

Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

I was extremely sorry this week to see a favorite picnic spot of many hundreds of travelers disappear. You all are familiar with the large tree at the foot of Toll Gate Hill and you all have seen many a tourist stop there in the heat of the day to rest and possibly enjoy a basket lunch under the comforting shade of the old tree. Also there was a picnic table there. Well this week hatchet-men felled the giant, by whose orders I don't know but I do know that that favorite spot has vanished and I can't understand just why. Seems an unnecessary shame.

Well with Thanksgiving behind us, now our thoughts can be concentrated on that glorious Yuletide season. Already I am getting the itch to see decorating workers go into action and I can visualize the town all lighted and decorated for the gala holy season. The town officials long ago authorized the usual decorations and I imagine the Chamber of Commerce will offer the usual prizes for the best decorated houses and business establishments. Newspapers have taken on a Christmas look already and shoppers are busy in the stores, a full month before the big day.

It was very nice to have a visit recently from the Queen Mother of England, but I personally feel that Governor McKeldin went a bit overboard with his generosity and hospitality when he presented her with a lovely vase, it is reported, to the Queen Mother . . . and at a cost of $800! It is alleged that the dough came from the state treasury. Now with taxes at an all-time high and no let-up in sight, I think his excellency, the Governor, should practice a little economy, if he is guilty as charged.

And while on this subject of money, I can't understand why the American people keep putting the same parties into Government. Here we are in peace-time with taxes in effect that were prevalent during the time when the whole world was at war. We didn't begrudge these taxes during the period when we were fighting for survival but many of us have lost sight of the fact that the war is over and we should return to a state of near normalcy and should be entitled to some tax relief. By some I don't mean 10 per cent. Both parties have promised tax reductions, prior to elections. Both sides have done little or nothing about the matter, some 10 years after the fighting. Apparently the only way to break it up is for a third party to take over. But I wonder if it might not forget about us, the little taxpayers, also? I don't really know the answer, but the people should start a howl about the present tax dilemma. I'm 100% for spending all the money necessary for defense, but there are oodles of other ways in which economy could and should be effected. Sure everyone is making money these days. Most housewives are working in factories and offices and bringing home fairly good stipends. But the high cost of living and ridiculously high taxes in peace-time eat heavily into the pay check and little or nothing remains in savings. We must give this this matter serious consideration when it comes before us again in 1956!

I trust you all enjoyed a happy Thanksgiving and if you are out of town and have to drive back, please be careful—we'd like to have you enjoy Christmas too.

October Records 50 Fatalities In Vehicular Mishaps

During the month of October there were 50 persons killed in traffic accidents in the State of Maryland. Thirty-five were killed in the counties and 15 in Baltimore City. The 15 traffic deaths in Baltimore City is the highest monthly toll of the past two years.

Col. Elmer F. Munshower, superintendent of the Maryland State Police, in releasing the traffic statistics for October, issued this note of caution to pedestrians:

"Never depend upon the driver's ability to see you at night. Wear something white, carry something white, or carry a light. On rural roads, walk facing traffic. Cross streets only at controlled intersections when possible. Take advantage of all protection devices such as walk-signals, pedestrian lanes and footpaths which have been provided to help you. Remember that absent-mindedness is an important cause of pedestrian deaths and keep your mind on safe walking."

In Frederick County there was only one traffic fatality.

The monthly summary of motor vehicle traffic accidents in the State, compiled by the Maryland state police statistics division, recorded a total of 3243 traffic accidents investigated by police—281 involved collision of motor vehicle with pedestrians, 15 killed—2347 involved collisions of motor vehicles with other motor vehicles, 17 killed—37 were motor vehicles with bicycles, one killed—397 involved collisions of motor vehicles with fixed objects, 14 killed and 73 of the collisions occurred when a motor vehicle ran off the roadway killing two persons.

The 50 deaths in October brought the number of traffic fatalities in the state up to 417 during 1953—a 3 per cent reduction over last year.

Children's Pictures Now Ready

Information has been received from the photographic studios who recently took pictures of many local children for publication in the Emmitsburg Chronicle that the proofs are ready and will on hand for selection by the parents at the Chronicle Office from 1 to 5 p. m. on Friday, Dec. 3.

While the studio assures us every effort has been made to notify all parents by mail, the Chronicle is especially anxious for everyone concerned to be made aware of the day, so all will be on hand to express their preference of the pose to be used for publication or, as the case may be, the one they wish made personal pictures.

"It is due to the play of free enterprise that the U. S. has prospered above all other nations."—Lynn (Mass.) Telegram.

"The very fact that we now have 57% more children under 10 years of age in this country than we had in 1940 means an enormous increase in the demand and market for such things as baby bottles and safety pins and strollers and bicycles and school and bee-bee guns, and so forth."—Noel Sargent, secretary to the NAM.

Youth Slightly Injured In Auto Mishap

A 17-year old Emmitsburg youth was slightly injured Friday night at 10:10 o'clock when the car in which he was a passenger ran up an embankment, skidded down on its right side into another auto.

Pennsylvania State Police said Maysie S. Neely, 28, Fairfield, was driving near Zora on the Emmitsburg-Fountaindale Road when she stopped the car, about 400 feet from the Tom's Creek bridge, and let Pauline E. Stevens, Waynesboro, owner of the vehicle, take the wheel.

While the two young women were in the process of exchanging positions, Edward Meade Fuss, 17, Emmitsburg, approached in his vehicle. Fuss said he saw the parked car and attempted to swerve away to avoid striking it. His car went up an embankment into the side of the parked car.

Damage to Fuss' car was estimated by police at $500 and to the Stevens vehicle at $200.

Lewis S. Smith, 17, Emmitsburg, a passenger in Fuss' auto, suffered a laceration of the forehead but did not seek medical attention immediately. He was the only person injured in the accident.

