Most Anything At A Glance

—BY ABIGAIL—

A few final words on trees and I'm going to let it rest for awhile. The trees I am referring to, yes you guessed it, of course, are those which serve no useful purpose on the streets of town. A few of the old "die-hards" have staunchly defended their presence and refused to let anything or anybody do anything about removing them. The only answer you can get from them is that my "great so-and-so" planted them and you dare not touch them. They might as well declare them sacred and have it over with. Personally, I am of the belief that they just grew up wild or were planted by the Indians, to which I say, give them back to the Indians. If some of the supposed owners only knew the money it cost the State Roads Commission and the Corporation of Emmitsburg in repairing the streets damaged by the underground roots, I'm sure they would consent to have them removed. Well, anyway, this week, the county forester, Mr. Toms, was in town and you might know what he said about the situation. In his highly-valued opinion many of them are dangerous, in various stages of rotting and without a doubt should be removed. During his visit, or sojourn here, he condemned innumerable of the trees. The Town Council, in backing up Mr. Toms, will send notices to all those property owners that their trees are condemned and if they are not removed within a reasonable length of time, they will be held liable for any damage resulting from any of the trees falling and doing injury, either personal or real estate. Enough on trees for awhile . . . I hope.

Well, the big election is over and the excitement has abated and the candidates, the victorious ones, are happy. I suppose, their election to office by a popular demand, I maintain, must be attributed to their excellent past records of public welfare accomplishment. Without a doubt, the present officials have done a splendid job on their limited operating capital and deserve to be continued in office. If you just stop to think back for a few moments you will have to admit the old town is looking 100% better than it did several years ago. I'll endeavor to point out a few of the accomplishments which I feel makes the town a better place in which to live: Here's a good one for you, how about the restoration to use of the disposal plant? A lot of hard work and a little money accomplished this feat, and now the plant is operating efficiently and effectively. Remember back when the streets had no markers. Well, take a look now. Remember when you would drive through the alleys only as a last resort and at the risk of cutting to pieces a new tire? Well, now their practically boulevards what with the traffic signs and the really excellent paving job done on most of them. I understand that several more are to be modernized in the next year or so. A serious sewerage condition was corrected to a certain extent on N. Seton Ave., at least temporarily. I'll never forget what they have done to the Square. When this project is completed I'm certain we'll all be proud of it, especially of the new curbing to be installed in addition to the traffic light. I could go on for a good while longer, but space limits my enthusiasm. Happy tenure to you fellows!

My feminine intuition tells me there were more ladies than gentlemen present at Sunday's baseball game. If not, the count wasn't far off. I was a little disappointed at the turnout. Oh yes, there were several hundreds fans there, but in my estimation, there really is no reason why at least 500 couldn't have come down to the park to see the locals start the season off on the right foot. Perhaps with a better attendance the boys could be spurred to greater feats. After all, they only play at home every other week and I'm certain that more can find the time to attend. We know

Locals Win Opening Game; Away Sunday

Emmitsburg pried off the lid of the opener in the Pen-Mar Baseball League last Sunday afternoon on Community Field, here, and slapped back the lid with a 6-5 win over its opponent, New Windsor, before a gathering of several hundred fans.

The Emmitsburg Municipal Band was on hand to add to the general enthusiasm of the crowd as Manager Frank Apichella's charges finally forged ahead in the dying innings of the contest to top the enemy.

The lead changed hands several times before the locals placed the clincher on the affair which was officially begun by Mayor Thornton W. Rodgers tossing out the first ball of the new season.

On Sunday the local team journeyed into Pennsylvania to meet Cashtown.

Along with Emmitsburg, New Oxford, and Union Bridge gained victories in the opening games of the Pen-Mar League. The Blue Ridge Summit-Littlestown tilt to be played at Littlestown was postponed due to another activity on the field.

A homerun with the bases loaded in the fifth inning by A. Gilbert, Union Bridge hurler, featured the 10-3 victory over Cashtown on the former's field. Gilbert permitted the losers but three hits, two of which were secured by B. Singley. Cornwell started on the mound for Cashtown but was relieved in the second by Kane who in turn gave way to Don Bucher in the sixth.

New Oxford rapped out 13 hits, including a three-run homer by Cristofaro in the third inning to win a 9-1 victory at Thurmont. Cristofaro also poked a double and a single while Staub collected a double and two singles. Bill Fuhrman hurled the route for the winners and fanned nine.

Pimlico Draws Well Opening Week Of Meet

Top members of the handicap division, including Crafty Admiral, who won more money than any of this rivals in 1952, are expected to furnish the Maryland Jockey Club with one of its finest spring attractions when the Dixie Handicap is offered tomorrow.

The Dixie, which predates the Preakness by three years, having first been run in 1870 when it was won by a horse named Preakness, always has been a coveted prize and has been won by outstanding horses on many occasions. Its list of previous victors includes such notables as Assault, Armed, Riverland, Equipoie, Whirlaway, and Sarazen to mention a few.

Crafty Admiral, owned by Charles and Frances Cohen who race as the Charfran Stable already holds victories in the Royal Palm, McLennan and Gulfstream Park Handicaps to his credit this season but he will find the sternest sort of opposition in the Dixie, judging from the list of nominations to that $25,000, mile and a furlong event.

Hampton's Stable's Alerted, winner of the Dixie a year ago, is expected back for another try while Oil Capitol, winner of the Widener is likely to carry the Hasty House Farms—Mrs. Harry Trotsek silks in the race.

Greentree Stable's One Hitter, winner of the Pimlico Special in 1950, Mrs. E. K. Weil's Ken, successful in last season's Exterminator Stakes, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' hard-hitting pair of Fort Card and Yildiz; Max Kahbaum's Jampol, and Mrs. S. M. ## Rodgers, Rightnour Elected

The veteran incumbent, Thornton W. Rodgers, was returned to the office of mayor of Emmitsburg by a sound majority in Monday's town election. Persuaded at the deadline for filing, to re-enter his candidacy after he declared he wouldn't seek office this year, Rodgers easily triumphed over his rival, J. Norman Flax, by three-to-one. Mayor Rodgers has been in local public office intermittently for the past two decades.

