BY ABIGAIL

An amusing incident to some, to others, terribly embarrassing, occurred last Sunday afternoon as an attempt to raise the flag before the start of the first baseball game, was made. A deep silence mantled the crowd as all stood at attention in expectancy of hearing the Star Spangled Banner played by the Municipal Band. Director Walt Simpson, poised for the downbeat, remained poised for a lengthy period as the flag-raisers, two Scouts, seemed to be experiencing some difficulty in performing the ceremony. After a few minutes' delay, the flag started suddenly up the staff. You guessed it . . . the banner was upside-down. It was quickly hauled down and on the second attempt the rope became tangled, resulting in another delay. Success was met with on the third trial, but not until after the Scouts had a blushing five minutes!

Well now that the drought appears to have officially terminated and the deluge which usually follows such a phenomenon of nature, also ended, local farmers are once again beginning to take up the study of irrigation. It was found that crop yield, in instances, has doubled and even trebled by use of irrigation. A great deal of thought was given the matter last year during the prolonged dry spell, but it was too late then to do much about it, but now, according to information, many local farmers are seriously considering the advantages of installing irrigation systems on their land and more and more fire ponds are being ordered as a preliminary step.

Was happy to hear of the reappointments of Miss Louise Sebald, as town clerk, and Daniel J. Kaas as chief of police. Both have very capably served their respective offices and deserved reappointment.

I was really amazed to learn we have so many contracting concerns in Frederick County. The other day when bids were published for the construction of a section of the Old Frederick Road, as many as half a dozen big construction companies, all in the county, submitted bids. Wonder how they all make a living?

Have you noticed your fire insurance bill lately? Well I suppose a good many of you didn't realize that it was reduced this year. Most of us are the habit of just growling when we receive a statement and go about paying the best way we can, hardly examining the figures which probably have remained the same for many years. However, this year a reduction in the premium, I'd say about 10%, was given policy-owners in the Emmitsburg District. You can thank the Vigilant Hose Co. for that reduction. The boys really went to work these past few years and have brought the equipment up to Class A. Not content with good paraphernalia, the laddies went to school and took to the "brains" angle. As a result you have a crew of well-trained firemen. The State Underwriters also took notice, as well as the Insurance Commissioner, and the reduction was granted. Not much publicity was given the affair and few were aware anything was being done, but most of us appreciate the efforts of our local fire crew. By the way, have you made your contribution yet this year?

Bids Submitted For Resurfacing Of Old Frederick Road

The M. G. Grove Lime Co. of Lime Kiln, has submitted the apparent low bids on two contracts opened in the office of the Frederick County Roads Board which will complete an all - surfaced highway from Hansonville to Emmitsburg over the Old Frederick Rd.

The Grove firm bid $130,930 for surfacing a two-mile section of the county highway, beginning off Rt. 15 at Hansonville and extending to around Utica, including a 68-foot span, steel girder and concrete bridge.

The same firm bid $51,350 on the construction of a 1.15-mile section of the same highway, beginning at Utica and extending to State 72 near Creagerstown.

The Old Frederick Rd. is now surfaced from State 72 to Emmitsburg.

The bids are subject to tabulation. No contracts were immediately awarded.

These other bids were received on the two-mile-and-bridge contract:

Richard F. Kline, Frederick, $136,321; Thomas, Bennett and Hunter, Westminster, $139,129.90; T. Edgie Russell, Frederick, $142,259.50; L. R. Waesche and Sons, Thurmont, $147,053.33; W. E. Graham and Sons, Frederick, $157,648.

It was understood that the low bids are well within estimates. The contracts cover clearing, grading, drainage, and placing of base and surface courses, with paved width of 18 feet.

The highway will provide a sort of alternate route to Rt. 15 thru the northern section of the county and will make a more direct route over hard-surfaced roads to Frederick from a number of north-county towns.

NO SHORTAGE ON THE SHELF

They say the coffee berry was frozen on the tree.

And the coffee kings' misfortune, has fallen unto me.

I don't believe their story, I'm sure it is a lie,

I think that other fingers are inserted in the pie!

For pounds in untold thousands, were taken out to rot,

So I, a lowly sucker, pay for what I haven't got.

All of you, my readers, are the ones who pay the cost

To raise profits ever mounting, for coffee kings who lost.

No; I don't believe their story; I'm sure it is a fake,

Making us shell out pennies to increase their take;

As yet there is no shortage, of coffee on the shelf,

The shortage is the pennies; in the pockets of myself!

Power Utility Strives For New Industries

The area served by the Potomac Edison Company, which includes Emmitsburg, is being publicized in a series of advertisements appearing in many nationally-known newspapers and magazines, as a desirable one for the location of industrial plants.

The ads are being sponsored by the West Penn Electric System of which the Potomac Edison Co. is a part and are run in cooperation with the Area Development Dept. of that company.

One ad which recently appeared in three large West Coast newspapers carries a reproduction of a testimonial letter from Mr. Ralph Pryne, president of Pryne & Co., Inc.

Mr. Pryne's company operates its parent plant in Pomona, California and recently opened an eastern branch plant in Keyser, W. Va.

The letter says in part, "In order to expand our facilities, our company was seeking a new location for its eastern branch plant. We made a very thorough investigation of the possibilities over a wide area and in the course of these investigations availed ourselves of the area development services of the Potomac Edison System."