County School Budget $2.5 Millions

A current expense budget of $2.5 million for public schools in Frederick County during the calendar year 1955 was adopted at a special meeting of the Board of Education recently and will be presented to the Board of County Commissioners in the near future.

The budget estimates the receipt of $1.2 million from all sources other than county and $1.4 million from the county tax funds. For the current year, the county allocated the sum of $1.2 million to the Board of Education for its current expenses.

Approximately $144,000 of the estimated increase of $199,701 from county funds would be in higher salaries for teachers. This is the largest single increase in the budget and accounts for the major part of the total increase.

The board has proposed a flat increase of $200 for the period from Jan. 1 to the end of June for all certified teachers. It was estimated by Supt. of Schools Eugene W. Pruitt that about 400 teachers would be eligible for a total cost of $80,000.

Beginning with the 1955-56 school year next fall, the board has proposed to pay $400 above the new State salary schedule for certified teachers. The new State schedule, which goes into effect at that time, would establish salary scales ranging from $2800 to $4600 to be reached in 11 years. The $400 extra proposed in this county would make the salary schedule here $3200 to $5000 over the same period.

The cost for the four months of next year included in the budget would be approximately $160 for 400 teachers, or a total of $64,000.

Mr. Pruitt pointed out that the $200 sum for the first part of the school year in 1955 would not be a recurring item. After the first year of the new State salary schedule, he said, the county will actually have to put up less money above the minimum schedule than at present.

Mr. Pruitt said the budget includes no capital outlay sum. He said the board is studying its building needs and in all probability will make some recommendations to the new Board of County Commissioners in the near future. More facilities are needed at once, it was said, if it is expected to reduce the enrollment to 30 pupils per teacher in the elementary grades.

Two important facilities under consideration, Mr. Pruitt indicated, are a combined vocational agriculture and industrial arts shop at Thurmont High School and a vocational agriculture shop at Frederick High School.

As pointed out in the annual school report in 1953, he said the board sees a need for a new junior high school building some where in the vicinity of Frederick, along with additions to some other high and elementary schools in the county due to increasing enrollments.

The total expense budget, the superintendent said, includes the sum of around $100,000 for the school lunch program. This is actually just a bookkeeping item, he indicated, since receipts from the sale of lunches will about cancel the expenditures.

From Federal sources come an estimated $25,000 toward the school lunch program, $3500 for on-the-farm training and $5000 for vocational day schools.

State aid is divided into four main parts. Aid per classroom unit is estimated to net $222,384 and aid per pupil (at $20 a pupil) is estimated at $230,532. The equalization fund is estimated to return $595,741. It was emphasized that this latter figure can only be an estimate until the county taxable basis, on which it is based, is finally set. The State also makes a part payment estimated at $32,100 on administration and supervisory salaries.

The board also estimates that it will receive from the State incentive fund $51,600. This can be used only for capital outlay. The total cost of teachers salaries, including substitutes and new teachers, is estimated at $1.7 and the total estimate for instructional services is placed at $1.9 million, the largest item in the budget.

Administration is estimated to cost $42,246 and operation of school plants, including wages of janitors, custodial supplies, light power, etc., is placed at $185,500. Maintenance of school plant and repair and replacement of equipment is estimated at $79,920, including $40,000 for repair and upkeep of buildings and $2,000

The 10 Commandments of Safety

- 1 Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.
- 2 Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use, must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
- 3 Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
- 4 Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
- 5 Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
- 6 Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.
- 7 Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and careless adults.
- 8 Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
- 9 Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water; when at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.
- 10 Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.

SJHS News

"Aunt Sophronia's Will," the play given at the CSMC meeting last week was presented at the regular meeting of the St. Andrew's unit of the National Council of Catholic Women in Waynesboro, Pa., Monday night.

The cheerleaders of SJHS held their first pep rally of the '54-'55 season Tuesday at noontime. Led by the captain, Barbara Bowers, the girls filled the auditorium with both familiar and many new cheers.

Those girls who will accompany the basketball teams as cheerleaders are Barbara Bowers, Joyce Behr, Anna Marie Reaver, Veronica Forney, Anne Breth, Marie Sanders, Jeanne Sell and Lois Sanders.

The green and white clad cagers from SJHS fell in defeat in the closing minutes of the final quarter of their initial game of the '54-'55 season. From the first minutes of the 1st quarter to the very last, the varsity squad was desperately fighting to overcome an 11 point deficit that the 4-H'ers built up at the outset. Only once in the final quarter did SJHS ever hold a lead over its opponents, and that was a slim one-point lead. The final score, 45-43 shows that it was a close contest. The lone outstanding feature of Tuesday's game was to see Mike Miller, varsity guard, pour that ball through the basket. He was high-scorer of the evening with 23 points. With his deadly set-shot he was constantly agitating the opposing team. The next contest will be held Monday evening when SJHS will play host to St. John's High School from Westminster.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 25—In my release of last July, I was quite bullish on the national crop outlook. Final results, which now are just about all tallied, largely confirm my earlier optimism. Although the 1954 total volume of all-crop production will not chalk up a new record, it will still be relatively large.

Despite a series of hurricanes, severe drought in some areas, sizable shifts in land use and government controls, most of the miscellaneous crops are above the 1943-52 average. Included in this group are oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, rice sorghum grain, cotton, all hay, dry edible beans, dry field peas, soybeans, tobacco, sugar cane, and sugar beets. Cotton—a major crop—is also above average. Below-average crops, however, include such major crops as corn, wheat, peanuts, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, and hops.

The outlook for fruits is, for the most part, favorable. However, I expect below-average crops of grapes and commercial apples. Supplies of the delectable cranberry will be sufficient to meet holiday, as well as winter needs. A whopping early and mid-season outturn of citrus fruit is indicated. The pear crop should be about average size. Pecans are likely to be in short supply in the year ahead. In the case of almonds, filberts, and walnuts, I expect above-average crops.

