Your Personal Health

The Frederick County Health Department and the Frederick County Tuberculosis and Public Health Assn. will conduct two chest x-ray surveys in the county this year, according to an announcement by Dr. Forbes H. Burgess, county health officer.

Due to additional stops being made by the mobile unit only certain areas of Frederick County will be visited during the survey now in progress. However, the unit is scheduled to return for a second survey in September and October when Emmitsburg, Thurmont, Walkersville, Woodsboro and the remaining sections of Frederick City will be given an opportunity for free chest x-rays.

There will be no x-ray survey in the high schools and colleges this year since statistics show the incidence of tuberculosis among teen-agers and college students is very low, while the majority of new cases are found among persons 40 years of age or older, Dr. Burgess said, and this is the group to which we will give special attention.

In place of the x-rays in the schools of the county, the sponsoring agencies will provide a tuberculin test. This is a simple skin test which tells whether there are TB germs in the body. The test has proven most successful in other places and it has been approved by the Maryland State Dept. of Health, the Frederick County Medical Society, the Board of Education, the Health Dept., and the local Tuberculosis Association for use in Frederick County, it was explained.

Tuberculosis is not considered the hopeless disease it once was. Through new drugs, improved methods of treatment and early diagnosis through chest x-rays, we have gone a long way toward the control of the disease, but it still costs the American people over $725,000,000 last year—there still is a tremendous job yet to be done before TB is eradicated, said Dr. Burgess.

Last year 34 new cases of active tuberculosis were reported in Frederick County. There were exactly 2,000 cases reported in Maryland—thus making the state the fifth highest in the nation in the incidence of tuberculosis and sixth highest in the number of deaths—these are not figures we are proud to talk about, continued Dr. Burgess.

The people of Frederick County can help find new cases of tuberculosis in its early stages, when cure is easiest, if everyone over 40 years of age will have a chest x-ray, the doctor stated. The dates and time of the mobile x-ray unit's visit to your community will be announced in advance—manufacturing plants will be contacted in regards to x-raying of personnel, said Dr. Burgess.

vancing technical knowledge could cause severe industrial competition. She has accelerated her program to expand trade with dollar - short Free World Nations. "Gadgets and gimmicks" such as subsidies and tariffs could temporarily cushion us against such competition, but these may further arouse Russian enmity and make things worse. If left alone, this recession could run its course by 1960. But an economic war started by Russia would cause more unemployment and business slumps. Moreover, it could inevitably lead to drastic inflation and may even drive our dollar to twenty-five cents. Protecting Against Any Form Of World War III

I strongly advise all readers to work for sound economics in their own lives, in business, and in the Government. Young people in the Central West should stay there, and others should avoid locating in large cities, especially along seacoasts. Investments should be widely diversified among the smaller well-run industrial companies, and among companies owning large reserves of natural resources underground.

Chain stores with wide geographical and product diversification are very desirable as a hedge against bombing and inflation. Certain well-located real estate could become very valuable. All should build up reserve buying and investment funds, but avoid long-term bonds. Learn about Civil Defense survival suggestions. Finally, I emphasize the importance of sane Religious faith, good health, intensive education, and industry as the best protection against World War III, and as the only hope for survival from any such catastrophe.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Outlook For World War III

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 19—I have long felt that there would be a "shooting" war some day between Russia, representing C o mmunism, and the United States, representing Free E n t e rpr ise. N e vertheless, each year in my annual Forecast I have taken the position that a shooting war would not take place during the following twelve months. I now feel that no shooting war between the United States and Russia will take place during the Eisenhower Administration.

If a shooting war with Russia occurs, it must be started by Russia. Because of our retaliatory power I now feel that Russia would hesitate to attack us directly. But some "brush war," such as the Korean War may touch off a World War III. Such a conflict may occur in South America, though the critical region now seems to be the oil-rich Middle East. Nasser, an able and ambitious man, seems determined to make Egypt the hub of a great oil empire, with Russia as an ally. Should he provoke a conflict, the great oil interests of the United States, Great Britain, and other nations might push us into the fight, while Egypt pulls Russia in.

What A Chemical War Means Most people now visualize a so-called atomic war. I feel that there more likely exists the possibility of an equally dangerous chemical war. This may occur through various means, such as poisonous gases or bacteriological attacks. Russian publicity centering on their advances in sputniks, Missiles, and atomic weapons may well be a cover for more serious work on chemical warfare.

