Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

Received word indirectly from Dave Kerrigan in Kingston, N. Y., who is interested in business machines of all types, that the calculating machine mentioned recently in this column, was absolutely so new that Dave hadn't heard anything about it until he read about it in Abigail. This ingenious calculator, as described by Phil Sharpe, can figure out almost anything mathematically and at the same time print you all the copies of its tabulations you require. It is a sort of human calculator and printing press all combined. It is called FORTRAN and you'll be hearing a lot more about this device in the future. I understand it's supposed to out-do UNIVAC, the present leader in this field of mathematical calculations. Glad to hear from Dave again, even though it had to be relayed.

If automobile fatalities thru-out the nation keep pace with those of our own little community I'm afraid the whole thing is already far out of hand. In the past year or so we have had about 10 of this type of fatalities here. Can you imagine such a high rate for such a small community?

Why I remember not so long ago when it was a rare occasion for anybody to get killed here in years and years. Now it is commonplace so much that you're afraid to see the young ones leave in their cars. When I say young I don't necessarily mean to cast a stigma on this element as not all the accidents are limited to this group but most of them seem to fall in the 20-25 year-old category. Is it any wonder that insurance companies have to put their foot down on this particular set? They (the insurance men) seem to have the group pegged about right and extremely high premiums for this set is the result. My deepest sympathy to the bereaved young man's family who this week suffered the loss of a son in an automobile accident. It's a terrible shock to the community and friends and just how to terminate this sort of thing hasn't yet been figured out. Higher insurance might take a few of the more reckless ones off the highways but not enough to ease off this terrible type of catastrophe. Some other approach to the problem must be provided. I've always been opposed to issuing licenses to children when they reach 16, but as you can readily ascertain from the available statistics this element is not as much to blame as the 20-25 age bracket. I do believe that if traffic offenders were made to suffer license revocations that they'd be much more careful in the future. When you have youths with three to five convictions of various degrees of seriousness still driving, there's bound to be accidents. Traffic fines mean little or nothing to this group and sooner or later they get into serious difficulty. Magistrates will tell you this same sort of thing but are helpless to do anything about it. They must adhere to the present rules in the books.

Was reading the other day an interesting comparison between newspaper advertising and television advertising. It seems that the paper boys go all out to please a client and supply him with fresh material every edition. Not so with the TV guys who run and re-run the same commercial till it becomes downright boring and pestersome. You yourself can be the judge of this. You have seen some TV commercials on the screen for a number of years, they seldom if ever, are changed so that you know them by heart and can turn your eyes from the set when you know they are coming. Now then, how many times do you see a newspaper run the same ad? Look at your local merchants' advertisements and see if they aren't changed either every week or every other week. I'm certain advertisers are aware that fresh advertising pays more dividends. Here's another point in our favor. More people are reading newspapers daily than are listening to or viewing television and these are up-to-date statistics.

PTA Hears Report On Recent Outdoor Education School

The PTA of Emmitsburg Public School met November 20 with the president, Raymond Keilholtz presiding. The program for the evening featured the outdoor education camp experienced by Mrs. Scott's sixth grade several weeks ago.

Mrs. Scott detailed the outdoor program and the children of the sixth grade gave their viewpoint of their experience. A number of fathers responded with their ideas and Mr. Jones expressed his opinion on the matter. Fathers speaking briefly were Richard Harner, Richard Saylor and Carlos Englar.

Mrs. John White, the delegate to the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, gave a report. The theme of the congress was "Everlasting Teamwork." The congress voted to work to override Governor McKeldin's veto in order to obtain better salaries for teachers.

Mrs. Charles Valentine and Mrs. Roy Sanders, co-chairmen of the activities committee, reported a net income of $113 from the first activity of the year, a bingo held last week. A letter from Mr. Frushour, a representative of the School Board, was read and stated the hole in the blacktop at the back steps of the school would be repaired in January.

Mr. Jones announced a gymnastic show would be given at 8 p. m. on Dec. 13 in the school. He explained also that the children's school dues were only two cents a day, for which they derived many benefits. Mr. Jones and President Keilholtz reported the Friday school dances were working out splendidly, that the children were well-behaved and were enjoying themselves and buying new records each dance. It is hoped more chaperones would soon become available.

A letter from Duval Sweadner was read concerning the Frederick County Community College which now has an enrollment of 77 students. The group was asked to contribute $5 to help pay tuition of some of the students. The request was granted. In answer to a request by Glen Springer, Mr. Jones explained the Community College was for the benefit of any person wanting to further his education and that the tuition was paid, one-third by the county, a third by the state and a third by the student. It would cost the student on the average of $125 annually.

Richard Harner was appointed representative for the Community Fund to replace Mrs. Bruce Flowers, who resigned. Eugene Wood, vice principal, announced adult students still are being accepted for a woodshop course and Miss Harnish's class on family relations. He also said a course in typing for adults was available at the Thurmont School on Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock. Mrs. Scott's class won the attendance banner.

Local Man Faces Manslaughter Charge

A young Emmitsburg District man was arrested on an involuntary manslaughter charge Tuesday following an automobile accident in which another young man was instantly killed early last Sunday morning.

Charged by Pennsylvania State Police with manslaughter is David S. Muench, 25, of near Emmitsburg. The dead man is Lloyd Douglas Gillespie, 24, Taneytown, Rt. 2. He was fatally injured at 2:45 o'clock when a car in which he was a passenger left the Fairfield Rd., four miles west of Gettysburg, climbed a 10-foot bank and rolled over into a utility pole near the home of Allen Welkert.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams County coroner, said the young man was killed instantly when he was thrown from the car by the impact. He suffered a broken neck, internal injuries, and a broken right leg.

State police said the car was driven by David S. Muench, 25, Emmitsburg Rt. 1, who suffered a laceration of the scalp in the crash. Police said he was driving toward Gettysburg when he lost control of his auto. It went off the side of the road, climbed the embankment, rolled over and crashed side-on, into the pole.

Damage to the 1956 Ford Victoria sedan was estimated at $1600.

Muench posted $1000 bail to appear for a hearing before a Gettysburg justice of the peace Dec. 9, unless an inquest is held prior to that date. Dr. Crist said the inquest will be held early in December.

The deceased was a son of Leonard J. and Elvie (Green) Gillespie. Young Gillespie was engaged in farming with his father and was a graduate of Emmitsburg High School with the class of 1952. The family home is located between Taneytown and Emmitsburg.

