BY ABIGAIL

Interest was very keen in the bidding for the new Emmitsburg sewerage system. The bids were opened at an open meeting of the town fathers on Monday evening. The town fathers, their engineers and architects deserve a vote of thanks for the manner in which this matter was handled. Bids were submitted by nine firms and varied as much as $85,000 or almost 25% of the cost of the project. If the interest had not been created and well advertised, a poor taxpayer would be paying for a much longer period of time to pay off the cost of the installation. Again the Mayor and Commissioners have displayed their wholehearted interest in getting the most for Emmitsburg tax dollars.

Once again summer is practically here and school finished. It is interesting to note that the children have not been forgotten. The Lions Club Rodeo will be held during the month of June, a record hop is scheduled during June also for the teen-agers by a local organization, and I note in another story in the paper this week that one of the local organizations is thinking of sponsoring regular record hops throughout the summer to occupy time and provide entertainment for our teen-agers. In addition, we have the Little League for the youngsters (and a good many adults enjoy watching just as much as the little fellows like to play), the Emmitsburg Legion League for boys from 12 to 17, the regular ball team for older boys, the playground maintained and supervised for the enjoyment of our children, and many activities scheduled throughout the summer. Let's not complain this year that there is little for the school children to do during the summer months—urge the youth to take part in all of these activities and remember that all of the adults should support these projects financially and with personal assistance whenever asked to do so.

Dick, the mailman, and his Missus, were the victims of some practical jokes this week. As the story was related to me, Dick and the Missus were busily engaged in a bit of horticultural experiment and were planting rosebushes in the yard. Seems as though some confusion developed as to what colors were planted and where. Well anyway, Sam and Willie overheard the little conversation and decided to have a bit of fun out of it. Willie it seems, has captured the knack of manufacturing artificial flowers and especially is adept on the species roses. The two busied themselves making a dozen of the red and white variety and while the wife was at work and Dick on the mail route, they wired the artificial roses to the bushes. They almost split themselves when a while later the couple returned to the yard to see how the flowers were coming along. To their amazement they already were in bloom. Then's when it really got good, I am informed. The couple just couldn't fathom how rapidly the flowers had advanced and it was not until they put the sprinkling can to the bush until they discovered they were the victims of a hoax perpetrated by a couple of friendly neighbors. Naturally the prank was discovered when the water hit the flowers and they faded and dropped out of existence. I wouldn't have minded being a witness to the little affair myself.

Remember the Acroeters folks? They're the family of acrobats from Biglerville who have appeared at our local talent show the past couple of years. Well they're well on the road to the big time already. Last Saturday and Sunday they were featured at Atlantic City's famous Steel Pier. Just goes to show you the type of talent which is rounded up for our Lions Club Talent Show which is held in February each year.

The interest of the day seems to lie in the President's arrival at Mount St. Mary's for the 150th annual commencement. Many datelines from our little

LIONS CLUB SPONSORS RODEO

Emmitsburgians will have the opportunity to witness a real wild west rodeo on Wednesday and Thursday, June 18 and 19, when the well-known Circle X Rodeo comes to town under the auspices of the Emmitsburg Lions Club. The proceeds from the affair will go towards the Lions Club's welfare fund which is used for local charity.

Many local citizens are familiar with the rodeo, having seen it on WMAR-TV, Baltimore, where it was sponsored by a Baltimore brewing concern. Over 40 head of livestock will be used in the show which will be presented at the Civic Grounds, half a mile east of town. Brahma bulls, steers, calves, horses and cowboys and cowgirls will combine their talents to round out a thrilling show for the public. In addition there will be good music provided during the evening and seating will be available.

An added drawing card will be the attempts by local individuals trying to ride the broncos and bulls and a number of prizes will be offered for those who are successful enough to stay on their mounts for a specified short time. It will cost the contestant $10 to make the attempt, but if successful he will receive a $100 prize. Refreshments will be on sale at the grounds and tickets are now on sale by members of the Lions Club and in a number of stores.

It is the hope of the committee in charge to be able to seat at least 1000 spectators. Tickets sell for 90c for adults and 50c for children.

BUDDY DEANE TO RETURN HERE

Buddy Deane, popular television emcee over a Baltimore channel, will again appear in Emmitsburg in person on Thursday night, June 19 at 8 p. m. The well-known disc jockey will make a return appearance here under the sponsorship of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary.

Tickets to the affair are now on sale at Crouse's and the Recreation Center, Mrs. Bruce Flowers, publicity chairman, announces. The group urges early purchasing of ducats due to the fact that Deane's last appearance here was a sell-out and it is anticipated the June 19th record hop will supercede in attendance the previous dance.

Msgr. Sheridan, president of Mount St. Mary's, will have an opportunity when the Chief Executive arrives here Monday, to reminisce of the times when he opposed President Eisenhower on the football field when he starred for the Mount and Ike on the Dickinson College football team. ## Conservation Club Elects Officers

The annual election of officers was the principal order of business transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the Indian Lookout Conservation Club held Tuesday night in the Fire Hall, President Clay Z. Green presiding.

Officers elected were as follows: President Clay Z. Green; vice president, Lewis E. Hahn; secretary, Maurice Michaels; treasurer, Jason Sanders; directors, Samuel C. Hays, Harold M. Hoke, Gil Eiker, Carroll Wills and James Kemp.

Applications from 19 new members were accepted at the meeting. The group has set aside Thursday, June 5 as the evening to assist the Water Company employees with work on the picnic area to be established near Rainbow Lake. A donation of $25 was voted for the Vigilant Hose Co. The attendance at Tuesday's meeting was 71, one of the largest in a number of years. Yesterday evening a large number of the members busied themselves with policing up the premises around Rainbow Lake in preparation for the bass season which opens Sunday.

Luther Anderson, president of the Blue Ridge Sportsmen Assn., extended an invitation to the members and to the public, to enter children under 16, in a fishing derby being sponsored by the club on May 30. Prizes will be awarded for the largest fish caught, etc. The club announced that trout had been stocked in Owens Creek on Thursday and that 120 ring-neck pheasants had been released for stocking purposes in the Emmitsburg area. ## Bids Received For Town's Sewer Project

Emmitsburg's plans for a new sewer system advanced another step nearer completion when bids for the construction of the extended facilities were publicly opened Monday night in the Fire Hall, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners Charles R. Fuss announces.

Estimates were about in line with those of the Burgess and Commissioners who had figured the cost of the project at about $300,000. Ten bidders in all were present at the opening.

The new line, when complete, will give Emmitsburg complete sewerage facilities. At present a little better than half the community has sewerage. About four miles of line will be laid, a new pumping plant and disposal plant will be erected. The pumping station will be located at the present site of the disposal plant south of Emmet Gardens. From this point the sewage will be pumped over the Creamery Road hill until it reaches a point where it will flow by gravity, to a new disposal plant on the Harry Swomley farm, a distance of about two miles from town.