"This organization made available detailed information which led us to the city of Keyser, W. Va., because of the fine and effective cooperation we received. I feel that other West Coast manufacturers . . . will find it advantageous to seek the help of the same people . . ."

The other current advertisements feature the favorable labor market and market conditions of this area and emphasize the availability of buildings, factory sites, transportation facilities and manufacturing raw material sources of supply.

The Potomac Edison Company, through its Area Development Dept., is constantly cooperating with many community and industrial groups and other organizations in an effort to actively aid the industrial growth of this area.

In the past year, 1953, eighteen new industries located in the four-state area served by the Potomac Edison System. Many of these came here through the co-operation of local organizations and the Potomac Edison Co.

The Area Development Department of the local utility company is carrying through a continuing program designed to interest manufacturers in the potential of the area they serve.

In addition to the nationally-published advertisements, the utility is sending mailing pieces directed to manufacturers over the nation. Interested persons are personally helping in locating what they need and much detailed information essential to such business is developed for them.

Asks Accounting For Lease Of Local Farm

An Emmitsburg farm owner has filed action in Equity Court to secure an accounting from her second cousin, to whom she verbally leased the property in 1950.

Virgie V. Ohler, the complainant, says Murray W. Eyer, Keymar RFD, the defendant, has failed to make a proper accounting.

She says the agreement lease provided the defendant would confer with the landlord in reference to planting of crops and all profits would be split equally between landlord and tenant. The tenant would furnish the labor, equipment not available on the farm, and the parties would split the cost of seed, fertilizer and lime, as approved by both.

The complainant said Eyer operated the farm to April 1, 1954 and failed to make any proper account for either income or expenses. During the term of the lease, she said, while the tenant stood in a relationship of confidence with the landlord, he purchased her share of several of the crops, promising to pay market prices, but refused to make proper accounting of purchases. What he has accounted for, she said, he has done vaguely at less than market prices, without substantiation for weights and figures given.

She asks the court to require Eyer on oath, to set forth in detail, all sums, crops, materials and things of value received by him or on account of sales or in any other manner from the land from Dec. 1, 1950, to April 1, 1954. She seeks a decree requiring him to pay to her all sums due on account of rents, profits, sales, etc. Edward D. Storm is her attorney.

The court ordered Eyer to comply with the request unless cause to the contrary is shown by May 20.

Locals Master Cashtown 3-2 Sunday

Rain and cold weather failed to dampen the spirit of a fairly large crowd which turned out for Sunday's baseball game in the Pen-Mar League between Emmitsburg and Cashtown.

The game was an abbreviated one, being called in the seventh inning due to a downpour. The contest developed mainly into a pitcher's duel, each side being limited to five blows apiece, with the locals forging ahead in the run department, 3 to 2. Mike Joy proved the distance hitter by virtue of his three-bagger and two singles.

Emmitsburg plays away at New Oxford Sunday.

All top teams, with the exception of Union Bridge which was rained out, won their second straight victories Sunday afternoon.

Fairfield blanked New Oxford 1-0 at Fairfield in one of the best exhibitions of the afternoon.

Thurmont won handily over New Windsor 9-1 while the Blue Ridge Summit-Union Bridge game was postponed.

Manager Dee Sayler used frequent substitutions during the contest and is in the process of rounding out a regular starting lineup.

THE TAFT-HARTLEY BILL STANDOFF

The Senate's vote to recommit a bill revising the Taft-Hartley labor law is generally believed to have killed all prospects of changing the law at this session of Congress.

There are inequities in the law which had been recognized even by one of its authors, the late Senator Taft. And they should be remedied. It seems to us, for example, that if the law is to require union officials to sign Communist disclaimers, it should, in fairness, require the same of management. We had hoped, too, for a revision remedying a potentially dangerous anti-labor provision permitting the employer to challenge the representation rights of a striking union, whose members are prohibited from voting.

At the same time, two of the President's proposals had impressed us as inadvisable. One would have required the Government to poll employees secretly prior to every strike. The other would have required fact-finding boards in national emergency cases to make recommendations for settling the dispute in addition to presenting the facts.

In the aggregate, the President's proposals did not please labor, which took the position that they only made the law worse. Similarly, organized business was critical because it felt the changes were not restrictive enough.

Under the circumstances, then, a stalemate was to have been anticipated. While the law still needs to be rid of its inequities, the delay occasioned by the vote to recommit will not work any particular hardship on either labor or management.

As the President stated last January, "The Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947 is basically a sound law." While there is room for improvement, we may be reasonably certain after living with it for seven years that it hasn't produced any "slaves," as its labor opposition has argued, and that by and large it works pretty well.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By U. S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall

The fall of the valiant little garrison at Dien Bien Phu will add to the problem of the negotiators in Geneva, and here in Washington it will enter into the controversy over the Administration's conduct of our foreign policy, which has taken on a bitter partisan tinge.

The differences in opinion are so violently expressed that one often wonders that there can be any unity among the free world at all, and when the leaders of the opposition party get together in Washington, as they did last week, and bombard the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy with rich invective, then it looks as if our real problems are with our friends and allies.

Of course, the areas where there are disagreements are all ways more provoking, and therefore receive more comment, than those points on which there is complete unanimity.