Corn and Soybeans
The indicated corn outturn of 2.9 billion bushels is down 7.5 per cent from 1953 and four per cent below average. However, the Oct. 1 carryover of 918 million bushels (largely in the hands of CCC) was a record high. Thus, total supplies should suffice, but the carryover next Oct. 1 will be reduced. I forecast higher average corn prices as the season works along. This is also true of apple prices.

U. S. farmers really "went to town" on soybeans. The indicated record outturn of 337.9 million bushels will by no means prove burdensome, in view of the excellent outlook for domestic consumption and exports. Many farmers are holding their new-crop beans for higher prices, which, in my opinion, appears to be a smart move. In any event, they can put their beans into the government loan if prices should decline!

Cotton and Rice
There will be much more than enough U. S. cotton to service total 1954-55 requirements. The indicated crop of 13.2 million bales is, alone sufficient for probable season's needs, not to mention the big carryover last Aug. 1 of around 9.7 million bales—largely in government hands. Cotton obviously is in trouble, but Uncle Sam no doubt will continue to bail it out by means of the loan and hopped-up exports. I have confidence in the cotton raisers. They are high-grade people who will work out a fair long-term solution. Unfavorable growing conditions cut the rice yield in California—an important producing state. However, the four southern producing states—Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas—turned in a fine performance. The total U. S. crop of 58.5 million bags of rice, of 100 pounds each, is still a record high. Even so, supplies should not prove burdensome, and I forecast prices are likely to average somewhat higher over the longer term.

A Glance At 1955
There is no question in my mind that the Democratic leaders in Congress will go to bat vigorously for the farmers in 1955-56. For one thing, they probably will try to restore 90 per cent supports, as compared with the present sliding-scale of 82½ to 90 per cent. The fight on this program, I predict, will be stiff. They may make a play also for a larger cotton acreage than the present permitted acreage of 18.1 million.

In any event, the farmers should not suffer next year. Farm prices certainly are in no immediate danger of collapsing. In fact, farm income in 1955 should be off only moderately from that of this year. This means that farmers will still enjoy a comparatively favorable status, and that agricultural areas will continue to offer good markets to aggressive merchandisers of attractively priced quality wares.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Hawes of Bay Ridge, Annapolis, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Frailey on Saturday.

Mr. Philip B. Sharpe flew to Sweden last week on a business trip. He plans to be there about two weeks.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Fish scientists, or ichthyologists if you insist on being technical, have turned up many interesting facts about marine life, so let's look at some of their findings.

Take, for instance, the line running along each side of a fish from its gill opening to the base of the tail. It seems to be a mark that divides the upper and lower halves. Upon a closer examination we find this is an organ consisting of a continuous canal connecting each scale along the complete length of the fish. It is called "the lateral line."

The lateral line, or mucous canal system, is the seat of a sense peculiar to fish. Along this line there are little tubes that communicate with the exterior through pores either in the scales or between them. The elaborate system of the lateral line is akin to our sense of feeling.

Underwater vibrations of low frequency stimulate the lateral line organs and enable a fish to detect the movements of other creatures and to signal that rocks and other objects are near—it's the radar principle.

Some authorities doubt that fish really hear, at least in the same sense that higher animals do. It is probable, writes Robert D. Hall in an article in Sports Afield, that fish do hear through the structures of the inner ear, which is supposed to have evolved as a hearing and equilibrium organ, from one of the sense organs of the lateral line.

Ichthyologists tell us that the air bladder in many fish is closely related to a lunglike organ that served as an accessory breathing air chamber in a very ancient group of fish. Some fish still use the bladder in breathing.

This bladder is a hydrostatic organ, or float, that helps the fish hold its position in the water. As a fish rises to a higher level water pressure lessens, and the bladder and gas in it expands. The power of changing the volume of gas is believed to be limited and is by no means

Survey Of Home Accidents Is Being Made

Dr. Forbes H. Burgess, county health officer, has announced that the Frederick County Health Dept., in cooperation with the Home Accident Prevention Unit of the State Health Dept. is now conducting a survey of nursing home accidents.

Designed to help nursing home operators determine the main causes of accidents to patients, the survey will include six nursing homes in the county having a total of 115 beds.

Under the plan health department nurses will visit the homes to obtain necessary information on all accidents as they are reported.

A questionnaire with 19 questions, prepared and tested in advance, will be used to assure uniformity in reporting. It seeks the nature and cause of injuries in nursing-home accidents including environmental and personal factors. Such information, which is for study purposes only is naturally to be treated as strictly confidential.

Dr. Burgess advises that this

Christmas Sealed

Signed, Christmas Sealed, and delivered to the post office — your Christmas cards. That's one of the holiday tasks ahead that most of us enjoy. Happy memories are recalled as we sign these annual messages of good will to our friends. And there's a special pleasure in adding a pair of Christmas Seals to the flap of the envelope to symbolize our message of good will to the whole community.

Americans are the most generous people in the world. Every year they contribute billions to charity, and especially during the holiday season their hands are outstretched to give so that as many as possible may share in celebrating this happy time. But the Christmas Seals we use represent much more than charity toward the sick and unfortunate. They represent a gift for the welfare of the entire community, a gift for ourselves.

Christmas Seal money is spent to help protect you and me, from tuberculosis, an infectious disease that recognizes no social barriers. No matter which side of the tracks we live on, TB is our enemy. When TB enters a household, it can devour the savings of a lifetime, weaken family ties, damage health permanently. And it can kill. Although modern medical science has saved many from TB, it takes more lives than all other infectious diseases. Yet this need not be so. TB can be prevented.

Your contribution to your tuberculosis association is used to prevent TB in your home town. How the money will be spent is decided on the basis of local conditions by people you know who live in your community. The small percentage that goes to the state association and to the National Assn. comes right back home in services and materials, and in the results of a broad national program of medical and social research.

Christmas Seals work toward "Health For All." Christmas Seals are for you, against TB.

The Dominican Order was founded in 1215.