Surviving in addition to the parents are a sister, Mrs. Wilma J. Weant, at home; a brother, Leonard G. Gillespie, Taneytown Rt. 2, and the maternal grandmother, Mrs. O. L. Green, Sophia, W. Va.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Fuss Funeral Home in Taneytown, with the Rev. Philip Bower officiating. Interment in the Keysville Cemetery.

The pallbearers were Donald Paugh, J. S. Baumgardner, Mark Baumgardner, James Valentine, Frank Valentine, and Leo Seiss.

College Receives Foundation Grant

Saint Joseph College's Education Dept. recently received a $2000 grant from the Raskob Foundation for Catholic Activities, Inc., to be used for demonstration lessons on the secondary school level given to teachers in-service by expert critic teachers.

Demonstration lessons will be carried out in accordance with a three-fold aim: (1) to improve the preparation of present junior and senior high school teachers in order to meet the problem caused by the increase in high school enrollments; (2) to give teachers the opportunity of observing experienced teachers in a functional situation in the five major fields of mathematics, English, history, science and foreign languages; and (3), to supply an accumulation of model lesson plans for others in the field to use.

This project, proposed by Sister Justa, chairman of the department of education, and other members, will be open to Sisters of Charity from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Washington, D. C., and to other religious communities in the same area. Tentative plans are being made to begin demonstration lessons next September, probably to be held on Saturdays in Baltimore.

"Unsatisfied Claim" Law Will Be Explained

Maryland motorists will receive a quick but thorough education about the state's new Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund law in the same envelope that brings them their 1958 registration application forms, it was announced this week by Carlton S. Hardwick, chairman of the recently appointed board that will administer the statute.

Under the Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Law, residents of Maryland filing just and legal claims will be protected up to approximately $25,000 against damage, either to their person or property, caused by financially irresponsible drivers in traffic accidents.

"When motor vehicle owners in this state receive their application blanks for 1958 registration," said Motor Vehicles Commissioner James B. Monroe, "they will find in the same envelope a small, four-page leaflet that they can read in just about three minutes. It will be one of the most valuable pieces of paper they will ever receive and they will never spend a more profitable three minutes in reading it. That little leaflet may save them from losing both their driver's license and registration plates for all cars owned by them."

"This leaflet will spell out in simple, every-day, laymen's language everything that the average motor vehicle owner needs to know about this law. Among other things, it will explain why insured owners will pay an additional fee of only $1 with their registration in 1958, while uninsured owners will pay $8 additional, and may be called upon to repeat this fee in future years whereas insured owners will never again be called upon to pay such additional fee.

"Our state is going a long way to give every motor vehicle owner an opportunity to understand the Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Law before its necessary firm penalties for violations become effective. The leaflet is one of the most important items in this program. It is official, it is accurate and it is easy and quick to read. I hope—for their own sake—that every person who receives one will read it carefully. If any owners fails to find the leaflet in the envelope with their registration applications, they should let me know immediately and I will mail one promptly."

Mr. Hardwick explained that these additional fees will help to create the fund out of which those entitled to recover will be compensated for economic losses suffered in traffic accidents caused by financially irresponsible drivers. In addition, all insurance companies writing automobile liability insurance in Maryland must pay into the fund a half of one per cent of their 1958 Maryland premiums for that line of insurance.

Should the fund appear to be inadequate to meet probable claims in any year, both the insurance companies and uninsured motor vehicle owners will be called upon to make additional payments. Mr. Hardwick also called attention to the fact that under the Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Law, the term "uninsured" means a motor vehicle owner who does not carry automobile liability insurance up to the limits set forth in the act.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Tax Incentive
BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov.
21—Many ask how high prices can be reduced, or at least be kept from going higher. My answer is that the best way to reduce prices is by producing more goods at lower cost. Then I am asked: "But how can costs be lowered in the face of current high wage rates?" To this I reply: "By increasing the investment in labor-saving machinery. This will raise real wages for all who work, not just for those who belong to strongly organized unions." Lower Taxes The Key

Labor-saving machinery is expensive to buy. Today's tight money situation—and the high cost of borrowing—make it difficult for many firms to help themselves. Before World War II we outproduced the world, with steadily falling prices, by continually increasing the amount of money per worker invested in labor-saving machinery. We have made further progress along this line since the end of World War II, though not so much as we should have made.

In order to assure the economic future of America, we must have incentive to save and incentive to invest those savings profitably. Unfortunately, our present sharply progressive tax system is destroying capital that has already been accumulated. It is also making it difficult to amass new capital. This destruction of our capital bodes ill for the nation as a whole. It can eventually result in a declining standard of living for all.

England A Warning

The wiping out of capital by high income taxes and by death taxes is harmful enough in itself. But it has a side effect which is even more dangerous. Since profits are cut sharply by ill-advised and poorly conceived tax rates and methods, the flow of new capital into industry is slowed. Investors hesitate to take some risks because they know that, even if they win, taxes will siphon off most of the reward.

Today we are still prosperous. Our economy appears well cushioned against drastic declines. Even though sources of capital are drying up, our people as a whole have not yet felt any pinch. Reassured by high wages and moderately good profits, we are not so disturbed as we should be by high taxes. But I predict that high and runaway taxes can lead to our downfall if we don't watch out. We see in England a classic example of the fate that can befall a tax-ridden nation. Once the proud mistress of the seas and center of world commerce, England has been brought to her knees, not by the breakup of the empire but by burdensome taxation.

The State Tax Bite

As I write this, I have before me some startling figures on the state tax burden and the tremendous rate at which it is increasing. For the year ended last June 30, the average state tax burden on every man, woman, and child in the U. S. reached the record high of $86.75. This is an increase of $5.15, or 5.1%, over the record set in the previous year.

This heavy state tax bite reflects the good business we have enjoyed. It also reflects the high and increasing costs of materials and labor. It reflects, too, the foolishness of the people generally who expect the states to extend their services. Often selfish motives impel people to advocate entirely unwarranted increases in state services (and costs).

Trimming State Waistlines

This year, Congress has made good progress toward cutting Federal expenditures. Barring Sputniks, we might even have expected some Federal tax relief next year. At the state level, the outlook is gloomy. We need to trim state waistlines before we can reduce state taxes.