In the official tabulation, as released by the two judges of election, J. Everett Chrimer and Charles D. Gillelan, the following was the count: For mayor, T. W. Rodgers, 136; J. Norman Flax, 45; Thomas Bollinger, 1; Louis Rosensteel, 1, and David L. Neighbours, 1.

In the race for the commission-ship, the incumbent, Wales E. Rightnour, who was unopposed in the election, was returned to that office by a vote of 132. Other votes, written-in, for the office included Cloyd W. Seiss, 26; Henry Troxell 1, Charles D. Gillelan, 9; George L. Wilhite, 1, and Joseph Hoke, 1. One ballot was declared invalid.

The total vote in Monday's election was 183. Emmitsburg has a registration total of 408. There appeared this year a little more interest in the local election than in the past two years when in 1951 only 112 votes were cast. In 1952, the tally was raised to 132.

Voting was considered light as there were no major issues at stake in the election.

The town council now consists of Mayor T. W. Rodgers, Commissioners Thomas J. Frailey, Charles R. Fuss, and Wales E. Rightnour. The new officials have within 10 days to qualify for their offices and will take the oath of office before Magistrate Charles D. Gillelan.

The cooperating farmers will release the young pheasants as they grow into maturity. The eggs was the second such gift from the State in the past six weeks, the first being 39 adult pheasants.

New members joining the sportsmen club were Harry Scott, Dr. O. H. Stinson, Clarence Watcher, C. C. Combs, and Jennings Frock.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $573.95.

Charles D. Gillelan Reappointed

Charles D. Gillelan was reappointed to the office of Justice of the Peace by Governor Theodore McKeldin. The office, designated as trial magistrate in Emmitsburg, will be held for two years beginning the first Monday in May 1953 and terminating the first Monday in May, 1955.

During the past two years which Mr. Gillelan has just completed as magistrate, the dockets show he has made decisions in 13 civil cases, 124 criminal cases, and 586 motor vehicle cases, making a total of 723 cases tried before him in the past two years.

LESS AID AND MORE TRADE

The Eisenhower Administration faces its greatest test to date as hearings were started this week on the twin problems of world trade and aid. Its top brass will attempt to persuade congressional committees to accept a new foreign economic policy based on less aid and more trade.

Paradoxically, the Administration is expected to find more sympathy for this policy among the Democratic opposition than within its own party. That is because the Democrats have traditionally supported the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act—keystone of a more liberal world trade policy—while the stiffest opposition to this act has always come from high tariff elements of the Republican party.

The protectionists within the GOP are prepared to put up another stiff fight against modification of the act, which expires on June 12, or against extending it in its present form.

The Democrats, however, have indicated that they will go along with the Administration's proposals to reduce foreign aid if the Trade Agreements Act is extended for a year without change, as the President has advocated.

The position of the Administration, as accepted by Democratic leaders, impresses us as the most sensible approach to a stronger free world.

If the President's proposed reduction in foreign spending is to be approved, as we hope it will be, then it should be offset by action aimed at making it easier for our foreign allies to do business in the great American market. Otherwise, the dollar gap between America and its friends will widen and our allies will have no alternative but to do more business with Russia and its satellites. After all, they have to get from some source the materials essential to the industries we have helped them rebuild. And they have to have markets for their production.

There are only two ways for our allies to obtain the dollars they need in order to buy from us. One is through foreign aid—loans or gifts. The other is through world trade. The latter is much the more preferable if our allies are to maintain their freedom and self-respect.

Since the last world war, the U. S. has kept its allies propped up through more than $30,000,000,000 of foreign aid. It would be dangerously delusive to pretend that aid on such a gigantic scale can suddenly be cut off entirely. It seems inevitable that we must continue to provide aid in one form or another on a reduced scale, as the President has proposed.

At the same time, more trade should be encouraged to offset the reduction in aid. The slogan "trade, not aid" has been trumpeted so widely in recent months as to perhaps become misleading. It does not seem likely that world trade can wholly eliminate the need of all foreign aid any time soon. But surely a better balance should be established between the two procedures and that is what the Eisenhower Administration would like to do.

BEVERAGE CHILLING

During party seasons the freezer unit can be utilized to quickly chill a case of beverages. The bottle beverages must not be allowed to go too near the freezing point, however. Salads can be quickly chilled in the unit, too, when no space is available in the refrigerator.

SEPARATE FOODS

It is wise to keep separated the frozen foods and unfrozen packages ready for freezing. Stack the frozen foods in the center of the freezer and place the unfrozen packages around the sides so they come in contact with the bottom and sides of the freezer whenever possible.

As used by archeologists, the word artifact refers to a product of human workmanship, especially of simple primitive art.

The first modern detective story appeared a little more than 100 years ago, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

MOTHER'S DAY

Along The Potomac

Marylanders in the House and Senate had the opportunity last week to give short talks at the congressional dinner given by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce during its annual convention in the Capital.

Talking to such a large group of business executives, I could not resist giving my views on certain fundamental issues affecting the economic welfare of our country.

To begin with, I believe the Eisenhower Administration and a majority of congressmen are pledged to redirect our steps toward preservation of free enterprise. Many controls and restrictions on private enterprise have been removed and more will be lifted from the burden businessmen have had to carry these last two decades.

Government's true role as an umpire, rather than a manager of the team, is regaining recognition. Responsibility to lead in making economic decisions is being tossed back into the hands of businessmen. They must make and enforce their own rules to keep our economy in high gear.

Our Constitution and basic laws won't permit the Government itself to lapse into socialism or communism, but this could happen if we, as free individuals, fail to make intelligent and unselfish decisions.

Our economy can roll smoothly and prosperously without the aid of Government crutches, but this means hard work, enlightened foresight and keen awareness of responsibility by our free businessmen.