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION

SONG SPARROW (Melospiza melodia)

RANGE: Breeds from Canada to Southern Virginia; winters from Massachusetts to Florida and Gulf Coast; common over all Maryland. DESCRIPTION: A small, more or less rufous brown bird about 6 1/2 inches long, with a large black spot on a streaked breast; a wagging tail, grayish lines through crown and over one eye; black spots on tips of greater wing-coverts. BREEDING: Lays from 4 to 6 eggs which may be grayish, greenish or bluish, but in any case with brown spots or blotches. Nests generally on ground, but occasionally in bushes; likes to be near water; may raise two or more broods annually. HABITS: Food mostly seeds, also eats cutworms, cabbage worms, grasshoppers and other injurious insects. Sings at night as well as in day time and in most any kinds of weather, and every month of the year, and also when on the wing. Its adaptability has resulted in an increase in this justly popular sparrow over a vast region. Can survive fairly cold winter weather. MANAGEMENT: Little can be done, except what has been done in legal protection, to increase the numbers of this little feathered friend; protecting the nests where possible will help. VALUE: Cherished for its pleasant manner and delightful song. It is also valuable for its destruction of injurious insects and weed seeds; probably 65 to 70% of food is composed of seeds.

SPORTS FLASHES

by J. G. Taylor Spink

Joe Garagiola has quit playing baseball, but he most certainly is not lost to the game. If anything, says The Sporting News, more people than ever can now be enriched by his wit and humor. Joe has taken up broadcasting.

Garagiola is naturally a funny man, and the fans who follow the St. Louis Cardinals in the future will hear his pleasant little laugh and will laugh with him. The humor comes naturally. It enlivened many a moment for friend and enemy on the playing field. It will entertain many, many more as Joe quits the diamond for the broadcasting booth.

The story of Joe Garagiola is being told in The Sporting News, in two installments. The first is in the Nov. 24 issue. It goes behind the scenes in the life of the young ball player who got his start in that part of St. Louis that's called The Hill, and it shows that Joe had another side to him than the one the public came to know. He was funny, yes, with his sharp wit and good-natured banter. But he also had the sensitiveness of a high-strung artist and his heart could be pierced by thoughtlessness of the fans. Much of his clowning was done to hide a hurt.

When Joe decided to hang up his mask and mitt some months ago, he apparently was at the peak of his earning power as a player. He was an intelligent catcher, and a smart student of the game. He could have caught a few more years in the majors, says The Sporting News, as second string if not first. Actually, when he went into radio this winter, he took less than the money he was drawing from the

Dramatic Club Presented Play

Saint Joseph College Dramatic Club under the direction of Prof. Donald J. Waters of the speech department presented Philip Barry's "The Joyous Season" in De Paul Auditorium Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Members of St. Joseph's and Mt. St. Mary's Dramatic Clubs composed the cast with the leading role taken by Miss Florence Reidy of Washington D. C.

The "Joyous Season" concerns the Farley family of Boston's Beacon Hill with the scene laid in the family home on Christmas Eve. Through the play the underlying theme is the power of religious faith to resolve conflicts bred by indifference and materialism. Christina the nun of the family played by Miss Reidy, returns for a brief visit. Family problems are laid before her, and although Christina does not solve them for her brothers and

New York Giants. Garagiola says he may have quit a year too soon, but adds that there's more value in going into radio directly from the majors than from the minors.

"Please understand," he told a writer for The Sporting News, "I have no bitterness. I owe everything to baseball. I love the game. I always want to be in it. All the rest of my life I want to be in baseball, but never at the mercy of baseball." In radio, he went on, he's still in the game, but not at its mercy.

Joe put 13 years into the game, nine years in the majors. He had a major league batting average of .257. He appeared destined for his greatest year in 1950, when he suffered a shoulder separation. He was hitting well over .300 when that happened on June 1, and he didn't get back into action until late in the season. His career included participation in a World's Series, with the Cardinals, and he hit .316 in five games.

sisters, she leaves them with renewed faith and the power to resolve their difficulties.

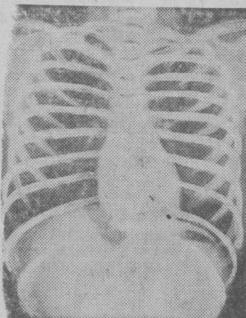

In addition to Miss Reidy, the cast was as follows: Joan Briggs as Teresa Farley; Rod Carter, Francis Battle, her husband; Mary Deanne Broderick, Monica; David Ives, John Farley; Leo Drury, Ross Farley; Noel Stewart, Edith, the wife of Martin Farley, played by Charles Di-

Meglio; Phil Lawver, Hugh Farley. Minor parts were taken by Eileen Regan, Joyce McNamara, and Bill Dooley. Stage manager for the production was Miss Joan Kerr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Frailey entertained Mr. and Mrs. Homer Shipley and family of Baltimore on Sunday. The birthday of Miss Jo Ann Shipley was celebrated at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Frailey and family are spending the Thanksgiving holidays with the latter's mother, Mrs. Carl C. Hetzel in Cumberland, Md.

The Russians and "Coexistence"
WASHINGTON, D. C. —
There is a disturbing under-current of speculation on foreign policy in this capital city of the United States of America. The speculation is on whether our government is toy-ing with the idea of adopting an attitude of "coexistence" with the world-wide Communist conspiracy centered in Moscow. Such an attitude would seem to be almost totally contrary to the foreign policy philosophy of the Eisenhower administration which has held out "hope" to the peoples enslaved by Communism.

Washington journalists say that two camps on foreign policy are developing among the government officials in Congress, the State Department, the Defense Department and the White House. One camp wishes, the report says, to maneuver our nation into a posture of coexistence with Communism — which would mean acceptance of Communism's conquest and enslavement of nearly half the world's people; and, at least in effect, the ignoring of world Communism's historic purposes and goals.

