BY ABIGAIL

Halloween antics are a bit premature this year. Already signs of activity have been observed in the alleys. Two youths were busy Wednesday evening placing tressles across an alley in the West End. I am told that about the same precautions will prevail this year as did last Halloween when four or five extra deputies were deployed to stifle the antics of Halloweeners. Let's keep it down to a good clean fun level this year, boys.

And back once again to some old Chronicles brought in by a good friend, and faithful reader, Mr. Otto Hahn. I really get a bang out of perusing these old papers, there's really some interesting and amusing items printed and preserved therein. Take this one for instance. The year is 1897 and the issue is January 15: Oliver A. Horner, cashier of the Bank-House of Annan and Horner is highly endorsing a "cough remedy." It goes thusly: "It affords me great pleasure to recommend 'Honey-Tolu' for coughs, colds, hoarseness, etc. I have used this remedy and my family and it gave speedy relief in all cases and I most cheerfully recommend it to the general public as a most efficient remedy." Not too much different than the line the TV boys dish out these days, eh?

Here's an interesting item, dated July 19, 1896: Mr. Felix Walters and James Elder (one of the boss' predecessors), were drilling out a supposedly deficient dynamite charge in Mr. Walter's lime quarry when the blast unexpectedly let go and both men were badly hurt. Mr. Elder had both wrists badly hurt and the upper portion of his body was blasted with sand and limestone fragments, lacerating him badly. Mr. Walters lost part of his little finger and thumb of his left hand from the blast, and his pants were blown off. Drs. Annan, Brawner and Gallagher attended the wounded men.

Here's a philosophical anecdote of a gent named Byrnes-monkey, who said in 1886: "No, I haven't voted since 1876. I voted for the first time then and voted for Hayes and before the next election I concluded that if I couldn't do better than that I ought not to vote at all. So I haven't. Incidentally, if any of you are interested in glancing over old issues of the Chronicle, you are welcome to come to the office where we have volumes of them. Naturally they can't be taken out of the office, but you will be privileged to read them here, at your leisure."

Mrs. Elizabeth Bowers reports this week she has received a warm thank you letter from the First Lady, Mamie Eisenhower. Previously Mrs. Bowers had written the President expressing her sentiments concerning his current debility. A very nice letter from Mrs. Eisenhower followed and I was privileged to read it.

The President's illness has upset the political appletart, so to speak, and you can bet your bottom dollar that a lot of shuffling and double-dealing on both sides will take place in the next few months. I imagine forces are at work now figuring how they can shelve certain individuals and keep them out of the running. It'll come to the fore before long.

My own personal sentiments concerning the Chief Executive, are that he have a speedy recovery and retire to his Gettysburg home where he will be our neighbor. Whether he runs again or declines, he's a great man and the country will feel deeply his loss if he leaves the active service of his country. While not affiliated politically along the same lines as the Chief Executive, this paper goes along with the rest of the Nation in wishing him a speedy recovery, and if he decides to retire we'll be happy indeed, to have him as our neighbor.

DENIED DIVORCE

A divorce was denied Walter G. Muench, Emmitsburg, at a hearing last Thursday, Sept. 29, before Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer, Frederick, from his wife, Rose B. Muench, Edward D. Storm represented Mr. Muench and E. Austin James was counsel for Mrs. Muench.

College To Welcome Parents Today

Between 300 and 400 parents will be on campus for the activities of Valley Home Weekend, opening at St. Joseph College on Oct. 7. The freshman academic investiture will open the weekend on Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the College Chapel. Presiding at the traditional capping will be the Rev. Philip E. Dion, C.M., chairman of the board of trustees of St. Joseph College. Following the investiture, parents and students from Mt. St. Mary's and St. Joseph's colleges will attend a movie in DePaul Auditorium.

Highlighting Saturday's program is the tea to be held in the Log Cabin on Tom's Creek from 2 to 4 p. m. To welcome St. Joseph's and parents, a receiving line of faculty members will be present.

Mulson, B.S., physical education instructor, will do a repeat performance, launching the Saturday evening activities at 7:30 o'clock in Verdier. The annual Father-Daughter dance is scheduled to follow the pageant.

On Sunday morning the parents and students will attend Holy Mass in the College Chapel with the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C.M., as celebrant. Following Mass will be a brunch at which the Rev. Vincent G. Heary, C.M., Ph. L., assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Parish, Emmitsburg, will speak on the topic of secularism in the world today. Donald J. Waters, M.F.A., assistant professor of speech and drama at St. Joseph College, will serve as toastmaster.

Camping of the student nurses in the Class of '58 will take place in the College Chapel at 1:15 p. m. on Sunday afternoon. This ceremony will close the three-day festivities.

Engineer Bares '56 Roads Plan To Officials

County Engineer Roger H. Willard has submitted a proposed new construction program for the county roads in 1956 to the County Commissioners and the program will come before the Frederick County Roads Board for discussion at its regular meeting next Tuesday, it was learned this week.

The Commissioners and the Roads Board are expected to make their annual tour of the county roads soon after the meeting next week.

No announcement of the 1956 roads program is expected to be made until it is finally adopted by the commissioners, as required by law, probably near the end of the month.

However, it seems certain that there will be a curtailment of the program over recent years, because of the neglect of the Legislature to put into effect an increase in motor vehicle licenses which would have helped finance the accelerated program.

The County, like the state, had planned to build more roads each year with the proposed money increase and the one-cent boost in gasoline taxes. However, only the gasoline tax increase was granted by the General Assembly and the state money for county roads will not be sufficient now to amortize, over a period of years, the cost of a program as ambitious as originally planned.

