Another phenomena of nature plagued us this week when on Tuesday hurricane-like winds played havoc with television aerials in this community. It was not an uncommon sight to see many of the antennas dangling from roof-tops and several disappeared completely.

Your correspondent observed a chimney blown completely off and a tin roof ripped half way off the top of a suburban house. Damage was comparatively light and we can all be thankful to the Lord that it wasn't a lot worse. I was really scared though, as I saw telephone poles rocking back and forth in a dizzy fashion. I observed numerous signs dislocated and now resting in new locations—flat on their backs. The Chamber of Commerce's welcome sign east of town took on a new site at least 500 feet down the road, and brother it takes a strong wind to do a stunt like that. The rains were welcome though, there was possibly a little flood damage done. Really, I believe, we are better rain-wise now than we have been for four or five years and indications are that we should have a productive summer for farmers and orchardists. You can never tell though, anything can happen—and sometimes does!

What has been tried here before and has failed miserably now appears about to be accomplished. For several years now a lot of talk and a little action concerned the establishing of a Little League here. Indications are that success is at hand. Committees have worked hard and diligently and things appear pretty well on the way. Now that the spade-work has been accomplished there is a bigger and more important part to be played, and that is where you parents come in on the deal. First of all, you are invited to a public meeting to be held on Palm Sunday. You are especially needed if you have a boy eligible to participate. The committee is after your okay to have your boys play and also your ideas, without which the venture could easily fail. Schedules have to be worked out, permissions obtained, a playing field or fields to be readied, practice nights and playing days set, etc. Won't you reserve the date? It'll only take an hour of two of your time. Let's back up the committee!

Another big investigation has been launched, this time on a state level. Seems as though our State Roads Commission has been under considerable fire lately. But then you know what usually happens to investigations. First of all there is a barrage of unwanted publicity concerning an individual, or a group. This verbal and printed attack continues until we are riled to a point where we could grab a rope and incite a lynching. Yes it really gets you stirred up. Then all of a sudden some character witnesses loom upon the horizon and for a while we are more confused than ever. After the battle smoke clears it is generally conceded that the alleged culprit should receive a meritorious citation, a medal, a bouquet or what have you. This is the happy and usual ending of investigations and this is exactly what happened to the State Roads Commission investigation this week. It sort of followed the stereotyped pattern of Washington investigations. Oh well, some good might possibly result from it inasmuch as our county state legislators now will have an excuse for not passing any legislation beneficial to us or the county, claiming that time ran out on the delegation due to the big investigation. If only the public hadn't such a short memory, and to think that we only get a crack at them every four years and they were just recently elected. Well, here's one gal that will remember. It's a heck of a wonder they didn't get the brilliant idea of raising their salaries.

Plans For Little League Here Progress

Excellent progress is being made in organizing a Little League baseball club for the Emmittsburg District, it was reported by the general chairman of the committee in charge of getting the program under way. General Chairman Paul Claypool stated this week that a meeting had been held Tuesday evening and that five local men interested in the project had agreed to manage teams. They are James McKeon, Carlos Englar, Jack Rosentel, Chick Topper and T. C. Harbaugh. Some equipment already has been ordered, it was learned, and the teams will be named later. It is the goal of the committee to organize at least four teams.

Local organizations backing the project are the Lions Club, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Grange. Eligibility rules require that a boy be between the ages of eight to 13 years. A boy who is approaching his 13th birthday in the near future is ineligible, but should his birthday occur after Aug. 1 he will be eligible. Edward Houck has been appointed treasurer of the group, and booster tickets are now on sale.

Posters advertising the project and schedules will be placed in all stores soon and canisters are being prepared, and when ready will be placed in the local business establishments to receive contributions.

The committee has announced that a potential list of 75 players has been received, and that the three local elementary schools, St. Euphemia's, Emmittsburg Public School, and St. Anthony's will furnish the majority of the players for the four teams.

An important public meeting has been scheduled for Sunday, Apr. 3, at 2 p. m. in the Emmittsburg Public School. All parents of eligible boys and other interested persons are asked to attend in order to work out practice sessions, schedules, registration of boys, and to make general plans for the coming season.

It is planned to use the Emmittsburg Civic Assn. grounds, east of town, where the horse show is held, for the first season. The project represents a lot of hard work and large sums of money, and the complete cooperation of the community is needed if success is to be had; therefore as many interested people as possible are asked to attend this meeting on Sunday, Apr. 3.

Booster tickets are on sale for $1 and can be secured from any member of the Lions Club, VFW, American Legion, and the Grange.

Expert Advises How To Remain Happily Married

Visualize the picture in the doctor's office of the father, the mother and the family doctor hovering over a sick child waiting for signs of recovery. Don't you think these parents have a closer bond because of their mutual feeling for the child and his recovery?

According to Mrs. Jeanne S. Moehn, family life specialist with the University of Maryland Extension Service, this is one circumstance which might arise during the second or "crisis" period of marriage. The first period of a happy marriage is the first year or two immediately following the marriage; while the third phase is the time during which the husband and wife have learned through all their experiences together the true value of each partner.

During the second or "crisis" period of marriage, the economic strain may be heavy. Making ends meet—there must be food, clothing and shelter—is a problem for many couples.

The specialist points out further that as certain issues arise, the husband and wife grow close together by working together with sympathy and understanding. Also religious belief has a great influence on certain couples during the times which are not too easy.

"One cannot give only, the trials of life—the JOYS they share are equally important. The first child, his first steps, his first words; their home; achievement of the goals they dreamed of before marriage," claims Mrs. Moehn. All things in living together—if real love is there—help to tie the marriage bond more strongly during the "Crisis period," she concludes.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosensteel spent last Thursday visiting in Baltimore.

PTA FAVORS APPOINTED SCHOOL BOARD

The regular meeting of the Public School PTA was held Wednesday night in the school cafeteria with Norman Shriver, president, presiding.

Mr. Jones, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Richards, treasurer, gave a financial report.

It was announced by the activities committee that a food sale will be held Saturday, April 9 in the Fire Hall at 10 a. m. for the benefit of the PTA.

The group went on record as favoring an appointed Board of Education, as it is now, instead of an elected board which is being proposed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Frederick.

A movie was shown by the program committee, entitled: "Wildlife—Ducks in the USA." The PTA attendance banner was won by Mrs. Leary's and Miss Hollinger's rooms for having the most parents present. Refreshments were served to the group.