The Practical Reality
The other camp wishes this nation to stand up to the realities of world Communism, to recognize its true nature, divorce ourselves from it in every way, and resist its further advances across the boundaries of those nations still remaining free. Aside from the great moral question involved in a United States' attitude of coexistence, there is the practical reality of Communism's unquestioned, historic goal.

The writings of the leaders of Communism, since it made its first conquest in Russia in 1917, clearly show that Communism will not accept coexistence with the U. S. A.—except momentarily to gain an advantage in its primary purpose to destroy this last citadel of capitalism. And its every action through the pages of recent history loudly proclaimed its devotion to the credo and to the revolutionary goals which its leaders have pushed forward through every stage of its growth. Since, in the final determination, public opinion on the question of coexistence will be the decisive force in our government's action, every citizen should examine for himself the writings of Lenin, Stalin, and Malenkov.

They Proclaim
The following excerpts from official writings and pronouncements were supplied to me by a department of our Federal government. They are documented and there can be no question of their authenticity.

"As long as capitalism and socialism exist, we cannot live in peace; in the end, one or the other will triumph—a funeral dirge will be sung over the Soviet Republic or over world capitalism." Lenin, the first Russian master of world Communism, said this in a speech to the Moscow Party Nuclei Secretaries, Nov. 26, 1920. He stated it repeatedly in his writings and speeches.

"The object of the party is to exploit all and any conflicting interests among the surrounding capitalist groups and governments with the view to the disintegration of capitalism." Joseph Stalin, in Pravda, Aug. 28, 1921. "Who will conquer whom?—that is the question . . . the world is divided into two camps—the capitalist camp, headed by Anglo-American capital, and the socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union." Stalin, May 9, 1925. And here is the exposure of the Kremlin's present "peace" or "coexistence" offensive: "Revolutionary war of the proletarian dictatorship is but a continuation of revolutionary peace policy 'by other means,' Stalin, in "These of the VI World Congress of the Communist International," 1928.

Malenkov Too

Fom Malenkov, the newest master of the world-wide Communist conspiracy: "This task (of reaching and overtaking the leading capitalist states) in its turn is conditioned by the impossibility of prolonged peaceful coexistence of the Soviet state with capitalist (states)." Published in Bol-shevik, November, 1926.

The recent shocking report on Communist aggression, compiled by five Republican and four Democratic Congressmen (House Report No. 2650), after exhaustive investigations, made this statement: "The leaders of the Kremlin drink a toast to coexistence. They ardently hope that the free world will adopt a policy of coexistence with international Communism . . . all the evidence before our committee conclusively proves that the Communists want time—not to become civilized—but to digest their gains and to mold their millions of captive peoples into willing slaves of greater aggression."

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" BY C. WILSON HARDER

Probably nothing illustrates fallacy of chain banking better than Small Business Administration, headed by Wendell Barnes, set up by Congress to make loans to small, independent business.

While some deplore government engaging in banking business as detrimental to a free economy they fail to recognize the shackles put on the economy.

It is significant nationwide balloting by small businessmen of National Federation of Independent Business, plus untiring work by the Senate and House Small Business Committees with such conservative thinkers as Senators Thye and Saltonstall, Rep. William Hill, brought about SBA. If any of the socialistic crowd favored SBA they kept awfully silent.

Facts are that through SBA, government acted to attempt alleviation of sins of both omission and commission with which government shackled small business.

The sin of omission was failure to more forcefully restrain growth of branch banking and consequent amassment of large segments of money and credits in hands of few. Small business denied access to money and credit is in as dire straits as if shut off from raw material or merchandise by monopolization.

The sin of commission is sopping up earnings needed by small business for expansion to finance multi-billion dollar world boondoggling schemes. It is an axiom no business stands still; it either goes forward or backward. Thus American system of pulling a business up by its bootstraps has been nullified by taking away the bootstraps, and often the whole boot, to give to Patagonia or Al-bion. Small business earnings taken by taxes cannot be ploughed back into that business.

In first 15 operating months, SBA has granted 858 loans totaling $47,323,000, an average of less than $56,000. Loans range from $2,500 to $150,000 limit.

But significantly, through policies instituted by Barnes, in 70% of these loans, private lending agencies are participating.

Much more money has been loaned by private banks to small businesses after they first applied to SBA for loans, than has been loaned by SBA. Banking houses find exhaustive SBA investigations show up soundness of many small business loans that chain bank employees turned down. This situation applies primarily in areas where independent bankers have been driven out.

In other words, apparently too often, chain bank employees cannot recognize good loans. Independent bankers, generally, have a wide experience in business, manufacturing, farming, and also an intimate knowledge of an important ingredient in making any loan . . . character, gained not from working up through chairs of chain bank but by lifetime of experience.

No matter how much ability heads a chain banking operation, that same genius does not rub off like chalk on all employees.

Already SBA has proved branch banking is no substitute for independent bankers. Huge corporate systems become unwieldy because of fact top brains cannot be divided. And in any field of endeavor, even the highest corporation is no match for a soundly operated independent business, if government makes sure both must operate by same rules.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

In a period when accumulating supplies and increasing costs of price-supported crops are a major problem in Commodity Credit Corp. operations, soybeans stand out as a sparkling exception. The 1953-crop soybeans under loan are practically cleaned out and no soybeans are listed among CCC inventory stocks as of Oct. 20, 1954.

"This does not mean," says George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, "that no 1953-crop soybeans are available, but the limited stocks are on farms, at terminals, and in processing plants and interior mills and elevators. Actually, stocks are at the lowest point in 13 years."

There were only about 1 and one-third million bushels of old soybeans on hand on Oct. 1 compared with more than 35 1/2 million bushels July 1 of this year and about 10 million bushels a year ago. Stocks on farms are particularly low, roughly 520,000 bushels compared with 5 1/2 million bushels a year ago and 3 1/2 million bushels July 1.

Chairman Martin interprets this to mean that soybean growers have cleaned their storage space of old beans partly because of favorable prices and partly to be ready for the new crop, estimated at better than 330 million bushels, a record crop.

