Every once in a while when things get sort of dull around town and I have run out of choice material for a column, my old friend, Phil Sharpe, turns up with something interesting.

This past week he received a letter from one of the field representatives of International Business Machines, better known as IBM. Besides bookkeeping and other machines, they also make these enormous "electronic brains" we read about in the papers; machines that can solve problems in minutes that it would stump 100 top mathematicians to finish in a year.

To make these machines more useful to those who know how to run them they are developing a programming training for their Type 704 calculator at the New York University Institute of Mathematical Sciences. The new training program is called FORTRAN, or Formula Translation.

In his book, now a standard on the market for 21 years, Phil Sharpe's "Complete Guide to Handloading," has been the recognized bible of the man who likes to load his own ammunition. There are some four pages of tabular data Phil says he worked out the hard way over 20 years ago, spending most of his evenings for eight months in the painful job of figuring and using reams of scrap paper.

To set up FORTRAN, the IBM-NYU boys took Phil's accepted basic formula as a problem. Whereas he had about 1000 sets of figures in his book, they made it more complicated. Here is the story.

With the machine set up with formula and instructions, it went to work. Fifteen minutes later the 704 had worked out 1000 sets of memory tabulations on magnetic tape—each set consisting of 20 figures, letters and spaces. The tape then went through another section where automatic typewriters recorded 200 sets of these 20-letter units on an 11x15 sheet of paper and completed a sheet at an average rate of 30 seconds each.

Elated, Phil showed me one of those typed sheets. All figures and letters were clear, clean and straight — yet they were printed at this enormous speed through a ribbon. In less than two hours, Phil commented, that machine comes up with 40 times as much as I was able to do in 1200 hours. "Did you order one," I cutely asked? "Don't be funny Abigail," he retorted. "Takes a whole building to accommodate one of those and costs well over a half million dollars. I have to pay my taxes first."

One of the brighter aspects of Halloween activities on the local scene was the conduct and cooperation of most of the community's youth who contained their fun to "decorating" the Square this year. Police commented on the attitude of the youths favorably. As usual, there was that element which has to carry things too far, destroy property and throw nails onto the highway. Filling stations did a rushing flat tire business the latter part of the week, I am told. Another individual lost a small shed and about $50 worth of tools. As a whole though, the observance was sort of on the pacific side and no fodder fires were reported, which is highly unusual. Early the next morning the town had been restored to normalcy and most of us forgot all about Halloween. A few though still persist on extending the celebration and evidence to that effect was seen this week when a number of articles were removed from premises and strewn about the town.

Nothing to do these chilly nights? Well here's one night (Saturday) that you can wile away a few pleasurable hours. The PTA of the local Catholic high school is holding a delightful bingo game tomorrow night and you are cordially invited. See you there?

Race Track Owner Succumbs

Albert J. Boyle who made millions by betting a horse bettor would go anywhere at anytime to plunk down his $2, died Friday night in Charles Town, W. Va. He died of a heart ailment at the age of 72.

Boyle was owner-operator of the Charles Town race track. When he took over the track from its creditors in 1935 he risked his life's savings on the belief he could make a go by pulling bettors and fans from the lucrative Washington and Baltimore areas in the dead of winter, when he had no competition from other tracks in the East.

Boyle had been hospitalized for some time with a heart condition and Friday afternoon he was transferred to a Washington, D. C. hospital and appeared to be improving. At 11:15 that night he suffered another attack and passed away in about 15 minutes.

He followed the script of a self-made man. One of nine children, he was born in Libertytown, Md. and started out as a day laborer in Baltimore.

Boyle is survived by his widow and two sons and a daughter by a previous marriage. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at Gawler's Funeral Home in Washington with private burial in Bethesda, Md.

Mr. Boyle was predeceased by two brothers who lived in Emmitsburg most of their lives. They were J. Brooke and Harry S. Boyle.

Veterans' Column

Monday will be Veterans Day—the anniversary that we once knew as Armistice Day has become the nation's day of All-Embracing Sacred Remembrance. No longer does it commemorate the patriotism of one generation of Americans. To have meaning and significance to us today, Veterans Day must serve a noble purpose. The purpose is to forever remember the cost in American lives, American toil and American sweat that has gone into the founding and preservation of our free institution.

The National Commander of the American Legion, John S. Gleason, Jr., recently returned from a Crusade for Freedom trip to Europe and briefly summarized in a telegram to John W. Sloan, state commander of the American Legion in Maryland, the following thought provoking message concerning our Veterans Day observance on Nov. 11. "There is great need to remind the entire world that citizens of the U. S. have always stood together in the face of common danger and every American Legion Post should observe Veterans Day and show the world that America is united in its determination to safeguard our way of life, that we urge the display of the American flag over every home and building for a massive reaffirmation of our love of country."

Benefit Bingo Saturday Night

The initial social event of the current school year of St. Joseph's High School PTA will be held Saturday night in the school auditorium.

The affair will be a penny bingo game with attractive prizes being offered. Play will get under way at 8 p. m. and the general public is cordially invited. An added drawing card will be the door prize, a turkey. Proceeds from the affair will be used for school improvements and activities sponsored by the PTA group.

SPOOK PARADE WINNERS LISTED

Just how hard the flu bug had bitten the citizenry of Emmitsburg was evidenced by the absenteeism displayed in the Halloween parade, sponsored by the Francis X. Elder Post, American Legion, last Thursday night. Usually the affair drew around 500, but this year's number of participants in the parade was cut better than half despite excellent weather.

However, the flu didn't dampen the spirits of those who felt well enough to make the line of march though. Frivolity prevailed and the crowd showed its enthusiasm as the paraders marched down Main St. In the line of march were the color guard of the Legion, the Municipal Band, majorettes, fire apparatus, costumed marchers, and contestants, and a number of cars. One of the outstanding entries was the Sputnik entered by the Frederick Jaycees.

