As we approach the Halloween season some thought must be given as to how this holiday should be observed. As most of you know, it was never the intention of the founders of this day, to have it observed by vandalism. Actually, it was conceived as a religious rite in an effort to satiate the superstitious appetite by chasing spirits from condemned bodies, so I am told. However, modern times sees vandalism come to the forefront and which will lead eventually to abolishment of the festive occasion in time to come unless this practice of destroying other people's property is discontinued.

As far back as a week ago individuals began blocking the alleys and carting away the property of others. While the problem is not so acute here, it is far more serious in Washington County, I have read. There, in Hagerstown, vandals have walked for blocks breaking and bending every radio aerial on every car that was parked and unattended. Television aerials have been tampered with as well as other vandalous acts committed. We don't anticipate such a degree of destructiveness here, but I understand the proper authorities are ready to curb any such acts if they do occur. I have been approached by several individuals and have been told that the crack-down here is too severe, that fun is being curbed and that the vigilance should be relaxed so the youngsters could have a freer hand in observing the occasion. Be that as it may, but I fear that just as soon as any leniency is granted to the youngsters, that the oldsters will take over again and things might get out of hand once more, as they were about a decade ago. Really, I am under the impression that the little ones do very little, if any damage; it is the older youths who have brought the climax to the fore.

I am not taking sides with either element, the law or the citizens. All I can say about the matter is that in the old days much destruction was forced upon the property of someone's enemies. I hate to admit this, but I have done my share of this vandalism, just as most of you readers have done in the past, and won't admit to it. However, I think the new and peaceful way is the best and old ideas must give way to modern. Have a good time Halloween and don't get yourself into a jam. Where we had only one officer to contend with in my time, you now have better than half a dozen, so beware!

Well another Community Fair is history. The event drew in attendance over 800 spectators, making it the second largest drawing event in town, outdone only by the Horse Show. The two affairs' combined average attendance is around 2,000. A lot of hard work goes into the production of these two events and the result is apparent by the success accorded them. Now if some individual or organization would come up with a third affair and use the proceeds towards the Memorial Hall, or a community swimming pool, I would be a very happy individual. One thing is certain, that we must move at a faster clip if we are to achieve either of these two goals. An annual carnival, a hillbilly show or a bi-centennial celebration which would raise enough revenue to get a good start. This winter would be a good time to start planning such an event and I hope some club or individual takes the initiative in the matter at a near future meeting.

Mrs. George Eyster and Mrs. Robert Gillean attended the 72nd annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Maryland at St. John's Lutheran Church, Hagerstown, Oct. 20 and 21.

Community Show Winners Are Announced

Over 800 people witnessed the annual Grange Community Show held in the Emmitsburg High School last Friday and Saturday. Competition for the title of Miss Farm Queen was keen and finally Miss Nancy Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Valentine, bested all other contestants for the crown.

Friday night's door prize, donated by the Pastry Shop, was won by Carrie Snyder; another prize given by the Seiss Lumber Yard was won by Kathleen Hickman; third prize, donated by the Emmitsburg Tire Center, was awarded Robert Liller.

Saturday night's door prizes were awarded as follows: Blue Mt. Orchard gift to Mrs. Lewis Kreitz, Sr.; Emmitsburg Tire Center award to Mrs. Nevin Martin and the B. H. Boyle prize went to a lady from Hagerstown, name unknown. The committees in charge of the show extend special thanks to the commercial exhibitors for their fine displays and services. Throughout the affair organ music was played by Jack Wantz on an electric organ supplied by the Colonial Music Shop of Frederick. An excellent poultry display by George Gorsuch of New Windsor, especially appealed to the crowd as did the livestock exhibits by George Eyster, Carl Crist, Leslie Cregger and Mr. Zacharias, which were exhibited for display purposes only and not in competition.

The committee wishes also to thank Mr. J. L. Nester and Miss Judy Valentine for their donation of poultry for auctioning, the proceeds going to the local FFA Chapter. Donated baked products were sold and the proceeds were placed in the show fund for next year's production.

The committee, Mr. William G. Baker, chairman, wishes to thank the following for their donations, cooperation and services: Emmitsburg High School faculty and student body; those who purchased advertising space in the program; Robert Munier and the Carroll County Senior Council of 4-H Clubs and finally, all those who helped prepare the exhibits, cleaned up premises, the Emmitsburg FFA Chapter and anyone else who in anyway helped make the show the tremendous success it was.

The committee is anxious to have pictures of the event and anyone taking or having prints of the show is asked to contact William G. Baker, Edgar G. Emrich or Richard Florence.

Sharpshooter Coming Here For Sunday Shoot

A shooting match will be held Sunday afternoon at the Emmitsburg Civic Assn. grounds just east of town, starting at 1:00 p. m. The affair will be sponsored by the Indian Lookout Conservation Club and will feature the well-known shooting expert, Gary L. Utterback of Frederick.

Mr. Utterback, a candidate for the House of Delegates in the coming election Tuesday, was the Frederick County shooting champion for several years. At the present time he is the champion of the county in the doubles and skeet class. Mr. Utterback also is the Western Maryland shooting champion and has held this title for the past four years. He plans to entertain the crowd with trick shots at moving targets, both with the shotgun and rifle. In 1945 the sharpshooter won the U. S. Class B championship in competition at Vandalia, O.