While this reappraisal, or re-examination, of our foreign policy is being conducted we should remember that the thing which causes all the difficulty is international Communism as espoused and agitated by Soviet Russia.

There is complete unanimity of opinion that Soviet Russia must be blocked in its endeavor to dominate Europe and Asia, and the fact that the U. S., Britain, France — and Republicans and Democrats — may at times disagree on details as to how to accomplish our objectives does not alter the fact that we are all allied in a common effort to halt Soviet expansion.

Senator Knowland, the majority leader, took time out last week to remind us of some significant remarks in 1948 by Sir Winston Churchill. In this address delivered six years ago, Mr. Churchill stated the things the Soviet Union must do if it really wants peace.

Throughout the coming weeks as the controversy on foreign policy develops it might help to keep these words of the Right Honorable Winston Churchill in mind. He said:

Nothing stands between Europe today and complete subjugation to Communist tyranny but the atomic bomb in American possession.

If the Soviet government wish to see atomic energy internationalized and its military use outlawed, it is not only by verbal or written agreements that they must reassure the world but by actions, which speak louder than words.

Let them release their group under the satellite states of Europe.

Let them retire to their own country, which is one-sixth of the land surface of the globe.

Let them liberate by their departure the 11 ancient capitals of Eastern Europe which they now hold in their clutches.

Let them go back to the Curzon line as was agreed upon in the days when we were fighting as comrades together.

Let them set free the millions or more German and Japanese prisoners they now hold as slaves.

Let them cease to oppress, torment, and exploit the immense part of Germany and Austria which is now in their hands.

We read continually of the blockade of Berlin. The lifting of the blockade at Berlin would be merely the stopping of blackmail. There should be no reward for that.

Let them cease to distract Malaya and Indonesia.

Let them cease to foment the hideous protracted civil war in China.

Let them liberate the Communist held portion of Korea. Above all, let them throw open their vast regions on equal terms to the ordinary travel and traffic of mankind.

Let them give others the chance to breathe freely, and let them breathe freely themselves.

No one wants to take anything they have got and that belongs to them away from them. After all, we are asking them to do no more than what the other victorious states have done of their own free will. None of the other allies has tried to add large territories and populations to its domain. Britain, indeed, has gone to the opposite extreme and cast away her empire in the East with both her hands.

Let the Russians be content to live on their own and cease to darken the world and prevent its recovery by these endless threats, intrigues, and propaganda.

Senator Knowland pointed out that since Mr. Churchill made that speech in 1948, all of continental China has fallen to the Communists, Korea was invaded to the Communist empire, Russia and North Korea incorporated in has developed the atomic bomb—in 1948 it had not—and Communist activities in Indo-China have become overtly aggressive.

In any discussion of our foreign policies it is good to keep in mind that the free world is united on the basic issue—and that is Russia cannot be permitted to enlarge its Communist Empire.

SPORTS FLASHES
from
The Sporting News
by J. G. Taylor Spink

Now They Ask—

Are Yankees Falling Apart?

There is a noticeable feeling of an impending change in the American League, says The Sporting News. Rival managers and players come to Yankee Stadium, take a good look at the Yankees and announce with conviction, 'There will be no sixth straight pennant! These guys are washed up.' In past years, predictions by opposition sources of New York were guarded and a case of the wish being father to the thought.

Now, there is a far different situation. The other clubs are convinced that a new deal is in process of development, and there is great rejoicing.

There has been more than the normal cheering in the stadium for visiting clubs. It is conceivable that the customers, like the opposition, are tired of seeing the Yankees win, season after season, and are ready for a change.

One thing is sure, says The Sporting News, this Yankee club is not geared for anything like the winning streak of 18 straight with which the Bombers of 1953 ruined the race as early as June.

Without Mickey Mantle in center every day, Stengel's outfield is not too formidable. Nor is the infield up to the old Bomber standard. Short and second have been harassing Casey and has been talking of taking chances.

The Yankees had a lackluster training season, and since the pennant race got under way the weather has been rather unhelpful.

They are confronted with the absolute necessity of playing better ball, or moving out of the picture after having dominated baseball for five straight years, says The Sporting News.

'Break up the Yankees' was at one time the battle cry in the American League. After five flags in a row, can it be that the Yankees are falling apart?

Manager Walter (Smokey) Alston, first-year Dodger manager, made a move at Cincinnati recently that may have been the first of its kind.

With two out, the score tied at 6 and 6 and big Ted Kluszewski the next batter, Alston ordered Ted purposely passed, thus putting the potential winning run on base, says The Sporting News. The move paid off, incidentally, in another unique way. Johnny Temple, the next hitter, with a two-and-two count against him tried to bunt the third strike. He fouled and the third out was an automatic one. (P.S. Temple came up in the 11th with two out and Big Klu on base by another intentional pass, and lined a low single to right center to win the game.)

The Sporting News notes an oddity in the National League schedule: The Giants make their farewell appearance of the season at Pittsburgh on July 1!

When a Yankee writer asked Enos Slaughter to recall some of the great plays he had made, he got a startling answer from the old pro, who said, 'I didn't make any plays I shouldn't have made.'

Did you know that Al Lopez, manager of the Cleveland Indians, caught more games than any other major league backstop... and that he once ate lamb chops for 11 consecutive days while his club was on a winning streak?

