The hunting season is in full swing here and as usual it is not without its usual amusement, and sometimes embarrassing incidents to certain individuals. This story is about three local young blades who went deer hunting early in the morning. Seems as though they were only on the road a few minutes when they ran smack into a deer . . . with the car. The blow felled the animal and it lay in front of the car. The three hunters jumped out, rifles in hand and looked at the prostrate deer. Suddenly it reared up and darted off down the road while three startled young men dumbfoundedly watched it disappear, never lifting their guns to their shoulders. Buck fever they call it.

A vivacious blonde stopped at a local garage the other day and had some motor trouble repaired. The attendants were all smiles and very solicitous and couldn't have been more obliging to the "woman." Just a day or two later an item appeared in a nearby paper giving an account how a South Carolinian man, masquerading about as a blonde, walked into a Gettysburg barroom and proceeded to smack up to the bartender and after speaking a few words, slit his (the blonde's) throat, ear to ear. Oh yes, the blonde will recover, but I doubt if the local garagemen will, for quite some time.

Well, Thanksgiving is behind us and many I suppose are feeling the ill effects of over-eating yesterday, but there's nothing alarming about that because it is an annual custom and also a national habit — over-eating. Anyway with the passing of this great American day the next and most important of all observances, Christmas, is next in the list. Stores already have started advertising for the occasion and a visit to almost any one of them shows that shopping is gaining impetus and will be in full swing in a week or so. People have been educated the past decade or so, to do their shopping early and each year brings more of them in line with the popular habit. Some towns already have been decorated for the coming occasion and various organizations are sponsoring decorating contests and prizes will be awarded in a week or so. This in my opinion is rushing things a bit and killing the spirit of the time. We, here in Emmitsburg, don't usually begin any ornamental adorning until a week or two before Christmas and the judging of the contest does not take place until after Christmas, which in my opinion is more down to earth and sensible.

Religion is coming back into the theme more and more every year and a lot of the cards now have religious scenes instead of some silly looking doo-dad that was supposed to represent Christmas, Christ's birthday. I am happy to see this for I have been prophesizing this for the past eight years. Past wars and threats of new ones seem to have been the igniting spark of the revised upturn in religion. Many veterans who never prayed before they went into service, now know the meaning of prayer and see to it that it is instilled in their families. The population is rapidly increasing and religion is keeping right abreast of the trend. This is an encouraging sign.

Hunters appear to be more brazen than in former years what with the most of the land being posted against trespassers. A man was killed this week near Taneytown when he ordered hunters off his land. A scuffle ensued and the proprietor apparently knocked to the ground, striking his head on a railroad track, and proving fatal. Another incident occurred near Thurmont when the owner approached the hunters with a gun in his hand. When the hunters refused to leave his premises he shot dead their dog. This is a serious situation and apparently just the start as more and more land is being posted each year. Hunting is a great sport and should be continued, but there is a great need for more hunting ground. Just what the answer is to the problem is beyond me, and other parties, too, as is evident. Perhaps a program of better relations between hunters and land owners

Card. Spellman Contributes To Local College

His Eminence, Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, and recognized as the most distinguished and most beloved Catholic prelate in the country, literally "stole the show" at the special convocation in his honor at Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, last Friday.

A few minutes after he received the honorary Doctorate of Laws degree from the second oldest Catholic college in the United States, the highest ranking American Catholic completely surprised Monsignor John L. Sheridan, president of the Mount, his faculty, student body and the more than 2,000 persons at the convocation, by presenting the school with a check of substantial amount.

He announced, in his opening remarks that he wanted to present a gift to the school "in memory of my illustrious predecessors from the Mount who served the Archdiocese of New York."

He stepped down from the small platform at the podium and walked half way across the rostrum to meet Monsignor Sheridan and hand him the envelope which contained the "gift." The large audience rose and applauded for several minutes and all the while Cardinal Spellman bowed and smiled and raised his right hand in a vain effort to stop the ovation. It was the highlight of one of the most significant milestones in the history of the institution.

A light rain was falling when the cardinal arrived at the Mount Friday morning, but this failed to dampen the ardor of the faculty and students. The Memorial gymnasium was well filled long before the opening. Those in the academic procession assembled in the gymnasium and waited the distinguished guest.

When the procession entered the main auditorium of the building, the large audience stood. Cardinal Spellman was smiling and nodding to the assembled guests. He wore his brilliant cardinal colored robes and his crucifix shone brightly.

Two rows of the seats in front of the rostrum were occupied by Sisters of Charity from St. Joseph College. Seniors from the two schools, in cap and gown, were also seated in the orchestra section. Students from the Mount were seated in bleachers to the right of the rostrum. The Seminary choir and the college glee club were seated in sections at the left. Other guests were in the bleachers and in the main auditorium area. Ferns and potted plants were used to decorate the rostrum, front and rear. The American flag and the flag of Maryland were placed at the sides of the podium by four members of Detachment 2141 S. U., Fort Ritchie, Md.

From the moment of his arrival until his departure Cardinal Spellman was the center of attraction. He appeared restful, relaxed and happy and apparently enjoyed the program of events. "He is the most relaxed person in the crowd," one student remarked. He applauded vigorously after the Seminary Schola Cantorum sang the processional, "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus" and again when it sang "No Man Is An Island." And when the college band played the National Anthem, Cardinal Spellman stood at rigid attention and held his red biretta in his right hand over his heart. At its close his eyes were dimmed. He is well recognized for intense patriotism. He is the military vicar of the U. S. Armed Forces, appointed by the Pope. He has spent the past three Christmas seasons with American troops in Korea.

After he had received his honorary degree and delivered his address he pronounced benediction upon the audience, stepped from the podium and walked directly to Monsignor Sheridan and vigorously shook his hand. When he left the rostrum with the college president they obligingly waited at the steps for some time to permit photographers to take pictures.

At the informal luncheon for the distinguished guests, Cardinal Spellman was dressed in the conventional black with his customary knee-length black frock coat. He was given a warm ovation and stopped scores of times to shake hands with guests entering and leaving the diningroom. Many kissed his ring.

Later in the afternoon, upon his request, he visited Saint Joseph College, founded by Mother Seton. He had said earlier in the day that he wanted to visit her tomb.

At St. Joseph College Cardinal Spellman received a rousing ovation. He was welcomed by Sister Hilda, president of the school and

CHECK FORGER GETS 3-YEAR SENTENCE

Paul Henry Trent, of Route 1, who used a worthless check allegedly stolen from his employer to start a bank account in Frederick on which he drew several forged checks, was given three years in the House of Correction for forgery by Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer in Frederick last week. Trent admitted his guilt.

