Proof that our President isn't too big a fellow to lend assistance to a little fellow in distress, was manifested this week when President Eisenhower, on the way to his nearby farm, stopped to lend a hand to a local motorist whose car had slipped off the highway and into a ditch.

The story has it that Ike was traveling the Old Frederick Road just south of town last Thursday and was headed toward Emmitsburg. Two local fellows had the misfortune of sliding off the icy highway and landing in a gutter. Just about that time the presidential entourage came speeding by. The President, observing the party in distress, quickly ordered his party to stop and had his escorts pull the car out of the ditch by the medium of a set of tire chains. In a few short minutes the car was righted and the President was on his way, leaving the local men gaping in amazement. It's the little acts of kindness like this that makes a fellow or gal feel like life isn't vain and that everyone isn't against you. I'll bet one thing certain, and that is the President has two new staunch supporters as the result of this humanitarian act. It proved once again that our Chief Executive is a man of noble and kind spirit, as it has been manifested many times in the past. I wouldn't advise any of you to make a "rocket" out of this sort of thing though, because you might be badly fooled! Many thanks, Mr. President.

You've heard the traffic fatality reports of the big week-ends many times over and were aghast at what was happening when 600 met their Grim Reaper recently, due to traffic accidents. But how many of you know actually how many are killed in an average year? The figure for the Nation's traffic dead for 1955 has been released and totals a ghastly 38,000. Can you imagine this useless slaughter continuing year after year and the results fail to stem the rising increase in the total number killed and maimed every year? This killing is equivalent to taking the whole population of Frederick, Gettysburg and Waynesboro, and slaughtering it. If these broken bodies could all be buried in one common grave it might serve as a vivid example and make a deeper impression on some of the foolish motorists traveling the highways today. Law enforcement or more police isn't the answer to the dilemma. This is evidenced by the number of crimes committed, regardless of the size of a police force. Education of the driver as to his or her responsibilities is the only way we can diminish the high total of highway fatalities and the sooner we have this type of training in our schools, the longer some of us will be able to enjoy life. The automobile is the Number One Killer in the country today, regardless of all other types of accidents! Not a very pleasant thought, is it?

I can't help but admire the courage and stamina which the little Negro co-ed at Alabama U is displaying during the present distasteful activities going on as to her right to attend the university. Her life has been threatened and she has been molested numerous times and insulted. She has the grit to stick it out though, and I believe she'll win this battle of race discrimination now going on in the South. Her parents and she herself, pay taxes for the support of the school and she is just as much entitled to matriculate there as any "white" student. She has issued an ultimatum to the effect that the school must accept her or else she'll take up this question of her constitutional rights with the proper authorities—the Supreme Court. This disgraceful matter must be brought to a head and settled to the satisfaction of all. The little gal is not without friends and supporters in her struggle. She has the backing of the faculty of the school, if not the board of trustees. It's a touchy and ticklish situation and represents a veritable powder keg as it is, so until this matter is settled there'll be many a heartache and worried mind once more in the South.

Second Polio Shots Being Given Here

Dr. Forbes Burgess, Frederick County health officer, announced this week that he believed the county had ample supplies of Salk vaccine for administering the second shot series to county children under 16 years of age, despite the shortage in other sections of the nation.

Since the county health office started early in giving the shots, we are fortunate consequently, in having an adequate supply on hand for second shots only. No more first shots can be given until the supply situation changes, he said.

The health office began Monday to give second shots of the vaccine at Winchester Hall.

Dr. Burgess reiterated "those children who received their first shots four weeks ago should be inoculated this week. In other words there must be a four-week interval between the first and second shots. As for the third and final shot, we have made tentative plans to administer it in six or seven months from the time of the second inoculation."

The county health department inoculated some 3350 children with the initial shot of the Salk vaccine, according to Dr. Burgess.

Present plans called for the Emmitsburg clinic, which takes care of residents of the northern part of the county, to begin giving these second shots on Thursdays, Feb. 9 and 23, and on Tuesdays, Feb. 14, 21, and 28. Clinic hours will be 10:30 until 11:30 in the morning on these days. The health clinic is in the American Legion Home and will be in charge of Dr. Charles R. Williams.

According to present plans those children who received the first inoculation on January 17 are due back for the second shot on Tuesday, Feb. 14. Those on January 24 are due Feb. 21; those on January 26 return Feb. 23 and those on January 31 will be administered the second inoculation on Feb. 28.

Firemen Will Sponsor First Aid Class

The American Red Cross stand-first aid course, for all interested persons, will be held at the fire hall under the sponsorship of the Vigilant Hose Co., it has been announced.

The Civil Defense Commission, the Red Cross, and all Federal, State and municipal authorities have urged these courses be available to the general public.

The proper handling and temporary care of all sick or injured persons before the services of a physician or ambulance can be secured is an invaluable knowledge and benefit to everyone.

All interested persons, male or female, above the age of 16, may enroll simply by signing their name on the bulletin board at the Fire Hall. An orientation meeting at the Hall has been scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 16 at 7:30 p. m. when details of the course will be explained. Present plans call for all possible effort to start the class on a day selected at the orientation meeting during the week beginning Feb. 20.

The course consists of 10 classes after which time a certified American Red Cross card, good for a period of three years, will be presented to those who successfully complete the course.

The Vigilant Hose Co. is endeavoring to have as many firemen trained in first aid as possible. Because many of the members are now attending the advanced fire fighting course conducted by the University of Maryland, not enough firemen to constitute a first aid course are available, leaving vacancies for all other interested persons.