Bill McGowan, veteran American League umpire, is another who'll bet you a hat the Baltimore Orioles beat Milwaukee's 1953 attendance record this season. The Braves set a new National League mark of 1.8 million in their first year in their new home, says The Sporting News.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Maryland farmers who overplant wheat under the 1954 acreage allotment program will have to pay a penalty of $1.12 per bushel for the excess wheat, according to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. The penalty is 45 per cent of the wheat, parity price as of May 31, 1954.

In making the announcement, the ASC chairman reminded farmers that if they exceed their allotment, they will not be eligible for price support on the crop.

"May 31 is the deadline for reducing plantings to comply with allotments," he added. "Farmers may get within acreage allotments by turning under the excess for green manure, pasturing it or cutting it for hay or silage."

The provision allowing farmers to reduce acreage extends to all counties in the State this year. Previously it applied only to certain counties where wheat has been commonly used as winter cover crop.

"All wheat standing after May 31 will be counted as 'wheat' under the program and will be checked against the wheat acreage allotment of the farm," according to the ASC chairman. The only farmers who will not be affected by this ruling are those with less than a 15-acre allotment. These farmers may produce as much as 15 acres without incurring market penalties. Excess wheat on all farms with an allotment of more than 15 acres will be subject to the penalty.

Fascinating Fashions By Judy Seaton

Betty Ann Grove, pretty partner of Red Buttons on his CBS-TV comedy show, believes in keeping time with the clock when it comes to shoes. Betty Ann likes the versatility of polished black patent with French toe and square-cut vamp—a simple pump that can go "dress" by adding a clip. Shoe craftsmen know that busy career girls like Betty Ann want comfort as well as style, and so they've designed the subtle new illusion heel that makes "medium" look "high."

Brilliant and bows are handy additions to nine-to-five pumps this year for a variety of quick after-five changes. This graceful sling heel pump is made in a tie-silk fabric that's good for mixing and matching, and a low-cut vamp to show off the instep. For office wear it's as plain as you like. After work, just attach the bow, and it's ready for dinner and dancing.

Looking to the future and a summer sun, Betty Ann is already shopping for sandals, and apparently she's found what she wanted. It's a white dress-up sandal with black trim, perfect with a pastel sheath or one of those billowing chiffon prints. Barefoot sandals with low, low heels are going to be popular this summer, in white and rainbow colors to go with your favorite cottons.

Color is foremost in evening fashions this spring, which calls for something special in footwear, like this shantung pump with Italian heel that's right at home on a dance floor. Fabric shoes nowadays are far more practical than they used to be. They can be dyed to match any costume and with special cleaner, will stay as fresh as the day you bought them.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Dr. George S. Benson
DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Secoy, Arkansas

A Counterspy's Warning

In the spring of 1940 a young church worker in suburban Cambridge, just outside Boston, was attracted to a new youth organization called "The Cambridge Youth Council." He carefully noted on the Council's letterhead the names of prominent citizens, including nationally known educators at Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He also noted that the objectives outlined were in harmony with the youth work he had been doing in his church. So he joined the Council and became active.

The young church worker's name was Herbert Philbrick. Nine years later he was to be revealed as the most famous FBI counterspy in the history of our struggle against Communist infiltration. Herbert Philbrick was an overnight guest in my home recently, on the occasion of his appearance at our Freedom Forum. It was an enjoyable and extremely informative experience for my family. He is a humble, genuine American, a devoted husband and father, and an unquestioned authority on the terrible menace of international Communism.

Effective Voice
In his forum address he showed himself to be one of the most effective voices in America today for acquainting the American people with the true facts about the dangerous Communist penetration of our way of life and the Communists' cunning techniques for influencing public opinion in the direction they want it to go.

When he joined the Cambridge Youth Council, Herbert Philbrick was a sincere but uninformed do-gooder, a member of the Governing Council of his local church, and editor of the church newspaper. He worked as an advertising man in Boston. At first he accepted the Council at face value. Within a few months, however, "I woke up," he said, "to discover much to my shock that the Cambridge Youth Council was not a legitimate youth organization. It was a complete phony, an absolute fraud, and furthermore, it was dominated and controlled by persons I suspected of being members of the Communist Party."

Contacts FBI
He went to the FBI and it confirmed his suspicions: The Cambridge Youth Council, said the FBI, was "a Communist front," and it added that Philbrick had been a typical Red front dupe. But in coming to the FBI he was breaking out of the "dupe" service. The G-men suggested he might become an FBI Counterspy and devote a big part of his life to a dangerous mission for his country. That's how Philbrick began to live three lives—(1) a respectable Boston advertising man, (2) a secret fellow-traveler and later a high-ranking Communist; and (3) a secret counterspy reporting every move of the Red underground to our government.

Herbert Philbrick is a modest self-effacing man. He told me that had he known what he was getting into in his three-sided life, he would have "thought a long time" before agreeing to undertake the mission. He had no idea at the time of the cunning, the brutality, the great hidden power of the Communist conspiracy. One factor in his becoming a Communist and a counterspy was his curiosity.

Still Losing

"I wanted to find out," he said, "how these (Communist) characters were able to manipulate things in such a fashion as to victimize not only myself, but the 300 to 400 young Cambridge people we had as members of the Cambridge Youth Council. All the church organizations were represented in this organization; we held our meeting at the YMCA at no cost to the Communist Party, and I wanted to know how it was they were able to pull such a trick as slick as that. Somebody knew how to operate in a very clever and a very vicious fashion."

