—BY ABIGAIL—

Well if everything goes as expected, the county election campaign soon will wax as hot as the weather. The sudden change in temperatures sent most of us in a quest for a cool spot, cool clothing and cooler drinks or refreshments of other types. But it was no more than expected. It happens every year! One becomes so forlorn during the dreary, chilly and rainy April and May months that he is apt to lose his perspective as to the nice weather which always follows this period and when the hot days set in around the first of June we are caught totally unprepared for the sudden change.

Swimming will take up most of the younger element's time from now on into the fall, while the older classes will seek respite from the sizzling days to come by fishing, picnicking, boating or just plain driving around. Most of the high school and college graduates will just take it easy until something shows up, while others are all set to go right to work. I don't know whether or not the graduating class at Mt. St. Mary's is the largest in that institution's history or not, but I'm certain it will come near setting such a record if it hasn't already. The Mount graduated 85 this year.

News of the Mount's new building, reported to cost a cool half million, was certainly welcome news for this district. Its construction will provide a lot of work for local artisans and when completed will accommodate over 100 additional students, which all means more business for local merchants.

Attendance at the local baseball games has been fair to date, but could be a lot better. This year we have almost a totally local talent team and it deserves much stronger support. For years a lot of us bemoaned the fact that the town wouldn't play local young men, constantly employing the talents of outsiders. Well now there are very few strangers on the squad and to top it off, the team is playing a pretty good brand of ball. They are currently resting in third position of the league in which they hold a franchise. Let's get behind them folks! Your help, both financial and moral, is needed.

The next time you see the Municipal Band in action, I'm certain you'll be mighty proud of it. The band has adopted an economical and neat-appearing uniform consisting of white pants, slacks for the female members, white shirts or blouses and blue caps with lyric insignia. I am told it will work in close cooperation with the Vigilant Hose Company and the Legion Drill Team during the coming parade season, so you'll be seeing them a lot this summer. Incidentally, the band is now booking engagements, so if you know of a little "work" that can be had, I'm sure they would be glad to learn about it. "Class" has been added to the outfit by the addition of a petite and pulchritudinous majorette who will lead the aggregation on many of its engagements. The Town Council is to be commended, and highly for its support of this local musical organization.

The Army-McCarthy investigation continues to hold the public's interest after three weeks' duration and no sign of a let-up or completion in sight yet. Millions of words have been spoken, hundreds of hours of television time consumed and nothing, as usual, has been proven yet—and in my opinion won't be! Very few, if any, congressional investigations ever amount to anything constructive and conclusive, and I'll bet my bottom dollar that this one will turn out to be of the usual variety. It does provide interesting pastime though... at considerable waste of the taxpayers' money.

ADMINISTRATORS GIVE ACCOUNTING

The first and final account of Allen E. Bollinger and Joseph T. Bollinger, administrators of the estate of William H. Bollinger was received this week by the Orphans' Court of Frederick. Mt. St. Mary's Graduates 85 Seniors

Talking to the graduates at the 146th annual commencement of Mt. St. Mary's College, on Wednesday, June 2, Dr. Charles R. Goldsborough, prominent Baltimore physician, called on the graduates to "fight the principle, for the honor and dignity of man, rather than for just the material things of this world."

Dr. Goldsborough pointed out that individuals of courage and forthrightness must "take sides and make decisions. There is a special place in hell," he said, "for those who confronted with a real moral crisis, insist on remaining neutral. Each of you should recognize your duty and be always available when called to take an active part in any civic or religious movement which has for its purpose to resist any attempt to subvert freedom of education or freedom of government."

"That there is chaos in the world today is nothing new. It stems from man's earliest attempt to deny God's impotence. With this inception in intellectual pride, there have come down through the ages, in one form or another, false philosophies, religious heresies and schisms, totalitarian ideologies, the stripping of personality from men by legal or social devices, the teaching that all authority in society is in the will of man alone. Resulting from these abuses of man's free will, the world has witnessed the rise and fall of vast empires, of powerful nations, yet the sin of pride remains unabated. And so you men also are confronted with chaos today, chiefly in the guise of secularism at home, communism abroad, both basically sinful, militating against the nobility of man's destiny."

Student speakers were the salutatorian Robert H. Goldsborough, son of the commencement speaker, and Paul J. O'Brien, Haddonfield, N. J., valedictorian.

The Monsignor Bradley Memorial prize for the highest average in the Latin philosophy course was awarded to John J. Conway, Camden, N. J.

Registrations Favor Democrats

According to figures compiled at the office of the Board of Registry in the Frederick Courthouse there are 27,427 registered voters in the county for the June 28 primaries, it was learned this week.

Registration books closed for the primaries at 9 p. m. Saturday evening. Ninety-five registrants took advantage of the last day for registration and got their names on the books Saturday.

Sixty-seven of the 95 were registered as Democrats and 28 were Republicans.

Democrats Have Majority The final run-down of the figures shows: Republicans, 12,099; Democrats, 15,028; others, 300; total, 27,427.

Both parties showed increases since the presidential primaries of 1952. Democrats have increased their total from 14,543 to 15,028, a hike of 485. The Republican total went up 409 from 11,690. Total voters eligible to cast ballots in the primaries two years ago was 26,433.

From January of 1953, when the registration books were opened following the election, through last Saturday, the registration total was 770. Of these, 309 were Republicans and 457 were Democrats. Four declined.

The total registration at the time of the 1952 presidential election in November, was 28,387. This figure was cut down by the elimination of 1,111 names of registrants who had not voted once in five consecutive years; 580 who had died and 139 who had removed to other jurisdictions.

Both parties are hoping that the turnout of voters at the primaries on June 28 will be an improvement over the light 1952 balloting. Fewer than a third of the eligibles cast ballots in the '52 primaries, the total being only 8,141, of which 4,339 were Democrats and 3,802 were Republicans.

The Board of Registry office was open until 9 p. m. each night of last week to accommodate prospective registrants, but the registration was not heavy. The registration books are now closed until 10 days after the primaries, when new registrations will be accepted up until a short time before the November election.

JUST WHAT DOES BECOME OF WATER?

In creating a committee of three Cabinet members to study formation of a national water policy, President Eisenhower acknowledged that there are some problems in which it is both desirable and necessary for the Federal Government to seize the initiative.

The President says there must be a co-ordinated water program in this country, else it will wake up some day and find itself a "have-not" nation. And he contends that the only proper way to get such a program is to start at the Continental Divide to "see what becomes of the water, all the water to the sea." He sees the need to co-ordinate water development with other natural activities, including soil conservation.