Scout Officials Thankful For Local Cooperation

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle: We wish to take this opportunity during National Boy Scout Week, to express our thanks to the people of Emmitsburg and vicinity for their cooperation and help in getting the Boy Scouts firmly established in Emmitsburg.

We feel that Troop 284 is here to stay! Boy Scouting in America has been going on since 1910—46 years. We want every boy between the ages of 11 and 18 to know he is eligible to join the Boy Scouts of America.

Already we are planning for a very active spring and summer with as many days out as possible. This outdoor living is what the boys seem to like and the Scouts must learn to work and play together; respect mother nature, and the property of others. This is all learned living in the open. Scouting is some of the best training for the youth of our community.

We wish it known that we will do our best in the year to come and help the boys learn and do all that is expected of them—as Boy Scouts!

Yours for better Scouting,
Scoutmasters of Troop 284

Lent Starts

Wednesday

THIS IS LENT

Some of us consider Lent a Sacred Season. It is a special season of our church year when we try to be more earnest in "Taking up our Cross and following the One Who carried The Cross up to Calvary for us—for our salvation. "God so loved" us that He sent His Son—For Us! That is the truth that makes Lent so sacred and so precious. God is in Christ bringing us sinners back to God, our Father and home. Lent is the call of Christ to every one to come to His Church. Come and seek and receive Him in the Sacraments and prayer and worship. Everyone is welcome in every church in this community.

Woody Stoner, although fouled in the attempt, shot the ball, dropping it through the net breaking the tie. He made the foul shot cinching the game for us. R. Glass of EHS and T. Stoner, SJHS, both with 19 points, were high scorers of the evening. Close behind was J. Adelsberger with 18 points.

RESPONSIBILITY: Every American citizen has a responsibility and the greatest asset any family can possess is the proof of their substantiality and reliability in the training of their own children. Children reflect the minds of the parents, as a rule, and often reveal the thoughts of the parents.

A juvenile delinquent is most often the result of improper training and when a parent finds he needs advice, then it is best to seek it from the proper sources and there is no better than that of the Hon. J. Edgar Hoover. It is recommended that his article reprinted from This Week as supplied to the Chronicle should be read by every parent.

PEOPLE: As we all know "People Are Funny," as Art Linkletter has often said, and continues to say each week. On one occasion he sent a man on Hollywood Blvd. and gave him several $10 bills and a $100 bill to sell to the sidewalk traffic at 10 percent on the dollar. Oddly enough he tried to sell the bills for 10 minutes without success. He returned with all the bills. "People are indeed funny," Right under their noses can be a valuable product and it can be advertised for one-tenth of its value, or even less, and people will say "What's wrong with it?" Suspicion is one thing, but when it lessens a man's better judgment he might profit if he started thinking.

INVESTMENTS: Anyone invests into his future when he buys a product, whether it be real estate, stock, or in some business venture. There is an element of chance in everything in life. There is no such thing as a sure thing. Death can stop anything we start and regardless of what we possess or might profit in, we can't take it with us.

REPUTATION: A man's reputation hangs in the balance according to the whims of the public and their reactions to him. Mass psychology is basically revealed in what hearsay has often interposed on numerous individuals. In the old days many a man was hung on a tree limb just because of what someone said. This was evidenced in the story of the little colored boy from Chicago who was shot to death by irritated citizens in a Southern state, because of a minor breach of social ethics which he had been accustomed to in the City of strong winds. The winds of the people proved the strongest. Gossip can condemn anyone without a fair trial, and it is sometimes too late to retract a diabolical act of injustice. A man's reputation, his family's security, and the future happiness of anyone, can hang on the single false statement of an individual. We can not guard our remarks too carefully.

BRIGHTER SIDE: We all see a brighter side of life when we help one another. If we live according to the Golden Rule, we find that life offers many wonderful inducements and when we selfishly think of ourselves first we find an emptiness of loneliness and unhappiness. For it is written: "It is more blessed to give

SPORTS AFIELD

It has been proved scientifically and times without number that neither civilized nor primitive men have any homing instinct or a compass in their heads, such than it is to receive."

LOVE: "Love one another." What greater command is there in a spiritual reflection for personal comfort? Hate anyone and the mind is contaminated with confusion and self resentment, for no man can hate another and feel right about it. To forgive one another is man's greatest privilege and if there is no forgiveness in his heart, he has something to think about, for in his own heart is a steel barrier which needs to be melted so the blood can run freely with warmth and understanding. A hardened heart is a serious condition, physically or mentally.

SUCCESS: Success is not measured by what we possess but in what we give to the world. Not what we take out of it, but put into it. Profitable ventures are one thing and essential to man's existence, but when he does so causing the injury to another he has made a scar which can not be healed. Success is measured by man's sacrifices and his willingness to help his neighbors regardless of what the opinions of others might be. No one need be a failure.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

This being an election year, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson finds many ready to tell him about birds and bees.

Perhaps not birds, but assuredly bees, because honey, stored in 50 gallon drums, is one of the farm commodities held by the government to the tune of almost $8 billion. Storage costs alone run around $800,000 per day.

Indeed, Secretary Benson has large problems. For example, he has C. W. Harder about $2 billion worth of wheat he would gladly give away to foreign nations, with U. S. paying all transportation costs.

There is also over 8 million bales of government owned surplus cotton. An attempt is now being made to shuck off a million or so bales to foreign nations at a price between 6 and 8 cents per pound under prevailing market.

This does not make foreign cotton producing nations happy. Neither does it gladden American textile manufacturers fighting for life against flood of cheap textile imports made by labor paid as little as 14 cents per hour. They just can't see the justice of subsidizing these foreign competitors at U. S. taxpayers' expense by giving them cheaper cotton.

