The Marvel of Thinking:
A Further Word

Although the brief and scattered comments that have been presented on the marvelous nature of thinking suggest only part of that story, it has seemed to me that they do help us, if we really "stop and think" about them, to take thinking less for granted, do help us to recapture something of that sense of wonder which is our natural and right reaction to wonderful things, but which so-called "custom" has done so much to dull or suppress. (In this connection I find myself recalling the striking way that Thomas Carlyle, that original thinker and writer of the last century, commented on this matter of wonder and custom in the case of a marvel of the natural world, the stars. Contrast, said Carlyle in effect, the casual way that men take the stars who have been long accustomed to live under them with the attitude of a man who has been brought up in an underground cave and sees the stars for the first time: would he not fall down in wonder and adoration?)

Thinking and Everyday Life:
Foreword

No reader of the preceding section of this report on thoughts about thinking may recall that it was said at the close of the introductory paragraph that the points "directly connected with everyday living" to be brought together from popular writings on the subject would be already familiar to all of us from our own thinking experiences if we paid more attention to them. However, whether recalled or not, I should like to mentally cross out that statement, after further reflection, as quite inexact, and so an unfortunate choice of a thought to be reported! It could better have been said that for various reasons we cannot make much headway in understanding and evaluating the workings of our own minds, whatever attention we give them, without help "from the outside"; that we need the organized information based on trained study, and the "tips for action" based on that that the specialists in thinking have to offer, as much as we need these things from other specialists in other subjects. Of course there is something special for our own minds to do besides just "taking in" the selection of facts and recommendations which are to be presented. There is the recognition of them as mental materials we have already acquired in one way or another (maybe by our own unaided effort, which is possible) and linked up with enough feeling to be influencing our conduct. There is the recognition of them as new materials (no doubt only in part, the reflecting on them, the decision whether or not we want them to be an effective part of our thinking. There is the acceptance of them, with approving feelings (which means that our conduct should in some way be influenced by them), or the rejection of them, also with accompanying feelings, as unwanted stuff.

This Foreword, when I started it, seemed to be a necessary introduction to the Practical Points to follow; but now that I look back on it I fear it may have proved to be only a good example of a mental maze to any who may have tried to work their way through it! In case this is so, let me sum up its purpose: (1) to say that we need the help of the "thinking specialists" when we try to think more about thinking; (2) to give an idea of how much our own mind has to do in handling the proffered help.

"People Do Not Think"

"These four words," continues the author of a very popular "art" of thinking that appeared in the late 20's, "describe the mental cowardice or sluggishness which makes sheep of most people." These are four-and-more pretty harsh-sounding words and they are supplemented elsewhere in the book by a numerical estimate, i.e., nine out of every 10 persons, according to the French scholar and writer (who must also be considered as something of a specialist on thinking, but not in a scientific way) are non-thinkers! But at least this second statement by Mr. Dimmet implies that a few people DO think; in fact, he had already implied that not quite all people are sheep, doing no thinking for themselves, just almost all.

And here is a less emotional, more matter-of-fact statement by a prominent business executive, led to a serious study of thinking by personal experience: "We have no real difficulty in finding people of good character to fill jobs, and little more in finding those who have sufficient experience and a pleasant personality. The real hitch is in finding people who know how to use their minds" ("The Art of Practical Thinking"—Richard Weil, 1940).

The director of a very modern-sounding institute (for research in Human Relations) was quoted in Reader's Digest last summer as declaring: "Most of us will go to any length to keep from thinking persistently about our problems." A number of the professional psychologists of recent date comment on the fact that the human mind is capable of far more work than it has ever been called on to do, agreeing that probably two-thirds of the brain (the cerebral cortex, which controls thinking) is left dormant.

Such statements should suggest "a number of things" to us all, and I shall try to bring some of these together in a succeeding column. A.E.H.

"We would recapture the revenue coming from the operation of the growth factor and use it exclusively to reduce the discriminatory rates; we would extend the plan over a period of years until moderate and bearable rate levels were reached."

Early Chicks due to make extra good profits next fall predict most economists

Economists are predicting extra good egg prices next fall and winter. Their estimate is based on the fact that prices for 5 years have been down one year—up the next. The graph shows this fact clearly. While prices are higher in some areas, and lower in others, the down-one-year, up-the-next picture has been true everywhere.

The reason is easy to see. Many folks get disgusted when prices are low. So they don't start as many chicks as usual. And the shortage of eggs forces the price up.

Order Chicks Now for Best Profits

We urge all our friends and customers to take advantage of this profit opportunity. Let the other fellow quit. You'll make more money that way.

