government, the medical profession and in fact all of our citizens.

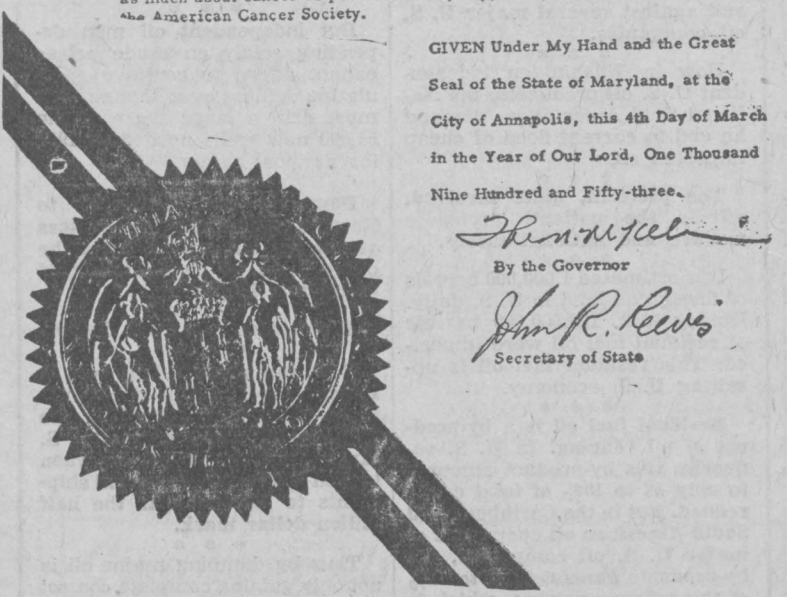

Through programs of education, research and service many lives already have been saved and many more can be saved.

The President of the United States has proclaimed April as a month for special action in this distressing problem.

Therefore, I, Theodore R. McKeldin, Governor, do hereby proclaim the month of April to be Cancer Control Month in Maryland, and I urge every citizen of this state to observe the occasion by learning as much about cancer as possible and by supporting the 1953 crusade of the American Cancer Society.

GIVEN Under My Hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at the City of Annapolis, this 4th Day of March in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty-three.

Secretary of State

LITTLE THINGS about the Stars

TELEVISION - RADIO - HOLLYWOOD

By GEORGE LILLEY

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The dramas are still one of radio's most staple fares. CBS Radio, for instance, now has some 20 dramatic programs on its weekly schedule. The latest: "Bakers' Theatre of Stars," a Sunday night attraction patterned along about the same lines as "Lux Radio Theatre," which has been heard Mondays on the same network for the last 17 years. The new show (6 to 6:30 p.m., EST) is running the gamut from romance and comedy to fantasy and science. The writers and stars are top-bracket. First three among the latter: Joan Fontaine, Joseph Cotton and Dana Andrews.

Radio-TV's biggest new slogan: "You Never Had It So Clean!" What's it mean?

LOWELL'S LISTENERS
The national election is past history, but aircaster Lowell Thomas still is receiving requests for transcripts of a special 15-minute recording he made during the campaign titled "What Every Voter Should Know." History and civic teachers, fraternal and women's organizations, and a number of just plain school kids have asked for the talk. But in 22-years of broadcasting, a lot of people have wanted to hear what Lowell Jackson Thomas, 60, has had to say. In fact, it is claimed by one statistical supporter — yet to be proven wrong — that Lowell Thomas has been heard more by more mortals than any other voice in world history!

TIME TO SMILE

Latest addition to the television picture is CBS' Sunday night "Time to Smile," which in reality is two shows, alternating week-to-week "The Ken Murray Show" and "The Alan Young Show," but with the same sponsor, Murray, of the unit cigar and rakish fedora, runs a typical Murray production, lively and unpredictable to the point anything may happen; Young's is on the homey situation comedy line. Murray is an up-state New Yorker who left the farm to join a vaudeville team in 1922, the year Young was born. But Alan, 31, real name, Angus Young, has been around awhile himself, doing his first network job in 1941 from Toronto.