Actually, price of quality cotton is held to be too low. But market is glutted with short staple cotton... less than one inch. This junk cotton is what the government is getting. So U. S. taxpayers are getting the short end of the cotton, too.

There could perhaps be some justification if billions were helping family sized, independent farms. But figures prove otherwise. For example, in 1954, average loan by government on cotton price support was $289.

But huge British owned Delta & Pine Land Co. in Mississippi received from government for unsold cotton $1,292,742.

The Delta and Pine Land incident is just one of many causing embarrassment in Washington.

So Benson proposes setting up plan to change land from surplus crop production acreage to soil building acreage. Thus, wheat and corn land would be taken out of production, planted to trees and grass.

Plan envisions farmer being paid for cost of planting and also reimbursed for an annual return from these diverted acres.

But to avoid any more million dollar plus government payments to huge corporation farms, Secretary Benson proposes to limit payments to any one farmer to $5000 per year.

This viewpoint is not going to influence people and win friends for Benson in some quarters.

It will be interesting to see what happens to his proposals. Many observers feel Secretary Benson in past three years would have made great strides with farm situation if there had not been so many throwing banana peels in his path.

Unfortunately, when agricultural secretaries retire, they do not write their memoirs.

Because Secretary Benson could undoubtedly write a most engrossing book, even perhaps selecting as a title "Boobytraps I Found Along the Potomac."

as displayed by migratory birds and fish. An Indian cannot find his way through country he does not know. On a one-day trip he might be able to find his route back by following his trail home, but he couldn't do it on a longer outing.

Occasionally we hear an old woodsman say he can find his way anywhere, that he never gets lost, and does not need a compass. He may honestly think so, but on careful investigation we find that he subconsciously obeys one rule.

The rule? It's as easy as falling off a log, according to Col. Townsend Whelen, camping editor of Sports Afield magazine: always keep track of the directions and distances of your wanderings. You know where you have gone, therefore where you are. At first this requires that attention be given to directions and distances, but after a time it becomes automatic.

Actually, this rule may be translated: Use common sense. This involves always taking the precaution to keep yourself oriented, which means that you are sure of your directions at all times. It also involves remembering how far you have gone in a certain direction.

Keeping oriented is easy in clear weather—being able to see the sky, the sun, moon and stars will tell you the points of the compass. But a compass is essential on a cloudy day or night, when there are no recognizable landmarks. Put one of those guys who boast that they have a compass in their heads adrift in a small boat on a large lake in a fog, and see where he comes out!

Knowing how to gauge distance is very important if you are not to get lost. In most rough countries the distance you travel in any recorded direction is best kept track by time. On level ground and a good trail you cover about three miles in an hour. As the going gets harder, your time-distance becomes less; in very steep, rough country it may be not more than half a mile in an hour.

If you catch a fish with no food in him it doesn't necessarily mean that he hasn't eaten recently—he may have regurgitated just before or after taking the lure.—Sports Afield

HOW TO DRIVE AT NIGHT

by CAROL LANE
WOMEN'S TRAVEL DIRECTOR
SHELL OIL COMPANY

SPECIAL GOGGLES, LENSES OR OTHER GIMMICKS ARE NOT NECESSARY FOR NIGHTTIME DRIVING—BUT A FEW SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS ARE.

HAVE YOUR HEAD AND TAIL LIGHTS CAREFULLY CHECKED. GLARING HEADLIGHTS ARE A HAZARD TO OTHER MOTORISTS; DIM LIGHTS, A DANGER TO YOU.

BE SURE YOUR CAR IS IN GOOD WORKING ORDER, BECAUSE BREAKDOWNS ARE MORE SERIOUS AFTER DARK. BETTER CARRY A PLUG-IN LIGHT OR A FLARE TO LIGHT YOUR WORK AND WARN OTHER MOTORISTS.

REMEMBER TO DRIVE MORE SLOWLY BECAUSE YOUR DISTANCE VISION ISN'T SO GOOD. DON'T BE SPARING WITH YOUR HEADLIGHT DIMMER. IF YOU'LL PRACTICE HIGHWAY ETIQUETTE AND DIM YOUR LIGHTS, CHANCES ARE THE APPROACHING MOTORIST WILL FOLLOW SUIT.

LAST, BUT PROBABLY MOST IMPORTANT, BE SURE OF YOUR DIRECTIONS. IT'S EASY TO LOSE YOUR WAY AFTER DARK WHEN HIGHWAY SIGNS ARE HARD TO SEE.

For Winter Breakfasts—Hot Soup!

Looking for a good way to say "Good Morning?" Serve your family steaming bowls of their favorite soup for breakfast—see what a difference it makes these crisp mornings! Soup is ideal for breakfast—quick and easy to prepare, stimulating (without being a stimulant) and a good mixer for serving with all popular breakfast foods. Choose from the great variety of canned soups, and serve new ones from day to day to make breakfasts more interesting.

Here are some good ways to make breakfast soups even more special:

Serve croutons with cream soups. Cut bread into squares, oblongs or triangles, toast and add to soup.

Combine two kinds of soup. You'll discover many good combinations—so different-tasting, they seem almost like new soups!

Add a pat of butter to bowls or cups of soup just before serving—an easy way to make this tempting breakfast treat even better.

Big Step Toward Soundness

There has been a great deal of concern expressed among sober-thinking people as a result of the proposed upturn in Federal government expenditures as recommended in President Eisenhower's budget message. The concern is, I think, well founded; but there is a comforting factor in the budget message. For the first time in 25 years we have the prospect of a balanced budget as a result of deliberate planning. This means, if Congress approves the budget as submitted, that our Federal government will be adopting a fiscal program of pay-as-you-go.