A large turnout is expected to witness this shooting exhibition. Turkeys will be awarded as prizes and participation will be limited to 12-gauge shotguns, the shells being furnished.

Chronicle Sponsoring Free Baby Picture Contest

Friday, Nov. 5 is the big day for the picture taking of your youngsters! The Emmitsburg Chronicle is having pictures taken of all children who are brought in by their parents or other guardians to the Fire Hall between 1 and 8 p. m., free of charge! The Allen Studios, nationally known for excellent children's portraits, will take the pictures. This newspaper wants a picture of your child to print in its forthcoming feature, "Citizens of Tomorrow," a series of photographic studies of local children. The more we get the better the feature will be, so the cooperation of the mothers and fathers is urged.

To add to the interest and fun in this exciting event, Allen Studios will award $250 in CASH prizes—$125 to the cutest girl; $125 to the cutest boy. Each child or children photographed in this community will automatically be entered in the contest. Beauty alone does not count. The studio judges will base their selections upon the personality and charm as portrayed in the pictures. Every child and family group is eligible!

If often seems to parents that children are little one minute and are quite grown up the next, so fast does a child's growing stage pass. Here is a splendid opportunity to catch a likeness of your child or children at the present stage for the pleasure you will get out of it in future years and for the pleasure you will enjoy in seeing it in print. You will want to clip it from this, your home town newspaper, and preserve it for the youngster when he or she grows up.

There is absolutely no charge or obligation for taking the pictures. Parents don't even have to be a subscriber to this newspaper or even a reader. You do not have to purchase pictures either, though you may obtain additional prints by arranging direct with the studio representative if you want them. That is entirely up to you!

Spook Parade Set For This Saturday Night

Spirits, goblins and witches, etc., will descend on Emmitsburg tomorrow night when the annual mammoth Halloween parade will get under way, under the auspices of the Francis X. Elder Post, 121, American Legion.

The parade will form at 6:30 p. m. at the Doughboy in West End and the march-off is scheduled for promptly at 7 o'clock.

General chairman of the parade, Harold M. Hoke said late this week that he believed interest was keener this year in the event than in previous years. An estimated 500 children and adults participated in last year's Halloween parade and the chairman requests that those contestants and participants desiring numbers and seeking prizes to show up a trifle early Saturday night.

From the Doughboy the parade will worm its way down Main St. to Federal Ave., along Federal Ave. to the intersection of that avenue and DePaul St., and proceed west to St. Vincent's Rectory where it will terminate and disband and refreshments will be served those participating.

At least two local units will be in the line of march. Leading the parade will be the prize-winning American Legion drill team, followed by the Emmitsburg Municipal Band, and possibly some other major units.

The ceremonies will open at 2 o'clock with an invocation by Bishop McNamara. Following the hymns by the Seminary Schola, presentation of Pangborn Hall will be made to Msgr. John L. Sheridan, president of the college, by Thomas W. Pangborn, on behalf of himself and John C. Pangborn, Hagerstown industrialists. Msgr. Sheridan will accept the building on behalf of the institution.

St. Mary's Seminary on Oct. 8, 1906 and at the Chapel of the Immaculate Conception, April 24, 1908. Bishop Owen B. Corrigan used the same trowel at laying the cornerstone for Bradley Hall on October 15, 1916. Bishop McNamara will follow his address with benediction.

Enclosed in the cornerstone will be copies of the Baltimore Sun, the News-Post, the Frederick Post, the Gettysburg Times, Emmitsburg Chronicle and other area papers; a medallion and literature celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the Pangborn Corp. on Sept. 1, 1954, the latest catalogue of Mt. St. Mary's, a copy of the Mountain Echo and various medals and materials.

In addition to the cornerstone laying, homecoming activities will be featured by the annual alumni dinner Saturday at 6 p. m. and by a special dinner Sunday at 12 noon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Home Rule Amendment Discussed

One of the nine amendments to the Maryland Constitution which the electorate of Maryland will vote on Nov. 2 would grant home rule authority to the State's incorporated cities and towns. The other amendments would fix the salary of the Baltimore City sheriff, increase the annual salary of the governor to $15,000, extend the absentee ballot law to cover civilians, increase the number of circuit court judges, provide the method and stipulations under which Baltimore City can acquire land in the adjoining counties for port development, fix the annual salary of the Secretary of State by law and remove the requirement that he reside in Annapolis, provide an additional Circuit Court judge for Montgomery County, and provide an additional Circuit Court judge for Baltimore County. Every Maryland voter can vote on all of these questions, even though some of the amendments would not directly affect large portions of the State's population.

The Municipal Home Rule Amendment, although presented in six lengthy paragraphs, can be summarized in two sentences. First, it would prohibit the use of municipal local legislation by the General Assembly, except to establish maximum debt limits and tax limits of the individual towns and cities. Second, the municipalities would be authorized to adopt new charters and amend existing charters as long as such charter changes do not contravene the Maryland Constitution or the general laws of the State. The Amendment does not apply to Baltimore City or the 23 county governments.