Durward W. Kettels, who had been supervising Trent after a conviction against the man for larceny by trick in Adams County in 1954, said the defendant was accused of stealing $197 in addition to the worthless check from his employer, who lives just north of the Mason-Dixon line in Pennsylvania. Trent was out on parole after serving a portion of a one and a half to three-year term in Pennsylvania.

The probation officer was looking for Trent when Det. Sgt. Norman Dietz, Frederick, notified him the man had been arrested in Frederick on the forging of a number of small checks, using the name of his former employer, Eldon Fair. Trent told the officers he gave the stolen cash to a girl in Frederick, whose name he didn't know.

A new attraction will be the Yuletide Booth, featuring Christmas decorations for the home, and there will be many games and contests.

Surprise packages from all over the U. S. may be purchased at the Postoffice Booth. Ladies' and men's gifts, toys, religious articles and knitted and crocheted goods will be displayed at various booths.

Sandwiches and coffee, ice cream and cake, candy and soft drinks will be served at several refreshment booths. In addition, there will be a special Christmas movie feature for children sponsored by the college students who will be glad to care for patrons' children while they browse around and shop for Christmas gifts.

Under the guidance of Sister Bernadette, M.S.N.E., and Mrs. Therese Klesner and Miss Mary Elizabeth Bustamante, president and vice president of the Children of Mary, respectively, this year's fair will feature the universal theme, "Everywhere, Everywhere, Christmas with Mary."

Decorations will portray the theme with silhouetted children representing different races and nations.

THURMONT H. S. PLAY NOV. 30

There will be a matinee for students on Friday, Nov. 30 at 2 p. m. The performance will be given on Saturday, Dec. 1 at 8 p. m.

The plot deals with the presence in Pointer College of Susan Abbott's mother, Abigail Fortitude. When the college boys and Prof. Michaels fall in love with her, the co-eds are jealous. Eventually the dean expels Abigail, but in a charming scene in the third act Prof. Michaels sets everything aright. A very capable cast was selected by Mrs. Shears and Mrs. Mildred Wills.

The Board of County Commissioners this week announced the appointment of O. Wilson Runnels, of Urbana, as county road engineer effective Dec. 1.

Mr. Runnels, assistant county roads engineer for 15 years, will succeed Roger H. Willard, who submitted his resignation to the County Commissioners in October effective the first of next month when he will become construction engineer for Richard F. Kline, Frederick contractor.

The appointment of Mr. Runnels was not unexpected. It has been rumored for several weeks that he would succeed Mr. Willard.

Farmer Dies As Result Of Hunting Scuffle

H. Rudelle Crum, 36, prominent dairyman of Keymar, was fatally injured about 10 o'clock last Thursday morning when his head struck a railroad track during a fist fight, State Police said. Crum died about 11 o'clock Thursday night in a Baltimore hospital of a fractured skull.

John L. Glachen, a former Baltimore City morgue employee, was held in $2,500 bond in Carroll County jail on a charge of manslaughter.

Police said several other witnesses are being questioned about the fatal fight but all indications are that Crum and several companions met Glachen and some friends along the railroad spur line between Keymar and Union Bridge. Crum, it is believed, accused Glachen and others of hunting on his (Crum's) land which had been posted against hunting. Words led to blows and Glachen is charged with hitting Crum and knocking the latter to the ground, the back of his head striking the steel rail.

First Permit Issued Under New Zoning Law

The Frederick County Planning and Zoning Commission last week issued the first certificate under the new interim zoning ordinance, which went into effect earlier after it was signed by a majority of the Board of County Commissioners.

The certificate was issued to Mrs. Charlotte Stull of Mountain Dale, for a garage to cost approximately $500. Application for the certificate was made on Wednesday.

It was announced that persons who live in unincorporated areas and who must obtain zoning certificates for construction can obtain combination zoning and building permits at the Planning and Zoning Commission office on the second floor of the Court House.

Farmers are not required to secure zoning permits for construction for agricultural purposes on their own land, it was stated. They must continue to secure building permits, as in the past from the Assessments Office. Persons who live in incorporated towns must also still secure the building permits.

To make ends meet, they rent out rooms to an assortment of zany characters. Miss Lingg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lingg and is a resident of Emmitsburg. She has appeared in several local shows. She is employed as a secretary to Mr. Edward Storm, local attorney.

Few State Farmers "Go" For Soil Bank Program

Dept. of Agriculture officials report that only 18 Maryland farmers have signed conservation reserve contracts to put land in the soil bank.

Chester S. Bradley, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said the reluctance seems to stem from the length of the contracts.

Three years are required where adequate cover has already been established, five to 10 years where the cover and other approved practices are to be established, and 10 years where the area is to be planted in trees.

"Farmers hesitate to tie up land for these lengths of time and many have been asking what will happen if the farm changes ownership before the contract expires," Mr. Bradley said.

"The answer is that the farmer who signed the contract will be asked to return the government's share of the cost of establishing approved practice if the new owner does not continue the contract in force," he added. "In any event, the original signer will be permitted to keep money received as annual rental."

Mr. Bradley said Nov. 30 is the last date on which farmers may sign into the conservation reserve of the soil bank program for this year. Contracts for 1957 may be signed from Jan. 1 to Mar. 15.

Edgar Emrich Again Heads Milk Group

Over 350 dairy farmers supplying the Baltimore market met Friday night in Calvary Methodist Church, Fred., at the annual banquet of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers Association.

They re-elected Edgar G. Emrich of Emmitsburg to the board of directors of the organization for a three-year term by a unanimous vote of all present, with no opposing nominations, thus permitting Emrich to continue to serve as president of the Maryland Milk Producers, Inc., a position which must be filled by a member of the board of directors.

President Emrich told the delegates that the association was "never stronger than it is today" but that the dairy farmers still "lost one cent per hundredweight of milk for every five members who dropped out of the organization and gained that much with every five new members."

He said the recent charge that the association was a monopoly was "a test case which saved other dairymen all over the nation" when it was won by the association. He said the fight for a Federal Milk Order for Baltimore "effects every independent dealer as well as ourselves."

Emrich added that the association "must stop carrying the whole reserve for the Baltimore area and make the independent milk producers share the load," and, added that, "tank installations sponsored by the association increase the price of milk by 10 cents per hundredweight for all and will pay for themselves by the end of the year."

The president added that the Association had succeeded in establishing "a rate system for hauling based on the actual number of miles traveled and even went into the hauling business itself to cover areas where the haulers would not agree with the rates set."