So far as the future of our country is concerned, and with it the long-range welfare of all of us, this long-delayed action outweighs the disturbing fact of a rising Federal governmental cost. As a general rule the citizens of America would not trouble themselves individually to take collective action toward cutting down governmental expenses so long as a good portion of the rise was being financed with borrowed money and with little pain to the taxpayer.

Touching Your Pocketbook

With a pay-as-you-go operating plan, however, the government will find it more difficult to hide its extravagancies, and the taxpayer will be more directly affected—in his personal pocketbook—by the ups and downs of Federal spending.

A small-town banker friend of mine recently remarked about several little business bankruptcies in his bank's service territory. "Any business that keeps a good set of books," he said, "is not likely to go bankrupt." He meant that a businessman who was constantly aware of his true financial condition and the detailed operation of his business would seldom get into such a financial hole that his business would go bankrupt. This fact explains the reason investors examine so closely the financial statement of a company before they buy stock in it.

Sound Financing Required

People who save a few dollars a month out of their earnings, by practicing thrift and denying themselves things they would like to have, do not wish to invest this savings in a business which has a big debt and yet, over the years, has continued to increase that debt—regardless of how big its sales and income may be. In the business world, there is a group of companies whose common stock has come to be known as "blue chip" stock. Over a period of many years these companies have had efficient management, have shown sound progress, have paid back their borrowings in a reasonable time, and have seldom, if ever missed a dividend.

Stock in these companies is designated "blue chip" because it is valued highest in the investment world. In contrast, the stocks of companies whose financial statements reflect a chronic inability to meet the strict demands of sound fiscal policy, do not attract buyers; and unless they change their ways they usually fail.

The Nation's Stake

Nations too can fail, can go bankrupt—as history shows. And one of the surest ways to national bankruptcy is the decay of monetary responsibility in the government of a nation. With scarcely a notable exception, the national debt has been rising each year for the last 25. Taxpayers now are paying out approximately $7 billion a year in interest alone on this huge debt—and this is about as much as all the taxpayers in America—corporations and individuals—were paying for all Federal governmental services just 20 years ago, in 1935.

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat of Virginia and widely acknowledged authority on public finance, and Senator Styles Bridges, Republican of New Hampshire, ranking minority member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, have jointly introduced a resolution in Congress providing for a constitutional amendment which would prohibit an unbalanced Federal budget—except in times of war or other national emergency. If approved by Congress and the states, the amendment would require Congress to stay in session each year until it had produced a balanced budget by reduction in expenditures, increased revenue, or both. This legislative step commands the serious attention of any citizen interested in his personal welfare and the future of his nation.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

A large number of both 'pro' and 'con' letters, postcards, and telegrams poured into my office in connection with the Senate's two-week debate on the Natural Gas Act.

"Your vote for this bill," warned one constituent, "is my vote for anyone opposing you in the next election."

Another voter wrote: "It is my strong desire, request and demand that you vote against the bill."

Too Many Controls

On the other hand, one of the numerous supporters of the bill went to great lengths to explain that "the Federal government is imposing too many controls which hamper the free enterprise system which made our country great."

I was also advised: "Do not be misled by those who continually seek to impose governmental control on every phase of business and every act of the people in the guise of 'protecting us'..."

I gave careful consideration to all the communications, but it was obvious that some persons were merely echoing newspaper advertisements rather than voicing opinions obtained by studying both sides of the question.

This was particularly noticeable when hundreds of similarly worded cards addressed to "James G. Beall—a variation of my name which is very rarely used—arrived immediately after my name had been printed in that manner in a public advertisement criticizing the bill.

The Other Side

I realize that in such complicated matters it is often necessary for many people to reply on what is told them by others. However, I found it especially refreshing to discover that so many Marylanders who had heard the bill condemned asked me to explain "the other side."

Here, then, are a few of the many points which I considered in making my decision:

1. The bill was written to apply only to producers, and not to the pipeline operators or local distributors, who would be kept under present controls.

2. During the 16 years from 1938 thru 1953, when the only regulation on the producers was free competition, the price of gas on a national average rose less than five cents per 1000 cubic feet, which was less than the increase in the general cost of living for the same period.

3. Every one of the numerous Congressional committees that ever studied the matter, including an advisory group appointed by President Eisenhower, came to the conclusion that passage of the measure would best serve the public interest and assure an abundant supply of low-cost gas for consumers.

4. If natural-gas fields were to be placed under strict controls, then the government might logically try to regulate the operations surrounding other resources such as coal, timber, or even oysters and tobacco.

With the facts presented by both sides in mind, I asked myself: How can we best assure that there will be first, an adequate supply of gas, and, second, a proper price range? It was on those considerations that I decided which way to cast my vote.

*HOW GOOD A PARENT ARE YOU?

By John Edgar Hoover, Director Federal Bureau of Investigation
United States Department of Justice

(*Reprinted with permission from the April 20, 1947 issue of THIS WEEK Magazine.)

In 23 years as director of the FBI, I have found that juvenile criminals are generally the products of neglect and improper training. The actions of the majority of them were—and are—directly related to the conduct of their parents.

I know, of course, that inadequate schools, insufficient government facilities, apathetic communities share the blame for the shocking fact that 108,000 youngsters under 21 were arrested last year. But the most important cause of all, I feel, is what should be called parental, not juvenile, delinquency. Our experience shows that American parents are guilty of seven major "crimes." I call them crimes advisedly—because they lead to crime. I'm going to give actual case histories from the files of the FBI to illustrate those seven types of parental delinquency and to show the dreadful consequences of them.