We must exhibit more interest in our state governments or we will find ourselves in very serious trouble. Many factors contribute to high taxes today. One such factor which should be investigated thoroughly and promptly is the pension system for state employees. In many states, the pension system is a hodgepodge and often favors unworthy employees at unnecessary expense. State costs have

Sunday Observance To Be Stressed

Invitations were mailed this week to civic, trade, labor, and religious organizations to share in the Sunday Observance Campaign, which is being patterned largely on the approach to the Sunday shopping problem taken in Seattle, Wash., earlier this year. At its meeting last week the Executive Committee decided increased tremendously because of ill-advised and poorly framed pension plans. Such plans have permitted many state politicians to play fast and loose with your money and mine, while at the same time entrenching themselves in power.

that the campaign should cover the entire state of Maryland, rather than being restricted merely to the Baltimore area. The Committee was of the opinion that the problem is not merely a local one, but confronts business and the public throughout the state.

The campaign will be one of educational and persuasion—education of the public to value its day of rest, and persuasion of business to go along with the community's need for a day of rest and worship. The letter of invitation to share in the campaign describes the approach to be used as follows:

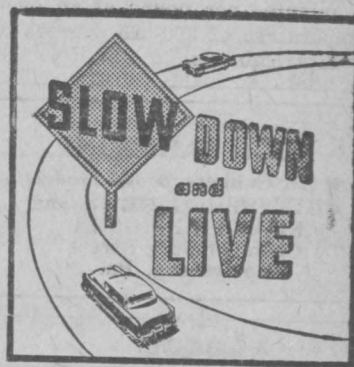

"This will be an educational campaign to create among the public generally and among business interests an attitude of mind, and a mental climate favorable to Sunday observance. That type of campaign has succeeded elsewhere and we firmly believe it will work here.

"The reason we are so confident is that this movement has such unanimous support. It has the support of all three faith groups, which is important. Moreover, it is being pushed by trade organizations, labor unions, civic, improvement and veterans associations, women's clubs, etc."

The campaign has adopted a $10,000 budget for its educational program and expects to raise this budget from interested organizations and their members.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Quite a vital piece of legislation held over that will undoubtedly create more debate in the next session of Congress.

That is Senate Bill 1356 co-sponsored by Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney and Sen. Arthur Watkins. It would put meat packers under the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission.

In 1921 when Congress enacted the Packers and Stockyards Act designed to insure free competition in the meat packing industry, enforcement was turned over to the Agricultural Dept. instead of FTC. Since that time, little, if anything, has been done to enforce these laws.

Or, as Sen. O'Mahoney claims, from 1947 to 1956 prices received by the livestock producers declined 29%, while the retail cost of meat and meat products to the consumer declined only 5%.

Failure of the Agriculture Dept. to enforce the laws was freely confessed by Assistant Secretary Earl Butz, whose job it is to enforce the act, when he testified during a hearing "It is quite true to 26 years the Packers and Stockyard Act has not been adequately enforced."

In fact, in major food packing circles it is now said the way to beat the anti-trust and Robinson-Patman laws is to buy a small stockyard, because once it is established that even a small part of a concern is engaged in meat packing, the FTC is powerless.

For example, a well known food and condiment packing concern was charged this summer with granting discriminatory advertising allowances to a huge food chain. But FTC was forced to drop proceedings when it was established that 3% of the firm's business was devoted to preparing meat for canning. It was thus subject to the Dept. of Agriculture, which did nothing.

The FTC has also charged that one of the nation's biggest meat packers has been using false and misleading advertising to promote the sales of its margarine. Yet, when the showdown came, it was ruled that FTC was powerless to act. Yet FTC is still expected to crack down on advertising claims of competitive margarine makers who are not engaged in meat packing.

Sen. O'Mahoney expresses surprise that action on this bill has been stopped so far. The problem is undoubtedly destined to cause a lot more debate before final settlement.

Agriculture Dept. defends its lack of enforcement by saying that whenever they find a packer violating the law they have a quiet talk with him, thus saving tax money that would be spent in a court prosecution.

That in itself is quite a principle in law enforcement.

This principle, followed to its logical conclusions, would have peace officers quietly talking in some private meeting with a bank robber after he made a big haul, counseling him to mend his ways, or the next time, perhaps he will be in trouble. With that plan there could be a lot of taxes saved in closing down the criminal courts. But it might be rather hard on banks, just as some packing house practices are making it pretty tough on competitors, as well as livestock producers not to mention the virtual immunity from laws that a chain store can gain by buying a small stockyard.

Economy-Rich Pumpkin Pie

SPICY GOOD AND CREAMY RICH PUMPKIN PIE is the perfect treat to climax any holiday meal. And, here's a recipe we'll all want to try . . . it calls for only one egg. You'll notice the difference in savings, but certainly never in taste; two tablespoons of quick-cooking tapioca takes the place of more eggs.

PUMPKIN PIE

2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca	1-1/2 cups mashed cooked pumpkin
2/3 cup sugar	1 egg, well beaten
1/2 teaspoon salt	1-1/2 cups milk
1 teaspoon cinnamon	Pastry for one crust 9-inch pie
1 teaspoon ginger	1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, spices, and pumpkin; mix well. Add egg and milk and blend well. Roll pastry 1/8 inch thick. Line a 9-inch pie pan. Trim pastry 1 inch larger than pan, fold edge to form a standing rim, and flute. Fill with pumpkin mixture. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 1 hour, or until done. (Pie is done when a knife inserted near the edge of filling comes out clean. Then center will be soft but will continue cooking after pie is removed from oven.) Serve warm, or cool to room temperature. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

Mother Seton's Beatification Believed Matter Of Just a Few Years

(Reprinted from Baltimore Catholic Review)

The cause of Mother Elizabeth Seton has reached a point which could lead to her beatification within two years and make her the first native-born U. S. citizen to be a Blessed. An important step in the process of beatification was completed recently when the Sacred Congregation of Rites forwarded a 1,000-page summation of the cause to His Eminence Clemente Cardinal Micara, proposer of the cause.

Mother Seton was born Elizabeth Ann Bayley in New York City in 1774. A devout Episcopalian, she married William Seton in 1794. After his death in 1803, she was left with five children to care for. She became a Catholic in 1805 and four years later founded the American congregation of the Sisters of Charity.

Although there are several steps to the process, the one exception is the testimony of Mrs. Ester Kearney, given during the diocesan process at Baltimore in 1907, which was 86 years after the death of Mother Seton. Mrs. Kearney, 96-years-old at the time, was the only person still living who had known Mother Seton personally. She regarded Mother Seton as a saint.

