Reports that Emmitsburg is to have a new school have been circulating for many months now but still no official announcement has been forthcoming from the purported sponsors of the school. As the rumors have it, St. Joseph Central House is said to be the donor of the school which is to be erected on that institution's grounds immediately facing the college. Expectations are that the new elementary school will be ready for occupancy by this fall and will be ultra modern, being of steel and glass construction. It is understood that the building will house students from St. Anthony's, Emmitsburg and Thurmont, however, there is nothing official whatsoever about any plans. To date it has been purely scuttlebutt and speculation. However, if such a school were to be furnished our community it would be more than a welcome addition to our cultural and educational life. Perhaps I am a little out of line here, but maybe some of the old school buildings could be maintained for public assembly halls or factories . . . just a suggestion, and I hope I haven't hurt anyone's feelings, as I usually wind up doing.

Is our community growing at all? Well truthfully it's hard to say, but here's a pretty good indication that it is. St. Joseph's High School will graduate its largest class of seniors next week. Now is the population growing or is it that more and more of our children are getting education-minded? It could be one or the other, take your pick. Why I remember when we had only one high school here and half a dozen graduates was a large class, and brother that hasn't been so long ago either. Now we have two high schools and the number of grads has trebled several times over, so I have to pass on my opinion that definitely our community is growing.

Here's another card from a gent I can't quite figure out. I'm pretty sure that he wrote me about a year ago concerning some screwballish piece of purported philosophy and this week I got another postcard simply stating: "A deduction: Unless something is done soon to stop the rising Chinese birth rate, in a few years we are going to be engaged in a war trying to stop them from over-running all of Europe." Mebbe so, but as far as I am concerned I'd just as soon see the Chinese take Europe as the Russians. And why pick on the Chinese? Isn't every nation in the world struggling with the ever-increasing population problem? By the way, the writer's name is William R. Sullivan and his address is 720 W. Tenth Place, Los Angeles, California. Some of you nomadic citizenry who might by chance get to California, ought to look this fellow up and see what makes him "tick" and examine his philosophy on life because I certainly don't understand it.

Mrs. Guy A. Baker, Sr. Addresses Homemakers' Club

"Empathy," Mrs. Guy Baker, Sr., told Emmitsburg Homemakers at their regular monthly meeting, "is putting yourself in someone else's shoes." Using cut-out shoes to represent each member of the family, Mrs. Baker went on to explain how empathy promotes better family relations. It enables us to understand, from another person's point of view, just why he acts the way he does. Mrs. Baker emphasized that empathy differs from sympathy in that it is objective.

Mrs. Baker called upon Mrs. Robert Daugherty to contribute examples of empathy in dealing with teen-agers and their problems. A general discussion followed concerning the need for understanding and love in all human relationships.

The Homemakers gathered at the home of Mrs. Walter Shoemaker Thursday afternoon, May 24, with president, Mrs. Robert Fitez presiding.

Mrs. Gilbert Oddo read the minutes and also the report of the treasurer and the director in the absence of those two officers. Mrs. Charles Fuss, delegate to the Community Fund, gave her report. Club members then voted a $5 donation to the fund.

Businessmen Meet With Roads Officials

Emmitsburg Lions Club's objections to the proposed bypass of the town apparently were side-tracked Tuesday night when a group of about 30 local businessmen met in the Fire Hall with a four-man committee of the State Roads Commission.

The Commission men were non-committal on their intentions, but generally speaking, the businessmen were left under the impression that the proposed bypass would be just a matter of time, and indications were that the time would be short indeed.

The meeting was presided over by Charles R. Fuss, representing the Emmitsburg Lions Club. Following the introduction of the Commission officials the floor was opened to questions and answers and the business men heavily interrogated the roads officials.

Some interesting information was elicited from the Roads Board officials concerning the new highway. For instance it was learned that there will be three exits and entrances to the new section of dual highway. Present plans call for an exit at the Toll Gate Hill area; another at the Curtis Topper farm north of town and a third at the Emmitsburg Civic Assn. grounds east of town where the Lions' Club Horse Show is held. The officials said that the stretch from Toll Gate Hill to the Topper farm near the Pennsylvania line would be what was termed a "protected" roadway, meaning that no type of business or home could be built or operated along the highway in that area.

Local merchants who depend heavily upon transient trade were told that it was possible to erect their own private signs no closer than 100 feet from the center of the new highway. These signs would be an inducement to motorists to stop off at Emmitsburg if they desired gasoline, food, drinks or lodging and undoubtedly many of them would do so, just the same as they do other bypassed towns, the officials maintained. They cited statistics where other bypasses had no harmful effect on local business, in fact, they said, some were helped by the increased flow of traffic choosing the new highway for their trip. Many towns and cities have asked to be bypassed in order to rid themselves of thousands of cars that wouldn't stop anyway, but would only snarl traffic on local congested streets, the roadmen maintained.

At times the two groups became engaged in spirited conversation and the Commission was subjected to criticism. One businessman declared the new stretch of highway from Payne's Hill to Thurmont was an "engineering abortion." A representative of the Roads Board came to the rescue with the explanation that it was the modern thing to do to put curves into roadways to break the monotony of continued straight road driving. He further declared that the three short legal passing zones in the four miles of roadway would not be so severe or pronounced once the second lane of the highway had been built and the traffic would be going only one way.

The Commission officials indicated it was highly possible that bids would be let out this fall on the project and that work could begin early in 1957 with the project coming to a conclusion early in 1958. The Commission is currently purchasing rights-of-way for the road.

Living Today
by Colonel Golen Gough

Director of Approved Merchants Administration, Inc. Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31—As we approach the problems of consumers in buying merchandise, we find prices have been marked down from outrageous levels to a ridiculously, if not impossible, purchasing price. Many unscrupulous merchants in the larger cities prey upon the ignorance of the buying public. In consequence, a buyer obtains something he may badly need, or which he purchases because he believes it to be a bargain. So he finds himself holding the bag, so to speak, and in possession of inferior merchandise, for which he paid a tidy sum.