NEGLECT

Thirteen-year-old George led a group of boys in the burglarizing and burning of a bowling alley. Behind his crime was the greater one of his parents. Both father and mother were employed. George worked at the bowling alley until after midnight. He came home when he pleased. On Saturday his parents would pick him up as late as 2 a. m., after returning from parties. George slept late. He was expected to cook his own breakfast, and though he was provided money for lunch he usually spent it at a soda fountain or in playing slot machines. He attended school only when he chose. His antisocial attitude was directly attributable to a run-down physical condition occasioned by total neglect on the part of his parents.

BROKEN HOMES

Children are also the innocent victims of divorce. They pay the consequences of parental irresponsibility and selfishness. I know that it is old-fashioned to hold that the breaking of a home by divorce is a serious lapse, but if more unhappy parents considered the consequences of putting their desires before duty to their children there would be fewer juvenile delinquents. To the everlasting credit of many men and women whose marriages leave something to be desired, they have placed their children's happiness above their own, held their homes together, and through their unselfishness have given their children a measure of security and love.

I wish all parents who contemplate breaking up their homes might see the case histories that cross my desk.

John's story is no different from hundreds of others. A teenage boy, he was arrested for stealing a truck and driving it across a state line. The events leading up to the crime? John's parents separated before he could crawl. He was left with anyone available while his father was at work. Shifting for himself, without competent guidance and supervision, John began to cheat, lie, and steal. At 13 the gutter was his school; the back alley his home. Belatedly alarmed, the father substituted harsh words and whippings for understanding and firm patience. Concerned with his own pleasures, he let the boy shift for himself between whippings. John burned down a school, set fire to a house, ran away from his so-called home and, after an arrest for burglary, was placed in a reformatory. On release he entered the Navy but soon deserted. That's his history to date.

John can become another Dillinger unless his liberty is restricted or unless he is rehabilitated.

Your

Personal Health

In the past, sympathy was almost the only help available to the tragic victims of hemiplegia. Half paralyzed, unable to care for themselves, often unable even to speak, they have crowded nursing homes and institutions for custodial care. Recent developments, however, have proved that many of these people can be rehabilitated.

The name for the paralysis of one side of the body comes from two Greek words meaning "half stroke." It is usually the result of brain damage following thrombosis, embolism, hemorrhage, or an injury. There are no definite statistics on the number of hemiplegics in the U. S., but estimates run as high as 1.5 million.

The majority do not die of a first stroke. They improve to a greater or lesser degree, and often live a number of years despite their disabilities. Usually considered a hopeless case, the hemiplegic until recently has received little or no special care or rehabilitation services.

Experience has now proved that with a dynamic rehabilitation approach, the hemiplegic is not a lost cause. Many can be taught to walk again, to care for themselves, and even to do gainful work.

Among methods used to prevent and treat deformities are exercises, heat, massage, and various mechanical devices such as pulleys, splints, and braces. As quickly as possible after the stroke the patient should begin learning to use the unaffected limbs to perform the activities of daily living. A right-handed person who has suffered a right hemiplegia will have to learn to eat, to dress himself, and to write with his left hand. And while he is learning these one-handed skills retraining of the affected arm is begun.

Many patients have a complete return of function if the muscle education is given carefully over a long period of time. Others will be left with varying degrees of permanent disability. But even with these patients, much can be done with simple mechanical devices to enable them to achieve lives of independence and usefulness.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By U. S. Congressman
DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—It disturbs me each time I see Armed Forces' statistics on physical fitness rejections and Public Health reports on the incidence of certain types of disease. The problem is basically our lack of fundamental research in the causes and treatment of illnesses. I personally was pleased that the President in his special Health message placed major emphasis on long-range research into our health problems.

I was also impressed with the President's suggestion that the solution to the cost of medical care might be found in a plan which would provide for private health insurance groups sharing and pooling their risks. This would allow them to offer broader benefits and expanded coverage at cheaper rates. Such a plan, though would require some adjustment in the application of anti-trust laws.

I wish to thank all those who have written me expressing their views on Federal aid to school construction. I am particularly pleased with those letters which carefully stated the reasons which led the writer to his particular view. I am still desirous of learning the opinion of the majority on this issue. As you know, I remain open-minded on this issue.

Veterans or their survivors will approve the House of Representatives' action which prohibits the Defense Dept. from charging a fee for replacing lost discharges

Congressional Viewpoint

By U. S. Sen. John M. Butler

WASHINGTON—When all of the confusing language is shorn from the present natural gas discussions on the Fulbright-Harris bill in the Senate the issue is clearly revealed as another controversy between adherents of free enterprise versus the purveyors of socialistic theories.

The role of natural gas in our free enterprise system—a freely competitive way of life, which has made this Nation strong and great—is important. In preserving this proven concept of government and living, the Eisenhower administration, in fulfillment of its pledge to the people, has completely removed wage and price controls. If the pending Fulbright-Harris bill is defeated, then the idea of Federal controls is merely extended and not checked. And, if controls are placed on natural gas, what is to be next—or certificates of service.

Farmers will be benefited thru House passage of a measure to relieve them from payment of Federal taxes on gasoline used in agricultural activities.

it is conceivable that other fuels, other commodities, will come in for some type of governmental regulation.

As an answer to the argument that passage of the Fulbright-Harris bill will raise the price to the consumer, it must be emphasized that the measure contains the protection sought by all thinking Americans. Even if the keen competition in the field among some 8000 producers were not a sufficient self-regulator of price, proposed price revisions will continue to be reviewed by the Federal Power Commission. Also, this legislation does not reek with monopoly, as a few gerrymanderers contend, for no single producer accounts for as much as five per cent of all gas used in the U. S.

