Milk Producers Announce Price Increase

The Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers last week notified the Baltimore distributors that on Sunday, November 1, the price of Class 1 milk—that bottled for consumption—would increase from $5.70 per hundredweight to $5.90. The 20 cent increase is equivalent to 1/2 cent per quart.

This is the first change in the price paid to the farmer for his Class 1 milk since April 1, 1958. At that time, the dairy farmer Cooperative reduced the wholesale price from $5.90 to the $5.70 which has been in effect for the past 20 months.

The percentages purchase discounts instituted at that time will be continued on the new price, it was stated by Manager W. P. Sadler. He added that "Of course not all milk is bottled. The variation in day by day bottling requirements means that milk not needed for bottling on a particular day has to be disposed of in lower return manufactured products. The average price received by Association members in September, including tank premium was $4.95. This price, without exception, is below the level of returns to farmers supplying other nearby markets."

The action by the MCMP will serve to improve its "blend" price and should mean an improvement in the milk checks of the so-called "independent" or non-member milk producers. Certain Baltimore milk dealers obtain the Cooperative's monthly blend price then pay their non-member producers that plus a small additional sum.

The price change on November 1 comes prior to the January 1 date when, it is expected, a Federal Milk Marketing Order requested by the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers will be effective. In a series of informational meetings called by the MCMP recently, officials of the Cooperative told the members and non-members attending (approximately 900 individuals were on hand at 21 meetings in 12 days) that the inauguration of the Federal Milk Marketing Order will help stabilize the local milk market and bring improved prices to dairy farmers, estimates of increased milk checks being between twenty and thirty cents a hundredweight.

"Our Directors decided we could not wait until the Federal Order became effective. Our staff canvassed production and sales and concluded that a 20 cent increase per hundredweight on November 1 was justified," reported Edgar G. Emrich, MCMP president, of Thurmont.

"I want to emphasize this: increasing the price today means that when the Federal Order goes into effect, the full increase to farmers mentioned during our recent meetings may be reduced somewhat. I do not believe anyone will quarrel with an action which brings partial financial assistance two months earlier than expected.

"One thing which affected our decision was the loss of Baltimore market producers to the higher-pay markets of Philadelphia, York and Lancaster, Pa., and the Washington, New York and New Jersey market. The movement of producers to higher-pay markets has been noticeable and dairy farmers cannot be blamed for shipping where the financial return is best. This situation, however, could affect the MCMP's obligation to the people of Baltimore to supply them with fresh, high-quality milk.

"There is another point which needs emphasis: only the MCMP had the strength to seek a Federal Order and put it through. It was said at the meetings and I wish to repeat it—that were all dairy farmers members of a strong Cooperative, there would never have been a need for a Federal Order. It is the solidarity of our Cooperative membership which is bringing the Order and which is bringing an 'advance payment' so to speak. I urge everyone to stand firmly behind us."

liament" elected by the people; yet 85% of the property is owned by the municipality or state and practically all the people work for the government. It is much like Russia in many ways; but its people claim not to be Communists. The Polish people take part in no propaganda, but ask only to be let alone and left free to run their own affairs. They claim to be 100% neutral, but surely appear friendly toward the Russians yet hate the Germans who bombed them unmercifully during World War II.

History Of Poland

The city of Warsaw was founded in the tenth century and Sunday I attended a church dating back to 1187, although Christianity was formally introduced into Poland in 962 and was actively practiced in Warsaw in 1241 when the Polish armies repelled the Mongol hordes. In fact, the whole of Southern Europe owes its freedom to the armies of Poland. Again it was the Polish armies which stopped the Turks from overrunning Europe in the 17th century. The whole of Europe owes a great debt to the Polish people whose kings fought continual attacks from all sides. Poland has a most marvelous history; and through the centuries has enjoyed periods of peace and prosperity, enjoying the culture of science, art, and literature, starting with the great astronomer Copernicus and ending with the great pianist Paderewski.

