It will be only a matter of a few short months until we'll be whizzing past Emmitsburg, Thurmont and Frederick. Latest reports indicate that the by-passes around Frederick will be completed by this fall. Construction companies are making excellent progress in that area and all by-pass arteries are well on their way to completion. In addition the four mile stretch from Payne's Hill to Toll Gate Hill is scheduled for completion this summer, or fall. The by-pass of Emmitsburg proper is not anticipated until late in 1959. The new highway will bring the town to a closer relationship with the county seat, with a resultant boom in business for all concerned.

Indications are that it will be a Democratic year and that Maryland will return to its original Democratic status come this November when the general election will take place. Reports from the Democratic convention in Baltimore this week are indicative that complete harmony prevails within the ranks of the recently disgruntled Demos. All major defeated candidates were in attendance at the caucuses and pledged their undivided support to the victorious candidates. Representatives in complete accord with the present ticket and things are shaping up better than many a year for a Democratic victory this fall.

There will be entertainment for all ages in town next week. First the VFW Playground will open to the youngsters on Monday. Thursday night the teenagers will have their grand opportunity to strut their stuff when a popular dance party comes to town to conduct a record hop. Wednesday and Thursday nights the wild west rodeo will be here and this is excellent entertainment for all ages. Yes there'll be plenty to do next week, aside from swimming.

It seems as though nothing can stop Mother Nature when she gets in those uncontrollable and unpredictable moods like she was during the past winter when we were without power and phone service for a number of days. Wednesday afternoon's electrical storm which rendered us powerless for almost three hours, was a brief reminder that it can happen and continue to happen here . . . and elsewhere, for that matter.

Pilgrimages to the Mount St. Mary's College Grotto continue to increase weekly and a large number of busloads of pilgrims will motor this Saturday from Baltimore to the Grotto where they will hear Mass at Noon. To date several thousands of persons have visited the oldest Grotto in the nation, an exact replica of its famous counterpart at Lourdes, France. It is regrettable that so many of us have not availed ourselves of the opportunity to visit this steadily growing shrine situated right in our backyard, so to speak. Why not take the family out this weekend to see this monumental creation to the Blessed Virgin? I am sure you will appreciate its significance, regardless of your faith.

PLAYGROUND WILL OPEN MONDAY

Emmitsburg's Memorial Playground will open its doors to the general public on Monday morning, June 16 and will be supervised this year by Miss Mary Corl.

The Playground was built and is maintained by the Emmitsburg VFW Memorial Post 6658 and will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., Monday through Friday.

BAILED FOR COURT

Alvin J. Guyer, Emmitsburg R2, arrested Saturday morning on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants, signed a plea of guilty Monday and posted $500 bail for court before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore, in Gettysburg.

Withholding food from squirrels resulted in earlier hibernations, according to a report in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Lions Club Rodeo Here Wed.-Thurs.

Emmitsburgians will have the opportunity to witness a real wild west rodeo on Wednesday and Thursday, June 18 and 19, when the well-known Circle X Rodeo comes to town under the auspices of the Emmitsburg Lions Club. The proceeds from the affair will go towards the Lions Club's welfare fund which is used for local charity.

Many local citizens are familiar with the rodeo, having seen it on WMAR-TV, Baltimore, where it was sponsored by a Baltimore brewing concern. Over 40 head of livestock will be used in the show which will be presented at the Civic Grounds, half a mile east of town. Brahma bulls, steers, calves, horses and cowboys and cowgirls will combine their talents to round out a thrilling show for the public. In addition there will be good music provided during the evening and seating will be available.

An added drawing card will be the attempts by local individuals trying to ride the broncos and bulls and a number of prizes will be offered for those who are successful enough to stay on their mounts for a specified short time. It will cost the contestant $10 to make the attempt, but if successful he will receive a $100 prize. Refreshments will be on sale at the grounds and tickets are now on sale by members of the Lions Club and in a number of stores.

It is the hope of the committee in charge to be able to seat at least 1000 spectators. Tickets sell for 90c for adults and 50c for children.

Mrs. Wilma Fogle New President Of Alumni Assn.

Approximately 160 alumni and guests were present Saturday evening at the 35th annual Alumni Banquet of Emmitsburg High School Alumni Association held in the Public School. President Weldon B. Shank presided over the business meeting. Honored classes for the evening included the present graduating class, 1958, the Class of 1933 and Class of 1908. Arthur Elder, a member of the class of 1933, made brief remarks relevant to the class, the members' whereabouts and activities. The oldest members of the alumni group present were Mrs. Ada Sperry and Newton D. Sharer. They were accorded special recognition. No members of the honored Class of 1908 were in attendance.

Miss Janet Springer was awarded the annual alumni prize by the group for general excellence and Miss Sue Eyster was awarded the second prize. The monetary awards were $15 and $10 respectively and were presented for general excellence over a four-year period.

The principal order of business transacted was the election of officers which resulted with the following being elected: President, Mrs. Wilma Fogle; vice president, James Sanders; secretary, Harriet Fite; assistant secretary, Mary Shields and treasurer, John D. White. Following a period of group singing, with Jack Wantz as accompanist, the group retired to the auditorium where dancing was held the remainder of the evening.

The system will be of the air cooled type and is being installed by the local electrical contracting firm of Russell B. Ohler & Son. The installation also will include a 200-amp service connection.

