Two turbulent occasions in the march of time have just transpired. They were Halloween and the election. The former went off about as usual here with a few incidents of downright vandalism, but then that does happen and we feel sorry for those harmed or who suffered property loss. It just seems impossible to observe the event in a tranquil manner. I suppose the only remedy to offset this vandalism would be to pass a law prohibiting anyone over 16 years of age participating in the fun because after all it isn't the kiddies who do the damage, its the older ones. Therefore the older ones should be restricted during the occasion.

Another election has gone in history and it might be termed the most successful one in the history of politics for the Democratic party. The voting took landslide proportions all over the nation as Republicans were swept out of office being supplanted by Democrats. The election was a repudiation of something but I just can't quite put my finger on it. It might be the foreign policy, it might be labor racketeering, it might be the high cost of living or again it might have been the fact that "big business" has been dominating the Eisenhower administration. Whatever it was the glow and lustre of the famed Eisenhower seems to have dulled somewhat. The people apparently have demanded a change but for what reason? Unemployment isn't too heavy and most people have a little money to spend despite the high taxes. The reason apparently is a phantom one and should take shape in the near future but it really is a hindrance to the politicians who were newly-elected to take over an office with a mandate, not knowing what is expected of them. At any rate it's time to bury the hatchet for another two years until the presidential election, so let bygones be bygones, after all the Republicans just enjoyed a long-time regime and as a result it has been a long dry spell for the Democrats.

Locally, as far as northern Frederick County was concerned, the election was a dismal one. Of the three candidates from this area only one is now rejoicing and that one is Bill Houck of Thurmont who won a seat in the Maryland Legislature. The other candidate from Thurmont received a nice vote but not enough. Our own candidate from Emmitsburg suffered the same fate, but not because we let him down entirely. For a Democratic town, the candidate, a member of the opposite party, polled many Democratic votes but these were not enough to stem the overwhelming tide of votes from the southern part of the county. Our congratulations to the victorious candidates. One race, that for the office of Register of Wills, was especially interesting, and I feel the candidate deserves the victory. The candidate of course, is young Tom Eichelberger who campaigned so vigorously that for a while a lot of people sort of thought that maybe he lived here, so frequently was he a visitor to our fair town. It paid off though, for he received a very nice vote here. Credit is due to the backers of John Foley also. They worked diligently in his behalf and he carried the Sixth District by 3000 votes. This was a marked improvement for Mr. Foley over his campaign of four years ago. He increased his margin of victory in the county by over 4000 votes this election, and will be seated in the U. S. House.

To reiterate we should all forget the little incidents provoked by the heat of the election and return to our normal way of living. The politicians aren't worried now that it's all over, so why should we? Sure a lot of us were disappointed but that's no reason to carry a grudge, it'll get you exactly nowhere. Once again our heartiest congrats to the winners and condolences to the losers.

Catholic Church Supper-Bazaar Tomorrow

The annual bazaar and supper of St. Joseph's Catholic Church will be held Saturday with servings family style, starting at 3 p. m. in St. Joseph's High School. The supper will feature turkey with all the trimmings and the general public is cordially invited to attend.

Father James Twomey, pastor, announced this week that the affair will be divided or split into two segments. The suppers will be served in the school cafeteria and the amusements will be confined to the new St. Euphemia's Recreation Hall. This will afford a large number of the townspeople the opportunity to see the improvements to the hall and will also avoid congestion experienced in previous years by holding the two affairs in one building. Suppers will be priced at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

The affair, one of the oldest of its type in this area, usually is patronized by all denominations and provides entertainment for both young and old.

Pastor Twomey announces that a "romp" room will be available in the basement of St. Euphemia's where children, properly supervised, can play games and be entertained while parents are busy themselves with other forms of entertainment upstairs. Parents are asked to provide toys and games for the children. On hand will be a bingo game, sandwich table, cake table, candy table. Children of Mary religious article table, country store, white elephant table, ice cream and soft drinks. Mrs. Margaret Myers of the Sodality, is general chairman. Members of the Sodality, Knights of Columbus and parishioners will serve as waiters, cooks, etc.

As has been the custom in previous years, suppers will be prepared for those wishing to take them to their homes to eat. Those desiring such service are asked to provide their own containers or dishes. To avoid any confusion in the waiting line, numbers will be assigned to everyone and they will be called in groups as chairs are available.

Breach Of Contract Results In Suit

Suit alleging breach of contract and asking $1,500 damages has been entered in Circuit Court by John J. Carbaugh and Grace May Carbaugh, Thurmont, against Austin C. Smith and Howard Smith, co-partners, of Clifton.

The suit, entered through Alton Y. Bennett, attorney, alleges that in October, 1957, the defendants agreed to drill and case a well for the plaintiffs on their property near Catocin Furnace. The agreement, it was said, was to pay the defendants $2.75 per foot for drilling and $2.50 per foot for casing the well. The defendants, would produce a good flow of it is claimed, warranted the well drinking water.

The plaintiffs assert the work was done and they paid $415, which charge, they claim, they later found was in excess of the amount of drilling and casing done by the defendants. They say the well did not produce a good flow of drinking water, as warranted.

DEMOCRATS SWEEP MOST MAJOR OFFICES IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION

Emmitsburg and Frederick County followed the national pattern of a landslide Tuesday as Democrats were elected to virtually every office in the county and state. In fact the only Republicans to make the grade were those of sheriff, clerk of court, two orphans' court judges, one member to the house of delegates and the senatorship.