"Increased publicity of the association over the past few months has been preliminary to a general membership drive" the association president concluded, adding "in some Northern States, labor unions have been moving into the dairy field. We have nothing against unions, but a strong dairy farmers cooperative will serve the same purpose as a union and make unionization unnecessary in Maryland."

Firemen Volunteer To Take Civil Defense Course

The first of several Civilian Defense training courses to be found in Frederick County has been arranged and will begin on Nov. 29 at 7 p. m. in the Emmitsburg Hall, Lawrence H. Crickenberger, Frederick County Civil Defense Director, announced this week.

It will feature the operation of a State of Maryland rescue truck specially assigned to Frederick County for Civilian Defense training purposes, which will be operated under the supervision of the Middletown Volunteer Fire Co.

The instructors for the course are Clinton K. Hughes and Geo. A. Bodmer, both members of the Braddock Heights rescue team. Both of the instructors have taken special courses in rescue training instruction at the Federal Defense Administration Training Center in Olney.

The rescue course will be held for 14 consecutive Thursday evenings for three hours a night, from 7 to 10 p. m., beginning on Nov. 29.

Mr. D. Saylor Weybright, manager of the Thurmont Cooperative, underwent minor surgery this week at the Frederick Memorial Hospital.

Flying Plane
Brings $10 Fine

An Emmitsburg Air Force sergeant, John Paul Glass who tried to fly a plane that was forced down on his father's farm and crashed it, was fined $10 this week for flying without a license.

Magistrate Edward J. Smith fined Glass and also found him not guilty of malicious destruction of property in the only hearing in People's Court, Frederick. Glass is stationed with the Air Force in Delaware.

Glass was heard on the charge arising when he flew a plane owned by Lewis Roehr, 22, Bethlehem, Pa. Roehr was forced down last September on the Glass farm on the Keysville Rd. because of bad weather. Roehr left the plane on the farm with the consent of Glass' father.

In testimony, Roehr said the plane was secured and a fence was put around it to protect it from the cattle on the farm. He said he intended to return and continue his flight from Bethlehem to East St. Louis, Ill.

A college student, Roehr said that when he returned, Glass told him he had tried to move the plane because some of the livestock had knocked down the fence and were rubbing against the craft. He said Glass admitted trying to fly the light two-seater plane to another field away from the livestock.

Trooper William G. Morgan told the court his investigation showed the craft had been moved and flown some 1000 feet away after hitting a fence, bouncing across a road and crashing in a cornfield. It was estimated that the damage to the plane was about $1200. Though Glass is a service man with the Air Force he did not have a license to fly.

Both the State and defense said that there was little grounds for the charge of malicious destruction. The term malicious implies willful intent to destroy and evidence presented by the State did not show such intent, said defense attorney Edwin F. Nikirk.

Manslaughter
Sentence Suspended

Joseph M. Condon, 37, Emmitsburg, Rt. 3, was found guilty by a jury in Adams County, Pa., court, Gettysburg, Monday on a charge of involuntary manslaughter growing out of an accident in which two persons died, and was given a suspended sentence.

Presiding Judge Sheely suspended sentence upon payment to the county of $200, along with the court costs. He placed Condon on probation for six months and directed that his driver's license be revoked for a year.

Fatally injured in the accident which occurred four miles west of Gettysburg on the Fairfield Rd. Mar. 7 were Paul E. Jewsbury, 40, St. Louis, Mo., and Albert E. Engel, Collingswood, N. J.

According to the testimony, Condon's car passed an automobile operated by Ronald Shindle-decker, Fairfield RFD, and collided with the oncoming car operated by Jewsbury in which Engel was a passenger. Condon was severely injured.

Mrs. Ray Topper will hold a public sale of some household furniture and other articles Saturday at 1:30 p. m. at the present home on DePaul St. Mrs. Topper and her son expect to move this week to their newly-erected house on Federal Ave.

Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gillelan were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wood and family, Reisters-town; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Straub and family, Gettysburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Gillelan and daughter, Biglerville.

Mrs. Quinn F. Topper and her daughters, Ann Marie and Jean, enjoyed a weekend trip to New York. They were accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Topper, Waynesboro.

George L. Wilhide, Frank W. Weant, Quinn F. Topper, Charles R. Fuss and Oliver J. Waybright attended the recent dinner and meeting of the Maryland Bank Auditors and Comptrollers held in Damascus, Md.

School, Emmitsburg.

After the opening prayer and regular business meeting, at which time it was decided to have the mission quiz in February at Frederick with two members from each unit participating, the Rev. Louis C. Vaeth addressed the conference on the continued work of the missions after graduation through the veteran units.

The meeting was closed with a film strip and talk of the actual experience of the Very Rev. Philip E. Dion on his recent mission work in Bolivia.

Police Dept. Gives
Safety Tips

Motorists should never relax their efforts to drive safely, Police Chief Daniel J. Kaas said this week and they should make a special effort now to get their cars in shape for safe winter driving months ahead—for their own protection and for the safety of their families.

"It's surprising to see how many motorists are caught unprepared by snow and ice around this time of year," Chief Kaas observed. "It reminds me of the fellow who couldn't put storm windows on his home when it was cold but didn't put them on while the weather was mild because he didn't need them."

One of the chief goals of "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" campaign will be to urge motorists to winterize their cars before winter really sets in.

Chief Kaas emphasized that winterizing a car means more than changing oil and putting in anti-freeze. "Of great importance to safety of the motorist are the brakes, headlights and other mechanical features of his car," he said.

"Live windshield wiper blades, defrosters in good working order, proper headlights, good tires and tire chains are all items the motorist can check now so they'll be ready when he needs them."

National Safety Council tests proved that a pair of good tire chains are the best possible source of traction on traffic-packed snow and ice. "Two full chains on rear tires are better than wishful thinking when the snow and ice conditions get bad," the chief advised. "They will help eliminate traffic tie-ups as well as accidents."

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A SNACK BAR

Need extra space when the youngsters come running into the house hungry from playing out-of-doors? A snack bar, which can be easily made, may solve the problem. The snack bar also doubles as a buffet table for outdoor picnics and barbecues.

The frame is made first, using 1 by 4-inch lumber. Cut the frame members to the dimensions shown. Assemble with waterproof glue and 8-penny finishing nails. Next, from a 14-foot piece of 3 by 3-inch lumber, cut four pieces each 39 inches long for the legs. Use a miter box to help in cutting square ends.

The bottom shelf is made of

National Lumber Manufacturers Association

1 by 12-inch lumber. Mark each corner of the shelf for a cut-out as shown. Use a leg as a guide.