Pilgrimage to Grotto Saturday

(Reprint Baltimore Catholic Review)

There is an axiom among theologians: "De Maria nunquam satis"—which means that we can never honor and love Our Blessed Lady enough. To honor Our Lady of Lourdes once more at this mid-point of the Lourdes Centenary Year, the Reparation Society will conduct another pilgrimage in Her honor, this time to the Lourdes Grotto high on the mountain above Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg.

This Lourdes Grotto is the oldest in this country—it was opened as a shrine to Our Lady shortly after the inception of the college—which is celebrating its 150th anniversary this year. The building of the Lourdes Grotto at this same place was begun in 1875 and completed in 1879. It is seemingly the oldest exact Lourdes replica in the United States.

The pilgrimage to this shrine will take place on Saturday, June 14. The Pilgrims' Prayer will be recited in the Chapel of Grace of St. Ignatius Church at Calvert and Madison Sts., Baltimore, at 9:30 a. m. Buses will leave Baltimore by 9:45 and Mass will be offered at the outdoor Grotto itself about noon. Should the weather not permit this, the Mass will be celebrated in the Mount St. Mary's Chapel. After Mass refreshments will be obtainable in the college cafeteria.

Rev. Fr. Hugh Phillips, director of the Grotto, announces the general public is invited to attend these devotions at the Grotto at Mount St. Mary's College.

FIREMEN SEEK CONVENTION HERE

President John J. Hollinger presided at the regular monthly meeting of the Vigilant Hose Co., held Tuesday evening at Community Field.

Fire Chief John S. Hollinger reported on a single fire during the past month, that at the farm of Paul Sanders, near town.

Guy R. McGlaughlin, financial drive chairman, reported that to date $2249.50 had been raised but that to date many rural canvassers had not reported results.

The president and chairman asked the membership to complete the drive by June 17. Charles F. Stouter reported that posts have been placed about the carnival grounds, at a cost of $70. The application of Louis Orndorff for re-instatement to membership, was acted upon favorably. The president announced he had contacted the telephone company relevant to the installation of emergency phone numbers and that the work would be completed prior to June 15. Delegates appointed to the annual county convention which this year will be held in Walkersville, July 1 and 2, were John S. Hollinger, Charles F. Stouter, Sterling White, William Martin and Brooke Damuth. A letter of appreciation from Rt. Rev. John L. Sheridan, president of Mt. St. Mary's College, was read, thanking the unit for its cooperation during the recent commencement program at the school.

The firemen are interested in holding the county convention in Emmitsburg in 1959 and will discuss the plans with the Indian Lookout Conservation Club which holds a carnival at that particular time. The affair would be sponsored jointly if all concerned are in agreement.

A committee was appointed to have the 1945 engine repainted at a cost not to exceed $175.00. The committee consists of Joseph 'Cy' Haley, Patrick and John Haley. Membership applications were received from Gerald M. Haley and Herbert W. Rohrbaugh.

BUDDY DEANE RECORD HOP THURSDAY

Indications are that a record-breaking attendance will be recorded at the benefit Buddy Deane record hop to be held in the VFW annex next Thursday evening, June 19.

The advance sale of tickets is indicative, Mrs. Bruce Flowers, ticket chairman announced late this week, that the affair will be a sell-out. The dance is being sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the local VFW and is open to the public.

Deane, a well-known disc jockey over a Baltimore television station, appeared here before recently to a jam-packed house and a repetition of this excellent attendance is expected. Tickets are on sale at the Recreation Center and Crouse's. Should more tickets be available they will be sold at the gate. Dancing commences at 8 o'clock and terminates at 11:30.

Ball Club Win Two Straight

Emmitsburg notched its second straight win last Sunday on the local field, when Hanover was dumped by the score of 6-2. Both opposing pitchers, Dillon for Hanover and Warthen for Emmitsburg, were hooked up in a good pitching duel until the fifth inning, when the locals' scored all of their runs on a couple of base hits and some shaky fielding by the Hanover infield. Hanover, up to this point, was leading by 2-0, scoring in each the third and fourth innings. Warthen weakened slightly during these innings and with the help of some good fielding by his team, escaped further trouble and became stronger from the fifth inning on. Dave allowed eight hits, walked two, and struck out eight for a fine team victory. Don Little again was potent with the bat, along with Ted Topper. Little played a good defensive game, in center field, while Mike Joy did a good job behind the plate. Long played his usual good game at third, while Tommy Topper and Johnny Mort were taking care of short. Don Joy again was a ball hawk at second, while Tom Saylor and Jerry Joy gave insurance at first base. Cool, Little, Topper and Sterbinsky took care of the outfield in routine and difficult chances. Ron Kelly supplied the pinch-hitting department, when in the fifth inning, with the bases loaded and pinching for Tom Topper, hit a crashing grounder between third and short, the short-stop making a nice stop, but too late to get the runner going home. From this point, the roof caved in on Hanover.

CHATTER-BOX

It's a pleasure to write for this team anytime, and more of a pleasure when you've just seen them win two in a row. The team spirit shown during their five losses was bound to bring them these victories. When a manager in amateur baseball has nine men on the field and seven or eight on the bench consistently, how can you go wrong? Jack says he only wishes he could play them all in every game at one time, then he would be sure everyone got to play. What good is a team on the field without a good bench for replacements? I'm sticking with these "Crums," they're rolling! Remember I was telling you last week about the adhesive tape? Didn't have to use it, nice going "Pizza." Got a good drink out of the fountain in the dug-out after the game Sunday, thanks "Chic," you did a good job. Saw some new fans at the park Sunday, well, they weren't new, just haven't been out to the games for a couple of seasons. Hope to see you again at the next home game. If you enjoyed the game, tell your friends. It doesn't cost anything, a small donation if you care to give it. Most other clubs soak you 50 cents. We don't care what you give just as long as you come and yell for the "Crums." How about that sky-scraper, Don (Harpo) Joy hit to left field, if it would have been straightened out, it would have landed over the Little League field. No fooling, it was a tape measure job. Well, nothing more to report. Next stop Fairfield, who hasn't lost yet. Let's get 'em "Crums," three in a row. Good luck team. Almost forgot, the team finances are low, please buy some of those chances on the 50-50. Thanks a lot, see you out Fairfield way come Sunday.