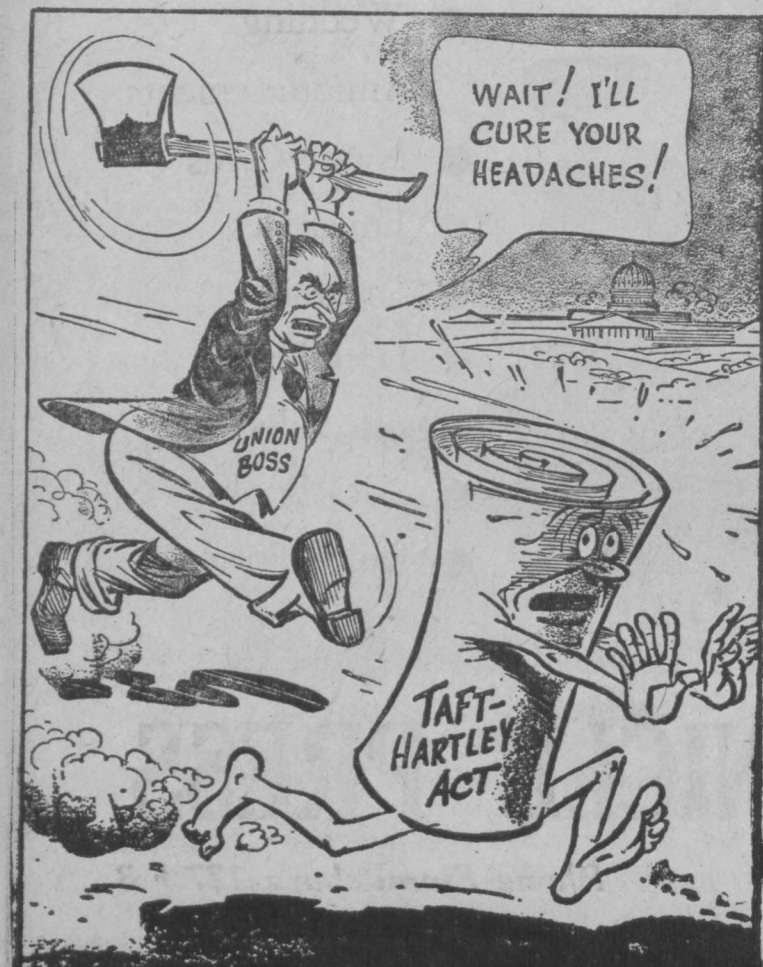

REAL LIFE DRAMA
A while ago Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis appeared on NBC's daytime drama, "Life Can Be Beautiful," to give advice to "Papa David" and "Danny," a "victim" of polio on the show. Result: a concerted effort by the program to bring the slogan "Life Can Be Beautiful for Polio Victims" to real life. Activities have included special appeals by cast members on network radio and locally by the

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL
U. S. Senator from Maryland

The controversial tidelands measure has now been passed by the House and is under discussion in the Senate.

The two measures differ in this degree: the House bill grants title to the States of off-shore submerged lands out to their historic boundaries; and establishes Federal jurisdiction over submerged lands on the continental shelf; the bill in the Senate would leave the resources on the continental shelf for consideration in another bill.

After prolonged discussion I am sure the Senate will pass the bill and a joint committee will work out an agreement between the two bills. The Eisenhower Administration is pledged to restore the State's rights to their submerged lands.

Over the years a lot of confusion and misunderstanding has developed and lawyers have had a field day in testifying about the legal aspects of the controversy. In some areas considerable emotional feeling has developed—and sadly to say the public has been consistently misinformed by the Federal propagandists.

Basically the controversy developed as follows: the State's claim to the lands were never questioned until Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes reversed his own decision in the early days of the New Deal.

Mr. Ickes' reversal was complete and without explanation. The Federal government then took the State of California to court and the Supreme Court reversed 52 decisions of the Court, established over a period of 150 years, and ruled that the Federal government should have jurisdiction over natural resources in the submerged lands.

The important part of the court's decision is, however, that while it did not rule that the States had title to the lands, neither did it rule that the Federal government had title to the lands.

Justice Black ruling for the court said, "The crucial question on the merits is not merely who owns the bare legal title to the lands under the marginal sea. The U. S. here asserts rights in two capacities, transcending those of a mere property owner."