An example of this sort of distasteful merchandising is the purchase of land, as well as personal items, household goods or hardware, groceries and whatnot. People partially patronize the "gyp artists" because they believe they are getting something inexpensive and they sometimes feel they are cheating the merchant who advertises he is selling at a loss! Remember this—few rarely sell anything at a loss! They can't do so and stay in business.

Another pet project is that some of the auctioneers having sales day after day, sell the merchandise they bark from an auction block, or store rented for this particular purpose. Most of these articles are defective and usually are old stock without a guarantee. They are, as a rule, inferior merchandise that could not possibly be sold over a store counter. It is wise to shy away from this auction block selling. True, many fair auctioneers would welcome this statement, as there are many bargains to be obtained within one's own home town area. Likewise, to trade at a local store or neighborhood town store where the merchandise is guaranteed, would be most heartily endorsed.

To avoid bargains unless guaranteed merchandise is sold, should be the consumer's first thought.

APPROVED—When a project is approved it must have a certain endorsement which legalizes the source of approval. When a state issues a corporation, no better authorization is provided, because a corporate seal is backed by law. Furthermore, it must meet the standards of legal requirements lest the state be criticized for its issuance. The cities and towns are a corporation made possible by men and women with foresight. They plan these with residing business participation as an organized community. Most large corporations, such as the Ford Foundation, and many others, are non-profit and philanthropic groups devoted to public welfare and betterment.

Often the usual meager beginning of a million-dollar or multimillion dollar corporation proves it is the idea and objectives of any project that makes it a success. Big finance helps, but unless the corporation has merit, it is worthless. No amount of salesmanship, or promises, could make a brass into a gold brick. Brass will not spread very far. Gold is a metal that can be beat thin enough that a 20-dollar gold nugget could be spread out far enough to cover a room in gold-leaf. The true value of anything is what counts and its consistency is most important.

The late Henry Ford started with a small horseless carriage and with less than a hundred or so dollars, and then friends provided a few thousand, so he grew and grew. Today the Ford Foundation gives away millions to charity.

Basically we find doubting Thomases everywhere. We find people who obtain something free and when they lose it get peeved

Hospital Plans Additional Facilities

The Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, faced with ever increasing use of its facilities, this week announced plans for construction of a 45 by 26-foot addition to the original hospital structure to house expanding X-ray facilities, an additional dispensary and additional office space.

Richard W. Livingston, president of the board of directors of the hospital, said the addition and remodeling will cost about $40,000 to be paid from the Ford Foundation grant, and other hospital funds.

None of the money donated toward new construction at the hospital will go into the X-ray addition, President Livingston said. Money donated toward construction of new wings to the hospital, now almost completed, will go only for that purpose, he said. Any balance from the donations for the first wing will be used to erect the second addition which is planned for the early future. A number of donations have already been made toward construction of the second wing.

Construction of the second wing will begin sooner than had been originally planned, Mr. Livingston said, because of the need for patients' facilities. Originally it was thought that the second wing would be built in about five years. That time schedule will have to be advanced to meet the needs, Mr. Livingston said. At the present time the hospital "is being operated so often on a basis of 'emergency' admissions only" that it is almost becoming routine. Present facilities are being strained almost daily.

Needs of the patients and hospital facilities forced the decision to build an addition to the original building this summer, Mr. Livingston added.

The hospital board hopes to start work on the 45 by 26 foot addition to the north side of the original building early in July and complete the work within 90 days. The X-ray equipment, including a new $20,000 machine which supplements present equipment, will be moved into the new addition. That in turn will permit construction of an additional dispensary.

Accepts Emergency Calls

Mrs. J. Ward Kerrigan will now receive emergency Red Cross calls from families with sons overseas in place of Mrs. Richard Leonard.

Twenty-five million people subscribed $23 billion to the five Liberty Loans during the First World War.

and resentful. One TV show revealed how a quiz program winner received thousands of dollars. He had stated he would give 10% to charity. Eighty thousand dollars was what he won. The outfit he had allocated the percentage to thought that 10% would amount to $8,000. Instead, after taxes, it was half that sum. So the spokesman met the winner and benefactor. He expressed his gratitude and when he found he was obtaining the lesser sum, his resentment was shown and he almost insulted the fellow who wanted to help his organization. This is an example of certain conditions which arise in life. Moral: Think before giving anything away free. Pay for merchandise at the regular price!

Laurel Raceway Will Open 24-Night Meet

There probably isn't a busier place in the Maryland area these days than Laurel Raceway. Officials and workmen are busy putting the popular plant in tip top shape for the opening of the 24-night pari-mutuel harness meet this Monday night, June 4. Post time will be 8:30 nightly.

Hundreds of trotters and pacers from the nation's best stables are set to compete. The quarter-million dollar purse program has drawn nominations from many of the sport's most famous champions, including Adios Harry, fastest harness horse of all time. Under the direction of president and general manager Dick Hutchinson, Jr., workmen have been busy making improvements, repainting the grandstand in friendly green and yellow tones, setting up attractive floral effects around the clubhouse, grounds and infield, and constructing a modern new administration building which will increase efficiency of general operations.

Laurel also offers unparalleled convenience for motorists, with two big separate four-lane entrances, one for Baltimore patrons and one for Washington area fans.

Headlining Monday's inaugural program will be the $10,000 Washington Cup Free-For-All Trot, which has drawn such top performers as Lady Dunn, winner of four $10,000 stakes in Maryland last season and holder of the Baltimore Raceway track record; Stenographer, '54's "Harness Horse of the Year," and Lord Steward, who is the top money-winning harness horse in competition with earnings of more than $275,000.