In addition to the closeness in the race for supremacy in nuclear weapons, there is another logical reason for a chemical or bacteriological attack. Russia would probably be more interested in destroying the people of our large cities, leaving industrial equipment, resources, and communication and transportation systems intact. An atomic attack, on the other hand, would reduce entire areas into masses of useless rubble.

Outlook For Economic Warfare I am now greatly concerned over another possible Russian tactic, namely, stepped-up economic warfare against the United States and her allies, accompanied by more intensive propaganda. In fact, Russia may already be largely responsible for our business recession and the slumps in aluminum, copper, and other commodity prices. Steel prices have withstood the cutbacks in output to fifty per cent of capacity. Russia's supply of this and other commodities is rapidly increasing. Moreover, we must carefully watch the currently high outflow of gold from the United States. A certain use of gold could take the place of gas, germ, or atomic attacks.

Thus, Russia's rapidly ad-

GI Bill Proves Useful

Fourteen years after the signing of the Serviceman's Readjustment Act—the World War II GI Bill—on June 22, 1944, the accomplishments of that monumental legislation, fathered by the American Legion, have more than lived up to the claims of its far-sighted Legion framers.

The Bill, originally conceived by the National Rehabilitation Commission of the American Legion, received strong support from two Maryland Legonnaires when it was first introduced. Millard E. Tydings, a member of Farrady Post 24 in Frostburg, who was then serving in the U. S. House of Representatives from Maryland, were two of the original sponsors in Congress of this now famous legislation.

During the 14 years since the historic signing, more than 10 million World War II veterans have used one or more provisions of the Bill to reestablish themselves in civilian life. But an even greater accomplishment of the Bill was the ease with which the United States passed from almost complete mobilization for war to a booming peacetime economy which only this year has started to slow up. All of the black predictions of 1944 and 1945 concerning the havoc to be wrought by the returning servicemen were proven false largely through the operation of the GI Bill and the native good sense and patriotism of the American veteran. Under the GI Bill, 7.8 million World War II veterans improved their education or acquired new vocational skills. During these 14 years, 5.1 million home loans were guaranteed for World War II and Korean Conflict veterans. Companion legislation provided educational or vocational opportunities for 612,985 disabled veterans.

Federal tax returns speak for themselves as to the dollars-and-cents value of the educational provisions of the GI Bill. Ten years ago the median annual income of non-veterans was $2600 as compared with $2400 for veterans. Today the veterans have not only caught up with the non-veteran group, but have lifted their annual income $1000 higher than those who did not serve in the armed forces. On this extra income alone, above the non-veteran base, the veterans are paying an added $4.5 billion a year in income taxes to Uncle Sam. This is just about the total annual budget of the Veterans' Administration.

The country still is reaping the benefits of the educational boom which was triggered by the GI Bill. While the United States still is short of scientists, engineers and teachers, the shortage would have been critically acute had it not been for the GI Bill, which 14 years ago many short-sighted groups were opposing as the ruination of the country.

Trailer, Personal Property Destroyed

The $3,600 trailer of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sprague of Rocky Ridge, burned to the ground with the loss of $1,000 worth of personal belongings Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Sprague and their baby were out of the trailer at the time it burned. There were no personal injuries. Firemen from the Rocky Ridge fire department who, answered the alarm at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, reported the trailer was so badly burned by the time they arrived that they could not determine the cause of the blaze.

The fire was first reported by Mrs. Marshall Sprague, mother of Eugene Sprague, who saw the trailer ablaze from a window of her farmhouse nearby.

The trailer was parked on the Marshall Sprague farm property just outside of Rocky Ridge. Local sources said that the burned-out family would probably live in the elder Sprague farmhouse for a time.

Raymond Etheridge, the Rocky Ridge fire chief, said the $3,600 trailer was insured but the $1,000 contents in personal belonging were not.

Two Elderly Women Struck Down By Automobile

Mrs. Clarence Dern, 78, Taneytown, is in a critical condition at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg after having been hit by a car near the square in Taneytown, Saturday night at 9:05 o'clock.

Maryland State Policeman L. L. Dunn, said Mrs. Dern, and a companion, Mrs. Margaret Shoemaker, 80, Taneytown, were hit by a car operated by John M. West, 23, Iron Springs as they were attempting to cross E. Baltimore St., Taneytown, about 300 feet east of the square in that community and directly opposite Mrs. Dern's home. Trooper Dunn said Mrs. Shoemaker received minor injuries and was treated by her family physician. Mrs. Dern, according to the Warner Hospital, suffered a possible fracture of the spine, contusions of the back, a deep laceration of the right eyebrow and abrasions of both knees.