The bids and their amounts were as follows: Sullivan Construction Co., $335,265.70; Allied Contractors, Inc., $312,960.15; the Pickerille Construction Co., Baltimore, $321,258.77; Ventres Bros Inc., Baltimore, $379,977.10; W. F. Wilson Co., Brookville, Md., $295,039.04; Taylor Construction Co., Bethesda, Md., $302,039.04; Edgar Stoner Construction Co., Baltimore, $321,258.77; Ventres Bros Co., $71,081.07; Richard F. Kline, Frederick, $299,307.60; Ferguson Co., Hagerstown, $310,000.00.

Burgess Clarence G. Frailey reported a total monetary grant of both Federal and State funds of $117,000 will be given the town and the balance of about $230,000 will undoubtedly be raised by a bond issue, the details of which will be announced publicly next week.

The town recently expanded, taking into the corporate limits about 12 additional acres and a total of 200 people which brings Emmitsburg's population to around the 1500 mark. All houses within the corporate limits will have access to the new sewerage system. Actual construction is expected to commence in late July.

BETTER SCHOOLS — AND YOU

by HENRY TOY, Jr., President
 National Citizens Council for Better Schools

RELIGION IN OUR SCHOOLS

There's a topic boiling underneath the surface these days that I'd like to see brought out into the open. That's religion and education.

From what I can gather, it's a highly explosive topic in many communities and predictions are that it's going to explode one of these days.

Before that happens, I don't see why we can't all get together all over this country and discuss it.

The almost backroom discussions of it are taking all kinds of forms. In some places, it's an undertone fight about released time for religious instruction. In others, it's the use of public funds for transportation of parochial school children. Elsewhere it comes out as town protests against any form of religion being introduced into the classroom including posting of the Ten Commandments or grace before meals in the school cafeteria.

Recently, I attended a meeting at which this topic was discussed and, among other things, I learned that the meeting that it can be done. People of the three major faiths were at the meeting and the panel consisted of a Roman Catholic, a Jew and a Protestant. Each presented his point of view and then the meeting was thrown open to discussion. In the three hours of discussion, nobody raised his voice and everybody learned a great deal. I doubt if any minds were changed but I believe quite a few were opened to the other fellow's point of view.

One of the reasons that religion and education continues as a thorny problem is that there is so little discussion of it in the open. I don't believe a discussion of it should be forced if no problem exists. But in those communities where the problem is very real, I suggest that the people involved stage a full-fledged, open discussion, or series of meetings, on the topic.

It's never going to get settled to anyone's satisfaction if we pretend the problem doesn't exist. Piecemeal solutions to avert a crisis and to keep everyone quiet if not happy aren't going to prove valuable in the long run.

We've solved a lot of problems in the public forum in America. I suggest that this is another one for that method.

Star Recipes

By JEAN HAHN

What happens when a recipe calls for white wine or sherry and neither is at hand? For Julie Newmar, glamorous actress featured in the Broadway hit, Lil Abner, the answer is simple. She simply substitutes Noilly Prat French Vermouth, which, she says is her favorite cooking wine. And with good reason, too, for vermouth, by combining wines and savory herbs, two ingredients called for in all good recipes, provides the housewife with a handy, easy-to-use blend of the world's most prized seasonings.

Fine vermouth like Noilly Prat also make an ideal aperitif, she said. In France, she pointed out, aperitifs are designed to spark the appetite to greater appreciation of the meal that is to follow. And nothing, she says, fills the bill more perfectly than French vermouth—chilled by itself, on the rocks, or mixed ½ dry and ½ sweet.

The following is Julie's own version of an old cookbook recipe for beef stew. The original recipe, in addition to calling for white wine or sherry, also had canned tomato sauce, carrots and potatoes cooked with the stew. But Julie says she omits these from her stew because she thinks vegetables deserve to be cooked and served separately.

BEEF STEW A LA NOILLY

½ lb. salt pork (brought to a boil in pan of water before using)
 2 lbs. chuck (cut free of gristle and into bite size pieces)
 1 tablespoon flour
 1½ cloves garlic, chopped
 ½ teaspoon pepper
 1 large onion, chopped
 1 bouillon cube
 12 pepper corns
 3 whole cloves
 ½ cup parsley, chopped
 ½ bay leaf
 1 cup water
 ½ cup Noilly Prat Extra Dry French Vermouth

Cut the briefly boiled salt pork into thin strips and saute slowly in a large skillet. When fairly crisp remove and put aside. Brown pieces of beef in pork fat at high heat; add dried port. flour, ½ teaspoon pepper. Bring remaining ingredients to boil except for vermouth and pour over meat. Simmer covered for 3 hours. Stir occasionally and add extra water if necessary. After 3 hours cooking, turn off heat, stir in ½ cup Noilly Prat French Vermouth, place stew in casserole or bean pot and refrigerate, preferably overnight. When ready to serve, reheat in 300°F. oven for about 1 hour.

Sometimes we see "Do Not Disturb" signs on doors to rooms in hotels or hospitals. These signs seem to hang also on the doors of some churches and minds.

We have come a long way since Pentecost, but some of our distance may have been in the wrong direction. Our own comfort, our consciences, our conduct have been dictated more often by respectability than disturbed by the implications of the gospel. Because we have been soothed by the gospel, our response to it does not disturb others—nor transform the world to which we have been conformed.

The early Christians gave themselves up to the power of the Holy Spirit. As a result, they had a disturbing effect on others, who wondered and were amazed. Early Christians had the reputation of turning the world upside down. Because the Holy Spirit prompted them to good works, their jail sentences became titles of honor.

Prayer

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By U. S. Congressman
DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—The Judiciary Committee, on which I serve, is currently giving serious attention to legislation providing for protection of certain fundamental States rights. We are studying a bill (H.R. 3) aimed at a number of recent Supreme Court decisions. Very broadly, these decisions hold that certain State laws have no force or effect since Congress has passed laws on the same subject matter.

H.R. 3 would provide that Federal laws would not nullify State law unless Congress expressly so states, or unless the law conflicts with State law in such a way that the two could not stand together. The Department of Justice objects to the present language of the bill, as do labor unions and some railroad people, principally on the grounds that enactment would result in further confusion.

I believe that the bill can be amended so that there is no question as to its meaning. Such an amendment would eliminate the presently expressed fears of further legal confusion and insure to the States the right to enact and enforce certain laws—such as those dealing with subversive activities.

I have arranged to testify before a House Appropriation subcommittee in favor of funds necessary to complete the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood prevention project. Federal funds needed to complete the work amount to $1,751,000.

It seems to me that failure to complete a fishway in the Little Falls dam would, in the long run, be uneconomical and wasteful. I plan to appear before the Committee and urge funds necessary to finishing the project.

Montgomery County has just received, as a federally impacted area, $1,510,696 for its schools for this year—of this sum, $1,333,022 has been allotted for immediate use.

The President has signed into law the bill making adjustments in equipment allowances for rural carriers.

Boonsboro now has parcel post delivery service. This new service will prove beneficial to the community and greatly improves the postal facilities of the area.

Nuclear Group Is Incorporated

Articles of incorporation forming the East Central Nuclear Group, Inc., were filed this week with the Ohio Secretary of State in Columbus.

The new corporation, an Ohio non-profit membership corporation, organized by a group of electric utility companies of the East-Central region of the United States to carry out research and development work in the atomic power field.