If the Eisenhower Administration fails in its restoration of faith in businessmen, I think two things are certain: First, the next administration will go further "left" than any we've had

Pomona Grange Seeks Retention Of Weather Station

At a meeting of the Frederick County Pomona Grange held in Emmitsburg last Saturday, members of the organization went on record as favoring the retention of the Weather Bureau station at the Municipal Airport, Frederick, unless identical information can be made available from the station at Camp Detrick. This group of farm folk feel that the services received from the station are of inestimable value to them, particularly during hay making season. The agenda of the morning session included reports on the activities of the subordinate Granges during the past three months and of standing committees. The reports from the Juvenile Granges were very encouraging and it was reported that a new Juvenile Grange had recently been organized at Braddock.

Chairman of the banquet committee, Miss Frances Darnier said that the National Master Herschel Newsom will be the speaker at the meeting which will be held October 29.

The flower show which was staged in conjunction with the quarterly meeting was a success, with quite a few entries in both classes of center table and side table arrangements. The prizes of potted plants were awarded in this manner; dining table, first to Sylvia Eyer of Lewistown; second to Frances Darnier of Midletown; honorable mention, Elsie Weamert, Thurmont. In the side table arrangements first prize went to Mrs. L. H. Remsburg of Glade Valley and second to Mrs. Ruby Gaither, Linganore.

The host Grange, Emmitsburg, served luncheon and during this hour Mrs. R. C. Ervine, state chairman of the Needlework Guild of America, spoke to the women.

The afternoon program was highlighted by an address from Rev. Gideon Galombos, local pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Rev. Galombos, a native of Czechoslovakia, and who has been here only a short time, stated "we are living in a critical world. There has never been a climax as critical as the one in 1953. The new Russian dictator of 800,000,000 people is an expert in torture.

Rev. Mr. Galombos said there is only one kind of freedom, the spiritual freedom which is in the hearts of people who believe in the living God."

The musical numbers on the afternoon program were a vocal duet by Helen Martin and Robert Simpson; trumpet solo by Paul Dern; vocal solo, Richard Frock and a piano duet by Virginia Baumgardner and Gwenda Cregger.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO AUTOMOBILE OWNERS

Effective JUNE 1, 1953, the Maryland Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Law will provide that certification of automobile coverage on SR-21 forms (the kind that must be sent to the Department of Motor Vehicles, following an accident in which your car is involved and total damages to both cars amounts to $75.00 or more) must indicate that the Bodily Injury limits be at least $10,000/$20,000, whereas the present requirements are for $5,000/$10,000.

Property Damage requirement is now $5,000 instead of $1,000, but this presents no problem as nearly all policies now carry at least $5,000 Property Damage coverage.

Minimum Damage necessary before provisions of Act apply have been changed from $50.00 to $75.00.

In view of this requirement, all automobile policies should be written for at least $10,000/$20,000 Bodily Injury on and after June 1, 1953. As a service to our clients this office will as routine furnish endorsements, without further notice, on all automobile policies with limits under $10,000/$20,000 Bodily Injury, so that they will comply with the required limit, effective June 1, 1953.

If any further information is desired regarding this change in the Law, please call at our office or telephone 32.

"One for all and all for one"

This famous motto of the Three Musketeers brought them safely through many adventures. Usually they were able to survive great peril only by dramatic teamwork. Of course, their adventures were purely fictional, but teamwork can give real-life drama a happy ending too. Lives can be saved by considerate party-line users who give up their lines to others in an emergency.

Do it the easy way →

Remember the story of the fellow who loaded his mule with a sack of potatoes on one side and balanced it with a sack of stones on the other. He made many trips this way until someone suggested that it might be more efficient to balance the first sack with another sack of potatoes.

There's a more efficient way to make Long Distance calls too. When you give the operator the telephone number, instead of just the name and address of the person you want, your calls go through faster.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL
U. S. Senator from Maryland

We Americans are great ones to draw comparisons, but our fault lies too often in comparing things which are dissimilar.

Right now in almost every newspaper and magazine you see comparisons between the first one hundred days of Eisenhower's administration and the first 100 days of the Roosevelt administration, especially to insinuate that the Eisenhower administration has moved slowly, that the anticipated "change" has not yet occurred. It is said that the Roosevelt group in its first 100 days had its New Deal well underway, and that in comparison it appears the Eisenhower administration has not yet begun to move.

Are the comparisons being made valid? Has the Eisenhower administration actually been too slow in effecting the "change" which was expected by the public? The first days of the Roosevelt administration were typified by a rash of legislation—some of questionable merit—but the people were aware that things had changed. President Hoover had been immobilized by a Democratic Congress and Roosevelt, with a huge majority, was able to get Congress to act swiftly on measures he requested. The American people, and many members of Congress, grew accustomed to the President sending great stacks of bills over to the Capitol to meet any emergency, or to avoid what was feared to be an impending crisis.

In such an atmosphere, all kinds of legislation, was hurriedly enacted under threat that a day's delay would bring disaster. Much such hurried legislation was later found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

But the country was suffering a severe economic upheaval and the public generally looked with approval on any prompt action intended to cure the depression. President Eisenhower faced no similar situation when he was inaugurated on Jan. 20. Our economy was threatened by inflation, taxes were at such a level as to be confiscatory, public confidence in government was at an all time low. But these problems were not the type that could be remedied by giving the country a physic of new legislation. The immediate problem of the Eisenhower administration is that of providing leadership to the free world in order to avoid war. On the success of our foreign relations our domestic progress depends.

The President has taken dynamic action in meeting the immediate problems, but the American people anticipating an atomic upheaval in Washington have not yet felt the full impact of the changes made.

Our economy has now been decontrolled, and considering that it took 20 years to get it regimented the decontrol process has been remarkably fast. The effect on our economy has not been immediate.

In April 16, the President announced the Administration's foreign policy. The speech might have been given earlier if the death of Stalin had not changed the world situation from Jan. 20.

