—BY ABIGAIL—

One of the most devastating fires since the razing of the local Reformed Church several years ago, struck swiftly last Sunday evening at the Fairfield shoe plant and leveled that structure to the ground. While ordinarily not too much concerned over what happens elsewhere, most Emmitsburgians are concerned about this catastrophe since several hundred of our local residents commute daily there to work and it directly affects us and our community in an essential way. So dense was the smoke from the conflagration that it was visible, at points, for a distance of 10 miles. One encouraging aspect of the destructive fire is the fact that locally we all are hoping for the opening of our own shoe plant which nobody seems able to determine just when it will begin operations, but it is hoped very shortly.

It is marveled how the various fire companies from neighboring towns managed to prevent complete destruction of the whole village of Fairfield, considering the inadequate water supply, which normally is none too good. A toast to our local fire ladders who played a major role in extinguishing the conflagration and who were first on the scene with the exception, naturally, of the home hosemen, who held the fort until reinforcements arrived. Our local equipment figured prominently in quelling the blaze and the courage and skill of our firemen is to be commended. We seem almost able to cope with about any situation that arises anymore.

Our congratulations to Dan Kaas on his appointment to the position of Chief of Police. Always a level-headed and well-demeaned chap, we are of the personal opinion that the Town Council made an excellent selection in choosing Dan to fill Chief Koontz' boots. Policing in a small town doesn't seem to be too strenuous, but then, the other fellow always appears to have the "softest" job. If you only knew how many complaints an officer answers in a day or week you would be astounded. Many of the cases never get to the front pages because of their various nature, but there is a constant stream of complaints, requests, accusations, etc., that an officer must look into in the line of duty. Just because you don't happen to see him "loafing" on some street corner doesn't say necessarily that he isn't on the job. It is possible that he may be on the outskirts of town on investigation that may take several hours. We have been fortunate in obtaining good policemen in the past and I feel certain that we have made the best choice possible this time and this is not meant to detract any from the caliber of the other applicants for the position. There was a wealth of material available and local officials were hard-pressed to make a choice.

Think we local motorists are having a difficult time orienting ourselves to the new spotlight? Well we know of a certain policeman who left town with a red-face the other evening. He was a good sport about the thing and freely admitted that it caught him sleeping at the switch. Seems he didn't realize what or where he was for a second until he saw a red reflection on the hood of his car as he passed beneath the light and suddenly realized he had "crashed" the light. For your own information, your correspondent did the same darn trick recently.

The nation was severely shocked the other day when news came through that Senator Robert Taft had expired. While not on the same side of the fence, politically speaking, as the senator, I must admit that the opposition party, and the nation, has lost a good and faithful servant. A real champion of American rights, the senator was a constant crusader for laws beneficial to us all. America will miss Senator Taft whose party gave him every honor and privilege possible to bestow, but the thing he wanted most and never got, was the presidency.

Baseball Team Drops To Third; Here Sunday

Emmitsburg dropped to third position in the Pen-Mar Baseball League as the result of a defeat Sunday at the hands of Cash-town, who incidentally has upset the locals twice on the Pennsylvania diamond this season.

The game was a hard-fought affair with numerous "rhubarbs" and Umpire Herring, who was the chief target of the fans, banished no less than half a dozen from the park, including an Emmitsburg player.

The locals outthrew their enemy 10-3, but could not muster enough runs to turn the tide. Poor base running played a major role in Emmitsburg's defeat. Also contributing heavily to the downfall was the players' missing Coach Frank Apichella's signals.

The Union Bridge replay game which had its dates changed several times, is apparently off until a new date can be arranged to the mutual satisfaction of both teams, probably in the latter part of the month. Sunday's contest with Cashtown was played under protest by Emmitsburg. The protest however, later was dropped.

The locals have an opportunity to recoup their lost ground Sunday if they can master New Oxford when the Pennsylvanians come here for battle.

Union Bridge continued its undefeated way in the Pen-Mar League Sunday, blasting out a 20-1 victory over Blue Ridge Summit.

At the same time New Oxford climbed into second place in the league standing, replacing Emmitsburg, which dropped to the number three slot. New Oxford defeated Littlestown 9 to 3 while Emmitsburg lost to Cashtown 4 to 2. In the other game, Thurmont beat New Windsor, 10 to 8.

Fire Razes Fairfield Shoe Factory

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Fairfield Shoe Co. plant shortly after 3:30 o'clock last Sunday afternoon, despite the combined efforts of firefighters from eight fire companies. The loss is estimated at $1.5 million.

The conflagration will mean the loss of employment for 400 men and women that made 7200 pairs of shoes a day in the 100 by 250 foot plant.

It was reported the plant will be rebuilt just as soon as possible. A fire company official said it was covered by insurance and part of the loss was a sizable stock of leather.

Edgar W. Brown, 56, watchman at the plant, discovered the mysterious blaze. He said that he had just completed his 3:30 o'clock round of the plant, inspecting the factory and punching the time clocks. He said, "I had just reached the cutters and had turned to look back when something blew up and flames almost immediately spread all over the place. They even seemed to come out of the ceiling. I rang the fire alarm and then crawled out of the building on my hands and knees, the smoke was that bad."

Miss Helen McClellan, a teacher in the Fairfield School, who resides with her mother, Mrs. Fannie McClellan, across the street from the factory, said that she was on the porch when she saw smoke coming out of the blower at the factory. Then she saw flames and called the fire department. A telephone operator said that the Fairfield Fire Dept. responded to the alarm in about one minute.

The firefighters of the Fairfield firemen seemed feeble against the roaring inferno. Flames broke out all over the building and were beyond control from the discovery of the blaze.

The Gettysburg Fire Dept. was summoned at 4:45 o'clock and responded with four pieces of equipment. Most of their attention was concentrated on the adjoining properties. They helped save the Francis Schultz residence, across the narrow alley from the burning plant. A large chicken house in the rear of Schultz' home also was saved.

Firemen laid water lines from a pond near the factory but soon this supply of water gave out and several lines were laid in relay and water was pumped from Middle Creek to the fire. Firemen kept several streams on the burning structure which was beyond saving shortly after the alarm was sounded. Then the firemen joined others in playing water on nearby structures. Paint on homes across the street was scorched from the conflagration.