The Municipal Home Rule Amendment to be voted on Nov. 2 was originally proposed by the Commission on Administrative Organization of the State in 1952. It was approved by the Maryland General Assembly at the session held earlier this year. The Amendment has been advocated by municipal officials throughout the State for several years and in recent months both the Democratic and Republican Parties in Maryland have advocated the adoption of the Amendment through their party platforms.

Supporters of the Amendment contend that its adoption would strengthen municipal government in the State and thereby strengthen the State government. They also contend that the adoption of the Amendment will reduce the workload of the General Assembly by approximately 20 per cent and thereby give State Legislators more time to devote to important State-wide issues. The proposed Amendment authorizes the General Assembly to divide the municipalities into not more than four classes, based on their population as reported in the most recent census data. The Amendment defines a general law as any law applicable to all the cities and towns in one or more of the classifications over municipal corporations by such general laws, except that the Amendment specifically authorizes the legislature to enact local laws establishing debt limits and property tax limits for individual municipal corporations. These local laws would have to be approved in a referendum of the voters of the city or town affected.

To replace the local laws which the General Assembly has always enacted changing individual city or town charters, the voters of the municipalities would be authorized to amend their own charters by local action. The Municipal Home Rule Amendment provides that such charter changes could be initiated either by the local governing officials or by a petition of at least five per cent of the registered voters of the city or town. Such charter changes must not contravene the provisions of the State Constitution or any State-wide laws which the General Assembly has enacted. The Amendment also provides that no new taxes can be imposed by charter amendment, unless the General Assembly, by the enactment of a general law, has authorized the State's cities and towns to levy such taxes.

Your Personal Health

Bore Yourself To Sleep

The dog, the cat, the baby in the crib — how do they spend most of their time? Sleeping. It's so easy for them to drop off anywhere, anytime. Then why can't you sleep whenever you wish? It's probably because you are so intelligent.

It was quite an achievement when man got smart enough to stay awake two-thirds of the time. New-born infants like the lower animals, wake only when stimulated by hunger, pain, fear, or some other primitive urge. When their needs are satisfied, they go back to sleep. As the brain develops, the baby becomes more and more aware of what goes on around him. There are many more sensations to keep him awake. And when he becomes an adult with a fully developed brain, life can be so very stimulating that sometimes he just can't sleep.

The type of insomnia that afflicts almost everyone once in a while results from over-stimulation. You get into a political discussion, and when you go to bed you lie awake thinking up perfect arguments. Or you have an important job to do tomorrow, and you worry about how you'll do it. Or you are in a strange bed. Or you drank too much strong coffee.

If you have trouble getting to sleep, try boring yourself. An occasional evening with dull company or a dull book will be helpful. Take a cup of warm milk or similar innocuous beverage before retiring. Establish a bedtime routine of insignificant chores to slow down the activity of your brain. Music may help, if it is pleasant but uninteresting. Be sure not to confuse annoyance with boredom. People or things that annoy you are stimulating rather than soporific.

The main thing is to get into the habit of sleeping. There's no need to worry about losing sleep occasionally, but chronic insomnia is very serious and may require a doctor's help.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

An independent businessman catching someone dipping into the till does not rationalize such action away as due to unhappy childhood, nor stays quiet because he may antagonize culprit's relatives or friends.

This fact explains growing groundswell of protests reaching Washington from Main Street.

To most minds there is no doubt the standard of evil. Evil is evil, and its black mantle C.W. Harder falls on those who passively accept evil, as well as those who concoct it. And encouraging evil with financing is beyond most human understanding.

Many feel Sen. Joseph Knowland, (R., Cal.) would have emerged hero had he stood by demand to sever diplomatic relations with Russia.

Attempt being made by J. Bracken Lee, Utah's governor, to stop foreign aid spending as unconstitutional, is drawing Main Street support.

Reports of British Labor Party junket in Red China gave fresh sense of urgency to this feeling.

Attlee's statement, "I believe that the Chinese peasant has got a government that is doing something for him, which is concerned with the welfare and prosperity of the peasants and rests upon the confidence of the peasant population. The West has nothing to fear from Communist China," and the Bevan statement made in China, "Our presence is itself sufficient to show our support for the Chinese People's Revolution" has thrown chill in many American hearts who realize these people may be but a heart beat away from again ruling England.

It is also disclosed British gunboats will protect merchant ships going into Shanghai; naval power perhaps paid for in part by U. S. military assistance aid.

Statements as made by British Labor Party leaders who may again be on eve of power are attributed to either madmen or those who have actually degenerated so morally they can rationalize murder, pillage, slavery. In any event, independent businessmen want to stop use of their taxes to financing such rationalization of evil.

At present British defend Red China relations on grounds U. S. still sees fit to recognize Russia, a situation publicly deplored by Herbert Hoover as the great psychological mistake and moral tragedy of this century.

Now many fear epidemic of rationalization of evil is infecting Washington.

Washington believes special 60 man committee now studying antitrust laws, heavily loaded with college professors and corporation lawyers, will recommend nullifying nation's antitrust laws when it reports in December on grounds U. S. cannot do business with nations without antitrust laws. Already propaganda on this position has been unleashed.