President Eisenhower proclaimed a positive program for peace, if the Russians want to accept it, and a determination to not quietly acquiesce to Communist aggression. More time must elapse before changes resulting from these new policies are evident.

Comparisons can be misleading and it might be wise for us to take a look around us—I think we will find that President Eisenhower has charted the course of the Ship of State, and the passengers are moving along the course laid out, whether or not they are aware that the ship is underway.

$13.40 on alfalfa hay, $9.20 on soybeans, $9.00 on wheat, and $5.40 on barley. Figures in each case are with fertilizer cost deducted.

Applying 600 pounds of fertilizer per acre instead of the present average of 250 pounds, would bring the average corn yield from the present 41 bushels per acre to 65 bushels, the agronomists report. The value of the corn, with cost of fertilizer deducted, would be increased from $58.10 to $86 per acre, at current prices.

Make the Shoe Fit

By Dr. Benjamin Kauth

Director, American Foot Care Institute

Observance of National Foot Health Week, May 16-23, is a good reminder that your feet are an important part of your body, and as such will appreciate a little care. Or perhaps your feet have reminded you already!

The foot is a delicate piece of body machinery, made up of 26 different bones and several times that many ligaments. No wonder such a complex mechanism tires and pains when poorly shod. Or worse yet, it gets out of alignment and sets up a chain reaction of complaints ranging from back pains to headaches. Foot troubles usually come from faulty shoes.

When buying new shoes, make sure of two things: that the shoes fit properly, and that they contain no materials which may injure the feet or make them uncomfortable. Foot specialists recommend light, flexible all-leather shoes.

Leather uppers and soles have been found to be an important factor in foot health, because the fibrous structure of leather permits the foot to "breathe" and evaporate perspiration—at the same time that it provides necessary firmness and support.

Here are a few simple rules to follow when buying your next pair of shoes:

Have both feet measured in a

Flexible all-leather shoes help preserve foot health.

standing position. Take the size called for by the longer of the two feet, since nearly all people have feet of unequal size. See that the widest part of the foot rests comfortably at the widest part of the shoe. Make sure that there is at least one-half inch of space between your toe and the tip of the shoe.

Knowledge is Power

1. DOES AGE INCREASE REGARD FOR RELIGION?

2. ARE GERMAN-MADE CARS SOLD IN THE U.S.?

3. DOES SMOKING HARM YOUR HEALTH?

(1) A professional opinion-research firm found that it does. In a nationwide survey of adults sponsored by The Catholic Digest, Ben Gaffin and Associates found that 95 per cent of the persons questioned who were 65 years of age or older considered religion very important or fairly important in their lives. The survey revealed, further, that regard for religion diminishes among younger adults until we have, in the 18-to-24 age group, 20 per cent fewer who consider religion important. The survey results are analyzed in the February Catholic Digest.

(2) About 1,500 Volkswagens were sold here in 1952. About 135,000 cars will be built this year in the auto plant at Wolfsburg in the British zone of Germany. In 1938, reports the Wall Street Journal, Adolf Hitler announced his plan for a cheap German car. Thousands of Germans made advance down payments, and the $110 million collected by the government was spent to build a factory. But shortly after the plant was built, the 2nd World War began. Not a single investor received a car. The plant was almost totally destroyed by bombing; but, after the war, a few engineers repaired the machinery and began making cars.

(3) It has been pretty well established that smoking injures your health slightly. Whether or not smoking causes serious harm is still a matter of debate among scientists, according to The Kiplinger Magazine. Most cigarette manufacturers spend a great deal of our time and their money trying to convince us that smoking never hurts us. Almost all cigarette advertising is completely phony, and quite silly; yet we accept it because a smoker really wants someone to tell him that smoking is a pleasant harmless habit. It isn't. However, it is not known definitely that smoking causes serious harm either.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mite Society of Trinity Methodist Church was held in the parish hall of the Thurmont Methodist Church last Friday evening, as guests of Rev. and Mrs. Byron H. The entertainment program featured a biblical quiz conducted by Rev. Keesecker. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bell on May 22. The members decided to discontinue meetings of the society during the summer months of June, July and August.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON
BUSINESS SUCCESS
BABSON PARK, Mass., May 7—About 22 million young people are currently enrolled in graduate high school. Of these, about seven million can be expected to attend high school. Of these high school students, two million will go to college, and even fewer will actually graduate therefrom. This means that of the 22 million grammar school pupils only nine per cent will complete their education by going on to a state university or other college.

As one who has founded three colleges which are successfully teaching business administration, I want now to talk to the approximately 70 per cent who will be quitting high school and will not attempt a college education. I further add to these the many millions more who have quit, during the past 10 years but are still young enough to learn.

Importance of Typewriting

I hope that every reader is proficient in reading, arithmetic, spelling and typewriting. If you are not, it is your own fault. No one needs even a high school education to get these fundamentals. If you are not proficient in these four subjects, you had better go to night school and catch up. If you have not a typewriter, you had better buy one at once. Very few who cannot operate a typewriter get good jobs.

What I am about to say is not a criticism of college degrees. They are worth what they cost in time and money. I am a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and am proud of it. Those four years taught me "to do what I didn't want to do when I didn't want to do it," which is one important fundamental of success. I further highly commend night schools, correspondence courses and many other forms of extension education which are open today.

How To Get A College Education Free

But here is my real message: Any industrious and spiritually minded person can get the equivalent of a college education by referring each day to four books: (1) the Short Bible, published by the University of Chicago; (2) Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, published by the G. & C. Merriam Co.; (3) How to Live, published by Funk & Wagnalls, New York, and (4) any standard encyclopedia. All these books can be ordered through your local book store. Probably there are other books which cover the same ground. I have no direct or indirect financial or other interest in these four except to use them daily.

I wish especially to say something about encyclopedia sets. I believe they offer the greatest value for their cost of anything you can buy if you will use one every day. If I were an unemployed young man, I would get a job selling encyclopedias and work up until I was general sales manager of the company. It is a work into which I could put every ounce of strength and intelligence. In fact, I would offer the above four books in one package as a "college education."