This is the inevitable conclusion of students of conservation. It is the logical and necessary extension of the principle behind watershed districts like those already established. It acknowledges that states, or counties, or municipalities can't possibly deal single-handed with water problems that cut across their artificial boundaries.

The Eisenhower Administration's approach to water and power problems has been one of federal-local partnership, with strong accent on the local phases. But the President may have realized that, in waiting for local initiative to develop, valuable time has been lost in dealing with an immediately critical problem. And since solutions eventually must be worked out across state lines anyhow, it is logical enough for the Federal Government to take the initiative.

As members of the committee on water resources, Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson and Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson will tackle a big problem. Mr. McKay can brief his fellow committeemen on the perils of the task. His department has been criticized for its do-nothing attitude on water conservation. But in the one instance where it has proposed to act—the Echo Park dam project in Colorado's Dinosaur National Monument area—a storm of protest has been stirred against destroying a national recreation area.

There are other hurdles too—an apparent overlapping of authority with the Hoover Commission, the jealousy with which the army engineers, the Agriculture Department and other agencies guard their respective conservation domains. But if the Administration takes hold of the problem and develops a water conservation plan on a national scale, perhaps it can minimize these difficulties.

Sybert Scores Gov. McKeldin For Deficit

Byrd Says Mahoney Lacks Facts On U. Of Md. Bonds

Republican Governor McKeldin is rounding out his term by setting up "an almost certain" $15,000,000 deficit in the next State Budget, C. Ferdinand Sybert, candidate for Attorney General and running mate of Dr. H. C. Byrd, Democratic candidate for Governor, charged this week.

Meanwhile, Dr. Byrd declared that there "is not one scintilla of truth" in an assertion made by his Democratic primary opponent, George P. Mahoney, that the low bidder was ignored in awarding a contract for the construction of the new student union and student activities buildings at the University of Maryland.

Sybert Hits McKeldin Speaking before the Anne Arundel Citizens for Byrd for Governor Committee, Senator Sybert pulled no punches in his verbal broadside against Governor McKeldin. "As Senator from Howard County for the past four years," he stated, "I have seen Governor McKeldin, through the provisions of the budget he submitted to the Legislature and through other spending programs of the past four years, bring his four-year term to an end as Governor with an almost certain deficit of approximately $15,000,000 in the next State Budget."

The Howard County Senator said $5,000,000 of this would result from Governor McKeldin's plan to collect the gross receipts tax twice in the current fiscal year by advancing the collection date, thereby omitting a collection from next fiscal year.

Governor McKeldin also spent $3,000,000 in surplus money and $1,500,000 in unspent previous appropriations, Senator Sybert asserted, bringing the total expected deficit to $9,500,000. Governor McKeldin, he said, "knows that the next Governor will be required by law" to budget $5,000,000 more for increases in minimum pay to school teachers.

"This leaves the incoming Governor facing a $15,000,000 deficit after four years of McKeldin's administration," he continued. "This has all been done by the Republican Governor who ran with his No. 1 campaign plank against Governor Lane: The repeal of the State sales tax. The budgets he sent to the Legislature did not allow the repeal of the sales tax... Governor McKeldin through his budgets has created a State deficit nearly as large in dollars as the two percent sales tax produces."

Byrd Raps Mahoney Dr. Byrd lashed out with a four-pronged reply to "baseless and unfounded charges" by Mr. Mahoney who said the former Maryland University President had "a tendency" to depart from the principle of competitive bidding in awarding the student union-student activities building contract to Baltimore Contractors.

"Mr. Mahoney has charged the Board of Regents, the president of the university, and, by inference, the Attorney General, with a breach of public trust," Dr. Byrd asserted. "The University would be glad to furnish any person any information he might wish to enable him to avoid making statements, either false or due to ignorance, one about as bad as the other."

Dr. Byrd then proceeded to supply Mr. Mahoney with the following information:

1. The University of Maryland has never awarded a contract without competitive bidding.
2. Baltimore Contractors actually was the lowest bidder, rather than the high bidder, as Mr. Mahoney claimed, and was low by $137,000.
3. The final cost to the University will be $3,071,518—not $3,334,000 as stated by Mr. Mahoney—for the two buildings.
4. The Board of Regents, not the University president, awards contracts and in this case did so on the advice of the Attorney General.

Degrees Conferred On Mount Athletes

Three captains of athletic squads at Mt. St. Mary's College were graduated with honors at the 146th annual commencement exercises Wednesday, June 2.

Jack Mazouzeix, New York City, captain of this year's Mason-Dixon basketball champion, graduated magna cum laude with a degree in business administration.

Leo Green, Mount Cuba, Del., baseball captain, and Hugh Gardiner, Faulkner, Md., track captain, received their degrees cum laude.

Race Horse Dies

Gay Venture, 14-year-old gelding thoroughbred race horse, died this week. The horse was owned by local sportsman, J. Norman Flax. The thoroughbred was a half-brother to a recent Kentucky Derby winner, Middleground, and was sired by Bold Venture, also a Derby winner. He successfully campaigned at Maryland tracks as well as Charles Town and Wheeling, W. Va., ovals.

Baccalaureate Sermon Stresses Leadership

In his baccalaureate sermon delivered to the 85 members of the 146th graduating class of Mt. St. Mary's College Wednesday afternoon in the Chapel of the Immaculate Conception, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas V. Cassidy urged the graduates to "take up the responsibility of leadership."

"Our times present a scene that is somewhat strained but, perhaps, typical," said Msgr. Cassidy. "All fields of learning evidence a fitful search for truth in a mood of defeatism. Science sets out to create a brave new world free from all physical pain and annoyance. Now it learns that its great inventive genius has created an instrument that will destroy the mankind that it hoped to save. For the thought that a series of jet-propelled atomic bombs may destroy nations has generated a world-wide fear for this unpredictable future."

"Philosophy had a firm grasp of fundamental teachings and offered majestic calm. Now this study has kicked aside a sound basis of thinking and it splashes around amongst the hydra-headed forms of materialism. The conflicting pronouncements of modern philosophy manifest the wide diversity of opinion about matters that demand the singleness of truth."

"Education is by-gone days claimed a chance to reform manners and morals of men. Now it finds itself hopelessly trying to explain what has gone wrong. Its noble aim has been defeated by the practices that denied the God-given right of soul training. Progressives patterned their programs on the theories of naturalism. Now they discover that these and moral stagnation. All too late, teachings end in mental confusion they suspect that Man's destiny may be supernatural."