The two women, he said, were crossing from the south side to the north side of the street toward Mrs. Dern's home, and had traversed the eastbound lane and had entered the westbound lane when an eastbound car, according to Trooper Dunn, swerved across the center of the highway and struck them. Mrs. Dern apparently was struck in the back by the headlight of the car. Both were thrown to the highway.

Trooper Dunn said he was driving west about 300 yards from the scene when the accident occurred. West, he said, stopped, and then without identifying himself or rendering any assistance, drove away toward Westminster about a half mile from Taneytown.

West was placed in the Carroll County Jail at Westminster, in default of $1,100 bail on charges of reckless driving and failing to identify himself at the scene of the accident brought by the officer. No date was set for trial pending the outcome of Mrs. Dern's condition.

Yanks Trip Sox In Little League

Behind the tight pitching of Charlie Bowers, who struck out 13 batters, and tough playing in the clutch, the Yankees made the most of every opportunity to upset the league leading Red Sox 10-6 Monday night in the Emmitsburg Little League.

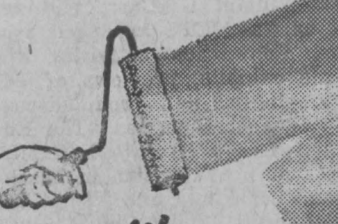

The Yankees punched out six hits, and ran the bases well to squeeze through in the final inning.

Bob Mort homered for the Red Sox with one on for the only damaging blow Bowers gave up all evening.

Both teams played without the services of some of their stars. The Sox missed the heavy hitting of Skip Englar, while the Yanks were without Grinder, Widner and Dillon.

Strong favorites to cop their first title in Emmitsburg Little League play are manager "Tip" Harbaugh's Red Sox currently in a second place tie with a 3-2 log. The Sox get heavy hitting from handyman Robert Mort and slugging "Skip" Englar. The two sluggers also handle most of the pitching chores for Harbaugh who has a capable third moundsman in Ronnie Sweeney, curve ball artist.

The Sox will get toughest opposition from the Giants, the only team to top them in league play up to Monday night. But the Sox appear to have better pitching strength and home run threats in Mort and Englar. Barring serious injury they should go all the way. Mort was injured and Englar was not on hand Monday evening when the Red Sox were topped 10-6 by the Yankees.

By-Pass Work To Be Started

The State Roads Commission is ready to proceed with the construction of a three-mile relocation of State Route 97 from the Westminster by-pass to Fenby, in Carroll County.

A "notice to proceed" was recently sent to the contractor for the grading, drainage and surfacing of this relocation. The surface will be flexible pavement and the contractor on the project will be Thomas, Bennett and Hunter, Inc., Westminster who bid $620,677.40 last month.

Latakia (Syria)

"Why stop at Latakia?" not having heard of this place before, and mispronouncing its name (lat-ah-kee-ya), I had asked the travel agent when he explained the itinerary, and he had answered without waste of words, "Cargo," which was reason enough for stopping but suggested no special interest for visitors. And now, weeks later, here I was in the harbor of Latakia but some distance from shore and having to decide whether a short visit to a place where there was nothing outstanding to see was worth the challenge of getting there: descending a steep ship's ladder directly over the water (of course with a hand-rail), jumping onto the tiny front deck, where passengers were not allowed to stay, and walking to the tiny rear deck along a narrow ledge (no side decks) with the help of hand-holds on the roof of the cabin, then riding the waves to shore. There was a scared minute for me when I saw what lay between the front and rear decks, but that was when John, the young Lebanese returning home from "the States," came to the rescue, and after that I was glad I was of the small group that had taken the first chance that offered to get a glimpse of this new part of the world.