Some roads scheduled for construction this year will be carried over to the 1956 program, largely because rights-of-ways could not be obtained.

Army Finance School, he served with the Signal Section, headquarters, Eighth Army, in the Far East. He was honorably discharged in August, 1955.

Escape Serious Injury In Car Mishap

Pennsylvania State Police described occupants of a car being driven four miles south of Fairfield, near the Quinn F. Topper Orchards north of town at 1:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon, as "extremely lucky" to have escaped injury when their car crashed.

Police said John McKinley Thorpe, 55, Baltimore, was driving north, the fourth car in a line of four. Thorpe, the officers reported, decided to pass the three cars ahead of him. Just as he drove out to pass, police said, Isaac Garfield Snyder, 44, Baltimore, the third car in the line, also drove out to pass.

Thorpe turned his car toward the left side of the highway to avoid colliding with the Snyder car. In doing so his auto turned completely over, coming to rest on its wheels off the side of the road. Damage to the car was estimated at $600. None of the occupants was injured.

Mrs. Richard Harner and daughter spent Wednesday in Baltimore.

Council Studies Federal Ave. Parking

Council took under consideration Monday night at its regular meeting held in the Fire Hall several methods of controlling parking on Federal Ave., in that section between E. Main St. and DePaul intersections. Complaints have come from the area and Council has been asked to make a decision. At the present time parking is permitted only on the east side of the street. The Town Fathers had been considering prohibiting parking anywhere on the street, but an appeal by a delegation present at the meeting, asking that such action not be taken caused Council to consider other methods of controlling the parking of cars there. The Solons also planned to measure the street and to determine whether diagonal parking would be advisable on that section of Federal Ave. running parallel with the B. H. Boyle and Edward Lingo property. Nothing definite was decided at the meeting.

The reports of the town clerk, tax collector and treasurer were presented by Miss Louise Sebold and were approved without alteration. Parking meter revenue for September amounted to $300.11. In addition, the police department reported $46 in overtime parking fines and $6.45 for other local ordinance infractions.

Two individuals were present at the meeting protesting the issuance of parking tickets issued under extenuating circumstances.

A letter of appreciation from the local Boy Scouts was read, thanking the Council and the police department for the assistance given the troop recently when it sponsored a circus here.

Additional sewerage for the town was discussed, and Council is awaiting shipment of blue prints of a recent survey made by a Baltimore engineering concern. The survey would include all that portion of town which is not at present adequately sewered. It is generally believed that a bond issue would have to be issued before any work on future sewerage could start as preliminary reports indicate that well over $100,000 would be needed to bring adequate sewerage to the whole town.

Motorists Fined For Violations

Seven motorists paid fines, after conviction, last month, on charges lodged by Chief Daniel J. Kaas of the Emmitsburg Police Dept. All cases were heard before Magistrate Charles D. Gillelan, and eight cases are pending action this month. The police department issued 40 warning tickets during the past month. Two Pennsylvania youths, who were runaways on stolen bicycles, were returned to their homes and parents, and the two bikes recovered.

Convicted of motor code violations were: Harold Vincent Kelly, Bethesda, exceeding 25 mph, $11.45; Blanche L. Click, Gettysburg, Pa., no operator's license, $11.45; Ray M. Kump, Gettysburg, Pa., permit unauthorized operation, $11.45; John W. Eckenrode, Westminster, speed greater than reasonable, $16.45; Margaret N. Frye, Baltimore, exceeding 25 mph, $11.45; Wyma J. Hanley, Danville, Ga., no registration card in possession, $6.45 and Rhudy Lee Greger, Emmitsburg, was dismissed on a charge of "speed greater than reasonable or prudent."

Sentence Suspended

John David Study, 54, Gettysburg Rt. 5, was arrested last Sunday evening in Emmitsburg by Police Chief Daniel J. Kaas and charged with being drunk on N. Seton Ave. He was lodged in the county jail in Frederick Sunday evening and appeared at a trial Tuesday morning before Magistrate Reese Shoemaker Jr., Frederick, who gave him a 30-day suspended sentence.

Proclamation—

Fire Prevention Week, as proclaimed by President Eisenhower, begins Sunday, Oct. 9.

Since the Chicago fire of Oct. 9 and 10, 1871, which wiped out the entire business section and a large part of the residential properties of that city, fire prevention and protection have progressed from a rule-of-thumb method, an occasional practice, to the status of a science. Sound rules of fire safety are now well established and are available to all.

Fire prevention was observed annually as "Fire Prevention Day" for some 30 years until 1920. In that year, the President of the United States proclaimed "Fire Prevention Week," to include the date of Oct. 9, the anniversary of the Chicago fire.

In observing Fire Prevention Week Emmitsburg takes its place with other cities throughout the U. S. in carrying on a program which will result in a safer city in which to live.

Frankly we can understand why opera in New York doesn't pay its way.

So far, we have not heard a great outcry against the prospective tax cut.

The real dark horse among the Democrats is Averell Harriman—they say.

Not every religious person understands religion and religions.

Burgess Reminds Citizens Of Fire Prevention Week

Burgess Thornton W. Rodgers this week issued a final appeal to all citizens to join in the observance of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9-15.

The Burgess' statement said: "It has been gratifying to me to note the keen interest and the extensive preparations evidenced in making this event one of outstanding accomplishment in eliminating fire hazards in Emmitsburg."

The Mayor said further, "With additional homes being built throughout the town and with large old houses being converted into apartments, new fire prevention problems are arising. Occupants of multiple tenancy dwellings are faced with greater fire hazards than that of single units. Therefore, it is to the interest of our town to start a year-round campaign to reduce fire losses so that the needless loss of life due to carelessness and the destruction of property in our town will not occur here."