"So, in the learned sciences there lies a multiplicity of isms—all man-made, contradictory and fleeting."

"For in these troubled times, fraught with political and social fears, the need of a body of truth that furnishes hope for mankind seems urgent. This course may be offered in the abstract by a set of moral principles for the guidance of human wisdom. On paper, these truths may be used to make proper adjustments to meet changes in society. But the application of the teachings of the Divine Master to daily living is all-important. This work must be done by those who have trained in right thinking. The magnitude of the task might seem overwhelming if it were not set right by the words of the Divine Master: 'I have overcome the world.'"

"For if these are the times that try men's souls, this is the age that calls for more and more intelligent action from those who bear the standard of the faith. Pope Pius XI said that in his troubled days, it is no longer possible for a Christian to be mediocre."

After alluding to the fact that the country has a right to look to the colleges for leadership measured not only in terms of material success, Msgr. Cassidy said that the youthful optimism and the will to conquer would remain unspoiled in an age of fear only as long as it was barricaded by a living faith in the truths of religion.

He pointed out that wealth and public esteem were sorry standards by which to judge college graduates. "Rather," he said, "would we ask, 'How many have been influenced by your word and example.'"

God is our refuge and strength,
a very present help in trouble.
—(Psalm 46, 1.)

There are times when even the most aggressive, forceful, self-assured among us must know, in their secret hearts, that their human strength is not enough—that God alone can help them in their trouble. Those who humbly, truly, live within Him "will not fear, though the earth be removed."

VISITING A SICK FRIEND

"Poor Jane. We must go to the hospital and cheer her up." It's a kind and sympathetic thought, but before you put it into action, stop and consider how you can make your visit to the sickroom truly a welcome one.

Times have changed in the hospital world. In the old days, patients stayed longer and, as they convalesced, were often well enough to enjoy and even benefit by having visitors. But now the average stay in a hospital is only eight days. If Jane is in the hospital at all, she's probably pretty sick, certainly weak and easily tired. Many doctors state bluntly that visitors disturb the patient's rest, interrupt a carefully planned routine, interfere with medication and feeding, and tire him to the point of hindering his recovery.

Don't take it for granted that your friend is allowed visitors. Telephone first to make sure and to ask about visiting hours and how long you should stay. Properly timed, your visit can be helpful. But a thoughtless visitor can do harm.

A common fault of people trying to be cheery is talking too loud. Hold your voice down and sit where the patient can see and hear you without moving her head. Give her news of friends and neighborhood events. Talk about what a good cook or canasta player she is, rather than about yourself. If she insists on talking politics, join in but don't argue. If she wants to give you all the details of her operation, listen patiently, but don't you be the one to start it.

As for gifts, give a little thought to selecting something you know will suit the patient, rather than automatically buying a big bunch of flowers. Appropriate cartoons and articles cut from newspapers and magazines, puzzles, playing cards, and games can be "good medicine." The loan of a radio or TV set might be appreciated, if hospital rules permit. Bring small flowers in containers if possible or small potted plants — something your friend can have near her bed.

One final piece of advice, make sure that yours was a helpful visit and that you'll be welcome again; leave promptly when your time is up.

In olden days, the highways were traveled by brave men called knights. They rode from city to city carrying messages of great value to kings and on errands of commerce. But they were also trained in many other things like first-aid and life-saving.

In our days, the new "Knights" of the road are the men who drive our trucks and trailers . . . their deeds of mercy are a million-fold. Their list of heroes grows daily.

Here are just two stories:
Frank McClaren of Clinton, Iowa, saw two private cars side-swipe ahead of him on the highway. McLaren halted his truck-trailer, waded knee-deep in the icy adjoining canal to rescue the drowning woman thrown there . . . then with the help of other truck drivers freed two children still in the auto wreck.

On a bitter-cold night 17 years ago Martin Larson of St. Paul was on a Wisconsin highway with a full load of gasoline aboard his truck-transport. Suddenly he saw a flash off the highway ahead. He stopped his truck on the road shoulder and then, braving flames and hot metal, he pulled a man and his wife from the burning wreckage. After more help came Larson went on his way—remaining unidentified for his brave deed for 10 years until a telephone operator remembered his name

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By U. S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall

The Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, of which I am a member, completed work on the Federal Housing Act and debate is expected to begin Thursday, June 3.

The Senate Committee was considering a bill already passed by the House of Representatives, and another bill drafted in our committee, when the housing scandals broke.

Contrary to predictions that the revelations of irregularities would mean the end of housing legislation during this session of Congress, our committee fooled the prognosticators.

Realizing how important legislation was to the welfare of the people in this country, and the helpful role the Federal Housing Administration has played in making it easier for people to buy their own homes, we proceeded with study of the housing bill and made an effort to tighten it so that no such irregularities would occur in the future.

The building industry is now one of the most important parts of our national economy, and any slow-down in the building has an immediate effect on the economy of every community in the nation.

There is still a great need for houses and with FHA prepared to guarantee parts of the risks our banks, savings and loan associations, and private contractors are able to supply homes for those who want to own, and are prepared to buy, their own homes.

It should be remembered that FHA does not lend money to home buyers, but approves the contractors' specifications, and underwrites the mortgage held by the banks and other lending institutions in your community.

Now that the new housing bill has been reported out of committee, the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency will proceed with a full scale investigation into the past conduct of FHA officials in an effort to determine responsibility for irregularities which reportedly cost home buyers, and tenants, millions of dollars.

Among the changes in the housing law are those submitted by the Housing and Home Finance Agency itself, designed to outlaw fleeing home owners, and wind-fall profits for builders.

The new law will end FHA guaranteed loans for barbecue pits, swimming pools, and many other unnecessary so-called "home improvements."

Included in the changes are rec-

Student Is Winner In Essay-Poster Contest

Wilhelm May, an exchange student at Emmitsburg High School and a member of the local Reformed Church, was awarded first prize in Group D in the poster-essay contest conducted by the Potomac Synod of the E. ommendations by the committee which would:

- 1-Increase the maximum loan from $2500 to $3000 and extend term from three to five years, under the FHA improvement and repair loan program.
- 2-On multi-family loans, permit increases beyond maximum of $10,000 by allowing $1500 per unit or $10,000, whichever is greater, and increases term from seven to 10 years.
- 3-Give servicemen the same terms on government-guaranteed mortgages that they would receive as veterans.
- 4-Direct the VA and the FHA to consolidate as many of their functions as possible.
- 5-Extend defense housing and Wherry (military installations) housing.
- 6-Extend by $1000 per room the maximum mortgages on slum clearance projects in large cities where costs are high.