J. Glenn Beall, incumbent U. S. Senator, was re-elected by some 13,000 votes of his Democratic opponent, Mayor Thomas D'Alesandry. Millard Tawes, present state comptroller, outdistanced his opponent, General Devereaux by about a two-to-one margin to take the governorship. In a nip and tuck battle which went into the late hours, John Foley unseated incumbent Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde, Republican, by a narrow margin.

The only Republicans escaping the tremendous upheaval in Frederick County were Charles McC. Mathias, who was elected to the House of Delegates, Horace "Buck" Alexander, veteran of the sheriff's office, Ellis C. Wachter, clerk of the court and Samuel Ausherman and Frank Shook, as judges of the Orphan's Court.

Voting locally was termed brisk with an estimated 60% of the registered voters casting ballots. This is an extremely good representation considering the election an off year one. Party workers on both sides labored hard to get out the vote and succeeded in inducing nearly 1,000 to come to the polls.

Town Council Announces New Tax Rate

Taxes will be raised here in Emmitsburg but not as high as was first anticipated, it was learned at the regular monthly meeting of the Town Council held Monday night in the Town Office, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners Charles R. Fuss presiding over a full board present.

For a number of months now Council has been studying various methods of taxation with the hope of freaching a tax rate satisfactory to all. At Monday's meeting the Town Fathers adopted what they felt was a 100 rate schedule to the taxpayers and the bond holders who financed the new sewer project.

Mayor Clarence G. Frailey revealed that the assessment on real estate would be hiked from its present 50c on the $100 rate to 70c on the $100. In addition, the annual sewer rent of $5 has been increased to $25 per family unit. This latter fee is payable quarterly at $6.25.

The new tax rate will be effective on January 1, 1959 and will effect every property owner within the corporate limits. Council has under consideration a "commercial" rate which it feels should be equitable to all types of industry, motels, schools, apartment houses, etc., and will reveal this plan in the near future.

Police Commissioner Wales E. Rightmire announced the new police cruiser had been purchased and is now in service.

Plans for the construction of a street spanning the distance from Emmitsburg Public School to the Mother Seton School took an initial step forward Tuesday when surveyors were obtained to lay out plans for the street. Surveyors from Kneet & Co., Baltimore, are making the survey and actual work on the new street will commence as soon as possible.

want you to know...

What is your idea of your community hospital? A bustling clinic for emergencies? A workshop for skilled doctors? The place you first saw the newest addition to your family.

You are right. But hospitals are also important institutions of learning. The 250 community hospitals in Pennsylvania provide post-secondary and post graduate education for more young men and women than all but the two largest in the state.

Behind the scenes of the healing functions are several hundred full-fledged schools and educational programs. Operating without major tax support are institutions of learning for 15,000 students. Non-profit, community hospitals administer, staff and equip the schools, despite heavy financial strain. They are virtually the only institutions which provide trained personnel for the growing health professions.

Best known are the 105 schools of nursing and the newer schools of practical nursing. Together they enroll more than 12,000 young men and women each year. Only two nursing schools function in government-owned hospitals, but the graduates of the 105 community hospital schools staff the state's mental hospitals, the VA institutions, industrial infirmaries, school nurse facilities, doctor's offices and the armed forces. Educating each student nurse results in a net cost to her hospital of approximately $500 per year, despite the tuition charged and the service rendered by the student. From the State comes $150 per student payment per year to help fill the gap in the cost of education.

Next best known are the programs in which 650 medical interns and about 1,300 resident physicians receive training in the community hospitals. Across the state are 74 hospitals which train young doctors fresh from medical schools in the clinical work which they must have before they can take licensing examinations to practice. In 83 hospitals are other young resident physicians who work long hours in order to gain irreplaceable experiences under the eyes of senior doctors and finish their formal education.

Less noticed by the average hospital patient are the scores of other specialists who receive their training in hospital - operated schools. These schools provide a wide range of instruction from courses for X-ray technicians to newer artists and medical photographers.

In hospital - sponsored schools young women add to typing and stenographic skills the special knowledge which qualifies them as medical secretaries to record and translate medical terminology. Hospitals, too, are operating training courses for dietitians and food service supervisors, some with the cooperation of Pennsylvania State University. Students learn the elements of proper diet for the hospital patient and the techniques of renewing jaded appetites among the 1.3 million persons who enter Pennsylvania hospitals each year.

Upwards of 200 different skills are represented by the employees of today's hospitals. Almost two persons for every in-patient are required, and over 100,000 men and women have jobs in hospitals in the state.

ABUNDANT LIFE

HOW TO RECEIVE HEALING FROM GOD

God wants to heal you. This is a precious truth, but you cannot force yourself to believe it. You must know it is true before you can believe. There is no substitute for the truth—nor for the knowledge of truth.

You must want God to heal you. You must have a burning desire. Burning desire knows no shame, no barrier, no refusal. Intense desire burns the bridge behind and penetrates into the very heart of the Son of God.

To receive your healing you must approach God for healing through faith. Faith is not something you always have to seek or pray for. Faith is something God already has given you, for "God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith" (Romans 12:3). Put your faith to work. This will increase it and make it stronger.

You have been provided the capacity and ability to use your faith in any way you choose, for you are a free moral agent. You are able to fix your attention upon God, focusing your faith solely and directly upon him. "Rejoice and be exceedingly glad," for healing is yours through faith.

Mr. W. D. tells how he was healed of a mental disorder:

"For twelve years I had suffered from nervous tension, fears, depression and emotional instability. I went from one doctor to another, only to be told by each one that he could not help me. I had to get hold of myself and overcome my difficulty. I spent some weeks in a hospital but did not respond to treatment prescribed there. "When I returned home, my mind, body and soul were distraught. I realized there was much work to be done on my part if God were to help me. I must clear my mind of all negative thoughts and help God to replace them with positive, healing ones. I asked God to be my healer, to show me the way out of the dark into the light."