Judges were Capt. Philip B. Sharpe, Lumen F. Norris, and Burgess Clarence G. Frailey. Prize winners were announced as follows:

Most original—Roxanne Stine, Patricia Lingg (Sputnik) and Sylvia Ireland.

Funniest with pet—Eddie Baker, Ronald Sweeney, and Ronald Van Brakle.

Best costume with vehicle—Jim Phelan Jr., Jo Ann Elyer, and J. C. Frederick.

Funniest miler — Donna Vaughn, Pam Miller, Quinn Shorb and William Kelz Jr.

Best looking — Betty Goulden, Carroll Frock, and Margie Springer.

The two mystery prizes were awarded to Fred Trent and Clyde Hahn.

Norman Mahlon Six, 67, husband of Ruth Anna (Fior) Six, well-known farmer of the Emmitsburg District, died suddenly yesterday morning about 8 a. m. at the barn on his farm along Emmitsburg Rt. 2. A heart condition was blamed as the cause of death.

Mount To Release Recording During Anniversary

Mount St. Mary's will mark the celebration of the 150th anniversary of its founding by Father John Dubois with the publication of an RCA recording by the Seminary Schola Cantorum and a brief history of the College by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William F. Culhane, acting rector of the Seminary and vice president of the College.

The recording entitled "Te Deum Laudamus" was done under the direction of the Rev. David W. Shaum, professor of music.

The Schola, consisting of 27 members, sings the following selections: "Cantate Domino," H. L. Hassler; "Kyrie: Missa Sine Nomine," William Byrd; "O Lord I Am Not Worthy," John C. Selner, S.S.; "Mary Had a Baby," arranged by Parker-Shaw; "Gloria: Mass XII," W. A. Mozart; "Offertory"; "Feast of Christ the King," D. W. Shaum; "In Monte Oliveti," John C. Selner, S.S.; "Sicut Lotutus Est," Johann Sebastian Bach; "O Vos Omnes," Tomas Vittoria; and "Te Deum," Flor Peeters.

The history of the College, written by Monsignor William F. Culhane, is the first since the Meline-McSweeney volume "The Story of the Mountain," published in 1911. Msgr. Culhane has brought the record up to date and has corrected many of the errors which occurred in the earlier volume. The brief chronicle will serve as a basis for a more detailed history which Msgr. Culhane hopes to publish at a later date.

The College, second oldest Catholic college in the United States, will begin celebration of its 150th anniversary year on Nov. 11-12, when a special academic convocation will direct attention to the role of the Seminary in the growth of the American Church.

Over 1100 years, 1520 priests have completed their work at Mt. St. Mary's for work in most of the dioceses of the nation. Thirty-seven mountaineers also were raised to the episcopal dignity including seven archbishops and the first American Cardinal, John McCloskey. Mountaineers also founded more than 30 colleges and seminaries.

More than 400 Catholic clergymen will attend the ceremonies which will honor the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, and the Most Rev. Richard O. Gerow, bishop of Natchez-Jackson, Miss., a graduate of the College. In attendance will be five archbishops, 36 bishops, representatives of 24 religious orders active in the United States and the superiors or rectors of more than 20 seminaries.

Gem Theatre Opens Tonight

The Gem Theater will re-open its doors for the winter months commencing tonight. The management has announced it has scheduled numerous outstanding shows in an effort to attract and hold a continued patronage. For a number of years the theater has been a losing proposition, financially, for the management, and unless the enterprise turns out on a more stable basis this season the theater will be closed.

A large number of local merchants have taken advertising spots to help the theater along this year.

The schedule for this week's shows is as follows: Tonight, 7 and 9 p. m., "Guns of Fort Petticoat" starring Audie Murphy. Sunday and Monday, Ronald Reagan in "Hellcats of the Navy." Sunday shows will be presented at 2:15 and 7:30 p. m. and Monday at 7:30 p. m. only.

Town Council Retains Same Local Tax Rate

Real estate taxes may be soaring in other towns and cities throughout the nation but not so here in Emmitsburg. For the present at least, Emmitsburg's tax rate is to remain status quo. This decision was arrived at Monday night at the regular monthly meeting of the Burgess and Commissioners held in the town office, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners Charles R. Fuss presiding.

For the past three decades Emmitsburg has enjoyed the extremely low tax rate of 50 cents on the hundred dollars and this figure will prevail throughout the next fiscal year of the Corporation of Emmitsburg.

Parking meter revenue was announced by Clerk Louise Sebald as $223.70 and $13 in overtime parking fines. Another $9.00 in traffic fines made the over-all total $245.70.

Charles D. Gillelan was sworn in as local tax collector and was immediately placed under a $5,000 bond. Mr. Gillelan's term began November 1 and will continue for one year. He is annually appointed by the Burgess, with the approval of the Commissioners.

A communication from the Frederick County Planning and Zoning Commission seeking information on existing sewerage and water facilities was received and read before the group and it was decided to furnish the commission with the necessary data. The sewer tax rate which is $5 per unit per annum will remain the same during the next year, as will the $20 tap in charge for new properties.

The Town Fathers discussed the progress of the rights-of-way being obtained prior to the installation of the new sewerage system and it was felt that the complete cooperation of all property-owners involved would be forthcoming in the near future. Police Chief Robert L. Koontz filed his monthly report to the Board of Commissioners and it was accepted as presented. The new telephone number of the Town Office is HL 7-2274.

Mounties Expected To Capture M-D Championship

Initial practices have solved none of Coach Jim Phelan's problems with his current cage squad. With nine lettermen returning from last year's championship squad and the return of Charlie O'Donnell to the cage frays, Phelan has been sitting in nightly on a real dogfight for starting berths. Regulars Bill Williams, rangy 6'6" senior forward, and Jerry Bohlinger, 6'6" center, are getting a lot of argument from lettermen Bill Morse, 6'5" reserve; Tom Leonard, 6'5" junior, and Dick Talley, a bright 6'4" freshmen prospect.