There are many other substantial changes, a brief summary of which requires seven pages, and it is hoped that the bill will be passed by the Senate after about three days of discussion.

Prompt passage of the new housing bill will assure continued high activity in home construction, thereby providing another stimulant to business; prompt passage will also mean that new homes will continue to be supplied and Americans will be able to purchase them under a program which protects the buyer and the lending institution, at the same time preserving individual initiative and private enterprise.

Easy Gardening

If he's a grubber and you're a sprayer—he'll be sweating and cursing while you're pitching and putting. Chemical lawn weed killers clean up dandelion, plantain, wild onion, and many other weed pests without hurting the grass. Just a little of the chemical is enough to do the job. One shot of the chemical usually kills weed tops and roots—there's nothing to grow back except the grass. But don't use your weed-killer sprayer for applying insecticides, fungicides or fertilizer to the rest of your garden.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 3—Labor leaders have forced employers to resort to unprecedented research. This research is teaching employers that they can get on without routine workers. This should be a warning to those now graduating from high school or college.

Push-Button Age
The development of electronics furnishes the basis of modern automatic machinery. A simple illustration is the "electric eye," which opens doors at the correct time without any help from you. Another illustration is the record-changer and turnover on our phonographs, including the automatic stopping of the machine. The most complicated are the new "missiles" which chase and catch an airplane without any human direction.

This same electronic principle is being applied to operation of a factory by a dozen employees, in contrast to the 400 formerly required. As their chief duty will be to "press push-buttons," this can be done by women as well as by men. Labor does not realize the great changes ahead. Employers will always need human help; but not for many present-day jobs. They will want the intelligence and judgment of high school and college graduates.

Serious Blow to Russia, China, and India

Russia has been depending on her massed armies to overrun Europe the first day of her attack. As the Free Nations of Europe learn to use atomic weapons, wars will also go on a "push-button" basis. The great masses of Russians, Chinese and Moslems will be a nuisance to clutter up a battlefield. Premier Nehru recognizes this. It explains his great desire to remain neutral. Electronics and the atom will cause tremendous changes in both warfare and education.

It surely is wonderful to live here in the U. S., which is leading in these new developments. I envy our young people who are to graduate this month. They will have so many more opportunities than we oldsters had. I wish the schools and colleges would wake up to these changes that are ahead. Better pension off the professor who can teach only the orthodox old-fashioned courses, instead of forcing young people to take these courses in order to get an A.B. degree.

Character and Brains
I forecast that the above changes mean young graduates will need good character more than ever before. Better training by homes, churches and colleges will be absolutely essential in this new electronic push-button age. Wise are the young people who now take evening courses which will enable them to move forward to better jobs when the dull ones are cast aside. I forecast that even the linotype machine which sets the type for this column will be abandoned for a new automatic photo process.

The typical salesgirl of today could become obsolete. She could be replaced 70 per cent by "self-service" counters, 20 per cent by push-button vending machines, to which I have previously referred, and 10 per cent by highly-paid, intelligent salesmen and clerks who secure new customers. Such qualifications must be had by the June graduates who are to get good jobs. The field of advertising and selling is yet in its infancy, with marvelous possibilities for those who properly train themselves.

I forecast that this change means: (1) manual and routine labor will gradually become obsolete; (2) to keep employed those unable to do anything else, their hours of work will constantly be decreased with the same take-home pay. This will boost the "Guild-It-Yourself" industries! (3) The pay increases will go to the serious and intelligent employees. There will be no limit to the salaries of those who have the needed character, brains, loyalty, and initiative; (4) the great U. S. problem will not be to raise crops, or to build homes, or to manufacture merchandise, but to get people to buy. Hence, instead of subsidizing farmers, we will subsidize merchants and salesmen; (5) I am advising young men to become expert machinists, instead of lawyers; trained outside salesmen, instead of inside pencil-pushers; and after graduation this June, to attend night school in preparation for the New Age.

New School Bus Regulations

A new regulation relating to the stopping of school buses when transporting children on Maryland's highway went into effect June 1, Thomas B. R. Mudd, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, said early this week.

Mr. Mudd issued a ruling making it mandatory for operators of all school buses to flash signal lights on the front and rear of machines 100 feet before coming to a halt.

Mr. Mudd suggested the new stop ruling several months ago. He and officials of the State Dept. of Education conferred. He also recommended the signs at State lines to the Commission.

At the conference with school authorities it was pointed out that the law provides that signals on school buses must be flashed when the buses are halted. Mr. Mudd, however, insisted this was not sufficient precaution against accident.

He conferred with the State Law Dept. and received approval from the attorney general to place the new ruling into effect. Mimeographed copies of the regulation were sent to all school superintendents.

"I observed that motorists behind traveling school buses and approaching in the opposite direction were not given sufficient warning by bus operators of an intention to halt to take on or discharge children," Mr. Mudd said. "With operators flashing a signal 100 feet before halting, other motorists on the highway will be given sufficient indication of their intention to halt."

Mr. Mudd said the signs at State lines will be especially effective since motorists from other

CATCHING

By

*Ray Schalk

From the book "How to Play"

published by The Sporting News

WORK WITH PITCHER

Chapter 12

The catcher also must work on the supposedly weak hitters, using the same care as he does on the good hitters. Remember, never take anything for granted. Don't consider the inning over if you get rid of the tough hitter in a pinch. The supposedly weak hitter may cross you up and come through with a surprise hit that will break up the game. I have seen this happen many times. My theory always was that there were no poor hitters among the regulars on any American League club. It was fine to get rid of Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, George Sisler or Goose Goslin after you and the pitcher had collaborated and given him the works. However, I always kept tightened up to go after the next batter, even if he was hitting 150 or 200 points under the man just retired. Any batter is dangerous as long as he remains in the batter's box. Don't let up against any of them, and don't allow your pitcher to let up.

It is especially important for the battery to work hard to keep the first batter in every inning, particularly when the score is close, from reaching first base. Work your hardest to get that first batter, even if he is the pitcher, or a supposedly weak hitter. Fully 50 per cent of the inning has been completed if you get rid of the first batter.