Yours in Sports,
Surley Stovich

OVER THE GARDEN WALLS

A COLUMN FOR

HOMEOWNERS

Tips On Fruit Care

Strawberry season is here and in the midst of picking, note the time of ripening, the color, firmness and flavor of the various varieties. There are several new ones worth trying. It's a little late to plant now, but plan to try some new ones next year. Plan to clean up the berry patch after picking the crop. Fertilize the plant rows, and brush the fertilizer off the plants with a broom or an old feed sack. Cultivate and hoe out the weeds. Narrow the rows if necessary as the outer runner plants having been formed late are usually not too strong, anyway.

In about a week to 10 days after planting, apply a chemical weed control such as Sesone in strawberry beds, using it according to the directions on the container. This may either be sprayed on the plants and the entire soil area or applied with a garden sprinkler can.

Tree Fruits

Commercial apple growers will apply a chemical spray for thinning the fruit, this spray being applied a certain number of days after full bloom of the various varieties. The spray is adapted to home orchard use, but it must be used carefully or results may be poor. Chemical thinning sprays have caused certain apple varieties to change from alternate-year bearing to the bearing of good crops each year if fruit-set was favorable. Since apples form their fruit buds by mid-June to early July, the chemical can affect the next year's fruit set by its effect upon the fruit spurs.

The process is simple, as the spray causes a lot of small apples to fall off the trees early, and the fruit spurs that held these apples repeat with fruit the following year. Fruit thinning lightens the tree load, preventing breakage and also causes increased fruit size and color. Research with chemicals for peach thinning is being conducted. Some chemicals have shown favorable results but must be checked further.

Watch the fruit trees for development of bloom and get that full-bloom and petal-fall spray on peach or the pink and petal-fall spray on apple. These sprays are important in the continued battle against the rots and some early insects. Check the spray calendar that you received from the University of Maryland Extension Service or from a commercial concern. Don't try to follow several calendars. Select one spray schedule and stick to it, except where weather conditions may warrant change.

Warning Issued Against Keeping Live Game

Judging from the telephone calls the Game and Inland Fish Commission is now receiving, many misguided persons are picking up the young of wild birds and animals with the best intentions; some times these little creatures have been abandoned by the parents and some time not. In all such cases, it is best to leave them alone.

One man called, according to the Commission, and said he had "rescued" three young robins, and wanted to know how to feed them. Besides violating the law he had assumed a difficult or even impossible task, for baby robins will eat twice their own weight of garden worms per day.

Others find fawns and think they have been abandoned, which is generally not the case; the mother knows where her baby is and will return. If a person picks up a fawn deer in such a case he acquires a headache, for they are troublesome to raise and dangerous as they grow older, and the person violates the law.

The Commission urges these kind hearted people to leave the young of wild creatures alone to take care of themselves. Let nature take its course.

Your Personal Health

When School's Out

"No more pencils, no more books, no more teacher's saucy looks!"

Remember when you used to chant that rhyme on the last day of school? Of course your children wouldn't be so rude, but they are rushing home these days full of happy plans for the long summer vacation days ahead.

And what about Mother? Will you be able to share in the fun? Or will you be looking wistfully out of the kitchen window, tied down by the old routine?

Here's our recipe for June: Take one small note book and one pencil. List the household tasks for the week. Ask yourself, "Is this job necessary?" For each "yes" answer: "Can some step in this job be left out or made simpler?" It's easier to wash apples than make them into pie. Serve raw fruit three or four times a week. It's better for the family health, too, than cakes and pies. Commercially-prepared puddings may not be equal to your special chocolate souffle, but with the milk and eggs you add they're healthful and tasty. Why peel potatoes when they have more flavor boiled or baked in their jackets?

Speaking of baking, the modern well-insulated oven won't heat the whole house and will save you time and effort. It's easier to roast meat than fry or broil it. Whole dinners can be popped into the oven and the cook can go fishing.

Save washing and ironing with drip-dry clothes. Let the summer breeze iron your sheets. Paper plates and napkins make any meal a picnic.

And as you simplify, think of ways the children can help with the chores. A healthier, happier Mother will mean a better vacation for them, too.

A "How-To-Do-It" PAINT POINTERS

Before a new type paint is marketed reliable manufacturers test it for years under actual use conditions.

The large paint companies maintain "paint farms" in different sections of the country where panels coated with scores of formula variations of the new kind of paint are exposed to the weather. Each formula variation is exposed in three positions on the "test fences"—vertical north, vertical south, and at 45 degrees south, the most severe test of all because at that position it is subjected to the most sunlight and sunlight is the main enemy of paint films. And each of these slight variations on a basic new formula must also be exposed in a wide range of colors and on a number of different surfaces where it may one day be used.

Every three months panels are shipped to a laboratory for careful inspection, then back to the "paint farms" again. Only through this costly, time-consuming process can a manufacturer really know how a new kind of paint will behave.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Discusses Tax Cuts
And Small Businesses

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 12—There is now much talk about tax cuts. Some say they are overdue, regardless of recession. Certainly, the time has come to give small business more attention.