And please order your chicks early. If you start them early, they usually will make $20 to $40 extra profits per 100 pullets—because they're in peak production while egg prices are highest in the fall and early winter. See us real soon, won't you?

State Troopers Back State Highway Safety Drive

State police have extended an unexpected challenge to the sponsors of "Deathless Week on Maryland Highways" who sought cooperation of police in the form of stricter enforcement of the law and saturation patrol of highways throughout the State.

They were told by Capt. Thomas J. Keyes of Baltimore's Traffic Division, representing Police Commissioner Beverly Ober, that the only way to keep the highway fatality score at zero during the week from Mar. 20-26 was by convincing the public they are responsible for the success or failure of the drive.

Capt. Keyes expressed enthusiasm for the project, but said: "We strive for 'Deathless Week' all through the year, not just during a drive. The manpower we expend on a given project is the same that is brought into effect every day.

"You can't threaten people into safety or scare them into safety. You've got to get people out of the habit of thinking that accidents can happen to the other fellow but not to them. You have to sell them on the idea that preventing accidents is their individual responsibility—not that of the police. Our yearly goal is what you're trying to do for one week."

Col. Elmer Munshower, Supt. of State Police, and Paul E. Burke, executive director of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, noted that they could not remember when this area had a seven-day period without a highway fatality.

Citing the campaign which attended Safe-Driving Day last December, Mr. Burke said that Maryland became conscious of highway safety that there were no fatalities for three days, the number of accidents was cut in half and the number of injuries was also halved.

Col. Munshower, who agreed with Capt. Keyes that police officers are engaged in an all-out effort during the entire year, promised that his men would "keep very close tab on all activities" to gain a complete record of the effectiveness of "Deathless Week"; and he would "put every available man on duty during the Week."

A decision to post major highways with signs promoting the campaign was made after Thomas B. R. Mudd, commissioner of Motor Vehicles, observed that "one-third of all the deaths are caused by out-of-state people."

The earth was once called Gaea, or Ge.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

Washington pundits who claim only "right wing" republicans will oppose Administration's protective tariff wrecking proposal, with democrats supporting it, apparently have not marched through Georgia lately.

Rep. Henderson Lanham, a Georgia democrat takes mighty blast at plan to turn over economy to Acheson-Dulles theories of State Department.

Rep. Lanham feels pending tariff C.W. Harder measure would be death blow to nation's cotton textile industry and cotton growers already feeling effects of "One Worlders."

He points out published list of planned tariff reductions includes almost every item produced by U.S. textile industry.

Rep. Lanham also points out while average hourly labor rate in U.S. textile mills is $1.30, in Swiss mills it is 43c, in England 40c, France 38c, Italy 30c, India 3 1/2c, Japan 13 6/10c.

He further reports it is planned, if Congress approves current tariff-wrecking scheme, to also lower tariffs on foreign made synthetic fibers.

Thus, plans are afoot to flood U.S. with foreign cottons made at wages ranging from 10 to 25% of prevailing U.S. wages but at same time, through cutting tariffs on foreign made synthetics, it is planned to wreck U.S. cotton farmers even now supported by farm program.

The gentleman from Georgia even states he will ask Congressional investigation on who drew up list of planned tariff slashes.

We Can't Buy Friends
The taxpayers of America, through the action of their Federal government, have poured $98 billion into foreign countries since July 1940. That is a tremendous expenditure of tax money. It just about equals the amount paid into the Federal treasury from 1900 until 1940 from all tax sources, for all phases of the U. S. government.

The purpose of this gigantic expenditure was to strengthen our allies, "make friends and influence people." Taxpayers were told it was a good investment. How well we have strengthened our allies remains to be seen.

Informal but Private

Despite an informal look both inside and out, this three-bedroom ranch home is carefully planned to give utmost privacy and convenience. It is Plan AB200N of American Builder magazine, 79 W. Monroe St., Chicago 3.

Living and dining areas, which share a long wall of windows, face the rear, so that passersby cannot see in from the street. A large window-enclosed porch is also at the rear. Facing the street are a bedroom, large L-shaped bathroom, kitchen-dinette, and two-car garage.

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

BLACK-BELLIED PLOVER
(Squatavola squatarola)
Sometimes called Bull-head, Beetle-head and Black-breast

RANGE: Widely distributed in both hemispheres; breeds on the Arctic Coast from Point Barrow to W. Baffinland. Migrates to Brazil, Peru and Chile; found in most every state during migrations; more plentiful in Maryland in early fall and spring; accidental in Hawaii. Found in winter on Mediterranean, and N. Africa.