A catcher greatly improves his usefulness to his club if he can field bunts capably. With only first base occupied, the catcher can safely leave his position if a bunt is laid down. On bunts close to the home plate, or only ten or 15 feet up the first or third base line, the catcher is in much better position than the pitcher or an infielder to field the ball, as the play is in front of him and he is not forced to wheel around and get into position to make his throw after fielding the ball. Youngsters who aspire to be successful catchers should practice hard and faithfully to become proficient in fielding bunts.

I advise the catcher to keep an eye on the scoreboard, in order to be certain of the number of balls and strikes on the batter, the number of outs and the inning that is being played. Unlike the days when I broke in, scoreboards now show more, and are operated with care. The catcher should be constantly checking the count on the batter, the number of outs and the inning, especially in important stages of games, and late innings.

Don't "ride" the umpires. If you have a kick coming, register it to the best of your ability without going too far. Then forget it. Don't carry the argument along, inning after inning. Each inning is a new one, a new game. I always figured, and so did Kid Gleason, the greatest manager I ever worked under, that you are only confusing yourself if you carry your peeve throughout the game, inning after inning.

Always follow the orders of your manager. If he flashes you the sign to walk a certain batter, do so. Forget your own opinion, even if you think the manager's judgment is at fault. After all, he's the boss and you must be loyal.

Keep watching the opposing catcher when you are on the bench. You are certain to learn things. I consider this particularly valuable advice to young catchers who have made good on semi-pro clubs and are entering Organized Ball via a small minor loop. Even if you are as good as the opposing catcher, it will help to watch him, for he may uncover a play, or trick, that will be worth noting.

If you make a trip to training camp with a club, you should report in the best possible condition. That will make your work at the camp all the easier.

If you succeed in entering professional ball, go out of your way to seek advice from teammates and opposing players while you are around the hotel, mornings and evenings, and on rainy days. Remember, you can pick up practically as much off the field as you can on the field. Talk baseball, eat baseball, sleep baseball. That is the way to get along in the game.

The Subversive Sardines

The reported shipment of tons of Communist guns and ammunition to Guatemala failed to disturb the apathy of the vast majority of Americans because they still do not fully recognize the menace of the Communist conspiracy and its growing world-wide strength. "It can't happen here" is a reaction expressing a state of mind that daily becomes more dangerous. The overthrow of Russia by the Communists 37 years ago was achieved with about the same number of Red conspirators as there are in America today.

This isn't to suggest that we are threatened with a violent revolution. But 30,000 hardcore commando-troop Communists, strategically placed in our vital industries and communication centers, could conceivably wreck the defense of our nation if we were attacked, for instance, by a ground-based force from any part of Central or South America. A fantastic idea? Not when we clearly understand the facts about Communism, its unchangeable objective of world domination, its tactics and its almost unlimited power to get things done.

Fantastic Methods

Herbert Philbrick, who was for nine years an FBI counter-spy working intimately with leading American Communists, was an overnight guest in my home recently. To illustrate the nature of the Communists' subversive work, he tells the story of a shipment of sardines to our east coast from Russia. The FBI sought to intercept the shipment. The sardines, in cans, were being thrown overboard by the ship's crew under the pretense they were spoiled. The FBI discovered that the cans floated, and that instead of sardines they contained little 24-page booklets.

The booklets were printed in Spanish. Philbrick has an actual photographic copy of one. The front cover states that the booklet contains the rules for playing the American game of football. But when you open the book you find that the first paragraph, still in Spanish, gives specific instructions for sabotaging electric power lines, transformers, central electrical headquarters, conduits, cables, turbines—complete and detailed instructions on techniques of espionage as well as of sabotage.

How to Make Bombs

Under the guise of football rules, the booklets are smuggled to the Communist conspirators in this country in this devious, unbelievable manner. In one section of the booklet are specific instructions for making bombs. Sizes vary. The big bomb, which the booklet blueprints, is powerful enough to stop a tank or a large vehicle. A smaller one is just large enough to stop a patrol car or a motorcycle policeman. There is a very small bomb, with diagram for for painstaking assembly, which is designed to fit inside of a hatband.

Here are the instructions, printed in Spanish: "If you have a citizen whom you wish to eliminate, you simply place one of these little bombs inside the band of his hat while he's at his favorite bar or restaurant. And when he goes to leave the restaurant and puts on his hat, he blows off the top of his head. It's very effective. He doesn't talk any more." This information, together with the technical instructions for sabotaging America's industrial strength, was a part of the training in the deeply underground, elite Communist cell into which Herbert Philbrick worked his way.

Brain Washing

"The Communist instructors," Philbrick relates, "were experts; they knew their business, believe me, and they went to work on the minds, the hearts, and the souls of the young people in these cells, in order to change them from ordinary, average, decent young people into something entirely different, into hardened, steeled, disciplined, Communist Party members—and believe me that is a transformation!"

"It is such a transformation that although the young people would continue to walk about the streets of Cambridge (Mass.) appearing on the exterior as normal human beings, their insides had become as much transformed as though they were men from Mars. The average decent American with his healthy mind is absolutely unable to grasp what goes on inside the unhealthy mind, the twisted mind, of these Communists." And this fact Philbrick points out, is keeping our people from properly understanding the Communist danger and taking adequate measures to combat it. I would strongly recommend that the publications of the Congressional investigating committee be obtained and studied by every citizen. Your Congressman can get them for you. They constitute a primer in Communist infiltration.

AFTER 40 YEARS REIGN

FLAG DAY

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION

LARGEMOUTH BLACK BASS

(Micropterus salmoides)

RANGE: Originally this species occurred throughout the Great Lakes Region, the Mississippi Valley and Florida to North Carolina. There appears to be some dispute among scientists and others whether it was native to Maryland or introduced. In any case it now inhabits most of our fresh waters including our tidal fresh waters; it can be caught in every County.

DESCRIPTION: The black bass is green. Frequently it is confused with its near relative the smallmouth; the jaw of the largemouth extends back beyond a line drawn perpendicularly through the eye; in the smallmouth the jaw ends directly below the eye. Also the largemouth has a break between the front and rear dorsal fin, and a greater number of spines on these fins than the smallmouth.

HABITS: Noted for its fighting disposition; favorite waters are lakes and ponds and slow moving streams; does not object to muddy bottoms, but will spawn on rocks and gravel if available; likes cover such as old stumps and lily pads; dislikes sunshine and generally will be found in shady places. Will strike most any moving thing such as fish, birds, snakes, frogs, and crayfish; readily takes artificials both on and under surface.

MANAGEMENT: Must have suitable habitat which includes food, cover and pure water; some legal protection is necessary, and on occasion depleted waters must be stocked. Fishing pressure is now so increased that these things are more essential than ever for continuation of good angling and sizeable fish.