Among the 12 member companies of ECNG, Inc., is The Potomac Edison Company. Its President, D. E. Stultz, will serve as one of the corporation's 14 trustees.

For a number of months prior to its incorporation, ECNG had been studying a program of nuclear research and development that would represent an important advance toward making electric power produced from atomic fuel competitive with power generated by conventional means. Last December, ECNG announced a proposal to the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission on, and development of, an advanced nuclear power reactor. In February, the AEC announced it had accepted the ECNG proposal as a basis for further negotiation contingent upon necessary action by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy of the U. S. Congress and appropriate Congressional legislation. The proposal is now before Congress.

The proposal, made jointly with the two - company Florida West Coast Nuclear Group (consisting of Florida Power Corporation and Tampa Electric Company), includes a research and development program on a partnership basis with the AEC and the subsequent construction by FWCNG—based on that research and development—of a 50,000-kilowatt prototype reactor, the prototype of a 200,000-kw reactor.

The reactor type proposed is a high - temperature, gas - cooled, heavy water-moderated unit oper-

Separated Couples Eligible To Draw Social Security

Some aged wives and widows who are separated but not divorced from their husbands could be receiving monthly social security benefits on the basis of their husband's work, if they would come in and file application, W. S. King, district social security manager, said today.

A 1958 change in the law did away with the requirement that a wife must be living with or supported by her husband when she files application, and that a widow must have been living with or supported by her husband at the time of his death. Now, a 62-year-old wife or widow may be eligible for a monthly benefit merely on the basis of a legal marriage that is still in existence—even though they may have been separated for many years and are at opposite ends of the country. There has been no change in the law with respect to the provisions that a wife can receive monthly benefits only if her husband is also receiving his benefit.

ating on natural uranium fuel. It would be built in Florida, where fuel costs are significantly higher than in the East-Central area and where there would thus be fewer economic disadvantages in the reactor's construction and operation.

R for Health

Prevention — and Treatment — of Sunburn

Probably the most common summertime ailment is sunburn. And its causes are so little understood that many thousands of people actually harm themselves in their innocent pursuit of a beautiful tan. The adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," applies more to sunburn than to most illnesses. For sunburn can be prevented if one understands what causes it and practices certain common sense rules.

Sunlight is composed of three main components: visible light, ultraviolet and infrared light. Waves producing sunburn lie within the ultraviolet region. Contrary to the opinion of many, fog and clouds are poor protection against ultraviolet rays, so that you may get a severe burn on an overcast or even cool day.

People at beaches run extra hazards of sunburn, even though they may lie under umbrellas part of the time. Water and sand reflect the burning rays, and moisture in the air softens the skin and makes it more vulnerable to ultraviolet rays. Cooling breezes off the water fool many people into thinking they are not being burned.

Always keep in mind that the time of day has a lot to do with whether or not you will be burned. The sun's rays produce the most severe burns between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., when the ultraviolet rays are most numerous.

Sunburn, commonly classified as first or second degree burn, may vary from a mildly uncomfortable redness to a painful skin eruption of blisters, and in the more severe cases fever, chills, pain and swelling. The redness comes from dilation of minute blood vessels in the skin. Later, the peeling and itching are the first sign of recovery from the burn. Repeated exposure to the sun exhausts the skin's ability to replace pigmentation and thickens the skin, a protective measure, and may ultimately lead to persistent peeling, shrinkage of the skin, areas of discoloration, freckles and, in severe instances, various kinds of growths and even skin cancer.

It is good advice to start your exposure to the sun gradually, about 20 minutes on the first day, less for children, since they can stand only about half as much ultraviolet light as adults. Most medical authorities advise some kind of protective preparation on the skin until it is tanned. Oils are effective, as are unguents and salves containing calamine, titanium oxide or zinc oxide. These have the effect of impeding the passage of ultraviolet rays.

Mild sunburn can be relieved with a wide variety of soothing, analgesic unguents and oils, which are easily available. However, if you should experience severe sunburn, see your physician right away, for prompt medical attention may help prevent serious complications.

The best advice, though, is to be very cautious exposing yourself to the sun and avoid a burn. For while Old Sol furnishes us with vitamin D, he can also cause a lot of aches and pains.

Aged wives and widows who believe they can qualify for benefits as a result of this change in the law should contact us promptly to determine what their rights are, Mr. King concluded.

CLEANING TRICKS

One of the joys of moving into a brand-new home or apartment is the clean, hand-box look of the whole place. The day you move in is the time to firmly resolve to keep that fresh-scrubbed look always. Here's the easy way to do it, according to the Spic and Span Cleaning Clinic. As soon as any smudge appears on painted walls, woodwork or doors, wipe it off. Keep linoleum and tile floors so well washed the stains won't ever have a chance to discolor them. This resolution won't be hard to keep if you use the special cleaner that requires no rinsing for walls, woodwork and hard-surface floorings. With this constant upkeep, you'll be sure to keep that new look for a long time.

The quickest way to wash Venetian blinds is to turn the blades flat and wash on one side; then turn them so the other side is exposed and wash down with a sponge dipped in Spic and Span solution. This no-rinse cleaner removes all dust and greasy film immediately.

Bring color into your kitchen and let it capture your gayest mood, since you spend so much time there. Your equipment color doesn't limit you since it can be combined with any number of hues. For instance, with fresh yellow cabinets and appliances, choose aqua, navy blue or brown walls. With white equipment you can be daring, dramatic or restful—daring with tangerine, dramatic with plum, restful with gray. Paint the inside of the cabinet doors with your accent color, too. Just be sure that the walls are as washable as your linoleum floor, since grease and smoke can discolor them in a short time. And it's easy to keep them sparkling with the special no-rinse cleaner, designed for painted walls and hard-surface floorings.

PERSONALITY PINPOINTS

from EDWARD R. MURROW'S
"PERSON TO PERSON"
on CBS-TV

Actress Sophia Loren learned to love American jazz through hearing Louis Armstrong on a portable PX phonograph during the war in her native Italy, she was nine years old... she revealed on "Person to Person" to Ed Murrow.

TV quiz expert Charles Van Doren grew up reading everything he could, including the dictionary and the Bible, but says he really didn't start reading until he went after a PhD when he went through twenty books a week for two years.

Comedienne Judy Holliday admitted to Ed Murrow that even after she made her debut it took almost a year for her to get over her shame and fright at appearing before an audience.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson's neighbors almost took over her "Person to Person" appearance. They'd all called the week before the show, Mahalia couldn't say "no" so she just kept on inviting them over. Faced with a houseful of guests, the technicians solved the problem by placing a TV monitor on a roped-off corner of her property a safe distance from the house so the entire neighborhood (500 strong by air time) could watch Mahalia talk to Ed Murrow.

Movie star Carroll Baker's first appearance in a motion picture was as the star of a 15-minute film for the citrus fruit industry... and Gina Lollobrigida confessed the one thing she hoped to do while in New York City—eat at the Automat.