Other fire departments summoned to the blaze were: Fountaindale, with one truck; Cashtown 2; Emmitsburg 1; Blue Ridge Summit, 1; Barlow, 1; and Fort Ritchie, 1; Fairfield used both of its trucks. Bonneville firemen went to the scene of the blaze to relieve one of the departments. They remained until 2:30 o'clock that morning.

R. C. Musselman and his son, Robert, Fairfield, went to the burning building after the watchman had crawled out and used fire extinguishers, but to no avail. Robert Weikert, Fairfield, was treated for burns when he attempted to fight the blaze.

The factory was a one-story structure and the offices occupied a two-story section at the front. Women's casual shoes, leather and imitation leather, were made at the plant. A warehouse, well-stocked with shoes was saved. It is located across the rear alley of the plant. The company operates another shoe factory at Dillsburg, Pa.

One reason for calling so many other fire departments was the threat of the entire town of Fairfield. Flames and smoke belched 75 feet in the air and if a sudden wind developed, the entire town would have been threatened.

Oliver, took place on June 13 at St. Basil's Catholic Church in Carriek, Pa., with the Rev. Grocka officiating.

The bride wore a Miriam Original as she was given in marriage by her brother, Charles. The gown was fashioned of Chantilly lace with nylon tulle side panels in the skirt and tulle yoke with lace coat and long pointed sleeves. The full skirt fell over a skinner satin underskirt, and formed a full court train. Her Juliet cap was trimmed with sequins and pearls and held a fingertip veil. She carried a white orchid with a purple lip and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bridegroom's sister, Clara Schuler, was the maid of honor. She wore a gown of yellow net over satin, and a wreath of yellow roses in her hair. The bridesmaids, Bernadette Unger and Shirley Schmidt, wore orchid net with wreaths to match. The gowns were ballerina length and they all carried colonial bouquets of mixed spring flowers.

Gerard had his brother, Joseph, as best man, and the ushers were Bill Rubinek, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and James A. Sites, the bride's brother. The men all wore white dinner jackets.

Following a dinner at Artman's Pfc. Schuler and his wife left for a honeymoon in Cumberland. The bride will be at home with her parents while her husband is stationed at Camp Atterbury, Ind. Unable to pay a minimum fine of $114.50 on conviction of reckless driving Monday evening before Magistrate Edward J. Smith, Carl K. Wiles, Rt. 2 Thurmont, was sentenced to five days in jail.

Testimony of Trooper A. G. Hedden was that Wiles' machine left the Cregarstown-Woodsboro Rd. about 7:05 p. m. July 26, about 2.3 miles east of Cregarstown, smashed a porch, blew a tire and bounced across the road, coming to rest in a cornfield.

Council Names New Streets; Appoints Officer

The Town Council of Emmitsburg met in regular session Monday evening in the Fire Hall with a full board present and Chairman of the Board Thomas J. Frailey presiding.

Town Clerk Louise Sebold presented the treasurer's report, secretary's minutes and tax collector's report, which were approved as presented.

In response to an appeal by a local merchant that parking meter stripes on the Square were painted too close to allow adequate space between cars, Council decided to have a section of them blacked out and relined with larger spacing. Parking meter revenue for July was announced as $220.45. Chief of Police Robert L. Koontz made a final report before his resignation from that office was officially accepted. He has accepted a similar position with the Taneytown Police Dept.

After thorough screening of applicants for the police job here, Council decided on the appointment of Daniel J. Kaas, Rocky Ridge. There were seven applications for the job.

Two alleys were given names by the Town Solons. They are the alley adjacent and running parallel southward to Community Field which was named Chesapeake Ave., and the other alley, that runs east and west between the Elizabeth Neck and V. L. Hart-dagen properties, was titled Potomac St. Markers designating these streets will be erected in the near future.

In an effort to have the town's sewerage disposal plant put into efficient and satisfactory operation, Council has asked Samuel C. Hays to take charge of the plant until further notice. Residents of East End have been complaining vociferously about the unpleasant conditions coming from the plant, and efforts are being made to correct the situation. Recently a deodorizing chemical has been added to the effluent of the plant, easing somewhat the intensity of the odors emanating from the area.

The Town Fathers have voted to contact a sanitary engineer in an effort to determine just how much more sewerage pipeline would have to be laid before Emmitsburg has what could be called adequate sewerage. It is expected that the engineer will make a survey of the disposal plant to determine its exact capacity now and what it can handle in the future if additional sewerage lines are installed.

Boy Killed By Car Near Harney

A five-year-old boy was fatally injured near his home a mile north of Taneytown on the Harney Road about 5 o'clock Wednesday evening when struck by an automobile.

Glenn Edward Knox, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Knox, died at the Annie Warner Hospital in Gettysburg, an hour after the accident. Death was attributed to a hemorrhage. Physicians said the full extent of his injury had not been determined.

State Trooper 1/c Paul M. Hahn said the car involved, was operated by Wilbur Fogle of Union Bridge, who was released pending completion of the investigation.

The preliminary investigation indicated that the child ran out of a driveway at his home, onto the Harney Road as Fogle was passing. The fender of Fogle's car struck the child and knocked the boy some distance, police reported. Police said the driveway is "blind" and Fogle was unable to see the boy running toward the road.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

With Cong. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—This country's reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations will not be revised until next year. A bill to revise them has been referred back to committee.

I voted with the majority to turn back the proposed changes, outlining my opinion on the floor of the House the day the matter was debated.

It is simply that these complex tariff and trade policies should continue as they are until enough time has been allowed for the new Administration and Congress to make a thorough study of them. It is true that certain industries or certain states have made very convincing arguments to show present trade policies are detrimental to them, but I do not feel that changes should be made until we can predict their effect on our entire economy.

Earlier this year Congress voted to extend the 1951 trade laws and the study of how to change them for the benefit of all is now under way. This will be one of the major items to come before us when we return to Washington next January.

There has been quite a pace set here in Congress during the last couple of weeks because of the desire of all of us to conclude our work and get home while there is still a little something left of the summer.