The current estimate compares with a crop of 262 million bushels in 1953 and the previous record of 299 million bushels established in 1950. The record crop resulted despite the lower yield per acre in 1954, 18.3 bushels compared with the average of 19.9 bushels, and despite reduced average price support, $2.22 per bushel, compared with $2.56 for the 1953 crop.

Oil Dealers Want Federal Gas Tax Removed

The Frederick County Petroleum Industries Committee held its annual meeting last week at Peter Pan Inn in Urbana. The men adopted a six-point program calling for a reasonable tax on gasoline; protection of road funds by a constitutional amendment; competition in the sale of products and services on highways; avoidance of burdensome highway bond debt; promotion of highway safety, and the withdrawal of the Federal government from the gasoline tax field.

"The levy of gasoline taxes at reasonable rates for highway purposes at the State level is both proper and essential," J. P. Lanigan, executive secretary of the Maryland Petroleum Industries Committee, the principal speaker at the meeting declared. "But gasoline taxes cost the typical Maryland passenger car owner $58 a year, which is more than many of our customers take home after a week's work. The tax on gasoline in Maryland equals 37 per cent of the retail price." Mr. Lanigan urged the dealers present to tell their customers about the gasoline tax.

After a full discussion, a resolution was adopted urging the General Assembly of Maryland to submit to the voters of Maryland a constitutional amendment dedicating special motor vehicle taxes for highways. Twenty-four states have approved such amendments.

Sale Of Seals Is Urged

Emphasizing the continued need for a strong tuberculosis control program throughout the state, Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the Maryland State Dept. of Health, this week endorsed the 1954 Christmas Seal Sale being conducted by the Maryland Tuberculosis Assn. and its affiliated county associations.

Pointing out that while actual deaths from tuberculosis in Maryland had taken a sharp drop in recent years, Dr. Riley stated that the number of newly reported cases of tuberculosis had remained fairly constant during the same period, indicating that the prevention of the spread of the disease had not kept pace with the prevention of deaths. In a recent survey in a typical Maryland community, tuberculosis was found to be one of the first of the disabling diseases.

Funds raised during the annual Christmas Seal Sale enable the Maryland Tuberculosis Assn. and its affiliated county associations to conduct a year-round tuberculosis control program directed toward the prevention, detection, and treatment of TB.

Dr. Riley pointed out that while the State Dept. of Health, as the official health agency, was legally responsible for the control of disease in the counties of the state, the tuberculosis associations had for years provided vitally needed services which aided the health department in its tuberculosis control program.

Christmas Seal funds help finance the state-wide system of chest clinics and mass chest X-ray detection programs. The tuberculosis associations also conduct a program of special services to TB patients in the state tuberculosis hospitals, carry a year-round tuberculosis education, and contribute to a nationwide medical research program. The 1954 Christmas Seal Sale began on Monday, Nov. 22, and will continue through Christmas Day.

Deer Season Opens December 6

According to the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission the open season for both firearms and bow and arrow hunters for deer will open Monday, Dec. 6 at sunrise, and run thru to sunset Saturday, Dec. 11. During this open period it will be lawful to kill only bucks with two points or more on one antler.

The limit is one buck a year regardless whether killed by bow and arrow or legal firearms. It is lawful to hunt deer while there is snow on the ground; they may be killed only with a rifle that develops over 1200 feet muzzle energy, or a shotgun loaded with a pumpkin ball or rifled slug, and with a bow and arrow. Cross bows, buck shot and dogs are prohibited.

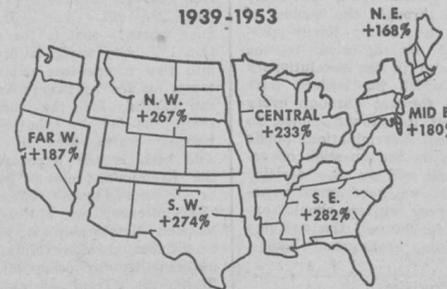

Deer must be checked in at checking stations as soon as possible. It is unlawful to remove the head or hide or other parts, except internal organs, or cut up the meat until the deer has been reported and weighed in at one of the check stations. The station for Frederick County is Snook's Feed Mill at Lewistown.

YOUR HIGHWAYS by JAY SCOTT

DO YOU KNOW THAT...

November is Truck-Transportation Month in honor of the 51st anniversary of one of America's great industries.

The trucking industry employs 6,260,000 persons — one out of every 10 workers in the U. S. Only agriculture employs more.

There are 20 million trucks and trailers in the world—over half are in operation here in the U. S.

These 10 million trucks and trailers travel 100 billion miles and haul more than 11 billion tons of freight in a year's time.

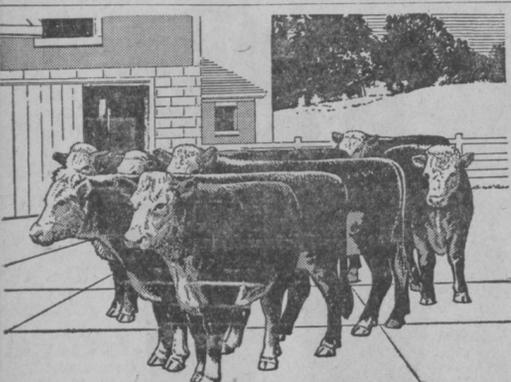

This is more than three-fourths of the total freight tonnage transported in the United States.

Truckmen say President Eisenhower is really "trucking minded." He has met several times with the executive group of the Advisory Committee to the Trucking Industry (ACT). Shown above on one of their visits to the White House are Roy Fruehauf, B. M. Seymour, AF of L's Dave Beck and Arthur D. Condon.

The Saginaw, Michigan, News summed up the case for truck drivers rather well in this editorial:

"One thing can be said for the truck drivers, however, is that they're a thoroughly reliable lot. They stay over in the right hand lane. They'll signal a following driver when the road is clear for passing. They lower their headlights beams for oncoming traffic. They're seldom the cause of highway accidents. Instead of squawking about their growing numbers, it probably would be a good thing for us passenger car drivers to copy truck drivers' habits. We might not get there as fast but we'd get there in one piece."