Highlight of the Laurel meeting will be the $15,000 Laurel Invitational Pace, Maryland's richest free-for-all classic. Philip Scott, which won this event in 2:00 3/5 last year and recently upset world's champion Adios will receive the first invitation.

Other highlights will be the $10,000 Triple Crown Pace on June 9, and the $10,000 Savage Trot on June 23.

Calvin Coolidge was Vice President under Warren Harding. He of the Baltimore Raceway track became President at Harding's death in 1923.

"Flying Ants" May Be Termites

WINGED TERMITE

WINGED ANT

Take a good, close look at the "flying ants" that you may find glistering in the warm sunlight these days near your house or buildings. Chances are they are termites heading for a wedding in your woodwork.

Spring's mating call sends the ants and termites soaring on their frail wings, and it's only the royalty that flies. When they pair off, though, it means a new colony is beginning.

Look at the wings. If they are transparent with distinct, heavy veins, are tapered and only slightly longer than the insect's body, protruding from the sides of the body when folded, it is a winged ant with ambitions for an ant hill. If the wings are long and narrow with tiny, barely visible veins, and if they lie back parallel when folded, you are looking at a termite with designs on your doorsill.

Of course, if you have taken the precaution to use fence posts and structural members properly treated against termites, you have little cause for alarm. Wood products pressure-treated with penta, for example, are resistant to both termites and decay. Tests have proved that this means four times more service life from wood—and no home life at all for termites.

directing a capable sales organization, and in obtaining adequate financing, management must be capable at times of almost working miracles.

Whether to invest in a new machine tool to improve an operation, whether to expand a wing of a factory building for a sub-assembly line; whether Joe Doaks, a foreman, is capable of good human relations with his men as well as being a good production man; whether the bank can be persuaded to lend money to tide over a rough spot—these are but tidbits of management's over-all problem. The manner in which such problems are solved is reflected in both the quality of product a company produces and the price at which it can profitably be marketed.

Political Management

Alfred Edwards, of London, former member of the Socialist-Labor Party of Great Britain, wrote a Reader's Digest article in which he gave some of the reasons for his turning against Socialism. He said the Socialist government chose a taxi-driver to manage one of the big coal industries in England—not because of his ability as a manager of a coal mine (he hadn't any such ability), but because he happened to be a loyal and popular member of the Socialist-Labor political party in power. He managed miserably, and everybody suffered as a result, but still he stayed in.

All areas of our society benefit from the system that brings to the helm of our industrial enterprises the very best brains and capabilities. The consumers benefit by having this efficient management constantly improving the products and cutting the costs. The employees benefit by the improvements in production machinery and techniques, in higher productivity and higher wages. Stockholders benefit through regular dividends from well-managed companies. Our screened management, indeed, is another great plus-factor in the formula for America's unmatched living standard.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Black bass are as American as the coonskin hat and the Fourth of July. They are native only to North America; they are more widespread on this continent than any other game fish, and more Americans fish for them than for any other game species. However, considerable confusion surrounds these all-American fish. Anglers often are wrong when they try to identify the three kinds of black bass—spotted, largemouth and smallmouth.

There are infallible ways to tell one bass from another, and they do not involve complicated counting of rows or scales, or the number of spines in a fin. As you probably have been told many times, there is a simple test to distinguish between a smallmouth and a largemouth. With the mouth of the fish closed, a vertical line running through the pupil of the eye will just nick the inner corner of a smallmouth's mouth, but will pass through the mouth of a largemouth. That is, the lines of the mouth in a largemouth bass will extend back beyond the vertical line.

There is another, less infallible means of distinguishing them. This is by their body markings. A smallmouth has pronounced vertical bars on the sides of its body; a largemouth has a pronounced lateral dark line running from gills to tail. These markings exist only on younger fish; big adults sometimes lose these sharp distinctions. That is, the lateral line of the largemouth may be so blotched and broken as to be almost indistinguishable, or the smallmouth may be so dark in overall color that the vertical bars are hard to define.

After they pass a certain size, there is a marked difference in the shapes of their bodies. A four-pound largemouth simply doesn't look like a four-pound smallmouth. The latter is in every way

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

There are some around Washington when asked "What do you think of American foreign policy?" reply with cynicism.

The reply: "No question about American foreign policy being foreign—as foreign to everything American as anything could be."

Deploable part of entire situation is that money needed for development and expansion of independent American business is being siphoned off via tax route to engage C. W. Harder in all types of confused adventures, many appearing to be nothing more than attempt to pull British chestnuts out of fire.

For out of billions being poured out in foreign aid, some is being given Israel, some to Arab nations. Some is also given Pakistan and some to India. And it is quite interesting that communist as well as non communist nations share in this never ending flow of bounty.

Thus in two different areas of disagreements, State Dept. is taking stand with both sides due to situations stemming back to past British diplomacy, or perhaps better known as machinations.

In Middle East, England is in trouble with oil supply with which she has long attempted to create world monopoly. Whether or not this is with the connivance of several U. S. firms is now being investigated.

For years British also exercised monopoly in natural rubber and tin in her Malayan colonies. American development of synthetics and colonial drive for independence is upsetting this apple cart.

British West Africa supplies major share of world's cocoa, Ceylon leads in tea, and Pakistan in jute. But in those areas, unrest leads away from British domination. The Empire is indeed in trouble.

It would be interesting to speculate what British position would be today if she had not doggedly tried to dominate world with monopolies and cartels.

Eventually, monopoly tactics lead to disaster. Abraham Lincoln once said, "You can fool part of the people all the time, all the people part of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."

However, based on record of past 24 years, it could probably be said you can fool U. S. State Dept. all the time.

For much of the foreign give away has fallen into a pattern seemingly designed to help British monopoly whenever and wherever it gets into trouble.