"Little by little my healing progressed. Each day I became surer, stronger, calmer and had more confidence. Fears dropped away. I came out of my self-imposed hiding and began to venture out into the world just as a child would. Each day I tried to accomplish a little more than the previous day. God, my healer, erased the past. He has led me into a beautiful new world of faith and love and security."

"Each day I shall continue to walk and talk with God in order to overcome old negative thoughts and habits. God wants me to do my part by keeping daily vigilance over my thoughts and deeds. "I am healed, perfectly healed, but I must never lose sight of the fact that God expects me to keep faith. Keeping my mind clear of negative thoughts helps me to receive his guidance and wisdom throughout each moment of the day."

Many hundreds of letters come to my office every day telling of remarkable recoveries such as the one above. Each adds its own evidence to our often repeated theme: God is a good God. He can and will heal you.

Noted Speaker To Be Guest Of Local College

Helmut A. Hatzfeld, Ph.D., professor of Romance Languages and Literature at the Catholic University of America, will be the guest speaker at the French conducted monthly meeting of the Cumberland Valley, Pennsylvania Chapter of l'Alliance Francaise Sunday, November 9 at 2:30 p. m. in the Student Center of St. Joseph College, Emmitsburg.

Dr. Hatzfeld, who is an internationally recognized scholar and author of works on French and Spanish literature, will discuss the philosophy of "l'Existentialisme," which was originated in France by Jean Paul Sartre.

Prior to the lecture a short business meeting will be held, at which Sister Margaret, D.U., professor of French, President of the Alliance Francaise, will preside. M. Lucie Fitzpatrick, M.A., assistant professor of Romance Languages at Saint Joseph College, who is this year's Program Chairman, will introduce Dr. Hatzfeld.

Members of the Omega chapter of Pi Delta Phi will act as guides. Under the direction of Mrs. C. H. Heldt, Gettysburg, Pa., they will also serve at the French tea following the lecture.

Upholds Standards

Receiving his doctorate in 1915 at Munich, Dr. Hatzfeld directed his interest toward the field of Comparative Literature. He has been described as a beautiful spirit, generous and warm-hearted, even toward those he does not admire. Yet he has never lost his insistence upon values and right high standards.

Since 1940, when he came to the United States, Dr. Hatzfeld has written many valuable works.

Not least among his accomplishments have been doctoral dissertations, which he directed at the Catholic University of America.

Also included in his collections are Trends and Styles in Twentieth Century French Literature, which views the literature of contemporary France and A Critical Bibliography of the New Stylistic Applied to the Romance Literatures, a commentary and appreciation of the literary thought of the past fifty years. His book, Literature Through Art, won the first Modern Language Association Oxford Award for the new concrete type of comparison.

One of Dr. Hatzfeld's principal interests, however, has remained the interpretation of the Baroque. By his "A Clarification of the Baroque Problem in the Romance Literatures," Comparative Literature I, he has placed himself in the position of master in this field.

Although the monthly meetings of the Alliance Francaise are regularly held the second Sunday of the month at Gettysburg College, this special meeting will convene on the campus of Saint Joseph College. The meetings are open to all persons interested in French culture.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Shooters of single-barrel guns are turning more and more to choke devices as a solution to their pattern problems, says Pete Brown, Gun Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Not, he continues, that a choke device necessarily gives better patterns, but because it does make a one-barrel gun into a multipurpose fowling piece. The choke device also furnishes more possibilities for experiment when attempting to arrive at the best possible patterning performance. These devices are made with a wide range of adjustment, and the shooter can usually find a setting to meet any situation within reason.

Representing the latest innovation in choke devices are those which simulate double-barrel choke performance by automatically switching to a tighter choke for the second shot. The choke, when set for automatic change, always goes to the next tighter choke on the second shot and remains at that setting until released by a button on the underside of the device. There are 7 possible fixed-choke positions.

These latest inventions of the choking art take over practically every advantage of the double-choke feature of the double-barrel gun. The double-barrel gun with double triggers or with the single selective trigger does retain one small advantage. With these particular double guns one can reverse the choking sequence. The tight choke can be fired first and the more open choke on the second shot. This is assuming the shots are fired at incoming birds rather than birds going away. Since the automatic adjustments always shift to a tighter choke they are strictly for outgoing birds. And since most normal, healthy birds are outward bound after the first shot is fired, there is actually little need for reversing the choke change sequence.

It's a good guess that most of us who shoot a shotgun don't give the choke as much consideration as we might. We fully appreciate the fact that full choke is for long range and is the usual selection for ducks and geese. The fact is, in most instances a modified or improved cylinder choke might prove to be better. Choosing the proper choke requires somewhat more thought than choosing a proper necktie.

Horse Owners Nearly Equal In Winnings To Race at Pimlico

BALTIMORE—A little matter of $17,000 or $18,000 stands between two of the famous horse owners who will campaign at Pimlico this fall and the honor of having the leading money-winning racing stable in Maryland in 1958.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs and Calumet Farm are the owners standing second and third on the eve of the Maryland fall opening, behind William Hal Bishop whose horses will not be on hand to defend the leadership gained during the three spring meetings in the State.

Bishop forces collected a neat $118,455 during the spring season. Horses carrying the colors of Mrs. Jacobs picked up $102,362 and Calumet was third with winnings of $101,200.

Calumet is doubly anxious to add to its total earnings during the final meeting of the Maryland season at Pimlico, November 13 through December 17. The stable of Mrs. Gene Markey has been on top for the past two seasons and has been in the lead almost from the start of the current campaign.