Philbrick advanced until he was one of the most valued comrades. What he learned in nine years about the power and influence of the Red underground network in America, and of America's apathy to what's going on, leads him today to say: "We have not turned the tide against Communism. We are still losing."

In next week's column Philbrick explains the Communist's amazing power to shape American public opinion through the art of "cybernetics."

"Miss America of 1954," Miss Evelyn Ay, and the historic Woodlawn Vase will both be present at Pimlico racetrack in Baltimore when the $100,000 Preakness is run on Saturday, May 22nd. The Woodlawn Vase, the oldest trophy in racing, dates back to 1860; the beauteous Miss America is of much more recent vintage.

"Please Make It Work for Other Kids"

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Probably next to mother-in-law jokes, the most frequent stories are built around the lady and the home builder, in which the lady from day to day so changes the plans the builder is always confused.

And that seems to fit the Washington situation.

Congressman James Van Dant states largely because of imports of cheap fuel oil from Venezuela and Dutch West Indies, U. S. coal production has dropped from 145 million tons in 1947 to 91 million tons in 1953. Coal industry employment has dropped from 109,202 to 56,668 in the same period and the trend continues.

U. S. is dumping ground for residual oils produced in these nations by big U. S. oil corporations. But Venezuela, whose residual oil is wrecking an entire American industry recently imposed a tariff duty on U. S. aluminum products up to 350 per cent.

On question of containing Communism. Today U. S. troops are stationed all over the world; thousands died in three years in Korea. U. S. Vice President states if French pull out of Indo-China, U. S. troops move in.

Yet in classic warfare, there are two grand points of strategy. One is to destroy enemy ability to produce; the other is to maintain a naval blockade. Yet Harold Stassen, in charge of the U. S. giveaway programs tells Congress trade with Russia should be increased. This means Russia could get things she needs.

When dairy support prices were lowered, government support prices on over one-third of a billion dollars worth of government owned cheese also came down about a nickel a pound.

But a long advance notice was given of this drop in prices, so cheesemakers unloaded millions of pounds to the government at the old support price, and bought it back immediately after at new lower price. Thus a profit of almost a nickel per pound was made without cheese leaving producers warehouse.

It was announced this plan was followed in hopes milk price paid farmers would not be immediately cut by the cheese makers. But with three firms controlling most of the U. S. cheese supply, milk prices were cut long before date cheese subsidy cut went into effect. They can seem pretty naive in Washington, too, at times.

Also among government surpluses are large stocks of linseed oil, vital in paintmaking. Recently the government sold 84 million pounds to European firms for 7 cents per pound.

This might be cited as an example of what free world trade means to the U. S. except for one little fly in the oil.

The oil sold by the government for 7 cents per pound, cost more than twice that amount. So U. S. taxpayers lost about $11 million on deal, still pay high prices for paint to maintain homes, farms, businesses.

So where is wonder over just what plan, if any, is being followed in Washington.

Obviously the answer is there is no plan. It is also obvious if government is going to avoid bankrupting every American, destroying every independent U. S. business, every American home, a sound business plan must be adopted soon and adhered to.

Irrigation Methods Hold Interest Of Local Farmers

Both the benefits and problems of irrigation are expected to be in for a big year in Maryland this year, especially if the growing season is dry.

This is the conclusion of the Committee for Conservation Now, based on a recently state-wide survey of irrigation use last year and prospects for 1954.

Up to a few years ago, irrigation in the relatively humid Maryland area was practically unknown. Reports of substantial increases in some crop yields, along with recent year drought conditions, have brought about the growing interest.

Irrigation farming is a specialized operation, and irrigation equipment must be tailored to the farm's soil, crops and land use practices, the Committee said. Some of the principal problems are water supply, water rights, careful planning, good drainage and correct sizes of such parts of the equipment as nozzles, pipes, and pumps.

Farmers wanting to install irrigation this year will be able to get more and better help than before. Agencies such as the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland, the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and county agents are more familiar with it, and sales agencies are also more experienced with installation.

lutions. Irrigation has been used primarily on truck crops, hay and pasture in Maryland. To a lesser degree it has been tried on tobacco. Its use on field crops is questionable because of size of acreages.

The greatest irrigation expansion in the state is expected to take place on the lower Eastern Shore, where ground water is plentiful and the growing of truck crops makes irrigation most profitable.

Indicating the growing interest as the Eastern Shore is the demand from soft conservation districts for assistance on digging ponds suitable for irrigation. In Wicomico County, 15 were built last year and 12 requests for assistance have been received so far this year. Six ponds were built in Dorchester County last year, and three requests have been received this year. These ponds are simply excavations to below the water table.

Elsewhere in the state, a check by the Committee among soil conservation district personnel and county agents indicated the increased number of irrigation systems put to use last year greatly stimulated interest and that there will be more demonstrations and applications in 1954. Greatest interest seem to be in Frederick and Montgomery Counties.

Much will depend upon the amount of rainfall this Spring and Summer, the Committee pointed out. If the weather is dry, a rush to get irrigation equipment will be on.

The reports of increased yields where equipment has been properly installed and operated has been a big stimulant. Depending upon the crop, there were verified cases of doubling or nearly trebling yields as a result of irrigation in 1953.