NO. 18769 EQUITY
In the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, in Equity
CEPHAS T. RAINES
vs.
MONA E. RAINES

The object of this Bill is to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant, Cephas T. Raines, from the Defendant, Mona E. Raines. The Bill states in substance that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County, Maryland, where he has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose last known address was 618 South Cicero Avenue, Chicago 44, Illinois; that the Complainant was married to the Defendant on the 11th day of June, 1949, at Kemp town, Maryland, by Reverend Chester B. Smith, a regularly ordained Minister of the Gospel; that one child was born as a result of said marriage, namely, Larry Wayne Raines, aged eight years, who is now in the custody of the Defendant; that the Complainant and the Defendant lived together as husband and wife until on or about February 11, 1951, at which time the parties hereto voluntarily separated and agreed to live separate and apart, which they have been doing ever since, without any cohabitation, constituting a period of more than three consecutive years prior to the time of the filing of this Bill of Complaint; that said separation is final and deliberate and that there is no reasonable hope or expectation of a reconciliation. The Bill prays that the Complainant be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant and that he be granted general relief and process.

It is thereupon ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, on this 25th day of October, 1957, that the Complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Frederick County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 30th day of November, 1957, give notice to the said Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of December, 1957, and show cause, if any she has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

more to be completed in the beatification cause, Vincentian Father Luigi Bisoglio, postulator of the cause, estimated that it could be completed by 1959.

Father Bisoglio urged American people to pray that God might reveal His will for the glorification of Mother Seton by performing the necessary miracles through her intercession.

The historical summation of Mother Seton's life and writings by the Congregation of Rites is the basis for further investigation which could lead to her canonization.

Father Ferdinando Antonelli, re-lator general of the historical section of the congregation, has supervised a 16-year study which produced the volume submitted to Cardinal Micara.

The entire testimony, with one exception, is taken from documentary evidence written before the cause was begun. This fact bears favorable weight in the cause.

The one exception is the testimony of Mrs. Ester Kearney, given during the diocesan process at Baltimore in 1907, which was 86 years after the death of Mother Seton. Mrs. Kearney, 96-years-old at the time, was the only person still living who had known Mother Seton personally. She regarded Mother Seton as a saint. Although the cause of beatification was begun in Rome in 1911, it was not officially introduced here until 1940. The war slowed the process. In 1948 Father Antonelli visited the United States. He examined the archives of Trinity Episcopal Church in New York City where Elizabeth Seton was baptized and married. Continued research carried Father Antonelli to half a dozen cities in the United States and Canada.

Archives consulted in compiling the report included those at the convents of the Sisters of Charity located at Cincinnati; Convent Station, N. J.; Greensburg, Pa.; New York City and Halifax, Nova Scotia. Also at the cathedral and the Carmelite convent in Baltimore; at Mount St. Mary's College in Emmitsburg, Md.; Notre Dame University, Notre Dame, Ind.; the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.; the old cathedral of Vincennes, Ind., and the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith in Rome.

The official report describes Mother Seton as of "quick and lively intelligence, of open, frank and loyal disposition, exquisitely sensitive to everything good and beautiful and also—why not?—possessed of true physical beauty, unspoiled, meek and modest."

The report further notes that she had "an almost inborn sense of God and a constant and driving desire to know Him and to love Him . . . In this fertile soil, made more fruitful by a sincerely Christian family environment even though Protestant, and by a good basis in religion, in letters and music, was added the action of grace."

With the completion of the report, supporters of her cause expect the next step, the ante-preparatory meeting of the Congregation of Rites, to be held at the end of this year.

This meeting will have to answer four specific questions about the report: (1) Does it contain all the principal evidence? (2) Are the documents cited "genuine and trustworthy?" (3) Is the biography complete and correct? (4) Does the report give a valid basis for judging the life and virtue of Mother Seton?

The meeting concludes with a vote being taken on whether Mother Seton practiced virtue to a heroic degree.

The next step is a "preparatory" meeting in which her virtues will be considered more thoroughly in the light of the objections raised by the "devil's advocate," who is charged with introducing evidence that she was not saintly.

Once this step is completed, a general meeting is held in the Pope's presence. After he has heard the votes of the assembly, he will consider the weight of evidence before giving his own approval. Once this is done, the Pope may order the publication of the decree by which Mother Seton may be called "Venerable."

To complete the beatification process raising Mother Seton to the ranks of the Blessed, two miracles are needed.

One of the two miracles required has already occurred and is described in the historical report issued by the congregation.

It is the case of the recovery in 1906 of Sister Camilla Turnbull of the Daughters of Charity at St. Joseph's Retreat in Dearborn, Mich. Sister Camilla was on the point of death from consumption, aggravated by bronchitis, pleurisy, fever and a weak heart.

Primary glaucoma, a pressure in the eyeball, which leads to blindness, occurs almost three times as often in female dogs as in males, say veterinary authorities.

Looking Ahead

...by Dr. George S. Benson
DIRECTOR—NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Searcy, Arkansas

Glenn Green continues his dispatches from Europe—G.S.B.
The Dead City

EAST BERLIN, Germany (Soviet Zone)—Dear Dr. Benson: It is a shocking experience to come into this Communist-ruled city after having seen the teeming, thriving, rebuilding city of capitalistic West Berlin. Although they are parts of a dismembered original city, today they are two distinctly different communities, with Russian Communism's Iron Curtain separating them. One (West Berlin) symbolizes the lively, progressive surge of freedom. The other (Soviet Zone) is a somber, chilling graveyard whose hollow-eyed, charred and gutted buildings stand like skeletons mocking the passersby.

At least that is the way this Communist-blighted place has affected me. I came into East Berlin by train from West Berlin. As we moved toward the Iron Curtain our coach was a normal hubbub of people talking. Suddenly the talking stopped. I looked around. The scene was eerie. People had ceased talking to each other. They gazed straight ahead. Without moving his head, my German companion whispered: "We're in the Soviet Zone." People in the Soviet Zone find it healthier not to be caught talking to each other. You can't trust anybody. The Secret Police and their spies are everywhere, listening, checking up. Scene of Desolation

We walked from the station to Unter den Linden which 15 years ago was Berlin's palatial world-famed Avenue of State. Everywhere along our route was spread the bomb destruction and desolation; untouched, untended by the Communist bosses. The three or four buildings left standing in a mile-wide sector are now Communist Party headquarters. As we walked through the barren, silent Unter den Linden I saw Party functionaries peering down at us from these offices. We walked on to the big Berlin amphitheater square where Hitler used to rant and rave as his Nazi hordes cheered. The Reds have renamed it Marx-Engels Place. The whole area today seems as dead and as old as an ancient Roman ruins.