With so many governmental expenses constantly mounting, whether for national defense, for domestic welfare, or for various economic subsidies, "something's gotta give." We can be sure that so long as we are in an arms race with Russia, the "giving" will not be in the vast expenditures for Explorers and Vanguarders or for atomic submarines. I also fear that any party which advocates belt-tightening in domestic welfare measures could not be placed in office in the next election.

The above means deficit financing and borrowing from the future which, if ever paid, will be in far-distant days. Or we may repudiate the borrowings, as was done when we went off the gold standard in 1932. This would surely lead to further inflation — clipping the currency and reducing the purchasing power of the dollar.

Importance Of A Just Balance
Various adjustments will be made in the attempt to restore a fair balance between vital economic segments. In this connection, the organized movement to keep independent small competitive businesses in existence has been gathering momentum for 50 years, after a period of great overconcentration in big business even to the point of monopoly.

When the economic machinery goes into a tailspin, unemployment comes first and is greatest in the large industries. The small businesses, especially the 95% of firms which employ 20 or fewer people, operate even in times of boom with a maximum of workers and therefore cannot lay them off in times of recession.

Praise For The Federation Of Independents

The lack of concerted action, until recently, by organized small business (such as the National Federation of Independent Business), has allowed many inequities and discriminations to get into our tax structures. Among the shackles placed on new and small businesses are the privileges and subsidies given to large-scale business by the government. These include research grants for defense work.

Machinery developed by these large concerns, with tax money, also works to the disadvantage of their small competitors. With research now such a vital ingredient of all business, this artificial advantage to bigness is crucial. If research grants to smaller companies, had been adequate, Russia might not have beaten us into space.

Oppose Across-The-Board Cuts
Tax allowances for depletion and accelerated depreciation of material resources favor the large concerns. But no allowances are made for the depletion of human resources suffered by small owners-operators, such as 14-hour-a-day storekeepers and their families. Large concerns receive fast write-offs on new machinery and equipment. But small companies which rely largely on second-hand equipment are not allowed similar write-offs. This discrimination should be removed. Small companies should be allowed to retain at least as large a proportion of earnings as the bigger concerns.

In family life we do not put as heavy a burden on toys as on men. But in taxation we do place too heavy a load on new and small businesses. There should be an exemption of $25,000 of net earnings for small businesses; and corporation taxes, like individual taxes, should be graduated. These economic injustices and inequities of the present tax structure would only be perpetuated by an "across-the-board" tax cut.

Importance Of Small Business

Upon the survival of smaller business depends the survival of our middle class as owners and operators of productive property. A middle class of hired men will not suffice to protect our economic, social, and political freedoms. A sound program of forestry makes provision for saplings as well as for mature trees. The economic saplings are the real "growth industries," insuring a healthy future. We must give more encouragement to accentuating the values of individual incentive. America's greatest danger is not from enemies without, but from enemies within. I have in mind too big bureaucratic government, too big business, and too big labor.

Science Has New Ways To Control . . .

Back in the days of the Roman Empire one author recommended "pouring vinegar through the left nostril and putting two ounces of grease in the jaws" to treat bloat in ruminants.

This bit of advice, offered 2,000 years ago, may actually have helped Romans who watched over herds and flocks. But modern scientists cite this page from history to show that the problem of controlling this severe digestive disorder, especially in the spring, is nothing new to livestock producers.

Working to improve methods of fighting this costly problem, research scientists with Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc. report that Terramycin is a main line of defense in preventing bloat. Feedlot and pasture tests over several years at experiment stations and at Pfizer's Agricultural Research and Development Center near Terre Haute, Ind., have shown that Terramycin-fed animals bloated only about one-fourth as much as cattle on regular feed.

Even after bloat sets in science offers help for producers. Investigators report successful findings on frothy bloat with a tonguetwisting name—2 acetoxyl-1,2,3-propane tricarboxylic acid tri-butyl ester — better known as Blo-trol or Formula for Bloat. First introduced in 1957, this citric acid compound was tested on severely bloated steers corralled after grazing legume pastures. Scientists found it brought relief to these animals in 10 to 45 minutes.

The formula works effectively by breaking up the bubbles enclosing the gas in the rumen, and is easily administered by tube, drench or injection.

These newer methods of preventing bloat mark a major first step in a persistent crusade to conquer a centuries-old disease.

Read Matthew 28:16-20.

You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you that you should go and bear fruit and that your fruit should abide. (John 15:16. RSV.)

It was my privilege to hear a sermon on this text by a young lady who was about to sail for the mission field. I was thrilled as she talked. She seemed completely dedicated. She had sincerely accepted the choice to go to a faraway land and tell to those who had never heard it the glorious good laws of Christ. I felt confident that through her the Savior would become real to the people among whom she would soon begin her labors.

She was not thinking of the many good things she would leave behind. She was thinking of the many wonderful opportunities of service that would be hers in a strange land and amid some physical dangers. By her living and her teaching she would proclaim this glorious gospel so that the people who live in darkness might see the great light that is in Christ. In doing that she might find joy.

Prayer
Dear Lord, because we have accepted Thee as our Saviour, we have been chosen of Thee to carry the good news to others. By our living and our teaching, use us this day to proclaim the glorious gospel of Christ. In His name we pray. Amen.

