The record of the local baseball team this year undoubtedly will go down on record as perhaps the worst in history. Never, can I recall, did a local baseball team compile a record such as this one, to date. We don't blame those players who have the courage to face defeat time and again, as they have been doing thus far. It takes a lot of stamina to be able to take such lacerations Sunday after Sunday, and I want to congratulate the present team for sticking it out under such adverse conditions. I have seen better teams split up in disgust before the season ended, even though they had compiled a better record than this year's aggregation. My advice to the boys is to stick it out and sooner or later they will mold a starting lineup that will be able to put on a creditable performance. Really, it is sad to see Emmitsburg's plight . . . always a baseball town, too, one of the best in the county. We have suffered a dearth of playing material the past five years and replacements were not forthcoming. The local team is doing its best to keep the game alive here and deserves our support, win or lose. In a few short years we'll have material—plenty of it, from the Little League, I can assure you. In the meantime, stick it out boys.

Imagine, enough people were killed in automobiles over the long weekend to more than fill any one graveyard we have here in Emmitsburg! I've never actually counted the number of graves in local cemeteries, but over 400 lost their lives in traffic mishaps over the Fourth weekend—a new record high in traffic fatalities! Every newspaper, radio and television station in the country cautioned motorists days and even weeks in advance to be careful, that their lives and those of their families were at stake and yet they climbed behind the wheel and proceeded to go hell-bent-for-election to all parts of the country, like stampeded cattle pouring over an abyss into oblivion. They were cautioned to start the trip a little early, and many did, I'll give them credit for it. But on the return trip a great number waited until the last minute to leave and then poured on the gas to make up for lost time. I'll venture to say that the worst and most dangerous day of all was on Tuesday, when a great number of last-minute drivers took to the road in an effort to get home and be on time for work Wednesday morning—many did not make it!

As a personal observer, I witnessed more speeding and reckless drivers Tuesday than any of the four other days of vacationing. I don't have any statistics available, but I'll bet my bottom dollar that most of the fatalities occurred during the tail-end of the holidays when everyone was in a heck of a hurry to get home, and a lot less to offer than we have taken many foolish chances . . . and lost!

Commissioners To Appoint Zoning Group

Sixty persons representing all sections of Frederick County voted unanimously Tuesday night in favor of the establishment of a planning and zoning commission in the county and advised the Board of County Commissioners to appoint a five-man board as soon as possible.

The vote came after the 14-member study committee appointed by the County Commissioners, presented its formal report at a public hearing held in the newly decorated and air conditioned Circuit Court room in the Court House.

The report of the study group was read by its secretary, Daniel E. Wight. It was short and to the point: "The study committee recommends to the county zoning commission that it urge the County Commissioners to: (1) appoint a Planning Commission and at the proper time, the necessary boards of appeal; (2) that the Planning Commission be instructed to proceed cautiously and to present initially a simple, modest plan which can be expanded as the situation demands; (3) that the Commission be instructed to keep the public constantly advised of its progress and to hold frequent public hearings, before making recommendations to the County Commissioners."

This report was adopted unanimously by those present. Preceding the reading of the report, Byron W. Thompson, county attorney, explained the legislative enabling act by which the commissioners are permitted to establish such a commission. It provides that the commission shall be made up of five members, one of whom shall be a member of the board of county commissioners, that their terms be staggered; that the commission be unpaid (except for expenses); and that its chairman be selected by its membership. It would be entitled to secretarial assistance from the county, he explained.

The group also voted unanimously that the County Commissioners spend the necessary funds to get competent technical advice for the commission and that the board make provision for this in the 1956 budget.

It was emphasized that zoning and planning will not change the present use of existing structures or properties. All agreed that setbacks for future building must be established—and that these need not necessarily be uniform all over the county—different communities have entirely different needs, and that safety and future community needs must be considered.

The meeting was conducted by the chairman of the special study committee, Noah E. Kefauver, Jr., of Middletown. At the conclusion, Delbert S. Null, president of the county commissioners, thanked the committee, which consisted of 11 men and three women, for their work on the report and dismissed them, assuring them that he and the other commissioners, Mehrl H. Ramsburg and Edward F. Holter, would shortly appoint the Zoning and Planning Commission, as advised by them.