The top is made of 1 by 8-inch lumber. Cut two pieces 72-inches long. Edge-glue the boards with a waterproof glue. Fasten the frame to the legs with glue and 8-penny finishing nails. Toenail the shelf to the legs, using glue and 10-penny finishing nails. Attach the top with 10-penny finishing nails.

Set all nails and fill the holes with wood filler. Round all sharp edges and sand the snack bar smooth.

Paint or stain and varnish.

House Fire

Fire did considerable damage to the home of Homer Tyler, Hampton Valley Rd. leading to Rainbow Lake, Wednesday afternoon. The Vigilant Hose Co. answered the alarm at about 4:30 o'clock and were instrumental in saving the house from complete destruction. Fire was believed to have started by an over-heated stove pipe.

The Light still shines in the darkness, and the darkness has never put it out. (John 1:5. Phillips.)

Our first opportunity to visit a cave was during a vacation trip. As we stood looking at the rock formations, wet with water, our guide explained that the formation of the rocks by dripping water was started centuries ago. He also said that the green vegetation growing on the walls did not appear until electric lights were installed.

Our guide pulled the electric switch, and the cave was in total darkness — the blackest we had ever experienced. Then our guide lighted a candle. We could see again. All the darkness in the cave could not put out the light of that candle.

A radiant and unfaltering faith in God had its beginning long centuries ago. Christians throughout the ages witness that new life springs forth in the darkest places when exposed to the light of God's Word. The assurances of the Christian faith are that God has established His Word as a light in the world, and that no darkness is black enough to put it out.

PRAYER

O Christ, Thou art the true light of this world. So shine into our hearts that all the darkness will be expelled and we shall walk in Thy light without fear and without stumbling. In the blessed name of Christ we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

IS RAGWEED HERE TO STAY?

With running eyes and red noses, the ragweed victims plead for an answer to their annual problem. Are they doomed to suffer every summer the misery of their allergy to this plant Public Enemy?

There's no easy answer to the question. Ragweed is being attacked on three fronts: eradication of the plant, immunizing shots for the sufferer, research on the basic causes of hypersensitivity.

Frankly, there's not much immediate hope for eradication of ragweed. Botanically, it's a splendid plant, beautifully adapted for survival. Communities have spent small fortunes eradicating ragweed plants only to have the next season's pollen count as high as ever. Ragweed is found almost everywhere in cities, towns, and country. The light grains of pollen are blown great distances over land and water. Modern herbicides kill the weeds effectively, but the seeds can live in the soil for 40 years. Nationwide eradication efforts would have to be repeated every year for 40 years. At the end of such a staggering expensive program the ragweed might be gone, but so might food plants and trees.

New developments in chemicals which kill weed seeds in the soil hold out some hope for the future, but what is the ragweed suffered to do in the meantime? There are a few places in the U. S. where there is still no ragweed, because the soil or climate discourages it and because natural barriers such as high mountain ranges, keep out air-borne pollen. But suppose the victim can't or doesn't want to pull up stakes. It will help somewhat to pull up the ragweed in his own backyard.

Some victims are helped by shots which desensitize or immunize against pollen. There are also nose drops and pills which give relief. These, however, should be taken only with the advice of a doctor. Much more needs to be known about the basic causes of allergies that afflict more than 17 million Americans. Research is needed for better methods of prevention and treatment. Meantime, the sufferers should follow his doctor's advice for the best means of getting through the season with as little misery as possible.

Farmers To Vote On Corn Program December 11

Maryland farmers will go to the polls again on Dec. 11. This time they will vote in a referendum to decide on the kind of corn program they want in 1957.

Mr. Chester S. Bradley, chairman of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said the issues at stake are whether the farmers want the Soil Bank base acreage or the acreage allotment program during the coming year.

If the acreage allotment program is in effect for the 1957 crop, the national corn allotment will be 37.2 million acres for the 894-county commercial corn-producing areas in 24 states. The allotment was determined as prescribed by law, on the basis of corn supplies.

The 1957 allotment covers 54 more counties than the 43 million-acre allotment announced for 1956, which was replaced by the corn base acreage provided in the Soil Bank legislation. The share of the 1957 allotment available for the 840 counties which were also in the commercial area this year is about 16 per cent smaller than the 1956 allotment. The extent of the reduction for individual county and farm allotments if the acreage allotment program is in effect will vary from this percentage because of acreage trends, crop rotations, and other factors.

If the base acreage program of the Soil Bank Act is in effect for 1957, the national acreage of corn to be apportioned among producers in the commercial producing area will be 51 million acres as set by law.

If base acreages (51 million acres total) are to be in effect in 1957, they must be approved by two-thirds or more of the corn producers voting in the Dec. 11 referendum. If more than one-third of the producers voting favor acreage allotments, the allotment program will be in effect.

Corn producers will receive notice of both their individual farm base acreages and allotments prior to the referendum. State shares of the acreages under the two programs will be announced later, Mr. Bradley said.

Information as to the levels of price support under the two alternative programs and the rates of payment for corn under the Soil Bank Program will be announced soon.

Your Infant's Needs

Rely on Your Physician For Baby's Special Menu

By Dr. Margaret Lyman
Educational Director
National Council on Infant and Child Care Inc.

Your baby's menu is indeed a highly individualized affair — having very little to do with any other infant's needs.

When a physician prescribes a formula and feeding schedule for an infant in his care, he does so on the basis of a variety of intricate factors. He takes into account heredity, prenatal factors, birth weight, bone structure, hemoglobin, coordination and disposition. Studying the infant's characteristics carefully and noting the rate of growth, he judges baby's specific nutritional needs regarding water, calcium, carbohydrates, protein and fat. All these in appropriate quantities are required for proper growth and development. An infant's formula is designed to guard against digestive disturbances, dehydration and an overburdening of the immature kidney function.

It must be admitted that although very special pains are taken to prescribe "just the right" formula, a healthy, sturdy infant is able to withstand an amazing degree of feeding irregularity. Perhaps it is this virtue that encourages some mothers to depart from the prescribed regimen and try "something new".

A competitive tendency is often involved in such efforts. Every young mother, is proud if her infant cuts a tooth earlier than the baby next door, if he walks earlier; if he talks earlier; and if he can eat three square meals a day.

The main hazard in not following a physician's advice becomes sharply apparent should the baby develop an infection or other illness. Nourishment that is adequate when the baby is well may no longer be satisfactory.

In such crucial periods the physician is familiar with the baby's regular diet and is best able to treat the illness and adjust the infant's intake to meet the increased fluid requirements thus averting serious dehydration.