In other words Justice Black was saying that the court was not particularly concerned with the rights of "a mere property owner."

Justice Frankfurter in a dissenting opinion commented on Justice Black's ruling by saying: "Ownership implies acquisition in the various ways in which land is acquired—by conquest, by discovery and claim, by session, by prescription, by purchase, by condemnation. When and how did the U. S. acquire this land?"

Then Justice Frankfurter proceeded to state the issue now before Congress in a very concise fashion. He said, "Let us assume for the present, that ownership by California cannot be proven. On a fair analysis of all the evidence bearing on ownership then, this area is, I believe to be deemed unclaimed land, and the determination to claim it on the part of the U. S. is a political decision not for this Court."

Justice Frankfurter, often considered to be an ardent New Dealer, was saying that in a court of law ownership of land must be established by one of the contending parties and that if the court cannot decide as to who owns the lands, then the land is considered unclaimed.

Arbitrary decision and awarding the land to the Federal government Mr. Frankfurter decided was not within the jurisdiction of the Court. That decision he said was a political decision and would be up to the Congress.

The 81st Congress passed legislation reaffirming the States' claim and President Truman vetoed the bill. During this session

Those who spent Easter Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Timmerman, were Mr. and Mrs. John Bessah and daughter, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Agnes Lahman and daughter, of College Park, Md., Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Normandeau, of North Carolina, and Master Thomas Ott.

Miss Sue Stinson, University of Maryland, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bittle, of Baltimore, spent Easter with Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Stinson, near town.

of Congress, I think the outcome will be quite different. Congress will pass a bill in keeping with the historic claims of the States and the 52 decisions of the Supreme Court. President Eisenhower will sign the bill and the controversy that was started by Harold Ickes reversal of his own decision will be ended.

To Maryland, passage of the bill will mean that our state will retain control of our 1.6 million acres of submerged land. We will have no fears that the Federal government will preempt our lands and regulate our productive fishing industry. The rights of the Free State will be secure.

1. IS CARPENTRY SATISFYING WORK?

2. WHO IS JAMES PICKER?

3. CAN MEN MAKE RAIN?

(1) Bill Larsen, a full-time carpenter, says it is very satisfying. He writes about his occupation in Work magazine. "I enjoy working outside," he comments, "I enjoy working with my hands; I enjoy seeing the result of my work. And, most of all, I enjoy working at something that people need very much." People who complain about the high wages of building trades forget that few craftsmen get paid vacations, and most of them are laid off entirely for about a month in the winter.

(2) James Picker is the man who voluntarily gave the U. S. government $4 million during the past 10 years. Not in taxes, but as contributions. The story of this unusual person is told by A. E. Hotchner in This Week magazine. Picker is head of the Picker X-ray Corp. When the company's profits increased sharply at the beginning of World War II due to army orders, Picker began sending large checks to the treasury. Picker explained later that he came to the U.S. as a penniless immigrant boy 52 years ago, and he appreciates the wonderful opportunities this country has afforded him.

(3) Depends on what you mean by rain making. Since May, 1950, the Water Resources Development Corp. of Arizona has been producing silver iodide smoke and sending it skyward from hills. When the silver iodide hits the right type of cloud, it picks up moisture and gains the weight necessary to fall as a raindrop. Scientists have been experimenting with rain-making processes for many years. Rain making is not successful, however, unless there are rain clouds in the vicinity. The silver iodide simply makes a cloud release more rain than it would naturally.

BABSON

Writes . . .

Babson Discusses Korea And Your Job

NEW YORK CITY, Apr. 9—Readers will be interested in remembering that two weeks ago in this column I stated: "China could be a great factor in bringing the Korean War to an end. Therefore, I still believe that 1953 will see a Korean truce unless one of the satellites kicks over the apple cart."

What A Truce Means A truce merely means cessation of fighting to ascertain if terms for peace can be arranged, but chances for peace are, of course, greatly enhanced by an armistice. If peace should come in Korea, what would it mean to the average American? Perhaps the most immediately important effect would be the loss of overtime and other extras which have come to be considered as fixed wages. Some families are already frantic, especially those with teen-age children, who claim they will be "disgraced" if the car, or television, or fur coat is taken away from them. During a truce these people, at least, will be cautious about future installment commitments.