John S. Hollinger, Fire Chief of the Vigilant Hose Co., followed the Burgess with this statement:

"This is, as the Burgess has said, a community effort. The campaign will succeed in proportion to the number of individuals participating in it. Every day during Fire Prevention Week we must eradicate the causes of fires

Great Dangers

Possible In Oil Stoves And Heaters

Portable oil stoves and space heaters last year took a terrible toll of lives.

With the coming of cold weather, when stoves and heaters operate full scale, it is very important to understand that most fires caused by oil stoves and space heaters start for one of these reasons:

1. Careless handling.
2. Allowing wicks to become dirty or uneven.
3. Spilling fuel.
4. Tipping or knocking over the heater.
5. Overfilling tanks.
6. Placing heater too close to combustible material.

There is also the danger of asphyxiation if the appliance is used in a tightly closed room.

Aware of the dangers, some cities have passed ordinances prohibiting the use of these appliances. Where their use is permitted, the National Board of Fire Underwriters urges the following safety measures be taken:

1. Thoroughly inspect and clean the heater or oil stove before putting it into operation each season.
2. Be sure it is set level.
3. Keep it clean and free of dirt at all times.
4. Never place it near curtains, tablecloths or other hanging materials, or where such material may be blown over it.
5. Place it out of the line of traffic.
6. Never fill or carry it while it is lighted.
7. Never use it in a room with all the doors and windows shut.
8. Don't leave a heater unattended after it is first lighted. For at least 15 minutes, watch the flame and adjust it so that it produces no smoke, because as the heater warms up its flame often increases.
9. Refill it outdoors. Keep the fuel supply outside. Wipe up all spillage.
10. See that the latch holding the top part of a tip-over type heater to the lower part holds them securely together.
11. Use the proper grade of oil.

in our homes, on the farms, and in the schools."

Decrease In

Home Fires Is Sign Of Progress

For the second year in succession the National Board of Fire Underwriters reports fewer home fires in urban United States!

In communities of 2500 and over, residential fires decreased two per cent in 1953 and again in 1954.

However, since 90 per cent of all fires are caused by carelessness, neglect and lack of understanding, this is only a small percentage of what can be done in cutting down the toll. Here is what you can do to help prevent a fire in your home.

The combination matches-smoking and misuse of electricity account for 40 per cent of all fires of known origin; therefore, home fire prevention should start at these danger spots. The following precautions will reduce the hazards of matches and smoking:

1. Keep plenty of ash trays handy—and use them!
2. Never toss a lighted match away. Blow it out, hold it a second, then put it in an ash tray.
3. Before emptying an ash tray, be sure every match and butt is dead out.
4. Never use a match to light your way into a dark closet or similar space where clothing or other combustibles are kept.
5. Before going to bed, especially after entertaining, see that no butts are smoldering on tables or upholstery.
6. Keep matches and cigarette lighters where children cannot reach them.
7. Never smoke in bed!

Electric fires are less apt to occur if you follow these rules:

1. 15 ampere fuses are the safe size for most household circuits. Never tamper with them; never use oversize fuses.
2. Don't plug too many appliances into one outlet; you will overload the circuit. If fuses blow often, call an electrician. He will inspect the wiring and put in more outlets and circuits if he thinks you need them.
3. Look for the UL label on all electric cords and appliances you buy. It means they have passed Underwriters' Laboratories tests for fire and shock safety.
4. Don't let a "home handyman" tinker with electric cords, wiring or appliances. Such work should be done only by an electrician.
5. Don't string wires over hooks or around nails, or run them under rugs where they may be walked on. Insulation will break or wear out, and a short circuit may result.

Farm Fire Losses Show Increase; Urge Precautions

Farm fire losses are going up. Preliminary estimates from the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture put the 1954 farm fire losses at $157 million, as compared to $139 million in 1953.

Translated from dollars and cents to hard facts, this figure represents thousands of farm homes and other buildings damaged or totally destroyed; stored or standing crops ruined; a tragic economic loss both to individual farmers and to the nation as a whole.

An even greater tragedy is the fact that farm fires take an annual toll of approximately 3000 human lives.

More than half these fires could be prevented, the Dept. of Agriculture estimates, and farm property could be made reasonably safe from fire by the following safeguards, in this order:

1. Carefully planned construction, maintenance and use of the property, to eliminate all unnecessary danger of fire.
2. Simple fire extinguishing equipment kept on hand for use in the early stages of a fire.
3. A community fire-fighting organization equipped to check fires and prevent their spread.

Living Today

PROGRESS

Progress is essential, but sometimes heartbreaking. The old landmarks of any town are to be prized, cherished, and respected. This is why the old timers of any community feels reticent when a wrecking crew starts tearing a way the walls of an old established institution, or a home symbolic of the development of the town. However, the old gives way to the new and before long this old house will crumble in and its walls will heed the call of nature, but I won't give up easily. When a new house is to replace mine, however, I won't expect a cloak of ectoplasm.

GLAMOR

Glamor has its advantages and particularly in Hollywood. In the average town, any excessive glamorous appeal is usually interpreted for what it is. You can't fool the old timers. A man's vanity or a woman's conceit is measured by their respective cloaks of false impressions. As for me, well, I am non-committal. God gave me certain talents and I haven't discovered which one he wants me to take on as a steady medium on which to use the measuring stick. In Hollywood, I discovered that the most secretive wonderful person I ever knew shied from glamor and refused to be known for her charitable deeds. When technical director on Ann Sothern's pictures "Undercover Masie," I found her to be a person deeply concerned with her contemporaries and the world in need, yet she thrived on glamor in her publicity buildup. Miss Sothern's inner self proved that she was a real person and we never know what is inside of a person's heart until we know them for what they are.