HABITS: Replies readily to call, decoys without fear, and was easily killed for sport and food before the season was closed by Federal law. Food consists of mollusks, worms, insects gleaned along shores; a large part of food is obtained on sand flats left by receding tides. Fly in formation.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture will not initiate a program for the subsidized distribution of Commodity Credit Corp. wheat stocks for feed use, according to George B. Reeves, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State committee.

Mr. Reeves explained that the department has recently received a number of recommendations regarding possible feed-wheat programs. His announcement is intended to clear up any uncertainties which may have developed as a result of these recommendations.

The controlling legislation sets up quite definite standards governing the sale by CCC of its stocks of basic or other storable commodities, such as wheat. In general, CCC wheat cannot be sold domestically at less than 105 per cent of the price support level plus handling charges. There are exceptions for commodities which are going out of condition, and for sales for feed use under special conditions. Sales for feed use, however, are authorized only "if such sales will not substantially impair any price-support program."

"The decision not to initiate a subsidized feed wheat program at this time is in line with the provisions and the intent of the controlling legislation," Mr. Reeves said.

Some minor quantities of wheat which was not of accepted food-use quality have in the past been sold for feed use, at feed price levels. Some relatively small quantities of CCC-owned wheat which is not suitable for storage, in selected locations, is currently offered for sale in the department's monthly domestic sales list, for feed use at market prices.

Other than a continuation of these relatively minor special sales however, the department does not plan a wheat feed-use program.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By Cong. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, Mar. 16—One of the interesting aspects of serving a Congressional District is the discovery of the many indirect ways in which matters of importance to a District can be brought to the attention of the lawmaking body. Two such instances are of importance to the Sixth Maryland District.

It was my good fortune to appear as a witness before the Senate subcommittee on unemployment and to present two problems which affect Western Maryland, and I may add other parts of the country. During my testimony before the subcommittee on unemployment I learned the group is sympathetic to the problems of the coal industry.

The committee's attention was directed toward the problem of the "runaway plant." And in particular those plants which have moved from an area such as we have in Western Maryland to foreign countries in search of cheap labor. I asked that the subcommittee look into these industries with a view to learning what advantages they are taking of our present import legislation.

I also appeared before a House Appropriations subcommittee to urge the appropriation of funds for a study of Washington and the metropolitan area transportation problems to be carried out by the planning authorities of Maryland, the District and Virginia. I have requested the language of the grant of funds be so worded as to require a report by Jan. 4, 1956, on my proposal of a one commission regulatory body to regulate transit throughout the area.

During the discussions of a proposal to tax the earned income of persons who work in the District of Columbia but reside elsewhere I had the opportunity of plainly stating my opposition to such a tax. I have suggested to District officials ways and means of further exploring present areas of taxation before they undertake new tax ventures.

INCOME TAX FACTS No. 4
Get All Exemptions for Yourself and Dependents

(This is one of a series of articles on income tax changes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants and the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants.)

Many taxpayers cheat themselves on their personal exemptions. Of course, there are others who get into trouble by claiming too many exemptions — like the cowboy who claimed an exemption for his horse because he loved him like a brother.

The rules for a taxpayer's own exemptions are the same this year as last year, but the new tax law has made it easier to get exemptions for dependents.

Your Own Exemptions

Here's how to count your exemptions (each one takes $600 off your taxable income):

One exemption for yourself, two if you are 65 or over, two if you are blind, three if you are both 65 and blind. The same applies to your husband or wife.

If your husband or wife died during 1954 you can file a joint return claiming the exemptions including those for age or blindness, to which the deceased would have been entitled at the time of death.

Exemptions for Dependents

One exemption of $600 can be taken for each person who fits the definition of a dependent. This $600 is not doubled for age or blindness, as in the case of your personal exemption.

To count for an exemption, the dependent must:

1. Have less than $600 gross income for 1954 (except that under the new law this does not apply to your child if he is under 19 or is a full-time student).
2. Have received more than half his support from you. (New Law: Do not include scholarships in figuring total cost of support. The dependent may also qualify even though no one person furnished more than half of his support. If a group of persons who would otherwise be able to claim the dependent contributed more than half, any member of the group who contributed at least 10% may claim the dependent if all others who contributed 10% or more have signed a declaration that they will not claim the deduction.)

Children and Disabled Dependents

Don't forget that a baby born anytime up to midnight December 31 counts as a full exemption.

A new feature this year is a deduction of as much as $600 for care of a dependent while the breadwinner is working. This deduction is available to mothers, widowers, divorced and legally separated persons, who are allowed to deduct expenses up to $600 for the care of a son, daughter, stepson or stepdaughter under 12 (or any dependent who is mentally or physically incapacitated).