Thus drive will be to sell American people that in order to live with evil, this nation must adopt the ways of evil.

But it is held significant that British system of cartel and monopoly business has as its eventual and inevitable result spawned government officials who not only condone, but uphold bloody, red handed evil, just as history shows all nations who have gone Communist have been nations without antitrust laws to protect independent enterprise.

HOGAN'S ALLEY

Or even Jack Carson,
But I won't B. Holden to you!"

—Don Quinn

NOW THAT MR. AND MRS. RONALD COLMAN are bringing their charm to television on "The Halls of Ivy," CBS Television, the creator of the series, Don

Quinn, and writers Barbara and Milton Merlin have been looking over some of their old radio scripts and finding a lot of laugh-lines they had forgotten. For instance, here's a howl from Ronald Colman as Dr. William Todhunter Hall, President of Ivy College:

"Just because a man stands up in a pulpit and talks, he isn't Ronald Colman necessarily delivering a sermon any more than if your cat had kittens in the oven, they'd be biscuits."

Too Many Women

Against a background of two wives, one a TV wife, of course—and six daughters, Robert Young, leading man through the years to hosts of Hollywood actresses, faces a critical new element as he enters into the medium of television with his new CBS Television series, "Father Knows Best."

When Kathy—she's eight—was born, "I sat down and counted my blessings. There was Betty, my wife, my three other daughters and assorted nurses, maids and in-laws—all female. At one Robert Young time there were thirteen women in the house."

But it's all different now. Billy Gray, 16, who portrays 14 year-old "Bud" in the CBS Television Sunday 10 o'clocker, is a lad with a normal lad's problems. And, naturally, living eight and nine hours a day on the set with him, Young finds himself waxing parental. "I give him advice, help him work out his problems. At least it gets me away from the girls." Then he adds, with a grin, "The only way I could get a boy was to write one into the script."

Miss or Mrs?

On the "Our Miss Brooks" TV show (CBS Television), one of the writers, who shall be nameless, as a running gag on the set, identifies himself as the "watchdog of the show, to be sure everything is quite proper, y'know." So, when Eve Arden (Mrs. Brooks West) had her baby recently, the scripter sent her a telegram of congratulation addressed to "Our MRS. Brooks."

He explained that under the circumstances he didn't feel it quite proper to congratulate "Our MISS Brooks" upon the arrival of a nine-pound son.

BUFF COBB, port panelist on ABC-TV's "Masquerade Party," claims she got her name the hard way. It all started with her mother, naturally, whose name was Elizabeth. Elizabeth was raised by a Negro mammy who couldn't seem to pronounce her name as anything other than, "Lizzi-buff." From this the name, "Buff" evolved.

In later years, when the feminine half of the Mike and Buff team was visiting her grandfather, the late Irvin S. Cobb, he called her "Little Buff," to distinguish her from her mother, and thence came the name, "Buff." Buff's real name is Patricia.

OF A NUMBER OF THINGS

HALLOWE'EN
Surely one of the most remarkable of the long list of celebrations that make up our American calendar of special days is "Hallowe'en."

Not, as we are of course aware, a celebration that originated with us, Hallowe'en came to our part of the New World along with the people who came to settle here from a certain part of the Old World of western Europe. It was interesting to me to learn that that part was where the Celtic and Germanic peoples had been long established, and that the present countries which comprise it (especially the British Isles) are the only ones that "celebrate an occasion actually like our Hallowe'en," France and the countries of southern Europe making it "a religious vigil" as was originally intended. (I follow here "The Book of Hallowe'en" by Ruth E. Kelley.)

For Hallowe'en has its historical beginning in connection with an important festival instituted in the early Christian church in memory of all the saints, "All Hallows" or "All Saints' Day," finally fixed on November 1st. Included in its observance was the eve or vigil of this Day, appropriately called "All Hallows Eve" or "Hallowe'en."

But more noteworthy than the name that has been retained for such different kinds of observances than the name indicates (like the case of "October," meaning eighth, for the tenth month) are the origins of the

Fountain Of Youth For Fence Posts

Chemical bath keeps wooden fence posts in service 20 to 30 years. A chemical commonly called Penta increases life of average home-cut posts about seven-fold.

Rat and termites, which cost many farmers hundreds of dollars a year in ruined fence posts, can easily be prevented at a cost of less than one cent a year per post by using a good wood preservative, such as Penta. Chemical treatment is recommended for posts by many State Experiment Stations. Digging holes and setting posts requires too much work and expense to settle for posts which will rot out in three or four years. Machine turned posts uniformly treated can be bought in many parts of the country. But a farmer with his own woodlot may want to soak 15 or 20 years of added life into the posts he thins out of it. The far-sighted farmer who cut and peeled posts last spring or early summer so that they could season properly is ready to treat right now. Here's how:

Place as many posts as you can without crowding into a steel stock tank or other suitable treating vat. Then pour in the chemical solution until the tank is full and let the posts soak. Be sure they are completely immersed. Most species require a minimum soak of 24 hours. For specific instructions, consult your State Experiment literature.