ART

In art, I have found much concern among the cultural minded. In my personal talent I discovered the art lightens one's burdens, and it is an escape from troublesome realities and complexities of life. The average person does not realize that there is a certain artistic instinct within everyone and these latent talents can be brought out if there is a strong enough desire within one. It may not be necessarily a medium of fine arts, or the touch of a Vaan Gough, but there is hidden talent within everyone. Seek the subconscious for deeper understanding. Art is a timely subject as everyone seems to be painting in some form or other. Why not start a class for art appreciation. I'm for it.

SCIENCE

The atom bomb and the far-fetched hydrogen bomb may bring destruction to the world eventually, but while we are living let's remember one thing: there is no explosive so dangerous as hot air. It doesn't have to be shot out of a cannon, either. It all depends on the way it is directed and at whom. Have you ever seen a pneumatic hammer at work? When I was a young man, I knew one. Our tongues can lay the finest foundation possible, or wreck the finest establishment.

Education For Citizenship

When General William F. Dean was released from a Communist prison cell in North Korea two years ago after having withstood years of "brainwashing," he came home to Washington and had breakfast with President Eisenhower. Following this breakfast the President held a press conference. He said he sometimes wondered why more of our soldiers had not succumbed to Communist indoctrination. He said he felt this way because of the meager education given our young people as to what their obligations are to a free form of government, what it means to support it and what it takes to keep it and pass it on.

The President was saying in effect that American citizenship education is vitally important to the strength and security of our nation, and that there wasn't enough of it. Even as Mr. Eisenhower expressed this anxiety, some school systems and colleges were conducting courses in American citizenship education; and some were planning such courses. America's school system is versatile and many schools are beginning to recognize the immediate importance of more positive teaching in American citizenship. One of the outstanding examples is the Springfield (Missouri) public school system.

The Springfield Program

I have just returned from Springfield where I joined with school leaders in an educational convocation on citizenship education. The Springfield program was discussed in detail. So that everyone — parents, teachers, and pupils—could clearly understand the program, it was printed on a big sheet of paper in big type and copies handed to everyone present. At the top of the page was a statement declaring: "... the primary purpose of public school education is to maintain and promote the American way of life."

There followed a breakdown of each subject taught in Springfield schools, under three headings: "What's Taught" ... "And Why." Fourteen subjects were thus examined. It was significant that the first words under "And Why" in each of the 14 subjects were: "To develop American citizens who." In other words, every subject has its relationship to citizenship capabilities and responsibilities.

Teaches Patriotism

Listed on the back side of the big page were "important viewpoints, policies and procedures relating to the educational program as a whole." Discussed here in detail were such subjects as Discipline, Promotion, Reports to Parents, Home Work, Preparation for College, etc. There was again a triple-column under the headings: "Aims ... Methods ... Results."

In the listing of subjects were two which in recent years I have noticed in only a few printed educational programs: "Patriotism" and "Moral and Spiritual Values." Under "What's Taught" on the subject of "Patriotism," were these three objectives: "(1) Value for the American heritage and desire to safeguard it; (2) Understanding of and belief in the ideals upon which America was founded; (3) Appreciation of the American way of life and an attitude of loyalty to America."

"Deep, Enduring Faith"

Under "Patriotism," space in this column does not permit my giving the long list of details of "How It's Taught ... And Why." But under "And Why" was this final reason: "To develop American citizens who have had instilled in them a devotion to our nation ... not a blind, emotional feeling, but a deep, enduring faith in our way of life ... a faith supported by strength of mind and steadfastness of soul ... a faith held fast by courage born of knowledge and love of country."

Under "Moral and Spiritual Values," the objective set forth was to give the youngsters "understandings, attitudes, habits and skills for living in accordance with high moral and spiritual ideals." Among the details of "How It's Taught," was this: "Through reading, discussion and through individual group counseling, young people are assisted ... (toward development of) habits of truthfulness and honesty (and to understand and appreciate) the unchanging moral and spiritual values so essential to the American way of life."

Babson Discusses Stock Market; Predicts Reaction

BABSON PARK, Mass. (Special)—Twenty-five years ago I made a well-known forecast about an impending big break in the stock market. (Reprint of the article which appeared in the New York Times in 1929, recording my statement, will be sent to anyone free on request). At the close of the previous day in 1929, the Dow-Jones Industrial Stock Average stood at 380. The market immediately began to weaken and shortly plunged down swiftly, closing at 230—a decline of 150 points in less than eight weeks. Today the Dow-Jones Industrial Average is 358, within six points of the highest figures since 1929. In fact, it has moved up over 100 points since September 1953.

Reactions To Be Expected

I expect another severe reaction sooner or later, of at least 50 to 75 points. Surely, present stock yields are now too low, when 1954 Federal taxes are deducted. Such a break in the market could occur even during a period of good business activity such as I am now forecasting. Stock prices have of late demonstrated that they can move independently of both business and earnings. It is well to recall that, in 1929, there were few outward signs of the stock market crash ahead.

Investors were then anticipating larger dividend returns with a reduction in risk through diversified Investment Trust holdings and promised mass production and inventions "such as the world had never seen before." The research laboratories of our great industrial concerns were also then depended on to bring these miracles about. In short, a "New Era" was then confidently anticipated. Basically, there was weakness, but it was most apparent in stock market speculation.