Success, however, of the Kerr Stables, owner of Round Table, have been so marked that there is only a slight difference in the amounts won and Calumet can afford no lagging if it is to maintain its lofty position nationally.

Of course, there also is the possibility that some stable not among the spring leaders could sweep a couple of Pimlico's rich fixtures like the $170,000 Futurity and the $50,000 Pimlico Special and walk off with top Maryland honors at the last minute. This possibility merely adds spice to the contest.

Howard Grant and Joe Culmone, who finished one-two in the jockeys race during the spring sessions at Bowie, Laurel and Pimlico are expected to resume their rivalry when Pimlico's meeting gets under way. Grant won 49 races then and Culmone

Asian Flu Again?

On one day in November last year, more than six million of us were sick in bed—most of us suffering from Asian flu. Indications are that the bug may be back again this year, although not in as bad a form.

The 1958 model will be a different strain of the flu virus. It probably won't hit as many of us, and it won't hit as hard. However, at this writing, no one is making absolute predictions. None of us who went through it last year want to repeat the misery. You'll remember that it usually started like a common cold. Then came fever, headache, the "tired all over" feeling, aching muscles and joints.

Even without an epidemic of Asian flu, the acute respiratory diseases will be our biggest health problem in the next few months. Last year respiratory ailments such as influenza, the pneumonias, and colds accounted for 190,000,000 days in bed for the American people. And, of course, many of us didn't go to bed with every cold we had.

You should go to bed if influenza strikes. The illness itself may not seem so bad, but rest is important to prevent the development of more serious secondary infections such as pneumonia. Your doctor may isolate you to help check spread of the flu among family and friends.

Since the disease will probably be milder this year, vaccination may not be necessary. Get your doctor's advice. For protection against all the respiratory ailments, be sure every member of your family gets enough sleep, rest, and outdoor recreation. See that they get plenty of the protective foods: milk, eggs, meat and vegetables.

If flu epidemic should develop, watch your newspaper for advice and instructions from public health officials. Keep your doctor informed if any unusual symptoms develop.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

It has now become the fashion among the so-called intellectuals, parlor pinks, and others, to throw stones at American auto industry.

And while perhaps in the present time of stress when the recession is in part due to the failure of the auto industry to maintain a steady pace, the Big Three of Detroit are entitled to some lumps, Detroit is not the entire auto industry.

What these critics forget, and what unfortunately the Big Three forgot, is that the lifeblood of the auto industry is the nationwide corps of auto dealers who for the most part are independent businessmen with their own money tied up in sales and service facilities.

It is these dealers who made America a nation on wheels, but as soon as lax law enforcement and a fuzzy governmental attitude permitted huge concentration of auto making power, dealers were forced to go along with policies many, if not most, are not in sympathy with.

The American motorcar today is an outstanding engineering achievement. Perhaps they are bigger than absolutely necessary; perhaps they even have too much glittering chrome.

But it is quite possible that these things have added only insignificantly to prices of autos.

One of the most potent points in this entire situation was made by Charles Kettering, veteran inventor of General Motors, when in a recent article in a national magazine he stated that almost one fourth of the retail price of each car is now tax money. Thus, © National Federation of Independent Business in a car, selling for example, at $3,000, $750 is tax. Thus, probably in no industry, with the exception of whiskey, is so much taxes incorporated in the selling price.

And while perhaps whiskey is not an essential, in today's economy, an automobile is essential to practically every family. This is a fact which bureaucrats have long refused to recognize, maintaining the same old stand when cars were but rich men's luxury playthings, and thus subject to taxation on that basis.

But today, there is hardly a salesman, factory worker, a business, or an executive that can exist without a car.

And thus the enigma of the business today is probably the disparity between the price of a new car, and the value of a used car, as compared to the pre-war ratio.

Yet greater depreciation in a used car today is undoubtedly largely accounted for by the fact new cars carry not a price tag, but a "tax pack" of 25%.

Big Autos claim that Reuther's Big Auto Labor has forced up the prices. Reuther retorts that excessive profit taking by Detroit has forced up prices. Perhaps both in a measure are correct.

But claims of Big Auto and Big Labor do not seem of major importance at this time.

But the first step, it would seem logically, would be to eliminate the "tax pack" in new cars to immediately bring aid and relief to the thousands of hard pressed independent car dealers. Unless this is done, and done promptly, one of the most valuable economic forces on every Main Street in America could disappear with an irreparable loss to every community.

The four-passenger Thunderbird, which set a new standard of elegance for American cars in 1958, is shown here in an international atmosphere before the Place Belgique Reception Hall at the Brussels World's Fair. The 1959 Thunderbird, with re-styled grille and bright metal spears on the side panel projectors, retain the same basic lines that made it the most successfully styled car in America.

So this is HOMEMAKING

They say it's a sign of old age when someone starts complaining about "it wasn't like this when I was young" or "those were the good old days."

Well, I don't think age has crept up that fast (they all say that!) and what's more important, neither does Bill. Or if so, he's not saying. Anyway, life gets more complex every day, and it sure wasn't like this when I was a rompers gal. Of course, in those days we didn't have the convenience or service that's now available, and since mother and father were running the show, there weren't any decisions to make.

Here's how progress has puzzled me in one instance. Bill and I had been planning for a long time to get a new refrigerator since we were tired of opening a door and gazing into a mound of ice when all we wanted was some frozen food. Didn't take much investigation to discover Whirlpool's new Mark series provided an answer. Best on the market, does the job we need etc. As far as I was concerned this was it. But civilization and science were lurking in the background, ready to force another decision from me.