We had scarcely touched shore at a run-down-looking landing place before a new experience that was to be repeated, with variations, throughout our brief stay in the Near East, was upon us, the urging to buy post cards and miscellaneous trinkets from the street peddlers. And with this, for those who could manage it, the bargaining began, which the peddlers themselves often started: "How much you give, lady?" Then, quite naturally, John was taking charge of us, telephoning for taxis, bargaining for a long time with the drivers, apparently reaching a highly satisfactory understanding, and making us his guests for a long drive thru and beyond the town. And there were things of interest, if nothing especially outstanding, for visitors from the West to see: the stone-paved streets, the yellowish-gray stone or plaster of all the buildings, the two-wheeled donkey carts, many loaded with garlic, the mingling of Moslem and Western dress, the small modern housing project for refugees in which the Syrian Government and United Nations are cooperating, a small group of forlorn-looking gipsy tents, and a fine-looking children's clinic, another project of a UN affiliated agency and the native Government. (It is no wonder there are no ancient land-marks here, although Latakia is a very ancient town, for it was practically completely demolished by earthquakes in three different centuries. Its present existence at a considerably lower level than that of some centuries ago depends mainly on its natural products for export.) Thanks, John, for this "extra" on our sightseeing program.

Beirut and Baalbek (Lebanon)
Slow coasting thru the night brought us early next morning to the chief city of the tiny country of Lebanon, Beirut, known to many United - States Americans thru the famous American University founded by Presbyterians and fostered by several of our wealthy philanthropists. I had hoped we might see something more than we did of this institution for the higher training of earnest young Arabs so greatly needing such help; but this was another full day of planned excursioning, which permitted only a drive thru the University grounds and a glimpse at the exterior of several buildings, the whole picturesquely located on a high bluff overlooking the sea. Then off we went on our way out of Beirut getting impressions of a flourishing and beautiful city with wide avenues and many fine buildings, private and public, especially attractive in the use of color (rose, soft greens and yellows) in shutters, balconies, and other decorative features against the light background of the building-stone.

The drive beyond Beirut into the Lebanon Mountains, across the valley of Lebanon (Great Plain of Beqaa, considered one of the most fertile areas in the whole world) and to the site of the Greek-Roman ruins at Baalbek was one of the memorable scenic experiences of the entire Mediterranean trip, along with the additional drive that afternoon, part-way back to Beirut, then across another mountain-range parallel with the Lebanon and descending into another lovely smaller valley to reach Damascus.

But now we have arrived at the Palmyra Hotel in Baalbek, where, after a tasty meal and while everybody was assembled in one place, our new guide, a serious and middle-aged Arab who spoke precise English but in a way that was hard to listen to, gave us a new kind of guide-service—a long lecture on the history of Baalbek and the ruins we had come to see; it left us (I believe I speak for the party) feeling a bit dizzy from too much background. I do not want to run the chance of having the same effect on my readers, so will try to sum up in a paragraph what seems most essential to an understanding of ancient Baalbek's revival of fame in this century.

In the 1st century B.C. Baalbek, already an old and flourishing city, came under the control of the Romans as they extended their conquests over all of Syria (including what is now the separate country of Lebanon) and the Near East. Realizing the importance of the city on account of its strategic location, they developed it further, especially by the building, under the early Empire, of a group of temples to their pagan deities on a tremendous scale not elsewhere equaled and with great lavishness and beauty of decoration; the labor and skill involved in such building with the equipment at command nearly 2000 years ago taxes belief. And the history of what happened to this building beginning with the establishment of Christianity as the Roman state religion in the 4th century and the understandable desire of a zealous emperor to destroy the prestige of such imposing monuments of pagan worship—this too seems fantastic, involving as outstanding calamities the pillaging by Oriental conquerors (Jenghis Khan and Tamerlane), making over into a Saracen stronghold with its fortresses and mosque, and earthquakes (one as late as 1750, described as leaving the whole area "a wilderness of fallen blocks"). Finally, in our own 20th century and on the initiative of Emperor Wilhelm II, who visited Baalbek in 1898, saw the possibility of honor for German scholars and scientists in a work of clearing and further excavating here, such work was carried on by German Archeological Institute with the permission of the Sultan of Turkey (last power controlling the Near East to the end of World War I). This work (done between 1900 and 1904) and later efforts at restoration under other authorities have made the Baalbek ruins a meaningful and awe-inspiring sight.

And now the reader may picture our party, with these and other facts which I must disregard in mind, visiting the great hill where all these and many more things have happened; climbing by means of flights of very broad stone stairs (groups of these cut solidly, without a seam, from one huge piece of stone) from one elevation to another, across what was once a covered vestibule into a first Court of Approach, then the Main Altar Court (covering over three acres) and on into the huge Temple of Jupiter, at one side of which still stand six of the stupendous col-

Tawes Advocates State Aid For Small Towns

OCEAN CITY—At a speech delivered Monday before the Tenth Annual June Convention of the Maryland Municipal League, J. Millard Tawes, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Maryland, strongly advocated that the state provide assistance to its municipalities through the creation of a state-supported Municipal Technical Advisory Service.