Looking Ahead

EDUCATION PROGRAM

Tax Reform Needed

While driving through Memphis recently I noticed under construction a new branch plant for one of the big nationwide industries with home offices in Chicago. Upon inquiry I found that this new plant will create 350 new jobs and that it is being built with the proceeds of a stock sale. Do you know how much money is required to create each of those jobs? Nearly $15,000. Someone—hundreds of people had to save enough out of earnings to invest in stock to finance the building of this new branch plant with its 350 jobs. To put the branch plant into operation with its 350 employees requires $5,250,000 of invested capital.

Where does investment capital come from? From savings. Not big savings, but little savings. A study has shown that a typical stockholder in American industry is a small town person with an income of less than $6,000. Several million industrial wage earners are stockholders. They've been able to eke out a little savings each month to invest in stock of the company for which they work. All kinds of people are to be found among America's 18 million stockholders. How do these people save? They save just by being able to live on just a little less than they make.

Mills Advocate Reduction

And this brings us to the subject of today's column—tax reform. High taxes have been one of the chief reasons why investment capital has been more and more difficult to get in recent years. High taxes have made it difficult to save, and high taxes have taken the incentive out of investing for those who have still been able to save a little. This jeopardizes the creation of new jobs and the future prosperity of our growing nation. At our recent Freedom Forum Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and one of the top authorities in Washington on taxation, advocated a reduction in taxes through a revised tax structure.

"We could have a tax rate structure on individuals that began at 10 per cent on the first thousand dollars and ended at 65 per cent," he said, "and take in as much money to the Federal Treasury as we now take in under the present Internal Revenue Code (which taxes 20 per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income, and soars up to 91 per cent on the highest incomes)."

Stimulating Growth

"That is the type of tax revision," said Congressman Mills, "that would offer the greatest hope to the American people—increasing the possibility that our economy would grow and would continue to serve as a bulwark for national defense. There is an awakening, I think, to the fact that our tax laws must be revised in order to bring greater neutrality, greater fairness and greater equity into our system.

"I have argued that it is not right for taxation to indirectly determine the use of money, whether it goes into this enterprise or into that enterprise; that taxation should be so neutral in its effects as between the two that the signals of the market place will determine where money will go: so that in the use of our resources we will be certain that they are used not as taxation determinants but that they are used as business requirements dictate."

Freeing Incentives

The Congressman sees that with lowered taxes on the individual, savings could be greater, incentives to invest could be much greater, and the natural laws of business permitted to work unhampered. Thus our economy would expand, jobs would be much more plentiful and production vastly higher. As the production and earnings of the people expanded, a lower tax rate would bring in all the money needed for Government.

Some serious students of the taxation-incentive equation believe that income taxes on individuals under Congressman Mills' suggested 65% high and the upsurge in business and industry would more than offset the reduced rate. The same has been said concerning the 52 per cent business tax maximum. Business would have more money and more incentive to expand if this stiff rate were considerably lowered. It places a damper on the dynamic impulses of the American system to tax away so much of what an individual earns—up to 91c of each dollar; and so much of what a business earns—up to 52c on each dollar. We should ask our Congressmen to equalize taxation and to reduce this stifling tax burden.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Plain Dairy Grain Mixtures Prove As Productive As Fancy Mixtures

The writer recalls a conversation of some thirty years ago with the editor of a leading dairy farm paper regarding plain or simple versus fancy or variety concentrate mixtures for milking cows. The question was whether protein from a variety of feeds is more productive and more efficient than from a simple source. This is still a question to some farmers.

It seemed to the writer at the time that there was no great need for a half dozen or more different kinds of grains and concentrates, but rather that the cow would take care of her needs from a simple source, even one or two farm grains, supplemented with the necessary oil meal or mill feeds, just so she had enough grain to eat and an otherwise balanced ration including salt and other minerals as required.

At that time, however, there were no experimental studies evaluating the simple mixture versus the fancy mixture. Since then work at Wisconsin, New Jersey and many other experiment stations showed that cows and other ruminants, by virtue of their rumen organisms can convert even the non-protein nitrogen compound urea into protein which they then digest like so much feed protein to produce meat and milk.

In view of this ability of ruminants to synthesize protein from non-protein nitrogen, it is not surprising that experimental studies have demonstrated that dairy cows get along just as well on simple grain mixtures as they do on the complex mixtures.

In experiments at Cornell University, carried on over a period of several winter seasons, the test cows on simple grain mixtures produced as much milk and demonstrated as good a breeding performance as the cows fed the complex mix.

These results are all the more significant because the cows used in the studies included individuals that could be classed as moderately high producers with records of 60 pounds of milk per day.

A shorter series of experiments at the University of Wisconsin used growing dairy heifers to compare the plain and complex grain mixtures. In these tests a mixture of corn, oats and corn gluten meal, fed with timothy hay and corn silage was just as effective as the same ration plus wheat bran and linseed meal which were added for variety. It should be stated that in all these trials the level of protein in the mixtures was the same, but not the variety of protein.

It seems that farmers and dairymen will find simple rations founded on home grown roughage and grain will provide high production at relatively low cost if adequately supplemented with protein, salt, and other minerals.

THE FIRST OPINION POLL

From now until next November it is going to become increasingly difficult for you to keep your thoughts to yourself. Thousands of opinion poll takers will be roaming the country and your mail will be peppered with questionnaires.

Washington, in particular, will want to know what you think about almost everything under the sun. The reason, of course, is that this is an election year for 32 U. S. Senators and 435 Representatives.

One enterprising Congressman who is convinced the early bird gets the vote already has conducted a poll of his constituents on what he lists as the 20 most important questions facing the nation. He is up-state New York Rep. Harold C. Ostertag.