And as is by now well known, there is a move in Washington to remove from British monopoly anxiety from year to year over how much they can tap Uncle Sam for.

The plan is to set up a give-away program that would be saddled on U. S. taxpayers for a long period of years.

And thus is presented a most ironical spectacle of all time.

Independent American business is handicapped in order to make it possible to bulwark, at least temporarily, the British system of cartel business. What Patrick Henry would have to say about this situation if he were around today.

a sleeker, trimmer fish; the adult largemouth is inclined to be potbellied and gross in appearance. All these tests fail pretty much when you connect with a spotted bass, otherwise known as the Kentucky bass, or the Kentucky spotted bass (although it is not confined to that state by any means). This fish looks most like a largemouth, but bears confusing similarities to smallmouth bass. However, there is one sure way to identify it. This I learned from the famous outdoor writer, Bill Wolf. Rub your thumb or finger over the tongue of the fish. If there is a rough spot (caused by tiny teeth) on it, the fish is a spotted bass. The largemouth and smallmouth have smooth tongues. The rough spot is not large, but is easy to detect.

NO COMMENT

By WALTER CHAMBLIN, Jr.

Malcolm P. Ferguson, president, Bendix Aviation Corp., said recently that recent reports on inflation "emphasizes the fact that industry - wide wage increases which are not justified by comparable increases in productivity can only result in dangerously inflated prices."

"Most of us are familiar," Mr. Ferguson said, "with the two traditional causes of inflation—creation by the Federal government of artificial money by means of the printing press, and excessive credit extension by private banks."

"But a third force—the tendency of wage rates to grow without any definite or normal relationship to market condition," Mr. Ferguson continued, "is a factor of which many Americans are not presently aware."

Mr. Ferguson referred to a new study entitled "A New Force for Inflation," just recently issued by the National Assn. of Manufacturers, which claims that "unregulated and uncontrolled power of the unions can be the underlying cause of the new inflation threat," and that this will continue as long as unions are permitted by law to exercise monopoly powers.

Mr. Ferguson, a director of the NAM, said that "the association report 'focussed a spotlight on this grave threat to our national economic security.'"

Mr. Ferguson, pointing out that a similar problem is causing Great Britain and Western Europe grave concern, quoted from the study a White Paper issued by the British government as to a possible solution. The only way out, the British White Paper advised, is "self-restraint on the part of unions in making wage demands and on the part of employers in fixing profit margins and prices, so that total money income would not rise faster than output."

The NAM study pointed to the close parallel to the situation in America, noting that "unwarranted wage increases, exceeding labor's reasonable share in the gains of productivity, are forced on industry year after year by union power." The association report offered statistics and charts showing that in the 1939-1953 period physical output per man-hour in manufacturing increased by 28 per cent while pay received by employees in manufacturing plants for each man-hour of their work increased by 180 per cent (not including so-called "fringe" benefits.)

As a result, the index of industrial prices increased by 100 per cent during this period. The study also showed that the Consumers Price Index during this period advanced by 93 per cent, thus cutting labor's gain in real wages to 60 per cent.

"The balance of labor's wage gains in excess of the increase in productivity was absorbed by decreases in the shares of the gross proceeds of private business going to other segments of the economy," the NAM study said. "The percentage share of the gross proceeds of private business going to rent, interest and dividend receivers showed a sharp decrease; the shares going to unincorporated business, professional people and farmers also decreased." The NAM said that the reservoir of excess money supply which permitted these gains by labor and the resultant price increases now has been absorbed.

Virtually the whole town of Natick, Mass., near Boston, turned out to see the opening of this new multi-million-dollar Carling Brewing Company plant—most modern in the world and closely resembling the one Carling had intended to locate in Maryland to serve this and adjoining five-state area. A bill passed by the Legislature and sponsored by five of Maryland's six brewers, which would have kept Maryland from getting the new Carling plant and employment for several hundred Marylanders, was vetoed by Governor McKeldin. Whether Carling will build in Maryland or choose a site in a nearby State is yet to be announced.

Susan Stakes Closes Pimlico Tomorrow

BALTIMORE, May 31—(Beat Calumet!)

That cry—familiar to horsemen all over the nation a few years ago—will be raised Saturday, June 2, when Pimlico rings down the curtain on its spring meeting with the running of the $20,000 Black Eyed Susan Stakes.

Calumet Farm, the blue grass breeding empire established by the late Warren Wright and now carried on by his widow, Mrs. Gene Markey, will lead with the one-two punch of Princess Turia and Beyond in the one-and-one-sixteenth mile Black Eyed Susan.

This is news because the last time these two sophomore fillies ran they finished in a deadheat for first place in the $25,000 Acorn Stakes at Belmont Park. It was the first time in history two horses from the same stable tied for first in a stakes race.

About eight of the best other three-year-old fillies in training are expected to be aligned against the Calumet "duo" in the Susan, but there is no question as to which entry will draw the favoritism of the huge closing day crowd at Pimlico. That's especially true since America's champion jockey, Bill Hartack, will be in the irons on Princess Turia.

The twin victory of Beyond and Princess Turia was just part of a warning bell about Calumet which started ringing again in the ears of rival horsemen last week. On the same day they defeated, Calumet won an allowance race at Garden State with the veteran star Trentonian, and won the $100,000 Preakness at Pimlico with Fabius—four victories, three stakes races and at three tracks in one day.

It had all the earmarks of the late 1940's when Calumet was winning the big ones with stars like Citation, Faultless, Coaltown, Whirlaway, Armed, Ponder, Pensive, Hill Gail and Twilight Tear. For three years in succession Calumet's purse earnings passed the million-dollar mark and the stable founded by a baking powder fortune accounted for the national championship eight times between 1941 and 1952.