Every Job Offers

Great Opportunities

I was once employed by the Curtis Publishing Co. to discover some kind of industry—from the manufacture of baby foods to coffins—in which no one had yet made a million dollars! I utterly failed to find such an industry. Furthermore, I found that the heads of these successful businesses had come up through different departments—some as stenographers, some as bookkeepers, some as salesmen, some a "common laborer" at the bench. Some of them had been very poor; some were crippled; and most of them had no college education. But many of them used each day the four above-mentioned books or their equivalent.

It is important that you get into the department for which you are best fitted; but every job in every industry offers a great future to those with character, industry, initiative, and persistence. I care not whether you are white or black, poor or well-to-do, married or single, young or old, with or without a college education, every reader of this column has great opportunities today.

Driving Through Water is Not the Time to Make a "Big Splash"

PHOTOS BY CHEVROLET MOTOR DIVISION

Although today's automobile has progressed far beyond the point where a severe spring rain will stall the engine, it still is not an amphibious vehicle.

Failure of the engine to bring you through normal flood waters, which might cover highways, can be attributed mostly to water on the ignition system caused by splashing. Today's engines are better equipped to combat excessive moisture and driving through water, by the use of such things as improved rubber housings on the spark plug terminals.

These pictures show the splash effect when a car "plows" into a seven-inch depth on a flooded highway.

At 20 m.p.h., the water shoots high, completely drenching the underneath part of the car. At 3 m.p.h., the forward motion of the car creates a small wave running ahead of the front bumper, with control of the vehicle greatly improved.

When you encounter an inundated highway, slow your car down and approach with caution. As a safety tip, on driving through flooded areas, remember to try out your brakes at slow speed immediately after reaching dry ground. When wet brakes do not respond to pedal action, mod brake-pedal down moderately with left foot, while right foot feeds enough power to carry car forward and dry out brakes. This action, over a few hundred yards, should restore your brakes to safe driving condition.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By G. WILSON HARDER

That old, but still unsolved question "Which comes first, the chicken or the egg" is being argued in Washington.

The question "Shall we cut taxes now, or balance the budget first?"

There are two camps within the republican party. President Eisenhower has told Congress tax cuts must wait until the budget is balanced.

But Congressman C. W. Harder (N.Y., GOP) takes the stand the only way to balance the budget is to cut government spending. And the way to cut government spending, is to give government less money to spend.

Popular sentiment appears to be behind Congressman Harder's viewpoint. Not only are campaign promises on tax reductions recalled, but everyone knows whenever income falls, budgets are cut automatically. This is a principle they feel should be applied to government affairs.

The entire question throws into the limelight the big job: reducing Federal employment. No one in Washington today knows whose job, whose salary is justified. A military operation called "Operation Meat Axe" is felt to be the only solution.

Here are hard facts.

Today, the yearly payroll for all the armed forces, including men in Korea, is $9,200,000,000. Yet the yearly payroll for 2,383,400 Federal civil employees is $9,600,000,000 per year. This figure does not include the legislative or judicial branches of the government, or unknown thousands of employees abroad.

© National Federation of Independent Business

The end of controls should reduce this payroll to some extent, but there is a feeling in Washington that more severe pruning could save billions in taxes per year.

But it is a vague sort of a feeling. No one knows just exactly where to start chopping.

In the meantime, independent businessmen are generally heartened by Administration's recognition that present tax laws are unfair to small business.

Independent businessmen generally believe that no business can stand still and survive. A business either grows or perishes. The concern of small businessmen on present taxation is not so much about their present take-home income, but the amount of money left from profits to be put back into business.

At the present time, many independent businessmen can only make progress by heavy borrowing.

Independent businessmen, generally, do not seek a tax advantage which will increase their personal incomes at the expense of other groups. But in order to continue in business, and to create more employment which will be needed to take up the slack when war industries end, does require a tax revision to permit them to invest more of their earnings into expansion.

Since Korea, many huge corporations were granted a special war emergency tax relief amounting to billions of dollars to build new facilities for use in defense work now, for civilian operations later on.

But independent businessmen feel now is the time to grant tax relief for the coming peacetime emergency. As always, independent business must furnish the majority of the employment if a depression is to be avoided.

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON—The roads you drive on are the subject of an argument in Congress that promises to grow hotter by the week.

The main question involved is whether the states should have a bigger role and the Federal government a smaller one in the planning and financing of highways.

That is a basic issue in the whole matter of Federal-state relations.

The state governors want a bigger highway role for the states.

But the mayors of many large cities do not agree with them and want the Federal government to continue with its present function in this field undiminished.

Members of Congress are divided on the issue but the majority appears to favor continued Federal participation in highway development.

The debate is being conducted before a House Public Works subcommittee of which Rep. J. Harry McGregor (R.-Ohio) is chairman.

The subcommittee is studying the general subject of the Federal government's participation in highway development instead of concentrating its hearings on specific legislation.

This is the background of the debate:

About the time the automobile was getting started toward its present popularity, the Federal Aid Road Act of 1916 initiated Federal aid for highways. Since then, that aid has been financed from direct Congressional appropriations with no tie, direct or indirect, to any particular revenue source.

Then in the depression years of 1932 a Federal tax of one cent per gallon was levied on gasoline to raise additional revenue. It later was increased to one and one-half cents and subsequently to the present two cents.

The revenue from that tax has come to be associated in many Congressional minds with the Federal aid for highways program. However, the revenue from the tax is not earmarked exclusively for highway aid and that is a sore point with the governors. The two-cent tax will bring in about $900 million this year, while the current Federal highway aid authorization is $500 million.

Many of the state governors feel that because Congress is not appropriating the equivalent of the revenue from the Federal gasoline tax, the two-cent tax should be turned over to the states for their use in highway development.

McGregor says that would bring an end to Federal highway aid.

Others contend that there should be no connection between a Federal gasoline tax and Congressional highway aid appropriations. They point out that Congress was appropriating for highway aid long before the Federal gasoline tax was levied.