Youthful Edward Bennett Williams, one of the country's most successful trial lawyers, who has defended such persons as the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Frank Costello, James Hoffa and Dave Beck, gave this philosophical reply to Ed Murrow's remark that there appeared to be a lack of understanding on the part of laymen on just what a lawyer's job entailed: "The clergyman and doctor work in private. The lawyer works in the public arena so he gets identified with his client. No doctor would turn a patient down because he was too ill, and no clergyman would turn any person down who came to him because he was too great a sinner. So, of course, the same rationale pertains with respect to lawyers. We don't turn people down because they are in too deep trouble."

Incidentally—dancer Ginger Rogers wanted to be a school teacher as a kid.

Team of Architects Battles Cold, Colorless Materials

Plastics and metals are fine for windows, trim and cabinets in factories and office buildings, but they should never be substituted for wood in building a home, says Roy Johnson, one of the Hudson River Valley's busiest young architects.

Johnson and his associate, Frank Dushin, who work out of Tarrytown, N. Y., in the historic Sleepy Hollow district north of New York City, are fighting and winning a battle against what they call "cold, flat, and colorless" materials in homes.

"Wood is just the opposite," says Johnson. "It's warm, rich, and has character that belongs in the place a family calls home. Such things as metal windows and cabinets, plastic wall coverings, and shiny, glaring doors just don't belong in a home. They're too hard and static."

In Constant Demand

The architects, who design custom-built homes in the $25,000 to $40,000 range, modestly credit their success—they're in constant demand over a 50-mile radius of Tarrytown and even as far away as South Carolina—to the fact that they give families modern houses which retain the most desirable features of traditional style.

"For example," says Johnson, "most of our designs have a modern, low-pitched roof with wide overhangs. Yet we often use traditionally-styled casement windows of ponderosa pine. These open outward, and can be left open in a rainstorm because they're protected by the wide roof overhang."

Johnson and Dushin say they usually specify white asphalt shingles for roofs of homes they design. "The asphalt industry has worked out a foolproof method of applying asphalt shingles to low-pitched roofs, and we like the modern look of white," Johnson points out. "White also reflects a lot of heat in the summer."

Prefer Paneling

Inside, the architects continue their preference for wood. "We like wood paneling on the walls of every room, if possible, and wood windows and doors stained to match it," Johnson says.

"In kitchens," he adds, "we absolutely insist on wood cabinets, and we've never had a complaint." The architect explains that one advantage here is that cabinets of ponderosa pine are available in sizes and styles to fit any kitchen design.

"We also know that certain thicknesses of insulation will make the house more comfortable all year around and less expensive to heat. So, if we specify 4 inches of mineral wool in ceilings, and a minimum of 3 inches in walls, we can be on the job to make sure that's what the family buying the house will have. We know they'll thank us for it later."

Bridal Buffet Shower

IF THE BRIDE-TO-BE is a relative or close friend, here's an idea for a party on her wedding eve. Traditionally, this is the groom-to-be's "last night out", so why not a "bachelor girl party" to take her mind off the "butterflies" in her tummy?

This beautiful buffet table; the sterling silver, the centerpiece and food all contribute to the festivity and are a fine example to her of how living with charm can be an everyday affair. We now know that saving sterling for Sundays only is an old wives' tale and that daily use and washing not only retards tarnish, but brings out the lustrous beauty of the patina.

Nothing on the table is overly complicated. The delicious casserole was made with 2 four-ounce cans of sliced mushrooms, 1 ready-to-cook stewing chicken (3½ lbs.), cut up, minced parsley, chopped almonds, chopped pimiento, and a can of condensed celery soup. The cake is made from a prepared mix, and candy hearts from the bakery have been outlined with silver shot.

Find out from the bride-to-be's dealer which sterling pattern she has selected and suggest to your guests that everything on the table be a co-operative gift for her... the one time anyone has a perfect right to take home the sterling without being stopped at the door!

Irrigation Brings Bumper Crops

Various types of irrigation systems are in use on farms. At top is rotating sprinkler system which covers wide area with one rotating pipeline. In left photo, water is pumped into conventional irrigation ditch. At right, LP-Gas serviceman fills tank for installation utilizing metal pipes. Light-weight, portable, plastic pipes are also being used.

Development, installation, and operation of an effective irrigation system requires technical know-how on the part of the farmer.

He must carefully select the proper system for his crops and soil conditions. The land must be prepared for uniform distribution of water. And the farmer must know when to irrigate during the growing season in order to maintain an adequate level of available water in the soil.

Information about irrigation practices in specific areas is available through state university and college agricultural departments and extension services.

Because irrigation engines run continuously for long periods, the farmer must also have the skill of both engineer and mechanic.

He must keep the pumping plant in top condition at all times during the season.

In recent years, many farmers have installed pump motors which operate on liquefied petroleum gas. This fuel is particularly suited for hard-working irrigation engines because it cuts the need for maintenance. LP-Gas enters cylinders as a vapor and burns as a dry fuel. This factor prevents formation of carbon and sludge. Lubricating oils last four to five times longer.

Although installing an irrigation system involves preparation and hard work, farmers who have carefully planned such an operation—and have experienced resulting bumper yields—will tell you that it is well worth the effort.

OVER THE GARDEN WALLS

A COLUMN FOR HOMEOWNERS

prepared by University of Maryland Extension Service

A garden mulch helps to control weeds, maintain more constant soil temperature and moisture and helps to keep the vegetables clean. It is especially helpful in dry weather and may tide a crop over vacation.

Inexpensive mulching materials available to home gardeners include leaves, pine needles, grass clippings, straw, peanut hulls, ground corn cobs, peat moss, sawdust, shavings, wood chips, newspaper, mulching paper, cardboard and aluminum foil. Loose organic materials such as straw, leaves, and sawdust may best be applied after the plants are established. Use only the amount of loose mulch needed to control weeds. Too much water-holding mulch may be harmful.

Woody mulching materials break down slowly, so extra nitrogen is needed in the early stages of decomposition. Usually ½-pound of nitrate of soda to a bushel is enough. Or 1½ pounds of a 5-10-5 fertilizer or ½-pound of cyanamide may be substituted. Broadcast the loose mulching material as evenly as possible, using 3 to 5 bushels per 100 square feet. Scatter the fertilizer uniformly on top of the mulch.

If the woody materials make your soil too acid, correct it with a little lime.

The paper materials such as newspaper, aluminum foil, mulching paper and black plastic may be spread out before or after planting. Squares may be used for each plant or an entire row may be covered a once. Cross slits can be cut in the paper at regular intervals and the plants or seeds placed through the slits into the soil.

In all cases paper mulches must be held down. Soil around the edges or laths over the top will do it.

In some gardens a combination of paper and woody mulch gives best weed control and crop-plank growth. One suggestion is to use paper over the row and loose woody mulch between the rows. This keeps moist organic material from close contact with stems and decreases the likelihood of disease.

Reduce laborious garden weeding and increase vegetable yields and quality by mulching.

Try it this summer and when you return from your vacation you will find your vegetable garden still in good condition.

Minimum Support For 1959 Wheat Crop Announced

The price of 1959-crop wheat will be supported at a minimum national average rate of $1.81 per bushel, Julius P. Parran, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, announced this week.