VALUE: It is unlawful to sell either largemouth or smallmouth black bass in Maryland, hence there is no commercial value. Its worth to the people and the State for recreation and food is great but difficult to estimate in dollars and cents. The Game Commissioner of the State of Florida once said that every black bass in Florida under a fly pad was worth Five Dollars a pound to the State supplying sport and food to large numbers of hook and line fishermen.

Mahoney Seeking Dynamic Program For Md. Industry

Could Reverse Trends Driving Youth From Rural To Urban Areas

George P. Mahoney, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, last week declared that "a dynamic program of industrial development for the State," could reverse trends which are driving young people from Maryland's smaller town and rural areas to the cities in search of employment.

Speaking in Brunswick before that city's combined Lions and Rotary Clubs, Mahoney said:

"Today, with the threat of hydrogen and atomic bombs over the cities, industries are not concentrating in the big cities as they once did. They are decentralizing and looking for sites in smaller towns.

Opportunities Here

"The opportunities are here, but we must make sure that our Maryland towns get their fair share of these opportunities."

Mahoney said a number of state agencies already gathering "information of the sort which industries want to know when they are looking for locations," but, he added: "What we lack is coordination and cooperation on the State level. After the facts are gathered, we need an agency which will also make use of the facts to 'sell' prospective investors . . . on the advantages this State offers."

Mahoney paid tribute to the successful efforts of some Maryland communities to attract new industries, but, he said, "the State should be in a position to supply community leaders with the tools which enable them to 'sell' their town to prospective investors."

Seek Port Agency

The candidate last week also discussed the problem of the threatened competition of the St. Lawrence Seaway to the Port of Baltimore declaring that the "question of an adequate central port agency should be opened as soon as possible" and that the problem "should be tackled on a Statewide level because the interests of the counties, particularly those immediately affected, must be safeguarded."

Mahoney suggested a conference of "representatives of industry, transportation, labor, State, city and county interest to formulate the plans for such an agency, for action in the 1955 legislative session."

Continuing his campaign of a "statement a day," last week, Mahoney said that Maryland has "just about completed the 'bricks and mortar' state of its mental health program" but added, "now our emphasis must be on staff and personnel."

Mahoney said his pledge to introduce a 40-hour week for State hospital employees was made "because we cannot attract and hold the best personnel unless we can offer better working conditions."

He recalled that in his 1950 gubernatorial campaign he had called for "institution of a clinical program for mental health with emphasis on treatment and cure, rather than on bricks and mortar," and remarked, "that object is even more imperative today."

Each person who buys wheat from a producer during 1954-55 is liable for the amount of the marketing quota penalty due on "excess" wheat of the 1954 crop, George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, pointed out this week. Since marketing quotas are in effect for the 1954 crop, farmers who do not comply with their farm wheat acreage allotments become subject to a lien on their crop until the marketing quota penalty is paid.

"When anyone purchases wheat from a producer, he should be certain that such producer is eligible to sell his wheat," Mr. Martin declared. "He should, therefore, request the producer to present a wheat marketing card or marketing certificate at the time the wheat is offered for sale."

"Failure to present a marketing card or certificate at the time of sale will be evidence that the wheat is not clear of lien for the penalty, and the buyer will be held responsible for the lien the same as he would be for purchasing wheat with any other lien attached."

Mr. Martin further explained that the first purchaser—such as a warehouseman—buying from an "intermediate buyer" may deduct the amount of the penalty per bushel on all wheat purchased from the total purchase price, just as if he were buying from a producer, if such seller does

Governors Plan Summer Safety Campaign

A joint declaration of war on traffic deaths by the governors of northeastern and southern states will take effect tomorrow night when police and traffic court officials from Maine to Texas launch the 1954 summertime highway safety program, "Slow Down and Live."

Designed to curb the normal summertime rise in highway fatalities brought on by greatly increased vacation travel, the 1954 campaign is patterned after one conducted last year by 11 northeastern states from Maine to Maryland.

Principal efforts in the slow-down program will be made by state, county, and local police departments working closely with traffic courts throughout the participating states. Emphasis will be on arrest and conviction of speeders, who are considered by highway safety experts the number one cause of automobile fatalities. The campaign will start at 6 p. m. and run through the Labor Day week-end.

The joint declaration, signed last month by Governor McKeldin and the 23 other state heads, says in part, "We are convinced that the many courteous, cautious drivers suffer at the hands of those who are obsessed with the 'in a hurry' complex. This state of mind manifests itself in excessive speed, in speed too fast for condition, in following too closely, in failing to yield the right of way and in improper passing."

The Northeastern State Safety Coordinators and the Southern State Safety Coordinators, co-administrators of the slow-down campaign, declare the program "is not a gigantic speed trap."

Paul E. Burke, director of the Maryland Traffic Commission and chairman of the northeastern group, said, "The sole purpose of this drive is the saving of lives on the highway. Each state is determined to achieve this end through stepped-up enforcement by its own police and other enforcement agencies of its own state and local traffic laws as they now exist."

"Residents and visiting drivers alike," Mr. Burke continued, "have been put on notice that the states participating in this drive intend to make their highways safer for all who use them during this vacation season. It remains for the individual driver to change his own bad driving habits, or else face the consequences."

Last year's campaign was credited by safety experts with not only eliminating the expected increase in highway deaths over the previous summer, but with actually producing a three per cent decrease in fatalities during June, July, and August as compared with the same months of 1952.

States participating last year included Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland.

Joining forces with them this year are Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

Cooperating with the state safety coordinators and the various enforcement agencies will be merchants, civic groups, newspapers, radio and television stations and others throughout the 24-state region who will conduct an extensive educational campaign to acquaint the driving public with "Slow Down and Live."

"Residents and visiting drivers alike," Mr. Burke continued, "have been put on notice that the states participating in this drive intend to make their highways safer for all who use them during this vacation season. It remains for the individual driver to change his own bad driving habits, or else face the consequences."

Last year's campaign was credited by safety experts with not only eliminating the expected increase in highway deaths over the previous summer, but with actually producing a three per cent decrease in fatalities during June, July, and August as compared with the same months of 1952.

States participating last year included Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland.

Joining forces with them this year are Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

Cooperating with the state safety coordinators and the various enforcement agencies will be merchants, civic groups, newspapers, radio and television stations and others throughout the 24-state region who will conduct an extensive educational campaign to acquaint the driving public with "Slow Down and Live."