Conservative Advice

The current market presents much the same irregular picture as was present in 1929. The so-called blue chips have outdistanced the bulk of the issues on the market, due to concentrated buying, much of it by Institutions, Pension Funds, and Mutual Investment Trusts. There are in addition many new cross-currents in the market that did not exist in 1929. We have armament activity and other Government buying, heavy spending, support of farm prices, and especially the intense new advertising programs, which I consider very important. It is clear that the economic picture and the trend in the market can change abruptly and snowball rapidly to an unexpected degree. The real purpose of my column this week is to bring to your attention that the market may soon be in as vulnerable a position as in 1929.

FREEZE CHEESE

Recent tests show that 10 varieties of cheese can be successfully frozen at home. They are Cheddar, Brick, Port du Salut, Swiss, Provolone, Mozzarella, Liederkrantz, Camembert, Parmesan and Romano. When freezing cheese, cut it in pieces no larger than one pound, and wrap each piece closely in freezer foil. Small cheeses such as Liederkrantz may be left in their original packages. The recommended temperature for freezing is 0 degrees F. or lower. — Changing Times

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Even a mildly intelligent canine knows enough not to bite the hand that's feeding him.

But it appears many federal, other government workers are unaware of this fact, because they are now owning and operating discount retail outlets.

This project apparently started in Los Angeles where federal government workers started a business called FEDCO. This venture into socialism now operates 30 stores covering 100,000 square feet, employs 160, did a $10 million business last fiscal year.

In fact, FEDCO even has its own private brands, selling among other things, its own brand of bourbon known as "Old FedCal."

In addition, Los Angeles city and county, as well as state employees operate an organization called MORE doing about $7 million per year. Similar operations have been opened in Northern California.

Everything from fresh cut flowers to furniture and heavy appliances are sold in these stores, including of course, the government worker's own brand of booze "Old FedCal." To trade in these outlets and get the discounts offered government workers must show cards which indicate they are government workers, just as Russia card carrying communists show their cards to receive special benefits in buying.

© National Federation of Independent Business

Thus, those who are supported in a large part by taxes paid by American retailers and wholesalers operating in the American free economy, are seeking to sabotage the people and system that pays their salaries. At same time, through Washington lobbyists, they try to "boot-jack" these same taxpayers for higher wages and benefits.

The time has long since passed when government employment can be considered low paid. In addition to good pay schedules, there are paid vacations, annual sick leaves, other benefits.

It is also interesting to note there are so many federal employees in Southern California it is possible for them to support a private department store chain as well as their own private brand.

This well illustrates sickness that stalks the land.

Wonder over Russian intentions, fuss raised over loyalty oaths, similar matters, pale into insignificance beside this fact.

Government workers have turned their backs on private enterprise to embrace socialism. Today it's a buying commune, tomorrow it may be a social commune, following day a political commune, and following day is anybody's guess.

Russian pattern is followed in other ways, too. In Russia communism was promoted by least productive element, those who made little, if any contribution to the economy.

In U. S. socialism is being promoted by government workers.

Personal Health

Rx: Love

"Love, to be taken regularly in large doses." Those were the words on the prescription blank the doctor handed to Jimmy's mother. Jimmy had been suffering from frequent stomach upsets.

Children have stomach disorders caused by emotional upsets, just as adults do. Many of these illnesses, doctors believe, begin because the children do not get enough love and are surrounded by an atmosphere of irritability, impatience, and anger.

Many cases of infantile colic are also thought to be largely emotional in origin. Colic frequently develops in babies whose mothers are cross and impatient. A baby's greatest need is for the sense of security that affectionate mothering gives him. When a baby becomes "colicky," he may be expressing his feeling of insecurity. More affectionate and patient mothering is often the best remedy.

In older children, "bottled up" emotions may also show themselves in real physical illnesses. Perhaps the child may complain only of "knots in my stomach" or "cramps." But peptic ulcer and ulcerative colitis are not uncommon. Children who develop these conditions may be very well-behaved youngsters who are unable to express their angry feelings. Their troubles are often traced to the fact that their need for security and love was not met in infancy.

Jimmy's trouble started the spring he became a pitcher for the Tigers, his Little League team. He was a good pitcher. But he began to be afraid to play for fear of losing. He felt that his parents were proud of him and loved him only when he won. So the stomach upsets arrived with every game.

The doctor was able to recognize the emotional basis of Jimmy's trouble. He was able to show the parents that their good little boy who was so eager to please was not a happy child. They learned to be more patient with his boyish failures, and to show him that their love did not depend on his behavior. Jimmy's stomach trouble was cured by love.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Enthusiastic and starry-eyed young men who want to become professional dog trainers often write to Henry P. Davis, dog editor of Sports Afield, to get advice on just how to go about making a success of the job.

I can understand these desires, for the training of sporting dogs is a truly fascinating occupation. The lure of the open, the contact with game, the satisfaction that comes in the development of the dogs, the friendly competitive atmosphere of field trials all have a special appeal.

But these must be paid for in long hours of exhaustive work. A trainer must have a rare common sense, ingenious know-how, patience that borders on that of Job, and a remarkable degree of management ability. Added to these must be the ability to stand, without too much discouragement and grumbling, the frustrations and even tragedies that inevitably accompany the handling of short-lived animals, and the bitter that goes with the sweet in field-trail competitions. Stout-heartedness is a stark necessity in the dog trainer's make-up.

Chet Cummings of Litchfield, Conn., is a highly respected young trainer, and he says anyone planning such a career should have four things:

First, an intense and almost unreasonable love for dogs. There is no eight-hour day in dog training. Day and night your job is with you.