Unfortunately, Poland was torn asunder during World War II and Hitler gave it a terrible and unnecessary beating, principally—so he claimed—because of the large number of Jewish people who had escaped from Germany into Poland. As a result, nearly 800,000 innocent people perished in Warsaw between September 1, 1939 and January 17, 1945. This was not only the result of ruthless bombings, but of great fires and massacres, all under Hitler's directions. As a result the population of Poland dropped from 35,000,000 before World War II to around 28,000,000 in 1958. Polish People Continue To Be Courageous Notwithstanding the barbarous treatment by the Germans, Poland's people continue to be happy and courageous. The people are poor, there being very few automobiles and almost no bicycles. Living costs and taxes are high; but the people are very industrious and saving. Looking out of my hotel window this morning, I counted only three automobiles, but saw five home-made wagons with the shafts made of poles cut from forests and the harnesses of the faithful horses made of worn-out iron tires from broken cartwheels. Yet Warsaw is now mostly rebuilt and I should be proud to live in it.

Last week, in Germany, I was amazed at the energy of the Germans and noted their great activity. I wondered why this energy was not used to curb Hitler in his wickedness. It almost seems as if a vast number of Germans—in their own minds—hoped that Hitler would win. I further feel that many Germans believe another "Hitler" will arise who will have all of his energy but who will be without his sins! Each of my readers—many of whom are loyal United

OUR STATE UNIVERSITY

During the past summer, more than sixty medical students received Summer Fellowships from the University of Maryland School of Medicine. The fellowships were awarded by the Committee on Scholarships and Loans under the chairmanship of Dr. J. C. Krantz Jr. The financial support for the fellowships was provided by a number of scientific foundations: The United States Public Health Service, The Josiah Macy Foundation, The National Science Foundation, The National Foundation, The Lederle Drug Company and the Hitchcock Fund. Each monetary grant amounted to about six hundred dollars for the three summer months of employment.

Every department of the Medical School participates in this program, which provides for the student an opportunity to increase his own medical knowledge, and perhaps, to contribute something to the knowledge of medical science. Some of the students are asked to write reports on their completed projects, with the hope that they may be published in the scientific literature. At present, States citizens, even though perhaps of German descent—must decide for himself; however, this is my reaction: Although I came to Central Europe an optimist, hoping to find some attractive German stocks and bonds to recommend, I am returning home pessimistic. The fire ignited by Emperor Wilhelm II and his Prussian followers may be yet smoldering. Wise are those who now invest their money only in the United States of America or in Canada.

ent, plans are being made to schedule a Student Scientific Seminar sometime during the winter months, at which time, the students will be given the opportunity to present the results of their work.

The past success of the program is encouraging to both the faculty and the foundations which support it, and it is hoped that even more fellowships will be available during the coming year.

Holes in the Head

Doctors aren't sure why the human head comes equipped with eight noles called sinuses. But victims of sinus headache are unanimous in agreeing with the popular expression: "I need one like I need another hole in my head!"

Perhaps nature left the sinus cavities in the skull to reduce the weight of the head. Whatever her reason, she also equipped them with a cleansing mechanism. Sinus walls are lined with tiny hairs which move back and forth with a wave-like motion, thus maintaining a flow of lubricating mucus down through narrow passageways into the nose.

Unfortunately, emotional stress, allergy, infection or any one of a dozen other conditions may cause this mechanism to go awry. The sinuses fill up with fluid, bulge out against nerve endings in the head and face, and a sinus attack is on.

The pain of a sinus attack, because of the many nerve endings in the face and head, sometimes seems to come from other areas. Most often it resembles the classical headache, but sometimes it poses as a toothache. Usually a feeling of pressure and swelling in face and forehead accompanies the ache. A sinus attack often lasts several days unless treatment is obtained.

The eight sinuses come in four pairs, in the bones above the eyes and on either side of the nose. The average forehead sinus can hold approximately a teaspoonful of fluid. When it does, it hurts.

In some instances surgery is needed to correct continuing sinus trouble. In other cases frequent draining of the sinuses by insertion of wires leading up through the nose is required. Fortunately for most victims, newer and better pharmaceuticals can stop sinus headache and relieve its nagging pain.

Five million people visit doctors annually to seek relief from sinus headache. What is needed, according to a headache specialist, is a multiple attack on sinus headache so that its symptoms and their causes are removed. A new drug called Sinutab, developed according to these specifications, provides in a single tablet both long and short acting pain killers, a mild tranquilizing action and a specific compound to decongest and drain the bulging cavities by unclogging the passages that lead out of them.