"Where do you want the freezer compartment," smiled our genial dealer, "top or bottom?" "Huh?" was the witty rejoinder.

Seems as though the RCA Whirlpool offers a choice. Depending upon your freezer needs, size of family or personal preference. Can you imagine? A time within a line. It looks as though the manufacturer went to an awful lot of trouble to provide a tailored model. If they think that much of service, I'm for them 100 per cent. They certainly have the customer in mind.

"Oh, what kind to buy? Make up your own mind. I know we had a hard time making up mine!"

Our County Library

Frederick County does not have a county-wide library system. A "campaign of information" to inform Frederick counties of the economic advantages of establishing county-wide library service in 1959 is being conducted by the C. Burr Artz and a Citizens' Committee headed by Mrs. J. Homer Remsburg, Middletown. To acquaint readers with all respects of the project, which is now being presented to organizations, The Emmitsburg Chronicle will publish a series of weekly articles.

Article Five
What Other Maryland
Counties Are Doing

Under the impetus of Federal and State aid, which is administered by the State Division of Library Extension, Maryland counties without county-wide library systems are planning their establishment as rapidly as possible to take advantage of the Federal offer before it expires in 1961.

Frederick county's share of Federal aid would be $26,000 if Frederick county institutes service in 1959. This would be an establishment fund. State aid, a continuing fund, would amount to approximately $10,000 annually.

Sixteen of the twenty-three Maryland counties, including all of Frederick's neighbors, have county-wide service.

Only Frederick and Allegany on the Western shore are without it, and five counties on the Eastern shore—Kent, Caroline, Dorchester, Somerset and Worcester.

Carroll County First

Frederick's neighbor, Carroll county, was the first to have a county system in 1958 under Federal and State funds. Its new bookmobile will begin rounds early in November. Howard acquired a bookmobile earlier in the year.

The Washington County Free Library, another neighbor, has the oldest mobile book service in the world, dating from 1904 when Miss Mary L. Titcomb, librarian, began with a horse and Concord wagon driven by the library

UNIVERSITY

A recent report on weights and measures inspection from the State Board of Agriculture which also sits as the University of Maryland Board of Regents indicates that all scales and meters found inaccurate during 1957 were not against the customer. In fact, the report points out, nearly all cases there were more errors against the seller than against the buyer.

The broad objective of the weights and measures program is to insure equity in all commercial transactions involving quantity in Maryland's 23 counties. This is accomplished through a State Office of Weights and Measures within the State Board which inspects and tests all commercial weighing and measuring devices on a regular basis; spot checks for accuracy of weight, measure and net weight marking of commodities weighed in advance of sale; and carries on a broad educational program to inform janitor, to take books to rural areas. The county recently purchased its sixth in a successive line of bookmobiles as we know them today.

Montgomery, a southern neighbor, operates three bookmobiles.

Calvert county, as of August 1958, is the most recent addition to the growing list of county libraries. It is joining with Charles and St. Mary's in sharing certain services, each county library retaining its own autonomy.

Frederick, to receive maximum Federal aid, must establish a county library system in 1959. Federal and State funds would provide such a system at the least cost to the local taxpayer.

Next: What Citizens and Groups Can Do to Insure a County-wide Library System for Frederick County.

During 1957, there were 8,782 gasoline pumps tested, and 1,754 were found to be incorrect. During this period, 490 fuel oil meters were inspected and 115 were found to be incorrect. Of 8,621 small capacity scales that were tested, 2,182 were faulty. Five hundred twenty-one large capacity scales were inspected and 223 were incorrect. These figures do not include tests on agricultural devices, such as canners, feed and grain, livestock and tobacco scales; and inspections which were carried out by the Dairy Inspection Service in connection with permits to operators of milk tank trucks and inspections of farm holding tanks.

All weighing and measuring devices found inaccurate on tests were either repaired or replaced. Excellent cooperation has been received in this program, the report concludes.

New Type Nail
Is Developed

Nails that won't bend or break are now available for do-it-yourself worker and builder alike. The new nails, which have several times the holding power of ordinary nails, are known as Amering and Screw-Shank nails, a product of U. S. Steel Corporation's American Steel & Wire Division plant at Donora, Pa. They are formed from special steel, heat treated by new modern facilities installed at the plant and feature sharp points and perfectly shaped heads for solid, steady driving. They will not bend or break when properly selected for the job. The nails are available either blued, coated, galvanized or bright finish and are ideal for tough applications where vibration and impact are vital factors.

Each ring on the Amering nail is continuous and complete in itself. It is designed to provide several times the holding strength of conventional nails and is available with 24 rings to the inch. The Screw-Shank nail cuts a firm-holding serration in the wood by a unique screw-type spiral as it is driven. Holding like a screw, it provides a much greater binding surface than ordinary nails.

Money refuses to talk today—it just goes without saying.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses The Copper Situation

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Nov. 6—Let me first discuss the copper industry of Africa, which is now its most stable activity. The world copper industry is currently in the doldrums. This fact, plus the red metal's economic importance to the United States, impels me to make a study of the situation. Here are the highlights.

Production Picture

The U. S. has long been the world's leading copper producer, although its percentage of the world total has declined in recent years. The production pattern, however, has been quite irregular. Output topped 1,000,000 tons for the first time in 1929. The depression low of 225,000 tons was set in 1933. A record high of 1,117,580 tons was turned out in 1956; last year's total was 1,081,000 tons.