The physician designing a feeding schedule will consider the way permitted by baby's needs, the mother's ability to cope with a specific time schedule and the demands of other children for time and attention. Feeding times often can be geared to the general household schedule without making the mother's routine or the infant's routine dominant.

A young and inexperienced mother needs a physician's advice to determine where an infant's good appetite leaves off and "gluttony" begins. Dr. Harry H. Gordon of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, observes that some infants with large appetites triple their birth weight by the age of six months instead of the more customary period of one year. "Parents are thrilled because they interpret the infant's ability to ingest large amounts of solids and fluids as a sign of high intelligence," he adds.

When modifications of your baby's menu need to be made, it is a good idea to rely on your doctor to make them. This is a time-tested formula for a happy, well-fed child and a confident mother.

Cleanest Street in the World

Forty Hunter College girls worked themselves into a lather paving a street block at Rockefeller Plaza with 108,000 bars of pink Camay soap to begin the 1956-1957 campaign of the Citizens' Committee to Keep New York City Clean.

The volunteers completed the five-hour job at 9:30 a.m. and then posed in an aura of cleanliness for photographers and television cameramen. The sweet-smelling soap mosaic, extending from 49th to 50th St., proclaimed "A Cleaner N. Y. Is Up To You" in six-foot letters of soap wrapped in pink foil.

The design, which also included a broom and its "swoosh," was laid out late Monday night by two professional artists after the street was closed to traffic. About 90,000 unwrapped bars provided the fragrant background for 18,000 others used in the lettering and symbol.

There was enough soap, it was said, to provide an average family of four persons 4,154 years of clean living.

Keith S. McHugh, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, spoke at a brief ceremony shortly after 10:00 a.m., which was hosted by TV and radio personality Jinx Falkenberg, and said that his group was trying to convince 8,000,000 New Yorkers that "it's more fun and nicer to have a clean town than a dirty town" and that 3,000 volunteers would work harder to make "New York the most beautiful city in the world."

Some of the 40 Hunter College freshmen who volunteered for the Cleaner New York campaign as they fitted wrapped and unwrapped pink soap into a 192 x 35 foot mosaic at Rockefeller Plaza.

Student Interest In Math, Science Noted In Survey

Enrollments in high school science and mathematics courses are showing a definitely upward trend, according to a recent survey conducted by the Maryland Dept. of Education. Because of the prevailing widespread concern over the current shortage of scientific manpower, it is encouraging to note the increasing numbers of our high school youth enrolling in both the basic and advanced science and mathematics courses in the county public high schools.

The study, covering the period from 1930 through the 1955-56 school year, shows that enrollments in science and mathematics courses have increased in direct proportion to the increase in total school enrollment. During the years around 1950 there was a downward trend in enrollments in science and mathematics courses. This was probably due to two causes: First, the unfounded but widespread fear expressed by some of the engineering and scientific professional groups that there would shortly be a surplus of trained technical manpower. Second, in 1953-54 the total high school enrollment was less than in 1941-42. Increased enrollments in recent years reflect the increasing vocational interests of youth in science and engineering as a career. Enrollments in algebra have almost doubled from a low of 8674 in 1950 to a high of 16,098 in 1956 in the county high schools. In the more advanced mathematics fields, plane and solid geometry and trigonometry, the survey revealed similar trends.

A comparable situation prevails in the science fields. Virtually one hundred per cent of the ninth and tenth grade enrollments in the county high schools now take the basic general science and biology courses. In chemistry the 1956 enrollment was 42 per cent higher than the 1935 enrollment and in physics it was 15 per cent higher. These figures clearly refute the popular idea that our high school pupils are not now interested in advanced science courses.

Another popular misconception is that our high schools, especially the smaller schools, do not offer sufficient courses in advanced science and mathematics. While this may be true to some extent in other states where school size is a factor, the survey reveals that such is not the case in Maryland. More than 95 per cent of all county high schools, regardless of size, offer courses in algebra and chemistry. Plane geometry is available in 93 per cent and physics in 90 per cent. On the basis of total enrollments, less than one per cent of our pupils are not able to take courses in algebra and chemistry. Physics is available to over 96 per cent of our high school students. As consolidation of the small high schools continues, the time is very near when both basic and advanced high school science and mathematics courses will be available to all high school students.

Another encouraging part of this study concerns certification of teachers. The certificate status of county public high school teachers of mathematics and science—414 in mathematics, 387 in science, and 87 in mathematics and science combined—indicates that 87 per cent of the 564 full-time teachers held regular certificates and 84 per cent of the 324 part-time teachers also held regular certificates.

The percentage of teachers holding regular certificates in science and mathematics is higher than the percentage of regular certified teachers in other fields.

More than 30 per cent of the graduates of the Maryland public high schools enroll each year in various colleges and universities of Maryland and other states, and the academic achievement of these students is most satisfactory. Possibly the best indication of the quality of the preparation received by Maryland high school students is the fact that during the past two years college scholarships amounting to more than $500,000 in value have been awarded each year to the public high school graduates of Baltimore City and Baltimore County alone. Most of these scholarships were awarded ed by out-of-state institutions of high learning, including the leading universities of the country.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Dr. George S. Benson
EMMITSBURG, MARYLAND
Benson, Adams

John Lewis, Businessman
Under American capitalism the employees, the employers and the consuming public all have a stake in the uninterrupted production of every manufacturing plant. This point has been repeatedly emphasized in the 20 years in which our National Education Program has been developing educational materials on the American way of life. Wealth is produced by taking a raw material and adding to its value through processing and service. But the production must be a profit-making operation, or else the labor and energy expended will be a national waste.

The more wealth that is produced by our hundreds of thousands of manufacturing and processing plants, the higher will be the living standard of all Americans. Not only is this a theoretical premise: the statistics of our progress show it to be true. Therefore, when production—anywhere or to any degree—is curtailed or halted, the economic welfare of all citizens is affected proportionally. Harmony Helps All

It seems apparent then that every American, whatever his or her occupation or calling, ought to be interested in maintaining harmony between employees and employers so that strikes and work stoppages will not occur and that a spirit of teamwork will continually increase our industrial productivity and, with it, our living standard. There are definite indications that public awareness in this realm of our economic life is spreading, improving. Perhaps the most dramatic instance of this fact is the changing attitude of John L. Lewis, the labor leader who for many years symbolized unrelenting strike-power in action, the power of a union to halt production.