Since many sections of the country, like our own, must rely largely on natural gas, it is only proper that we should be concerned with the problem of adequate supplies now and in the future. At best, the exploration for, and development of, as gas well is a costly and risky proposition and cannot be undertaken in a regulated and regimented atmosphere. If well completions in this country decrease as they did last year, consumers will be at the mercy of Canadian and Mexican

This Time, Build A Lifetime Fence

Good fences make good farmers, and the best buy in fences is the one you build once—and can forget for the next 30 years and more!

Of course, it is only as good as the corners or ends you give it. The Rosemount corner, illustrated above from "Building Better Farm Fences," by J. R. Neetzel (U. of Minn. Extension Bulletin 272), is one of the best. In actual tests, farm machinery has broken through fence wires without dislodging these corners.

Durable posts are essential, too, and that means wooden posts pressure-treated with penta to resist termites and decay for at least 30 years. With them, you get not only long service life but superior strength and resistance to overturning as well.

And they are economical. Penta pressure-treated posts, such as yellow pine, will provide a fence which far outlasts untreated posts from the heartwood of even the most durable woods. You can use posts of smaller diameter, too, three-inch to four-inch posts being adequate for line construction.

Here is a quick check list to follow in your fence construction:

Anchor your fence firmly with well-constructed end and corner sections like the above.

Use wooden posts, pressure-treated with penta for a service life of 30 years and more. Three-inch to four-inch posts for line construction; as indicated above for ends and corners.

Set the posts easily and economically with a power post driver. Avoid stretching the wire too tightly, and don't stretch barbed wire with machinery.

Fasten the wire to the posts with 1 1/2-inch or longer galvanized staples, angling them into the wood and against the wire's direction of pull.

Leave sufficient room under the staple for the wire to move freely.

4-H Vows Year Round Safe Driving

More than two million 4-H boys and girls have tied a string around their finger that may save their lives.

Sparked by the eight top 4-H safety winners of General Motors college scholarships, these vigorous teen-agers have promised President Eisenhower to constantly remind themselves to make every day "Safe Driving Day."

And he, in congratulating them, declared that "4-H Club members can contribute much in their own driving and in their influence with others toward this goal."

The national winners met newsmen in Chicago at the 34th National 4-H Club Congress to which they and 33 other state 4-H Farm and Home Safety winners received all-expense trips from GM.

Urge Better Roads and Better Highways

"Traffic carelessness is the number one danger in farm areas just as in the city," they agreed. "The highway death toll can be cut only if we insist on better roads and better driver training to keep pace with today's better cars."

A typical national winner was Frankie Keith, 17 of Frederick, Oklahoma, who has been broadcasting a 15 minute traffic safety program over a local radio station for the past two years.

"I urge everyone to practice Christian driving," she said, "Let's put the Golden Rule to work on America's Highways."

Keep Community Accident Conscious

Other national scholarship winners are Clifton Benton, 17, Covington, La.; Leo S. Martin, 18, Otterbein, Ind.; Carl W. Bond, 18, Colfax, Iowa; La Donna Dirks, 17, Dodge City, Kansas; Mary Burwell Davis, 18, Warrenton, N. C.; Clayton Senecal, 15, Rutland, Vt.; and Peggy J. Hansen, 17, Lusk, Wyo.

Nine times more 4-H youths are active in safety work today than when General Motors first became awards donor for the program 11 years ago. Leaders expect this "safety army" to continue growing.

gas which are already being marketed at prices twice those prevailing in the U. S. The effect of this possibility on the family gas bill is readily apparent.

In a free economy, cheaper and better goods and services follow from competition and production, and in the case of natural gas, the Fulbright-Harris bill can do much to stimulate that process. Price-fixing of this essential natural resource can only serve to limit supply and to create a dangerous socialistic trend. For these reasons, I shall vote for the bill.

A "How-To-Do-It" PAINT POINTERS

A floor may be power-sanded and re-done with two coats in one day, using penetrating wood finish. This is a clear, varnish-like material that enhances the natural grain of the wood and is preferred by many homeowners.

Penetrating wood finish, or sealer, is simply swabbed on and allowed to soak in for 15 minutes. Then the floor is wiped dry. After a couple of hours the process is repeated. Varnish or wax may be applied next day but two coats of the sealer alone provide a beautiful surface that will stand a lot of traffic for a long time.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

For some time, certain factors in Washington have been giving attention to problem of adequate supplies of reasonably priced newsprint to sustain nation's independent, free press.

For years American press has been dependent upon foreign newsprint, even though nation has huge supplies of standing pulpwood. Through monopolistic practices, these foreign newsprint producers, chiefly Canadian, have constantly raised newsprint prices until life of many independent newspapers is endangered.

The smaller, independent weekly and daily newspapers, the last vigilant guardians of the freedom of the press, are the chief concern as many of the big publishing combines have their own newsprint operations.

Unfortunately, it requires a huge investment to start a newsprint plant. For strange unexplained reasons, U. S. paper producers do not seem anxious to develop an adequate domestic newsprint supply.

So announcement by Wendell Barnes, administrator of the Small Business Administration, released by Senate Small Business Committee, is of considerable interest.

Barnes reports Small Business Administration is considering plans whereby groups of independent publishers could get financing to organize cooperative newsprint mills.

Of course, there will be opposition. National Federation of Independent Business tion to this suggestion on grounds government should not encourage cooperative ventures to compete with private enterprise.