In the back court, the brilliant Mountaineer duo of Jack Marshall and Burt Sheing, while pretty well set, have to move at their very best to stave off the challenge of much improved Jack Gunn, who has added a scoring punch to his fine floor play, and Jerry Savage, a 6'2" freshman from East Orange, who has really been bombarding the basket.

Looking for starting jobs also are O'Donnell, a star on earlier Mountaineer championship teams now fresh from a tour of duty with Uncle Sam, and Joe Sullivan, brother of the fabulous Jack, who has turned the tide with many clutch performances in the past. Others who might have something to say about the squad strength are Frank Pulkownik, a 6'7", 235-pound freshman, who moves well on offense, has some nice moves and shoots well; Jack Mattimore, who despite his size, 5'7", has performed so well in practices that he is apt to stick, and Tom Rudderow, a 5'8" frosh from Philadelphia, who has also caught Phelan's eye.

Biggest problem facing Phelan is to jack up squad scoring, now that Jack Sullivan with his 1070 points is performing with the Peroria Caterpillars. The Mountaineers will have to move the ball better, command the boards for more shots, and spread the scoring lead through the whole team.

Phelan is optimistic about his squad potential—but not to the point where he takes the national rating in the 14th slot by the Street and Smith Basketball Annual very seriously. The Mountie mentor feels that he has enough capable shooters in Williams, Sheing, Marshall, Savage, Morse, and Leonard. In addition Jack Gunn and Jerry Bohlinger have both been pleasant surprises in the early workouts. Bohlinger, in particular, who has been a bust at the basket for the past two seasons, has been hitting very well with one-hand stab and has developed a good drive. Gunn, who does everything well, has also become a good marksman. O'Donnell, a tower of strength two years ago, is gradually rounding into shape and will be a great help if he regains his top form. A good shooter, O'Donnell has the savvy and strength to help out on the boards.

Jerry Savage, 6'2" shooting artist from East Orange, and Dick Talley, a rugged, speedy 6'4" lad from Gloucester, N. J., look ready to help out immediately. They seem to be two of the brightest freshmen the Mountaineers have had in recent years. Pulkownik, with good potential, needs more seasoning, but should shape up as the season rolls along.

While Phelan expects to tail off a little from the sensational 27-5 record his club posted last season, he feels that the present squad has more ability than any he has had. Replacing Sullivan is impossible, but by playing a little differently, waiting for and making the good shot, and tightening upon on defense, the Mountaineers should be in the thick of the title scramble.

Actually, Phelan likes the challenge presented by the loss of Sullivan. If his boys handle his flash pivot offense right and play good defense, they should be able to tackle any team on the schedule on even terms, always barring key injuries and the flu.

Last season Lady Luck smiled on the fortunes of the Blue and White all year long. They can hardly expect the breaks to fall their way again. But the record should not mar Phelan's scintillating 68-13 log with three titles in Mason Dixon play, two second places in the Quantico Invitation and a third place spot in the NCAA College tourney last year.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

At the regular meeting held last Tuesday night we noticed the flu and cold victim numbers dropping. Our attendance was about 75%. One of our planned activities which was the "Order of the Arrow" election, was postponed a week because the director in Frederick was ill. We did have an active night of first aid, compass reading, games and songs. Moans and groans were heard when we had to delay the compass problem for more than a week. The longer we wait the colder it will get and the boys are now looking for another Indian summer.

Talk is growing every week on the summer camping trip to Camp Roosevelt. I am sure the boys will be ready by May for the trip in July! If your boy wishes to have a bright and busy summer, have him contact me now and join our local Scout Troop.

Looking for FREEDOM?

Not even the largest unabridged dictionary can hold all the definitions of FREEDOM.

There is the freedom that is expressed and documented. There is the volatile freedom that slays tyrants. There is the every-day freedom that is a way of life. And there is the freedom that is still a dream.

Freedom is an active word with as many meanings as there are people. When we want a partial definition, we use the dictionary. But to get the feel of freedom, to experience it, to perpetuate it, we use our schools.

Millions of Americans are returning to their schools this week. With their children, they are sharing in an expression of freedom... and moving toward the freedom that is still a dream.

S. S. Checks To Be Made Single Unit

Some elderly couples will receive notice this month that their social security benefits will be combined into a single check, beginning in January, W. S. King, district manager of the Hagerstown Social Security Office announced today.

Other couples who are receiving separate social security checks as husband and wife will be notified in subsequent months, King said, usually at least two months before they will be paid their first combined checks.

This new payment procedure is expected to save the Government about $1 million a year. Payment of only one check, representing the combined monthly benefit amounts of a retired worker and his wife, was started on a trial basis in September 1956, but was limited mainly to families in which the wife first became entitled to benefits in September 1956 or later. In its 10 months of operation, the new payment method has proved successful and productive of substantial savings, King said, and will therefore be extended, beginning in January 1958 to elderly couples who were on the social security rolls before September 1956.

No combination of social security benefits payable to a husband and wife will be made where they are not living together or where all or part of the wife's benefit is based upon her own record of work under social security. Any person who has a special need for a separate check may, when he gets his notice, arrange with his social security office for his payments to continue by separate check.

With more than 10 million men, women and children receiving monthly social security benefits, and with the number increasing each month, the total cost of issuing checks has become a major concern of the Social Security Administration and of the Treasury Department. It costs more than 5 cents to prepare and mail each check, including postage, check stock, envelopes, manpower, and other supplies and equipment.

If payment by separate check was continued to the more than 1,700,000 wives (or dependent husbands) of retired workers now on the social security benefit rolls, he noted, it would mean the issuance of 20,400,000 checks per year. Even with the continued issuance of separate checks to couples who are living apart and to those who for some other reason prefer to be paid separately, savings are expected to amount to at least $1,000,000 annually.