A working wife is entitled to this deduction if her husband is physically or mentally incapable of providing support. Where the husband is not disabled, the working wife may also take a deduction if a joint return is filed, except that the $600 limit is reduced by the amount the couple's gross income exceeds $4,500.

Jade is a green material found in tale, or magnesium silicate.

Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that you may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.—(Ephesians 6, 13.)

Why should we try to go it alone, humanly weak as we are, when God's love, His guidance and power are ours for the asking through prayer? He is ever present and willing; when we let our foolish pride and self-centeredness cut us off from Him, we deprive ourselves needlessly of all-power, all-good.

HERE'S WHY . . . . by weltman

THE PICTURE ON YOUR TELEVISION SET EXPANDS AND CONTRACTS.

This may be because your output of current is limited. And when you turn on other electrical appliances, you rob your television of needed voltage. An electrical contractor can quickly replace your outgrown wiring, give you bigger electrical capacity.

"OCTOPUS" OUTLETS ARE USED AROUND THE HOUSE.

It's because you don't have enough outlets—fed by enough branch circuits—to keep pace with your electrical needs. A well-wired home by modern standards has convenience outlets to spare, fed by circuits designed for particular jobs.

YOU HAVE FREQUENT ELECTRICAL BLACKOUTS.

Because not just one overused circuit, but the entire home system, is carrying too big a load. You may need to replace your service equipment with bigger units. Ask your electrical contractor for Adequate Wiring to handle today's and future appliance needs.

(Continued from Page One) project. The reason for the survey is to ascertain just how many employes the town could possibly furnish should any of our local industries decide to expand or new businesses interested in locating here. The information is vital to the progress of our community and all replies will be kept confidential, so if you receive a card, don't hesitate to fill it out and mail it right back! A lot of hard work and money has been put into this survey and once again I urge your all-out cooperation.

Horse Sale Will Feature Speedy Pacers, Trotters

Kirk's Queen, a two-year-old racing filly that Joe Eyer of Thurmont says is the fastest filly he has ever trained is among 75 to 80 standardbred race horses to be offered Monday at the Fairgrounds in Frederick in the first annual spring speed sale conducted by the Maryland Standardbred Horse Sale.

Bred by Eventime Farm, Washington Courthouse, O., out of Lomita Queen by Hodgen, Kirk's Queen has been nominated for the Breeders Filly Stakes, Vernon Downs, Goshen; W. E. Miller Memorial, two $1,000 Rosecroft stakes, Hanover Shoe Filly Stakes, Ocean Downs Stake, Kent and Sussex Fair Stake, Laurel and Baltimore two-year-old paces. The filly was clocked in 2:30 over Joe Eyer's private training track in Thurmont on March 2.

This is one of a number of outstanding two-year-olds, some unbroken, to be offered at the sale starting Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Consignments also include several veteran campaigners with attractive records.

Crack Pacer On Block

Among the proven pacers and trotters is Eyer's L. T. Eden, which stepped to a 2:04 3/5 mark last year while gathering six wins, three seconds and a third in fast company. This 16-Class pacer was photoed out last year in 2:03 2/5 and is staked in early closing paces at Rosecroft, Laurel and Baltimore Raceways.

Another choice offering is Great Water, a crack three-year-old pacer purchased last year by Eyer because the Poplar Byrd-Emalou Hanover pacer made such a strong contender against Irish, Gold Rise and Adios Jimmy. This colt was clocked in 2:05 3/5 over the Goshen half-mile track and is named for the Reading Futurity, Reynolds Stake, Ocean Downs Stake, two Lexington Stakes, Rosecroft, Laurel and Baltimore 3-year-old and 21 Class paces.

Among the offerings is another well-known campaigner to local harness horse fans. Bernard Offutt, Woodsboro, has consigned his Pepper's Pride, which won 11 of 17 dashes last year. This Spencer Scott-Gleeful Glight 21-Class trotter is expected to improve his record this season.

Green Racers To Be Offered Six of the unraced youngsters come from the Hopeworth Farms of Oskaloosa, Ia. Stanley F. Dancer of New Egypt, N. J., one of the nation's top trainers and drivers, has consigned two 2-year-old prospects and a 3-year-old with great possibilities.

Nine of the offerings come from the Willard Smith stable of Dublin, Pa., which is being closed out by Mrs. Martha E. Smith following the death of her husband.

Probably one of the most sought offerings is Ethel Lady, a proven pacer mare consigned by Olin Davis, Clayton, Del. This mare has a mark of 2:02 2/5 and has won $24,459. She is a half-sister to Andrew, a $39,778 winner. She accumulated her winnings over the top tracks in Maryland, Delaware and New York.