This support will apply if at least two-thirds of the growers who vote in the June 20 referendum approve marketing quotas for the 1959 wheat crop. The support of $1.81 per bushel will not be reduced but may be increased if the wheat parity price and supply situation as of July 1, 1959, indicates a higher support price.

If quotas are approved, Chairman Parran explains, producers in the commercial wheat area who stay within their farm allotments will be eligible for price support on their entire wheat production. Outside the area, county support rates will be 75 per cent of what they would be if the non-commercial counties were in the commercial area.

If quotas are not approved by the necessary two-thirds vote, support for the 1959 wheat crop in the commercial wheat - producing area will drop to 50 per cent of parity, or about $1.20 per bushel. Compliance with allotments would continue to be a condition of eligibility for the lower support price.

The Chairman said that the $1.81 per bushel represents 75 per cent of the estimated modernized parity price. The level of support is based on the relationship between the estimated total supply available for the marketing year and a determined normal supply for the year. The 1959-60 wheat supply is now estimated at 170.9 per cent of normal.

In January 1942, eleven Navy nurses were captured by the Japanese at Manila and interned at Santo Tomas. They were later moved to Los Banos, Philippine Islands, where they survived 37 months as prisoners of war until liberated in 1945.

New Steel Building Developed For Machinery Storage And Livestock Shelter

A new concept in steel buildings for livestock shelter and machinery storage has been achieved with a pre-engineered all-steel pole building that can be erected by the owner himself.

Considered to be a major advancement in pre-engineered building design, the new Stran-Master employs only 13 different pre-fabricated parts in a frame that is easily assembled and quickly bolted together. The result is a quality steel building features at a price comparable to wood pole-type buildings, and 30% to 50% less than other steel farm buildings.

For all its basic simplicity of construction and rock-bottom price, the building is attractively trim and modern in appearance. It's a good looking low-profile building with a roof pitch of 2 in 12. Heavy 26-gage galvanized wall and roof sheets are extra wide, full length and ribbed for greater strength. This results in fewer laps and joints, assuring weather-tight construction and low maintenance cost.

Whatever the size of the livestock herd to be housed, or amount of machinery to be stored, this flexible structure developed by Stran-Steel Corporation can be built to meet all requirements. It comes in widths from 12' to 120' and in any length multiples of 16'. Windows and doors can be installed in side or end walls, and it can be built with any or all walls open.

No cranes or heavy equipment are needed for erection. A 36' x 72' building can be put up by an unskilled crew in 180 to 200 man-hours. Erection by experienced dealer crews is also available.

Key to the easy erection of the Stran-Master is an exclusive self-leveling structural feature: an adjustable telescoping arrangement of the steel columns. After the columns are placed in the ground they are adjusted to correct any construction irregularities and then secured with locking nuts. Concrete is poured into the hole around the base of the column and also into the column cavity (further locking the adjustment). In this way, permanent plumb is secured and there is no possibility of racking or sagging as wood pole barn buildings so frequently do. There is also a sliding girt arrangement which helps speed up erection.

Love of a Cake for Brides-to-be

THIS LOVELY heart shaped cake is a conversation piece for showers or other festive occasions. It's made with two standard pans—one square, one round. It's rich with unsweetened chocolate and topped with shell-pink peppermint frosting.

CUPID'S CAKE

4 squares unsweetened chocolate	1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup hot water	1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar	1-1/4 cups sugar
2 cups sifted cake flour	3 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon soda	2/3 cup milk
	1 teaspoon vanilla

Place chocolate and water in top of double boiler. Cook and stir over hot water until chocolate is melted and mixture thickens. Add 1/2 cup sugar and cook and stir 2 minutes longer. Cool to lukewarm.

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter or margarine, add 1-1/4 cups sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Then add flour alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and chocolate mixture and blend.

Divide batter between one 9x9x2-inch square pan and one round 9-inch layer pan which have been lined on bottoms with paper. Measure and make depth of batter the same in each pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes, or until cake springs back when lightly pressed. Cool. Place square cake diagonally on a large tray, cardboard, or wooden board. Cut round cake in half. Place half circles with cut edges against two upper sides of square cake, to form a heart. Trim, if necessary.

Frost with Fluffy Frosting flavored with peppermint and add just enough red coloring to tint a delicate pink. Decorate cake with outline of heart, using shaved chocolate. To serve, cut heart down the center and in lengthwise strips. Then cut each half of heart in diagonal strips, parallel to upper edge of square cake, to form small diamond-shaped petits fours. Makes about 40 small cakes.

"Featherbedding" Hurts Everyone

One of my long-time friends is a building contractor specializing in the construction of school buildings and small industrial plants. Recently on a construction job in an Arkansas city the handling of some steel beams required the use of a piece of hoisting equipment. The equipment was a one-man hoisting machine. The union rules in force in this city required the employer using such a piece of equipment to hire five men although four of them were not needed on the job and would draw high wages for doing virtually nothing.

This is known as union "featherbedding." It is a practice forced upon employers and the public by some major and strategic union labor organizations. The public has to pay for it with higher prices for whatever commodity or service is involved, since labor costs are a large part of production costs in every article and service. Featherbedding and other such restrictive labor practices are to a degree strangling the great productive power of this nation. They are soaking up the benefits of America's advancing technology, penalizing every citizen.

Creates Inflation

Harold B. Wess, former vice president of Macy's department store in New York, calls union featherbedding a key factor in "our economy's most dangerous problem—inflation." "If the average worker knew where this process will lead him and our country," said Professor Wess, now a member of the faculty of the American University, Washington, D. C., "I am certain that he would stop, look and listen; for the inevitable outcome will be the complete elimination of the profit incentive, resulting in socialism and slave labor."

A number of labor organizations have recognized the unfairness and long range danger of featherbedding and have refused to adopt the practice of forcing employers to pay for work not needed and in many cases not done. A group of citizens in Arkansas have formed an organization to place before the state's voters next November a state constitutional amendment outlawing the practice of featherbedding. It is a wholesome amendment which will produce benefits for everyone, including particularly the wage earners.

Worst Areas

Featherbedding practices are at their worst in four major areas of employment — on the railroads, in the entertainment world, and in the printing and construction business. Railroads are forced to spend many millions of dollars for crewmen who have no genuine function at all to perform. For instance, locomotive firemen of the old type are not needed on a modern diesel locomotive. Originally no seat was provided on the left side of the cab—since there is nothing for a "fireman" sitting there to do. But seats had to be provided and "firemen" employed to sit in the cab (at wages as high as $4.85 an hour) doing nothing.

One railroad operating in the state of Arkansas pays out more than $1,500,000 a year on featherbedding jobs, according to one of its officials. On some railroads a full train crew must be paid a full day's wages for working less than one hour and a half. Some of the practices in the printing business are ridiculous. Because some typographers' unions enforce the practice through union rules and threats of strikes, many newspapers in the U. S. are required to set (and then throw away!) "bogus" type for advertisements which are actually printed from matrices which improve the efficiency of the printing process. The advertisers, their customers, and the newspaper subscribers pay the bill for this "bogus" work.