Calumet fortunes changed for the worse after 1952, however, and it wasn't until last week that it began to look like the stable had found the magic touch again. Now, horsemen at Pimlico who recently were shaking their heads about the "big outfit's" decline, are now scurrying around trying to find something to stop them in the Susan.

Potomac Edison Dedicates Two Plants

Two giant electric power plants were dedicated this week "to the service and defense of the nation by 15 investor-owned electric utility companies."

Together, the plants cost approximately $385 million and will have but one customer, the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's new plant at Portsmouth, O., project. The plants make up the largest power producing project ever built by private enterprise.

The two plants are located in Cheshire, O., and Madison, Ind. Both are projects of the Ohio Valley Electric Corp., a group of business-managed electric companies, including, from this area, the Potomac Edison Co.

Governor Frank J. Lausche from Ohio and Governor George Craig from Indiana presided at the dedication ceremonies. In the audiences were a number of congressmen, state and county officials, Atomic Energy Commission officials and other dignitaries including local utility company president, R. Paul Smith.

Construction of the plants was completed about three months ahead of schedule. The net result of the speed with which the project was carried out is the fact that the average kilowatt-hour cost to the Atomic Energy Commission is less than originally estimated. Operating costs, too, have moved to be less than first estimated.

Over 1.9 million KW of electric power is going to AEC plants from these two new stations via 388 miles of double circuit high voltage transmission lines.

U. S. Court Decides Against Farmers

The U. S. Supreme Court in its decision of May 14 has upheld the decision of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit upholding the right of the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee to enter a farm and measure wheat acreage to determine compliance with the wheat acreage allotment established for the farm.

The decision came as the result of a suit brought by Dindsay B. Shafer and others of Carroll County. Shafer Bros. refused to allow government officials on their farm for the purpose of measuring the acreage of wheat, Chester S. Bradley, state chairman for the ASC said.

In its original decision, Bradley said the appellate court held that "The Secretary (of Agriculture) is required to provide thru county and local committees for the measurement of the farms on which the crop is produced in order to ascertain whether the acreage planted is in excess of the farm acreage allotment." It also held that "The Secretary is authorized to prescribe such regulations as are necessary for the enforcement of the statutory provisions."

New on Top—Old Below

The theory that some good practically always can be salvaged from an old house has been proved anew by a Chestnut, Ill., family who demolished all of their big, old home above the first-story flooring and then modernized by building an up-to-date house on top of what was left.

They saved money in the bargain. They say their home cost thousands of dollars less than if they had built a brand-new house on a different site.

Michael Drake, the owner, and his wife and children arranged temporary quarters in the basement and were able to live there comfortably while their new house was being erected over their heads.

Thoughtful scheduling made this possible. They picked August, a dry month, as the time to start work. Then demolition and framing in of the new dwelling were rushed. Sixteen days after the first board was ripped from the old three-story house, the new home was up and roofed, protecting the Drakes from the weather.

Always annoyed by the insufficient closet space and the inconvenient layout of the old house, the Drakes finally decided to rebuild when their heating bills reached $600 a year.

Total living area is about 20 percent less than in the old house, but there's three times as much closet space. Ponderosa pine cabinets were installed in the kitchen, where particular emphasis was placed on storage.

The new house look taller and more imposing than many one-story homes because of a striking hip roof with deep overhangs. Covered with bright-orange asphalt shingles, the roof draws attention upward, giving the illusion of additional height.

Windows are plentiful. A big ponderosa pine picture window brings the countryside into the living room. Other windows in the house are smooth-operating, pine double-hung sash with horizontal panes. All window trim is painted white.

The Drakes, mindful of their heavy fuel bills of the past, insisted on thick mineral wool insulation. The insulation not only keeps heat inside during the winter months, but will cut operating costs of air-conditioning, which the owners plan to install. Forced warm air was installed as the new heating system.

Editors: For your information and possible use in reader service, the man who planned the Drake remodeling is A. B. Campen, West Armstrong and Machin, S. E., Peoria, Ill. He heads a firm that does home modernization planning by mail.

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A DIVIDER-PLANTER

An attractive divider-planter can be made of 1-inch boards, 1½-inch posts and ½-inch dowel.

Cut all parts to the sizes shown. Cut 3½-inch holes in the shelves for flower pots. Mortise the shelves ¼ inch into the back.

Use ½-inch dowel and glue to join the post sections through ½-inch holes bored in the shelves.

Through the 2½ by 3½-inch box divider bore two 1½-inch holes for the lower posts to pass through.

Assemble, using glue and 8-penny finishing nails.

Attach the divider to floor, wall studs and ceiling joists. Round all sharp edges before finishing.

Make two metal planter trays to fit the box top.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Advertising
Babson Park, Mass., May 31, 1956. I am not saying that advertising is the most important factor in business. The location and attitude of every local merchant and each of his clerks are also great factors. This is due to the fact that consumer buying really determines the future of business and employment.

Our Present Prosperity
If economic history had run true to form, we would have had a business depression and unemployment after World War II. But the adventure in radio advertising saved the day. It provided the greatly needed "shot-in-the-arm" to the general welfare.

In the last part of the Truman Administration, color advertising was another "shot-in-the-arm" which was then greatly needed. Again, after Mr. Eisenhower became President, we were threatened with declining retail sales. This caused manufacturers to lay off employees. Increased unemployment follows declining sales as night follows day. This time it was television advertising which corrected the situation and kept a million readers of this column on their jobs.

What About Colored Sausages?
Unless the national advertisers have something new to offer, we are again likely to see declining sales, whoever may be elected President on November 6 of this year. Clouds are already in the sky. Every merchant should be on his toes and tend to business. Whatever ticket he votes, every manufacturer, merchant, or wage worker wants good business. Certainly, it will not come by voting any ticket antagonistic to business. The first principle of holding your job and being promoted is to stick by and uphold foundations already built.