Water rights are still an unsettled problem in the state, the Committee said. Several disputes were reported last year, and more can be expected as irrigation use increases.

Besides streams, ponds and wells are also sources of irrigation water. But ponds are not dependable unless large and stream or spring fed, and wells cannot supply enough water in most parts of the state. The Committee pointed out that irrigation is most needed when streams and ponds are low.

The present limit of farm ponds in Maryland to one and one-half acres is expected to be tested in the near future by farm operators who want bigger ponds for irrigation purposes. Soil Conservation Service experts say a pond should have one acre foot of water for each acre to be irrigated.

Illustrating the importance of water supply, it takes 27,154 gallons of water to supply one inch to an acre. Applications of water usually are two or more inches and are needed several times during the growing season.

Irrigation must supplement rainfall to be most effective, not substitute for it, experts say. Crops suffer and water is wasted if irrigation is started too late and too little water is applied.

Irrigation also must be accompanied by other good land management practices, the Committee added. Lack of conservation practices can cause excessive loss of moisture, soil and fertility. Practices which hold rainfall alone can make a considerable difference in yields and should be employed first or some of the irrigation will be wasteful. Poor drainage can cause crop damage.

How much fertilizer to apply, knowledge of soil water intake and water holding capacity, timing irrigation, proper design of equipment, planning the irrigation work load and the use of crop rotations with irrigation are other important factors to consider, the Committee said.

Depending upon size of system and land and water conditions, the cost of an irrigation system varies from $50 to $150 per acre.

Acute swine erysipelas is reported to be more prevalent in certain major hog-raising areas. It is best controlled by vaccination with simultaneous culture and antiserum. Vaccinating gilts also will help protect young pigs, since the latter gain some immunity from the gilts' milk.

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME AND INLAND FISH COMMISSION

BOB-WHITE QUAIL

(Colinus virginianus virginianus. Derivation, "colinus" from Latin meaning rustic swain, and "virginianus" meaning of Virginia.)

RANGE: Is called quail or partridge but has named himself Bob-White. Found throughout Maryland. Greatest population in the Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland Counties. Because dairy and beef cattle farming have diminished important food and cover plants, quail have decreased greatly in central Maryland.

BREEDING: May keep mates more than 1 year though cocks fight at beginning of breeding season usually in April and May. Nest built on ground sheltered by a thick growth of grass or small bushes, or at foot of stumps; constructed of dry grass, leaves, or weed stalks. Eggs 12-18 pure white; incubation by both hen and cock, 23-24 days. Young leave nest on hatching, reared by both parents.

HABITS: Male very attentive to mate and young. When surprised by intruder mother tries to lead him away by many wiles; chicks squat and remain invisible. Span of life to 15 years. Birds of covey sleep side by side in circular group on ground, heads out, ready to burst away if surprised by enemy. Flight speed, 85 ft., per sec., 51 m.p.h.

MANAGEMENT: Food largely injurious insects during summer; weed seeds in winter. Thrives best where there is a well distributed pattern of rather dense cover throughout the crop land areas. Border or edge plantings of the shrub lespedeza, the sericea, and the annual lespedeza provide both food and cover when planted in narrow strips. Winter food patch plantings of soybeans, cowpeas, millet, milo, and kafir corn are effective providing nearby areas of good cover are present. Narrow strips of grain left standing along the woods' edges at harvest time will do much to carry the birds through the winter time.

VALUE: A favorite game bird; perhaps no other wild bird to which Maryland people are more indebted; delights in the farm; friend and companion of man; a destroyer of weeds and injurious insects.

From France—With Love

Cathedral of Chartres

There are as many reasons as there are people for touring unique, irresistible France, and Pope Pius XII's dedication of 1954 to the Virgin Mary is, to me, a very significant one. All France is celebrating l'Annee Mariale, the Marian Year, with special religious festivities, pelerinages, and torchlight processions. And I'm especially eager to visit again the French cathedral towns, redolent of knights and wandering scholars, and to make my pilgrimage to the world-famed shrines of Our Lady.

In fact, I'm bound for the Pyrenees and the world-famous grotto at Lourdes, where, in 1858, the Virgin appeared to Bernadette Soubirous. Three years later, Pope Pius IX defined the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, and ever since, pilgrims have come from all over the world, hoping that the grotto's miraculous water will effect a cure. I remember the first time I went there. I arrived in time to see a torchlight procession in the basilica square. Flambeaux were carried and threw their light against the sky while the pilgrims sang the familiar "Ave." It was an unforgettable experience.

The ancient Norman town of Lisieux is the scene this year of a fete dear to every French heart. On July 10th the basilica in honor of their beloved saint, Therese of the Child Jesus, will be solemnly consecrated. This is one religious festival I won't want to miss.

Perhaps my favorite of all cathedral towns is Chartres, only an hour by train from Paris. Tradition tells us that Chartres was the great center of French devotion from early Christian days, and because of its beauty and grace, was called "la" Cathedrale, "the" cathedral. For centuries France has venerated her Vierge Noire, or Black Virgin, an ancient wooden statue in the crypt known as Notre Dame de Sous-Terre. And this year many more pilgrims are expected to come for the special candlelight procession into the crypt.