A mile deeper into the city we came to one of the two main shopping centers—Alexander Place. Here we found a sprinkling of people on the street, most of them shabbily dressed. The shop windows were starkly barren; some were boarded up; only a few displayed merchandise and all of it was extremely shoddy.

Primitive Conditions

On a grass plot in the center of Alexander square three women worked pulling lawn mowers, with improvised harness, like draft horses—men following behind, guiding the machines. On the other side of the square a section of the street was being paved. The workmen were on their knees spreading the hot asphalt with hand tools. I sneaked shots of all this with my movie camera, then began worrying whether I'd ever get out with it.

Further on we reached Stalin-Allee where the Communists have built tiers of tall, gleaming-white apartment buildings with shops on the ground floors—"an example of what the new Communist world will be like." One of the shop windows displayed a cheaply-built settee which would sell in America for perhaps $75. The price, in East German marks, was displayed—the equivalent of six months' wages for the average East German industrial worker! Stalin-Allee is a sham. The cheaply constructed buildings are cracking, shedding their mortar. The shops have very little merchandise, very little business. Communist Party functionaries live in the flats. The whole project is surrounded by slums, where the wage earners (who are supposed to be the chief beneficiaries of Communism) live in relative poverty.

People Enslaved

From West Berlin next week, my dispatch will report on my interviews with three families who live and work in the Soviet Sector of Germany, behind the Iron Curtain. I have had rendezvous with them at different points in Germany. Several millions of their fellow countrymen in East Germany have escaped to the West. Now the stream of escapees has about dried up. The older people, and the people with loved ones who won't take the chance, are remaining behind the Curtain. And the Reds have managed, with many special favors, to keep some of the young generation pacified.

West Berlin is a small island of freedom completely surrounded by the Soviet Zone. East Germans who manage to get to West Berlin still are prisoners, for Soviet uniformed police stand guard and have charge of passports at every transportation terminal in West Berlin. To slip out of West Berlin in a northern or southern or western direction would merely mean slipping into Soviet Territory. Thus several hundred thousand Germans still live here in Soviet East Berlin, their lives completely directed by the Red Masters. In 12 years the Masters have made scarcely any genuine improvement in their city of rubble heaps and silent streets. It remains a chilling graveyard for human hopes. —G.G.

YEAR END TAX TIPS NUMBER 1

Act Now To Trim Your Federal Income Tax Bill

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants.

You still have time—but not much time—to do a little year-end tax planning and assure yourself of the best possible break when you file your tax return next April.

Millions of high, low and middle income taxpayers, realizing that careful planning of their financial affairs between now and the first of the year can pay off handsomely when the tax collector calls next spring, have already begun to establish those extra deductions and special exemptions that will reduce their tax bills.

You can do this too, but you must act no later than December 31. To alert you to the tax-saving steps you may be able to take before the end of the year, this newspaper is printing a series of articles prepared with the help of the national and state organizations of certified public accountants. These articles—if you keep them and follow their advice—can save you money.

Evaluate Income Prospects

If you are like most individual taxpayers, your goal at this time should be to level out income for this year and next year. Needless or careless bunching of income in either year can be costly. The sharp bite of today's progressive tax rates—which you can assume will be as high or possibly only slightly less in 1958—makes it much better to have an income of $8,000 in each of two years, rather than $6,000 in one and $10,000 in the other.

Taxpayers who are in danger of being whiplashed from one tax bracket to another because of wide fluctuations in their 1957 and 1958 income should act before December 31 to try to average out their taxable earnings. This can be done by careful shifting of income and deductions from one year to the next.

How to Shift Income

For example, if your two-year income estimate shows that your income for this year will be significantly higher than next year's, you should take immediate steps to throw as much income as possible from 1957 to 1958. At the same time you should speed-up the payment of all expenses that can be deducted on your 1957 return. By concentrating deductions in the higher year and switching income to the lower, you will keep your taxes for both years in the lowest possible tax bracket.

Should you be faced with the more desirable problem of a sizeable increase in your 1958 income, reverse this procedure—delay expenses and speed-up income if you can.

Timing income and deductions to gain a tax advantage is not too difficult for the millions of taxpayers who file returns on the basis of cash receipts and cash disbursements. "Cash basis" business and professional men can shift income by simply delaying or speeding-up the collection of accounts receivable near the end of the year. Salesmen and contractors can do the same thing by extending or closing deals that may be pending in November or December.

Farmers who operate on a cash basis can accelerate or postpone income by proper timing of the sales of their crops or livestock. While their income will be taxable in the year cash is received, the full costs of raising crops or cattle are deductible for the year in which the costs were paid.

Special Income Situations

There are special situations in which it can be advantageous to bunch income in a single tax year. For example, a husband and wife can file a joint return to gain the benefits of income-splitting. Should one of them die, the survivor may file a joint return for the year in which the spouse died and also for two succeeding years under certain conditions. Thus, a widow or widower may profit by throwing more income into this year and less into next if his or her spouse died in 1955, since the privilege of filing a joint return will be lost in all cases in 1958.

If you are planning to be married in 1958, remember that the income-splitting privileges you gain will act like a rate cut for you. At $7,000 of income, your taxes will be $240 less than if you were single, assuming that you take the standard deduction and claim only exemptions for you and your wife. For this reason, young couples planning marriage might consider postponing income from 1957 to 1958, while accelerating deductions from 1958 to 1957.

19. Oh, Watch You Well by Daylight.

20. To A Child At Play.

Words by Mary Meaney. Music by Professor Dielman. Markings asked that it be "Moderately playful."

21. I Love Thee Columbia.

Song for chorus. Composed by Henry Dielman and performed at the commencement exercises of St. Joseph Academy on June 29, 1876.<sup>12</sup>

22. Commencement Music.

During his professorship at St. Joseph Academy it was the custom for a member of the graduating class to compose an Ode of Farewell to her Alma Mater. Dr. Dielman would then set this composition to music. The programs for these annual exercises from 1855 to 1882 list the composition, giving the name of the author of the words, and Dielman as the collaborator. These compositions are no longer extant, as they were only in manuscript copy. St. Joseph College Archives contain none of these works. The programs do contain often the poem of farewell, but not the music.