The second thing you'll need is a strong physique. You'll be called on to spend many hours in the field in all kinds of weather. There is much cleaning of kennels, mixing of dog food, painting of buildings, maintaining of grounds. Good help is expensive and hard to find. Poor help is worse than none at all.

The third very important thing a prospective trainer must have is a considerable amount of cold cash in his pocket, or a good financial backer who isn't too big a hurry to get his money back. Chances are a beginner will have a minimum of $6000 or $7000 to invest in his kennels. Almost any well-established trainer has $20,000 tied up in equipment and grounds, and may have more than that invested.

The fourth requisite of a good trainer is hard to define. He needs an intuition or "instinct" for a dog. The best way to express it is to say he "feels" for the dog. This ability to project themselves

BRYANT FOX SQUIRREL

(Sciurus niger bryanti or sciurus niger neglectus.)

Note: S. Niger bryanti is the scientific name applied for many years to the large, gray fox squirrel that is found on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. However, recent studies revealed that this mammal had been given the name of Sciurus niger neglectus; but there is a question in the minds of many whether the squirrel now existing in small numbers in Dorchester and surrounding Counties is typical "niger" or a sub-species larger than niger. Therefore both names are given here.

RANGE: The heaviest concentration seems to be in Dorchester County where there is a sanctuary established for its preservation, called the E. Lee LeCompte Bryant Fox Squirrel Refuge. It is said to range or to have ranged from Chester, Penna., to Pocomoke.

DESCRIPTION: Gray above, white underneath; white nose; average length from tip to tip about 23 inches; tail at broadest point about 6 inches in width, edged with narrow white border. Rare specimens have been taken weighing over 3 pounds.

BREEDING: Nest generally constructed in old pines, also in hollows; nest usually placed well out from the trunk towards the tips of branches; serves as home in winter and summer. Mating takes place during the latter part of February and early March; 3 or 4 young.

HABITS: Feeds more on the ground than the common gray squirrel and stays close to home; no records of mass migrations; quiet and shy and not given to depredations in corn; does not do a lot of jumping from tree to tree, but does jump from tree at quite a distance from the ground at times. The bark is deeper than that of gray squirrel. Feeds on acorns, walnuts and particularly on the seeds of the loblolly pine.

MANAGEMENT: The species is growing scarce and it should be afforded as much protection as possible by law and through sanctuaries, both of which are difficult to supply successfully; closing the season on the Bryant squirrel and not the gray would result in illegal kills.

VALUE: Should be preserved for its rarity and beauty; unfortunately it also supplies a delicious food, hence is pursued and legally taken for this purpose; it is more valuable alive for esthetic purposes than dead for food.

Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde • 6th District, Maryland

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—President Eisenhower's unhappy experience in Denver has saddened all the people. The prayers of a whole nation continue to be directed toward a happy outcome. Citizens of the 6th Maryland District join me in our special prayers for the President's speedy and complete recovery.

My mail in recent days indicates a great deal of misunderstanding as to the meaning and implications of the Reserve Forces Act passed at the last session of Congress. First, I would like to make clear that the Selective Service Act is in full force and operation and is to continue thru June of 1959. It is this law that grants the authority to draft men between the ages of 18½ and 26. Our military manpower needs are obtained through the draft and voluntary enlistments.

What the Congress did last session was to add to the basic military manpower procurement laws an Act strengthening the Reserve Forces. The new law spells out the length of service in the two categories of the Reserve—Ready and Standby. The time required in each depends on the number of years spent on active duty. Two years of active service (normal for a draftee) would be followed by three years in the Ready Reserve, then one year of Standby Reserve.

The important thing to remember is that men who were in the Armed Forces prior to Aug. 9 (the date the Reserve Forces Act became effective) continue to have an over-all military obligation of eight years. But the time remaining after discharge from active service would be wholly in the Standby Reserve, subject to call only in case of a national crisis.

Perhaps the most important feature of the new act is a provision that permits youths between the ages of 17 and 18½ years of age to enlist directly into the Reserve for a period of eight years, undergo three to six months in active service, then transfer to the Ready Reserve for the remainder of their obligation. Under this program youths can "sign-up" at any time before they reach the age of 18½ years and be deferred until they have graduated from high school (left school or attained the age of 20).

Young men in planning their individual careers now have a number of choices which they can make in fitting their military obligations into their education and vocational desires. They may enlist voluntarily, wait for the draft or take advantage of the provision permitting direct enlistment in the reserve.

Social Security Card For One Purpose Only!

A social security card is identification for social security purposes only, and should not be accepted as identification for other purposes. W. S. King, manager of the Hagerstown social security office reminded local storekeepers and their employees today.

A person can obtain a social security card and work under any name he wishes, Mr. King said. To receive his old age insurance benefits at age 65 or later, he must prove only that he is the person for whom a social security account has been set up under that name and number, and that his earnings have been credited to that account. Therefore, a social security card is no guarantee that an individual is using the name his mother gave him, or that he has a bank account.

To illustrate the hazards of cashing checks where only a social security card is offered as identification, Mr. King cited a true story. Recently, he said, police in Tampa, Fla., answered a call from a supermarket manager and picked up a woman "customer" who, using several different social security cards as identification, had passed $1620 in worthless checks during her travels through six Eastern cities.