World smelter production, over a long period, has trended fairly steadily upward, and at a rapid pace in recent years—from 3,076,730 tons in 1950 to 4,111,934 tons in 1956. Africa is the free world's second-largest producer, with the bulk of output concentrated in Rhodesia and the Belgian Congo. I have great faith in the African producers. Africa is a vast storehouse of raw materials that will be invaluable in the economic war we are engaged in with Russia. Chile ranks third in copper production; Canada fourth.

Copper's Shifting Supply-Demand Ratio

For many years the United States was more than self-sufficient in copper. World War II changed that situation. Zooming consumption, which hit a high of 1,641,550 tons in 1941, necessitated heavy imports to fill the deficit arising from wartime demand. Our U. S. copper needs have held at high levels in most of the postwar years, reflecting pent-up consumer demand for goods of all kinds, outbreak of the Korean War in June 1950, and a high level of industry activity. The red metal was in stringent supply practically from the beginning of World War II until early 1956. Since then, U. S. supplies from domestic, African and other foreign sources have exceeded requirements.

The current copper surplus reflects the recent rapid expansion in world production of the metal and the decline in business and industrial activity, particularly in the United States. I see little at the moment pointing to a major recovery in U. S. copper demand unless a naval war develops with China over the Formosa situation. I am bullish, however, about the longer-term prospects. World industrialization seems destined to expand at an accelerating pace in the years ahead. Copper needs abroad will follow suit. As I look into the future, I am more concerned about too little copper than too much. Much more could be mined here in Africa. The following three African coppers are listed on the New York Stock Exchange: American Metal Climax, Rhodesian Selection Trust, Roan Antelope. For early profit, however, I now prefer our own Phelps Dodge.

A Glance At Prices

Copper, like many world commodities, is extremely sensitive price-wise. A depression low of 5c a pound for electrolytic copper at New York was made in 1933. In February, 1956, the metal hit a 90-year high of 46c a pound. The average yearly price in 1954 was 29.82c; in 1955, 37.39c; in 1956, 41.87c; and in 1957, 29.99c. The recent U. S. price of 29c would seem to discount the bearish factors, especially since the value of the dollar has been more than halved since 1939.

Although I do not expect copper prices to go soaring soon, I do look for them to strengthen further as the supply-demand imbalance undergoes additional correction. This may take a little more time. The recent upping of the U. S. import duty will act as a bulwark, and a resumption of government stockpiling cannot be entirely ruled out. Of one thing I am certain: Over the next decade or so, copper prices will be considerably higher than they are today and Africa will be a gainer. Threats of war should help all copper stocks; but the African mines would be handicapped by the costs of long and dangerous freight transport. Copper, uranium, and diamonds can be swiftly transported by airplane. Copper cannot be, and this is one reason I prefer now

Federal Tax on 'Slots' Effective January 1

Important changes in the Federal occupational tax on amusement gaming devices providing by the Excise Tax Technical Changes Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-859) recently enacted by Congress were announced by Irving Machiz, Acting District Director of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District, which comprises Maryland and District of Columbia.

"Under the provisions of the new law, effective January 1, 1959, a tax of $10 a year is imposed on all amusement devices and $250 a year on all gaming devices, including in each case those operated in any manner without the insertion of a coin, token, or similar object," Machiz said.

The Acting Director explained that under the old law, the tax applied only to amusement or gaming devices operated by insertion of a coin, token, or similar object.

"So-called" slot machines will be taxable at the rate of $250 per year for each machine. This includes all machines which may deliver, or entitle the person playing, or operating the machine to receive, by application of the element of chance, cash, premiums, merchandise, or tokens.

Since the taxable year runs from July 1 to June 30 and the new law is effective January 1, 1959, the new tax will be prorated

ed. Therefore, Machiz said, a person maintaining a gaming machine as of January 1, 1959, which is taxable for the first time under the new law, must pay $125 tax by January 31, 1959. If he maintains an amusement device which becomes taxable on January 1, 1959, he must pay a tax of $5 by January 31, 1959.

Mr. Machiz said amusement and gaming devices for which taxpayers have already paid the tax of $10 or $250 for each device for the fiscal year 1959 are not affected by the new law.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT

The first air-conditioned home in the world was built in 1905 on a large hill directly above Luray Caverns, Va. A shaft was dug through the earth down to the cave, and the 54 degree air forced by fans through the home does an excellent job of cooling on warm days.

So you've finally succumbed to Junior's pleas to add a puppy to the family. Of course, he's promised on Scout's Honor to care for the dog. This he'll do for a week. But you can bet from there on Mom's the caretaker of the livestock—even for Dad's hunting dogs.

After you've learned that man's best friend isn't always the same for women, you'll also have to realize that there are several very basic things to caring for the family's canine mascot. He needs exercise, the right food, and understanding. For example, too often children—and adults too—forget that a puppy is a baby and should be treated as such.

Most of the leading dog food processors have excellent booklets on raising and caring for dogs. Even before the puppy arrives you should get a copy or consult a veterinarian.

Keeping Towser clean heads the list of musts for a happy pup. Bathing him too often, however, is harmful. It removes oils from his coat and invites skin troubles. Proper feeding and frequent brushing will keep his coat shining and reduce "dog" odor. Don't forget, a dog's nails grow too. Clip or file them when they get too long.

If your dog lives in his own private house, it should be cleaned frequently to protect him against the spread of diseases and parasites which are harbored by nooks such as dog kennels. A disinfectant solution made of household lye—1 can of lye to 10 gallons of water—does an excellent job of killing roundworm eggs, flea larvae, distemper virus, and many other germs which can harm your dog. You can protect the pup by scrubbing his kennel and food dishes with this solution. It's about as economical and effective as anything you could use.