A $628.51 Trombone Note

A painters' union frequently requires contractors to employ its members to apply an extra, unnecessary coat of paint to material that has been pre-painted at the factory. And some carpenters' unions force contractors to hire their members to actually take apart units of pre-fabricated houses and put them back together again before they will assemble them. There are many examples of featherbedding in the entertainment world. A classic example is the "stand-by" musician.

When the character actor Charles Laughton picked up a trombone and pretended to play it in a five-second sequence of the play Major Barbara, the actual trombone sound came from a recording. But the producers of the play had to pay $628.51 a week for four "stand-by" musicians who sat for an hour or so in the wings of the stage but played not one note.

Perhaps the Arkansas law, if enacted, will become a pattern for the nation. It is my feeling that most workers—as well as the citizenry—will welcome the abandoning of featherbedding.

muttonfish, jewfish, rock bass, rock hind, sea trout, snook, pompano and many others are ready and willing.

Anglers fishing the waters of the Pacific are fortunate in having a large variety of fish to seek. There are about a dozen species of rockfish that inhabit the rocky and shallow inshore waters, with many other varieties found in deeper waters.

While the eastern fishermen rate the weakfish and southern sea trout high for light-tackle fishing, out on the southern coast of California the white sea bass (Cynoscion nobilis) is popular with the sea anglers.

But North, East, South or West the men who explore the bottom with a hook are the ones who bring home fish for the larder.

Farmers in the U. S. are served by 10,591 doctors of veterinary medicine in general practice in rural areas.

In November 1944, the destroyer USS Higbee, first combat ship to be named for a woman of the service, was launched at Bath Maine, in honor of Lenah S. Higbee, second superintendent of the Nurse Corps.

Should You Be A Nurse?

Few professions offer a young girl as much security, choice of location, community standing and personal satisfaction as does nursing. Yet few others demand the same high qualities.

What qualities and abilities does a girl need to be a professional nurse? According to the National League for Nursing, she must have the desire to care for others, to be of service to humankind. She must be the type of person who can give sympathy and understanding.

She must acquire a thorough knowledge of scientific principles and learn to apply these principles in the nursing care of patients.

She must have a mature, well-adjusted personality, essential for establishing good relationships with patients, the doctor and other nurses.

She must be sound physically, for while nurses have been relieved of much of the manual labor of earlier times, nursing is still strenuous.

Will nursing schools take married girls? More and more schools of nursing accept married students, and allow those who marry during their course to finish. Many, however, still adhere to the traditional requirement that a nursing student be single. Others permit marriage in the final year, while others simply judge each case individually. Marriage is one of the leading causes of withdrawals from nursing school. Before you decide on a particular school you should inquire about its attitude toward marriage for student nurses.

The time to decide on nursing as a career is while you are still in high school, so that an academic program giving the required courses for admission to a nursing school can be planned. All professional nursing schools require a high school diploma for admission, and the usual age requirements are between 17 and 35 years.

If you do not qualify for a school of professional nursing, and you still have a strong desire to be a nurse, you should consider one of the schools of Practical nursing. Preparation for Practical nursing is shorter and less expensive. Because of the heavy demand, Practical nurses can also be assured of employment in a variety of fields.

Practical nurses are specially trained to care for patients who are not acutely ill, such as mothers and new babies, convalescents, the aged and infirm and patients with chronic or handicapping conditions. Just as the Registered nurse, the Practical nurse may work in hospitals, public health agencies, clinics, doctor's offices, nursing homes, institutions, among others, and in almost any part of the world.

Regardless of whether you study to be a Registered nurse or a Practical nurse, you will have the opportunity to serve your community with skill and understanding, gentleness and good judgment. You will gain security, personal gratification and an exciting new world.

Some anglers prefer trolling while others delight in surf fishing, but those whose one aim is to catch a basketful of fish are the boys who concentrate on bottom fishing, says Robert D. ## BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses
Sunday Selling

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 29—There is no one who wants to see a prosperous America more than I do. But if the only way to more business is to convert Sunday into just another work day, then America is in worse shape than I had thought!

Our Sunday Sales Problem

People in puritanical New England where only 1% of the supermarkets are open on Sundays are probably unaware that 78% of these markets are open Sundays in the Mountain and Pacific States. In California, stores of all kinds never close. The real reason for this is competition for the everlasting sales dollar.

There are a number of causes for the inroads the merchant is making on the Sabbath: (1) The long-term pattern of business from 9 to 5 gave way to wartime needs when stores in certain manufacturing areas remained open evenings to cater to round-the-clock defense workers. (2) The mass movement to Suburbia following the war radically changed consumers' buying habits; it was much more convenient to stay at home and shop in Suburbia, especially if the stores there remained open nights. (3) When competition for consumer dollars stiffened, it was but a short step into Sunday from Saturday afternoon—particularly in those parts of our country where Sunday Blue Laws either are weak or receive only token enforcement.

Is Sunday Selling
Good For Merchants?

That depends on who and where you are! The now famous case of Hess Brothers, Allentown, Pennsylvania's largest department store, points up one answer to this question. Last October, a large discount house, "Two Guys From Harrison, Inc.," began drawing away the Hess sales volume. Hess Brothers finally threatened to keep its doors open on Sunday, too. Hess' threat caused a Pennsylvania district attorney not only to fine the owners of "Two Guys From Harrison, Inc.," but also to fine each of the 100 or so employees of the discount house for violation of a 160-year-old Pennsylvania Sunday statute. This is one side of a typical problem confronting many communities today.

Another look, however, reveals that more and more merchants remaining open on Sundays count on their Sunday sales to make the difference between the week's profit and loss. These merchants argue that times change, and with changing times must come changing merchandising techniques. In short, Sunday selling, they say, has become a matter of economic survival.

The Case Against
Sunday Selling

The very fact that so many favor Sunday selling is a reasonably good index of how materialistic our culture has become. The paths of history are strewn with the wreckage of cultures that neglected their spiritual development. The place for our families on Sunday is in God's House, not in a Discount House. Surely in a country where the work week becomes constantly shorter and leisure ever greater, we ought to be able to find a little time during the week for reflection and spiritual regeneration.

Parents, law enforcement officials, educators—all who work with young people—are concerned with the many symptoms of maladjustment: juvenile delinquency, divorce, cheating, etc. But, these are indications of a deeper problem: lack of adequate standards and values.

Better Homes Needed
We parents need to bring into much sharper focus the standards of right and wrong, and we need a philosophy of life much less ego-centered and a lot more others centered. Dare I say that most of our youth are what our homes have made

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

It has long been said around Washington bureaucrats have been able to add several unwritten amendments to the Constitution. Now the remark is they have succeeded in amending the Table brought down from Mt. Sinai by Moses. The new Eleventh Commandment, these observers say, is as follows:

"Thou shalt not reduce taxes."
***

Giving rise to this wry comment is recent rash of public utterances by national political leaders in which they recognize an economic recession, and say they are going to take every step possible to stop its further inroads. And invariably they end up with a remark to the effect that as a last resort, taxes will be cut.

Thus, the bureaucrats working behind the scenes have given rise to a new holy creed in American life. Tax rates are sacred.

This is indeed a strange philosophy at a time when unemployment rises to new 18 years highs; small business failure rates hit new records.