Local Hosemen Witness Demonstration

The Vigilant Hose Co. of Emmittsburg last Thursday evening was shown the latest methods of fire-fighting—particularly in the use of gas masks. Mr. Emory Carmack, instructor from the University of Maryland Fire Extension Service, explained the purposes and usefulness of the Chemox mask and the smoke mask. Also exhibited in new equipment was the use of the fog nozzle which douses fires quicker because it uses less water while covering a larger burning area. The demonstration was held on the Community Field.

Members of the fire company enrolled in the University of Maryland Fire Extension Service class were given their final test last night. All those passing the course will be honored at graduating ceremonies in the near future. Fifteen members of the local fire company were enrolled in the course.

Sportsmen Erect Series Of Dams In Trout Stream

Members of the Indian Look-out Conservation Club of Emmittsburg made their first attempt in the conserving of the water supply in one of Maryland's finest trout streams. They met last Sunday at Big Hunting Creek, near Thurmont, and constructed more than 25 dams along the stream, at the same time changing the course of the stream making it harder for the water to run off following heavy rains.

So successful was the project that another such effort will be made to build more dams on Sunday, Apr. 3. A spokesman for the organization said although a lot was accomplished by the small group of sportsmen last Sunday, there still remains plenty of man-hours to put the stream in first class condition, both as a habitat for trout and water conservation. Interested fishermen are invited to help on the project next Sunday.

Included in the group last Sunday were Harold M. Hoke, Guy R. McLaughlin, Irvin Tokar, Oldrich Tokar, J. William Rowe, Lamarr Green, Franklin Wastler, and Edward Stull.

Praising this band of sportsmen was Regional Game Warden Benjamin F. Phebus who wholeheartedly approved of the project.

Doughnuts and hot coffee were served the group, compliments of Green's Pastry Shop.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAY TONIGHT

Tonight (Friday), at 8 p. m., the annual all-school play, entitled "Finders Creepers," will be presented in the Emmittsburg High School auditorium. The play, a mystery-comedy in three acts, concerns Hercules Nelson and his bosom pal, Wilbur Maxwell, who are set for a big week-end with Hercules' Uncle Bob—but what the boys don't know is that Uncle Bob is a mortician. They decide to go back home, until they meet up with an old boy, named Jason Quigley, who is supposed to be dead, but instead walks around and reads the paper, for he isn't really dead. The boys set out to solve the mysterious case and things go from bad to worse.

The play is full of choice comedy parts, Frankie, who loves mystery thrillers; Daphne, the maid, and live-wire Granny, who with her cat, Mr. Quigley, keeps the place jumping.

Bill Would Permit Charity Expenditures

The delegates to the Maryland State Legislature representing Frederick County this week introduced a bill in the House of Delegates which would have the effect of legalizing certain appropriations which the County Commissioners include in the budget for a number of non-profit county organizations.

For years County Commissioners have made yearly appropriations to certain non-profit agencies which in recent years have included such organizations as the Frederick Chamber of Commerce, Frederick Hospital, Frederick County Historical Society, the YMCA and the Salvation Army.

The question was raised some time ago by Byron W. Thompson, attorney to the present board of commissioners, as to the authority of the commissioners to make such appropriations.

When no legal authority for the commissioners to make similar appropriations was found, it was suggested a bill be drawn up which would legalize the appropriations up to a total amount of $15,000 a year. It was explained the $15,000 figure was a ceiling and did not mean the total appropriations will always total that figure. They cannot exceed it.

HIGH WINDS DO DAMAGE HERE AND IN COUNTY

Winds that attained speeds up to 65-miles-an-hour Tuesday afternoon and evening dropped trees and tree limbs over power and telephone lines and roads, ripped off some barn and shed roofs, collapsed a few chimneys and damaged many television antennas in Emmittsburg and Frederick County.

The Monocacy River was receding after reaching flood stage in the lower county area. The Potomac River stood at 14 feet at Harpers Ferry Wednesday. Flood stage there is 18 feet.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. reported about 167 telephones were out of service overnight. Some poles were loosened by trees falling on the lines.

The power utility had one major line from Emmittsburg toward Thurmont knocked out for a time while other trouble was mainly to the lines leading into homes.

Creamery Road here was reported blocked for a time by three upturned large maple trees. Shingles were ripped off several houses here and the tin roof on a tenant house owned by J. F. Nester, east of town, was blown off.

Billboards were reported ripped up and destroyed along U. S. 15 north and south of town and along Route 32, east and west of Emmittsburg. Total rainfall at the Frederick Airport was 2.36 inches. The precipitation during the thunderstorm early Tuesday afternoon was recorded as .34 of an inch and it raised the March total for the county to 5.17 inches.

C. of C. Will Continue Sat'dy. Drawings

The regular Saturday drawings will continue as usual, it was decided Monday night at the regular meeting of the Emmittsburg Chamber of Commerce held in the Fire Hall, President Cloyd W. Seiss presiding.

Operation of the give-away was discussed at length and several methods of improving the setup were adopted. Henceforth, the tickets will be drawn by an individual selected at random from the crowd. Discussing arguments that had arisen from the waiting time clause in which the drawer waits a minute or two for the ticket holder to claim his award, the group said that from now on if the person didn't respond immediately, another ticket would be drawn. Another thing that has been changed, after considerable rehashing, is the eligibility of the signature on the ticket. The Chamber has announced that in the future those tickets will be honored to the person whose name appears on it, regardless of who purchased the ticket or wrote in the name. This is applicable to men, women and children. Whosever name appears on the ticket will receive the award and no questions will be asked.

It was agreed by the group to ask the six merchants who dropped out of the enterprise to reconsider this week and to rejoin. Several requests have been received from merchants who previously had participated in the drawings and dropped out, seeking readmission. A plan is to be worked out so they can rejoin.

Edward Houck announced that a P. A. system had been purchased and that it was now being assembled for use at the drawings and other affairs under the auspices of the Chamber.

A thank you note was received from the M. J. Kaas Sr. family in acknowledgment of a floral tribute sent during a death in the family.

J. Edward Houck spoke briefly on the current labor survey and reported that printed forms have been mailed out by the Potomac-Edison Co., which is cooperating in the survey, and that the project soon would be completed. Secretary C. A. Elder read several communications, some of which require an answer.

Treasurer John S. Hollinger reported a bank balance of $355.91. The $5 draw prize was won by Cloyd W. Seiss.

School Board Selection Method Remains Same

The Frederick County delegation to the Maryland General Assembly in Annapolis said this week that it will not introduce proposed legislation to change the method of selecting members for the Frederick County Board of Education.