Mr. King pointed out that the combination of a husband's and a wife's benefits into a single check in no way affects the right of either one of them to his or her benefit, or the amount of that benefit. Both of them must sign their names on the back of the check before it can be cashed.

Springs which must operate at elevated temperatures often are made of Inconel nickel-chromium alloy as this material retains its spring strength at temperatures up to 650 degrees Fahrenheit.

Hog Prices Due For Decline

Secretary Bensen recently warned that farmers are facing a serious risk of over-expansion in hog production next year and a sharp break in prices to producers in the fall of 1958 if producers increase supplies materially.

In a speech made the middle of October, the Secretary said: "This year the spring (pig) crop was unchanged from a year ago. The result is encouraging prices this fall. But now farrowings are increasing. The fall crop is up 4 percent—and intentions to farrow during the first half of the spring farrowing season are now indicated to be up 7 percent.

"These increases are a warning flag," the Secretary declared. "If there are even greater increases in farrowings in the spring months, a serious drop in hog prices could hit hard next fall."

Secretary Bensen pointed out that the hog-corn price ratio was 16.6 on September 15 and 17.3 in the North Central States. Such a wide ratio in the past, he said, has generally led to large increases in farrowings.

"It was in part an effort to offset some of this risk," the Secretary said, "that led to the recent announcement of a $1.10 price support under noncompliance corn. But while government can help a little bit in this manner—and also by widely publicizing the risks and dangers—the actual decision as to how many pigs will be raised next year is in the hands of producers."

He stated that farmers' decisions on this point will determine whether hog prices will remain good in 1958 or take a drop. The Secretary said it was his sincere desire that every hog producer know these basic facts and take them to heart.

SPORTS AFIELD
By Ted Kesting

Although in recent years there has been little change in the design of duckboats, there has been a definite trend toward the utilization of the more standard types, says Willard Crandall, Boating Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Specialized models, tailored for particular areas, do not fit the great variety of hunting conditions which the modern duck hunter meets in his everwidening search for good shooting.

Going along with this is a demand for larger hunting boats. Outboards are much more common now. With motors quieter and easier to start in cold weather, with more miles over the water to be covered in search for ducks, oars seem to be on their way out. This use of motors is going a long way toward popularizing the larger duckboats as well as making the square-stern type the most popular.

An interesting offshoot is the combination fishing-and-hunting boat. Fundamentally, this is a large square-stern duckboat with much less side decking than is usual, chiefly to give the angler some room. It may also have somewhat higher sides. These boats are ingenious, but are a compromise craft. They are only good for certain types of hunting and fishing.

If duckboat design remains much the same, construction has undergone radical changes. Plywood has come to the fore. However, if ice is to be encountered, these must have metal sheathing at least at the bow. Aluminum boats are also being used, though they are somewhat noisier and colder than plywood. Fiberglass duckboats are the newest of all, but the old canvas-covered standards still cannot be labeled outdated. Strip-built and clinker duckboats, however, appear to be fading from the national picture.

Marine Helicopter Squadron 262, operating from the aircraft carrier USS Lake Champlain, distributed 1,500 lbs. of medical supplies, 4000 lbs. of meat, bread, "C" rations, dried milk and water purifier to the victims of Spain's worst flood in a half-century, at Valencia, in mid-October.

"In some 40 states having the item veto, governors can selectively eliminate itemized appropriations from the total bill. Nearly $1½ million has been deleted from New Jersey appropriations in this manner in the past two years.

"Legislation to grant similar veto power to the President has been proposed year after year. Thus far, however, Congress has refused to give the President sharpshooting rights over the appropriations bill, much as it might be to the interest of the nation's taxpayers." — Lakewood, N. J., Times

The Life and Music of Henry Dielman

By REV. DAVID W. SHAUM

Another honor that came to Dr. Dielman near the close of his life was a silver medal from His Holiness, Pope Pius IX, in June, 1876, for a meritorious composition. The opus was a Triumphal March, dedicated to the Pontiff. The Most Reverend Francis S. Chartard of Vincennes (Indiana), a native of Baltimore, and a graduate from Mount Saint Mary's College, class of 1853, brought the medal from Rome to Emmitsburg.⁵⁶

In personal appearance, Henry Dielman was a strikingly handsome man. This is immediately evident from portraits and from all newspaper comments. Dielman had a high forehead, deep piercing eyes, a prominent nose (which seems to have been perpetuated in his children and subsequent generations), high cheekbones, a firm mouth. He appeared to have an air of authority.

There are only two persons living today who recall seeing Dr. Dielman: Mr. Millard Shuff (who passed away since this writing) described him "as not unusually tall, yet aristocratic looking; while Miss Martha Corry vividly recalls "the professor's prominent nose and wing-tipped collar, as he mounted the hill on his way to his classes, a book under his arm."⁵⁷

Perhaps the most outstanding characteristic of Henry Dielman and possibly the key to his life and work was his flair for, and the ability to organize and to take command of a given situation. He always made use of the milieu in which he found himself and was keenly aware of changes and important events happening around him. Whenever the opportunity presented itself, he commemorated the occasion, and publicized himself and his work, with a composition or a public performance.

Despite his birth and formal musical training and the eclat that came to him through the years, Dr. Dielman was democratic enough in his devotion to music to recruit talent wherever he could find it. A fine example, perhaps a little unheard of and unorthodox, was when he obtained local town boys to play in his college orchestra.

"I must say a word about the many pleasant times I spent at the Mount in rehearsals with Dr. Dielman and his orchestra and after the rehearsals how I enjoyed the lunches in the refectory, cold boiled ham, bread and butter, butter milk, lettuce with a dressing prepared by Dr. McCaffrey, such as his grace only could do it, and cold, sparkling, pure water from the fountain in the rear of the college.