I hope the advertising agencies can pull some new rabbit out of their hats to make good times continue considerably longer. Consumers, however, become immune to the same old advertisements presented in the same old way. If I were forced to guess as to the next incentive to business, I would pick new style or packaging. This is best illustrated in the supermarkets and in the "five-and-ten" variety stores now being put on a self-service basis. I forecast that the cheapest form, and one of the most effective forms, of advertising during the next few years will be the attractiveness of the package. The Massachusetts Legislature is already being asked to permit the sale of colored sausages. Here is a great opportunity for young people with both imagination and artistic sense. For a modern pulling package there must be a combination of the old trade mark, upon which will catch the eye.

Local Newspaper Advertising

I fear that most newspapers are not helping their local merchants in the preparation of their advertisements. While the national advertisers are employing the best psychologists and artists to provide the copy for their advertising in local newspapers, the local merchant is content to use the canned advertising sent him, without adding a personal or local touch. This is due partly to laziness on the part of the merchant and partly to the fact that it costs the local newspaper to make a change in the advertising copy.

Yet statistics will show that the local newspapers—especially those of smaller cities—are the real determining factors as to future business. My advice to national advertisers is to spend more money. Of course, it is much less work for the national advertiser to get his income from expensive copy in a few magazines of big circulation than to bother with a lot of little daily or weekly newspapers. Let me say, however, that this is a dangerous policy for advertising agencies and also for the national advertisers whom they represent. Remember that the weekly newspaper not only is published once a week but also is being read by some one every day.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, 72-year-old daughter of the famous Russian novelist who wrote "War and Peace" and "Anna Karenina," recently told a Senate subcommittee that she hoped the United States would not send a certain Soviet poet back to his native land.

"He would be killed," she testified matter-of-factly.

(The Countess, who has been an American citizen for many years, has used her extensive knowledge of Russian affairs to help various investigations and studies conducted by the U. S. At present, she is president of the Tolstoy Foundation, an organization set up to aid refugees from Iron Curtain countries.)

When Countess Tolstoy made her statement about the Russian poet, whose life might be in danger if he returned home, the immense, marble-walled hearing room used by the subcommittee conducting the hearings was only one-quarter filled, but it seems to me that her words should be brought to the attention of every American.

Timely Reminder

In a rather terrifying way, those four words—"He would be killed"—provide us with a timely reminder that there is an underlying ruthlessness in certain areas of the world which are now professing to be interested in peace.

I say that the thought is "timely" because it comes as we are thinking of Memorial Day and the sacrifices which have been made to keep our great nation free from tyranny.

While pausing to honor and pray for our hero-dead during this period we should also renew our determination to see that the liberty for which they fought on battlefields shall never be weakened by any peacetime inroads of false propaganda.

Small Business Conference

This week, in addition to my Memorial Day comments, I would like to mention another item of current interest.

As I have mentioned in the past "Senate Cloakroom" newsletter, we have been working closely with officials of the Small Business Administration and the Baltimore Assn. of Commerce to make arrangements for next month's area conference on Federal purchasing and procurement

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde • 6th District, Maryland

Along The Potomac

WASHINGTON, May 30—Memorial Day is an occasion for special tribute to those who gave their lives in defense of their country. I am wondering if we ought not also use the Day as an occasion for remembering the causes for which they died. Our wars have been fought to preserve our liberty and a way of life unique in the history of the world. We honor all Americans who steadfastly fought in peace and in war to preserve their identity as individuals while joining mightily in furthering their ideals.

The work of the Congress continues apace. Enactment of a revised farm bill has cleared the way for other legislative matters. I would like to point out that the farm measure comes nearer meeting the problems of the farmer than did the Congress' earlier attempt. But it falls short of a realistic solution to the needs of agriculture. I am hopeful the next Congress will provide legislation more nearly in line with a program of diversified production which will result in fairer prices to all.

Of interest to the business community is the bill to amend the Robinson-Patman Act with regard to the "good faith" defense in price discrimination. The pending legislation would make "good faith" a complete defense in meeting the prices of a competitor unless such pricing leads to "a substantial lessening of competition" or tends "to create a monopoly."

One of the difficulties presented the House Judiciary Committee in its consideration of the proposed amendment stems from the phrase "a substantial lessening of competition." There is a lack of agreement as to the meaning of the words as used in the bill. Another difficulty encountered is the possible harmful effects on a small manufacturer in his attempt to compete with big industry.

At the coming general election the new Maryland absentee voting law will be in effect. Persons absent from the State or disabled and absent from the ward or election district will be able to cast an absentee vote this year. For information write me, care of the House Office Bldg., Washington 25, D. C.

Veterans Eligible For Interest On Bonds

Hundreds of World War II veterans in this state are holding Armed Forces Leave Bonds that have drawn no interest for five years or longer, and Uncle Sam would like to pay up—an average of $200 apiece.

Ormond R. Galvin, state sales director of the U. S. Treasury's Savings Bonds Division, has an idea for these ex-GI's who apparently don't need the money right now. He suggests they redeem these Leave Bonds and put the money in Series E Savings Bonds, which pay three per cent interest compounded semi-annually when held to maturity of nine years and eight months.

In the country as a whole, 130,000 veterans hold Leave Bonds worth $26 million. It's all that's left of more than $2 billion paid to members of the Armed Forces discharged between Apr. 1, 1943, and Oct. 1, 1946. The five-year bonds, carrying an interest rate of 2½ per cent a year, were used to reimburse veterans for unused ## procedures.

The one-day conference, will be open to all representatives of small business in the Maryland area who are interested in obtaining information on government contract work, will be held June 21 from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. at the Eastern High School, 33rd St. Loch Raven Rd., Baltimore.

Top-level representatives of various agencies will be on hand to explain what their departments need and how they take care of their ordering.