I suspect the two most frequently asked questions in angling are: How do you make bait for catfish? How do you make doughballs for carp? So here's how, recipes courtesy of fishing expert Bill Wolf:

You can make a simply cold mix from molasses or honey (Isaak Walton preferred sugar or honey), white flour, corn meal and possibly a bit of cotton. Work them together until forming a rubbery mass. Carry the bait in a damp cloth.

For a hot mix, bring sweetened water to a boil, pour in corn meal to make a mush and boil until it leaves the sides of the pan. Remove and roll and knead in white flour until the mixture becomes rubbery. Some anglers add mashed potatoes, canned peas and whole kernel corn are fine carp baits.) Pull a small piece of dough from the main mass, roll until it's the size and shape of a pea or navy bean, and put on a correspondingly tiny hook.

If you're lazy, buy a loaf of baker's white bread. It is doughy enough so you can easily roll your own doughballs.

Catfish baits are in a class by themselves, although they will take doughballs, too. And channel catfish sometimes hit spinners, spoons and plugs, but are more likely to take live bait such as minnows, crawfish, insects and worms.

But the favorite bait is often a chemist's nightmare, consisting of rotting and putrid substances such as chicken blood and entrails, decaying fish flavored with anise oil or asafetida, even spoiled meats of various kinds.

If you want to make up a stink bait, as these masses are elegantly named, you might try setting some salted tripe out in a hot sun to spoil, and flavor the tripe with a bit of anise oil. This isn't too unpleasant to use, and stays on the hook well. However, it is significant that some of the best among men who run trotlines for catfish use only large, live minnows as bait.

About three and one-half million tons of copra, the dried meat of coconuts, is produced annually.

Many of Baseball's Stars Tailed

Granny Hamner, crack second baseman of the Phillies, was much annoyed, says The Sporting News. A fellow in a car was tailing him. He protested to Philadelphia police, and the Quaker City cops promised protection. They halted the driver of the trailing car, who proved to be Charles Deland, a private eye employed by the Phillies to keep an eye on the players. Hamner was quite indignant and club president Bob Carpenter publicly apologized to Granny, say, "the detective trailed the wrong man," and Hamner cooled off.

Commissioner Ford Frick was asked for comment. He replied: "It's no violation of baseball law," and said it had been going on for years.

Many of the stories in the current issue of The Sporting News deal with Babe Ruth and his efforts to evade curfew laws set by his club. In his autobiography "My Fifty Years in Baseball," the late Ed Barrow said it was his custom not to retire until all his players had checked in, but he gave up at 4 o'clock one morning when Ruth was missing.

The hotel employee whom he asked to continue the vigil reported at 6 a. m. that the great man had arrived. Barrow stormed into The Babe's room, to find him cozily under the covers, smoking a pipe.

"Do you always smoke a pipe at this hour of the day?" asked Barrow.

"Sure," said Ruth. "It's very relaxing."

Barrow jerked off the covers. The Babe had some difficulty explaining why he was fully dressed, even to his shoes.

The Sporting News story continues to say that John McGraw frequently employed private eyes during his historic and colorful 30 years as manager of the Giants. He had to deal with such characters as Bugs Raymond and Phil Douglas on his squads, not to mention a few others who disappeared from the big league roster after private investigations.

Years ago the late Walter Briggs, who owned the Detroit Tigers, put a private eye on Boots Poffenberger, his unpredictable pitcher. A few days later he called The Baron into his office for a conference and read off an imposing list of things the young man had done and the places he'd been.

"How'd you find out all those things?" asked Poffenberger. Briggs explained that he had put a detective on the pitcher's heels.

"That's silly," said Boots. "Why don't you put him after some of the other guys? You know what I'm going to do."

The Sporting News says that Ted Williams won't need much coaxing to renege on his announcement that this will be his last season in baseball. He made it mostly to please his magazine ghost writers, so his friends say.

The Pirates have a veteran employee whose name indicates that he might be useful to Manager Fred Haney now and then, says The Sporting News. But Haney never calls on him. The man's name? Walter Bunt. He's in the club's auditing department.

Joe Garagiola came up with the best gag of the season, says The Sporting News, when the Cubs' popular backstop recalled that on his Washington visit he told a Senate committee hearing, under oath, that he was a .250 hitter and now wonders, if he hits .300, whether he will be liable for perjury!

When Bobo Newsom, who is conducting a pre-game television show for the Orioles was asked by a representative of The Sporting News if he thought he would have been able to win 30 games a year in Baltimore's spacious Memorial Stadium, he drawled, "I don't know about that, but I do know that you could raise cattle out there while a game was going on and never interrupt it."

According to The Sporting News, Stan Musial, who failed to hit a homer at Crosley Field in Cincinnati all of last season, has already blasted a pair in the orchard there.

The Yankees have another Mantle coming up, cousin Max exciting raves for McAlester, Okla., the Bronxers' farm in the Sooner State League, reports The Sporting News.

Sid Murcison, wealthy Texas oil man who was supposed to have made a bid of $5 million for the Dodgers, squashed the report, according to The Sporting News, by explaining, "The only thing I'd bid $5 million for would be $6 million."

If you are 65 years old, your life expectancy averages 13.4 years.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By Cong. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, June 2—Congress has before it a proposal by President Eisenhower for the Federal government to take the sting out of our doctor bills without cost to taxpayers and without "socialized" medicine.

Mr. Eisenhower wants Congress to authorize a plan for private insurance companies to reinsure themselves with the government. The companies could then take greater risks and extend health insurance plans to new groups of citizens without increasing premiums. The complaints would pay a fee to the government in order to participate, and if they had abnormal losses in their new insurance work they could collect up to three-fourths of those losses from the government fund created by their fees.

A serious illness can really jolt family finances, as we all know. We Americans are spending $10 billion a year on medical bills, and only a fifth of that is covered by insurance as things stand. So if we can get more insurance coverage, we are naturally going to be able to take better care of ourselves. Our nation will be healthier.

The only other way to achieve this would be to pass a law decreeing that everybody must have health insurance. The government would collect premiums and pay claims. This would be "socialized" medicine. It is flatly rejected by our present government.

The President has also made other health recommendations: Grants-in-aid to states could be used to construct non-profit rehabilitation facilities to help make progress in restoring two million handicapped Americans to productive lives. Funds should also be granted to states to help construct nursing and convalescent homes and diagnostic and treatment centers—many of them in small communities where medical attention can be improved and the pressure for expensive hospitals can be reduced.