Frank S. Topper represented Emmitsburg on the study commission.

Benefits By New Social Security Changes

INCREASED BENEFITS—Harry C. Gilbert, right, signs papers which will increase his social security benefits under recently passed legislation. Mr. Gilbert is one of the first in the Frederick area to receive the added coverage. Eddie Rainey Young, Social Security Administration representative here, looks on at left.

Harry C. Gilbert, 1200 N. Market St., Frederick, has benefited from a change in social security provisions affecting disabled workers.

As a result of the new provisions, Mr. Gilbert and his wife will receive an increase of about $100 monthly in the social security benefits they are receiving. Mr. Gilbert, a former employee of the Miller and Cave Barber Shop, was disabled in 1949, two years before his 65th birthday. That period reduced his average earnings and resulted in a lower benefit than he would have received had he been able to work until his 65th birthday.

In 1954 Congress changed the social security law to make it possible for the benefit to be figured, to exclude the period of disability in arriving at the benefit amount. This increased payment will be effective in July 1955.

Mr. Gilbert is one of many disabled people 65 and over in Frederick County who may benefit from this provision of the social security law, according to Mr. Young. He consented to release of this otherwise restricted information in hope that some other disabled persons may be benefited.

Disabled workers, regardless of age, may take advantage of this provision if they are permanently disabled before age 65, if they have worked in employment covered by social security five out of 10 years before they were disabled and one and one-half years out of the three years, before they were disabled, and if they apply for a disability determination.

Mr. Young pointed out that his office is ready to advise all disabled workers or members of their families on how this change in the law applies to them, and to assist them in completing the necessary forms.

Mr. Young emphasized that social security benefits cannot be made to the disabled worker until he is 65, and that the major purpose of the provision is to "freeze" the social security account so that payments at age 65 or death will not be reduced or lost because of extended disability.

A representative from the Hagerstown office may be contacted at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home, Emmitsburg, at 1:30 p. m. and at the Thurmont Bank, Thurmont, at 10:30 a. m., the last Monday of each month.

CARDS LEAD IN LITTLE LEAGUE STANDINGS

The season's biggest crowd turned out at Community Field on Independence Day to watch the Little Leaguers play a doubleheader in their new uniforms.

In the opening game, Manager Jim McKeon's Redsox hopped off to a two-run lead in the first inning, added another in the third, four in the fourth and one in the sixth to easily trim the Yankees, 8-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Don Sweeney who struck out nine Yanks to run his season's total to 24 in three games.

Catcher Jack White had a perfect day at the plate with four singles.

In the second game, called because of darkness at the end of the fourth, the Cards held on to first place in the league standings by walloping the Giants 8-2. Bill Topper won his third game and chalked up 10 strikeouts to run his total to 37. He has allowed only three runs in the three contests. Topper also hit a homer over the centerfield fence, his second of the season. Kenny Baker and Pat Zimmerman each had two hits for the winners.

Two Colleges Donate Generously To Hospital Fund

A $1,000 contribution, half in cash and the balance in the form of a pledge, from Mount Saint Mary's College, highlighted the close of the month subscriptions to the Warner Hospital building fund. The total is now $211,472. The Mount St. Mary's subscription equals the $1,000 contribution made by the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph College.

Hospital authorities continue to be confident the $250,000 goal will be reached and point to the steady daily growth of the fund as evidence that the much-needed new annex will not be delayed due to the lack of required funds. "The support given this campaign by the colleges in Emmitsburg is gratifying and most encouraging. This also is true of the community. The interest and cooperation that has come from Emmitsburg has been a source of real inspiration," Richard W. Livingston, president of the hospital board said this week, in announcing the college contributions.

First secretary of the U. S. Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, was the father of our financial system.

Council Appoints Town Attorney

The installation of a new sewer line on Federal Ave., which would take care of about four homes, was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Burgess and Commissioners held Monday evening in the Fire Hall. Chairman of the Board of Commissioners Wales E. Rightour presiding with a full board present.