You can buy Penta wood preservative at farm supply, hardware or paint stores in two forms: ready-to-use solutions or concentrates. The concentrates are diluted with the type of fuel oil used for tractor or furnace—and the cost is very low.

Billions in Losses Caused by Rats
It's Easy to Control Rats and Mice with Modern Methods and Materials

Handy Check List for Getting Rid of Rats

Now, before the weather turns cold, is an excellent time to get rid of destructive, disease-spreading rats on farms and in homes. A brief campaign can put an end to the ravages of these enemies. This handy check list will help you learn the extent of your rat and mouse problem, then guide you, step by step, to complete, permanent control.

Rat Detection
(check signs noted)
Damaged sacks of grain? —
Visible rat tracks? —
"Swing marks" on the wall? —
"Rub marks" on sacks or steps? —
Droppings visible? —
Burrows near foundation? —

Sanitation
Good sanitation removes all protection for hiding and underground breeding. (Check items as you correct them):
Remove all brush piles. —
Clean up all junk piles. —
Store lumber and firewood on racks at least one foot off the ground. —
Put metal covers on garbage cans and pits. —

Ratproofing
Though often expensive, metal, concrete, and other materials will keep rats out of corn cribs, granaries, warehouses, and homes. Helpful bulletins on this control measure are available from the local health officer or county agent. Ratproofing is recommended for use when:

Building containing food material is accessible to rats. —
Interior of building has "dead spaces" where rats may hide (double walls, staircases, etc.) —

Place bait for rats and mice before cold weather sets in, experts advise.

Placing Rat Bait
Outstanding among the modern rat and mouse baits is warfarin, a powerful chemical discovered at the University of Wisconsin. Warfarin is a slow killer and does not cause "bait shyness"; no tolerance is developed; it may be purchased as a concentrate, as a ready-mixed food bait, or in a new water soluble form; and it is relatively safe to use. Check the following steps when you use warfarin:

Place containers filled with warfarin bait or warfarinized water in all areas where there is noticeable rat activity. —
For excellent baiting success, use both warfarin food bait and warfarinized water—side by side. —
Protect warfarin bait and warfarinized water with nailed boards or bait boxes. —
Keep bait stations amply supplied for at least 14 days. —
Kill weak or faltering rats; burn or bury carcasses. —
Set up a few permanent bait stations in areas of greatest activity to kill newcomers and control reinvasion. —

Put rat control on your autumn schedule now. Follow these simple steps and, sooner than you ever thought possible, your premises will be rat-free.

1. That the earliest origins of the traditional spirits; belief in the witches having a meeting with the Devil; belief in the return of the dead on this night; bonfires for protection against evil powers (also candles); "boggies" (turnip lanterns) for the same purpose; charms for a good harvest, such as carrying torches around a field; tests to learn the future, especially in love affairs, such as baking objects in a cake, ducking for apples, burning nuts, pulling cabbage and kale stalks; expression of thanks for the harvest thru the eating of bread baked from new grain and of seed-cakes. The list could go on almost indefinitely.

Just how long the original serious beliefs and practices connected with Hallowe'en persisted in the places where the celebration was continued, it is impossible to say, but we do know that they gradually lost their significance practically everywhere and became instead a source of annual merrymaking. In fact, the writer of the book previously mentioned said some 35 years ago, the time it was published, that "the original customs of Hallowe'en are being forgotten more and more across the 'ocean,' but that statement I have had no chance to verify.

However, I am sure we would all disagree, from our own experience, with another more recent writer who declares that Hallowe'en is coming to be a mere memory among us here in the United States, unless she means, too, the older Hallowe'en, and that indeed was never firmly established here. Hallowe'en imps, if they ever sported here, have long been replaced by fancy-costumed and false-faced youngsters who ring doorbells, throw corn and bits of paper, chalk mark houses, and carry off removable pieces of property like gates and steps (tho this activity generally involves those beyond the youngster stage and is a real act of vandalism when such objects are not returned). And Hallowe'en parties may not include as much of the old fortune-telling element as when I was young, but business with a capital B seems to be seeing to it that the old Hallowe'en colors and motifs will not be lacking, providing huge quantities of orange and black crepe paper for decorations supplemented with witches and bats and black cats, real and artificial pumpkins, decorated paper napkins, pumpkin and corn, and other kinds of Hallowe'en candies, false faces and masquerade devil and witch and goblin costumes. The Hallowe'en parade is a recent addition to the night's festivities (it is said to date from no farther back than two centuries) but I think Emmitsburgians will all agree it is a very welcome newcomer.

And now a final word about two other quite modern developments in our Hallowe'en history, two strongly contrasting ones, frightening and inspiring, respectively, it seems to me, in the point of view and the tendency they reflect. There is the "Trick or Treat" procedure, maybe with a touch of cuteness from the small size of the juveniles so far staging it, but so obviously suggested by one dreadful type of gangster activity, made painfully familiar by radio and television story ("You'll pay me to protect you—or else!") that I should think all law-abiding grown-ups would wish that its popularity is short-lived!