"In 1848, I played cornet with the orchestra at the Commencement. General Harney (then Col.) was the guest of honor. Dr. Dielman composed for the occasion the "Battle of Cerro Gordo," a splendid representation of an engagement and which gave the Colonel much pleasure. He was the hero of Cerro Gordo, having gallantly ascended the heights and planted thereon Old Glory."⁵⁸

Dr. Dielman possessed a sense of humor quite contrary to what one expects in traditional Germanic somberness. An oft told anecdote shows this particular style of humor. It was the professor's custom to invite the faculty, clerical and lay, to his home for what he called "a light supper." When all the guests had arrived, no repeat or refreshments would be served. Instead, to the amazement of all, Dielman would light all the lamps in the house. This was "the light supper," and his idea of a practical joke.

Extremely friendly and affable by nature, he attracted people by the sheer power of his personality and his life indicates that he always retained their friendship. The very fact that he was constantly busy as an entertainer and artist bespeaks this popularity.

Strangely enough along with this attractiveness, Henry Dielman possessed a determination and fixity of purpose from which little could deter him. Perhaps his Teutonic ancestry and upbringing are responsible for this. A paternal love for his family and his good name certainly prompted him to act quickly whenever they were threatened. A touch of pride is evident—pride of ability, success—so much so that he could look with hauteur on those about him whom he considered inferior and wanting in these characteristics.

One description of this man reads:

"Henry Dielman was by then in his prime, and took the lead as the first violinist in Baltimore. Of course, with all these enviable qualities, he was very popular, particularly with the ladies, whose hearts he won by his touching delivery of tender melodies on his favorite instrument . . . I have passed many a happy hour with Dielman, socially and musically, and always found him companionable. I could relate many anecdotes of my friend, but withhold them from personal motives."⁵⁹

The years inevitably take their toll of all men and Doctor Henry Dielman's life came to a peaceful close. The Story of the Mountain succinctly reads:

"On the 13th of October 1882, died Henry Dielman, Mus. Doc., for forty years teacher at the College. He was the last to die of those so long associated, and two years saw the death of five of them."⁶⁰

The account errs, as the date was Thursday night, October 12, 1882, with the funeral being held on Sunday, October 15th. Death was due to an inflammation of the bladder. Dr. Robert L. Annan, a local physician, attended Professor Dielman in his last illness.⁶¹ Mrs. Dielman predeceased her husband by two years. (August 3, 1879).

The fact that a Solemn Mass of Requiem was sung on a Sunday is most unusual, as the present ecclesiastical law expressly forbids funerals on Sundays, a day of joy. Nevertheless the funeral was held from "Andorra" with the obsequies taking place in the old Mountain Church. It was attended by a large concourse of relatives, friends, and neighbors. A delegation of Sisters of Charity from nearby Saint Joseph Academy was present. The Requiem Mass was celebrated by the President of the College, the Very Rev. William Byrne, D.D., assisted by the Rev. H. F. White, C.M., of Saint Joseph's Church, Emmitsburg, as Deacon; and the Rev. Thomas L. Kelly of the College as Sub-deacon. The Reverend Clergy, the members of the faculty and students of the Seminary and College, attended the services, and followed the remains to the cemetery for interment. The music of the Mass was sung by the College choir, conducted by Mr. Delaney of the Seminary. The honorary pallbearers were: Profs. Ernest Lagarde; James D. Hickey; Charlts A. Leloup; and Andrew H. Baker.⁶² The active pallbearers were: Drs. Bussey, and J. B. Brawner and James A. Elder and Messrs. Charles Manning, Edward Taney, and Bennett Tyson (all neighbors and prominent residents). The casket was covered with wreaths and crosses of flowers, the gifts of Saint Joseph's Academy. The funeral services were held in the church in which he had worshipped for nearly forty years. The organ at which he had presided for over a quarter of a century was heavily draped in mourning. Father Byrne delivered the sermon and asked the prayers of the congregation for the repose of the soul of the deceased professor. Among other things, Dr. Byrne said:

Dr. Dielman always labored for the best interests of the institution he loved, and no sacrifice of feeling was too burdensome for him to bear. He was always first and last, at his post of duty, and like a faithful pilot, never deserted the wheel. But the head of the great genius is laid low, resting on a pillow of dust; a lute is silent, the harp strings are broken, and around that sacred mound cluster the tender memories, with beauty and grandeur—the approval of all who knew him.⁶⁴

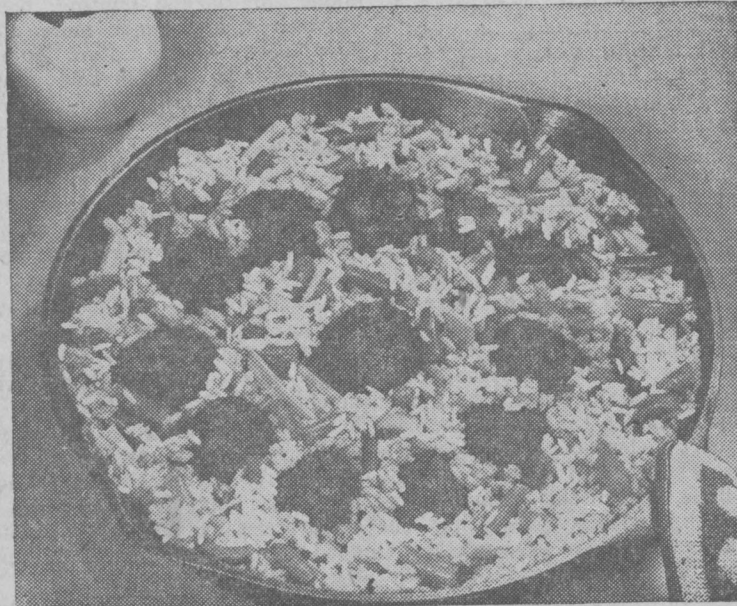

Burial was in the family plot in the little cemetery on the mountain directly behind the college, near the graves of fellow mountaineer priests and professors. A simple stone shaft marks the last earthly resting place of this educator-artist and his wife. The ravages of time and the relentless pounding of the elements have nearly obliterated the inscription thereon:

County School Budget Presented

The Frederick County Commissioners this week will study an estimated budget of approximately $4.2 million for current expenses of the Frederick County Board of Education for the next school year.