The laying of the sewer lines was taken up recently, and the board still is seeking to determine actual costs of laying the line.

Town Clerk Louise Sebald presented the reports of the secretary, tax collector, and treasurer, all of which were approved as read.

Under present plans the Board plans to appoint Col. Thomas J. Frailey as its legal counsellor. He will occupy this position in an honorary capacity and will handle all legal matters of the board.

Police Chief Daniel J. Kaas' monthly report to the board showed 11 traffic cases handed during the month, amounting to $145.95 in fines. Parking meter revenue for June amounted to $254. In addition, there was $25 in overtime parking fines and $13 in local traffic fines, making a total of $292. Five traffic cases have been held over until sometime this month. Twenty-five warning tickets were given out by the Police Dept. during the month.

Mayor Thornton W. Rogers announced that chemicals, designed especially for reducing sewerage odors at the town disposal plant, had been ordered and are expected momentarily.

The Board was in receipt of a letter from Little League officials asking for financial assistance to continue activities. It was decided to make a $100 appropriation. A large hole in the roadway near the Richard Rosensteel property on N. Seton Ave. was ordered repaired by town workmen.

Council discussed the removal of conflicting signs at the north and south approaches to the Square. These signs state there is no stopping or parking at any time, yet motorists are compelled to stop for the traffic light, thus causing useless confusion. Street Commissioner Charles R. Fuss reported he had contacted the State Roads Commission relative to the erection of 35-mile-an-hour signs at the four approaches to town, and that the matter was taken under advisement.

NEWSPAPERS TOP THE LIST

Alfred G. Peterson, who is president of the National Savings and Loan League, has this to say about advertising: "I feel that advertising is a very profitable investment. But we should not buy advertising blindly. We should give careful consideration both to the appeals and the media we use."

"The medium which tops the list is the medium that reaches the greatest number of people at the lowest cost. It is my opinion the newspaper is that medium! I place the newspaper at the top of the list because it reaches the local market. All of us are really conducting local businesses. We may be bound together into a national industry, but our spheres of influence are entirely local."

"The newspaper reaches precisely the people we want to reach."

Everyone has heard the old saying that the meat packers "save all of the pig but the squeal." That's just about literally true. All manner of non-edible by-products are processed and sold. The revenue they bring to the packers helps give producers a better price for their livestock, and consumers a lower price for their meat.

Any change in the by-product market situation, as a result, is an important matter. That has happened in the case of hides. Over recent years their value has sharply declined—and this has had a tremendous effect on the price packers could afford to pay for steers.

A spokesman for a packing company described what has happened. In 1910 the price of steer hides amounted to about 13½ per cent of the live cost of the steer. In 1954, the hide's value was down to about three per cent of the live cost. In addition, the handling costs have gone up—labor and salt have expanded without a corresponding increase in domestic demand for leather, and this too, has resulted in downward pressure on prices. The only bright spot has been an increase in the sale of hides abroad.

The spokesman then urged a three-way approach to the problem. First, is research in all phases of the hide and leather industry, directed toward improving the quality of the product and finding new uses for it. Second, is increased advertising and promotion to acquaint consumers with the superior value of leather for many uses. Third, is to modernize the methods of handling hides. This, it is hoped, would materially change the picture for the better.

JOB FOR THE STATES

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States finds that "states and local communities can better provide for their school needs than the Federal Government can."

The reason for that is that the Federal Government has a back-breaking debt and is running in the red, while most of the states are well in the black. As of a comparatively recent date, the 48 states had $15,250,000,000 in cash and security holdings against less than $8,000,000,000 of outstanding debt.

It's high time that Federal hand-outs to the states for schools or any other purpose were reduced—not increased! And it's beyond argument that Federal fiscal problems will never be solved until there is a resurgence of the traditional American idea that local people and local government should take care of local needs.

The picture is currently showing thru Saturday at the Majestic Theatre.

Ann Shorb Heads Legion Auxiliary

The regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Post 121, was held Tuesday night with the president, Madeleine Harner, presiding. Twenty-six members were present. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were given and accepted. A thank you note was read from the Warner Hospital for a $25 donation the Auxiliary had given it for its building fund.