He received 7,232 replies to questions calling for "yes," "no," or "undecided" answers. The questions, and the percentages of "yes" and "no" answers give him a pretty good idea of what his voters are thinking.

Do you favor reducing non-military Federal spending to permit a tax cut? Yes, 62.1%; no, 30.8%.

Less House Cleaning, Too

Better Family Health Top Benefit Of Central Home Air Conditioning

Important as summer comfort is, it's actually a secondary benefit of a good air-conditioning system in the home.

First, and most important is better health for every member of the family. Here's why:

1. Air-conditioned air is washed, filtered, and dehumidified.

BETTER APPETITES

fed. There's less dust for germs to float around on, and consequently children and adults alike have fewer colds and other diseases caused by airborne bacteria. Doctors agree that air conditioning also is the best "cure" for sufferers from allergies such as hay fever.

2. Appetites are better in an air-conditioned house. Children especially eat more because they feel better. The food is better, too, since there's less reason for the housewife to object to cooking hot meals in an air-conditioned kitchen.

3. Everyone sleeps better and longer in controlled temperature and humidity. Young children take naps more readily, and babies are better natured because air conditioning does away with much heat rash.

4. Air conditioning can lead to a longer life. Medical science says that when the temperature goes above 85 and the humidity is high, the heart works harder to keep body temperature down. Dr. George F. Burch, professor of medicine at Tulane University, a strong believer in air conditioning for health, reports: "A hot and humid environment can increase cardiac work as much as strenuous exercise."

These health benefits alone of air conditioning can mean a tremendous annual cash savings on doctor bills and medicine. This, coupled with the fact that a house thickly insulated with mineral wool can be equipped with a central cooling unit and operated within the budget of the average home-owner, makes air conditioning almost a "must" for every family.

Another important benefit is mental health and attitude. Hot days can't make family members irritable. Children, especially teenagers, prefer to stay home on summer nights. Dad is glad to come home from work, and Mother is more cheerful when he does because her day has been more comfortable and less strenuous.

Equally important is cleanliness. In an air-conditioned house

LESS HOUSE CLEANING

there's less housekeeping because there's less dust, and the housewife has more leisure time. Clothing, draperies, furniture covers and bedclothes stay cleaner, reducing laundry and cleaning bills. Furniture lasts longer because it isn't affected by as much dirt and humidity.

Another "cash savings" benefit is on heating fuel. A house insulated with mineral wool according to recommendations for air conditioning—6 inches in the ceiling, at least 3 inches in walls, and 2 inches in floors where needed—can be heated for as much as 40 percent less than a house without insulation.

Possibly the least important benefit (except to a woman) of air conditioning is that make-up stays fresher in the cooler, dehumidified air.

A Further Word For Aix

In keeping with the slightness of our visit there — we drove around Aix on the way down from Avignon by a more easterly route between there and Marseilles — I omit further details of Aix' interesting and changeable history thru many centuries (having already noted its beginnings as a Roman provincial city) and merely mention the main features that our gazing and Robbie's comment helped to fix in memory: the prominences of Aix since Medieval times as a center of art and learning, and in that good tradition the many university and other educational buildings that make an imposing sight in the older part of the town, and the many fine old buildings housing museum collections of great variety, both antique and modern; the beautiful, tho largely restored cathedral with its splendid tapestries, and the adjoining medieval cloister and archiepiscopal palace; the unusual number of fine old residences, especially those along the wide tree-lined boulevard that divides the city from east to west; the unusual number, also, of lovely fountains that ornament avenues and squares.

Whatever flagging spirits there were by the time we reached "the home stretch" — the twenty miles between Aix and Marseilles and ing up into the surrounding hills, and the wide boulevard running for miles along the water's edge. As for what the sightseeing tour revealed (in charge of a kind and intelligent Italian guide whose slight trouble with two points of English grammar added a pleasantly light touch to his serious informational notes), I should like to introduce a brief summary of that with a reference to a standard guide-book that criticizes "the fixed tours" quite severely as including practically nothing worth seeing but devoting "two or three wearisome hours to the dusty memorials in the Campo Santo" (a cemetery to be mentioned later), "with a halt for coffee or vermouth." Our trip was not like that, nobody even feeling the need of either of the refreshments suggested.

Part of the interest of Genoa's present, as of all the cities so far visited but each in a different way, is the survival within the latest period of earlier periods in the way of connection with historic events, associations with outstanding persons, and especially actual material objects from those periods. Here there is a fascinating if somewhat confusing (for quick seeing) combination of "the most oldest" (to quote our nice guide), the old, and the new. Soon after leaving the pier, in an imposing square in an important section of the modern city, our attention was attracted by an elaborate statue in memory of Columbus, a high white marble shaft topped with a figure of Columbus and at the base four beautiful female figures symbolizing his four outstanding virtues: nautical knowledge, intelligence, faith, strength. Then came a section from an older period, with large and handsome residences, palaces in fact, of the 16th and 17th century, now a part of the modern city in their new use for public purposes, shipping offices, museums, etc. And in the actual modern city, again, fine new apartment houses and other buildings, and beautiful boulevards with significant names, like the "Boulevard of Marconi." I am uncertain as to the location of the unusual Garden of Christopher Columbus, but have a picture of it clearly in mind: a high sloping piece of lawn rising directly from the street and decorated between flights of stone steps to the summit, with representations in lighter green plants of Columbus' three ships, one under the other, his three anchors beneath the ships, and on the sides strange-looking figures explained to be dolphins, traditionally supposed to come to the aid of sailors in distress. Also somewhere among newer buildings was a low vine-covered house (restored) connected with Columbus' boyhood. The truly "most oldest" remains from Genoa's past were close to a busy commercial section — one of the two massive gateways remaining from the wall with which the Romans surrounded their town, and one of their arched stone bridges, still used by pedestrians.