In Washington, D. C. last month, Mr. Lewis presided over a convention of his United Mine Workers Union. He observed that there had not been a strike in the industry in six years. He reported that the union and just reached agreement, through negotiations with coal mine owners, on a new contract calling for wage increases. And he noted the UMW encouraged modernization and mechanization in the coal industry "in contradistinction to miners' unions of other countries which opposed and fought modernization."

Sides With Industry

But the most significant revelation in the new Lewis attitude came when one of the UMW convention delegates, backed by a few other miners, objected to the new contract, arguing that the workday should be cut—without reducing wages. Mr. Lewis said the coal industry could not afford to take that step.

"The question of the six hour day is one of cost," he said. "I think if the convention wants it, it can get it in the next contract—with pay for six hours. When you reduce the day from eight to six hours without wage reduction it means a 25 per cent increase, at least, in production costs. The shorter day has been discussed with the operators in past years. They claim that they are getting only 6.5 hours of productive time now as a national average, because of travel time and paid lunch periods. The costs must be considered from the competitive angle. There is competition with oil, gas, and water power, and atomic energy in the future."

"These," said the labor leader with firmness, "are the facts of life we have to consider. If you want to stop eating so much and loaf more, we can get you the six hour day."

New, Wholesome Attitude
This is an attitude quite different to the one presented by Mr. Lewis just 10 years ago. It is an attitude accepting the fact that the workers welfare is tied up with the success of his industry, with production and productivity. The new attitude has undoubtedly been influenced by the fact that Mr. Lewis in recent years has become the head of a vast UMW enterprise with many investments — and with many of the problems of the industrial executive. Among the enterprises watched over by Mr. Lewis are a newly organized trans-Atlantic shipping company, one of the largest banks in Washington (controlled by the UMW), a $4 million investment in public utilities, and so forth. His present attitude is perfectly sound — with regard both to employer and employee.

John Lewis also feels that bigness in American industry is not necessarily bad. Great consolidations of modern capital are taking place in the industry," he noted, "and they are highly beneficial, and in the modern sense are more efficient — better for the men who work in the mines."

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Says No One Knows What Russia Will Do

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 22 —First, let me say that Russia's decision as to the Egyptian situation will be a great factor in the U. S. business outlook for 1957.

Immediate Outlook For 1957

If Israel had not stirred up this trouble, business in 1957 would be fair, — with a maximum average decline of not more than 5%. The stock market could, however, sell nearer 600. Israel, however, has upset any definite forecast at this time.

If Russia keeps out of the conflict, we can depend upon the above forecast. If, however, the Middle East should flare into a small war and if the U. S. remains neutral, 1957 could be the busiest and most profitable year we have ever had, with all basic commodities going higher.

What Has Happened To Date?

Israel has apparently already pulled out, regretting that she ever started the row. She now realizes that if it should develop into a real war, she could be wiped out. Certainly Israel is no longer a factor. The United Nations has agreed to police the Suez Canal, but not to police the world's greatest oil reserves nearby. This may "save face" for Britain and France, but the Canal is not much good to these countries if there is no oil to take through it.

Will Russia Remain Neutral?

Thus far Russia has refused to do so and is threatening to help Egypt and the Arab world by contributing to Egypt airplanes, munitions, and volunteers," as she helped the North Koreans some years ago. This could result in the United States remaining neutral for the present at least. Eisenhower does not want another "Korean" war. If we can long remain neutral, I repeat that United States business in 1957 should be excellent and that most stocks should now be held rather than sold; especially hold the oils.

I cannot now foresee Russia and the United States joining forces even to bring about real world peace. Russia does not want stable world conditions unless she is the "top dog." To this President Eisenhower would never agree even though — as a General — he realizes the hopelessness of any nation winning another war; in fact, he believes all nations engaged therein would lose. Russia surely will not engage in war directly, for fear of losing the satellites.

On the other hand, I can understand why President Eisenhower would be willing to see England and France worry for a while. They refused to take the advice of our President and Mr. Dulles. These men both urged England and France to refrain from using force in Egypt. Furthermore, our President is disappointed in the way Western Europe has failed to co-operate in his plans for an economic and military union. He feels that a scare might do them good.

Don't Forget The Arabs

Remember that Eisenhower knows and likes the Arabs, having become acquainted with them during the course of World War I. He knows that their desert lands need only water to be the most productive in the world. He hopes to give them atomic power to irrigate and get this needed water. He knows, too, that the Arabs are fairly close to the Belgian Congo, which is the largest producer of uranium in the world.

In closing, let me say that one real goal of Russia and England and the United States is to keep open the Middle East oil fields and retain the good will of the Arab World. I forecast that France is now out of the picture and will lose all of North Africa. Neither Russia nor England can win except by force; but Eisenhower hopes to win by negotiating and by helping Egypt and her Arab friends through economic aid, to become strong and to build her dam and secure atomic power. The Arabs should know by this time that Russian promises are no good.

To fill a medium-sized oil tank ship would require the liquid cargo of nearly 800 of the big clipper trucks that haul oil on highways and at airports.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Winter is the proper time to overhaul your fishing tackle, says Jason Lucas, Sports Afield's angling editor. By following his advice on off-season care of your gear, you will find everything in tip-top shape when you need it in the spring.

You may have heard that rubber waders and boots should be stored by hanging them up so that plenty of air can get to them. Don't do it! It will reduce their life to perhaps a fifth of what it should be. The best method is to dry them thoroughly, roll them up, wrap in heavy brown paper and put them in some cool place. To extend their useful life still further, seal them as well as possible from the air in a plastic bag or such.

Another thing to remember before putting your waders away is that oil and grease are very injurious to rubber, eat into it and soften it. So if there's the least trace of this on your waders, wash thoroughly with soap and rinse well.

A split-bamboo rod, even a new one with perfect varnish, will soon disintegrate, irreparably, if kept in a damp spot. Storing in an extremely dry place will often cause ferrules to loosen. Glass rods can stand more abuse, but they also have their limits. And if left in a damp place the metal ferrules can corrode and be ruined, so it's best to store on the same kind of spot you would a bamboo rod. Never leave any rod jointed up all winter, for if you do you may find the ferrules stuck so that you'll do damage trying to get them apart.

Nylon line doesn't seem to be subject to rot, but moisture will cause severe corrosion to a metal reel spool. So before putting your reel away for the winter, string the line out and dry it very thoroughly, then wind it back on.