The delegation explained that it was the biggest problem they had to face and the group agreed they could find no evidence of partisanship in the selection of the members of the board.

It was pointed out that several of the recent appointees to the board have been recommended by various Parent-Teacher Associations and that the party State Central Committees have welcomed recommendations from interested persons and groups.

The delegation took occasion to thank all those who joined in the discussion of the matter in recent months.

The elected versus appointed members to the school board issue was raised by the Frederick Junior Chamber of Commerce and was given wide-spread support in recent weeks. Some opposition to the proposal developed and the Pomona Grange wished continuance of the present appointive system in preference to an elective method.

Wind Damages Valuable House

High winds and rain struck with hurricane force in this area Tuesday and the Spring Valley Farm, Orndorff Road, Route 2, recently purchased by Mrs. Frances S. Stello, attorney and Reserve Air Force officer, completely removing the roof of the 152-year-old mansion house, and demolishing the main chimney down to the second floor level.

It was reported the main section of the roof was blown a distance of 250 feet from the house and the remaining part of the heavy oak timber scattered about the grounds. The house, which has been recently completely decorated inside, was extensively damaged by water.

Congressional Viewpoint

By SEN. JOHN M. BUTLER
YALTA—AND TRUTH

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21—For almost a decade, the secret negotiations at Yalta, between the United States, England, and Russia have been the subject of much dispute. This bartering, shrouded always in a cloak of secrecy through the years, has produced a sense of illusion and controversy which has increased in intensity of late. As the suspicion of inequitable and questionable agreements has been magnified, the wide demand for a clear comprehension of those decisions, affecting as they do the lives of millions of freedom-loving people, has likewise gained impetus.

The rightful public curiosity was satisfied last Wednesday when the U. S. version of the Yalta transactions was officially released by the Department of State. The circumstances and propriety of removing the veil of secrecy from these papers at this time are beyond the scope of this newsletter. But, the cumulative and qualitative results of the action will serve, with force, to shatter the historical fiction which has been noisily aired by the disciples of the New Deal and the Fair Deal within the past 10 years.

Last year, on May 7 to be exact, when appropriations to continue the publication of diplomatic documents were in balance, I wrote each member of the Senate Committee on Appropriations as follows:

"The systematic publication of these volumes is of vital and great historical, political and economic significance to the people of America, who in the interest of an enlightened citizenry are entitled to the undiluted facts pertaining to our diplomatic negotiations, correspondence and conversations through the years. . . . If our form of government 'of the people, by the people, and for the people' is to prevail, and our cherished freedoms and heritage preserved, these publications most assuredly should not be suppressed."

Notwithstanding any possible criticism and reverberations, these revelations prove conclusively that Russia, at the Yalta and presumably at other conferences, obtained important concessions which set the stage for the appeasement of more recent years. Unfortunately, these papers indicate that President Roosevelt might have been mesmerized by Stalin. Here then, the path of liberty and freedom was severely altered and in some instances completely destroyed—here then, Russia was conceived as a post-war power and world menace—here then were the notorious illusions of history—here then were the mistakes of diplomacy which must be circumvented in the future. I say that the people of America are entitled to the honest and unadulterated facts—truth, liberty and justice shall always prevail in this country.

NEWS ITEM: Atlantic, Iowa — Max Eastman, 29, died after an accident in which his sports car clipped another car and smashed into a bridge.

Three years ago, Eastman, a Des Moines ad writer, wrote a highway safety article "Ten Seconds to Live." Oddly, it told how Eastman himself was killed.

This was Eastman's article: "He pushed his sleeve back, held his wrist close to the lighted speedometer, squinted to read the time. A little after nine. Five, ten minutes after. Ought to be home in half an hour."

"10 seconds to live. He massaged his eyes trying to rub out some of the sand."

"9 seconds to live. He'd driven almost eight hours since lunch, and was beginning to feel it."

"8 seconds to live. Lousy driving in the rain. Light from your headlights seems to soak in."

"7 seconds to live. Probably need a new windshield wiper blade. Old one just spreads the water around. Get one tomorrow, or next time it rains."

"6 seconds to live. Somebody threw a cigarette out of an oncoming car. The red glow dissolved almost before it hit."

"5 seconds to live. He planted his heels on the floor-board, squirmed back in the seat, trying for comfort."

"4 seconds to live. At sixty miles an hour, a car covers eighty-eight feet of pavement every second. Four seconds, 352 feet."

"3 seconds to live. Somebody looked wrong, through the blurry windshield. A tentative dab at the brake stiffened into desperate pressure as he made out an old, unlighted, slow vehicle ahead."

"2 seconds to live. Panic moved in. Turn to the left. No car coming. Headlights too close. Can't make it. Turn to the right."

"1 second to live. Horror numbed everything into slow motion. He was floating right into the near corner of the car ahead. He opened his mouth to scream."

"No seconds to live."

Two Local Interest Bills Introduced By Congressman Hyde

Representative DeWitt S. Hyde (R. Md.), this week introduced two bills of more than passing interest. One of the measures seeks to compensate the city of Frederick for losses incurred 91 year ago.

During the War Between the States the city of Frederick was forced to buy its safety from the Confederate Army under Lt. Gen. Jubal Early. The Confederate forces demanded a cash payment to prevent the sack of the town and the destruction of Union supplies. The Maryland Congressman's bill would reimburse the city for the money paid to General Early.

Hyde's second measure would transfer ownership of a bridge from the Bureau of Public Roads to Allegany County. The Bailey Bridge at Cirrignonville was built in 1948 by the government and was loaned to the County at that time. Transfer of the bridge to the County would result in savings and settle questions of jurisdiction.

A Textbook's Transformation

One of the most encouraging educational events of this decade has just occurred. It is the publication of the 1955 Magruder's "American Government," widely used high school civics textbook. The reason this new edition is so important is the fact that in the 10 years during which the Magruder book has been the center of controversy, it has passed through an evolution of rewriting and transformation. And now the 1955 book gives high school civics teachers and students a text which openly and proudly proclaims the advantages of our American system.

The Magruder "American

Government" textbook of 10 years ago didn't. In 1946 many parents who read the book protested its orientation away from love of country and toward the ideas of world government, away from the private enterprise system and toward ever more government activity and control in the economic system. A number of school boards around the country banned the book. Some educators unfortunately accused the protesting parents of having "book burning" and "censorship" inclinations. This inflamed the controversy. Other educators read the book and agreed with the parents that changes should be made.