The other activity was actually suggested by this one (so it has been of some value) but its connection, besides the name, is only by contrast. "Treats for the World's Children" (sponsored, I understand, by a minister of a small town in Pennsylvania) was launched under the auspices of United Nation's Children's Fund at Hallowe'en four years ago, the idea being that youngsters organized in groups under leaders ring the door-bells in their community and ask for pennies to help the millions of underprivileged children throughout the world. The idea spread fast over the certain Lord Churchwald and friends were riding behind his hounds when the dogs started a hare. The hare eluded the yelping pack until, worn to a frazzle, he shot across the field into a commoner's yard and fell in exhaustion at the feet of a

The man grabbed the hare alive to hold for Lord Churchwald. But the commoner claimed the hare as his own. So the hunter sued. And the judge ruled that since Lord Churchwald had started the hare, and his hounds had chased it until it was practically dead, the hunter had really gained possession and therefore acquired ownership. That decision is still upheld by our courts today. The accepted legal rule now is that you get no title by pursuit alone, even though the animal has been wounded, unless you follow the beast and reduce it to occupation—that is, to actual possession. Bodily seizure is not a must. Mortal wounding, if you don't abandon your pursuit, may be considered possession on your part, since you show a definite intention of getting the animal for your individual use. A part of this law of the chase is this accompanying rule: If you start and wound a game animal, so that its death is practically sure to result, but another hunter gives it the finishing shot or blow, it still belongs to you.

Sports Afield magazine, in an article by lawyer Renzo Dee Bowers, advises hunters who are lucky enough to start a game animal and to shoot or wound him, to hang on the trail. Don't abandon it for a moment. It's when you've practically got him to the point where the wounding has practically deprived him of his liberty and rendered his capture by you certain, or almost certain, that the law declares him yours.

Don't let some unprincipled rogue who is fortunate enough to be on hand at the proper moment cheat you out of your prize by running out, or stepping out from cover, and delivering the final shot.

You may have a lawsuit on your hands if he's unreasonable or stubborn. But the law of the chase was established by the courts for your benefit. Don't let yourself be bluffed when game is legally yours.

Expert Shooting TipsHUNTING CAN BE SAFE FUN

CHICAGO—"During the next twenty-four hours, four men, one woman and two children probably will be shot and killed by guns," says John T. Amber, Editor of "The Gun Digest," "unless America's 15,000,000 gun owners learn a few basic safety facts and practices."

The vast majority of these deaths will never reach the newspaper front pages, the detective magazines or even the police blotter, states Mr. Amber, because they are all accidental—caused by a single, sudden moment of tragic carelessness.

Mr. Amber, who owns more than 600 rare antique guns himself, issued this melancholy statistic after an extensive study of guns and safety over the past quarter century which also featured these surprising conclusions:

Deaths due to firearms accidents have been on the rise ever since the Second World War. In fact, today more people are killed and wounded by gunfire than during the wooliest days of Jesse James or Kit Carson.

Men outnumber women as victims by more than 7 to 1.

Gun accidents in the home take more lives than hunting mishaps.

"Playing" with guns is by far the most frequent cause of death. Others are cleaning or repairing weapons, tripping while carrying guns, examining or demonstrating guns, and walking into the line of fire.

"Ninety percent of these accidents could have been prevented," Mr. Amber states flatly, "if people simply followed a few basic rules of sense and safety." Specifically, Mr. Amber underlines the following points:

1. Treat a loaded gun with respect. Treat every gun as if it were loaded.

2. Always point the muzzle of your gun down at the ground, not up, and not in the direction of other people.

What's wrong with this picture?

3. Make sure of your target before you pull the trigger. Never shoot at a noise.

4. When loaded, your gun should be kept on safety. A twig or bush might catch the trigger, firing the gun.

5. For obvious reasons, never leave a loaded gun in a car, boat or other moving vehicle.

Mr. Amber, who is editor of "The Gun Digest," famous $2 annual reference book for gun collectors and hunters, sums it all up this way: "In design and engineering, America's guns are safer than ever. Unfortunately, not all the users are."

BABSONWrites . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 28—I have always encouraged the safe investment of money through buying stocks in well-known dividend-paying companies, plus diversification among a large number of companies. That is why I have favored the Investment Trusts and Mutual Funds for those with only a little money. These should give safety and security.

The nation as a whole, however, may get top-heavy with "safe investments." Too many people cannot live on the dividends of old-established corporations. Some people must be willing to take some risks by putting some money into new enterprises.

Who Built American Industries? During the past few weeks I have been studying the industrial history of New England. Conservative "investors" did not build the cotton factories, the paper mills, the woolen plants of New England. These were built by men willing to take risks. The sailing ships which set forth from Boston, Portsmouth, Gloucester, Salem, and New Bedford to all parts of the world—without charts or steam—and even before the days of lighthouses—were built by "speculators," not by investors.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has done a good thing for conservative investors and the big, established companies; but whether the Commission has done well for the nation as a whole is debatable. America today needs more speculators.

Pioneering Encouraged. It is said that the Democrats inaugurated most of the new tax law changes to help the sick and aged. The Republicans, however, are responsible for the features of the 1954 Tax Law which encourage invention, industry, and young concerns. During the Roosevelt administration, business was treated with a certain disdain. The New Deal politicians and professors, who had had no experience with business, wrote the laws.