A Public Works subcommittee has approved a resolution asking the Army Board of Engineers to review a report on the Potomac River and its tributaries to see whether it's advisable to modify the Savage River dam and reservoir to provide water for Westernport. The full committee is expected to take up the resolution this week.

Maryland communities along the C. & O. Canal soon will be able to obtain easement rights to the Potomac. My bill accomplishing this was passed by the House on July 20, by the Senate on the 23rd, and sent to the White House to be signed by the President.

Senator Payne of Maine and I have introduced in our respective houses a joint resolution to permit Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia to team up on civil defense. The resolution would allow authorities in each place to make an agreement to aid forces can travel freely from one to the other in case of a

Fires Cost Nation

Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—President Eisenhower called on the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Fire Waste Council and other organizations today to wage a crusade against fires which have cost the nation $1 billion and 10,000 lives in the past year.

Mr. Eisenhower, in proclaiming Oct. 4-10 as Fire Prevention Week, said "it has been abundantly demonstrated that fire losses can be substantially reduced wherever people are awakened to the danger."

The National Chamber, through its affiliated organization, the National Fire Waste Council, again is taking the lead in planning nationwide observance of Fire Prevention Week.

The program will include community fire prevention education, fire-fighting demonstrations, and great disaster. Such compacts already exist in some parts of the of the country.

Nothing's more changeable than the styles in women's clothing. Just ask the man who pays the bills. And now baby's wardrobe is changing with the times . . . to clothing more practical and more lasting.

Time was when baby slept in a midget version of mother's nightgown which hardly offered secure protection from drafts. Then baby progressed to a miniature of dad's pajamas. Now he was warmer, but pajamas were far from the most practical type of sleeping garment. So as necessity is the mother of invention, along came the sleeping bag, a type of garment that eliminates all possibility of drafts and makes it pretty rough for the athletic baby to climb over the side of his crib. It's the safest thing available. And leading the sleeping bag field is Slumber-Gro, the sleeping bag that grows with baby from three months to three years. All you do is pull out a special safety stitch and the barrel bottom drops six inches; remove another stitch and six more inches of sleeping bag room appear.

So delighted was Mrs. James R. Andrews of St. Paul, Minnesota, that she wrote us an unsolicited letter from which we quote in part, "I know of no other product which gives more satisfaction, both to baby and to mother. I never could keep blankets over the baby's shoulders and with Slumber-Gro I never have to worry."

The August guests are Grant Johannesen, pianist; Barbara Gibson, coloratura soprano; Michael Rabin, violinist; Lucile Cummings, mezzo soprano, and Brian Sullivan, tenor. IRENE BEASLEY always enjoys doing her "Grand Slam" radio show, but she especially likes the summer sessions; Irene's is New York, but hails from Memphis, and she loves meeting the people from all over the country who come to town for their vacations. Hundreds of their head straight for CBS Studio 22 where "Grand Slam"

Homemakers' Corner

Look for a "full slip" when you select cantaloupes of good eating quality. This smooth, slightly sunken, well calloused scar at the stem attachment of the fruit tells you that the cantaloupe is mature. It separated easily from the vine when harvested.

University of Maryland marketing specialists point out that during hot weather, especially when cantaloupes must be shipped great distances, they are often picked with a "half slip." A half of the scar is slightly sunken and the other half is rough.

Only in well-matured fruit will you find sweetness, good texture and fine flavor, say the specialists. Look for cantaloupes with course netting or veining on the outside surface. The dark green ground color of the rind should be of a lighter shade with a grayish or yellowish tinge.

You can't improve the quality of a melon after it has been harvested. Never buy an unripe melon—it can't be improved in flavor. It can only spoil. You can detect immature cantaloupes by poor veining that is somewhat shallow with the surface showing through in darker green.

Don't try to select melons by squeezing or shaking to see if the seeds rattle. Several squeezings and shakings will produce the desired results even in immature fruit. Not only will it be misleading, but it will aid in more rapid deterioration of the fruit.

Civil Defense, C. & P. Telephone Company employees, the U. S. Coast Guard and the Beach patrol combined in a mass first aid demonstration held at Ocean City to instruct the largest group of people ever to participate in a first aid demonstration in the State of Maryland.

The largest Civil Defense First Aid Demonstration ever held in the State of Maryland was held recently at Ocean City.

The demonstration sponsored by the State of Maryland Civil Defense Agency, Worcester County, Ocean City and the City of Baltimore Civil Defense Organizations also had the cooperation of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, the Ocean City Beach Patrol and the U. S. Coast Guard; and was conducted by Mr. C. Edwin Ashley, First Aid Training Supervisor of the C. & P. Telephone Company.

William J. Muth, Public Relations Director of Civil Defense, mounted the platform and introduced Earl Pierce, City Manager, who spoke briefly, the Mayor, Daniel Trimmer, Colonel Milton Dennis, Director of Civil Defense of Worcester County and Police Chief Walter Squires. I. J. Meyer of Baltimore was the narrator.

The program was started by Mr. Ashley showing the new back pressure arm lift method of artificial respiration.

Sixteen trained Telephone Company girls who had been hand picked, paired off and continued the demonstration as thousands lined the beach and boardwalk to observe.

Then, all the people on the beach were invited to participate and instructors went around correcting novices.

Telephone Company girls who took part in the demonstration were: Mrs. Vivian Weyatt of Ocean City, Shirley Pearl, Betty Rayne, Jane Adams, Peggy White, Betty Jane Venable, Margaret Harshman and Sue Bozman, all of Salisbury.

Alice Keese, Lorraine Maskal, Jane McMaster, Jane Stern of Baltimore and Miss Betty Gordy, Civil Defense Director for Ocean City. Peter Lawson Johnson, State Public Information Officer assisted in organizing this program.

Miss Christine Reiter, four, of Baltimore, was the "victim" when the child back pressure arm lift method was explained.

Mayor Daniel Trimmer, Jr., placed all the municipal facilities at the disposal of the Civil Defense Organizations conducting the show.