Also on the same program is found a Coronation Ode composed by Henry Dielman. Since the same title appears year after year, it was in all probability a standard work which he composed expressly for the Commencement program. From time to time as an important date or anniversary were observed, or a distinguished personage visited the school, Dielman would compose a special work befitting the occasion.

What has been said above of St. Joseph Academy can also be said of the Commencement festivities at Mount Saint Mary's College. The exercise began usually at eight-thirty in the morning and continued for several hours. Dr. Dielman would direct the Saint Cecilia Orchestra in his own or other compositions of the day. Then the choral group would be heard in several selections, in addition to numerous speeches. These manuscripts copies are no longer available and were probably discarded as soon as the event was over, or given as a souvenir to the individual who composed the words. The programs usually indicate whether these numbers were sung by a chorus or small choral group—with or without accompaniment—or for an orchestra.

C. RELIGIOUS WORKS

1. Te Deum.

Composed in Baltimore in 1842. For four vocal parts with pianoforte or organ accompaniment. This is found in a large holographic manuscript with the English translation of the Latin hymn.

This is Dielman's first attempt at writing church music in a large form. The only other bit of religious music that he had composed was a hymn. The manuscript is well preserved and neatly written.

2. When Shall We Meet Again.

Publisher: F. D. Benteen, Baltimore, and George Willig, Jr., Baltimore.

A hymn respectfully dedicated to the Rt. Rev. Bishop Johns by H. Dielman. This was a clergyman of the Episcopal Church, probably met by Dielman when he served as choir director in Christ P. E. Church, Baltimore.

3. Hymn to the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Composed expressly for the United States Catholic Magazine. Music by Professor Dielman, with piano, organ or harp accompaniment. 1845.

4. Saint Patrick's Hymn.

Composed for the United States Catholic Magazine. Music by Professor Dielman of Mt. St. Mary's College, with pianoforte or organ accompaniment. Seven verses extoll the praise of Ireland's patron saint. 1845.

5. Saint John's Grand March.

Composed for the United States Catholic Magazine by Prof. Dielman, of Mt. St. Mary's College. Pianoforte or Harp accompaniment. 1845.

Also calls for Flute and Clarinet solos and duet.

6. New Christmas Hymn.

Publisher: H. McCaffrey, Baltimore. Suitable for all choirs. Written by the Rev. Dr. John McCaffrey. Music composed by Henry Dielman, Mus. Doc. Published in 1852.

This is the only composition of Henry Dielman's that is published today. There is an arranged edition published by McLaughlin and Reilly. The original copies bear a steel engraving of angelic choirs singing.

"The Story of the Mountain" gives the account of its first rendition:

"We insert here the versatile Father John McCaffrey's Christmas hymn long familiar to Mountaineers:

With glory lit, the midnight air Revealed bright angels hovering there, In fear beheld the raptured swains When rose the heaven-inspired strains: Glory to God and peace to earth. Made glorious by the Saviour's birth.

Then sweetly spoke the angelic voice: 'Fear not: let heaven and earth rejoice, The Child in Bethlehem's crib that lies Is God descended from the skies.'

The choirs of Heaven still bless the morn When God through love for man was born;

That God we humbly bow before And praise with angels and adore.

"Dr. Dielman composed suitable music for this hymn and its effect on the Christmas morning worshippers was perfect. Indeed this festival at the humble old church, from whose tower gleamed the Star of Bethlehem for twenty miles over the valley, was always and ever a hearty and holy celebration for old and young alike. Every one listened with faith and love to the 'old, old story,' the wondrous story of the birth of the Son of God in the stable. Every one received the Lord's Body with faith and love, and everyone departed for the manger with a spirit enlightened, warmed and strengthened for the closer following of Christ."<sup>14</sup>

7. Mass for Three Voices.

A short, complete and easy Mass including a Veni Creator Spiritus, with an accompaniment for the organ.

Composed and most respectfully dedicated to the Reverend John McCloskey by Dr. Henry Dielman, Mt. St. Mary's College. Price $1.50, net. Publisher: George Willig and Company, Baltimore in 1853. Recopyrighted 1883.

"The Story of the Mountain" says of the above composition: "Dr. Dielman published a short, complete and easy Mass, including a Veni Creator, with accompaniment for the organ." It was dedicated to Rev. John McCloskey, vice president."<sup>15</sup>

8. Mass in C.

Manuscript copy only.

9. Mass in several keys.

Manuscript copy. Written in the Keys of F; B flat, and E flat.

10. Mass in several keys.

Manuscript copy. Written mostly in the key of F. Pages missing.

11. Mass in B Flat.

Written for four voices. This is the last Mass composed by Dielman, and was only partially completed at the time of his death. A letter throws some light on this religious composition:

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 11, 1895

Rev. and dear Sir:—

I wish to call your attention to the Mass, known as "The Christmas Mass," of Dr. Henry Dielman, late professor of music in Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md. During the past 20 years many persons who had heard the Mass in the College Church have requested copies of it, and have regretted that it was not published. It was written by the Doctor for the boys at the college and arranged for three voices, but it was never finished. The Benedictus and Agnus Dei now published with the Mass do not belong to it, and my only excuse for inserting them, which

This may be the "Christmas Mass" referred to below in the quoted letter.

11. Mass in B Flat.

Written for four voices. This is the last Mass composed by Dielman, and was only partially completed at the time of his death. A letter throws some light on this religious composition:

Rev. and dear Sir:—

I wish to call your attention to the Mass, known as "The Christmas Mass," of Dr. Henry Dielman, late professor of music in Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md. During the past 20 years many persons who had heard the Mass in the College Church have requested copies of it, and have regretted that it was not published. It was written by the Doctor for the boys at the college and arranged for three voices, but it was never finished. The Benedictus and Agnus Dei now published with the Mass do not belong to it, and my only excuse for inserting them, which

I do from an early composition of the Doctor, is to complete the parts. The music is the property of Mrs. John H. Cretin, a daughter of Dr. Dielman, and at her solicitation the work is undertaken by me.

In addition to the Mass itself, I have thought it well to add Dr. Dielman's famous "Christmas Hymn," and his scarcely less meritorious Hymn, "Come to Joseph," the words of which were written by Very Rev. Dr. McCaffrey, the old president of the college, and first brought out when Pope Pius IX proclaimed St. Joseph patron of the Universal Church. A third hymn, "To St. Patrick," by Dr. Dielman is also added.