Such legislation has helped the unfortunate who were unable to work, but it has discouraged the formation of new companies to provide future employment. It has been very difficult for young men to get the capital or to save enough from earnings to start a new business. It has been like trying to run a church without a Sunday School—or have a family without raising children. The new 1954 Tax Law makes it easier for any young man of good character to start a new business. It also encourages older investors to take some risks by starting new enterprises, prospecting for uranium and other rare metals, and providing future employment for the next generation.

What Utopia Means To Me

Mrs. Babson and I have founded three successful colleges—Babson Institute for men at Babson Park, Mass., Webber College for women at Babson Park, Fla., and a third college in the center of the U. S., at Eureka, Kan. This third school is intended to help worthy young people with vision do new things which their parents or friends may think impossible.

As I meet the men who are doing big things today, I find that—as a rule—they did not come from big cities. Most of them were brought up on farms. Their college was the wood box and the corn field. They were obliged to fight severe heat in summer and cold in winter. They thought that life consisted of taking risks with horses, cattle, and storms. Steam heat, air conditioning, and flossy colleges may make good investors, but these modern luxuries do not teach men to take risks. A greater willingness to risk is the need of America today.

One More Thought

Young people who are born without luxury or without money and who are struggling for an education should remember this: You have as much time as anyone in the world. No President, Prime Minister, Professor, or Captain of Industry has more time than you have.

I forecast that some day every reader will realize that time is worth more than money. My appeal this week is that you use a fair proportion of your time in taking risks for the good of the nation.

Helpful Hints For The Homemakers

Fit cottage cheese into your family's fall meals. It is quick and easy to use, and it can find its place in a variety of dishes—from the first course to dessert.

Because of its bland flavor, cottage cheese combines well with many different foods and seasonings, says Janet Coblenz, foods and nutrition specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service. People like this unripened soft-curd cheese and many appreciate its nutritional values—especially calcium and protein.

European cooks, especially those in Scandinavian and Balkan countries, have always made good use of cottage cheese in both hot and cold dishes. For example, there is the cheese cake which came from the "old country" and is now a favorite Pennsylvania Dutch dish.

If you're planning to use cottage cheese as a main dish, Miss Coblenz suggests that you use a skillful hand with seasoning. Add to it onion, celery, herbs such as parsley or sage, chopped pimiento or green pepper. Or try chopped nuts or peanut butter for added flavor and food value.

In a hot dish the cheese itself needs no cooking—simply heating. However, the other ingredients may need cooking. You'll want to avoid long cooking or high heat; otherwise the curd may toughen and separate.

Here's a protein-rich main dish, using cottage cheese, which can be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator until time to bake. It's Martha's Co. Casserole:

Four cups noodles, one-half pound; one tablespoon butter; one pound ground chuck; two 8-oz. cans tomato sauce; one-half pound cottage cheese; one 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese; one - fourth cup sour cream; one-third cup minced scallions; one tablespoon minced green pepper, and two tablespoons melted butter.

Early in the day cook the noodles as directed on the package; drain. Next, in a skillet saute the ground meat in butter. Stir in the tomato sauce. Remove from the heat. Combine the cottage cheese, cream cheese, sour cream, scallions and green pepper.

In a two - quart casserole, spread half the noodles; cover with the cheese mixture; then cover with the rest of the noodles. Pour melted butter over the noodles; then the tomato meat sauce. Chill. About an hour before serving bake in a 350-degree oven. Serves eight.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

A shorn wool "incentive" price of 62c per pound, grease basis, and a price of 70 cents per pound for mohair for the 1955 marketing year have been announced by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

The payments producers will receive under this program depend on the national average prices producers receive for wool and mohair in regular marketing procedures during the 12-month marketing period, according to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

He says that if incentive prices are needed for the 1955 clip, they will be based on the percentage needed to bring the national average price up to the incentive price of 62c per pound. The shorn wool program is based on the recently enacted Agricultural Act of 1954. This act provides that the price of wool will maintain normal marketing practices and mohair at a price comparable to the shorn wool level.

Chairman Martin says the purpose of the program is to encourage an annual production of 100 million pounds of shorn wool. Funds for financing payments to growers will come from 70 percent of the tariff receipts on wool imported into the U. S.

A wool support program based on loans and purchases has been in operation for several years. It has not been effective in bringing about the increase in production desired for national security. Under the new program, wool will move freely into the domestic market, benefiting both producer and consumer without increasing consumer prices for woolen goods.

Mr. Martin urges each producer to produce high quality wool and get the highest market price for it. "Incentive payments will be based on a percentage of each producer's cash return from wool sales," he explains. "This means that producers who get the highest market prices will also get the highest incentive payments."

The incentive - payment program applies to wool and mohair sheared beginning Jan. 1 and marketed during the year beginning April 1 and ending on Mar. 31, 1956. The program also applies to sheep and lambs marketed during the same period.

Since the level of incentive payments cannot be determined until after the close of the 1955 marketing year, growers are urged to save sales slips of all wool, mohair, sheep and lamb sales during the year. These sales slips will provide the information needed to determine individual incentive payments.