"A Good Place To Work—Ask Someone Who Works There"

Strides Made In Fight Against Polio

Don't be worried about poliomyelitis, Dr. Forbes H. Burgess, Frederick County Health Officer, has advised parents.

While polio is often thought of as one of the most dreaded diseases, it is not as common and usually not as dangerous as many other less publicized illnesses. Rheumatic fever, tuberculosis, and many handicapping conditions, such as accidental injuries, tumors, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, and a host of others are more to be feared, Dr. Burgess said.

Recent studies have shown that only one out of every 156 children acquire polio during the first 20 years of life. About 76 per cent of these cases diagnosed as paralytic poliomyelitis eventually recover with little or no handicap. Deaths and severe disabilities resulting from many other conditions, specifically rheumatic fever, accidents and tuberculosis, far exceed those caused by polio, the health officer pointed out.

Maryland has been among the first states adopting a rational approach to polio based on scientific knowledge rather than on unreasoning fear, Dr. Burgess said. Guided by enlightened measures of control, camps and schools are seldom closed any more when an outbreak occurs. Unwarranted quarantine regulations may create or increase public fear or hysteria in epidemics, waste the time and efforts of professional personnel and facilities, and produce needless economic and social hardships for patients and their families, Dr. Burgess explained.

Knowledge of the facts of polio often helps to calm fears, Dr. Burgess said. "We know that transmission of the disease for the great majority of cases is by close association with infected persons. Outbreaks attributable to milk have been rare and limited, and although flies have been found to be contaminated with the virus, there has been no reliable evidence of spread by insects, water, food, or sewage," Dr. Burgess said.

There are known to be approximately 200 non-paralytic infections to every paralytic case. During any outbreak, therefore, the virus is so widely spread that quarantine methods other than prompt isolation of recognized cases is useless, the health officer commented. Quarantine of a camp or a school during an epidemic is generally not advised as those present would have already been exposed.

Current scientific evidences, as recently compiled by Dr. Howard A. Howe, an eminent authority on polio at the Johns Hopkins University, points out that ultimate escape from infection is impossible and that temporary escape is undesirable as it postpones infection to later ages when its consequences are more severe.

People 15 years and older usually build up antibodies which protect them from at least one of the known polio viruses. During childhood, contacts usually unknown at the time give this immunity to polio viruses. Children who have no reserve antibodies are more susceptible than adults for this reason, Dr. Burgess pointed out.

Due to an extremely limited supply, gamma globulin, the blood derivative being used as a temporary polio preventive, will be available in Maryland only to children under 18 years and to pregnant women living in the same individual household with a proven polio victim, except in the case of a recognized epidemic, Dr. Burgess said. If advisable, mass inoculations will be given in the high-risk age groups where there is an epidemic.

If given in proper doses based on body weight, gamma globulin induces immunity for approximately five weeks. "At best it is a temporary preventive," Dr. Burgess said, "as there is no cure for polio once the nerves have been affected. However, the prospects are bright for active immunity with a vaccine against polio, in view of recent scientific progress," he added.

To guard children against polio, Dr. Burgess urges parents to pay attention to good health rules and precautions. Don't let children mix with new groups or get overtired or chilled. Consult your doctor, the health officer said, if these symptoms appear: headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, stiff neck or back.

"Above all, don't become hysterical about polio," he cautioned.

Mrs. George C. Constantine and son, have returned to their home in Silver Spring, Md., after visiting the past week with her mother, Mrs. Mary Claudia Ro-sensteel.

Why Spray?

It costs money to spray fields or fruit trees, but the farmer knows it's money well spent. With so many things on the farm, it's not the cost, but what you get for your money that counts. That's why so many farmers say the telephone is one of the farm tools that really pays for itself by saving time and trouble and travel.

"All together, ho!"

A person doesn't have to be so very old to remember the ferries that had to be pulled by hand across the river. Passengers didn't mind pitching in and helping, for they knew "pulling together" meant faster, better service for everyone. That kind of friendly co-operation works wonders on the telephone party line, too—makes the service better for all on the line. In fact, most people say party-line service is mighty fine service when everyone shares it fairly.

BABSON

By ROGER W. BABSON

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 6—It is a beautiful summer day and I have had time to think of the great changes which have taken place since my boyhood and the foolishness of my boyhood and the foolishness of worrying about what changes can do. The sailing ships are all gone and my father thought this was the end of the fishing industry. Worst of all, the old New England families began to fade away. The old-timers then certainly felt this would be the end of Gloucester.

Most Changes For The Better Yet, the fishing business today is greater than ever. The sailing vessels have been replaced by power-driven draggers bringing in a million pounds of fish each day. The old families are gone, but the population is larger with industrious Italian families taking the lead. Certainly, my father and his friends lost much time in useless worry. I am sorry that the churches have not grown with the industries. I see nothing here which can take their place. Gloucester has a splendid symphony orchestra consisting of local people. It has an active literary and historical society. It has become an important art center. Whether these cultural developments will take the place of the religion of my youth is doubtful. Liquor continues to be a curse, but sees no drunkenness on the streets.

Worrying About The Korean Truce

Although the Korean truce has been signed, most people here feel that it won't amount to anything. They are still worrying about World War III. I can't see what Russia could possibly gain by war now. The Chinese would like to use their time and money in building up their own country. I believe the time is approaching when a foreign army will refuse to fight any free nations. More likely, national armies are apt to strike at home to correct conditions in their own countries. In fact, the military and veterans may someday control the U. S. Being a veteran already counts more in getting a position than being a college graduate, although those who enjoy both have the best chances. Surely, those who live on farms or in small cities have little to fear.

Parents who have been worrying about their boys in Korea should realize that the last 20 years of war have not had so many casualties as a similar previous period suffered from scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid and pneumonia. Your sons may be safer in Korea than racing about in an automobile here at home. If you are worried about juvenile delinquency, just see that your boy works hard all day so that he wants to go to bed after supper instead of running about town. Most juvenile delinquency could be abolished by merely changing the laws as to boys and girls working. Although I sometimes think that even the driving of automobiles by kids may be better training of their brains than some of the subjects which they are taught at school.