Perhaps, after attending the meeting, Marylanders will be able to obtain many millions of dollars worth of additional Federal contracts.

to clear its books of this bond issue," Mr. Galvin said, "and is calling on all veterans' organizations to help locate the 130,000 bond owners. Then when these bonds are cashed, I can think of no better place to put the money than in safe, sure indestructible U. S. Savings Bonds." And, Mr. Galvin added, if you don't have any Leave Bonds, Savings Bonds are still a good buy.

It Takes Two (Buckets) To Make A Mambo Table!

Here's a smart do-it-yourself trick that results in an end table for your living room, a convenient table for your playroom or an eye-catcher for your porch. You need two empty "all" buckets, one 22" length of threaded curtain rod, 16 large cup hooks, 16 1 inch square blocks, several yards of laundry cord and a 14" round plywood top. And, here are the steps: 1) Make 16 small holes around the bottom of each bucket; secure cup hook with wood blocks; insert curtain rod through the centers of the buckets, bolting each end; paint any color. 2) Stretch laundry cord criss-cross on hooks and cover plywood top with Con-Tact, self-adhesive plastic; secure top either with plastic glue or right angle braces.

One of the most popular picnic areas in Maryland is shown above, near the Severn River Bridge opposite Annapolis. The Maryland State Roads Commission maintains ninety-five of these facilities throughout the State.

More Than She "Bargained" For

Dad Baker retired from active dairying—seven or eight years ago—but still keeps a half-dozen purebreds more or less as a hobby.

Dad goes all-out for these six. Temperature-controlled barn, expensive feed . . . the works. As a result his milk has a low bacteria count, a high butterfat content. And as a favor to neighbors, he sells it just two cents above the ordinary price.

Recently, a neighbor complained—asked if she couldn't get the milk "at cost." Dad agreed, sent her a bill for exactly what the milk cost: 75¢ a quart.

From where I sit, it's easy to misunderstand if you don't get all the facts. That's why we ought to consider the other fellow's viewpoint before we talk out. For example, you have your reasons for liking particular beverages. I have mine. And whether we're talking about buttermilk or beer . . . let's try to respect each other's point of view.

Congressional Viewpoint

By Senator John M. Butler

WASHINGTON, May 28—The ceaseless struggle between freedom and communism came closer to grips last week with the recognition of Red China by Egypt. Thereby, it is widely believed that the stage is set for another attempt to gain admission to the United Nations for Communist China. It is anticipated that out of the shadows of the Iron Curtain other countries will join in supporting this new drive to obtain a cloak of respectability for an aggressor nation.

This development poses many crucial questions, not the least important of which are these two: (1) What is the true relationship between Soviet Russia and Red China? and (2) How can this campaign in deceit be repulsed?

As to the first question, U. S. News and World Report magazine has published a condensed version of a book, titled "At Last—The True Story of Red China," written by a businessman, released only recently after more than 30 years in that country, which includes these timely statements: "The fact is, China has been conquered almost as thoroughly as if there had been a direct Soviet military invasion, followed by the establishment of a Russian-model military government that could control the cumulative power of 580 million people." Also, "Superficially it appears that the ties between the Soviet Union and Communist China are ones of partnership based on an identity of interest rather than domination of one by the other. But the evidence presented in this book demonstrates that China today is a giant slave being exploited by the Soviet Union to conquer all of Asia as a major step toward world domination." Obviously, to admit Red China to the UN would be merely to extend and strengthen the tentacles of world communism.

To answer the second point, it may become necessary for the United States to exercise the much discussed "veto" in the UN. The alacrity and frequency with which the Russians have used, or misused, this unusual power should dispel any moral or procedural reservations held by many Americans. Significant here is the incontrovertible evidence that the U. S., in shouldering the burden in Korea, lost 33,000 young men with another 110,000 wounded or maimed—a costly sacrifice for the cause of freedom which Egypt and a few other countries blithely ignore in their mad haste to do "the devil's bidding."

I shall continue to oppose, with all the vigor I can summon, the admission of Red China to the UN. The American people must face this issue squarely.

Hospital Accepting Nursing Applications

Young women just graduating from high school or those up to the age of 30 who are considering a nursing career should make their applications promptly if they desire to enroll at the Frederick Memorial Hospital School of Nursing this year, Miss Estelle H. Collins, director, announced this week.

The fall term will begin Sept. 4 and final selection of applicants will be made within the next six or eight weeks, she said.

In order to take the psychological test which is required of all candidates and which will be given at the Georgianna Houck Simmons Nurses' Home on June 14, prospective students should submit their credentials by June 11. Later applicants would have to take the test in Baltimore on July 21. It is a standard entrance examination prepared by the Psychological Corp. of New York City.

Financial Aid Offered

Financial assistance through scholarships or loan funds provided by community organizations are still available to qualified young women, Miss Collins stated. Applicants must be between the ages of 17 and 30, graduates of a four-year accredited high school and preferably with a scholastic rank in the upper third of their class. Family background and personal references are also taken into consideration and each applicant is interviewed personally by a member of the faculty.

The psychological test is used as a part of the screening process in order that only those girls are accepted who may reasonably be expected to complete the nursing course.

The Nursing School faculty has decided to limit the size of the incoming class to 25. Applications have been coming in well, Miss Collins said.

Further information on entrance requirements, courses offered, fees charged and study and recreation facilities available may be obtained by requesting a catalogue from the School of Nursing.

Molded Pineapple Rice Cream Has An Elegant Air

Pineapple Rice Cream is a rich, creamy dessert that is fast to make and will surprise you with its light fluffiness. The pineapple juice lends such good flavor to the rice, and whipping cream folded into the mixture makes the light, airy texture.

It is thriffter than most desserts, yet gives elaborate results and is sure to win compliments. A delicious Pineapple-Strawberry Sauce adds interesting color and flavor.