Peace in Korea does not mean our rearmament program will be cut down this year. Already too many families are cutting down on meats, doctors, dentists and other expenditures which the neighbors do not know about. This explains the record decline in the sale of some commodities, due, in part, to a fear of Korean Peace.

Business Cycles It certainly seems as if some manufacturers of products now sold on shaky installments will sometime be headed for trouble. As these goods are taken back and repossessed, the stores where they were purchased may buy fewer electrical appliances, furniture, and fur coats. If so, this may cause manufacturers to reduce their employees and hence cause some unemployment. But it is a mistake to get frightened about this now.

Just as prosperity rolls up like a snowball when employment is increasing, the snowball quickly melts when unemployment gets under way. We are now in the first stages, with the cutting off of overtime and perhaps one shift. Deflation has already taken the place of inflation. The 53-cent dollar which I advised "buying" during 1952 is already worth more.

Depressions Appear Necessary I dread going through another period of unemployment, but I really believe that such may someday be necessary to correct the evils of waste, inefficiency and dishonesty which develop during "good times." Unfortunately, we learn only through adversity.

Furthermore, the sooner such corrections take place, the better off we all should be. Those who give their best to their employers will be the last to be laid off, if ever. The first to be discharged are the lazy clock watchers who, when applying for their jobs, asked: "What's the pay? How many hours? Do I get Saturdays off, and what about coffee?"

Better Chances For Youth Young people claim that they have not the opportunities which their parents had. They talk about the "big corporations" doing all the business and supplying all the jobs, affording little chance to small businesses. I don't admit this to be true. There are more opportunities now than ever before for young men to go into business for themselves if they will work 10 hours a day, for six days a week, and save money, the same as I had to do.

Good salesmen are needed now more than ever. Good salesmen backed by good advertising are the life blood of every business. They need no labor unions and are always well paid. They are never found amongst the unemployed. Hence, for their hard work "pounding pavements and ringing door bells" they need not ever fear being caught by installment purchases or any financial difficulties, under any conditions. In view of the news from Korea, these salesmen should now work harder than ever before. In short, I believe we may sometime suffer from unemployment, but a Korean peace need not bring this about. The Free Nations will still be fighting Russia's determination for World Supremacy. Therefore, no one should now get

State To Receive Gamma Globulin

Dr. Robert H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, has been notified by the Office of Defense Mobilization that a supply of gamma globulin, the newest weapon against poliomyelitis—will be made available to Maryland on May 1. This supply will supplement the gamma globulin already available for use in measles and infectious hepatitis. The State Health Department will be in charge of distribution of the supply. Individuals will be allotted gamma inoculations for their children if their pediatrician or family doctor indicates the circumstances surrounding exposure to polio warrants the preventive measure. The Office of Defense Mobilization will allocate four doses (a total of 40 c.c.) for each reported case. One gamma globulin dose provides partial immunity to polio, under certain circumstances of exposure, for about five weeks. Since polio epidemics usually are at their peaks from June through August, about a ten week period—more than one inoculation may be required for each child known to have been exposed. Experiments conducted with gamma globulin in epidemic residents during the last two summers have led to the establishment of a supply for polio prevention. Many of the children in these areas who were inoculated with the globulin and later exposed to polio were reported to have been immunized. Others who contracted the disease got only mild cases. The substance gamma globulin, which is obtained from pooled blood is scarce because its supply depends on blood donors.

It Began In Egypt

MEASUREMENT OF TIME By JAMES C. FRENCH, M.A., F.R.C. Curator, Rosicrucian Egyptian Museum. The ancient Egyptians were the inventors of the oldest clock in the world, a shadow clock. Because Egypt is a sunny country, it is certain that the shadow clock became a popular method of measuring time. Early in the morning at sunrise, the crossbar of the instrument was placed facing the east so that its shadow would fall on the long arm at the place marked "1st Hour" (the first of the six hours to the noon hour). As soon as the shadow of the sun reached the crossbar marking the noon hour, the instrument was at once turned around facing the afternoon sun and allowing it to cast its lengthening shadow on the long arm, measuring the time till sunset.