There are those in Congress, including McGregor, who feel the entire revenue from the Federal gasoline tax should be devoted to highway aid.

Still others in Congress feel that highway aid should receive total revenues — amounting to about $2 billion this year—from Federal excise taxes on not only gasoline but also on motor vehicles, parts and accessories, tires, tubes and lubricating oil. Bills to that effect have been introduced by Rep. John C. Kluczynski (D.-Ill.) and Senators Warren G. Magnuson (D.-Wash.) and Harley M. Kilgore (D.-W. Va.)

The main reason that the big city mayors do not agree with the governors on highway development is that they feel the large cities do not get a fair share of state gasoline tax revenues. Traffic on city streets is responsible for half of all gasoline tax revenues but the cities do not get half of the revenues to finance their street repairs.

The other side of that argument is that the highways approaching and connecting the cities also must be repaired and improved.

City executives of Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston and other large cities are urging that the total revenues of the Federal gasoline tax be devoted to highway aid, and a larger share of the aid earmarked for cities.

Under the present Federal program, cities get one-fourth of the $500 million annual authorization, with the rest going for primary highways and farm-to-market roads.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, April 29 — Word is expected shortly from the weather bureau of the Dept. of Commerce on the future of the Frederick weather station.

Following reports that the station would be shut down June 1, I wrote to the bureau outlining the high value of the station to farmers, businessmen and residents of the Frederick area, who depend on it for valuable, money-saving information.

Closing the station, I said, would save a very tiny amount of money. It would deprive fruit growers, for instance, of the means of obtaining quick information on frost prospects, leaving every chance for unexpected destruction.

There are ways, and it has been demonstrated, of saving tax money without hurting the people.

Half a billion dollars already has been chopped from next year's government expenses by the House of Representatives!

It is difficult to imagine how much money that is, but this action is what the Republican party pledged itself to, and what the people of the United States overwhelmingly voted for, in last year's campaign.

The reductions were made in the okaying of money for some of the smaller agencies in the Federal government, in a bill called the Independent Offices Appropriation Bill.

There may be some people who will be affected through this reduction in the government payroll, and they will complain bitterly. But this one action can save more than $3 for every man, woman, child and infant in the country.

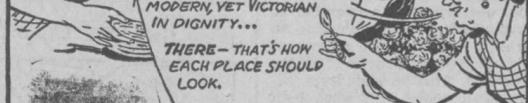

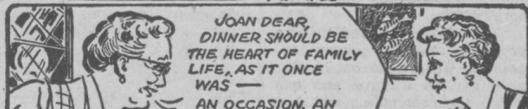

Certain activities or services conducted by the agencies affected in this economy measure may have to be dropped. Then it will be up to the people to decide whether they are important enough to ask state or local governments to take them over.

It is my opinion that this is one of the gravest issues of our time—one that must be resolved by this Republican administration: Should we continue to surrender, away from the people and to the Federal government, the responsibilities undertaken in the past by local governments?

During the decades of the New Deal and the Fair Deal we were frightened into doing this by a shaky economy. We gave away our local responsibility, and once you give something away it's hard to get it back.

But when I sit in Congress now, I see around me a body of men and women whose courage and integrity will, I think, dispose them to keeping the Federal government only in that kind of work which is absolutely necessary.

New Car Insurance Effective June 1

Charles S. Jackson, State Insurance Commissioner, wishes to call the attention of all owners and operators of motor vehicles to the enactment of Senate Bill No. 4 which becomes effective on June 1, 1953 and which changes the law with respect to the financial responsibility of all owners and operators of motor vehicles.

In order to comply with the provisions of the new Act, Commissioner Jackson advises that on and after June 1 automobile liability insurance policies providing bodily injury and property damage coverage must give the following minimum protection: $10,000 because of bodily injury to, or death of, one person in any one accident and $20,000 because of bodily injury to, or death of two or more persons in any one accident, and $5,000 because of injury to, or destruction of, property of others in any one accident.

Commissioner Jackson further states that if present policies do not meet these requirements, it is necessary to have policies endorsed on or before June 1, so that they will provide at least the minimum statutory coverage required. Otherwise, insurance companies will be unable to file certificates of financial responsibility for their policyholders. A policy cannot be endorsed after an accident occurs.

Calm Man of Labor

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Labor Martin P. Durkin believes that labor and management should not look to the government to resolve their disputes. "Our goal in America," he said to me, "should be greater cooperation between labor and management through free collective bargaining, with government being used only as an aid in mediation and conciliation when all else has failed."

The new Secretary of Labor has a hard-headed conception of what is meant by the terms "cooperation" and "when all else has failed." As a journeyman pipe fitter he came up through the ranks of union labor and for 20 years served as president of the United Assn. of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipe Fitting Industry. In his union, "cooperation" meant a willingness to go far beyond the point at which so many collective bargaining efforts stall and government intervention seems to be the only, last resort.

A "Labor Council" Since it seems to me to be a plan that could be used in almost any labor-management situation, I asked Mr. Durkin to explain the "extra" collection bargaining effort made in the plumbing industry. "In the beginning, the bargain with employers as any other union does," he said. "When some phase of the negotiation breaks down and we hit what seems to be an immovable deadlock, each side then prepares a written statement of its contentions and its arguments, and the whole thing is given over to our Labor Council. Its decision is accepted as binding by both sides."

"The Labor Council is a group of people, jointly appointed, who reside outside the area of the dispute and can weigh the contentions and arguments dispassionately, neutrally, objectively. The significant thing is that often when one side or the other is writing up its statement to be submitted to the Council, it finds its own stand so vulnerable to compromise that it decides to relent—and thus an agreement is reached without use of the Council. This is significant because it shows that when both sides make a truly serious effort at give-and-take bargaining they can usually get together. There are exceptions, of course."