The president read the first paragraph of a presidential message which this month pertained to the District State. The group was urged to increase the membership of the Western Maryland District.

A $5 donation was made to the local Little League. A beautiful quilt soon will be auctioned and the proceeds will be given to the Warner Hospital building fund.

The annual election of officers was held with the following results: President, Ann Shorb; first vice president, Margaret Shorb; second vice president, Madeleine Harner; secretary, Ethel Baumgardner; corresponding secretary, Nancy Danner; treasurer, Virginia Sanders; chaplain, Theresa Hollinger; historian, Carmen Topper and sergeant-at-arms, Melva Hardman. Tellers for the election were Betty Rosensteel and Adele Fitz. The new officers will be installed at the next regular meeting. The following helped to prepare the refreshments: Margaret Shorb, Ann Shorb, Carmen Topper, Ethel Baumgardner, Carrie Long, Virginia Sanders, Nancy Danner, Theresa Hollinger, Melva Hardman and Charlotte Sanders. The door prize was won by Charlotte Bollinger.

Club To Police Reservoir Area

Members of the Indian Look-out Conservation Club will gather in a body Tuesday evening at Rainbow Lake. The group plans to police up the area and to keep it in a state of tidiness.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Preliminary returns from the referendum held last Saturday in the 36-state wheat producing areas show that 77.5 per cent of the voting farmers favored marketing quotas for the 1956-crop wheat, according to the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

In Maryland, 952 votes were cast. "Of this total 543 votes were cast in favor of the referendum," George B. Reeves, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said.

In the nation, 328,049 votes were counted. "This represents a vote increase of 15.4 per cent over last year," Mr. Reeves said. Although this is a preliminary tabulation, the final total is not expected to show any significant change.

"Marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1956 crop," Mr. Reeves said, "because of wheat marketing quotas set by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson are effective when approved by a vote of two-thirds or more of the farmers as was done in the June referendum."

The referendum marked the fifth time farmers have voted on marketing quotas for wheat. Quotas were approved for the 1941 crop by an 81 per cent favorable vote, for the 1942 crop by 82.4 per cent, the 1954 crop by 87.2 per cent, and for the 1955 crop by 73.3 per cent.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

In view of Maryland's traditional support of States' Rights, the President's recent message to Congress on the final report of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations should be of interest to all of us.

The President pointed out that 168 years ago the Founding Fathers designed our Federal form of government in response to the baffling and eminently practical problem of creating unity among the 13 States where union seemed impossible. The framers of our Constitution reached a solution now recognized as one of the most significant advances in the history of representative government.

In our time, however, a decade of economic crisis followed by a decade of war and international crises vastly altered Federal relationships.

The interests and activities of the different levels of government now impinge on each other at innumerable points, even where they appear to be quite separable.

Because of this increasingly intricate interrelationship of national, state, and local governments, it is important that we review the existing allocation of responsibilities, with a view to making the most effective utilization of our total governmental resources.

To this undertaking the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations has made a notable contribution and, as your spokesman in the U. S. Senate, I intend to see that the State of Maryland receives the fullest benefit of this contribution.

Porcupine quills make sensationally effective body material for scores of fly patterns used by anglers.—Sport Afield

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Why is it that so many anglers get so few fish during hot mid-summer weather? Because they fail to understand that the methods which worked fine only two weeks earlier—and which will be good again in fall—are completely useless now. If they'd learn proper tactics for this part of the season, they'd catch fish.

During this period you should be able to land plenty of trout and bluegills, and enough bass to satisfy anybody. For other species, it's pretty certain to be slow fishing now.

Here are a few hints from Jason Lucas, angling editor of Sports Afield magazine, for your summer fishing:

TROUT—Trout fishing, more than any other fishing, varies from place to place. Good angling, in many spots, doesn't start until about the middle of July. The only thing to do is arrange with someone living near where you want to fish to write and tell you about conditions.