A CONCRETE lot helps you raise more beef with less feed and labor

A paved feed lot boosts beef production because on concrete the feed is eaten—not trampled in the mud. Less work is needed to keep the lot clean and a great deal more manure can be recovered.

The cost of a concrete barnyard is surprisingly low. Many farmers find that a paved lot actually pays for itself in as little as one year. On concrete cattle can be fed to heavier weights before marketing—no need to ship lightweight cattle in the "muddy season."

A concrete barnyard requires little or no upkeep yet puts extra profits in the bank year after year. Mail coupon today for free booklet on concrete feed lots or information on other concrete improvements.

OF A NUMBER OF THINGS

The completely unrelieved gloominess of the weather of five recent days — thickly overcast skies, mist and rain and fog and penetrating chilliness (but at least without the "wailing winds") — recalled to mind the opening line of a poem on November read many years ago and then partly memorized: "The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year." I would agree with the poet's choice of the most depressing month, if I had to choose one, and it gave me some real, if somber, satisfaction to repeat mentally his rhytmical statement of it. But this is merely an introductory word, to suggest how my first literary note comes to be in this month's column instead of something else I had planned to put there. (I must always assume that some readers are interested, as I am, in even a small "How come?") More definitely, that line about November weather not only kept repeating itself in my mind but kept teasing me to go on and at least finish the stanza, which failing memory prevented. So the original had finally to be consulted in a copy of the "Poetical Works of William Cullen Bryant" (secured, most appropriately, from the personal collection of the librarian of Emmitsburg's Public Library, who, by the way, wishes the public were more interested). And this volume not only settled my uncertainty about the stanza in question but refreshed the lagging memory as to several things about the rest of the poem and its author that seemed to properly belong here.

First, the fact that Bryant himself happens to be one of this same sad November's children; he was born in the first week of the month 160 years ago. Not the month he was born, however, but the time in our nation's history, so near its beginnings, and facts of ancestry (Puritan) and environment (New England, New York, Europe) plus that largely unaccountable factor that we call, among other names, "a natural bent," account for Bryant's position as our first generally recognized poet, making poems when there was as yet practically no original poetry in the country, a thoughtful, grave, religious, nature-loving writer who wrote one of his finest poems ("Thanatopsis," a meditation on death) in his 18th year and made an excellent translation of the two great Greek epics when past his 70th.

As for "The melancholy days are come," those who once read Bryant may recall that this line opens the poem entitled "The Death of the Flowers," a poem typical of Bryant in the ways noted above; its main thought, the sadness of death, that takes away both the flowers of nature and a beautiful and young human blossom. Here, as is by no means always the case, the sadness is unrelieved by hope. The opening stanza is just the general introduction to the main thought, a picture of all-enveloping melancholy weather. Now that the sun is out again I quote it for those same possible one-time readers of Bryant who may be teased as I was by uncertain recollection:

The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year, Of wailing winds and naked woods and meadows brown and eare. Heaped in the hollows of the grove the autumn leaves die dead; They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbit's tread; The robin and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay, And from the wood-top calls the crow through all the gloomy day.

And now, in unintentional contrast, several very different notes on a very different literary personage, notes for which I am also indebted to the same gloomy stretch of days but in a different way, which I must dispose of by the mere mention of findings such weather a good time for "sorting out things."

The personage is Samuel Clemens, best known as Mark Twain, an odd name, surely, when one thinks of its origin as a term used by the Mississippi River pilots to indicate depth, but with its suitability for a man who was a fine pilot among many occupations. He was born some 40 years after Bryant and into a different kind of world, born on the last day of November; this November 30 marks the 119th anniversary of his birth.

Mark Twain seems to be known to a good many of his countrymen chiefly as a writer of a couple good stories for and about boys and as a "funny man" who made droll remarks (such as the one about the report of his death being exaggerated) and played practical jokes on friend and stranger alike (is when he greatly disturbed a minister of high standing by gravely telling him that he had every word of the sermon he had just listened to in a book at home, offering to prove it, and then sending him the dictionary).

But there were deeper aspects of this man's character which many have never understood. Courage and intellectual honesty, two of the most impressive are pointedly expressed in the following quotations jotted down from a radio tribute to Mark Twain heard years ago: "Disaster meets him; he meets it."

"We know that he saw thought straight; when an ugly truth stared him in the face he didn't shut his eyes — a rare thing with Americans."

BRIGHTER LIVING

By Jan Reynolds

If you don't already have one, a night-light in a bathroom has many practical purposes and consumes very little electricity. Children awakening in the middle of the night do not have to call on parents' help, and no glaring light need meet sleepy eyes accustomed to darkness.

Bookcase Beautifier: If your ceilings are fairly low, try having a fluorescent unit mounted at the top of your bookcase — out about 5 to 6 inches. The light will wash even the lower shelves and, if you would like, the unit can be concealed by an attractive cornice board.

LIGHT FOR WORKSHOP

See that the man of the house gets the best lighting in his cellar workshop. An inexpensive and adequate unit for this purpose is an RLM dome fixture with a 150 to 200-watt silvered bowl bulb. If very close work is done or precision tools used, add a 150 watt R-40 spotlight bulb with adjustment cord to protect vision, save time and promote safety.

Light Lends Security: Try a PAR 150-watt bulb at the side door of your home, illuminating the rear driveway and garage door. A similar unit can also be installed at the front of the house, letting you light any or all parts of the surrounding area without stepping outside. See your electrical contractor for ideas and equipment for this purpose — and protect yourself and your family with light.

HOUSECLEANING TIP

dents" exposed, let your infrared heat lamp solve this problem. Simply dampen the spot and then apply heat lamp to the area for a few minutes. Finish the job with a brisk brushing.