Pineapple Rice Cream
1 1/2 cups regular rice (raw)
1 1/2 cups milk
1 cup pineapple juice or syrup
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup whipping cream

Pineapple-Strawberry Sauce
1 No. 2 can pineapple tidbits
Few slivers orange rind
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup halved strawberries
1 tablespoon lemon juice, fresh or frozen

Combine rice and milk, dash of salt. Cover and simmer without stirring till tender and milk absorbed, about 25 minutes. Heat pineapple juice. Soften gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water, stir into hot juice along with sugar, vanilla. Blend in rice, chill till thickened. Whip cream stiff, fold into rice. Chill firm in greased 4 to 5-cup fluted mold or mixing bowl.

Sauce: Drain juice from pineapple. Add orange rind and heat to boiling. Blend sugar and cornstarch. Stir into boiling liquid, cook and stir till clear and thickened. Add pineapple, strawberries and lemon juice. Chill. Unmold rice. Decorate with whole strawberries and pineapple tidbits. Serve with Pineapple-Strawberry Sauce. Serves 6.

Variations: One tablespoon of Cointreau or Brandy may be substituted for the lemon juice called for in the sauce.

Fallstaffe School Children Visit Here

Last Tuesday, the second grade class of the Fallstaffe School, No. 241 of Baltimore, boarded a chartered bus which was to take many of them for their first trip to the country. The class consisted of 40 girls and boys and is taught by Mrs. Mary Veloso.

At 1:30 p. m. they arrived at Motters Station, at the home of the Sayers.

After riding for about two hours the children were very hungry, they said the country air gave them a good appetite—so the first thing they did was eat their picnic lunch on the lawn.

After lunch they began a tour of the place—to see the chickens and the hogs—then they made a trip to the feed store with Mr. Saylor where they learned all about the different kind of feeds. They also visited the machine building; last, but not least, was the country store, where each child spent his nickels and pennies which they had been saving for the special occasion.

At 1 p. m. they boarded the bus for the return to the city; all very happy and could hardly wait until they could tell their friends about their trip.

The class has been studying rural and farm life in school for the past few weeks.

Several mothers also made the trip with the class.

Thurmont Bypass Bids Are Let

The State Roads Commission is receiving bids until June 12 at noon on the construction of a second bridge on the Thurmont bypass of U. S. 15, which will swing to the west of the town.

The project is for a 46-foot bridge over the Western Maryland Railway tracks. It will be a single span reinforced concrete rigid frame type of structure. The road width over the bridge will be 40 feet.

The announcement said approaches would be constructed under separate contract.

The M. J. Grove Lime Co. now holds a contract for the construction of a five-span steel bridge over Maryland 77 and Hunting Creek on the same bypass. The Grove Co. submitted the low bid of $185,337.50.

It is expected that a notice to proceed will go out to the latter contractor in the near future for the 275-foot structure. The bridge on which the latest bids are being asked is to be constructed about midway between Maryland 77 (the Foxville Rd.) and Maryland 81 (the Sabillasville Rd.), west of Thurmont.

No road contracts on the bypass have been asked as yet. Under commission plans, by-passes of Emmitsburg and Lewistown are also contemplated as U. S. 15 is converted into a dual highway during the 12-year road program.

Miss Saranna Miller of Towson State Teachers College, Towson, and Pvt. John Beegle of Ft. Jackson, S. C., were weekend guests of Dr. and Mrs. D. Luther Beegle.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosensteel, were Mr. John Wagner, Westminster and T. Eugene Rodgers of Fairfield, Pa.

Mrs. Donald Boone, Metuchen, N. J., spent the weekend here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanders. Miss Frances Rowe, of the Veterans' Administration Hospital, Dublin, Ga., is visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cooley Combs.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stoner was baptized last Sunday afternoon at St. Joseph's Church. The sponsors were Donald Rodgers and Barbara Rosensteel, and the baptism was performed by the Rev. Fr. John D. Sullivan, pastor. The baby was christened Donald Allen.

Police investigated a charge of writing fraudulent checks May 15 when George Wilhide, cashier of the Farmers State Bank, Emmitsburg, told borough police he had received two checks signed by Eyler and drawn on a Hanover bank. One check was for $17 and the other for $47. Both checks, written to the order of Donald Rice, allegedly a relative of Eyler living at Hanover Rt. 3 or 4, were said to be worthless.

Police also received information of other bad checks alleged to have been written by Eyler and cashed in Gettysburg. No charges were pressed at that time because Eyler had restored the amount of the checks.

Eyler was jailed May 3 on charges of reckless driving, failing to comply with the order of a police officer, and possessing an improper motor vehicle registration. He pleaded guilty to all three counts and was fined $85 and costs. In default he was committed to the county jail for 25 days.

Although U. S. farms are producing more and are getting larger—an average increase in acreage of 12.5% over 1950—farmers are currently facing a growing cost-price squeeze. To meet this problem, the farmer must resort to many new practices to cut expenses and get the most out of his land, his equipment and his buildings.

In keeping with this trend, the Stran-Steel Corporation has developed a new concept in farm equipment and building maintenance which is including in its line of steel farm buildings: a Farm Service and Repair Center.

The Stran-Steel Center provides the farmer with a building—a modestly-priced Quonset or rigid-frame structure—designed to his needs, plus a layout and program for his repair and servicing facilities.

The all-steel fire-resistant Repair and Service Center offers benefits and savings which, over a period of time, will more than many times offset the cost of its installation. Its servicing facilities save valuable field-time, prolongs the life of the equipment and helps avoid costly field breakdowns. By being able to do most of his own repair work, the farmer eliminates many service calls and saves on mechanical hired help. In his Center he can also construct or modify some of his equipment such as special mangers, draw-bar hitches, etc.