But here I go on and on about Chartres when there are so many other beautiful shrines and cathedrals to visit during l'Annee Mariale. And when you come to make your pilgrimage, don't worry about lodgings on the way. There are many charming hoteleries en route to suit your budget and noted for their fine cuisine and traditionally warm French hospitality. So here is a list of the more important events I hope you'll attend with me.

May 15—Feast of Notre Dame du Port, Clermont-Ferrand, Auvergne, where Pope Urban II launched the first Crusade.
May 29—Pilgrimage to Notre Dame de Liesse, near Laon in Picardy.
May 31—Grand pilgrimage to Notre Dame de Chartres.
June 7—International pilgrimage of students who make the journey from Paris to Chartres on foot.
June 27—Pilgrimage to Notre Dame de la Garde, Marseilles.
Aug. 15—Pilgrimage to the shrine of Notre Dame de Fourviere, Lyon.
Aug. 22—Pilgrimage to Notre Dame de Boulogne, Boulogne.
Sept. 19—Pilgrimage to Notre Dame de la Salette, near Corps in the Isere-Alps.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By Cong. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, May 12 — Despite the fight waged by members of the Maryland delegation and others in Congress, the St. Lawrence Seaway bill was enacted last week. During the debate on it I took the floor to point out eight reasons why I disapproved of the measure:

(1) It would be open only part of the year, frozen over in winter. (2) It is useless from a defense standpoint. (3) It will not make iron ore available to the U. S. at lower prices. (4) It is on U. S. soil and cannot be a Canadian venture alone. Those who were for the bill argued that it could be. (5) It will disrupt the extremely important railroad transportation system in the eastern U. S. This is a prime defense facility. (6) It will not be deep enough to be used by American maritime vessels. (7) It will severely hurt the coal industry on which the nation must depend in emergencies. (8) The electric power to be developed with the Seaway could be provided for separately and privately, if needed.

Maryland will watch these developments closely, since it is situated in the heart of the rail and coal industries. Congress will have more to say about the Seaway construction when it is called on to appropriate funds. In view of the likely harm to American business (and the fact that Canada will be chiefly benefited) we do not feel the Seaway will be a wise expenditure of American taxpayers' money.

The debate on Indo-China, which tends to produce more heat than enlightening information, continues to be the No. 1 news story. Secretary Dulles' report over the air last Friday shows that the Administration has asserted its foreign policy leadership without at the same time abusing its power.

The question is one of intervention with American troops. The object would be to save southeast Asia as free territory. With the majority in Congress, I believe there should be no intervention unless it is a joint project of our allies and the French take sure steps to make their colonies in Indo-China independent nations.

Secretary Dulles has assured us that both these conditions may materialize. He has also assured us that the Administration will rest on Congress' decision. It remains now to see what will be done diplomatically. The effort at Geneva has not been successful because the Communists knew the thinking of our Congress and that Mr. Dulles could only go so far in his bluffing.

The current effort to gather the southeast Asian nations into an alliance is a major undertaking

Black-Eyed Susan Stakes At Pimlico Over Weekend

With the opening out of the way and the Dixie Handicap a matter of history, the Maryland Jockey Club looks forward to the running of the Black-Eyed Susan Stakes this week-end. This $20,000 fixture for three-year-old fillies is expected to draw a top-grade field including such outstanding performers as Fascinator, Queen Hopeful, Cherokee Rose, Nance's Lass, O'Alison, Queen Caroline, Make a Play and Jenay.

Interest in the Preakness on May 22 also is increasing steadily. Arrival of Correlation, beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby is an indication that this California-owned colt will try to make amends in the Preakness.

Other prospects for the $100,000 three-year-old classic includes Hasty Road, Hasseyampo, Goyamo, Artismo, Staffordshire, Ring King, Gigantic, and possibly a half dozen others.

Early reservations and the advance sale of seats indicates the Preakness Day throng will eclipse that of last season when more than 30,000 were in attendance.

Noticed three half-finished letters lying on the counter down at Jones' Drug Store last week. "Writing three at once, Doc?" I asked.

"No," Doc said, "you are—you and the rest of the town. Those are for the boys from our town who are at the National Guard encampment."

"Everyone who comes in adds a line or two, and when a couple of pages are filled, I mail them. That way the boys hear from folks who might not write otherwise. They sure do enjoy it."

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 13—Last December in this column I predicted we would NOT have a sharp drop in business during 1954. So far this has not taken place, although there has been a temporary period of unemployment.

The question is: What will be the pattern of business from here on? This I will discuss in a few weeks when I make my extended forecast for the last six months.

How Bad Are Conditions?

Because some of my critics were overly pessimistic for the first quarter and business conditions failed to bolster their attitude, they have now become pessimistic about the second half. I think they are still wrong! Sure, retail sales have dropped some in a number of lines since the first of the year. Automobile sales for most companies have been poor. Steel production has slowed to about 70 per cent of capacity, but is still almost 30 per cent better than that of 1940 or 1946. The squeeze has been on, too, for the marginal farmer, with the trend to larger farms, greater mechanization, and fewer farm hands. Last year's five per cent drop in farm income caught the farm machinery manufacturers off balance. I anticipate this condition will continue well into 1954.