Since the water is generally low and clear now, flies should get most trout. And because of the clear water you can nearly always do best on small flies in dull colors. Clear water also calls for a long, fine-tapered leader, and the ability to make a reasonably long cast and to place the fly lightly.

BASS—One simple trick here: Be out there fishing at the first gray sign of daylight in the morning. Not only will bass still be in the shallows and still feeding actively, but there won't be other anglers out to scare them into deep water. Mr. Lucas favors the outer edge of dense weeds or lily pads, casting in to them. In a lake with no water vegetation, look for bass where deep water comes, right up to the shore; he casts to the shore from outside.

As for bass lures and methods, begin with either a surface plug or a fly-rod popper. The slow retrieve gets them now. Let the plug lie a long time where it drops; some leave it still as long as two or three minutes. Then, duck it sharply, trying not to move it more than an inch or two. Repeat this several times. A shallow runner or a fly-rod streamer may get more; as the sun gets well up, the shallow runner is apt to get more than transferred from Great Falls AFB, Mont., to Larson AFB, Moses Lake, Wash. He and his wife, the former Beulah Glass, and son, Paul, are living in Ephrata, near the base. Airman Mackenzie is a mechanic on the new RF-84-F fighter jet in the 71st Reconnaissance Wing, recently formed at the base.

The base also is the site of the Boeing Test Center, a civilian aircraft corporation, where at this time pilots are testing the big new jet bomber, the B-54. The tail of this powerful jet alone stands four office building stories high.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., July 7 — Since returning from my winter in Florida, I have often been asked how I used my time while there.

Unfortunately, I do not play golf or indoor games including cards. My exercise consists of walking and working in my garden. I, however, have made a practice of selecting some one subject to study each winter, as a sort of "post-graduate course." It has been interesting and helpful to myself and others.

Employment For The Handicapped

As heretofore indicated, I have been studying this past winter the problem of the physically handicapped, but not the problem of the mentally retarded. This latter is in a class by itself. Only trained psychologists, therapists, and others engaged in mental rehabilitation should attempt to help with this mental problem. My studies have been devoted to those physically handicapped through faulty birth, accidents, war, polio, and other diseases, but who have good brains and the ability to rise to the top in almost any business or profession.

I once assumed that being physically handicapped often retarded memory or judgment; but scientists, psychologists, and the medical profession tell me that I am wrong in this. They insist that those "born with" ambition, persistence, and talent still have them after any accident; while those who apparently lacked these qualities before an accident seldom have them after one. This is true in the case of blindness, which I am discussing this week.

What Is Blindness?

There are two kinds of blindness — namely, legal blindness and total blindness. A person with legal blindness can see at a distance of only twenty feet what the normal person can see at 200 feet. So-called blind people who you see feeling their way along with a cane, or holding certain jobs with the aid of powerful eyeglasses, are often able to see somewhat, although they are legally blind. I, of course, am interested in these, but I am especially interested in the totally blind, believing that they may have the best opportunities.

When I was in college, most of the totally blind learned Braille—that is, reading with their fingers. Babson Park, with its Institute and Research Plants, is within a few miles of the Perkins Institution, which is one of the best schools for the blind in America. Since the development of the radio, phonograph, and especially the "talking books," fewer blind people have been interested in learning Braille. Let me say, however, that every blind person should at least be able to use the Braille alphabet and numbering system, in order to be able to keep records of names and telephone numbers and short memos. This enables one to serve as a secretary, or a sales clerk, or even an executive.

Opportunities For the Blind

Much is being done by the Federal government, the state government, and private organizations toward helping the blind. Sometimes I think that a blind person has better prospects than those of us with eyesight, because we do not appreciate our eyesight and use it as we should. Those who are interested in this subject should write the U. S. Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Washington 25, D. C., for a copy of their pamphlet entitled "Opportunities for the Blind." This pamphlet lists agencies in each of the 48 states and the territories of the U. S. which specialize in such vocational rehabilitation. Job opportunities are often available for the blind in the various professions, trades, retail establishments, factory occupations, and clerical and personal service positions. I have personally checked this past winter and find that blind persons are successfully engaged in these different lines of work.