We did drive northeast of the city towards the mountains to visit the remarkable cemetery of Staglieno (the Campo Santo referred to in criticism quoted above) but did not devote "two or three wearisome hours to it. As this populous and complicated and elaborate in a way beautiful city of the dead is beyond my powers of description, I shall mention specifically only the amazing collection of memorial statuary in the galleries surrounding the main burial-ground, many of the single figures or groups of figures as realistic as portraits, others highly idealized, all of them purposely left covered with dust that has collected since they began to be placed there a hundred years ago for fear of harming the beautiful detail of their workmanship.

On the edge of the city, from the top of one of the high hills surrounding it, we had one of those panoramic views that were to stand out among the wonders of the trip, this one of a fine old-new city directly below us, its circular harbor to the right, and the sea beyond.

On To The Near East

Leaving Genoa the next morning we sailed for four days without further stops, making for Latakia in Syria, our next port of call, at the far eastern end of the Mediterranean (other stops in between to be made on the return trip). Passing down the coast of Italy we saw no land until we neared the tip of the boot, then a huge mass of dark rock appeared at our right and near its base a small village of low whitish houses — the volcanic island of Stromboli. (Readers may recall a news item of several weeks ago — shortly after our return home — concerning a serious eruption of Stromboli, and the hurrying of Italian vessels for a possible evacuation.) Glimpses of other villages on the Italian coast as we passed thru the Strait of Messina; then out into the Ionian Sea, which washes the sole and heel of the Italian boot, past the southern tip of Greece and some of its many islands, and onto Latakia and another port of this One World.

Many years ago surf fishermen added a tailhook pork rind to the hook of the metal squid for the fish that would strike short. Now they are utilizing the method of the tandem rigging using one lure ahead of another, which has proved to be very successful in freshwater fishing. A bucktail-stream-

Peace Power is the strength to keep the peace, of course. But that's not all.

Peace Power is also children.

Because the child who today stands tiptoe, discovering the world, may tomorrow discover new wonders of science and outer space for all of us. If he has peace to grow in.

But peace costs money. Money for strength to keep the peace. Money for science and education to help make peace lasting. And, money saved by individuals. Your Savings Bonds, as a direct investment in your country, make you a Partner in strengthening America's Peace Power.

SPORTS AFIELD By Ted Kesting

The word "luck" takes a beating in fishing circles, says Robert D. Hall, Salt-Water Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Serious anglers know that success in fishing is most often the result of careful planning and know how. This, not luck, is why one fisherman consistently catches more than his neighbor.

There are many little tricks of rigging a lure or cutting a bait that have been handed down from fisherman to fisherman. The more we fraternize with our fellow-anglers, the more we will learn the special gimmicks of the trade that can turn a seemingly blank day into several hours of very hot fishing.

In certain areas where it is common practice to use ground-up fish for chumming, anglers have discovered that on many occasions fish, such as school tuna, become so intent on feeding the chum that they will often disregard a piece of cut bait. You can eat a hamburger, but just try and hold a ball of ground mossbunker on a hook. Use a hairnet around a ball of chum for holding it together on a hook. This will often bring desirable results when fish are finicky and the water is clear.

Anglers have developed a method of keeping bait down without a sinker fastened to the line which could distract the fish. To overcome the customary method of rigging with hook, leader and sinker, they use a hook on a short piece of wire leader, placing the hook through the lips of the bait fish and dropping a sinking into its stomach. The round sinker is fastened to the hook with a short

The Eiffel Tower in Paris has lured generations of American tourists.

No doubt about it! Recession or not, a record one million American tourists are already abroad, are packing their bags, or are still scanning travel folders for junkets that will be made before 1958 ends. In fact, public interest in travel abroad is so great this year that one leading manufacturer is offering free trips for four families to anywhere in the world in a nationwide contest this month.

With overseas trips for the first three months of 1958 up 23% over last year, it is now possible to estimate that Paris, the Brussels World's Fair and Western Europe are the goals of 750,000 Americans. Running well behind in order of popularity are the Far East, South America, the Iron Curtain countries and the middle East. Africa and Australia will draw relatively few tourists from this side of the water.

While more Americans than ever before, many of them just on regular vacations, are traveling overseas, a trip abroad is still weekend with Mr. Humerick's mother, Mrs. Jackson Humerick.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

from The Bible

... for in Thee do I trust;

cause me to know the way wherein I should walk...—

(Psalm 143, 8.)

When we seek Our Father's guidance in all we do or hope to do, surrendering in love our will to His, praying not once but many times daily for His direction and then obeying without question, we have the wonderful assurance that we will be doing what is right—what is best for all concerned.

"How-To-Do-It" PAINT POINTERS

Refinishing floors is much easier than many people realize, if the right material is used. First, of course, all the old finish must be scraped or removed with a sander. Next, dust should be removed with a vacuum cleaner and the floors wiped with paint thinner. Following this, penetrating wood finish floor sealer, applied easiest with a mop or rag, should be used. After 10 to 20 minutes, excess sealer should be wiped up. In a couple of hours, another application of sealer should be applied and the floor is done.

Some people like to top off with a coat of two of varnish or wax but the penetrating floor sealer alone provides a beautiful appearance and amply protects the surface.

A tip: excess sealer can be wiped up fast and with minimum effort by putting cloth pads under stocking feet and shuffling across the floor.