According to Delbert S. Null, president of the board of commissioners, the estimated budget is barely short of a million dollars more than that for the current year.

Wood-using industries of the U. S. employ 1,517,000 full-time workers.

Babson Discusses Foreign Investments

BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 7 — The devaluation of the French franc and the threat of currency devaluation in other European countries have caused considerable concern here in the U. S. I am asked if foreign investments are safe or wise at this time. Of course, there is no simple answer to such a question, but I will try to explain my position. Good Investment Climate Usually, I have advised people not to invest their hard-earned money abroad. I have done this not because it is impossible to make profits on foreign investments, but because their proper supervision takes more time and effort than most people are willing to give. Without close supervision, profits are unlikely and serious losses could occur. Sometimes I have advised against buying the securities of foreign companies because of tax complications in the home country of the firm and in the U. S.

However, I have never been against sound foreign investments in cases where the prospective investors were willing to work hard to protect their interests. Some foreign countries, like Canada, and, to a lesser extent, Britain, France, Italy, and Spain — provide a fairly good climate for American funds. Others, including some of our neighbors in Latin America, cling to restrictive laws which make it foolhardy for Americans to invest.

What To Look For

When you hear of an investment opportunity abroad, do not jump. Take time to investigate the company. Or if you are going to engage in a foreign business operation, study the laws of the country so that you will know where you stand and what your rights are. You can get expert help from U. S. consulates abroad and from American officials of companies operating in foreign lands. Find out exactly what foreign taxes you will have to pay and what percentage of your earnings you will be able to take out of the country and deposit to your account here in the U. S.

If you do not know the language of the country, employ some trust-worthy person who does know it so that you will not lose out through failure to understand contracts and other agreements. Obtain such concessions as you feel are justified and drive as hard a bargain as you can. You will be the better respected for it. Because of low labor costs, good profit margins are possible in some foreign countries, but business moves more slowly abroad and you must have patience.

The Canadian Market

Closest nation to us in time and in economic ties is Canada. As in the U. S., commerce between various sections flourishes because Canada has a uniform currency which commands the same value throughout the land. In Canada, the people also live and work under a system of private enterprise. Each province adheres to certain principles established in the Federal Law of Canada to foster private enterprise.

Under such circumstances, investments of U. S. citizens have a good over-all chance of prospering. At least, they are not subject to some of the nonsensical restrictions enforced in many other foreign countries. Also, Canada has huge metals and minerals resources which can be developed more speedily and efficiently with the help of U. S. private capital. In my opinion, Canada is on the way up. There may be setbacks, but I foresee tremendous growth ahead. I unhesitatingly recommend Canada as a good place to direct your money and talents if you wish to invest outside the U. S.

American Companies Abroad

I am in favor of American companies extending their operations to foreign countries where this is practical. Such investment serves to offset the disadvantages flowing from heavy exports to America by giving us a share in the profits from such trade. Also, such foreign investment creates a sense of charity, but fosters better understanding between ourselves and other peoples.

Eventually, officials of the various Latin American countries will see the light. Then, one by one, the restrictive laws which now curtail U. S. private investment in those areas so important to our welfare will be repealed. I predict that in less than twenty years we shall be able to drive from New York to Argentina over a fine highway.

TODAY'S meditation

The Upper Room
THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read Romans 15:1-7.

We then that art strong out to hear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. (Romans 15:1.)

We were sitting in the darkened balcony of a large auditorium watching a film when a man entered from one of the brightly lighted corridors. Before his eyes became adjusted to the darkness, he stumbled at the first step as he started up the aisle. Quickly hands were outstretched to guide him. In this way he was helped along from person to person and finally guided to a seat.

How often the glamors of the world, in which we so much live, blind our eyes to things of a spiritual nature! We live blindly and in fear unless helping hands are outstretched to guide us. Then we became firmly established in faith and secure in the fellowship of the Church.

This is one of the great privileges which we as Christians enjoy—helping one another until we are secure in the knowledge that we belong to Christ and that He belongs to us.

Prayer

Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Thy love and care. We thank Thee for the helping hands that have been extended to us along life's way. Keep us every mindful of others who need Christian love and guidance. Grant that we may be a beacon and a help to them. In name of Christ.

Amen.

Sputnik And Too Much Cheese

Out of the national furor created by Communist Russia's successful earth satellite, "Sputnik," have come a number of political voices declaring that "economy" in government has held back our nation's satellite launching. It's a fair question to ask: What economy in government? The Federal Budget is the biggest in peacetime history. The Budget reduction which the vast majority of the American people demanded earlier this year just did not occur, although the public got the impression from news out of Washington that the economy ax was being swung healthily.

The politicians who are sadly shaking their heads over a non-existent "economy" session of Congress are actually advocating increased Federal government spending and the rejection of any suggestions for cutting taxes next year. Out of all the statements I've read from leaders of our government's satellite program comes the inescapable conclusion that lack of capable management and proper coordination by Federal agencies—and not lack of money—delayed the U. S. earth satellite launching. The same trouble apparently is delaying our intercontinental ballistic missile program.

Ridiculous Situation

Expert opinion suggests that the program to launch an American earth satellite—counting research, construction, launching and operation—requires the expenditure of approximately $100 million in tax money. That is a comparatively small item in a budget of $72 billion. According to recent published statistics the Federal government paid out almost that much in cheese subsidies to benefit dairy farmers in the last 12 months!

This year, in fact, the Agriculture Department will be paying more than $5 billion to farmers, most of it in subsidies on farm production far beyond market demands at true value prices. This is one of the most ridiculous situations in the history of our nation.