Tawes said: "For many years, agricultural experts, working thru the state universities, have provided advice and assistance to Maryland farmers. I can see no reason why the state should not provide a similar service of experts for its town and city dwellers. Very few of our municipalities can afford individually to hire such expert assistance; yet, to my mind, none of our municipalities can afford to be without it."

Tawes endorsed a proposal pending before the Maryland Municipal League which would establish a Director and a staff of four experts attached to the University of Maryland, and enjoying faculty status there. "These experts," in Mr. Tawes' words, "would serve as roving consultants who would be available to all the municipalities in Maryland, to help with their administrative and financial problems."

The annual cost of the project is estimated at $32,000. It could be expanded as it demonstrated its value.

Tawes said, "I have long been an advocate of the theory that one of the most important duties of a progressive and modern state government is to furnish vigorous leadership to help bring about improvements and efficiency in local administrative organizations."

The Maryland Municipal League is made up of Mayors and other officials from 135 Maryland Municipalities, representing 99% of the people of Maryland who live in incorporated areas.

In discussing the growth of Metropolitan areas, Tawes said, "The crux of the problem, as I see it, is to find a way to preserve the character of the local community, and at the same time integrate its services with the surrounding area in such a way as to provide the taxpayer with the most efficient and economical government possible."

Tawes added: "Both local municipalities and States are hard-pressed financially. It would be short-sighted at this time to insist upon an inflexible method of allocating total responsibility for particular services to the various political sub-divisions."

Tawes referred in his speech to various planks in the recently adopted Democratic Party Platform; including those on Attracting Industries, Taxation, and Education.

Under the law, the time cannot be extended, and those who do not have their new licenses by June 30 will be subject to arrest for driving on expired licenses.

"Defensive Driving" Is Key To Safety On The Highway

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

LEARNING TO "DRIVE" EVERY CAR on the road, as well as your own, is a professional secret for safe driving.

That's the technique that bus, taxi and trucking officials teach their drivers. Once they master this "defensive driving" habit, professional drivers are able to anticipate the sometimes hazardous moves of motorists in their vicinity.

Here are 10 more professional driving safety rules. Let them be your guide to safe motoring, too!

1. Drive with accuracy and precision. To avoid accidents, form the habit of accurately performing these six basic driving maneuvers: turning, passing, stopping, parking, braking and entering traffic.
2. Watch out for the driver who doesn't care—or who doesn't know how to drive the right way. To protect him, and yourself, adjust your driving to his, when necessary.
3. Don't be a traffic fighter. The wear and tear on the nerves and disposition just isn't worth the effort. Neither is it worth an accident just to be a few minutes ahead.
4. Be prepared for sudden stops. Always drive so that you can stop in time to meet any road, traffic or weather condition.
5. Don't take chances. Speeding through intersections, passing when visibility is poor and over-driving headlights are examples of chance-taking which can become dangerous habits.
6. Control your emotions — at least behind the wheel. Many a hot temper has been cooled off in an accident!
7. Leave your worries at home. Worries are distracting, lessen your alertness and divide your attention. No matter how bad the problem is, you'll never improve the situation with an accident.
8. Stay alert. Close shaves while driving are sure warnings that your guard is down. Find out what you did wrong so you'll be prepared should the situation arise again.
9. Show your intentions. Learn the proper signals and use them well in advance of a turn or stop. Use the horn when necessary. Don't force drivers around you to guess your next move.
10. Know your vehicle. Experienced drivers know the limitations of their vehicles and at what pace it handles best. And they never try to exceed that pace! Don't drive with your car in a faulty condition, and, before driving someone else's car, allow enough time to "get acquainted" with it.

Grant Aids Heart Research Work

An attractive young woman physician, working at the Harriet Lane Home at Baltimore's Johns Hopkins Hospital, is devoting herself to finding out why some "blue babies" seem to do better than others, after surgery.

Dr. Charlotte Ferencz, whose work is supported by a special grant given by the Baltimore Life Underwriters' Assn. through the Heart Assn. of Maryland, is investigating the possibility that the condition of the child-patients' lungs may have a great deal to do with success or failure of the operation designed to alleviate the heart imperfection which causes "blue babies."