Worrying About Taxes And Prices

Keep in mind that a certain proportion of the taxes paid by businessmen will help business during a depression. Taxes paid for the support of farm prices, payment of minimum wages, old-age assistance, and the cost of schools will come back to us, don't worry so much about taxes.

I recently attended a meeting protesting high prices, which the speaker blamed on the money paid out by manufacturers and retailers for advertising, research, etc. Still millions of people today owe their jobs to such expenditures. If any reader is out of a job, it is probably because some penny-pinching employer cut off advertising.

A Cure For Worry

I have a very old Bible (1477 — before Columbus discovered America); every word penned by hand. I find that certain portions show excessive use. It looks as if the owners during the past 400 years used it to cure themselves of worrying! For those desiring to take such a "cure" instead of pills or psychiatry, I suggest the following: Matthew 5: verses 5, 7, 9, and 44; Matthew 6: 34; James 5: 16; and John 15: 7. These are the pills that do me good when I am tempted to worry, but I sometimes need to read them many times before they really sink in.

THE MAGIC FOREST FOR COGNAC

A small oak forest in southwestern France, rarely visited by tourists and unknown even to many Frenchmen, was responsible last year for making France richer by millions of dollars, kroner, pounds, sterling, yen, pesos and most other currencies of the world. There is no other place like this forest in the world. It is located in Limousin and its wood is used to age the world's famous cognac brandy which France sends to the remotest points on the globe.

Aging cognac is a delicate process and is just as important as any of the complicated steps in distilling it from the special white wine from which it is made. The wood in which cognac grows old and mellow is of critical importance. Long experience and many trials have established that only one kind will serve the purpose—oak from the forests of the province of Limousin, right near the cognac district. Other French oaks have been tried—as well as American, Russian and other foreign oaks. None gives the same results.

The oak from Limousin is just right. Why this is so remains a secret of nature.

As the cognac ages in the oaken casks, its color becomes richer and warmer. Entering the cask it has no color at all. Aging first turns it to a clear gold, finally to a rich amber. Its taste, fiery in youth, becomes in maturity soft and velvety—all this the result of the Limousin oak in contact with a pure grape distillation.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

WASHINGTON — The cloakrooms of the Senate were ominously silent last Friday. The chamber was hushed, the page boys moved very, very quietly, members conversed in hushed tones.

The quietness was respectful—reverent, in tribute to one of the greatest men this nation has ever known, Senator Robert A. Taft.

For the past several days all of us realized that our friend, Bob Taft was seriously ill, none of us really believed that he could live, yet we hoped.

He had passed from this world to the life beyond, which is the eternal destination of each of us. Yet his memory will remain a symbol of honesty, of fairness, of true American fundamental beliefs. This memory will give continued courage to us all.

Senator Taft has now been eulogized by his many friends in the Senate and we have respectfully recessed.

No eulogy will ever be able to express the great personal loss which his death means to me.

Robert Taft was my ideal of what a U. S. Senator should be. He was a kindly, friendly man who was always ready and willing to be helpful to us who were less experienced than he.

He was a patient man of sincere beliefs, but willing to meet anyone halfway. During his years as leader of the opposition he stood as the conscience of conservative Americans. He jealously protected the ideals of American liberty and enterprise.

As the majority leader of the Senate he proved himself to be a master at persuading others to work together in harmony. His services to the new administration were invaluable—he was a uniter and a compromiser.

Senator Taft's death is a great loss to the State of Ohio which he served with distinction—it is a great loss to the nation which knew him as a true statesman. It is a personal loss to me, who knew him as a friend.

We may truly say of Senator Taft what may be said of few other men—that he is one of those immortal men who live again in minds made better by their memory.

It's Fine To Be Fooled - Sometimes

Handy Peters entertained for the ladies of the Auxiliary the other night—and had the ladies believing for a while that he's the best marksman ever. Handy put on a great act. He set up a whole bunch of balloons on a muslin backdrop and then took out his pea-shooter. He shot blindfolded, standing on his head, every which way—and broke a balloon every time! No wonder Handy impressed the ladies. What they didn't know—till the show's end—was that Buck Mulligan was hiding behind the backdrop improving on Handy's aim with a hatpin. From where I sit, we all get things "put over" on us now and again. When it's good-natured—fine! But, some folks would like to fool the rest of us into believing it's wrong to enjoy an occasional glass of beer—just because they prefer something else. For real American tolerance and neighborliness these people are simply "off target."

HEALTH and SCIENCE

Goodbye to Athlete's Foot

For many, the fun of swimming is marred by worries about athlete's foot. Small wonder, since for years millions of people have been trying out different remedies with only limited success.

A dramatic clue to solving the problem came from the South Pacific during World War II. Soldiers developed severe fungus infections. Grotesque growths even came out of their ears!

Experts in the armed forces launched an all-out attack on this "jungle rot" and learned much about fungi they didn't know before. After the war, other scientists noted that athlete's foot is not just one disease but many. It can be caused by any of several fungi. Even bacteria can complicate it.

More than 100 chemicals and combinations were tried in the search for something that would be effective against as many of these enemies as possible. The Journal of the National Association of Chiropractors has published a report on a clinical study of the most promising of these preparations. It is a solution, NP-27. This number refers to the low surface tension which is considered ideal because the liquid can penetrate beyond the surface of the skin into the crevices and in and around the nails. This is tremendously important since in athlete's foot many substances can not penetrate the many cracks in the skin.

Twelve leading chiropractors from New York, Washington and Philadelphia conducted this study and concluded that NP-27 is an "effective, rapidly acting, relatively non-irritating medicament in the treatment of athlete's foot." They also reported marked improvement or complete cures in 94% of the cases treated.

BLACK EYES

If you have a black eye and a piece of steak, eat the steak. There's are lots of jokes about it, but a black eye is not funny. It may be dangerous.

Cold compresses and the passage of time will cure most black eyes. Steak is an expensive type of compress. Wads of cotton or cloth, dipped in cold water, or an ice bag will serve the purpose. Ice on the eye for 15 minutes every hour or so the first day. This treatment may prevent the bruise from looking worse than necessary. The only thing that can be done after the first day is to try to camouflage it with cake makeup or face powder and to try to suffer the jokes with good grace.