Some day, perhaps, medical science may discover why nature has equipped man with sinus cavities. But even understanding their origin won't make sinuses less liable to disease. As long as man survives, we can anticipate that he will seek relief from the pain of plugged-up sinuses. But now, with newer drugs, he can obtain faster, surer relief from the discomfort of sinus headaches.

"Let's look at what's happened in this country. In the last fiscal year, your Uncle Sam paid about 11 cents out of every dollar he took in on taxation of all kinds for interest on his gigantic national debt. This year he recently estimated it costs about 12 cents on each dollar for the same purpose. So if you pay $500 in federal income tax, $60 buys you nothing new but pays the cost of hiring money to do something."—Utica, N. Y., Observer-Dispatch

3 3/4% INTEREST ON NEW U.S. SAVINGS BONDS NOW IN EFFECT

Congress makes the Bonds you buy and Bonds you already own better than ever!

Now U.S. Savings Bonds are a better buy than ever in three important ways:

- All Series E and H Bonds bought since June 1, 1959 now earn 3 3/4% interest when held to maturity.
- Older Bonds will also pay more—an extra 1/2%, from June 1 on, if you hold them to maturity.
- All Series E Bonds, old or new, now carry an automatic extension privilege; they'll keep paying liberal interest for 10 years beyond maturity.

Three big new dollar benefits that make it smart to buy new Bonds—and hang on to the ones you have!

40 million Americans now own Bonds

But a good return isn't the only reason so many people buy Bonds. They've discovered that there's no easier, safer, more American way to save.

You can buy Bonds automatically, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work; you can buy them where you bank; your youngsters can even buy them at school, through the School Savings Plan for U.S. Savings Stamps.

U.S. Government guarantees that the cash value of your Bonds cannot drop; it can only grow. And if your Bonds should be lost, stolen, or destroyed, the Treasury will replace them free.

Finally, every Bond you buy does a big job for America. Because today peace costs money—money for military strength and for science; and money saved by individuals to keep our economy sound.

Your Bonds help provide this money—help America keep the peace. So, to build a brighter future for yourself and your family—and to protect it—save with U.S. Savings Bonds. They're better than ever.

The Ugly American

The Ugly American is a book that should be read by every American. A more descriptive title would have been "The Stupid American." The book has become highly controversial. Some people in our State Department do not like it. Other exponents of the striped-trousers, cocktail party type of "diplomacy", including a few highly placed Senators, do not like it. The book dramatizes the fact that our foreign policy practices in strategic parts of the world are stupid-alienating friends, wasting billions of tax money, and contributing to the continuing, bit-by-bit victories of Communists all over the world.

The authors, William J. Lederer and Eugene Burdick, know what they are writing about. Both are established American journalists. Captain Lederer is a ranking Naval officer and an authority on Southeast Asia, which is the setting for the fictionalized story: The Ugly American, Eugene Burdick studied at first hand the politics of the area and events that later were to become a part of the book. Both men developed an overpowering impulse to warn the American people of the nature of our disastrous defeats in diplomacy and foreign policy. So they wrote a fictional story based on factual incidents and circumstances.

A Best-Seller
It is such an important book that, although it was written in a kind of pulp fiction style, it was chosen as a Book-of-the-Month Club selection and is now in its 16th printing. Some publicity on the book implied that it holds the American people up to scorn before the eyes of the world. It doesn't. It clearly pictures the American people, as a whole, in good character with high motives and unselfish intentions toward their neighbors throughout the world.

However, the book does indict the American people for ignorance and apathy in the face of what the authors consider to be disastrous conditions in our world-wide foreign service; and it warns that these conditions may indicate that the nation itself is losing integrity and power "in bits and fragments."

In Southeast Asia

The locale of the story is Sarkham, a mythical country in southeast Asia. In every activity of foreign service in Sarkham—and the rest of southern Asia—the Communists are shown to be outsmarting the United States. The U. S. foreign service characters, with few exceptions, are depicted as incompetent in just about everything except playing host at Embassy parties, and hoisting cocktails. These U. S. representatives are shown to have an almost total lack of understanding of the Sarkhanese problems, the nation's people; and of the dedicated, cunning Communists. No American official can understand the native language or read the local newspapers.

Communists have infiltrated the American Embassy staff in Sarkham. The exposure of two of the Embassy's most trusted servants as Communist spies finally awakens a new U. S. Ambassador to the magnitude of the Communist operation in Asia. He becomes a valuable foreign service officer through great personal sacrifice and effort—only to be relieved of his post when he recommends to the U. S. State Department some measures to correct the destructive mistakes and cope with the highly effective moves by the Communist foreign service organization in Sarkham.