The 25-year-old woman, Mrs. Freida McCurrin, claimed that she had been led into her criminal career by a man she met while working as a waitress in Baltimore. He had planned all their operations, she alleged, and had taken all the money. The man, Thomas Gerald Ryan, 29, deserted his accomplice before the Tampa police arrived at the supermarket. The general plan followed by the couple was for Mrs. McCurrin to visit the local social security offices in each of the six cities on their itinerary to obtain a social security account number card. Ryan would pick a random address off a street map, and using an alias of his selection, she would apply for a social security card, alleging that she was going to work for the first time. He then wrote out a number of checks, all for $44.00, and took her around to several stores in town where she attempted to cash them, offering only the falsely obtained social security card as identification. Mrs. McCurrin told Tampa police that about half the stores she approached cashed the checks without requiring any other evidence of her identity.

The amazing thing about this story, Mr. King said, is that she found so many willing dupes. The Social Security Administration has repeatedly warned business men not to accept social security cards as identification in cashing checks, giving credit, or for any other purpose not connected with the administration of the social security program.

Although few people will, like Mrs. McCurrin, go to the trouble of obtaining a false social security card, he pointed out that a properly issued card may be lost or stolen, and may be in the possession of someone to whom it does not belong. Moreover, a person can have his name on his social security card changed by filing a valid request for a change in records with the Social Security Administration.

Best Results Obtained With Proper Fuel

There are several types of tractor fuels and the merits of each should be considered in selecting the one for use, says Guy W. Gienger, University of Md., Extension agricultural engineer.

Consumption of fuel per horsepower-hour of work is an important factor to consider in figuring costs, Gienger says. Diesel fuel averages 13.1 horsepower-hours per gallon, gasoline, 9 and propane, 7.2.

Diesel fuel gives high engine efficiency, has a low fire hazard and long engine life, but diesel engines are more costly. They are a high compression engine. Gienger said, and require special starting equipment. Gienger warns that extreme care must be taken to keep the fuel clean. And he recommends diesel fuel only when a tractor will be used between 700 and 1000 hours a year and under steady load conditions.

Gasoline has the advantage of easy starting and wide distribution. Gasoline engines are less costly than other type engines to build, but carbon deposits and valve troubles are common, Gienger says. Although gasoline represents the highest fuel costs for the amount of work produced, it is an excellent fuel for small tractors, Gienger added.

Propane is clean burning and gives long engine life and smooth performance, Gienger said. However, he added, conversion to propane is expensive and carburetors are hard to adjust. Work per gallon of fuel is low, Gienger said and fuel tanks are bulky and often interfere.

A farmer should consider all these fuels and use the one that best suits his needs, concludes Gienger.

WHERE'S THE FIRE?

We have been widely accused of being a nation in a hurry—and to a great extent, that is true. Unfortunately, as a rule the only thing our haste gets us is the age-old question, "Where's the fire?"

There is a literal answer to that question—an answer which next week, Fire Prevention Week, is designed to provide. Where's the fire? In most cases, it's

Five Flavors Of Milk Existent, Researchists Say

Five kinds of flavored milk have been developed by the University of Maryland dairy department, and six more flavors are in the research stage, according to Dr. Joseph F. Mattick, associate professor of dairy technology.

Cherry, strawberry, grape, coffee and raspberry flavored milks have been made and successfully tested on the consumer. Within the next year the dairy department will continue to study to include orange, lemon, tangerine, peach, lime and pineapple flavors in milk, Dr. Mattick said.

The idea behind the program is to produce flavored milk for people who do not like to drink white milk. Dr. Mattick said if it were not for flavored milk, many people would not drink any milk, one of our most important body builders.

Pure flavor extracts and concentrates are used in the milk, Dr. Mattick said. To enhance eye appeal artificial edible colors are added. Strawberry milk is the only flavored milk produced commercially so far, he said.

Flavored milk is only one of several new dairy products underway at the University dairy labs. Dr. Mattick is beginning work on novelty cheeses, and a high protein, low butterfat spread.

The novelty cheeses are romano, parmesan, feta and provolone. All of these cheeses are primarily imported to the U. S. Dr. Mattick hopes to make them domestically. Romano and parmesan are condiment type cheeses used mostly on spaghetti and in soups. Feta is a cheese similar in appearance to "pot type" cottage cheese but different in that the cheese is cured for about six weeks to develop the characteristic flavor. Provolone has a characteristic smoked flavor and is used mostly in sandwiches.

Feta is a Grecian cheese and the name means sliced cheese in Greek. The others are Italian cheeses. Research work in the production of a high protein, low butterfat spread will also get underway soon at the University. This new spread will be very much like butter in consistency, flavor and color, Dr. Mattick said. The primary difference is that the new spread will contain only 40 per cent butterfat and 40 per cent milk protein.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Shades of Tom Sawyer!

Hack Willis had just stopped the tractor so he could cool off at the pump, when a young insurance salesman came up the drive.

Hack was tired of plowing, and needed insurance on his new barn. But he also needed to get that winter rye in fast. The salesman, an eager kid, noticed hesitation. "I come from a farm," he said. "Why don't you look at these booklets—get all the dope—and I'll take that plow a couple of rounds for you."

Young fellow laid off a pretty straight furrow, too. It was almost dark before Hack—sitting in the shade—was able to decide just what kind of policy to get.

From where I sit, to be a good salesman—or a good citizen—it always helps to "put yourself in the other man's place." He may have a different sort of job with different problems... he may prefer to close a deal over, say, a friendly glass of beer while you might prefer something else. But both of you can co-operate if you make it a "policy" to try.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 6—What has happened to our good friend President Eisenhower has been the match to set off the explosion which has been due for some time. Those of you who have followed this weekly column will remember that I have often noted five "sticks of dynamite" which are awaiting something to set them off. Five Reasons for the Collapse

1. Buying By Investment Trusts, Pension Funds, and Institutions. The money has come into these so fast that the fund managers felt they must invest it. Furthermore, they naturally turned to the biggest companies.