Publishers Fair-Minded

The publishers, Allyn and Bacon, Inc., were entirely receptive to constructive criticism. Their representatives visited high school principals and civics teachers in many sections of the nation, seeking suggestions for needed revisions. A representative from Allyn and Bacon's Dallas office last year came to the Harding College campus and spent several hours with Perry Mason, superintendent of our Harding Academy (high school).

Mason is a former captain of Army Intelligence. He told the publishers that he, like a great many other school administrators and teachers, had been distressed in recent years because of an inability to find social studies or civics textbooks which contained an underlying spirit of patriotism, a sound exposition of the American political and economic systems and their comparative advantages over certain other systems.

Changes Recommended
Perry Mason told the Allyn and Bacon official that Magruder's "American Government" in more recent years had been acceptable in his school although he felt it had serious defects and shortcomings. He said it was far less objectionable than most of the other civics books he had carefully examined. He made bold recommendations for revisions. Some of them now have been adopted in the 1955 edition.

The original Magruder "American Government" was published 58 years ago. Each year it has been revised to "bring it thoroughly up-to-date." The original author, Frank Abbott Magruder, was instructor in politics at Princeton University and later professor of political science at Oregon State College. He died shortly after the controversy erupted over the 1946 textbook. His collaborator, William A. McClenaghan, of Oregon State College, took over. Gradually over the 10 years, objectionable material has been weeded out as parents and school people here and there have continued to protest and to make constructive recommendations.

Patriotism Comes Forward

The truly encouraging change—in the spirit and feeling of the book—has come with the publication of the 1955 edition. The first thing the children and

SPORTS AFIELD
By Ted Kesting

What explains the great fascination the fly rod has for all who learn to use it reasonably well? For one thing, it gives the most sport, the most pleasure—it makes big fish out of little ones. Fly fishing lies between spinning and casting in the amount of skill it requires one to develop. And Jason Lucas, angling editor of Sports Afield magazine, says that fly casting has a far more smooth, pleasing rhythm than any other form of casting. Which brings us to a discussion of where it is effective and where it isn't.

TROUT—Fly fishing is the traditional method of taking trout in streams and small rivers. But very big trout, generally found in larger rivers, take flies rarely, and to be at all successful you must use lures with spinning or casting tackle. In a lake fly fishing for trout is usually of doubtful value, or useless.

NORTHERN BASS—On the average lake in the northern part of the country, taken the season through, the fly rod can't be called at all successful for bass. However, it may work fine in the early part of the season, and very early and late in the day until late midsummer; in fall it's poor indeed. In the usual northern smallmouth stream, most of the time fly-rod fishing is likely to hook as many good-sized fish as any other method.

Southern bass differ from northern bass in one respect: in the typical river or natural lakes of the deep South, bass are much more inclined to surface and shallow feeding. This makes fly-rod fishing for them successful a far greater percentage of the time.

BLUEGILLS—There is no other fish in the country for which fly fishing is so superior to other methods; it will invariably catch more bluegills than will live bait, and especially more of the larger ones.

WALLEYES—In some shallower rivers these can be taken successfully on a fly rod, with streamers or such. But usually fly-rod fishing for walleyes is very poor.

EASTERN PICKEREL—A long streamer (my preference is usually white) seems to take these very well. A shiny metal fly-rod lure is better, but disagreeable to cast.

PIKE and MUSKY—Smaller pike can be caught by the same methods used for pickerel. Larger pike and musky can be taken on fly rods—but it's a stunt.

CARP—Carp seldom take artificial bait of any kind. But when other fishing is dull, knead a wet teachers saw upon opening the 1946 Magruder's was an outline map of the world. The first thing they see upon opening the 1955 edition is the Great Seal of the United States and seals of departments of our government, with a sketch of our national capitol and the Washington Monument in the background.

The frontispiece in the 1946 Magruder's is a photograph of the UN conference at San Francisco. President Truman is speaking at the raised dais. At his left is Edward R. Stettinius, Secretary of State, and Alger Hiss, who helped shape the formation of the UN. The frontispiece of the 1955 Magruder's is a beautiful full-color photograph of our nation's capitol through a frame of cherry blossoms. These changes indicate a transformation. In next week's column we shall examine the changes that have been wrought inside the text of Magruder's "American Government."

NO COMMENT

By WALTER CHAMBLIN, JR.

WASHINGTON — Apparently the first major effort by the big union bosses under a consolidated CIO-AFL is to repeal the section of the Taft-Hartley Act which contains the authority for state right-to-work laws. The effort to accomplish this will show up in Congress between now and the start of the 1956 Presidential campaign.

Meanwhile, the big union bosses are concentrating at the state level on the 18 states which have such Constitutional provisions or statutes. AFL President George Meany denounces the right-to-work legislation as "aimed at the very heart of the labor movement." He contends that these right-to-work laws weaken labor unions and, for that reason, are aimed at the heart.

The real reason that Mr. Meany and other big union bosses do not like such laws is that they remove employees from the dictatorial control which can be exercised under a closed shop. Instead of striking at the heart of the labor movement, as Mr. Meany contends, such laws actually preserve the heart of the American way of life—which is that a person shall have the freedom of choice as to where he wishes to work and the conditions under which he works. This is denied by the closed shop.

TIDELANDS OIL REVENUES: The cries of "give-away" raised against Congressional passage 2 years ago of the Tidelands Oil Bill, to grant the states title to off-shore oil reserves, now have a hollow sound. The facts today show the whole transaction will be profitable to all concerned—especially the Federal government. The Federal government will profit to the extent of $6 billion and the states by $1 billion over years. But even more important state sovereignty has been preserved and strengthened.

Of all Interior Dept. receipts for fiscal 1956, $147 million of the $413 million total, or more than one-third, will come from oil receipts. The geological survey estimates that 87 per cent of the oil rests in Federal hands rather than in territory of the states. Furthermore, the Federal government gets one-sixth of oil produced as against the customary one-eighth.

SINGLE APPROPRIATION BILL: Senator Byrd (D.-Va.), and 45 other senators have introduced a bill to require Congress to consider all appropriations in one bill instead of in 13 separate bills as is now the practice. The Byrd group believes that this will better enable members of Congress and the public to see the whole spending picture more clearly.

The Byrd Bill further would permit Congress to limit expenditures from unspent funds left over from previous years. The importance of this provision may be seen from the fact that, as of the end of this fiscal year, June 30 next, it is estimated that funds unspent and funds authorized to be spent will amount to somewhere near $80 billion.