Yet rather than let the people spend their own money; letting small business retain a greater share of profits to expand and provide more employment, the slant is all toward building more post offices, more government spending for this and that . . . in fact, for anything, just so long as the people are not permitted to spend their own money for the products of farm, forest and factory that would start the wheels of the economy turning over faster under free enterprise.

For example, one tax cut proposal is a 10% cut. This would release, it is estimated, some 3.7 billion dollars or less than the 3.9 billion dollars sought in new money for foreign give away.

Indeed, it now seems these bureaucrats, these so-called civil servants who are modern day Rasputins behind the scenes, have even sold idea high tax rates are more sacred than solemn promises.

For it is a matter of record that in 1956 and in 1952, both major parties in their political platforms promised to reduce taxes on small business to permit small business to expand, provide more employment, more stability to the economy.

Failure to keep these promises has undoubtedly been a big contributory factor to the present economic slow down. Yet official word on possible tax cuts is that they will only be considered "as a last resort."

Before that, they want to spend more tax money on more unnecessary government projects.

It is somewhat akin to a doctor prescribing bleeding to cure a patient from anemia.

Presumably, these bureaucrats will go to any lengths, even permitting millions of unemployed to walk streets, merely to protect their own paychecks.

Thus, if there was ever a time when strong Congressional action is needed to avert a national disaster, that hour has struck. In fact, there is a great deal of evidence that unless Congress takes over its lawful leadership firmly and quickly it may find itself in position of French Chamber of Deputies . . . scorned at home, ridiculed abroad, with the bureaucrats and the monopolists running the whole show.

them? This is where the Church comes in. Where, if not in the Church and in the church-oriented home, is the average youth going to develop sound moral and spiritual fibre?

As a businessman, I believe the business community owes more to its constituents than just making it easy for people to buy what they want when they want it. The balance sheet losses that may do far greater harm, in the long run, than the immediate material gains. We may need a "business depression" to bring us to our senses, — and perhaps something more serious.

Local College
Announces
Tuition Increase

Saint Joseph College will increase its tuition fee for all students effective at the opening of the fall semester, it was announced this week by Sister Hilda Gleason, President.

In a letter to parents of the student body, Sister Hilda pointed out that this action was taken after "due consideration" by the school's administration, but because of the "ever-increasing operating costs that all colleges are facing today."

"For some time now we have considered suggestions for this move from members of the school's Advisory Board and the Alumnae Association," Sister Hilda said. "But because of the traditional policy of the Daughters of Charity, that of providing good Christian education for Catholic women at the lowest possible cost, the Administration has been reluctant to go ahead with these suggestions."

Continuing, the letter explained that, even with this increase, the entire tuition paid by students represents less than those of most of the school's operating costs, and today Saint Joseph's tuition fees are lower than those of most liberal arts colleges in the country.

Two years ago Saint Joseph's was granted a separate charter making it financially independent of the Community of the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul, whose Eastern Province Central House is located adjacent to the school.

"We are, of course, now receiving financial and other aid from the Community of the Daughters of Charity, inasmuch as the present staff of Sisters teaching at Saint Joseph's is made available by the Community at no cost whatsoever to the school. In addition, the upkeep of the College campus is paid for by the Community, which is a great asset in keeping Saint Joseph's expenditures at a minimum. However, even with these savings, the College has a difference of over sixty per cent of its operating budget to be provided by other sources," Sister Hilda said.

Some months ago, a Development was established at the school, one of its functions being, it was pointed out, to "seek new sources of income for the College's operations." These sources are: large gift benefactors, grants-in-aid, foundation support, etc., and an annual fund program, which is now underway. Next year this school, located at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Frederick County, will observe its Sesquicentennial. It was founded by Mother Elizabeth Seton and is the second oldest Catholic College for women on the North American continent and has a student body of approximately 400.

LET'S STOP AIR ACCIDENTS

The recent series of airplane crashes have shocked official Washington into an all-out effort to develop and administer more stringent regulations over the use of the airspace.

Officials have recognized that unless this is done, and at once, our airways may become as dangerous as our highways. The more than 100,000 planes, civilian and military, now in use often create dangerous traffic jams.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, delegated by Congress to promulgate air traffic and safety regulations, has issued orders which are intended to increase the safety and convenience of air travel. That order became effective April 1.

The administrative agency responsible for carrying out those regulations is the Civil Aeronautics Administration, an agency under the Commerce Department. It is both an air traffic police force and safety enforcement agency.

Both of those agencies, the CAB and the CAA, are under civilian direction. They are authorized by Congress to "police" military flying, except in an emergency, but neither has the power to penalize military flyers who violate the regulations.

Congress Starts Hearings

Recent congressional hearings brought out testimony that the recent mid-air crash of a military jet and a civilian passenger airliner near Las Vegas, Nev., was due, in part at least, to lack of proper liaison between the military and civilian air traffic control authorities.

The airliner, the testimony disclosed, was on time on a regularly scheduled route near an airbase when the jet pilot was given permission

Local Ball Team Drops Fourth Consecutive Game

Emmitsburg lost its third and fourth straight games last week, when it dropped a postponed game to Fairfield and Sunday's tilt with Union Bridge. In Thursday's game, errors and failure to get that big hit when needed, turned the game into a run-a-way for Fairfield. M. Joy, D. Deatherage and Tom Topper shared the mound duty for the locals, with Weikert going all the way for Fairfield. The extent of the locals' scoring came in the first inning, when they scored on a double by Kelly, a stolen base and a sacrifice fly by Don Little. Fairfield won in six innings by a 12-1 score.

In Sunday's, rain-soaked, muddy marathon, Union Bridge outlasted the locals in a slugfest by a score of 18-12. In this game, as in the others, errors were costly, but because of the condition of the field, were excusable. J. Joy, F. Cool, M. Joy and Tom Topper hurled for the locals through the first six innings and found the going mighty rough. Big Dave (Whip) Warthen came in in the sixth to quell the bats of the visitors, while his teammates were desperately trying to catch up. J. Joy left after the first inning with a sore arm, Union Bridge leading 1-0. The locals tied it in the second while Cool was hurling, when the roof fell in and Union Bridge scored 10 times. M. Joy and Tom Topper allowed five more runs and big Dave was the victim of two more. Ted Topper and Don Little were the batting stars, while Bill Sterbinsky reached base safely in four trips. Gene Long left the game early with a bruised knee, his replacement was Woody Stoner. Don Little got the big blow for Emmitsburg, a tremendous triple, while Duppins was clouting a gigantic homer over the right field fence for the winners. The locals' smashed out 10 safeties to 15 for Union Bridge, and for the first game in four, Emmitsburg was lowest on errors, five to the winners six. Improvement is in sight and the taste of victory grows—"Stick With The Crumbs."

Fairfield chalked up its fourth straight victory in the Pen-Mar League Sunday by walloping Hanover on the latter's field 10-5. Ken Wertz, Chet Cornwell and Jay Weikert divided the mound duties for the winners with Eddie Spence doing the receiving.

Ronnie Kump tossed a five-hit shutout as Cashtown blanked Taneytown 5-0 and also fanned 15 batsmen.