2. Tremendous Building of Houses. This exceeds that of previous years. The money is well spent, both to house the owner and help the 27 industries which benefit from the building of every house. Home purchasers, however, should have been made to put up more money of their own, and not buy houses on shoestrings.

3. Greatly Increased Installment Purchasing. I do not criticize the purchasing—even on installments—of automobiles, electric refrigerators, washing machines, modern kitchens and other things which improve the efficiency of the home; but buying TV sets, with hardly a down payment, may be questionable.

4. Military Expenditures A Great Factor. To the extent these are paid for by taxes, they are not too serious; but they cannot be depended upon. Furthermore, although necessary, the expenditure is uneconomic.

5. Poor Yields of Stocks After Payment of Taxes. Except in the case of Pension Funds,

Institutional Investments, and other non-taxable purchases, low yield may be the greatest factor. After most investors deduct the income tax from their dividends, the yield is altogether too small to run the risk of buying stocks.

Effect Upon Business And Employment

What the market will do from now on: I forecast that most major dips will go lower than the preceding dip. Yet, each dip in due time will be followed by an upward reaction. This latter will probably not reach as high as the preceding upward movements. What will really happen to the stock market will depend upon general business, which in turn determines employment. Employment determines retail sales, which supply the factories with orders, thus completing the economic cycle.

President Eisenhower's health will be a great factor in determining the immediate future of business. Many large undertakings have been held in abeyance pending a decision from President Eisenhower as to whether he will run again. This work will doubtless now be held up until it is known who the Presidential candidates will be. Perhaps this means that the contracts will not be signed until after the election, if they are signed for some years to come.

What the President Would Like To Do

Intimate friends of President Eisenhower and his wife have known that he does not like the details, the public speaking and entertaining demanded by the Presidency. He enjoyed being General of the Army where his work was largely confined to thinking and planning. Others carried out the details. No one opposed him or ignored his orders. We now know he will not run again. But I believe that he would have liked to be Secretary of Defense or Secretary of State or Chairman of the Security Board. His holding such a position would add greatly to the Administration and give the country faith.

When manufacturers and merchants telephone me asking what they can now do to prevent a business depression, I reply: "Spend more money on advertising." As stated above, future business and prosperity depend upon retail sales at the grass-roots level. To stimulate these sales, two things are required: More advertising and better employee relations. I hope that every businessman and wageworker will do his part along these lines during these critical weeks.

cent legislation to encourage the production and use of wool in the United States," Mr. Reeves said. The current program now provides for payments to wool growers to bring average returns from wool sales to 62 cents a pound. Payments for the wool on unshorn lambs and yearlings also will be made. To qualify for payment the fleece on once-shorn yearlings marketed for slaughter must be at least one-and-a-half inches long.

Mr. Reeves said, "Growers who sell lambs or yearlings should have in mind that the owner of the lambs and yearlings for at least 30 days before slaughter is entitled to the wool payment. If lambs are bought and held by the purchaser for less than 30 days, the payment goes to the previous 30-day owner."

Forms for wool growers to make application for payment under the program are available at county ASC offices. Chairman Reeves said, "Applications should be sent in as soon after the sale as possible and must be in by April 30, 1956. Rates of payment can be determined only after all sales records are in," he added.

Psittacosis in human beings appears to be increasing in the U. S. Recent figures show the number of such cases reported the first five months of 1955 was equal to the total for 1954. Psittacosis is a disease of birds, particularly parrots and parakeets which is communicable to man, marked by high fever and pulmonary disorders.

Since canaries are very susceptible to infection from malaria-carrying mosquitoes, it is necessary to keep them effectively screened to keep infected mosquitoes away.

When handling canaries, parakeets or other small pet birds, it must be remembered that fright or extreme excitement is enough to cause death.

The American Veterinary Medical Assn., advises vaccination of the family dog as a guard against rabies. Certain vaccines will protect the animal for about three years.

I don't know why gossip is ever called idle. It's about the busiest form of verbal exercise I know!

Character is a strong man's armour, but it can be rusted away by the clammy touch of gossip.

Courage is always worth looking for and worthwhile when you find it.

There's nothing wrong about daydreaming. But, if it's a private matter, don't make it public.

The way to get over a difficult hurdle is to pretend it never existed.

Visitors over the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baumgardner were Dr. and Mrs. George Baumgardner and son, John; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hoskins and children, Sharyn and Jay, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Meskill. Mr. Meskill left Monday for Mortician School in New York City.

Joshua Gillelan and son, Baltimore, visited Wednesday of last week with the Misses Ruth and Rhoda Gillelan.

John Beagle, Brown McNair, and Dale Deatherage, U. S. Army, stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., are spending several weeks' furlough with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ohler have returned to their home in Philadelphia, Pa., after visiting with Edwin F. Ohler.

Miss Harriet R. Fite, State Teachers College, Towson, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Fite. Miss Fite, a freshman at Towson, is a graduate of Emmitsburg High School with the class of '55 as an honor student.

a REALLY new idea in carpeting!

Imagine a sun-flecked carpet, sparkling with color, made of the springiest, curliest, pure wool you've ever seen! That's new SUN TWEED—an entirely different kind of carpet, woven of a patented CURLY yarn, thickly tufted for luxurious softness underfoot. This is a carpet that will wear and wear because every tuft is locked in. Its rubberized underlayment, too, so it can't slide on polished floors. The colors are SENSATIONAL—ten new decorator color mixtures that have the latest high-fashion "tweed" look. Easy to match with all styles of furniture, in every room. You're sure to want several for your home... and you're sure to get years and years of honest value... in SUN TWEED.