According to Breasted, it was from such a beginning that the twelve-hour day attained its use in Europe. The oldest of these clocks is 3400 years old and bears the name of Thutmose III. It is interesting to note that nearly a thousand years later the Greeks began to use the same kind of clock. The ancient Egyptians developed still another method of measuring time, based on the rate of time it took water to flow from a small hole in the bottom of a container. The container was filled and then the water was allowed to gradually escape. As the level of the water fell, the hours were read on a scale which had been worked out on the inside wall of the container. This water clock was generally constructed in the form of a seated ape or cynocephalus, an animal important in the symbology of the god Toth considered by the Egyptians to be the measurer of the time of both gods and men. The Rosicrucian Egyptian Museum has several nice representations of the cynocephalus in its collection, dating back thousands of years.

ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS Q. What is the best way to clean a brooder house? A. Start by removing everything -- equipment, litter, dirt, etc. Scrape and sweep away all filth, then scrub with hot water and detergent. Use Dr. Salsbury's Germex as a disinfectant. Germex is a powerful germ-killer, yet is odorless and will not stain. Economical, too. Remember, sanitation needs doing right -- so buy Germex now and use it now.

BE ON THE ALERT! When You Need Poultry Medicines Ask For... DR. SALSBUARY'S GALL and SMITH Thurmont, Md.

Chip Hanson is a clever commercial artist. Beside doing cartoons on our paper, he picks up "free lance" drawing jobs. Right now he's whipping up posters for the Safety Campaign. They all have headlines like "PLAY IT SAFE!" . . . or, "A LIVE WIRE CAN START A FIRE!" Chip looked a bit sheepish yesterday. Didn't want to tell me why. Finally he blurted out, "I feel like a dope. Here I am on this safety program and the fire inspectors tell me my own studio's a fire trap. I've been storing paint there for years."

From where I sit, what happened to Chip could happen to anyone. He was just too busy informing everyone else about safety -- not realizing his safety was threatened. Like those who fret about their neighbors -- whether they can afford a new house, whether they should have coffee or a glass of beer with lunch -- Chip simply forgot to "draw" some obvious conclusions about himself! Do it the easy way → Remember the story of the fellow who loaded his mule with a sack of potatoes on one side and balanced it with a sack of stones on the other. He made many trips this way until someone suggested that it might be more efficient to balance the first sack with another sack of potatoes. There's a more efficient way to make Long Distance calls too. When you give the operator the telephone number, instead of just the name and address of the person you want, your calls go through faster.

May is a good month to — Make every day Mother's Day. . . Put up grass silage. . . Lay pipes to the poultry range to save all that work of carrying water. . . Prepare a deep, loose seedbed for corn. . . Order nitrogen fertilizer, so you'll be prepared to side-dress corn at the last cultivation. . . Cultivate tree rows in young plantings. . . Plant annual flowers. . . Defrost the farm freezer when stocks are low. . . Clean the fertilizer attachment on the corn planter before putting it away. . . Vaccinate young stock against blackleg. . . Prepare for hot weather by insulating chicken houses, and adding new ventilation. . . Fertilize straight grass pastures to stimulate production and increase protein content. ### Homemakers' Corner

Beefsteak in the Broiler
COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Now that beef supplies are abundant and prices lower, you've probably scheduling more beefsteak on your family menus. And because of the plentiful supply, how to broil a steak is a question homemakers are asking.

Nutritionist Janet Coblenz, University of Md. Extension Service, suggests broiling as an ideal method for cooking tender beefsteaks. Broiling is done by applying direct heat to meat. It gives an especially fine flavor to tender meat containing enough fat to prevent dryness in cooking.

For broiling choose the better grades of tenderloin, sirloin, T-bone, rib or club steaks. U. S. Grade Choice and U. S. Grade Good beef are both in unusually heavy supply and cuts from either grade are good for broiling. U. S. Grade Choice contains a bit more fat and will be more tender and juicy when broiled, but U. S. Grade Good with more lean may be more economical buy and satisfactory for broiling.