Producers will apply for payments at their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices.

NO COMMENT

By WALTER CHAMBLIN, Jr.

Principal interest in Washington nowadays centers around the outcome of the Congressional elections, but it is becoming increasingly evident that—regardless of which party wins control of Congress—the legislators are going to have an exceedingly busy time next year.

A huge number of issues are accumulating for consideration when the members of Congress assemble for the regular session starting Jan. 5.

Whatever happens in the November elections, Mr. Eisenhower will be President for another two years. He will submit his legislative recommendations to Congress in January in his State of the Union Message.

Also, whatever happens in the November elections, the New-Fair Dealers will continue to push for enactment of their legislative program. But Mr. Eisenhower will have veto power and a two-thirds vote by both the Senate and House would be required to pass legislation over his veto.

Here are a few of the subjects which seem certain to play a prominent part in the proceedings of the next session of Congress:

1. A renewed battle over revision of the Taft-Hartley Act. Mr. Eisenhower has said definitely that "the Taft-Hartley Act needs some revisions" and "they will be proposed to the Congress."

2. Amendments to the recently passed Atomic Energy Act. Two important points will be involved . . . (1) advocates of Federal power development will seek to limit the part that private enterprise can play in atomic development, and (2) the advocates of government control will seek to continue the present ban on the private ownership of atomic patents during the next five years.

3. Further tax revision, including whether to permit the corporate tax rate to drop from 52 per cent to 47 on April 1 for a revenue loss of $2 billion; whether lower excise taxes on automotive products, tobacco and alcohol will be allowed to go into effect on the same date for a revenue loss of about $1 billion; and whether there should be an easing of the tax on foreign business income and on capital gains.

4. Vigorous efforts will be made by the Administration to hold appropriations and spending to the minimum (consistent with government efficiency and national security.) Its success will determine whether a higher ceiling—now $275 billion—will be sought on the permissible national debt. A temporary $6 billion boost was voted by the recent Congress, but this applies only until next June 30. The national debt now is just a shade under $275 billion and a $4.7 billion deficit is in prospect for this year. Hence, it seems certain that serious consideration will be given to whether the $275 billion ceiling must be elevated again.

5. A strong attempt will be made by public power advocates for legislation to authorize government development of the $400 million Niagara River hydroelectric project. This would be a venture into socialism, as there is not even a pretense that it would be anything other than a Federal power project to prevent private construction and operation desired by five privately-owned companies.

6. Congress will consider reports by the Hoover Commission (to reduce bureaucracy) and the Intergovernmental Relations Commission (to return Federal activities to the states.) These are expected to point the way to reduced Federal spending and to slenderizing the Washington bureaucracy.

7. Mr. Eisenhower will submit new proposals dealing with the tariff and foreign trade—subjects certain to stimulate considerable discussion.

Other proposals certain to be considered include continuation or revision of the Defense Production Act, health reinsurance, increasing the minimum wage, the Bricker Amendment to outlaw treaty law, elimination or restriction of government competition with industry, increased pay for Federal employees, higher postal rates, anti-trust law revision, repeal or revision of fair trade legislation, renegotiation, and the Smith bill to protect state laws from invalidation by acts of Congress.

These are only some of the more important topics awaiting discussion and decision. There are many more and others will develop between now and January. There will be no excuse for Congressmen getting bored by inactivity.

Says Policing Spoils Halloween

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:
Here is another Halloween and the boys and young folks would like to have a little fun. Our neighboring towns give the kids and the gang an open house.
What does a little soap on the windows and a few things piled on the streets matter, as long as it does not hinder or impede the traffic on the main streets?
Here in Emmitsburg the authorities hire special police to help break up the fun, costing the town treasury a tidy sum.
Why not give us one night to have a little fun and have it over with?

For These Things I Stand

HARRY CLIFTON BYRD
Candidate for Governor

Appointment of a State Industrial and Economic Commission to relieve the deplorable unemployment situation in Maryland.
To help small towns, through use of State credit, to obtain adequate water and sewerage supplies.
Establishment of a Commission to get new business satisfactory to replace business lost by certain communities in Maryland.
To give to the people of the State a balanced budget.
To repeal the tax law which will make every Marylander pay from $5.00 to $7.00 more, beginning next spring, on his automobile license tag.
To give labor representation on State agencies in which it has a special interest.
Protect and develop, through conservation methods, the State's resources.
Develop plans for increasing health services and further develop our public school system with adequate salaries for teachers.
Develop a State Roads system under which more highways will be built at lower cost to the State.
Give women a larger place in government.

Increase volunteer firemen's compensation for injuries and increase pensions for those families who have lost loved ones in the line of duty.
Increase the retirement income of State employees and of those under the State Teachers' Retirement system.
Above all, I stand for the elimination of the extravagance, waste and the favoritism which has characterized the government of the State of Maryland for the past four years, and which has cost you taxpayers millions of dollars. I want a Government for Maryland operated on the same carefully planned basis that you housewives plan your weekly budget and on the same sound economic basis on which you voters operate your businesses.