Yet, question will boil down to this. "Should government refrain from encouraging American owned cooperatives when they will compete with foreign monopolies?"

Issue seems clearcut as that.

At same time, if such a plan is adopted, extreme caution will have to be exercised to make sure it does not open door for government encroachment upon free press.

This will be important consideration. As is well known, both radio and television stations in this nation operate under a government permit system. Broadcast licenses can be suspended almost at will.

Radio and television program content is still relatively free from government dictation, but perhaps only because nation's independent press would be first to take up cudgels if bureaucrats openly attempted to suppress freedom of the airwaves.

It is significant, along this line, that in past few years, in so-called "Public service" time which stations must run to hold licenses, broadcast material has been heavily loaded with propaganda films extolling virtues of world wide give-away programs. This could be an indication of the shape of things to come if nation's free press were permitted to succumb to greed of foreign newsprint monopolies.

It is to be expected that whether or not Barnes' plan is adopted, this session of Congress will find renewed attention being given to the future of the free press in the nation.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Feb. 9—With all this talk today about President Eisenhower retiring from the Presidency

I grasp the opportunity to discuss the general problem of retirement as applicable to officials and to wage earners of corporations.

Compulsory Retirement Plans

Probably a compulsory retirement plan is wise for most business organizations; at least, so far as it applies to the specific position which the man holds. This, however, should not necessarily mean that he would leave the employ of the company. The present custom of demoting active presidents to inactive chairmen of the board might be applied to other officers and even foremen. There should be some happy medium between dropping an employee entirely and thereby losing the benefit of his years of experience, and continuing him with the business in some capacity.

Although age may not be a good yardstick, yet it is one measure of a person's energy. I forecast the time when accountants will insist that their annual audits show the age of all officers and important foremen, and probably the age of the directors. Retirement, however, should be decided from many standpoints. Age is one definite factor.

Consider Character of Work

Another important consideration is the character of work which an executive should do after he is 65 or 70 years of age. I seriously question whether it is advisable for such a man to be kept in a position requiring energy or important decisions. There are many other phases of work that he could do excellently, such as serving as employment manager, or in public relations. These are positions which require ability that can be secured only by experience.

Therefore, I appeal for the practice of changing a man's work after he reaches the retirement age, but not necessarily making him retire from the company. This especially applies today when surgery and medicine have overcome many of the effects of age. The study of old age has already become a science, known as Gerontology. Two of the best authorities are Dwight S. Sargent of the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York City, and Prof. Ward C. Halstead of Chicago University. Why should "compulsory retirement" require 100 per cent retirement? A man might go on half time after he reaches 65 or 70. It seems wrong, from both the individual's and the company's standpoint, to make him retire altogether. It certainly should be possible to have one job continued by two men, both of whom would be acquainted with the work.

Importance of Youth

Perhaps too much consideration has been given to a "retirement age" and too little to a "promotion age." If a person is to be retired at a certain age, it seems only reasonable that he should have been promoted at a certain age. An old saying is—"It's a poor rule which does not work both ways." I consider that this suggestion is very important. Youth is very valuable to a business. We should learn to respect the suggestions of younger people.

The growth of most businesses is due to the influence of youth within the business. As people get older, their judgment is influenced by a natural increased conservatism and timidity. It is necessary that every automobile have brakes; but it is important that these brakes be adjusted so that they wear only when the brakes are intended to be on.

Beware Of Investing After Retirement

In closing this column, let me call to your attention two dangerous temptations which face all persons who retire:

(1) A man who has made a success in his regular business too often thinks he can make a success in any business. This is a great mistake. Therefore, such a man should never start a new business and, if possible, should avoid taking a position in any business very different from the one to which he has given his life.

(2) After a person retires from business and has become

"itchy" for something to do, he may be offered a position which looks attractive, but has a "hook" in the bait. This hook is that he must invest some money in the enterprise. In three cases out of four, such an investment is very dangerous to make and the money is lost. Finally, do not let anyone get money from you by flattery and telling you how smart you are. Vanity and pride are the two most expensive luxuries.

Polio Serum

Shortage Looms

Dr. Edward Davens, deputy director, State Health Dept., and Dr. Huntington Williams, Commissioner of Health, Baltimore City, made the following statement on the shortage of the Salk vaccine:

There is apparently some public misunderstanding about whether or not there is at present in the Maryland counties available poliomyelitis vaccine for families who wish it for eligible children under 16 years of age and over one year old. The truth is that there is practically no such vaccine to be had and none has been received in the State for the past six weeks except one small allocation, which has already been distributed for use.

There is still a national shortage of this vaccine. However, the problem in Maryland until recently was one of shifting the vaccine from those areas where demand was running ahead of supply. Under this practice, supply was holding up.

Now a changing picture presents evidences of an increasing interest in the program by the public, resulting in an increased demand for vaccine that cannot be met by redistribution. This means that some persons eligible for the vaccine are now having to wait for their shots.

It is hoped that the picture will become brighter as time goes on, and that sufficient vaccine will become available to those eligible who wish it.

INCOME TAX FACTS No. 4
Exemptions Cut Your Tax Bill

(This is one of a series of articles on federal income tax filing. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants and the Maryland Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

This year's redesigned tax forms make it easy for you to indicate the personal exemptions to which you are entitled.

Every taxpayer is entitled to one exemption, which means a deduction of $600. Those 65 or over have a double personal exemption, and blind persons of all ages have an extra exemption. These rules apply to both husband and wife on joint returns.

In addition, you are entitled to one exemption for each qualified dependent, but the extra exemptions for age and blindness cannot be taken for dependents.