Central Air Conditioning Promised for Average Home

Insulation Is Key To Lower Costs Of Cool Comfort

The brightest promise on the horizon of the American home owner today is the fact that central air conditioning soon will be standard equipment in most average houses—no longer a luxury but a necessity almost as important as the family car.

This isn't idle talk, nor is it propaganda issued by manufacturers of air-conditioning equipment. It is, instead, the conviction of many leading government officials, doctors, psychologists, home economists, child care experts, dieticians, bankers, top men in the home-building field, and everyone who lives in an air-conditioned house now.

What is causing central air conditioning to climb so suddenly from its old status as a luxury to an important need?

Here are the three main factors:

1. The health and general welfare of the average family is benefited greatly by air conditioning.

2. Newly developed systems combined with proper mineral wool insulation can reduce the size of equipment—and therefore the cost—by as much as half.

3. Savings on cleaning and medical bills generally offset operating costs of air conditioning in the average home.

These facts were obtained through concentrated research in recent years aimed at discovering how air conditioning could be manufactured, installed, and operated at costs low enough for the average home owner—research projects such as the Air Conditioned Village, in Austin, Tex., where an entire community was constructed to test air-conditioning systems and insulation in different types of homes under actual living conditions.

Results of these research projects—the added comfort, convenience, economy, health, and

One of the main reasons air conditioning now is within the financial reach of most families is thick insulation. Here a 6-inch-thick batt of mineral wool is being installed in the ceiling of a new, air-conditioned house.

general welfare brought about by air conditioning—were so positive that leaders in all fields of the home-building industry began to take air conditioning more seriously than ever.

An example is the Round Table Discussion on Air Conditioning sponsored by House & Home, a building publication. More than 60 top builders, government officials, bankers, and leaders in industry who participated in the discussion came to this conclusion:

Within a few years, the average family will refuse to buy a house without air conditioning as quickly as they would refuse one without a bathroom today.

Norman Mason, commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, was so impressed by the research on air conditioning that he inaugurated a new policy in which FHA will encourage the inclusion of air conditioning systems in homes sold under FHA mortgages.

"The best opinion . . ." said Mason, "is that the savings on cleaning, laundry, and medical expenses resulting from air conditioning more than offset the added cost of operating a compressor during the cooling season."

"Within a few years," he added, "a house that is not air conditioned will be obsolete."

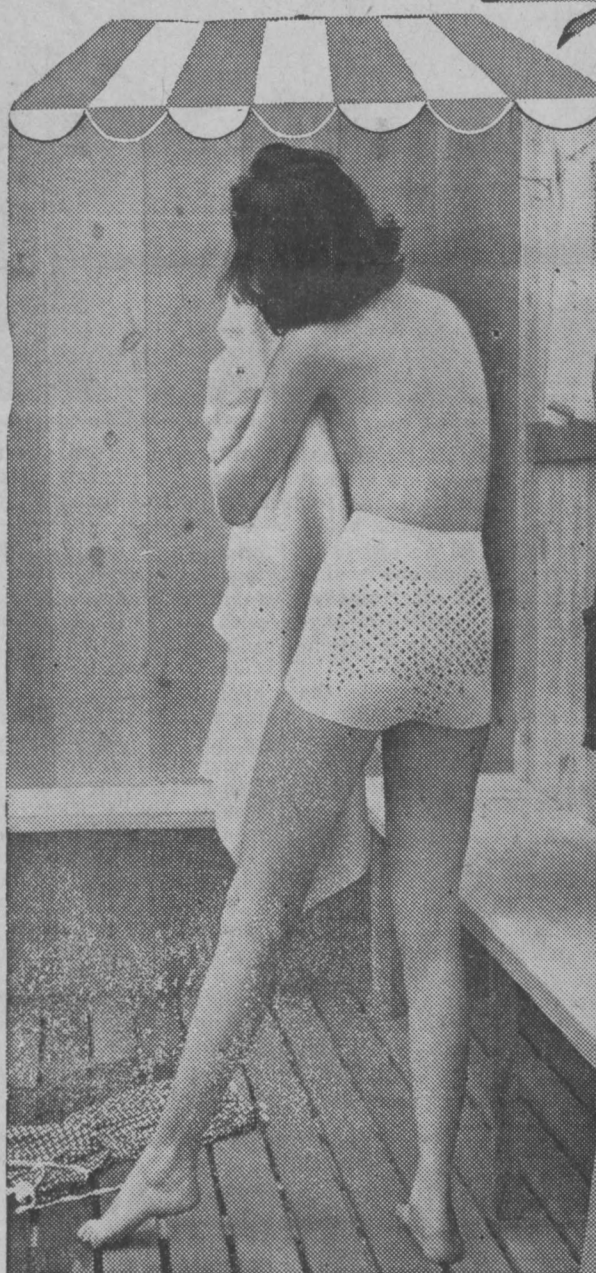

Equally important to the government's view are the opinions of thousands of doctors and psychologists across the country. They really agree that an air-conditioning system in the home can add immeasurably to the physical and mental health of every member of the family by providing clean, constantly-circulated air, plus the greater tranquility of cooler, less-humid air.

The chief reason the average family now can afford these benefits of air conditioning is that research has shown insulation brings the cost of equipment and operation down.

At the Air Conditioned Village, for example, it was discovered that when thick mineral wool was installed, much smaller equipment was required and operating costs were reduced by as much as half.

Further, a house properly insulated for air conditioning can be heated more economically and comfortably in winter. Savings on heating fuel of as much as 40 percent can be realized.