A Destructive Program

At a time of unprecedented prosperity, when our over-all productive machinery could provide jobs for all persons who cannot effectively compete in an agricultural free market, we are being heavily taxed to pay $5 billion "aid to farmers" and at the same time paying an artificially high price for much of the farm produce. The economic law of supply and demand, which has brought about America's great economic development, is being destroyed in agriculture.

If the competitive free market is completely destroyed in agriculture, ultimately it will be destroyed in every other phase of our commerce—and all the incentives and motive power of our dynamic competitive economy will be killed. Our living standard then would drop—down, down, down! Because a comparatively small number of citizens are working actively in politics and a much larger number of citizens are not, emergency war measures set up to encourage production of agricultural products 20 years ago, when production lagged behind consumption demands, are being continued—and it's costing taxpayers more than $5 billion this fiscal year. Not only that: it's endangering the future prosperity and freedom of every American, including, of course, the farm population.

The Budget Items

We certainly need to spend adequate money on the missile program, on the development of earth satellites, and on other vitally important research and explorations. But we should obtain whatever additional money is needed above present allocations by a sensible cutting down of the swollen Federal Budget. Here are the items that make up the record Budget: Military, $38 billion; foreign military aid, $3.2 billion; foreign economic aid, $1.5 billion; other defense activities, $2.9 billion; aid to veterans, $5 billion; welfare and labor programs, $3.4 billion; aid to farmers, $5 billion; power, reclamation, etc., $1.4 billion; aids to housing and commerce, $2.1 billion; interest on debt, $7.3 billion; all other programs, $1.5 billion.

The Budget items add up to $72 billion. This is almost $200 million more than the government had planned to spend before Congress began its widely publicized "cutting of appropriations." Look at the Budget items carefully. Do you approve of the amounts? Are your taxes not burdensome? What are you doing about it?

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By U. S. Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—Recently the Chairman of the House Subcommittee on General Education was quoted as saying that he intends to hold in committee any bills calling for a broad program of Federal aid to school construction. This means that floor consideration of such bills is unlikely next session.

It is clear now that even the proponents of the various proposed measures providing for Federal aid for school construction will concede that these bills have not been designed to provide Federal aid where need is greatest. If there is to be Federal aid for school construction, the bill ought to spell out the sums which are to go to each state, and not be distributed on the basis of complicated formula or administrative whim.

Most of you know of my position on the specific bills that have been before the Congress. My opposition to the basic concept of Federal aid stems from deeply rooted convictions concerning the dangers of Federal interference or control of our educational system. To say that I adopt a position on any legislation and then close my mind is not to know me.

I am fully aware of a changing world and changing conditions within our own country. And my mind is open to the implications of those changes. But my misgivings over the content of currently talked of Federal-aid-to-school-construction measures, and my distrust of controls on Federal interference written into the measures, continues.

I am not alone in my distrust of so-called controls written into Federal aid measures. For example, President Roosevelt's Advisory Committee on Education in 1938 was moved to observe that: "An excessive amount of federal control appears to have been exercised over many aspects of the federally aided system of vocational education. This control has been due in part to the provisions of the statutes, but it also appears to have resulted in part from manner in which those provisions have been interpreted and administered in the United States Office of Education and its predecessor in the work—the Federal Board for Vocational Education." The history of Federal aid programs demonstrates that Federal authority has often reached down to the local school board level and has dictated its policies.

October Coldest Month On Record

You probably weren't aware of it but October was one of the coldest months on record.

The county weather observer said October temperatures averaged 51.3 degrees which were 5.5 degrees a day below normal. The high temperature during the period was 74 degrees and it was the first time since 1896 that October had a maximum that low.

The month occasionally produces a few 90-degree days. Lowest mark was 29 degrees on the 13th. There were a number of frosts and most vegetation in the lower areas was killed.

Precipitation during the month was 2.37 inches which was .92 of an inch abnormal. This increased the 1957 deficiency to 7.39 inches with only two months to go. The greatest amount of precipitation during a 24-hour period was 1.11 inches on October 6.

To Produce "South Pacific"

"South Pacific, which was unqualifiedly acclaimed as the greatest musical in the history of the American stage when it opened in New York, is in rehearsal now by the Valley Players, an off-Broadway company composed largely of people with theatre background or training. The show is scheduled for Nov. 22-23 at the Mergenthaler Auditorium, 35th and Hillen Rd., Baltimore.

The Valley Players last appeared there in "Plain and Fancy" in the spring, and before that in a full-scale production of "Kismet." "South Pacific" is being directed and staged by Virginia I. Owen, formerly of the St. Louis Municipal Opera Co., and authentic sets are being designed by William A. Hunter, art director for a national ad agency and former president of the Art Directors' Club, Baltimore.

Special sound effects will be used to retain the complete illusion of the Island war-background and costumes based on original designs from the Broadway show are being prepared by a Baltimore costume house. The production will have a full orchestra and a large cast of 50.

Miss Springer Named Chapter Sweetheart

The Emmitsburg FFA Club of the Emmitsburg High School selected Audrey Springer as this year's chapter sweetheart. She was one of nine nominees for the title. Other nominees at the Community Show held recently were Becky Naill, Martha Baumgardner, Becky Hays, Janet Hatter, Sharon Pittenger, Judy Valentine, Mary Jo Hatter, and Sue McCauslin.

Audrey, a junior at the high school, was presented a beautiful packet along with a corsage by Harold Reilly, agricultural teacher. The nominees were presented with chrysanthemums.

The girls were escorted to the stage by FFA boys of the local chapter.

Catholic Group To Pilgrimage

An announcement has just been made of the formation of a group, especially for Western Maryland Catholics, with the primary purpose of attending the Centennial Celebration of the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes in France next year.

Under the personal spiritual leadership of the Rev. Thomas J. Mardaga of the Baltimore Archdiocese, the pilgrimage will sail July 23, 1958, on the SS Constitution. The Catholic Travel League and His Excellency Archbishop Francis P. Keough have extended their sponsorship.