Rules for Dependents

To qualify for an exemption a dependent must:

1. Have received more than half his support from you, unless you file a Multiple Support Agreement (see below). In figuring support, scholarships received by your child do not count.
2. Have less than $600 gross income unless he is your child and under 19 or a student.
3. Not file a joint return.
4. Have been either a member of your household or closely related to you, as defined in the official instructions. Although cousins are not usually "close relatives" for tax purposes, a cousin receiving institutional care for a mental or physical disability who lived with you before going to the institution would qualify.
5. Have been either a citizen of the United States or a resident of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Panama, the Canal Zone or, in some cases, a serviceman's child living in the Philippines.

Your exemptions usually depend on whether you and your dependents qualify under these rules at the end of the year. However, if your husband or wife died during the year you may file a joint return and take the same exemptions that both of you would have otherwise had. Similarly, if a dependent died during the year, the rules are applied as of the time of his death.

Multiple Support Agreement

If you shared with others in the support of a dependent, but none of you provided more than half, you may still be able to arrange among you for one of the group to have the $600 exemption. You might agree, for example, to take turns in having the exemption from year to year.

The one who claims the exemption must have contributed more than 10% of the support, and he must have been a member of a group who altogether provided more than half the support. Each member of this group must have been entitled to claim the dependent except for the requirement of providing more than half the support.

In order for one of the group to have the exemption all other members of the group who contributed over 10% must sign declarations that they will not claim the dependent. The Internal Revenue Service provides Form 2120 (Multiple Support Agreement) for this purpose.

Be sure to claim all the exemptions you properly can, because each one reduces your taxable income by $600.

If you are supporting dependents, but are not able to file a joint return, you may qualify as the "head of a household" and be entitled to use a special schedule of tax rates that give you half the benefits of income splitting.

The instructions that come with your tax forms give further information. Help is also available from the Internal Revenue Service, which urges you to consult a properly qualified advisor if you need outside assistance.

This is the time of year when publicity materials like those above appear as part of local rat and mouse control campaigns conducted by farm youths. Both boys and girls take part in the campaign—a part of a full-scale national program to make all communities aware of the damage and disease caused by rats and mice.

There are many reasons why the nation's farm youth groups are conducting campaigns aimed at killing a million rats. Each rat, it is estimated, costs the farmer $20 per year. Rats destroy about 10 times more property and food than they eat, and their contamination of grain cuts its market value. Moreover, rats carry and spread numerous human and livestock diseases. Mice are only slightly less destructive.

Rural youth groups everywhere are making plans, selecting committees, talking to local bait dealers, to other businessmen, to town or city officials, and to the general public, urging them to help control rats and mice.

Now available to all youth organizations is a wide variety of campaign aids, prepared in connection with the national rat and mouse control campaign. Posters,

A campaign of this scope has been made possible by the introduction and development of safe, sure anti-coagulant rat and mouse killers such as warfarin, the powerful chemical discovered about five years ago at the University of Wisconsin.

Any youth group desiring information about the national rat and mouse control campaign and how to organize a local campaign should write to: Educational Director, Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, P.O. Box 2217, Madison 1, Wisconsin.

Annual Meeting Of Thurmont Co-Op. Stockholders Held

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Thurmont Cooperative, Inc. of Thurmont, Rocky Ridge, and Union Bridge, was held last Friday night at the Thurmont High School with approximately 200 members and guests in attendance. Mr. Mehrl H. Ramsburg, president of the Cooperative, was in charge of the meeting and called for reports by the secretary, John L. Baumgardner, and the manager, Mr. Weybright presented to the membership the auditor's report concerning the operations and financial condition of the Cooperative.

As a result of the election of directors, Lloyd B. Wilhide and Charles A. Lewis were re-elected, and Edward L. Meadows was selected as a new member. Dr. Paul Nystrom, director of Extension of the University of Maryland, and a specialist in the economics of agriculture, was guest speaker. During his talk, Dr. Nystrom explained that a Cooperative is a family affair and as such, should be considered a part of the life of the farmer and the operation of the farm. Because of the current interest in the President's soil bank plan, Dr. Nystrom gave a concise explanation of the plan and its probable effect on agriculture. In closing, Dr. Nystrom expressed agreement with a statement made earlier by the manager that 1956 would be a better year than has been predicted and that farmers should look forward optimistically.

The Thurmont High School Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Mildred Trevett, and the school band, conducted by Mr. James Fisher, presented musical selections for the enjoyment of the group. Door prizes were won by Samuel Keyton, Union Bridge; Harold Hollinger, Rocky Ridge; Richard Doble, Graceham, and Martha Baumgardner, Emmitsburg. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by the room mothers of the school. The hospitality committee for the evening were the wives of the directors.

Springer, Emmitsburg, vice president; John L. Baumgardner, Emmitsburg, secretary; Charles A. Lewis, Lantz, treasurer; Charles F. Myers, Thurmont; J. Paul Bowman, Union Bridge; Vernon S. ## ABIGAIL

we had Wednesday just delightful? I'm telling you it wouldn't take much to set off a touch of spring fever right about now. It kept me straining to contain myself. However the brief period of pleasantness was short-lived as the weather man calls for foul and nasty weather right away. It won't be long though folks, because soon we'll be out in the yard and studying what we want to plant in our gardens and make other improvements about the premises. It was great while it lasted though. Even though it only reached 55 degrees it was more than a welcome relief from the prolonged cold weather we have endured these past two months. In case you haven't already read or heard about it, this has been the coldest winter, according to daily low temperatures, we have experienced in 45 years!