Understanding and Trust The interview with Secretary Durkin was another of the series to acquaint the readers of our column with the background and thinking of the key people in the Eisenhower administration. I told him of the effort being made through the Harding College Freedom Forums to bring about better labor-management relations and asked him in his opinion what further we could do in this vitally important objective. "Of course," he said, "a constant striving for mutual understanding and trust is essential. Great improvement is being made. As a matter of fact, we seldom see newspaper stories reporting on harmonious labor-management relations, yet thousands of industries, big and little, carry on collective bargaining year in and year out without a hitch. The conflicts are dramatized, and yet they affect only a small percentage of the total work force."

Under his administration the Dept. of Labor will seek to improve its research and statistical facilities serving the public, labor and management. It will be operated within the basic social philosophy which governs the Eisenhower administration.

The Challenge "The challenge to us in America today," Secretary Durkin contends, "is to increase our inventions; to stimulate scientific progress, and to raise still higher the standards of physical well-being. Likewise, too, the challenge which faces America today is to maintain and improve its spiritual values. This is the path of hope and of success. In the face of our enemy, we must not look backward at our shortcomings, but we must look ahead to our goals. Communism rose on poverty of materials and poverty of spirit. It is only common sense, therefore, to expand our production of wealth and increase our belief in God."

Common sense is one of Martin Durkin's chief assets.

Another is his faith. These have been basic ingredients in the building of America. As Secretary of Labor, Mr. Durkin, at 59, has one of the most important posts in our government. His mature calmness, his personal inclination toward respecting and trusting his fellow man, and his profound faith in the basic principles of the American way of life combine to make for good leadership in our nation's capital.

Airman Paul Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanders, spent the weekend visiting his parents here. He is stationed at Sampson Air Base, N. Y.

Ex-Minister, 73, To Be Ordained To Priesthood Soon

The Rev. Floyd Keeler, 73-year-old convert and former Episcopal minister, will be ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood on May 9 by the Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, bishop of Richmond. The ordination will take place in the Sacred Heart Cathedral, Richmond, Va., and Fr. Keeler will serve in the diocese of Richmond.

Born in 1880 at Mt. Vernon, Ind., Fr. Keeler was educated in the public schools at Iowa and California. In 1895 the family moved to Virginia and he entered Randolph Macon Academy at Bedford, Va. Completing his preparatory work, Fr. Keeler decided to enter Roanoke College, Salem, Va., to begin his studies for the Episcopal ministry. He received his A.B. from Roanoke in 1901 and his A.M. in 1904.

Following graduation from Roanoke College, he entered the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church in New York from which he received his S.T.B. and he was ordained an Episcopal minister in 1904.

After ordination he served 12 years in the Episcopal ministry in Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Maryland, and Kansas. His last appointment was that of archdeacon in Kansas, a position of considerable importance and authority.

Meanwhile he had married, in 1908, Isabelle Emory, who preceded him into the Catholic Church and later distinguished herself as a fiction writer for the Catholic Press.

In 1916 Fr. Keeler was received into the Catholic Church at St. Theresa's Church, Hutchinson, Kan. Through the efforts of the later Fr. Paul James Francis, S.A., with whom he had been in constant correspondence and who had resolved many of his doubts, he accepted a position at the Graymoor House of Atonement, Garrison, N. Y., where he taught in the House of Studies and supervised the dairy farm.

A year later, in 1917, Fr. Keeler accepted a position with the Catholic Mission House at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C. When the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade was established in 1918, he was named its first field secretary and founded many of the early units of the new organization. However, he still retained his position also with the Apostolic Mission House.

Between 1922-25 Fr. Keeler taught Greek and English at Ven-ard College, the Maryknoll Preparatory Seminary at Clarks Summit, Pa. In 1925 he became field secretary of the Catholic Union—a society founded by the late Rev. Augustine von Galen, O.S.B., to effect the reunion of the separated Eastern Churches with Rome. When that society was merged with the Catholic Near East Welfare Assn. in 1926 he became director of publicity for the latter. In 1943 severe illness forced his retirement.

In 1947, Mrs. Keeler died and thereafter he returned to Virginia where he lived with his sisters and regained his health.

After lengthy consideration Fr. Keeler, on the advice of the late Msgr. William J. Meredith of Lynchburg, Va., made application for acceptance as a candidate for the priesthood in the diocese of Richmond.

Accepted and greatly encouraged by Bishop Ireton, Fr. Keeler was sent to Mt. St. Mary's Seminary, Emmitsburg, in 1952, where he completed his theological studies.

On May 2, 1952, he received deaconate and subdeaconate from Bishop Ireton in Sacred Heart Cathedral. He will say his first Mass at St. Mary's Church, Bedford, Va., on Sunday.

He has five children, one a Franciscan Sister of Atonement; 15 grandchildren, one a Christian brother; and three great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMahon and twin daughters, of McSherrystown, spent the weekend with Mrs. McMahon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Deatherage.

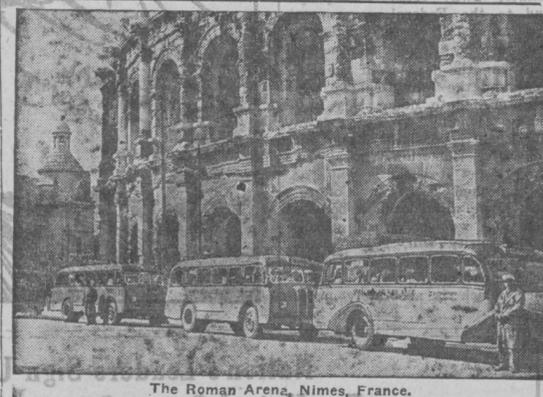

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shorb and family, Blue Ridge Summit, spent Saturday evening visiting Mrs. Robert Topper.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Washbaugh, Annandale, Va., were weekend visitors of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Humerick.

From France—With Love

The Roman Arena, Nimes, France.

The summer in France is a joy complete. For June and July, this year, I have planned a holiday trip that will embrace three old cities in the south of France. I suspect that the theater festivals are only an excuse, because Nimes, Carcassonne, and Avignon are fascinating.