However, if vision is fuzzy or the eye is cut or painful, a doctor should be consulted at once. Otherwise, serious, permanent damage may result. Although the eye may hardly be discolored, a minor injury can cause serious damage. Even a light blow can be transmitted through the fluid of the eye with enough force to injure the retina. And a tear or separation of the retina means blindness forever in that part of the eye unless natural healing or surgery can put the separated part back where it belongs.

One of the miracles of modern surgery is the operation eye surgeons have devised to repair injuries to the retina. Tiny needles carrying an electric current are inserted through the outer coats of the eyeball in the vicinity of the torn retina. The heat induces scar tissues to form which joins the retina with the underlying tissue.

Often a number of these operations are necessary before vision is restored. It would be a lot simpler to duck the punch or turn on the light before walking into a dark room.

Around the Studios

One of the most photographed beauties in Hollywood (more than 45,000 photographs), Loretta Young will go before the TV cameras for the first time as the star and narrator of "Letters to Loretta" over the NBC network late this summer. The TV vehicle completes the full round of camera work for Loretta Young. She was a Wampus Baby Star in the silent film era. Her truly lovely speaking voice made the switch from silent to talkie an easy one for her. In all she has appeared in 78 motion pictures—climaxed by her Academy Award winning role in "The Farmer's Daughter" in which she co-starred with Joseph Cotton. "Letters to Loretta" is sure to add more brilliance to an already scintillating career for Miss Young.

Loretta Young

Bob Young, star of NBC's radio show "Father Knows Best," has a heart-felt interest in his work on behalf of the Good Drivers Clubs for parents and teen-agers sponsored by the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee. He has two teen-age daughters. This is the third year that Bob Young has been associated with the Good Drivers Club campaign. More than once he has been pleasantly surprised to learn that not only the teen-agers take the eight basic good driving practices to heart when they sign the "Man-to-Man" and "Dad-to-Daughter" agreements with their fathers. Quipped Bob: "It isn't always 'Father Knows Best' when he signs up with his teen-ager."

Red Buttons entrained for California when his show left CBS-TV network for the summer. "No motion picture plans," Red said. "In fact no motion plans at all—just rest."

Ann Burr, radio glamour gal of "The Perry Mason" show on NBC, married ad agency TV boss, Tom McDermott, in a quiet ceremony at Old Lyme, Connecticut. Wedding guests included John Larkin, "Perry Mason" himself, and CBS news commentator Douglas Edwards. The couple will live in Gotham.

A National Service

In recent years thousands of our businesses, industries and organizations have devoted considerable time and thought to bringing about a better understanding of the difference between private enterprise and Socialism. Some have started economic education programs among their employees, some have produced motion pictures spotlighting the advantages of the American system and the truth about Socialism. Some have sponsored Americanism radio programs. The Warner & Swasey Co., of Cleveland, which manufactures machine tools, has distinguished itself with a national newspaper and magazine advertising program. The Warner & Swasey ads use a few simple words and examples to get across vitally important comparisons between our private enterprise system and various forms of Socialism. From the scores of ads published in the past five years, I've selected a few excerpts each of which dramatizes a fact Americans should know and never forget.

Potato Profiteer!

"Somebody ought to speak sharply to Nature.

"There's a lot of loose talk these days about profits, attacking them as though they were evil. The very existence of the world depends on profits; the improvement of the world depends on big profits. A farmer plants one potato and usually gets back 15. Even allowing for all his costs, that's more than 1000 per cent profit! He plants one pound of corn and gets back 336 pounds—that's 33,600 per cent profit. These are big profits. Is that bad?"

"Should the farmer be scorned as anti-social? Should his 'excess' profit be taken away from him? Should he be told that from now on he must limit his 'profit' to say, six per cent? To legislate against profits is as silly as to legislate against things growing."

Security Available
"Want security? Throw a brick through a window—you'll get it fast. Three meals a day, free. No taxes. Free housing, free clothing, free medical care. No worry about your future. But obey orders, or else! Stand up to be counted! March in line! No back talk; Do what you're told! Jail. Socialism. Communism. The Welfare State. They're all the same—same 'benefits,' same obligations; same 'rewards,' same payments."

"There's a law against corporations becoming too big. It is the law of supply and demand. The minute a company makes too much money, competitors rush into the business. The minute a company stops giving you sound values, the most for your money, you buy somewhere else or do without. And that trims that company down to size in a hurry. Of course, if a company does give you the most for your money, and does grow as a result, that's all right, isn't it? Or would you rather see the big concerns cut down and penalized? You're the one that's penalized in the long run. Growth is what built America. Growth is the only thing that can make more and better jobs and values."

HOME modernizing

Kitchens Become Outdated Sooner Than Other Rooms

Kitchens become outdated quicker than any other rooms, according to Home Modernizing magazine, because the equipment which is a major part of their design is constantly being improved. And new appliances engineered to ease the housekeeping routine continue to appear on the market.

Kitchen modernizing starts with deciding whether a kitchen is to be simply a food laboratory or the heart of the household—a place to live, work and play. Whether the kitchen is to be only an efficient food laboratory or a multi-purpose area, there are certain accepted standards of design that will save the housewife work and make meal preparation simple.

To simplify work, the meal preparation area should be divided into four centers—mix, sink, range and serve. Food items used first at any one of these points should be stored at the particular center where they are used.

In addition to storage space, the centers should provide sufficient counter space for the various phases of meal preparation. Mix Center—Storage space for foods and utensils used in combining foods for cooking, chilling or freezing is provided at this center, which includes the refrigerator and a freezer if desired.

The mix center should have at least 15 inches of counter at the opening side of the refrigerator and a total of 36 inches of counter space throughout the center. It should have 2½ feet of wall cabinets and three feet of base cabinets. Standard refrigerators require about 36 inches of wall space.

Sink Center—The sink and dishwasher, if there is one, are part of this center, along with stored foods that require washing, soaking or the addition of water; dishwashing and cleaning supplies; and utensils such as knives and saucepans.