Safety Farm Tip: Two lights are recommended by Sylvania engineers for workers in the silo: A 100-watt bulb with a deep bowl reflector at the top of the silo, and a 150-watt reflector flood lamp at the top of the chute. Switch should be located at the bottom of the chute — with a pilot lamp to show when upper lamps are on — Jan Reynolds, Sylvania Electric Home Lighting Consultant

Godfrey Is No. 1 The aim of "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts" is to find good new professional talent. Performers, who appear on Godfrey's CBS simulcast, whether they hit the top of the "appliance-meter" or not, are hoisted up that first big rung of the ladder. That's the general consensus of opinion.

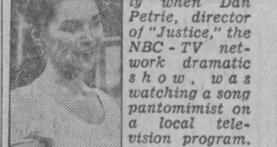

But do you know what viewers and listeners think? Well, an audience poll some time back rated showlikes this way: (1) Godfrey, himself; (2) the talent scout—and—yop—last, the talent!

And, did you know that to find 156 talented performers—that's the number who appear on "Talent Scouts" in a year's time—some 7,000 are auditioned?

Show Business Television directors on the lookout for talent often find it in their own backyards so to speak. This was the case recently when Dan Petrie, director of "Justice," the NBC-TV network dramatic show, was watching a song pantomimist on a local television program. Pleased with R. MacDonald the effect she produced as she silently interpreted a popular record, synchronizing her movements with the lyrics and rhythm of the song, Petrie contacted the girl and arranged for her to audition for the leading role of "Sally" in his "Justice" presentation of "The Fugitive."

Thus it was that Roberta MacDonald, a native New Yorker who was able to "sell" a song without making a sound, found herself cast in a dramatic role on "Justice."

From Bad To Verse Ronald Colman's penchant for the apt quote and his remarkable memory in recalling a verse to meet a situation on "The Halls of Ivy" set, apparently has made the show's entire cast and crew poetry minded. For instance, the production staff was discussing modern writers' ability in turning out high calibre material every week. Later William Cameron Menzies, who alternates as director with Norman McLeod, came up with the bit of verse at the top of this column.

When told his efforts would be immortalized in "Hogan's Alley," Bill quipped, "Things are going from bad to verse!"

Turn to the Lord your God, for He is gracious and merciful... and of great kindness.—(Joel 2, 13.)

No mortal man is perfect, without sin. But when we fail, we can and must try again. God is ever merciful; He will forgive the truly repentant again and yet again. He is of 'great kindness' beyond human understanding.

School Budget $2.5 Millions

(Continued from Page One) for purchase of furniture and equipment for the older schools. Transportation costs, including $10,000 for parochial schools, is estimated at $274,245, of which $206,100 is for contract buses. Four more bus routes are proposed to be added at a cost of about $12,000. County-owned buses, drivers' salaries, expenses, etc. cost around $50,000.

The board last year banned the sale of magazines by high school pupils. It has included in the budget a sum of $1.50 per pupil per high school to offset the loss of funds from the prohibitory order, to be used largely for office expenses and athletics.

Fixed charges account for $29,850, including $20,000 for fire insurance and $4,400 for social security payments. Teachers for the first year will be included under the Workmen's Compensation law. Persons in the county school system such as cafeteria workers and school bus drivers who are not under a retirement system are included in the social security system.

The board unanimously turned down a request by the Home and School League of Frederick High School and by some other organizations to institute driver training in the schools. It was

Prehistoric Skull Shown In Smithsonian Exhibit

Washington, D. C.—A 1,500-year-old Peruvian skull on which the original surgical dressing of finely woven cotton gauze is held in place by strands of wool, is part of an exhibit showing the evolution of bandages, presented to the National Museum by Johnson & Johnson, the firm which pioneered and developed the manufacturing of sterile surgical dressings and its availability for medical use throughout the world. The display features the type of lint dressings actually used in the Civil War, as well as the first type of wet dressings created, and then takes the viewer all the way through the evolution of bandaging up to the modern sterile bandages presently used in hospitals and homes throughout the world. Presentation to Dr. A. Remington Kellogg, Director of U. S. National Museum, was made by Dr. William H. Lycan, Johnson & Johnson Vice President in Charge of Research.

Fascinating Fashions By Judy Seaton

Whether you like to dress 'em up, or dress 'em down, a suit is the basic item in every gal's wardrobe. . . . And the essential blouses are mighty pretty this season, says Spring Byington who stars every Monday evening on "December Bride" (CBS-TV, 9:30-10:00 P.M., E.S.T.).

For truly dressy blouses, silks, jerseys, crepes and dacrons can't be beat for glamorizing your best suit. In accord with the new Parisian fashions, blouses have long, torsio lines which are either semi-fitted or straight to the belted hip-line. More ornate than ever, they're trimmed with lace, ribbon, embroidery, glittering beads and contrasting materials. Some have high, round necklines while others have wide, low-cut "V"s.

Sweaters, too, are more dramatic and are perfect for "after five" occasions. Available in charcoal grey, turquoise, cinnamon, pale pink, cornflower blue and white. They're trimmed, about the neckline and yoke, with fur (mink or angora), brightly embroidered flowers and sparkling beads. You can select from a wide assortment of cashmeres, wonderfully washable orlons and, of course, soft woolsens.

For casual wear, two-tone sweaters are extremely popular. They're made with wide horizontal bands of different shades of the same color or possibly in contrasting hues. Another nice feature this year, is that sweaters and skirts can be matched in color and shade, thus making the costume a complete dress. These sets are available in flame grey, powder blue, beige and black.

Another natural for sportswear is the new, new middy blouse with the "V" neck, long sleeves that is straight from shoulder to hip-line. These come in solid pastel tints as well as candy and wide stripes. Of course, the very tailored boy-shirt is as much in vogue as ever.

So, says Spring Byington, you'll suit your suit . . . and yourself . . . with a wise selection of blouses and shirts.