The leveling-off in business activity which figures such as these represent will be reflected in the business of the railroads. During this second quarter our railroads are anticipating about a 27 per cent decline in automotive shipments, a 17 per cent decline in steel loadings, and an approximate eight per cent decline in coal and coke loadings. On the other hand, some increase is expected in transporting such things as fruits, frozen foods, cotton, and cement. So, I forecast that total carloadings this quarter will reflect a drop of only about eight per cent over the second quarter of last year.

Reasons For Optimism

There are, in fact, some substantial reasons for optimism. For nearly a year now we have been working down the unsold goods on our shelves and in our warehouses. People are still in a good position to buy; they have the money. Did you know that personal income rose to about $285 billions by the end of 1953, compared with around $280 billions at the end of 1952? During this same period, salaries increased more than two per cent so that our living standards and savings reached the highest point in history.

Further, our banks have both cash and government securities in an amount equal to about 60 per cent of deposits, and the easy-money policy which encourages business is back with us. The construction industry keeps booming. For example, the Commerce Dept. reports that new construction expenditures for first quarter 1954 were the highest in our entire national history. A number of manufacturers polled indicate that March 1954 was either the second or third best in the history of their companies.

The Unemployment Question.
There has been much loose talk about unemployment. I am especially concerned by the way in which unemployment data have been presented by many magazines and newspapers. This could have an adverse psychological effect upon business which is not warranted. Granted, across the country there have been more instances of local labor surpluses. No one likes to see anybody out of work. But the picture is not nearly so alarming as some analysts would have us believe.

I believe the best way of presenting unemployment figures is on a per capita or percentage basis. To illustrate: In 1928 the population was 120.5 million. The unemployed totaled 2.9 million. Therefore, the per cent of unemployment per capita was only 2.4. In 1938 the population had increased to 129.8 million and unemployment to 10.3 million. The per capita unemployment, therefore, was then eight per cent. Now take 1954. Our present population numbers roughly 160 million. Even with a high estimate of four million unemployed, the per capita percentage figure would equal only 2.5, or about the same as in the boom year of 1928! Be careful how you let the prophets of doom lead you astray. Business conditions are good, and with your help they are going to be even better in the months to come.

The need for controlling parasites is shown by the estimate that one parasite may result in the loss of as much as 1.6 pounds in weight among cattle during a four-month period.

KWASHIORKOR

Another new disease to worry about? No. This is one that you will probably never meet. And there is a good reason for it. It's the bottle of milk on your doorstep that keeps kwashiorkor away.

People in many other countries are not so lucky. The problem of 'red boy'—which is the meaning of that difficult word—is so widespread that both the World Health Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations are now trying to solve it. The name describes the appearance of a child with this pitiful disease. His hair becomes reddish brown. The skin develops an odd cracked pavement look. And with these symptoms come diarrhea, underweight, swelling of the skin with fluid, weak muscles, and anemia. The child becomes sad and apathetic. He does not smile or play.

Signs of the disease appear in infants a few months old, when weaning begins. It seems to be caused by a lack of milk protein in the diet, and too much carbohydrate in relation to protein. When the youngster is fed dried skim milk or mixtures of various plant proteins with bananas, he usually recovers.

Although kwashiorkor is unlikely to attack your children, it illustrates the great importance of milk in their lives. Diet fads may come and go, but milk remains a basic necessity in keeping them healthy. Whether bottled, evaporated, dried, or skimmed, it gives more food value for your money. Milk provides protein, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, and body-building calcium. Most children go through a period of resisting their mealtime glass of milk. With the picture of the sad 'red boy' in mind, don't give up the battle easily. With a little planning, at least a pint of milk a day can be used in foods that the child enjoys eating.

A MAN FROM INDIANA

One of radio's most widely heard voices is that of a trim, conservative man from Indiana, by way of California and New York, named Galen Drake. He is a fellow whom few listeners, except for his radio personality (mornings, CBS Radio's "Galen Drake Show," and other broadcasts), know much about, despite the fierce publicity consciousness of the field in which he has excelled. Few pictures of Drake have ever been released to the press (see cut, now two years old, of Drake and children Linda Anne and Galen Spencer, then respectively 2 years and 7-months old.) Actually Drake, of average build and height, is a quiet, studious family man whose background is the study of law, medicine and drama at the University of California. An owner of a library of some 10,000 volumes, he's been a "talk-about-everything" broadcaster since the '30's and a CBS attraction for over the last 10-years. Typical Drakism: "Haste makes waste, but the man who lacks it often ends up in the worse muddle."

300 More Frederick Countians Receive Benefit Payments

During the past 12 months almost 300 Frederick and Frederick County men and women retired from their work and began to receive monthly payments under the old-age and survivors insurance system, according to W. S. King, manager of the Hagerstown Social Security office.

This increase, Mr. King said, points up two facts: there is a steady increase in the number of aged persons in relation to our total population; and, the number of persons entitled to old-age benefits is rapidly increasing as the program approaches maturity. Thirty-six million people in the U. S. are now over 50 years old and 13 million are over 65. Four out of each five persons of the 36 million over age 50 are employed in work covered by the present social security program.

The program will protect more and more people as years pass and social security benefits will be an important factor in the financial status of these workers and their families, after the worker's retirement.

Planned retirement — either elected by the worker, or forced by the employer, the worker's health or other reasons—is much simpler, Mr. King added, if the worker can estimate the amount he and his family will have from the social security program. This estimate can be made, he said, by