Our Tragic Failure

The book ends with this final failure—an ambassador who finally had begun to prepare himself adequately to render effective service to our nation being kicked out by the State Department and replaced by a party-throwing, hard-drinking extrovert whose every action shocked the sensibilities of Asians and who hadn't a chance to halt the spread of Communist prestige and power.

The Ugly American, in effect, draws into telephoto focus the dreadful menace of Communism, particularly the high calibre of intelligence and dedication being employed by the Reds in all the countries of the world, and our continuing defeat. In an epilogue, authors Lederer and Burdick soberly state: "Without pitting one Soviet soldier against one American soldier, the Soviet has won a staggering series of victories... Even among the nations which have seemed committed to us there is a rising tide of anti-Americanism... We have been losing, not only in Asia, but everywhere."

Next week: Conclusions of the Authors.

Safety Stressed During Halloween

Ghosts may be stalking the streets a couple of evenings this weekend, but they'll be real live youngsters out celebrating Halloween, motorists were reminded today by the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission. Goblins in white and witches in black will parade from home to home in their neighborhoods, out for "Trick or Treat", it was pointed out. Small fry may be accompanied in some instances by parents, but most youngsters will be out on their own, and in the excitement of the evening they may forget some of the ordinary rules of caution in crossing streets and walking along highways which skirt suburban developments. Motorists are urged to "double their caution to compensate for the increased hazards presented by Halloween."

Saturday night is usually the busiest night of the week for traffic law enforcement officers, the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission emphasized. This Saturday night will be even busier. Visibility is reduced at this time of year because of earlier darkness. Frequently the ability to see is further restricted by rain.

If your headlights reveal strangely dressed youngsters within their range this Saturday night, reduce speed, the State Safety Commission recommended. Just one youngster in a group along the roadway might suddenly dart across the pavement. In such an instance, your brakes and tires must be dependable, or a life could be lost.

Maryland's death rate, due to traffic accidents, has increased at an alarming rate, stated the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission. 421 persons have been killed in Maryland's highways and streets to date as compared with 397 for the same period last year. The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission needs the help of every citizen to aid in the war on traffic accidents. Please be courteous—careful and cooperate in the big task of reducing fatalities and injuries—don't let a Halloween traffic accident haunt you the rest of your life.

Benefit Shrine Circus Next Week

Elephants and acrobats and heart-in-the-mouth thrillers... all the magic that circuses are made of—is coming back to Baltimore with the annual appearance of the Boumi Temple Shrine-Polack Bros. Circus at the Fifth Regiment Armory, giving two performances a day from November 2 through November 7.

Many of the acts with the circus have appeared individually on television, such as the Besalou trained elephants who have been on Ed Sullivan's show several times. Others, such as Prince El Kigordo's jungle-bred African lions, and new with the circus this year.

New aerial features are the triple somersaults of the Flying Alexanders, the High Wire Coronas and the daring sweeps of Senor Cardona on his cloud swing. For glamour, there is the ballet grace of Princess Tajana on the trapeze and the precision of the Aerialovels.

To round out the program, the Ting Brothers perform amazing feats of contortion and balance and the Reynoso Trio defy gravity while hanging by their teeth.

All of this is blended together with clowns running riot and the special kind of music you hear only at the circus.

Advance tickets are on sale at B & O Ticket Office, Baltimore and Charles Streets.

First Bible printed in America was printed in the Indian language.

(Bloomingdale's vivacious Fashion Coordinator, Mrs. Janina Willner, just returned from her first trip to Japan, used her Poland Law School-trained mind and her wide U. S. retailing experience to style and order a host of new ideas in accessories and apparel from Japan for her store's Christmas season.)

"The lush costumes and scenery of the traditional Japanese theater gave me a whole new concept of color and form. The medieval splendor of their fabric and design is a natural adjunct to next winter's ornate U. S. fashions. For example, I bought dozens of these magnificent old 'obis' (sashes) which will make heavenly handbags for the smart American woman.

in rich red velvet, in which I made 10 style changes to suit American taste.

"Handsome, dignified and restrained are the black, brown and grey kimonos worn by Japanese men. I have a hunch they will be seen around many an American Christmas tree on the morning of December 25, 1959!