Senator Byrd initiated a move to bring about a single appropriations bill as far back as 1947. He has succeeded twice in getting the Senate to enact the bill, but the House has never done so. Byrd is hopeful that in this Congress he can get both to pass it.

ANTI-TRUST INVESTIGATION: The House has authorized its Judiciary Committee to conduct a "full and complete" investigation of the anti-trust laws, including the Sherman, Clayton, and the Federal Trade Commission Acts.

Chairman Celler of the committee is working closely with one of the directors of the old temporary National Economic Committee which in the late thirties investigated about every aspect of business that was possible.

Capitol Conservatives are fearful that the current investigation is likely to spread broad and wide and cover many phases of business. The House Judiciary Committee has been given the power to subpoena.

SOUTH AMERICA: The recent goodwill visit of Vice President Nixon is believed in Capitol circles to be the first of a number of moves to establish much closer cooperation within the Western Hemisphere. The Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Benson, has just made a whirlwind visit to Central America and other high officials are expected to visit there within the year. A number at the Capitol believe that all this is prompted by the uncertainties existing in Europe and in the Far East.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By Cong. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23—Some of the problems which confront our Western Maryland area are but part and parcel of larger problems which are national in scope. As we view the immediate results of a flood in one of the tributaries of the Potomac—be it Bear Creek or George's Creek or some other stream—we are inclined to look at the destruction and its causes as local.

Flood waters do not respect county, state or congressional district boundaries. We can, and have done, something for the communities needing immediate relief. But to do something that will prevent future disruption to our community life, we must work on a broader scale and seek long-range solutions. To achieve this we must enlist the aid of those who live in neighboring states—in this case, all who live in the Potomac watershed—and their representatives in Congress.

I am happy to report that we are making some progress along these lines. The Federal and state agencies concerned with the complexities of flood control are giving up their active cooperation.

Long-range and effective programs for flood control in our area depend on favorable congressional action in providing the necessary funds. The Congress has passed several resolutions providing for such surveys but has not appropriated the necessary funds. I am now actively at work on means and ways of obtaining the necessary sums.

A twin to the flood control problem is the task of cleaning up the Potomac River itself. Here again, is a local matter with broad territorial ramifications. I shall be among those who appear before the House Public Works Committee during the study of the Water Pollution Control bill.

Another matter that is of vital local interest, but is also national in scope, is the pressing problem of providing additional classrooms for our overcrowded schools. It was my good fortune to call the House Education and Labor Committee's attention to the loss of funds to Montgomery County through an administrative interpretation of the "Federal impact" law.

The House of Representatives has approved an appropriation of funds to finance a regional mass transportation survey of Washington and its environs. Before the bill reaches the President for his signature I am certain that it will contain a requirement that a report on a one-body regulatory commission for Washington and the Metropolitan area must be submitted to the President by Jan. 4, 1956. This section of the report on the survey must precede the completion of the whole study.

100,000 Trout To Be Stocked Statewide

The Game and Inland Fish Commission announces that it has 100,000 adult brook, brown, and rainbow trout over seven inches for stocking the streams of Maryland. Five hundred thousand fingerling trout are busting the seams of the trout hatcheries—one of the best hatches of young trout in years, according to Albert M. Powell, hatchery superintendent at Lewistown.

"Approximately 125 miles of trout streams will be stocked this season," says Ernest A. Vaughn, director. "Sixty-one trout streams will be stocked during April, May and June. Trout were moving into the Savage River Basin on Mar.

15. One third of the total of the fish will be stocked in streams during the first 14 days of April prior to the opening on Friday, Apr. 15."

All fish that are stocked in Hunting Creek will have the anal fin clipped to determine the carry-over fishing pressure and other factors which will provide some clues for better trout management in Maryland.

The season for brook, trout and rainbow trout will open at 5:30 a. m. (EST). All persons 14 years old or over require Maryland angler's licenses costing $1.50 for residents and a fee of $10 for non-residents. The trout season runs until 8 p. m. Sept. 15.

The size limit on all three species of fresh water trout is seven inches, and the daily limit is five. Several streams are limited to fly fishing only; these are big Hunting Creek, Jones Falls in Baltimore County; Cherry Creek in Garrett County, and that part of the Savage River from Merrill Bridge to the mouth of Poplar Lick. Metal spinners, not spinning outfits, are prohibited on these streams.

The streams to be stocked in Frederick County are Middle Creek, Big Hunting Creek, Little Hunting Creek, Fishing Creek, and Friends Creek.

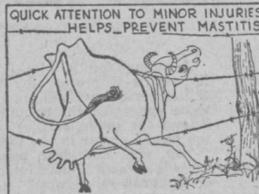

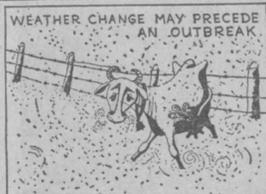

ESTATE ESTIMATED

The inventories in the estate of the late Miss Alice Louise Taney, filed in Frederick, show an estimated valuation of $47,864.73. They include stocks and bonds, $29,858.26; personal property, $2,185.65; cash in bank, $3,175.82; real estate, $12,650.

The condition of Mrs. Ethel I. Gladhill, 39, Greenstone, continues critical at the Waynesboro Hospital. She was injured last Saturday night in an auto accident at Fountaindale.

King George VI died Feb. 6, 1952.

Millions For Mastitis

The nation's dairy farmers are being robbed of 200 million dollars this year. The thief is a stubborn, puzzling disease called bovine mastitis. An inflammation of the udder, mastitis is commonly caused by the same type of germ responsible for "strep" throat in humans. The disease is usually classified as either acute or chronic. In acute mastitis, the animal will run a high temperature, lose her appetite and may stop giving milk. Chronic mastitis is hard to diagnose and may flare up at intervals. It is frequently spread in secret to other herd animals.

Some bruise or damage to the udder generally precedes an outbreak, although sudden change in weather or feed may also play a part. If allowed to go unchecked, mastitis may be fatal or it may do permanent damage to the udder, leaving scar tissue in place of productive milk tissue.