Bills carrying out these proposals are in various stages in Congress. They are important because we are trying to build America into a strong nation to withstand the hardship of a war, should it be thrust upon us. Good health is essential.

President Eisenhower, in his health message to Congress, said: "... We shall with vigor and imagination continuously search out by appropriate means, recommend, and put into effect new methods of achieving better health for all of our people. We shall not relax in the struggle against disease. The health of our people is the very essence of our vitality, our strength and our progress as a nation."

Science Combats Athlete's Foot

Authorities estimate that in a single year, three out of every four people over the age of ten, will become afflicted with athlete's foot. In spite of improved sanitation, the incidence of this annoying, easily transferred condition, is on the increase.

During the past decade, scientists have gathered interesting statistical data about athlete's foot. Many of their findings run contrary to popular beliefs. They noticed that people who enjoyed seaside swimming, caught athlete's foot just as readily as those using pools. More men than women catch the condition; with people between the ages of 14-19 and 50-55 the most noticeable victims.

Persons living in rural areas are no less immune to athlete's foot than city dwellers. Thousands of American soldiers, sailors and marines developed severe fungus infections while serving in the South Pacific. To this day, veterans refer to these infections as "jungle rot."

Spurred on by research performed during the war, scientists became more conscious of the factors causing athlete's foot. After years of study, researchers at the Octofen Laboratories of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., developed a fungicide known as Octofen which proved highly effective in combatting athlete's foot. Leading dermatologists tested this fungicide on 94 patients, ranging in age from 10 to 71 years. All but two of the patients were cured. Microscopic examinations were used to check clinical observations. One of the patients who was cured had been suffering from athlete's foot for over 12 years.

It opens Thursday, June 3, for three days at the Majestic Theatre, Gettysburg.

PORTRAITS IN OIL!

Samuel Van Syckel

EARLY-DAY TEAMSTERS FOUGHT THE CONSTRUCTION OF PIPE LINES. THEY RIPPED THEM UP AND BLASTED THEM BY NIGHT!

NOTHING COULD HOLD BACK THIS PROGRESSIVE OIL INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT, HOWEVER—

A SMALL BUSINESSMAN TURNED OIL-BUYER IS CREDITED BY HISTORIANS WITH DEVELOPING THE FIRST SUCCESSFUL OIL PIPE LINE!

DESPITE RIDICULE AND FAILURES OF PREVIOUS ATTEMPTS BY OTHER INDIVIDUALS, VAN SYCKEL CONSTRUCTED A TWO-INCH PIPE LINE NEAR PITHOLE, PA. IT WAS ONLY FIVE MILES LONG BUT IT MOVED 80 BARRELS AN HOUR FOR $1 A BARREL—$4 UNDER THE TEAMSTERS' RATE. IT UTILIZED WELDED JOINTS AND PUMPS—THE SAME PRINCIPLES IN USE TODAY!

TODAY NETWORKS OF 168,000 MILES OF PIPE LINES FOR CRUDE OIL AND OIL PRODUCTS CRISSCROSS THE NATION. THEY MOVE OIL STEADILY FROM WELLS TO REFINERIES TO CONSUMERS. THEY ARE ONE OF THE BIG REASONS WHY THE OIL INDUSTRY HAS BEEN ABLE TO SERVE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ECONOMICALLY AND WELL.

ELECTION IS HELD

also served as secretary of the National Alumni Assn. from 1926 until 1949. He was raised to the Monsignorship in 1954.

Rev. Carl J. Fives, a native of Honesdale, Pa., and a priest of the diocese of Scranton, was re-elected to the office of treasurer, a position he held last year. Father Fives attended Mount Saint Mary's College and Seminary, receiving his A.B. in 1938 and being ordained in 1942. Following graduation he returned to the faculty as an instructor in mathematics and logic. In 1945 he received his Licentiate in Sacred Theology from the Catholic University of America. During World War II he served as coordinator of the Naval V-12 program and in 1949 was elected dean, a position he resigns to devote his time to the office of the treasurer.

Rev. Hugh J. Phillips, newly-elected secretary of the Council, succeeds the Rev. Elwood S. Berry, who has resigned on account of ill health. A native of Baltimore, Fr. Phillips attended Mt. St. Mary's Prep School, College and Seminary. He was graduated from the Prep School in 1927, from the College with the A.B. in 1931, and was ordained from the Seminary for the archdiocese of Baltimore in 1935. He received his M.A. from Mount St. Mary's in 1935 also. In 1940 he received his B.L.S. from the Catholic University of America. Fr. Phillips has served since 1935 as college librarian and since 1950 as National Alumni secretary.

The Rev. Dr. Francis P. Kearney is a native of Baltimore, where he attended the parochial schools. He was graduated from Saint Charles College, Catonsville, Md., in 1931 and from St. Mary's Seminary and University with the B.A. in 1933. He received his Bachelor of Sacred Theology in 1935 and the Lector of Sacred Theology in 1937 from St. Mary's. After two years' parish work at St. Joseph's parish and the Basilica of the Assumption, Baltimore, he entered the graduate school of the Catholic University, receiving his Baccalaureate of Canon Law in 1940, his Licentiate in Canon Law in 1941 and his Doctorate in Canon Law in 1952.

Alumni Reunion To Be Triple Event

Within the past two weeks nearly 600 notices have gone out to alumni of the Emmitsburg High School, which graduated its first class (consisting of one member, still living here) 56 years ago this month.

These notices announce the annual alumni reunion for Saturday, June 19, a triple event, according to custom, beginning with a banquet, served at 6:30 p. m. by a committee of the PTA. A program of interesting entertainment features, including several "surprise" numbers, will accompany the banquet.

Important matters will be discussed at a brief business meeting and the evening's program will be climaxed by a dance in the beautiful auditorium, with "The Clefsmen" orchestra making its first Emmitsburg appearance.

It is hoped by the Alumni Association's officers and reunion committee to make this affair an outstanding event of the season.

1942. Since 1942 he has been a member of the faculty of both Mount St. Mary's College and Seminary, serving as professor of Canon Law and Moral Theology and as professor of Social Science.

Rev. Robert R. Kline, a native of Williamsport, Pa., received his B.A. from Mount St. Mary's in 1941. He attended Mount Saint Mary's Seminary and was ordained for the diocese of Scranton, Pa., in 1945. Following ordination he returned to the college as dean of freshmen and instructor in philosophy. During the past five years he has done graduate work at Georgetown University in philosophy, receiving his M.A. in 1951. He was named chaplain in 1952.