After two were out in the third inning, Cashtown scored twice on a double by Singley, single by C. Spence and another by B. Rohm. Two more runs came in the fourth on a single by I. Herring, walk to Bill Bucher, double steal, sacrifice fly by Kump on which Herring scored and Bucher scored following a play at third base. A single by Rohrbaugh and double by Fiscel, plus an error, produced the final run in the eighth.

In a five-inning game at Blue Ridge Summit the home team stopped Littlestown 7-1. Wallick homered with two on in the third for the Summitters.

Chatter-Box
Darkness, rain, mud, errors, bad breaks and the need of a sound starting pitcher, tell the story of this fighting club. Don't give up on them, fans, their hearts are in it and they're a hustling bunch who try all the way. Did you know we found a "mudder" on the team, yep, big Dave (Dave) Warthen. The way he mowed down the opposition Sunday in relief, you would have thought he was throwing mud in their eyes. I guess he was throwing a mud ball instead of a spitter. Speaking of a "mudder," that has something to do with horses and that's what the manager meant, when he said, "all I need is the horses and the right combinations and we'll start winning." He said his charges are up for this week's games with Taneytown and Littlestown, on the enemy's turf, I mean diamond. I think this club is like "Silky Sullivan" you know, the horse who falls 20 to 40 lengths behind and tries to catch up in the stretch. Get what I mean? Ballplayers are funny, Sunday before the game, the manager and players were praying that it wouldn't rain, and after three innings, they were praying for a cloudburst. "Hey Jack," (CO) maybe you should have prayed for snow. Good luck this weekend, team.

Barn Burns Near Town

A barn on the Freedom Twp., Pa., property tenanted by Edward Schratweiser, Emmitsburg R. D., was destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon.

Greenmount firemen, called to the scene at 3:15 p. m., found the barn "almost burned down" when they arrived, Chief Paul Plank Jr. said. They used water to protect other nearby structures from catching fire but were unable to save the four goats and 50 chickens in the barn or remove any of the large quantities of furniture stored in the barn while the Schratweisers were engaged in making renovations to their home.

Chief Plank said the sounding of the alarm was delayed by reason of the distance Mrs. Schratweiser had to travel to reach a telephone after discovering the blaze. Among larger items of furnishings lost in the fire were a washing machine and similar home appliances.

No estimate of the damage was immediately available. The property, Greenmount firemen said, is believed to be owned by Dr. Joseph O'Toole, Emmitsburg R. D.

The property is located along the Maryland line "back of Middle Creek," Chief Plank said.

Thurmont Will Get New Postoffice

Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde (R) Md., announced this week that the Post Office Department has accepted the proposal of the Thurmont Masonic Temple Association, Inc., to construct a new post office on the East side of South Water Street in Thurmont, Maryland.

Plans call for a one-story brick and block building, 2,502 square feet of workroom space, a 525 square foot platform, and paved parking and maneuvering area. Present Thurmont post quarters contain only 1,000 square feet of workroom space. The new post

A Message For Memorial Day

We Will Not Forget

by His Eminence, Francis Cardinal Spellman

MEMORIAL DAY! Our prayers of gratitude incense the heavens for those whose lives have bought our freedom upon the altar of war's cruel sacrifice. Forget the valiant dead? We can not breathe one breath or live one moment which has not been bought by their heroic blood. We can not, we will not forget.

But what of the living heroes, the four million who wear the wounds of selfless struggle, the living veterans disabled for our sake, who daily die the living death of pain? Shall they have no part in our remembrance on this hallowed day? These are they who with virile valor faced the advancing foe, with calm courage stood their ground, with forthright fortitude bore the wracking wounds—and won the victory that America might live in the wholeness and unity of freedom's peace. These are the four million who rode into the valley of death and endured the maiming blows of bitter conflict that the wounded world might be healed by the blessed balm of liberty.

With sorrowful heart often have I seen them—those once crushed upon the battlefields of Europe, broken upon the broad Pacific's isles, torn asunder on Korea's heart-breaking hills. Proudly they will carry their scars of battle to the grave, yet wonder they must at our unmindfulness. Shall they, then, be forgotten on this day of memories? Shall they who bled to save us all not know the thanks and help of those they saved?

America, God-blessed land, embrace your injured soldier sons. In the blessed Name of Christ, Whose wounds were borne for us, hold out your hands to console, to strengthen, and to heal our veterans disabled by the brutal strokes of war. Take to your heart those whose hearts poured out their purple blood for us, for peace, that freedom's holy light might never dim.

(Written especially for the D.A.V.—the Identio-Tag organization)

office will also include fluorescent lighting, air conditioning, and completely modern furnishings and equipment. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy in September of this year, under terms of a ten-year lease with renewal options.

Thurmont's commercial leasing program, under which private investors construct buildings to the Department's specifications and lease them to the Department for long periods of time.

During 1957 under this program, the Post Office Department built 544 new post offices, containing over two million square feet of floor space, and at a cost in excess of $20 million.

The new Thurmont Post Office will be another important step in the Post Office Department's program to improve its services to the public by providing modern buildings and equipment, especially designed for efficient mail handling.

A doctor should be called immediately.

ABIGAIL

community will go throughout the country and even the globe as a result of "Ike's" appearance. Press correspondents, television cameramen, newscamermen, and many celebrities will fill the area on Monday for this glorious occasion. This event is certainly a tremendous thing for a town of this size. I might add, that the college authorities have displayed their interest in the town and its people by inviting a large percentage of the population to be with them on Monday to take part in the Commencement exercises. It is most thoughtful of the college administration to extend these invitations. The president's appearance is a reward well deserved for the past 150 years of faithful service to education which Mount Saint Mary's has given—I am sure all the citizens of Emmitsburg join with me in wishing the college well on this its 150th year. May this fine college continue to prosper in the years ahead!

It was decided to hold the first of a series of summer "juke-box" dances at the new St. Euphemia's Hall on June 7th. Admission to the dance will be free and if this dance is well attended it is the intent to hold many such dances throughout the summer for the benefit of the teen-agers. The dance will be chaperoned by members of the alumni and refreshments will be served. Any teenager of the community is welcome at these dances.

Thurmont Youths Wreck Car

Two Thurmont youths were treated at Frederick Memorial Hospital early Saturday morning for injuries sustained in an automobile accident on Route 81 about 1½ miles west of Thurmont about three o'clock.

Trooper William F. Davis, who investigated the accident for the State Police, said that Arthur E. Misner, 20, RFD 1, Thurmont, was driving a 1955 Ford west on the road to Sabillasville when the car, which was traveling at allegedly excessive speeds, failed to negotiate a curve and rammed into a ditch, damaging the right side of the Ford.

Misner was treated at the hospital for a lacerated scalp, abrasions and contusions and was released following treatment.

Robert W. Wilhide, 15, RFD 1, Thurmont, a passenger in the Misner car, was treated at the hospital for severe lacerations of the face and abrasions and contusions. He was admitted to the hospital following emergency treatment.

The injured persons were transported to the hospital in Thurmont American Legion ambulance.

No charges have been preferred against the driver of the car but the investigation is being continued by Trooper Davis.