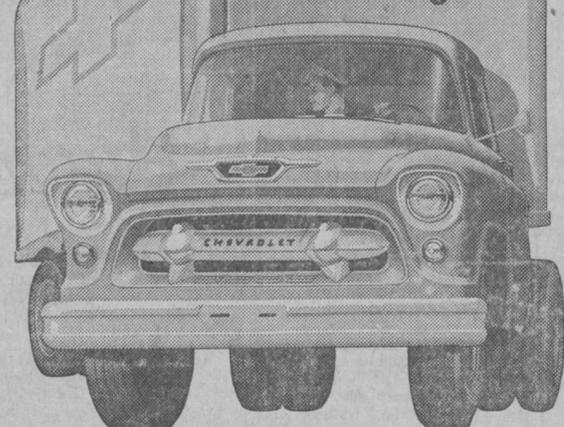

Careful sanitary practices and good farm management reduce the chances of an outbreak. Dairy cattle, if kept well bedded and out of dampness and drafts, are less apt to contract the infection. Immediate attention to minor injuries also serves to prevent mastitis.

Antibiotic Hits Infection

Terramycin, if administered in time, generally destroys the infection and leaves the infected quarter undamaged. The antibiotic is suspended in a water base and packaged for easy udder infusion. Although antibiotics have been prepared in oil or jelly base materials, recent experiments by scientists at the Pfizer Experimental Farm in Terre Haute, Indiana, proved that water infusions yielded the best results. Terramycin, in many cases, cleared up mastitis infections within 12 to 24 hours. The scientists found that it could be milked out sooner than an oil or jelly base antibiotic, returning the cow to perfect health and normal production.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Mar. 24—While following the Fulbright Committee I wonder why it confines its investigations to the stock market.

The real bull market of the past two years has been in housing. In 1929 the public could buy stocks on a 10 per cent margin; but to buy a house required a 30 per cent margin. Now the reverse is true. The public must put up a 60 per cent margin. Now the reverse is true. The public must pay up a 60 per cent margin to buy stocks; but can buy a house on a five per cent margin, or less.

Furthermore, while the government is discouraging investment in American industries, it is offering all kinds of inducements to get people to borrow in order to buy houses. The program does not make sense. It smells badly of cheap politics. As a result, the next financial panic will be a housing collapse—not a stock market collapse. With it there will be uncovered scandals, corruption, and untold losses; while Wall Street will come through with a clean slate.

100 Per Cent Margins Crazy

I feel that the suggestion of Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard College for 100 per cent margins indicates ignorance of business customs and ethics. Today probably 85 per cent of all those employed in industry are working for companies whose securities must be sold through the New York Stock Exchange. This means that, to issue new stock to carry out extension or improvement programs, purchasers of these stocks must be able to borrow thereon both from Stock Exchange firms and from banks.

Requiring a 100 per cent margin in case of war, when materials and manpower must be saved, is a wise procedure. To do so in times of peace, and when the country is facing unemployment, is foolhardy. Unless we are to get into a critical shooting war with China, there is no need for 100 per cent margins. We already have top-heavy stockpiles of both materials and foods. Therefore, I suggest that people again be encouraged to "Buy American Industry" in order to help employment and hold up prosperity.

Looking Into The Future

Let us assume there is enough "steam in the boiler" to extend prosperity throughout 1956 and safely re-elect Eisenhower if he chooses to run again. But do not forget that there will be a day of reckoning sometime. Notwithstanding the Administration's success in "nipping in the bud" the 1955 decline, it is very skeptical of any large-scale attempts to hold employment and prices up artificially. Certainly Roosevelt tried everything from "revaluing the dollar" to "raking leaves," and none of those medicines worked.

Only World War II turned the scales and brought back full employment with price recoveries. Perhaps even World War III would not accomplish this again, with fixed prices, heavy taxes on profits, and other controls. Perhaps the Russians would rather avoid war and throw us into a depression. No one knows. It is, however, certain that some day if we all "go through the wringer," there could be a bad mess for a while. I hope the Fulbright Committee will discuss some constructive phase of the business and employment outlook in its final report. Both Senator Fulbright and his much-advertised investigation will soon be forgotten, as far as the stock market is concerned. Smells Of Politics

The entire investigation has smelled of politics from the first. Both parties are surprised at the action of the stock market. The Republicans are blaming it all on the Democrats, claiming that it shows what would happen to business if the Democrats were in control.

The Democrats claim that the Republicans have been pushing the market down in order to bring an end to the investigation. I understand that other prominent Democrats blame the market slump on Dulles' speech, which suggested an ultimatum to China. This does not seem reasonable to me in view of the action of the airplane stocks and the rails, which should prosper from further China troubles. My advice to readers is: (1) don't sell in a panicky market; (2) don't buy more now, at present high prices; (3) work harder at your own regular business and trust President Eisenhower to run the United States.

LIVE AND LIKE IT

We're going to live, most of us, to a ripe old age. Science is steadily pushing the limits of life beyond the traditional three score years and 10. Octogenarians are everywhere. It's no longer a front page story when someone reaches the century mark.

It's time we started to think in terms of a life span between 80 and 100 years. You may say you don't want to live like Shakespeare's description of old age, "Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, everything." You don't have to. Modern science can supply most of these lacks. But so far, it hasn't found a medicine which will make us young again. The great victories that science has won over death make it increasingly necessary that we face the facts of age.

In grandmother's day, tuberculosis was considered primarily a disease of young people. Today, an increasing number of cases is being discovered among older people. Modern drugs and surgery can prevent death from TB for many of these people, but they must live with the disease, and it is not a carefree life. The medical and social scientists are helping people to learn to rebuild happy, useful lives despite such disabilities as TB. The normal physical results of aging may also yield in time to science, but so far there are limitations that we must accept.

Accept. That is the key word. First, we must accept the fact that we will be old and that it isn't at all like being young. Then, we can prepare to make the most of it and enjoy it. Old age need not be a time of illness and misery. It is foolish for an elderly person to take it for granted that he must have aches and pains when the doctor can prevent and relieve many of them. Diet is important. Activity both mental and physical, is important.

For centuries, philosophers have bewailed the fact that most human beings live just long enough to learn how to live, but not long enough to use their wisdom. Science is now beginning to give us our chance. Let's live and like it.

Use of boars infected with brucellosis often results in premature litters or smaller litters, and occasionally this disease will make the boars completely sterile.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

In considering legislation it is traditional for Marylanders to oppose any infringement on States' Rights.

Consequently, I introduced a bill last week which would amend the Natural Gas Act of 1938 to the effect that the sale of natural gas by independent Maryland producers will be exempt from the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

In my opinion, the State Public Utilities Commission is quite capable of regulating our natural resources and I see no need for dual regulation.

The bill would also provide: (1) Protection for the ultimate consumer of natural gas from unreasonable costs. The law of supply and demand is sufficient to regulate the price of natural gas.