Big Spending Dangers

When Senator John McClellan made the sober statement two weeks ago that the United States was moving toward disaster, he listed big government spending as one of the four major destructive factors. And he placed most of the blame for skyrocketing non-defense expenditures squarely on the shoulders of the citizens. An aroused citizenry could call the turn on Congressional spending, he said; but too many people are apathetic and thus politically impotent while a comparatively few, in pressure groups, demand ever-expanding federal outlays.

What is the danger in constantly rising federal spending? The gravest danger is that when the federal government spends such a high percentage of the national income it is consolidating political and economic power in the bureaucracy. With an $80 billion budget, the government has encroached upon the national economy to a dominant degree. Too many decisions affecting the nation's economic life must be made in Washington. The national income is approximately $360 billion. Thus the federal government activity represents nearly 25% of this whole vast interchange of money and the powers that go with it.

With so much at stake, the government feels compelled to use outright manipulation in the nation's monetary activities and other areas of the economy to "keep things running" as it desires. Powerful controls are needed in this activity. Once bureaus get powers they never relinquish them, voluntarily. Such powers ultimately would bring on government Capitalism which is just another form of Socialism. The Scandinavian countries are examples of government or state Capitalism operated by Labor - Socialist parties, with the government actually owning only a portion of the basic industries but rigidly controlling all economic activities.

Some economists declare that when a government takes as much as 30% of the national income in taxes; the nation inevitably must go over the hump and into some form of Socialism. We are perilously close to that milestone. The Socialists and Communists and the followers of our home-grown political demagogues say—"So what—it takes big government, and big government spending for progress."

Facts To Remember

This is just not so. In 1800, right after adoption of the U. S. Constitution, our governments—local, state and federal—took only 10% of the national income; in 1925, a century and a quarter later, government took only 8% of the national income. In those 125 years, America made its greatest gains in history: national wealth jumped from $2½ billion to $307 billion; population from 5½ to 116 million; output per worker from 10¢ to $1.30 an hour in value. All these gains were made while government at all levels actually reduced from 10% to 8% the amount of taxes as related to national income.

Almost as serious as the danger of concentrated power is the inflation pressure that big deficit spending will bring. This wipes out value in the pocketbook of every citizen. The deficit for the fiscal year just closed was more than $2 billion; the government's own forecast for this current year is for a $12 billion deficit. This deficit spending directly dilutes every monetary asset. It is money in circulation without wealth having been created by production. It could trigger off the runaway inflation that would ravage our strength at a time of international crisis.

A Citizen's Responsibilities

The federal government could be cut to a substantial degree—and its power and danger held in check—without hurting our national defense. Today it is the nation's largest employer. In fact, its civilian employees now total 2,373,390—more than the nation's 11 largest industrial corporations employ. The government owns and operates 700 substantial corporations and 19,000 small businesses of all kinds, plus many service organizations. These corporations lose about $10 billion a year. But they don't go out of business; they simply ignore their deficits and continue to operate on tax money.

The citizens have it in their power to control government spending. Maurice H. Stans, director, U. S. Bureau of the Budget, says: "Any president or budget director, however determined, cannot singlehandedly reduce federal expenditures. The final responsibility is with the people, acting through their representatives in Congress." The Socialist - Communist conspiracy has demonstrated that the Left Wing crowd can get 50,000 letters into Washington in 72 hours; and they are doing it all the time, influencing legislation harmful to our country. We have more than 100 million freedom-loving adult citizens who could nullify all the pressure groups and control our government—if they spent just a few minutes a week fulfilling their citizenship responsibilities. Are freedom and prosperity held so cheaply that we will lose them—by default?

Hurricane winds greater than 150 miles per hour are uncommon. An average hurricane would be about 120 miles per hour just outside the eye, tapering off to 40 miles on the outer edge of the storm, according to the Navy's "Hurricane Hunters."

A Home Built for Provincial Type Furniture

This is a traditional style home whose exterior of brick, wood siding and field stone make an ideal background for antique or provincial furniture.

The entry opens directly into the living room and dining area. There is a closet for coat storage here. The living room has a fireplace at one end and sliding glass doors leading to a porch. This room opens directly into the dining area or can be shut off from it by means of folding doors, which lends itself to expansion for entertaining large groups.

Structural lighting in the living room features built in illuminated valances over the front windows and over the sliding window wall to the patio. Light is thrown both upward to the ceiling to create a feeling of spaciousness and downward over the draperies to give a daylight effect. Intensity of the light can be adjusted to any level with built in Luxtrol light controls which take the place of ordinary on-off switches.

A chandelier in the dining room can also be adjusted by a Luxtrol light control so that the hostess may have a candlelight effect or any other level of illumination by merely turning a dial.

The kitchen is to the front with the sink under windows facing the street which gives good supervision of the entrance. There is a pass thru from the kitchen to the dining room.

The master bedroom has double closets and a washroom at one corner. This washroom is also accessible for the side entrance and the basement stairway.

The other two bedrooms are of average size and have closets for storage also. The front bedroom can double as a study guest room and has folding doors opening into the living room which would be of advantage when entertaining larger groups.

There is a full basement with a large area set aside for recreation or hobby room.

Plans are available for $15 for one set or $35 for three sets from Clifford N. Wright, Architect, 19115 Schoolcraft, Detroit 23, Michigan.

Allergies: What They Are, What Causes Them

Allergies cause many of the most perplexing problems faced by modern medical science. While some of the phenomena relating to allergic disease have been known for hundreds of years, there are still many unanswered questions.

It is estimated that close to 20,000,000 Americans suffer from some form of allergy, four million of whom have hay fever or asthma. These two allergies alone cause a loss of 25 million work days a year... very expensive diseases to both the working man and his employer.