Before putting your fly line away it's a good idea to smear it with some good fly-line dressing. Some of this may soak it to keep it flexible, and it will also keep the air away from the surface. Any reel should be taken apart at least once a year and thoroughly cleaned, oiled and greased. Give your tackle box a coat of wax before putting it away, to prevent rust. Flies are a favorite food of moths, so store them in an airtight box with plenty of moth repellent. Give the hooks on your lures a coat of grease. If you don't get around to these little overhauling jobs, at least keep your tackle in a completely dry place. Any old corner of a damp basement or garage just will not do!

"Under a free economic system the consumer remains the ultimate authority as to what will and will not be produced. If the businessman fails to do his duty by the consumer he eventually has no duty to perform."—Wall Street Journal

THE 101st AIRBORNE DIVISION— "THE SCREAMING EAGLES"

December 18-26, 1944
Bastogne

As the Germans swept forward in the early days of the Battle of the Bulge one of their first objectives was Bastogne which commanded an important road junction.

Rushed to Bastogne by truck, the 101st Airborne Division joined elements of two armored divisions in its defense. American lines had been pushed back all around the city leaving it surrounded but still uncaptured.

The plan was to hold Bastogne forcing the attackers to move to the north and through the Ardennes Forest. There the poor roads and unfavorable terrain would help to slow their advance.

On December 22nd the Germans demanded the surrender of the besieged city. General Anthony McAuliffe's now famous reply was, "Nuts." The paratroopers fought on for another four days until relieved. By holding out they had seriously upset the enemy's battle timetable and funneled his strength into the Ardennes where he was at a disadvantage.

the social security system on a permanent, contributory basis after 1956 under provisions of the Servicemen's and Veterans' Survivors Benefits Act which President Eisenhower signed into law on August 1. This means regular social security credit for service personnel for their years of active service in uniform after 1956 without affecting the military retirement pay of career soldiers and sailors.

Beginning with January 1, 1957, military personnel of all grades will be covered by social security during active service and will be building personal and family protection under the program in substantially the same way as have been 9 out of 10 in civilian employment and self-employment. The Federal Government and the servicemen will share the social security tax in the same manner as employers and employees in private industry. This tax will be at the same rate as that provided for civilian workers and employers. For servicemen the social security tax will be on the service person's basic pay and will not be imposed on such items as the value of food, shelter, and various allowances and special pay.

It is contemplated that the service departments will report wages of military personnel generally in the same manner that employers now report covered wages paid to civilian employees. Social security account number cards will be issued to members of the armed forces under special procedures. It will not be necessary for servicemen to contact social security district offices to apply for cards.

While contributory social security coverage for members of the uniformed services will not begin until January 1, 1957, there will be no gap in social security protection to servicemen and their families, as the noncontributory wage credits of $160 a month provided by the old law have been extended through December 31, 1956. Those special social security wage credits had been given for military service beginning September 1940 but, until this adjustment was made, had been cut off at March 1956.

Heretofore, a career person in the armed services could not expect to get the $160-a-month military wage credits under old-age and survivors insurance because the wage credits were not granted when a benefit based in whole or in part on the same period of military service was payable by any one of the uniformed services' staff retirement systems and certain other Federal retirement systems.

Under the new law active service on or after January 1, 1957, may carry with it gratuitous $160-per-month wage credits for military service performed any time in the period after 1950 and 1957, even if the same period is creditable towards a retirement payment from the service department.

The gratuitous wage credits of $160 a month for service prior to January 1, 1957, cannot be used toward social security benefits if that service was used in connection with a monthly payment under the civil service retirement system for Federal civilian employees. However, under a provision of the new law, survivors may, if to their advantage, give up all rights to a civil service annuity and elect to have pre-1957 military service counted toward social security benefits. Since military service performed on or after January 1, 1957, will be covered under social security on a contributory basis, credit for that service will not generally be given under the civil service retirement system.

Beginning January 1, 1957, applications for survivor benefits filed with either the Social Security Administration or the Veterans Administration by survivors of servicemen will constitute applications for benefits from both agencies. In addition, proofs filed with either agency will be made available to the other agency.

The new law provides for reimbursement of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund out of the general government revenues for the additional costs of benefits payments resulting from the noncontributory $160-per-month military wage credits which were given for active service after September 15, 1940. The trust fund will be reimbursed also for special survivor payments made after 1950 under 1946 legislation which applied to deaths of World War II veterans during the three-year period following discharge from service. Under the old law, these expenditures from the trust fund had to come out of the social security taxes paid by civilian employees, their employers, and the self-employed. Money already taken out of the trust fund for these purposes will be paid back into the fund over a 10-year period.

In the future, the trust fund will be reimbursed annually for current expenditures based on the pre-1957 $160 wage credits.

Pimlico Draws Record Throngs

The members clubhouse at Pimlico—the oldest public structure in American horse racing—is playing host to more fans than it has since its opening 86 years ago.

The current racing meet runs through Dec. 15.

The historic Baltimore landmark has been completely remodeled and enlarged inside, with upper floors of the wooden structure open to the public for the first time in years.

The outside of the old club, with its stately Victorian lines, has been left as it was, topped by the familiar iron cupola and horse weather vane painted in the colors of the most recent Preakness winner.

The third floor, seldom seen by the general public since opening day on Oct. 24, 1870, has been restored with a dozen dining rooms in the nature of private boxes capable of seating up to 30 persons each.

Each room is individually decorated and furnished to carry out the club's cheerful "at home" theme. The rooms will be named after the eight Triple Crown winners and other famous horses that performed at Pimlico.

Spectators on this floor will be guaranteed an unequalled view of the race track itself from a new balcony which has been installed across the front of the building which is located on the first turn.

Also on the third floor will be the new President's Room, for the entertainment of exceptionally large parties, and the Maryland Jockey Club library, containing records dating back to the 18th Century. The MJC was founded in 1743, thus making it America's oldest racing association.

The second floor of the club has been enlarged to include a permanent gallery for the Jockeys Hall of Fame which Pimlico sponsors. It will feature original oils of America's greatest riders and other memorabilia.

Three parlors or sitting rooms for patrons open off the grand staircase leading from the first floor. Beyond these is the old dining room which has been restored a bit on opening day in 1870. The walls are buff red and hung with rare English racing prints from the collection of Joe Stevens. The MJC insignia is hand-carved into the columns of the room which will seat 300 patrons.

The new dining room, seating nearly 1000 patrons, remains as it was, along with the first floor areas which were completely remodeled and enlarged two years ago.

Gifts For Mentally Ill Patients Sought

An all-out effort on the eighth annual Christmas project for the mentally ill was launched this week by members of the Frederick County Chapter of the Maryland Assn. for Mental Health, assisted by numerous civic and service organizations.