(2) That the recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Energy Supplies and Resources Policy, established by President Eisenhower last year, be carried out. This committee, generally known as the President's Fuel Policy Committee, made public its findings on Feb. 27.

Included in the report was a recommendation that "The Federal government should not control the production, gathering, processing or sale of natural gas prior to its entry into an interstate transmission line."

This, I am sure, was the original intent of the Natural Gas Act of 1938 which states that "the provisions of this Act, shall not apply . . . to the production or gathering of natural gas."

The adoption of my proposed amendment will remove any doubt as to this intent. It will make certain that the Natural Gas Act is administered in the manner that was intended at the time it was enacted.

And it will uphold the Maryland tradition of managing its own affairs.

Protection against distemper may be transferred to a puppy through the mother's colostrum milk. This is called maternal immunity and may last up to six weeks. Puppies then should be immunized and for the method best adapted to the conditions the owner should consult his veterinarian.

Many livestock diseases can be spread through community sales if very rigid precautions are not taken.

INCOME TAX FACTS No. 5

Tax Eased on Dividends and Retirement Income

(This is one of a series of articles on income tax changes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants and the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants.)

A retired couple may now receive an income of $5,730 without paying any federal income tax whatsoever, if at least $1,325 of their income is from dividends. This is the way it works under the new tax law (omitting cents):

- Subtract dividends they are allowed to exclude ($50 each): $100.
- Reduce the remaining $5,630 by the standard deduction of 10%: $563.
- Subtract their exemptions ($1,200 each, if they are both over 65): $2,400.
- Taxable income: $2,667.
- Tax at 20% (income splitting of joint return keeps them in lowest bracket): $533.
- Subtract dividend credit, limit being 2% of $2,667: $53.
- Remaining tax: $480.
- Subtract retirement income credit at 20% of taxable income up to $1,200. Assuming both husband and wife are eligible total credit would be 20% of $2,400 ($480).
- Result: no tax.

Dividend Exclusion and Credit
There are good many "ifs" and "buts" involved in the above illustration. Consider first the matter of dividends.

All taxpayers (regardless of age or retired status) are entitled under the new law to exclude from their incomes the first $50 of dividends received in 1954. Husband and wife can each exclude up to $50 if they both own stock. A credit of 4% of dividends beyond this amount received after July 31, 1954, may be subtracted from the tax that would otherwise be due.

The 4% dividend credit is limited to 2% of your taxable income for the calendar year 1954 (and fiscal years ending before 1955), but will go to 4% of taxable income for future years.

The dividends referred to do not include so-called dividends from mutual savings institutions and domestic building and loan associations or dividends from tax-exempt cooperatives, certain insurance companies and foreign corporations.

Retirement Income Credit

The computation of retirement income credit is rather complicated. You are eligible if:

1. You earned more than $600 a year in any ten calendar years, or your deceased husband or wife did.
2. You are at least 65 or have retired under a public retirement system other than for the U. S. armed forces.

Your credit is 20% of your taxable income from any public retirement system (other than armed forces pensions)—and, if you are 65 or older 20% of your other pensions, annuities, interest, dividends and rent.

This credit is limited to 20% of $1,200; reduced by any social security benefits, railroad retirement benefits, and (for anyone under 75) any earned income, such as wages, salaries and professional fees, above $900.

The credit cannot be any more than the amount of your tax otherwise payable; that is, it cannot in itself produce a refund.

Taxing of Annuities

There is also a new method of taxing annuities which may result in a higher tax for some, lower for others. It is based on tables of life expectancy furnished by the Internal Revenue Service. Each year, if you qualify for this method, you may receive tax-free an amount equal to the cost of the annuity divided by the number of years of life expectancy at the time you began receiving payments from the annuity.

Additional Information
Be sure to read the official instructions. You can also get help from the Internal Revenue Service, which urges you to consult only qualified advisers.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Wool growers will be permitted to assign payments due them under the National Wool Act of 1955 program as collateral for loans or advances under certain conditions, according to George B. Reeves, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

He says that under provisions recently announced by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, assignments will be permitted to financing or marketing agencies which make loans or advances on sheep, lambs or wool. The funds cannot be used to pay balances remaining from advances made on wool in previous years' operations. Those receiving an assignment from a grower as collateral must make a full and specific accounting to the grower and remit the balance due him within 60 days after receipt of the wool payment draft. The grower will be permitted to make only one assignment of his wool payment and the assignment must be filed with the ASC county office.

Mr. Reeves points out that under the program payments to individual growers will not make up the difference between the price he received for his wool and the incentive price, but will be based at one percentage rate for the entire marketing year and for the country as a whole. This means that it will still be to the interest of the marketing agency to handle its sales over the year so as to get the best price possible.

McSherry Is County Bond Chairman

The appointment of Mr. James McSherry as chairman of the U. S. Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury Dept. for Frederick County has just been announced by Mr. John A. Luetkemeyer, chairman of the advisory committee for the State of Maryland.

Mr. McSherry, a Frederick lawyer, received his bachelor of arts degree from Georgetown College in 1942 and his law degree from the University of Maryland School of Law in 1949. However, he was admitted to the Maryland Bar in 1948.

Sweet Corn Production High

Maryland farmers last year produced more than $1.8 million worth of sweet corn.

Chairman Reeves also emphasizes that it will be up to the individual grower whether he wishes to make an assignment of his payment.

He says full information on assignment and the required forms and regulations should be in county ASC offices by Apr. 1, when the 1955 marketing year begins.

That was the vane of the approximately 80 thousand tons of corn grown in the state during the year for sale on the fresh market and to canners and freezers, explained L. M. Goodwin, Maryland representative of the American Can Co. He added that about 74,000 tons were sold to processors while 5.5 thousand tons were disposed of on the fresh market.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Finally Talked Herself Out

A certain talkative young lady almost spent a night locked in "Doc" White's drugstore. She entered Doc's store about 11 P.M., going directly to the pay phone. At eleven-thirty Doc went home—not having seen a customer for a half hour. Around midnight he got a call from the store... she had finally run out of conversation (and money) and found the front door locked tight. Doc vowed he'd leave her there to teach her a lesson. But Mrs. W. spoke up: "Now you go turn her loose. It's hard to cut a good conversation short—something only a woman understands!" From where I sit, however, plenty of men are as hard to pry away from a telephone as any female. Some people are just naturally long-winded, while others are the silent type—just as some of us like coffee and others prefer a glass of beer. The important thing is to be considerate... before friends start giving us the "busy signal."