Allergies fall into several categories. Inhalant allergic reactions are undoubtedly the most well known to us. These include hay fever, types of asthma, allergic headaches and other allergic manifestations. Inhalant allergies are normally seasonal. They are caused by air-borne pollens from trees, grasses, and weeds. Persons allergic to one, frequently are not bothered by the others. For example, tree pollen sufferers have their greatest difficulty in late spring when tree pollen is prevalent. Grasses usually give off their pollen in June and early July and the weed varieties come along in August until early frost.

Food allergy is also prevalent. Offenders in this group include a wide variety of foods such as eggs, milk, shellfish, nuts, strawberries, etc. Hives are commonly caused by an allergic reaction to certain foods.

Contact allergy is better known to us as the itching blisters caused by brief contact with poison ivy and poison sumac plants. Certain chemicals and dyes also cause severe allergies in persons who become sensitized to them through exposure.

Bacterial infections, which may often go unnoticed, can cause allergic reactions in many persons. Frequently the infection is not serious enough to cause fever but nevertheless can develop into obvious allergic symptoms. Another form of allergy which is not well known is a physical allergy in which people are sensitive to light, heat, cold, etc. These allergies are somewhat rare and are not ordinarily the reason for the common allergic symptoms of wheezing and sneezing.

What is an allergic reaction? It is a condition of unusual sensitivity to substances ordinarily harmless when taken into the body or to those which come into contact with the body. The agents which bring about this unusual sensitivity are called allergens. It may take from a few days to many years for an allergen to produce sensitivity. What happens is that the offending substance sensitizes areas of the body over a period of time, and the body reacts to this by producing antibodies. You may not know that you have an allergy until you experience a skin eruption, itching watery eyes, a runny nose, sneezing, coughing and other irritating symptoms.

Allergies develop just as often in children as in adults. If your children suddenly develop sneezing, coughing, watery eyes or runny noses, skin rashes or digestive disturbances, it is wise to have your family doctor check the child for a possible allergy.

Your doctor has many tests to determine if your symptoms result from an allergy or some other cause. With his help you may be able to discover the cause of your many hours of discomfort due to allergic reaction. Once your doctor knows the cause of your allergy, he can frequently prescribe a course of action which will not only relieve the condition, but frequently prevent it.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Fattening Steers In Late Summer

Most cattlemen utilize pasture liberally in their cattle feeding operations. This is especially called for in the case of big cattle, two-year-olds or yearlings, and with the lower grades of feeders that will never command top market prices but may still turn a good profit.

Whether fed any corn or not, the early season pasture does not require any protein supplement, for it is rich in nearly all necessary nutrients, especially protein.

However, with the advent of dry weather and cool nights in late summer or early fall, the protein and other valuable nutrients in pasture decline more and more. It becomes necessary to feed one to two pounds of oil meal or comparable supplement per head daily. It is also necessary to feed a liberal amount of corn.

Some cattle feeders prefer to turn their cattle into a dry lot to finish more satisfactorily for the market and in this way set their cattle apart from the grass finished cattle that arrive at the fall market in great numbers. In other words, as cattle get more into market condition, pasture is of less importance.

But on pasture, particularly, the corn and, of course, other grain should be ground. In any event, pigs would find it difficult to salvage whole corn kernels in the cattle manure on all parts of the pasture. The chances are that the crows or blackbirds would beat them to it. Salt and pure water need to be readily accessible at all times. In some cattle feeding areas trace mineralized salt is offered in a divided mineral box alongside of a suitable phosphate, and under a weather-protective roof.

Creature comfort for the cattle must be kept in mind whether it is extreme winter weather or the exact opposite during the hot summer. Shade is essential, especially for fattening cattle, and spraying for flies is important too; anything to keep the cattle as contented as possible.

Attention to these precautions in feeding and providing for creature comforts means greater gain, greater feed economy and greater profits for you.

Question: Can you give me a close estimate of the value of skim milk or buttermilk as compared to corn for hogs?

Answer: The two dairy by-products are worth the same, pound for pound. When fed to hogs, usually in the proportion of about 3 parts skim milk to 1 pound corn, and compared with other balanced rations, the answer of the pigs has been that 100 pounds of skim milk is worth fully one-half the price of a bushel of corn when fed in the winter or off pasture. But when pigs were on pasture, 100 pounds of skim milk was worth less than one-half the price of a bushel of corn. In other words, pasture supplied many of the nutrients contained in skim milk, but much more cheaply. Cheese factory whey was found to be almost exactly one-half as valuable as skim milk or buttermilk.

St. Joseph's High School Activities

Inaugurating its round of cultural activities, for its first assembly of the year the recently organized French Club will join with the Latin groups in a program of patriotic songs and poems commemorating Armistice Day, Tuesday, November 11.

The Latin students will open the program with the salute to the flag, Anchors Aweigh, The Marine Hymn, The Caissons Go Rolling Along, and God Bless America, all in Latin.

The French verse choir will then take over with three poems in English: In Flanders Fields, America's Answer, and the beloved Rouge Bouquet, by Joyce Kilmer. Taps, played by Phil Topper, will fittingly follow Rouge Bouquet.

The program will close with La Marseillaise, sung by the French Club, and The Star Spangled Banner by the entire student body.

The two groups propose to repeat their assembly that same Tuesday evening, November 11 at eight o'clock, for their parents.

Le Cercle Francais is planning two additional assemblies for the present school year, — one at Christmas and a French play in the spring.

Justin Wasilifsky was elected president of the club. He will be assisted by William Henshaw, vice-president; Yvonne Henke, secretary, and Terry Best treasurer. Rita Ramavege is permanent committee chairman.