For five days in June (13-17), a festival of music, dance, and drama will be held at Nimes. This imposing old town, a provincial Rome in the days of the Caesars, still holds games, bullfights, and stage performances in its Roman arena.

Then in early July (5-12), I will be in Carcassonne. One of the last of the old fortified cities in Europe, Carcassonne is as different from Nimes as the Roman world was from the Dark Ages that constructed its massive walls. The stage performances will be given in the ancient theater within the fortress.

While you almost expect to see a knight in armor on the walls of Carcassonne, at Avignon you will be a little disappointed not to meet a troubadour. In the 1300's when the age of chivalry flourished, Pope Clement VI removed the Papal See from Rome to Avignon. Here in the Papal Gardens, maintained in their beauty as the Popes envisaged them, the drama festival unfolds from July 15-25.

Marguerite Villars.

Paris in the Spring Is Fair Time

The annual Paris International Fair . . . May 9th through 25th . . . is a "must" for visitors from all over the world. For good reason, too, since in the 125 acre landscaped park at the Porte de Versailles there are 12,000 exhibits from 34 countries in modern buildings and gaily decorated salons.

Colorful displays of unique household equipment, amusing and decorative toys, exquisite perfumes, cosmetics, jewelry, furniture, fashions, modern mining methods, electrical machinery and sampling of famous vintage wines and other delicacies are a tourist's delight.

If two minutes were spent at each exhibit it would take fifteen days to see everything at the Paris Fair, but an exciting day or days, as time permits, would be well spent at this picturesque park. Here in true European atmosphere the visitor can stroll up and down broad avenues and mingle with spectators from the four corners of the world.

Your Personal Health

"NEVER TOUCH IT"
"I like lobster, but lobster doesn't like me."

You have heard that statement, or similar ones. Maybe you have laughed at it. But allergy is no joke. Doctors take it seriously. Allergic diseases are seldom fatal, but the symptoms are always distressing. Sometimes there is so much discomfort that work, sleep, appetite, and recreation are interfered with and general health suffers.

Allergy is sensitivity, or hypersensitivity, to substances which are harmless to most people. About one person in 10 is allergic to something. The substances that cause allergy are called allergens, and there are hundreds, even thousands of possibilities: pollens, house dust, furs, various foods, feathers, cosmetics, drug, and even heat, cold and sunlight. The most common allergic diseases are hay fever, asthma, skin disorders like hives, and stomach and intestinal disturbances.

These diseases are not imaginary. If you have allergic symptoms, you should get medical advice both for immediate relief and future protection. The doctor can make tests to discover the allergens which are causing trouble. Sometimes this is easy, but frequently it requires great patience.

Once the causes are discovered, you can learn to avoid the troublemakers as much as possible. Drugs may be prescribed to ease the symptoms. In some cases, injections, medicines, and vaccines are given to desensitize the patient. You may need help in ironing out emotional conflicts such as worry, fear, or anger which have a strong influence on allergic disorders. With complete cooperation with your doctor, you will be able to save yourself from years of unnecessary suffering and disability.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Efforts to bring wheat production records up to date on Maryland farms will be undertaken immediately, according to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing State Committee. The job will be done through personal contacts with wheat growers by representatives of the county PMA committees. Production data will be needed in order to establish acreage allotments for the crop of wheat to go in the ground this fall, according to Mr. Martin.

Acreage planted to wheat for harvest as grain for cover crop and for harvest as hay or pasture will be needed for the years 1951, 1952, and 1953. Farmers will be asked to give this information to the farm reporters. Acreage planted to wheat mixtures will also be needed, Mr. Martin stated.

Work will be completed by June 1 and the allotments will be prepared ready for mailing by July 1 when announcement is expected from the Secretary of Agriculture on whether allotments will be in effect, whether we will have allotments and quotas with a grower referendum on the quota question, or whether supplies will not necessitate any limitation on production of the crop for harvest next year.

My Neighbors By BILL PAULSON. It's been my experience, Junior, that people who "throw-the-book at you" haven't even read it!

"COMME CI; COMME CA" Are we headed for destruction since we moved the old obstruction, That hitherto had slow the traffic down. Will the speed be unabated of those speeders who have hated, When they speed as though they own our lovely town. Will the Square be devastated through the hazard we created? When we know some don't care for either limb or life. Will there be heartaches and sorrow here today or on the morrow, When they hit your darling children or your wife; Will some buildings fall asunder with a crash of nearby thunder, Will debris be strewn upon the sidewalks and the street; Will the wrecks be badly tangled and the bodies badly mangled, When speeders or their ilk, do chance to meet? My nerves are badly shaken, though I hope I am mistaken, As I look into the future like a seer. Yes I know I am embittered by the Square with wreckage littered, And Satan standing gazing with a leer! —HOMER

FACTS ABOUT THE Farm Animal

Cure-Alls Don't Exist There is no question that healthy swine do best on good feed, but there is today a growing misconception that some so-called wonder feeds are cure-alls. The Maryland Veterinary Medical Association is now attempting to show farmers that there are no cure-alls among feeds, not even when fortified with antibiotics. Good feeding builds resistance to disease—it doesn't cure disease.

Times and ideas may change, but swine still need nourishing grains, proteins (with the 10 amino acids), minerals, clean land and sanitation. If your swine fail to thrive under these conditions, they are suffering an ailment which needs medical diagnosis — not simply larger doses of antibiotics. Recently, a case came to public attention in which a farmer lost 75% of his swine before he realized "free" advice was bankrupting him. He was using a feed which had been described to him as capable of curing any intestinal disease contracted by swine. After losing 135 70-pound pigs, he sought veterinary diagnosis. Post mortems were performed and showed the need for medication. After treatment, the pigs quit scouring and there was only one further fatality. Like everything else, the raising of swine demands common sense. Give them the best of feeds and care, but when they're sick, don't guess the ailment or rely on cure-alls. There just isn't such a thing.