As the Mass was originally written for only three voices, I have submitted it to the well known musical composer and critic, Rev. H. G. Ganss, of Carlisle, Pa., who has added the alto part to it, and has edited the entire work. I subjoin a letter written by him on the subject.

As a work of love, I have personally undertaken the handling of this Mass, and I will be glad to supply you with as many copies of it as you may wish at the following rates; viz: $1.00 per copy, or six copies for $5.00. I am, Yours sincerely,

OR... the happy housewife
who knew all about
SAVINGS BONDS

Once there was a man who didn't like salami. But one day his wife slipped a salami sandwich in his lunch box.

"I'll dress it up with a little pickle and mustard and he'll never know it from ham," said the wife.

But he did. He took one bite of the sandwich and put it back in his lunch box—along with a U. S. Savings Bond he wanted to take home.

That night his wife cleaned out the lunch box and burned its contents—salami sandwich, waxed paper wrappings, Bond—and all.

Now it was the husband's turn to be burned up.

But the happy housewife, who knew all about Savings Bonds, explained that all her husband needed to do was to fill out a form, send it in to the Treasury, and his Savings Bond would be replaced free of charge. Which he did—and they did.

This true story, suggests one of the many reasons why it's so sensible to put savings in Bonds. There are many more. For one, in Bonds your principal is guaranteed. For another, your rate of return is assured.

And now every U. S. Series E Savings Bond bought since February 1, 1957 pays a new, higher interest—3½% when held to maturity! It matures faster, in only 8 years and 11 months. And redemption values are higher, too, especially in the earlier years.

That's why so many happy housewives are urging their husbands to invest regularly in U. S. Savings Bonds. Why don't you join them—today?

Part of every American's savings belongs in
U. S. Savings Bonds

LITTLE GIRL SAVED FROM BLINDNESS

This was the headline, a few weeks ago, of an article in "Die Landstem," Capetown, South Africa, an Africans weekly newspaper. The article below read: "Thus the parents of this ten-year-old daughter testify in a letter to Die Landstem. She is saved from blindness through prayer."

Mr. A. E. Krause of 35 Hof Street, West Bank, Oudtshoorn, Cape Province, South Africa, writes:

"I can give you the addresses of many people who know about this case and who have known Naomi from birth. Our minister, teacher, principal, and our neighbors will confirm what I'm going to tell you now."

"Naomi was rapidly going blind. She was born with weak eyes and each year she had to visit the specialists who prescribed stronger lenses for her glasses, since they could do no more for her. When she paid her last visit to the specialist on October 19, 1956, she was told that not even an operation could prevent her eyes getting weaker. In fact, she couldn't see too well with the stronger glasses."

"Then the parents read that an evangelist was due to hold a series of meetings in Johannesburg in January of this year. As a last desperate resource they went to the meetings. On the Monday night this minister prayed for her and on Tuesday morning she could see clearly. Now she can read the smallest print without glasses."

"Her teacher at first could not believe that Naomi could read without her glasses and insisted that she should wear them. But she simply could not."

"In February of this year she went back to the same specialist and his verdict was that there is nothing wrong with her eyes."

"We give God the glory for this wonderful miracle to our child," writes Mr. Krause. "The evangelist prayed, but God healed."

This healing took place in our meetings in Johannesburg, South Africa, in January 1957. We received the report of it just a few days ago. But it simply reinforces the theme of the Bible—"God is a good God!"

When Christ was on earth His heart was always open to the needs of the suffering humanity. One day the people came in such vast numbers for healing that the sick began to faint and the multitude "trode one upon another." Piteous cries for deliverance rose in a crescendo. Faith began to move and live as the blind pleaded for sight, the dumb gesticulated wildly, the crippled crawled toward their only hope. Mothers held up their babies and tearfully begged for His touch. From over across the canyon came the high-pitched voices of the lepers as the whole concourse of suffering people moved resistlessly toward the Healer. Matthew says, the Saviour "was moved with compassion . . . and healed their sick" (Matt. 14:14).

Today He still moves among us. He is still ready to hear your prayer.

America's Favorite French Author

The quiet of a balmy Parisian day was broken suddenly last month when scores of taxicabs converged swiftly on a red-bricked building in the Rue de l'Université.

The occasion was not a parliamentary crisis, a sports event, nor even the arrival of a film star.

The occasion was the publication of a book, "Those Without Shadows." The taxis were dispatched by overwrought booksellers who, unable to obtain enough copies from the harassed publisher to satisfy clamoring customers, waited frantically at the printing plant for the first day's supply of the book to emerge.

The author was Françoise Sagan, who at 18 had astounded the literary world with "Bonjour Tristesse," her perceptive love story that broke sales records in France and America. When "A Certain Smile" affirmed her sensational talents a year later, she was acclaimed as a writer of first rank, and as the most phenomenal feminine personality in French letters.

A small tousle-haired girl, with a youthful innocent face that could take on a sudden worldly depth, Miss Sagan became the talk of all France. Few movie stars were ever more widely discussed, their every movement more minutely reported. The Associated Press named her as the most newsworthy literary figure of 1956. Her books, translated into 15 languages and snapped up by Hollywood, attracted millions of readers.

Yet, when a near-fatal automobile accident last spring made world headlines—the result of her love for fast cars—this sensitive but restless young author was fazed hardly at all. "My life is really nothing, an interval between birth and death," she said, in shrugging off her narrow escape.

The dizzy whirl did not interfere with her work as a serious writer, however, despite the temptation to rest on a considerable reputation. Her third novel, "Those Without Shadows," became the most sought-after book in France.

Published this month by E. P. Dutton & Company in an American edition, it is a perceptive and sensitive story, frank in portraying the interlocking love affairs of a group of sophisticated Parisians. With hundreds of thousands of readers reinforcing Miss Sagan's position as one of the most vital literary figures of our time, there was no question that she would continue to be America's favorite and most widely read French author.

More than 200 leading representatives of the fields of journalism and public relations are expected to attend. Maryland Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin and the university's Board of Regents will also be present.

Completed last February, the $350,000 structure houses the department of journalism and public relations.

Dwight is publisher of the Holyoke Transcript Telegram and Greenfield (Mass.) Recorder-Gazette. He is a member of President Eisenhower's Youth Fitness Advisory Council and former chairman of the New England Governor's Textile Committee.

After a tour of the building and luncheon the guests will see the University of Maryland-Virginia football game.

Troupe To Stage
'Othello' at College

Shakespeare's "Othello" will be presented by the Canadian Players at St. Joseph College on Nov. 24 at 7:30 p. m.