The research program of the Heart Assn. of Maryland is made possible by contributions from Heart chapters in all parts of the State. Nine affiliated chapters in Maryland comprise the State Association.

Players Wanted

A number of horseshoe pitching enthusiasts are interested in organizing a horseshoe pitching league for play during the summer months.

A tournament was held Sunday at the George Pecher farm, Fairfield R2 and George Ashbaugh Sr. and Junior were matched against George and Joseph Pecher. It is hoped to be able to form a number of teams in the near future and those interested in joining are asked to contact Ashbaugh's Grocery Store.

OVER THE GARDEN WALLS

Flowers

Remove the old flowers from perennials which have finished blooming. This may encourage more flowers later in the summer as in the case of delphinium. Some kinds will not bloom again but the garden will be more attractive. The same practice should be followed for certain shrubs as the Lilac and Rhododendron. Removal of the seed head makes the plant more attractive and encourages new vegetative growth with flower buds for the next season.

Old flowers should not be allowed to develop seeds on early flowering bulbs such as the tulip and Narcissus. Remove these flowers when the color has faded but allow the foliage to remain. This is essential in order for the bulb to manufacture food for the next year. Once the foliage is yellow and begins to dry then it can be removed without harm to the bulb.

Fertilize annual flowers with a complete fertilizer such as 10-10-10 at the rate of one pound to one hundred square feet. Cultivate or water this fertilizer into the soil. This should be sufficient fertilizer for perennial plants for the summer unless the garden is watered regularly when additional applications may be made again in July.

Hybrid tea roses and floribunda roses should be fertilized again after the first crop of flowers are gone. Use a complete type of fertilizer as had just been suggested for annuals and perennials.

Seed of perennials and biennials may be sown now for the production of plants for next year. Most kinds may be sown now and thru August, sowing them out of doors. Early sowing will produce larger plants by fall.

Chrysanthemums should have the tips of the shoots removed to encourage branching. Such topping should be continued as new growth develops until about the first of August.

House plants should be planted outdoors in a shady or partially shaded spot. They will continue to grow. Some gardeners prefer to plunge them rather than plant them. Other types may be cut back now to induce branching and the development of a more bushy plant. It will be more attractive when brought into the house again in the fall.

Veal calves: Prime, .31½ to .33½; good to choice, .28 to .31; common to medium, .22 to .28; lightweight culls, .20 down.

Hogs: 190 to 230 lbs., .24½, .25; 230 to 300 lbs., .23 to .24½; 160 to 180 lbs., .23½ to .24½.

Sows: Depending on weight and quality, .16½ to .20.

Commissioners Make Appointments

The Frederick County Commissioners recently re-appointed a member of the Frederick County Roads Board and named two new members of the County Welfare Board to fill terms which began June 1. The Commissioners are required by law, to make the appointments. Two retiring members of the Welfare Board were not eligible for reappointment.

Harvey H. Werking of near Woodsboro, was renamed to a five-year term as one of the minority members of the Roads Board. Mr. Werking, who is starting his second term, and Russell Keller of Middletown, are the Republican members.

The Democratic members of the Board are Clyde W. Smith of Ijamsville; Austin P. Renn of Adamstown and Edgar G. Emrich, Emmitsburg. The three Commissioners, all Democrats, are members of the board, by virtue of their office. Dr. B. O. Thomas Jr., Frederick physician, was named to a six-year term on the Welfare Board to succeed his brother, Dr. James B. Thomas.

To Spend Summer in California

The Rev. Fr. David W. Shamm, Mt. St. Mary's College, will leave Monday for San Diego, Calif., to spend the summer as the guest of his cousin, the Most Reverend Charles F. Buddy, D.D., Bishop of San Diego. En route, Father Shamm will attend the Saint Louis Municipal Opera and the Santa Fe Opera summer production and will spend some time in Mexico. The return trip will be made via Yellowstone National Park.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE.

A corn crop uses two pounds of nitrogen to each pound of available phosphoric acid and each pound of potash. If your corn plants are not as large as usual at this date—call us for Mathieson Anhydrous Ammonia, 82% nitrogen, for side-dressing. Make sure your corn crop has enough nitrogen—Mathieson Anhydrous Ammonia—the nitrogen that feeds corn quickly and constantly because corn digests it and makes protein with it so easily.