In many positions they are doing better work than those who can see. They have more time to listen, meditate, pray, and plan; they are better able to concentrate and arrive quickly at a correct decision; they are most creative and offer their employer more and better ideas, methods, and processes. These qualifications — some of which are distinctly based upon spiritual power — are often possessed by the blind to a degree exceeding those of the normal person. In fact, the future of a blind person who is given proper opportunities can exceed that of a normal person, provided he or she has natural memory, judgment, and ambition; but this brings me back to the third paragraph of this column. Blind people instinctively learn to sacrifice, which is the basis of success.

Lessons For Us Who Can See

I sometimes wonder whether, when Jesus "restored the sight of the blind and made the lame walk," He changed them physically, or rather aroused in them a spirit to overcome their handicap. Just a word, in closing, to my readers who have normal eyesight, hearing, and speech, with full use of all limbs. This includes 95 per cent of those who read this column. The principal thing I have learned from my winter studies has been the great value and possibilities of these wonderful machines that we all carry in our heads, technically known as our "brains." As I pass through an office or factory or even down the street, I am impressed with how little realization people have of their opportunities and of the possibilities to be derived from their most powerful and miraculous brain.

We wonder about the marvels of the airplane, the radio, television, telephone, and other "great inventions." We become frightened about atomic energy, automation, cybernetics, and robots, which some magazines say will revolutionize employment, production, and sales. None of these things upon which the great laboratories are working compare with the machine which each one of us has in our heads. Therefore, I forecast that there will develop thousands of Edisons and Ketterings, Van Dykes and Rembrandts, Longfellows and Tchakowskys. The present number of inventors, writers, scientists, and musicians should increase. Many of the blind are now developing such brains. A few of us who can see are attempting the same, and my appeal is that all of us should appreciate our eyes more. Let us not waste our eyesight on nonsense, but use it constructively. If we do, I believe that we will not only gain in character and satisfaction but will also get increased promotions — far greater than we ever hoped.

By WALTER CHAMBLIN, JR.

WASHINGTON — The Senate has taken a substantial step toward curtailing government competition with private business in the Defense Dept.

It adopted an amendment which would give the department a free hand to curtail, abolish or transfer any activity that has been initiated within the last 25 years.

It stipulated, however, that any activity initiated prior to that period cannot be curtailed or abolished until the department has notified the Appropriations Committees of both the House and Senate 60 days in advance. If neither committee takes action within this time limit, the department then has a free hand to do whatever it desires.

This amendment is a big improvement over the one adopted by the House, which would have required the Dept. of Defense to notify the two Appropriations Committees before it could curtail or abolish any activity at all. The House version would have thrown a road block in the way of any recommendations made by the Hoover Commission looking to the elimination of departmental competition with private business.

Much of the competition with business in the Defense Dept. developed during and immediately after World War II and many of the Hoover Commission recommendations apply to this specific period.

Senator Mundt (R-S. D.), however, led a vigorous fight on the Senate floor to eliminate the amendment entirely. Mr. Mundt, during the course of the debate, in part said: "I now find—and let me say that the Democratic members especially will be interested in this—that not all the confusion in the government, in terms of invading the field of private industry, occurred during the days of the New Deal and the Fair Deal; but a great deal of it occurred before 1933."

The Senate, however, by a vote of 48 to 33, rejected the Mundt proposal.

What will happen now will depend upon the House-Senate Conference Committee appointed to work out differences between the two Houses on the bill.

Private versus Public Power: The first major engagement has taken place in the House where the administration won a resounding victory. The House specifically eliminated authority to use $6.5 billion for the building of additional steam plants at TVA. This money now can be used to build the transmission line from the Dixon-Yates private plant to connect with the TVA system.

Although the administration won in the House it will face another terrific fight in the Senate . . . but the best information is that the Administration will win that chamber as well.

Small Business Administration: Congress is continuing it for another two years. Both Republicans and Democrats think this is good politics. But SBA does not help the bulk of small business such as retailers, druggists and the like. It actually aids that segment of business which the local banker does not think is a good risk. If SBA were to be a solvent agency it would have to charge in excess of 20 per cent interest on its loans to be solvent.