When buying steak for tenderness, look for fine-textured lean, well-marbled with fat, and look for red, porous bones. These are signs that the steak came from young, well-fed animals.

Miss Coblenz suggests a steak 1 to 2 inches thick for home broiling. Slash fat at the edges of the meat to prevent its curling while cooking. Preheat the broiler and grease the broiler rack lightly to keep meat from sticking to the rack.

It's important that you place the top of the meat 2 inches from the heat when broiling. As a general rule, cook a rare steak with the top of the meat 2 inches from the heat. If you want a well-done steak, broil 3 inches from the heat. Since a thick steak needs slower cooking than a thin steak, place a thick steak farther from the heat. It's a good idea to leave the oven door open or ajar during broiling so you can keep an eye on the broiling and to see that spattering fat doesn't catch fire.

Broil the top side of the steak to your liking, then turn to the other side. Broiling may take less time after turning since the meat is hot. If you use a fork to turning the steak, stick it into the fat, not the lean, to save juices from running out. You may find that turning with tongs is easier.

There's no exact time for broiling—that's gauged according to your own taste. However, here's a guide:

For steak 1-inch thick: Rare, broil about 10 minutes or 5 minutes for each side. Medium, about 15 minutes. Well done, about 20 to 25 minutes.

Spring Wardrobe Accessories
COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The accessories you choose for your spring wardrobe can make an inexpensive garment look positively elegant—or the whole effect can be completely wrong for you. A lovely print dress can be ruined by wearing it with a flowered or fussy hat, gay gloves or an ornate bag.

Clothing specialist Helen Shelby, University of Maryland Extension Service, advises that you choose accessories that go together and tie in with several costumes. You'll find it's economical to have accessories match the basic color of your wardrobe, especially in expensive items such as hats, shoes and handbags if you want varieties in color, use it in smaller, less expensive accessories.

Consider your weight and height in choosing accessories. For instance, an oversize handbag, so nice for holding "everything," is fine for the tall, but not the heavy person. Miss Shelby points out that good leather bags, gloves and shoes are marks of a well-dressed person. So consider them as an investment which will outlast several less expensive ones. They'll look well while they're lasting. It's a good idea to buy new accessories with a new suit or coat. Then they'll wear out about the same time.

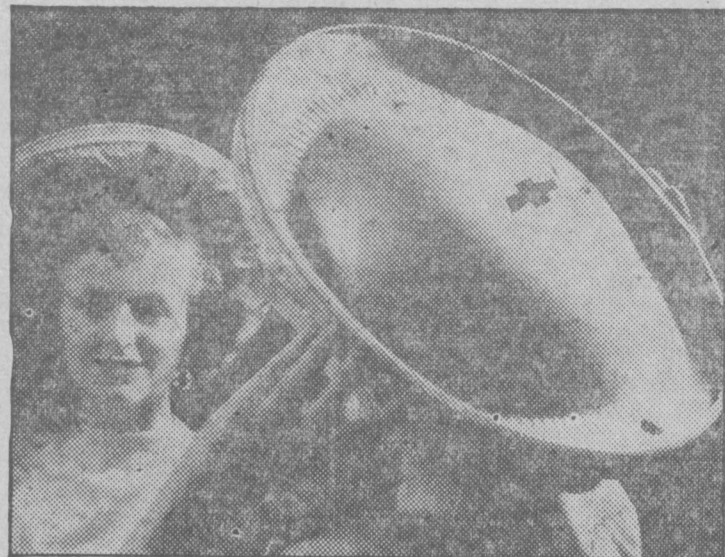

To make that real leather bag or shoes keep its new look longer, use one of the new polishes that protect it from scratches. Leather goods stores usually handle such polishes.

Motoring Accessories Style Novel Millinery

In the spring milady's fancy turns to thoughts of hats. But the haters, judging from these pictures, start thinking of automobiles. If you want to be a real wheel, advises one milliner, try a hub cap off the family car. A little satin lining, says he, and you've got Hubba Cappa Hatta, what? Another designer found the Chevrolet hood ornaments an inspiration for the job at the right. Could be he's giving us the bird.