For the first time since it was the initial stakes run at Pimlico back in 1870, the famous Dixie Handicap will be contested over a turf course. This move was decided upon by the Maryland Jockey Club following the great increase in the popularity of grass racing.

Dixie purse and, as usual, three year olds and up will contest for the victor's share. However, the distance of the historic spring stakes at the Baltimore track has been increased to one mile and three-eighths, a quarter of a mile longer than the 1954 renewal. The Dixie will be run on May 21, the second Saturday of the 18-day Pimlico spring meeting. A handsome silver trophy will be awarded to the owner of the winner.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

Congress now faces fact it is bad business to rob Peter to pay Paul. However, situation has been that of robbing American children to pay foreign monopolies under guise of foreign aid.

Administration's public school aid proposal points up debate. One of Republic's strong cornerstones is system of free public schools, traditionally responsibility of local communities.

However, due to fact Federal government has taken over revenue sources needed for local government and schools to throw away around world, American school system is in dire need.

Authorities claim today a million children cannot attend school for full day due to lack of facilities. Other estimates claim a $10 to $12 billion school building program is needed if American children are to receive their birthright "one worlders" sold for a mess of pottage.

Local communities cannot tax any more for schools. Yet idle school age children are breeding ground for future misfits. And obviously communistic doctrines find strongest support among misfits.

By refusing to vote new billions asked for foreign aid, plus freezing additional foreign aid billions voted but not yet spent, Congress could solve school problem. These billions could be returned to states on a pro-rata basis for school needs.

But instead, it is asked of Congress to set up plan which may or may not solve problem, but will do much to help investment bankers.

A sum of $7 billion is sought. The plan is for Federal government to guarantee local communities credit, and even make direct loans when a school district cannot get money at a reasonable rate of interest. The reasonable rate of interest is considered not over 3 1/2%.

Thus, a pitiful situation involving nation's children is being used to promote further indebtedness, further enrichment of huge investment interests.

Already tax payers are paying $6 billion per year interest on federal debt. Three per cent interest on $7 billion for schools, plus 3% on another great domestic plan, financing of $50 billion in highways, would bring yearly interest charge up to $7,710,000,000 year, or $48 for every man, woman and child in nation.

This appears strange financial reasoning to a government which talks about "pay as you go"; which enforces this doctrine in collection of income taxes.

Yet amount of money thrown away on foreign aid would have taken care of nation's school and highway needs.

Some say fact does not yet seem to have dawned on Washington that money does not grow on trees.

Many feel because of emotional element involved, school aid program will be passed by House. But in Senate, where head of the finance committee, Sen. Harry Byrd, (D. Va.) has already stated solution to American financial problem is to eliminate all foreign aid, it is quite possible that a different method will be taken.

Issue appears to boil down to fact that America cannot afford both foreign aid and education for American children. One or the other will have to go.

And be ye kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—(Ephesians 4, 32.)

When we stop to think that God forgives us of our sins not once but many times, that He loves us despite our unworthiness, how is it possible that we can keep unkindness, hatred and resentment in our hearts?

Race Horse Sale Is Successful

Harness horsemen from all sections of the east and many from mid-western states attended the first Maryland Standardbred Horse Sale Monday at the Frederick Fairgrounds.

Joseph H. Eyer, Thurmont, sponsor of the sale, withdrew his L. T. Eden after the proven performer drew the highest bid of the day—a $6000 offer.

His Kirk's Queen brought the top price of the day, $5502. His Sir Darnley attracted the next highest bid, $4800.

Eyer had been offered $10,000 at private terms for L. T. Eden so he declined the $6000 bid Monday.

The 71 head, including weanlings and two-year-olds, brought $38,975. Harness and tack bought good prices, running the total for the sale over $45,000.

Many of the pacers and trotting prospects offered had not been in the races. They brought from $140 and $475 a head.

The sale, which offered an opportunity to many owners to sell excess stock as the harness season opening nears, lured many outstanding owners, trainers, and drivers of the harness horse world.

John W. Null, Frederick, who auctioned the animals with Charles Roop, New Windsor and M. J. Dance of Towson, said the barn was packed all day despite the unfavorable weather.

Paul Z. Martin and Jake Mersky, Pennsylvania horsemen, worked in the ring, taking bids and handling registry papers.

Eyer, who seemed pleased with the results of the first spring sale, said he plans to make the auction an annual event about this time. The eastern harness season opens next week and continues into next November, when most of the standardbred sales are held.

Saturday Driving Extra Dangerous

The deadliest day of the week—Saturday—is still facing Marylanders engaged in the current seven-day campaign to eliminate as many fatalities as possible from the highways, safety officials noted this week.

The safety reminder was issued by James H. Gorges, chairman of the State-wide drive for deathless days, who cited State Police statistics to back up a claim that this week-end will offer the greatest test to the efforts.

"According to last year's records," said Mr. Gorges, "the number of persons killed in Saturday traffic accidents was about 40 per cent higher than the number of deaths on the second bloodiest day of the week, which was Sunday."

"An idea of the need for special care on week-ends can be gained also from a comparison of the 112 Saturday fatalities during 1953 with the 48 highway deaths on Wednesday."

"Faced with such statistics, we see that we must double and redouble our efforts to make this campaign end with a minimum death record."

The safety campaign, which started Sunday, is being sponsored by the Maryland Assn. of Insurance Agents, in co-operation with the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission and the State Police.

Mr. Gorges, who is in charge of the insurance men's safety division, said:

"The success of our drive depends, of course, on the number of lives saved.

"Obviously, we cannot show such results statistically, but we will feel that our work has been rewarded amply if the week ends with a single life spared."

New Chevrolet Trucks On Display

Chevrolet introduces a fresh approach to the design of commercial cars and trucks in a completely new line of 1955 models that will be unveiled at dealer showrooms today (Friday).

The vehicles climax a two-year development program. To produce highway carriers that would answer more closely the specialized demands of modern traffic conditions, company engineers talked to hundreds of farmers, merchants, manufacturers, cross-country transporters and the most important man in the trucking industry—the driver.

Recommendations from these sources were assembled and analyzed in Detroit. They played a dominant part in eventual design. As a result, Chevrolet states its 1955 "Task Force Trucks" have advanced more impressively in efficiency and performance than any previous models. And for the first time, says the company, "trucks combine a striking appearance with genuine utility."

The presentation at dealer showrooms will consist of representatives of 75 models on 15 wheelbases in the light, medium and heavy-duty field. This is an increase of four wheelbases over 1954 models, which contributed