At least 36 inches of counter space should be provided at the right of the sink bowl and 30 inches at the left. Sink center should have 15 inches of wall cabinets, 6½ feet of base cabinets.

Range Center—This center includes the range and provides storage space for foods which are ready to be cooked without previous preparation, skillet, saucepans, lids and stirring tools.

Two feet of heat-proofed counter space should be provided beside the range. Range center should have 2½ feet of wall cabinets, 1½ feet of base cabinets.

Serve Center—This center, near the range, stores foods which are ready to serve without any preparation (breakfast cereals, bread, crackers, etc.), small electrical appliances, silver, table linens and trays. Base cabinet requirement is 13½ feet.

Knowledge is Power

(1) Which is better, rent or buy? That depends on several things, according to Changing Times magazine. If you buy a house, and a new, better job turns up in a town 200 miles away, you have to sell the house and find another. But, if you haven't built up enough equity in your first house to make a down payment on another, you'd be stuck. On the other hand, you have to figure realistically the cost of owning a home of your own.

Add fire insurance and taxes to your principal and interest on the mortgage. Then take 1½ per cent of the purchase price, divide it by 12, and add the result to the monthly bill as an allowance for maintenance and repairs. Now, if you can find an adequate home to rent for less than this amount, you're better off renting. However, rents may go up.

(2) If you see a tornado approaching, where can you hide for safety? Snowden D. Flora gives some suggestions in the book, "Tornadoes of the United States." If you are in or near your house, go to the windward corner of the basement if it's a frame house. The basement of an ordinary brick or stone house is a death trap. Collapsing walls send tons of brick or stone crashing through the lower floors.

If your house has no basement, lie on the floor, the first floor if possible. Crawling under a table or even a bed gives some protection. Stay away from windows.

(3) Must be. There are more honest-to-goodness explorers at work today than ever before. Hawthorne Daniel describes some of the modern explorations in "Nation's Business."

Take Paul-Emile Victor, for example. Few people know that he led the French-sponsored Greenland Icecap expedition which discovered that Greenland is not the world's largest single island. It is actually three islands, so deeply covered with ice that even the channels which separate them cannot be seen.

Colorful "Quiz 'Kerchief'" Popular New Children's Game

THERE'S A BRAND NEW PARTY HANDKERCHIEF GAME for kids. It teaches them to concentrate and count, improves their sense of color and design, sharpens memories, not to mention acquainting them with the value of handkerchiefs for cleanliness purposes.

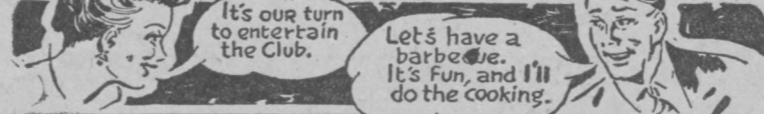

It's "QUIZ 'KERCHIEF'" and calls for (1) As many various colored and patterned 'kerchiefs as there are kids at the party. (2) A clothesline and clothes pins. (3) Paper and pencil for each guest.

With the wide variety of patterns—dots, checks, cowboys, animals, Walt Disney characters and others, found in children's handkerchiefs—it's easy to make up a clothesline of no-two-alike, however large the guest list and... the fluttering array adds gaiety to the group.

String the colorful hankeys on a clothesline across the room. Make up a list of descriptive questions. Have the kiddies study the clothesline about 10 minutes. Then move the party into another room. Give each child a pencil and paper on which he writes his name. Read off the list of questions slowly, one by one, allowing 3 minutes answering time for each question. A prize goes to the child answering the most questions correctly. The grand finale takes place back at the clothesline where each child takes a 'kerchief from the line.

It's an all-guests-get-a-gift party game since each happy guest receives a 'kerchief as a consolation prize, as well as being a subtle, good-habit influence on the younger generation. (ANS)

RENEWAL OF A BEAUTIFUL FRIENDSHIP

WASHINGTON AND
"SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

A great glaring inconsistency noted by Washington observers is that so often a mighty hue and cry is raised over a huge problem, yet no attention is given to the solution right at hand.

As example, during tax hassle, statement was made that it may even be necessary to raise the national debt limit by the end of the year, so serious is the nation's financial plight.

Yet, Cong. C. W. Harder, congressman from New York's 27th District, whose views are often circulated by the Committee for Constitutional Government, firmly believes at least $47 billion could be lopped from national debt right now.

As one item, he points to Public Housing, stating in past 19 years, the public has been saddled with a 40-year mortgage totalling $20 billion dollars.

Congressman Gwinn marshals many facts about public, low rent housing projects. Removal of property from local tax rolls creates a burden on local government. He also cites the apparent fact that only the politically appointed can secure this low rental housing.

Only families below a certain income are supposed to be eligible for the rentals which are about half the prevailing rental market, yet in one case a tenant with a $24,000 per year income was found; in another case the mayor of Birmingham, Alabama was a public housing tenant.

But while the scandals are bad, Congressman Gwinn has not yet commented on the most interesting fact.

© National Federation of Independent Business

The Public Housing Authority has built somewhere around 500,000 family dwelling units. This means, based on Congressman Gwinn's figures of $20 billion dollars, that public housing has cost somewhere around $40,000 per family unit. Thus it becomes plain government has no business in real estate business.

Public Housing Authority property was sold to the highest bidder, competent real estate operators would undoubtedly find attractive investments.

While the property would probably not be worth the full $20 billion bled from taxpayers, a strong possibility is felt that sales to private operators should return more than half.

This reasoning is based on the fact that a fair portion of this housing was prewar built, some during the war, only a portion built during the postwar inflated cost period.

Therefore, at present day values, it is conceivable that a part of the housing could be sold for considerably more than it cost to build, despite bureaucratic waste, and that a big loss would only be taken on property built during postwar period. Such a move would slash $10 billion from national debt save untold millions in interest and administration. It is common business practice to take a loss to avoid further losses, a principle presumed understood by an administration self-proclaimed as businessmen.

Congressman Gwinn also believes that the government could reduce the national debt $27 billion by selling the Tennessee Valley Authority, or TVA.

Because consideration of this issue is bound to be highly controversial, it will be treated in the next column.