Although visits to Lourdes, Rome and the Belgium World's Fair will highlight the itinerary, the Western Maryland group will travel through Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, and France by motor coach and rail.

This is the first effort ever made to organize a European pilgrimage for Catholics in this area, and the number of advance reservations indicate that the announcement of the tour is being enthusiastically received. The Vic Miller Travel Agency of Hagerstown is accepting applications for membership, and will be glad to give any information to those interested in making the trip, or they may get in touch with Mrs. Myrtle A. Knott, 814 Dewey Ave., Hagerstown, who was named organizer of the group.

Maryland Couple Honored

For the third straight year, Maryland provided the out-of-state couple to be honored by the Bangor Exchange Club at its Pennsylvania Week activities.

Accosted as they were homeward bound near Wind Gap, Pa., after honeymooning in the Pocono Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Euclyd H. Jones, of Emmitsburg, were taken on an industrial tour of the area. During the tour the young couple visited and received souvenir gifts from Ackermansville Sportswear Co., Blue Ridge Textile Co., the West Albion State Quarry, Pen Argyle Florists, and the Julius Kayser Co.

The Exchange Club presented a gift package at a banquet in their honor that night. They were given lodging at the Gateway Motel and after breakfast next morning at Casart's Wind Gap Diner, were bid God speed on their journey to Albuquerque, N. Mex., where they will reside until the bridegroom's term in the medical of the U. S. Army expires.

Grangers Receive Degree

The regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Grange was held in the local high school with Master Harry Swomley, Jr. presiding and 15 members in attendance.

The treasurer's report indicated that the ladies netted $38 at their stand during the recent auction.

The local group received $40 at the State Grange meeting for winning sixth place in Maryland for the community service project. Also the group will receive a plaque in recognition for the 10th year of promoting a community show. The Grange voted a $5 donation to the local Community Fund.

Tickets for the Pomona banquet can be obtained from Master Swomley, the price being $1.75. The banquet will be held in Walkersville on Nov. 21.

Mrs. Madeline Plunkett was named juvenile matron for the coming year.

Eight candidates from the local Grange received the sixth degree at the State meeting. These members were Mr. and Mrs. Loy Hess, Mr. and Mrs. Keller Misner, Mrs. Madeline Plunkett, David Plunkett and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Lindsey.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 o'clock now that we are on Standard Time.

Legion Auxiliary Meeting Held

The regular monthly meeting of the Francis X. Elder Post No. 121, American Legion Auxiliary, was held Tuesday evening with the president, Ann Topper, presiding with 19 members present.

It was reported the next Western Maryland District meeting is to be held in Thurmont on Sunday, Nov. 17. There will be a luncheon at 1:30 p. m. A number of the members is expected to attend the meeting.

A report on the membership drive was given by Madeleine Harner and it was reported that the dues are now payable. Thank-you notes were read from Helen Sanders and Thelma Baltzell.

The group decided to send a contribution to the Community Chest in favor of Children's Aid.

A donation also was authorized for the building fund of the Annie Warner Hospital.

December 11 has been set as the date of the annual Christmas party of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Mabel Needy, national security chairman of the Western Maryland District will be the guest speaker at the December meeting and the refreshment committee for next month will be Charlotte Sanders, Mary T. Miller, Ann Shorb and Ann Topper.

Two new members, Madeleine Dern and Isabelle Rothenhoefer, were accepted into the group. Ella Henjer's name was drawn for the door prize but she was not present.

Cigarette Tax Revenue Greater Than Expected

The Frederick County tobacco tax brought in $21,424.13 last month boosting the total since the levy was imposed to a surprise $62,904.54. The money will be placed in a separate fund, by law, and will be used in its entirety for school needs, primarily new school building.

Some estimates made before the tax was placed in effect believed the tax would not exceed $150,000 a year. That figure apparently is too conservative. If the October intake is any criterion, and there are those who think it might be an average month, the yearly receipts could go well above $200,000.

There are others who want to wait and see. They point out that the tobacco tax is administered on a wholesale level and wholesalers could have been boosting their inventories in October for the coming Christmas business.

The results to date have pleased the Commissioners who hope the tax revenue will finance, to a great extent, ambitious new school construction programs and lessen the necessity for any increase in the general county tax rate for that purpose.

Delbert S. Null, president of the Commissioners, said it appeared the tobacco tax was going to meet our expectations. Had the special tax not been levied, the pending school program probably would have to be financed largely from the general fund and a tax hike of substantial form could not have been avoided.

James H. Falk, county treasurer, who reported the figures on collections, said most of the money comes from the tax on cigars. Actually the tax has been collected only for two months plus a week in late August.

Thurmont Legion Building Addition

A new concrete block two-story addition to the Edwin C. Creger Jr. American Legion Post building of Thurmont is currently under construction it was announced this week, by the Post planning committee.

The new $35,000 addition measuring 32' x 60', will provide needed space for an ambulance floor, storage room for first aid supplies, new rest rooms, a modern kitchen, dressing rooms and more dancing space. The new structure is being built on the rear of the present Legion building located on Park Lane in Thurmont.

The Thurmont post has had as one its community service projects an ambulance service. In connection with the service, hospital beds, wheel chairs and crutches are loaned out in the community to patients requiring them. An important function of the new addition will be the provision of an ambulance floor and first aid room to give the Post ample storage room for their apparatus for the first time.

According to the announcement, storage rooms, the ambulance floor, and an all purpose room will be on the first floor, while rest rooms, a new kitchen, dressing rooms and stage will be constructed on the second floor. The new addition will enable the post to serve banquets that would accommodate 300 persons and provide space for approximately 100 more dancers on the dance floor. Local contractors from Thurmont are handling the work on the project. Albert Staub is the general contractor, C. J. Fink is the plumbing contractor, and Biser and Royer is the electrical contractor.