Mrs. Riley D. Housewright, chairman, has announced that containers for gifts have been placed in the C. Burr Artz Library in Frederick and in the Thurmont Public Library. Unwrapped gift items, with wrapping attached, may be left there up through Dec. 15.

Transportation for such ward gifts as TV sets, phonographs, radios and sewing machines, may be arranged by calling Mrs. Housewright in Frederick, Monument 3-3293, or the Maryland Association headquarters in Baltimore at 2100 N. Charles St.

Among the public schools sponsoring the gift drive that will supply presents and holiday celebrations to some 7000 of the state mental hospital patients are Mt. Airy High, Woodsboro, Emmitsburg High and Elementary, Thurmont High, Middletown Elementary and Hood College, and the N. Market Street and Washington Street schools.

The energy obtained yearly from crude oil and natural gas is the equivalent of the work of 33 servants for every man, woman and child in the nation.

Engineers Combine Color With Light To Obtain Startling New Decorative Effects

A STARTLING new concept in home decoration combining color with light has been unveiled by engineers of Westinghouse. It consists of a family of pastel tinted light bulbs which can be used to achieve unusual decorative effects in the home.

According to Myrtle Fahsbender, director of residential lighting for the Westinghouse Lamp Division, the new light bulbs enable the homemaker to create interesting decorative results as well as new and different lighting effects in any room.

The "Beauty Tone" bulbs can be used to refresh, intensify, lighten, or alter existing textures and colors. They offer special flattery to the complexion, Miss Fahsbender observed, and furnish a soft, glareless light.

"The various tinted light bulbs can be used to cool or warm a room or a corner, to create a special atmosphere or to recast a color scheme."

"The housewife can select from a family of Beauty Tone light bulbs the one which best meets the needs of her own decorating scheme. New Beauty Tone Candlelight bulbs flatter the yellows, yellow-reds and yellow-greens. They create a pleasant warm candlelight atmosphere."

"In addition, Westinghouse has introduced a Beauty Tone

Melanie Kahane, nationally known interior designer and color specialist, assisted by Arthur Wagner of Miss Kahane's staff, observe the effect of the three different Westinghouse Beauty Tone lamps on several fabrics. More than a hundred variations of tinted light bulbs were tested before the Beauty Tone line — the three which would produce the most flattering and appealing decorative effects — was selected.

can make light a part of their home decor, just as they use paint, draperies, rugs and furniture coverings. With the new Beauty Tone bulbs, color can be combined with light with the result that bulbs will be used for more than just seeing."

In order to select just the right shade of each color, Westinghouse called upon a nationally known designer and color stylist — Melanie Kahane. Miss Kahane and her associates tested the effect of more than a hundred variations of tinted light bulbs. From these experiments she was able to tell Westinghouse engineers which shades produce the most flattering and appealing decorative effects.

Mount Basketball Season Opens Away December 1

Coach Jim Phelan's Mt. St. Mary's College cagers will open a 22-game campaign on Dec. 1 against Steubenville College, Steubenville, O. In addition, the Mountaineers will return to the Quantico Marine tourney prior to Christmas vacation.

Phelan's 12-man squad has three starters from last year's Mason-Dixon championship squad in Jack Sullivan, Bert Sheing, and Bill Williams. Jerry Bohlinger, another letterman, will probably begin at the pivot post. The fifth slot is still wide open with a flock of talented freshmen pushing last year's reserves for the opening spot.

Despite the loss of three talented back court operators who contributed 765 points to the Mountaineer cause and the rebounding of Tito Nanni who dropped out of school, Phelan is optimistic about his club's possibilities. The Mountie coach feels that he has better size than in the past plus good shooting and good speed. If the defense works out the Mountaineers expect to be contenders for their fourth straight conference crown.

Key man in the Mountaineer attack is senior Jack Sullivan, 6'4 forward who holds all the college and conference records. Bert Sheing, a surprise performer as a freshman, is expected to boost his game average and direct the Mountaineer attack. Bill Williams, a 6'6 forward, could be the best big man in the conference. Williams is a fine shooter both inside and outside, a good rebounder. Bohlinger, 6'6, saw a lot of action last season but needs stronger scoring to hold his job. At present two freshmen, 6'5 Bill Morse and 6'4 Jack Halleron have caught Phelan's eye with their board work and shooting. Morse shoots well from all over and has an exceptionally fine touch. Halleron is a bear under the boards and a good inside marksman.

The Mountaineers figure to have good bench strength. Mixed up in the dogfight for the fifth starting post are juniors Joe Sullivan and Tom Mullen, both of whom are good floormen and tough defensively. Both have demonstrated improved shooting and Sullivan's rebounding is also a factor. Tom Leonard, 6'5 soph, shoots well but lacks experience. He has shown aggressiveness during practice sessions and at the moment

Senator Morse Hurt At Gettysburg

Senator Wayne Morse, (D.-Ore.) received slight injuries last Sunday morning as a result of a three-car collision at the intersection of Carlisle St. and Lincoln Ave., Gettysburg. The car in which Morse was a passenger was driven by James M. Brown, 68, Washington, D. C.

Brown, his vision obscured by a cattle truck behind which he was driving, drove through a red light. He was struck on the left rear fender by a car driven by John C. Showalter, Gettysburg Rt. 1, who was driving east. The impact of the collision swung Brown's car to the right and his rear fender struck the left front of a car driven by James E. Powell, 27, Washington, D. C. Powell was stopped at the intersection waiting for Showalter to cross. He was about to turn right into Rt. 15.

Damages to the three vehicles amounted to $225 for Brown, $50 to Showalter, and $175 to Powell. Because a friendly agreement had been reached, Gettysburg Borough police said no charges were filed. All three cars were covered by insurance.

SPELLMAN

with other Sisters of Charity and Monsignori visited the "White House," the Stone House where Mother Seton, founder of the order, lived when she established the school, the tomb of Mother Seton and other areas.

When he started to leave the school all the students and the nuns lined the tree-shaded driveway from the main building to the highway. When Cardinal Spellman saw this tribute he had his car stopped, alighted, removed his hat and walked the length of the driveway bowing, smiling, and waving to the girls and the Sisters. At the end of the driveway, he turned around for a final glimpse, wiped his eyes with his handkerchief, stepped into his car and was driven away.

ABIGAIL

could be established? Most farmers will permit hunting if asked, all they want to know is who is on their property just in case any damage is done, and they have a perfect right to know that. I am under the opinion that if you treat a man right he'll reciprocate. The Golden Rule still prevails.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Topper and son and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Topper and daughter, Ferndale, visited Sunday with Mrs. Ray Topper.