Much of SBA's work is duplication of that which has been done by the Commerce Dept. for years. Yet SBA is expanding. For example, in Minneapolis it has 28 employees compared with six for commerce. Sooner or later, if SBA is continued, someone will propose giving it cabinet status and then there will be the unfortunate situation of two Depts. of Commerce—one for big and one for little business. Maybe it would then be found necessary to have a third department—one for medium business.

Along The Potomac
Congressman De Witt S. Hyde • 6th District, Maryland

WASHINGTON, July 6—Legislation which concerns our role in bolstering the military and economic security of the free nations of the world is of vital concern to us all. The debate in Congress made some interesting questions and problems of importance to Maryland. Among them was the question of shipping foreign aid goods, particularly farm surpluses, in American ships. The law provides that 50 per cent of these goods must, if possible, be shipped in our own merchant vessels.

This so-called "50-50" provision has been widely misunderstood. It is a provision designed to aid the shipping industry—an industry essential to America's and Maryland's economic welfare. The requirements are simple: first, goods must be carried at "world shipping rates"; second, that if no cargo space is available the goods may be shipped in foreign hulls. I would point out that it costs no more to ship American, and that I have been assured there is an ample supply of American vessels.

Some foreign governments, in order to bolster their own maritime shipping, have tried to sell the American farmer a "bill of goods" charging the "50-50" provision hampers the disposal of surplus farm crops. These very governments have learned through the actual working of the law that the farm disposal program is not hampered. It has been a distinct disservice to the American farmer to circulate charges of this nature.

I would also like to call your attention to a report on the Federal impact law submitted by the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare to the House Education and Labor Committee. I may say, that while the report contains some incorrect impressions on the law, there is nothing in it which is adverse to enactment of the correcting legislation this session of Congress.

The report errs in trying to indicate that other school districts were penalized on school construction contracts between the effective date of the law and the first cutoff date. This is not true since these districts were aware of the first cutoff date; what school districts were not aware of was that there would be a second cutoff date. And having acted in good faith these school districts should not be faced with a loss of school funds. I am urging the Committee to report out my bill for action this session.

free to seek its opportunities, would generate a great progressive force. And it has. The progress of our nation, when compared with other nations, proves the soundness of this concept. Yet there are many citizens who do not clearly understand the basic governmental concepts which have given Americans the highest living standards in the world. This lack of understanding is not good for our country.

In China and other areas of Asia I spent 10 years examining the causes of their great poverty. Ninety per cent of the people were barely existing each living for a month on what an American could buy for one dollar. Yet China has vast resources in soils and minerals and forests. What was the holdback? In brief, here was the trouble: The people were afraid to venture because of the lack of adequate and equitable laws, equitably enforced. Let me illustrate.

Banditry Everywhere
A group of Chinese wanted to open a coal mine. They had capital. Workers were plentiful. The coal deposit was unlimited. And the market was there. The only question was, "Would it be advisable?" One of the group said: "Well, you know the group of people down the river. They have quite a few soldiers. If we got the coal mine producing they'd come and take it away from us." Another of the group said, "Yes, and the Governor is in league with that group." They had to forget the idea of opening a coal mine. Their governmental structure provided no protection.

Another example: A town in the China interior installed an electric light plant. An envious group in another town, burning peanut oil candles, overpowered the authorities and took away the electric plant. But they couldn't carry some of the heavy pieces on their shoulders, so when they put the plant together it wouldn't operate. They were consoled anyway; they still had no electric lights, but neither did the other town. Individual initiative throughout the population is not possible, for want of equitable laws, equitably enforced.

England's Socialism
I've had the opportunity twice to study conditions in England first hand. From 1945 to 1951 the Socialist-Labor Party operated the government. The government took over ownership of the major industries—the coal mines, the transportation systems, the utilities, the iron and steel industries, and so forth. The government also took over control, ultimately, of employment and enterprise. No one could obtain work or change jobs, build a chicken house or go into business, without approval of a government bureau. Individual initiative was smothered.