From Shakespeare's Canadian base, Stratford, Ont., this group of players has been working to refurbish Shakespearean theater. By concentrating on the caliber of their acting, they capture the imagination of the audience and make them participants in the drama. The players were filmed in "Oedipus Rex," have appeared on "Omnibus," and were successful at the Edinburgh Festival.

"Othello" will be the fourth in a series of lectures and concerts presented jointly by St. Joseph College and Mount St. Mary's College. Friends of students and faculty members of both colleges are invited to attend.

State Unemployment On Increase, Statistics Reveal

Running counter to the seasonal trend, the amount of benefits and the number of checks paid under the Maryland Unemployment Insurance Law in October showed a moderate rise over September and a substantial rise over October of last year, Robert B. Kimble, executive director of the Dept. of Employment Security, announced this week.

Whereas Unemployment Insurance figures normally show a declining trend from September through November each year, Mr. Kimble said, they held to the August level in September this year and climbed somewhat in

Doctor's Notebook

A One-Two Attack On Hypertension

Hypertension—high blood pressure—is still pretty much of a medical mystery. Doctors know the immediate mechanical cause of high blood pressure—the constriction of the arterioles, the smallest branches of the artery tree. To force the blood through these narrowed passageways, the heart must work harder, thus increasing the blood pressure.

The question is: what causes the arterioles to narrow? Many diseases can cause artery constriction, and in such cases, high blood pressure is no mystery. In most instances, however, high blood pressure exists alone, or it leads to other diseases. In these cases, the underlying cause is still a matter of speculation.

A wide range of treatments have been used to combat high blood pressure, such as drugs to dilate the blood vessels, special diets and delicate nerve-severing operations. All these methods work in some patients, are ineffective in others.

Recently, a two-pronged approach to treatment of high blood pressure was announced at the Cardiac Clinic of St. Barnabas Medical Center, Newark, N.J. This involves a combination of two drugs, mecamylamine, a drug that blocks the passage of the nerve impulses that constrict the blood vessels; and the tranquilizing drug "Miltown", which acts to ease anxiety and tension, make patients more manageable and, in general, improve their outlook.

Used in this manner the two drugs brought a significant reduction in blood pressure to 35 of 37 patients, in some a reduction to normal levels, as well as a decrease in headaches and apprehension, common symptoms of high blood pressure.

The doctors report that the tranquilizing drug could not be considered of value in actually lowering the blood pressure, but

October.

Mr. Kimble said the increases resulted from temporary and indefinite layoffs in many areas of industry, including primary metals, chemicals and allied industry, and transportation equipment manufacturing. Cutbacks in defense spending were contributing factors in the total picture, as were the seasonal closing of seafood processing plants and a seasonal slow-down in the apparel industry.

Mr. Kimble noted again this month that current Unemployment Insurance statistics have certain limitations as economic indicators:

(1) Railroad employees are covered under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, not under the Maryland Unemployment Insurance Law, and therefore are not reflected in the Maryland U. I. statistics.

(2) Recent amendments to the Maryland Law have the effect, for many claimants, of increasing the weekly benefit amount while extending the period of eligibility. This factor tends to inflate current figures, thereby reducing their value in over-the-year comparisons. The reduced value will continue until the amended law has been in effect long enough to permit the comparison of similar data.

The $2.2 million paid out during October to unemployed persons eligible under the State program was 12.8 per cent more than the amount of September and 168.4 per cent more than the amount of October of last year. The 74,100 benefit checks paid out in October was up 11.3 per cent from September and 118.5 per cent from October, 1956.

Initial claims, representing new spells of unemployment, rose to a weekly average of 3824, up 19.7 per cent over September and 85.7 per cent over October of last year.

In addition to the above program, the Maryland Dept. of Employment Security administers similar program for veterans and Federal employees, the costs of which are borne by the Federal government.

The cutback in defense spending was also reflected in October in the program of Unemployment Compensation for Federal employees, with unemployed Federal workers in Maryland receiving 2848 benefit checks totaling $92,009. As compared with October, 1956, these figures represent a rise of 176 per cent in the number of benefit checks and 214.7 per cent in the amount of benefits. The amended law is also a factor here.

Unemployed veterans whose military service dates from the start of the Korean War to Jan. 31, 1955, received 1282 benefit checks totaling $26,125 in October, as compared with 1136 checks totaling $25,166 in October, 1956, a rise of 12.9 per cent and 3.8 per cent, respectively.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By U. S. Congressman
DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—My mail in recent weeks has been heavy with requests for information on the nation's defense program. Our people have been startled and left uncomfortable by the spectacular demonstrations of Soviet success in the missile and space satellite fields. None like the idea of the Reds unveiling a great scientific achievement ahead of us. In our momentary discomfort we must not overlook the fact that we have made greater strides than the Soviet in the practical application of nuclear power to weapons and propelling submarines. In almost every field of science we are head of the other nations in the world.

But no one in the Federal government or on Capitol Hill is minimizing the Russians these days, for the very good reason that they apparently lead in some fields. The President in his talks with the people has presented the salient facts of our defense position and has dealt with their implications. I think, too, that the press and radio have done a good job in presenting available information to the public.

The Russians, advertently or not, have spurred us to decision making. But we must remember that there are basic principles at stake in the decisions we make—whether these decisions concern the immediate defense picture, or the long-range problem of educating our people to live in a world dominated by science and mathematics. We must not forget that we are defending liberty and the freedom of choice.

It is truly frightening, for example, to read the recent report on "Education in the USSR." It can force its scientists and technicians to work for the military. It can, and does, enforce on its people a bleak and hopeless standard of living. Such a program is repugnant to every American.

Bernard B. Baruch sums up our present position as follows: "If America ever crashes, it will be in a two-tone convertible... There are worse burdens than taxes... Sputnik represents the test of democracy. Do we meet this challenge—regain our leadership, assure of security? Do we discipline ourselves to protect our freedom? If we do not, we will bear the far harsher disciplines which our enemies will impose on us."

SENTENCED FOR CAR THEFT
An Emmitsburg man, William H. Wetzel, Route 1, was sentenced by the Adams County, Pennsylvania Court last Saturday to from six months to one year in the Allegheny County Workhouse beginning October 17 on a charge of larceny of an automobile from Iron Springs, Pa., and was given a 30-day sentence, to run concurrently on a hit and run charge. He also was ordered to pay the costs of each charge.