Interesting Play At Mountain Theater

The Mountain Theatre, Brad-dock Hgts. is leaving the period of "Years Ago" and is going modern once again. This week's play, beginning Wednesday, Aug. 5 and running through Saturday, Aug. 8, is "Legend of Sarah" and though its romantic difficulties stem from a Revolutionary War ancestry, it is a modern chase of man after woman. "Legend of Sarah" was written by James Gow and Arnauld d'Usseau and originally starred the famous Hollywood ex-model, Marsha Hunt, and handsome Tom Helmore on Broadway.

The story begins with a prologue in a dingy Greenwich Village apartment where an affair that belongs to Minerva Pinney and Adam Harwick is about to be broken off by Minerva. She is tired of her lover's slovenliness and their whole relationship, so she is off to mother and her home, Pinneyfield, named after Grandma Sarah Pinney.

Two years elapse between the prologue and the beginning of the first act. Enough time for Adam to become wealthy from writing words and for Minerva to convert her home town into a national shrine. Adam, of course, shows up on the scene and in order to hang around to win back his lady, he fakes the idea of writing a book about the respected Sarah Pinney. While meandering through her old diaries, Adam discovers that Sarah and the Red

Coats cahooted one cold blustery evening during the Revolution. This nifty bit of information is used as a device by Adam to win back his "Minnie."

Frances Whiting and Jerry Hall will play the leading roles in this week's happy hit of Minerva and Adam. Deirdre Gale reverts from a child of 16 in last week's "Years Ago" to become Frances mother, Clementine Pinney, a cryptic rooter for the romance of the pair. Jim Greene plays the other suitor, a stuffed shirt by the name of Edgar Cameron.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

State wheat acreage allotments for the 1954 crop were determined and announced last week by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. The state allotments are within the national wheat allotment of 62 million acres which was announced by the Secretary on July 15, in accordance with legislative provisions.

Maryland's 1954 allotment will be 238,768 acres, about 15 per cent below the average of the 1952-54 crops, according to Geo. J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee. Kansas, with 11.8 million acres, has the largest state allotment. Among other leading wheat states, with their allotments, are: North Dakota, 8.2 million acres; Oklahoma, 5.2 million acres; Texas, 4.8 million acres, and Montana, 4.6 million acres.

State and county committees of the PMA will break the state allotments down to counties and to individual farms.

State and county allotments are based on wheat acreages for the past 10 years. Trends, weather, and other factors affecting wheat acreage are considered in arriving at state and county allotments. Past acreage in wheat, tillable acres, crop rotations, type of soil, and topography are considered in determining allotments for individual farms. Wheat production records for 1951, 1952 and 1953, to aid in determining individual farm allotments, have been gathered in recent weeks through surveys of all wheat farms.

Maryland wheat growers are now being advised of the individual farm wheat acreage allotments in advance of the wheat marketing quota referendum to be held in August, Mr. Martin said.

Freezing Tips

Tomatoes when frozen result in a sorry product. They have been frozen to a limited extent but the result has not been satisfactory. In the early days of home freezing, many people thought it would be possible to freeze luscious slices of red ripe tomatoes from the summer garden and serve these the following winter in just about their original state. But our best garden varieties like Marglobe and Rutgers just about completely collapse when thawed. Here is a crop that is well-adapted to preservation by canning and is not satisfactory for freezing.

Peach season is here in Maryland. Many of us will have to purchase for freezing. It is not too early to make arrangements with some commercial orchardist to secure the varieties recommended in the quantities desired. Harvest dates for a variety will vary a little from year to year but the grower can give a fairly accurate estimate of the time when the kind of fruit you should have will be available. Best plan ahead and be ready when the time comes.

The kind of peach you will want for freezing is a well-ripened fruit that is soft but not over-ripe — preferably fruit that is well-ripened on the tree. Some varieties that are fine to eat as fresh fruit do not make a good frozen product. The white-fleshed varieties have not been found very satisfactory. It will pay to find the varieties proven suitable for freezing. Halehaven, Sunhigh, and Redhaven are all excellent and may be obtained from most Maryland commercial orchards. Elberta the standard market variety, makes a low quality product for dessert purposes and is recommended for freezing only as pie stock.

Sometimes it is necessary to purchase peaches that are not soft but are well colored. This stage is known as firm ripe. In such cases the fruit should be held at ordinary temperatures for several days in order to advance it to the stage soft enough for use. Since all fruits cannot be harvested at the same stage of maturity, you will find it best to select each day those fruits that are fully ripe and hold the less ripened fruit for another day or so. When the peaches are "eating ripe," do not delay freezing.

Peaches at this stage of ripeness may be peeled by immersing them in boiling water for one minute or steaming them for the same length of time. Then plunge them into cold water. This alternate heating and cooling will loosen the skins which may then be rubbed or lifted off. I like to halve and pit the peaches before scalding. Then, after cooling and peeling, the halves are ready for slicing and filling into the freezing container.

A 50 per cent syrup gives a uniformly sweetened product. This may be made by adding one cup of sugar to one cup of water. Heat the syrup to aid in dissolving the sugar. Make it far enough ahead to have it cold when added to the sliced peaches.

The complaint is sometimes heard that peaches turn brown. Air in the package is the major cause of browning. Use a blunt knife or spatula to remove air bubbles trapped in the package. Addition of ascorbic acid or Vitamin C powder at the rate of two level teaspoons per gallon of syrup is very effective in preventing browning of the fruit during packing and storing, and has no effect on flavor. As soon as syrup is added, close and seal package and freeze. You'll enjoy these next winter in whatever way you serve them. They come as near to the delicious fresh product as it is possible to get.

There will be 4,005,670 babies born in the United States during 1953, if births continue at the rate for the first quarter of this year. So far births are running three per cent ahead of last year.

More than 250 different kinds of birds and animals are found in the Great Smoky National Park.

NATURE'S SCARCE WEAPON AGAINST POLIO

When polio is around, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis recommends these four precautions: Keep clean, don't get fatigued, avoid new groups, and don't get chilled. If polio does strike, call your doctor, follow his advice, and then contact your local chapter of the National Foundation.