Still another example is Russia. She has coal, iron, petroleum, everything we have—and twice the quantity. She has two times as much land per person as does America. But in Russia the government owns all the farms, the manufacturing plants and all the distribution centers; and the people work according to a central blueprint—with no opportunity whatever to generate individual initiative.

Superiority of Freedom
Now the important point: The individual citizen in China has a living standard about one-twentieth as high as ours; in England, about one-third as high as ours; and in Russia, about one-fifth as high as ours. The major reason for our superiority is our system of Constitutional government which gives the utmost liberty for personal initiative, our private ownership economy which provides incentive to get ahead and a competitive atmosphere which brings out the very best capabilities in all, and our foundation of spiritual disciplines—being governed primarily by an inner force of moral laws.

My daughter Lois was born in China. When she was 11 we returned to America. Seeing New York for the first time she exclaimed: "I hope Heaven is as nice as this!" But she became Americanized quickly: She began to want everything she saw. Throughout high school and college it was more dresses, always more of this and that. And finally she wanted a convertible. I told her in America she could have anything she wanted—if she went after it hard enough. She went to work teaching school, determined to save and buy the convertible. She didn't keep a good budget; her chances looked very slim. But in America there is no reason ever to be discouraged. There is always another way. That summer, Lois married a convertible!

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers Topper, Mt. Airy, were visitors recently of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Topper and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stoner.

Mississippi Is Natural Habitat Of Catfish

The Mississippi River and its tributaries is the natural home of the Blue Catfish. While it has been introduced into the streams of Colorado it has not definitely established itself there.

BLUE CATFISH
© 1954 National Wildlife Federation.

Young fishermen who thrill at the capture of a bullhead a few inches long would find themselves in difficulty should they hook onto one of these giant relatives of the bullhead. Blue Catfish weighing to 180 pounds and measuring in excess of five feet have been taken but animals of this size are uncommon in suitable waters however to take these fish weighing to 50 pounds.

The Blue Catfish might possibly excusably be confused with the better known Channel Catfish. Each has a deeply forked tail. In the Blue Catfish, the anal fin that lies to the rear along the under side of the body has from 32 to 35 rays while in the Channel Catfish this fin has from 25 to 30 rays. The free end of this fin in the Channel Catfish is rounded not pointed. The eye of the Blue Catfish is nearer the under margin of the head than to the upper while in the Channel Catfish this is reversed. The eyes too are smaller in the Blue Catfish than in the Channel Catfish.

Large male, breeding Channel Catfish closely resemble Blue Catfish. As the name implies the Blue Catfish is blue to slate-colored above changing to silvery to white beneath. The edges of the fins, particularly of the anal fins are frequently darker than the other portions.

Blue Catfish breed in June or July when the water reaches a temperature of 70 to 75 degrees. A nest is made in an excavation under a protecting shelf of some sort. The eggs appear in gelatinous masses and a fish weighing two pounds may lay about 5000 eggs. In from 6 to 10 days, the eggs hatch. By the end of the first summer, the young fish may be to four inches long but sexual maturity is not reached until about four years when the fish may have a length of 12 to 15 inches. Young fish may be spotted.

The food of Blue Catfish is highly varied. It includes molluscs, insects and their larvae, worms, crustaceans, fish, frogs and carrion. In fact, they eat almost anything that might be considered as edible. The Blue Catfish is somewhat migratory in its habits and its abundance at any one spot may vary considerably during the year.

Blue Catfish are commonly taken on trot lines, by juggling, or on baited lines. Hooks sizes 2/0 to 4/0 may be baited with large night crawlers or with minnows, particularly large chubs. Trot lines in Iowa are usually used with 25 to 100 hooks and are set at right angles to the shore usually downstream from islands. Commercial fishermen may take these superior catfish in seines. The flesh is excellent and finds a ready market in the cities within range of the fish. This catfish is considered by some as the most valuable fish in the Mississippi River system.

It is the hope of the National Wildlife Federation that practices affecting this fish may be such that the supply may continue indefinitely and that its abundance may increase rather than decrease.—E. Laurence Palmer.