"Japan's printing and paper is exquisite. I ordered quantities of their stationery, plus bridge score pads and Christmas cards—which I had packaged for U. S. consumption. Especially exciting were the old Japanese woodblock prints—that I had mounted on small accessory screens to add charm and interest to tabletops, bookcases and those troublesome 'bare spots' around the home or office!"

ly described under the will of J. Bernard Welty, also more particularly hereinafter described, who died a resident of Frederick County, Maryland, on or about December 25, 1957; that the respondents, William Sanders and Ida Sanders, his wife, are the tenants of said real estate devised by the will of J. Bernard Welty to Tyson J. Welty, and the remaining respondents are the remaining heirs of the said Mary Celeste Welty, deceased, (and their respective spouses as indicated in the title to this proceeding).

That prior to her death, the said Marie Celeste Welty was the owner in fee simple of two parcels of real estate situate, lying and being in Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Maryland, consisting of a house and lot in the Town of Emmitsburg, known and designated as Nos. 19 and 21 West Main Street, and of a farm on the Keysville Road containing 180 acres of land, more or less, both parcels having been conveyed to the said Marie Celeste Welty by James E. Elder and wife by deed dated the 7th day of October, 1905, and recorded in Liber D.H.H. No. 11, folio 302, one of the land records of Frederick County, certified copy of said deed being filed herewith, prayed to be taken as a part hereof and marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 1".

That on or about the 7th day of October, 1905, the said Marie Celeste Welty did execute a paper writing purporting to convey to the said J. Bernard Welty, her husband, an undivided one-half interest in the two parcels above described, "to have and to hold said undivided half interest with myself as joint tenants and not as tenants in common", such deed being recorded in Liber 271, folio 299, one of the land records of Frederick County, certified copy of said deed being filed herewith, prayed to be taken as a part hereof and marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 2".

That your Orators had no knowledge of their interest in the aforesaid real estate until after the death of the said J. Bernard Welty, on or about December 25, 1957, when a check of the land records of Frederick County, for the purpose of obtaining an adequate description of the aforesaid properties for inventory and tax purposes in the estate of the said J. Bernard Welty, disclosed the aforesaid deed and the interests of the heirs of Marie Celeste Welty in the above described two properties.

That, as previously stated, the said J. Bernard Welty by his will dated February 2, 1955, purported to devise the aforesaid farm property to the respondent, Tyson J. Welty, and the aforesaid town property to the respondent, Ethel Welty Gelwicks, said will being probated December 30, 1957, and recorded in Liber D.H.H. #3, folio 381, one of the will records of Frederick County, certified copy of said will being filed herewith, prayed to be taken as a part hereof, and marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 3" but such will is void and of no effect as to the interests of the heirs of Marie Celeste Welty in such properties because said purported conveyance is either (a) a nullity for the reason that there is a void attempt to create a joint ownership, in which case the said J. Bernard Welty would have been entitled only to the sum of $2,000.00 plus one-half of the estate of Marie Celeste Welty under Article 93, Section 127 of the Annotated Code of Maryland, as enacted by Chapter 387 of the Acts of 1933, or (b) such purported conveyance conveyed only an undivided one-half interest in such properties to said J. Bernard Welty.

That despite the above, your Orators are advised and allege that the respondents, Tyson J. Welty and Ethel Welty Gelwicks are in possession of and claim the full and undivided fee simple title to such properties; that an actual controversy exists between the parties hereto.

To the End Therefore:

1. That this Court may take jurisdiction in the premises and enter a decree removing the cloud upon the title of your Orators in and to the properties described in the Bill of Complaint.

2. That this Court shall declare the rights and interest of the parties hereto in and to the properties described in the Bill of Complaint.

3. That your Orators may have such other and further relief as the nature of their case may require.

Upon the foregoing Petition, it is ORDERED this 15th day of October, 1959, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, that a subpoena be issued for the respondent defendants as recited in the titling hereof, returnable to the 30th day of October, 1959, commanding them to show cause, if any they have, within 15 days thereafter why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed therein.

And further that notice be given to the non-resident defendants as recited in the titling hereof, as well as the unknown heirs of Marie Celeste Welty, deceased, by order of publication, of the object and substance of the foregoing Bill of Complaint in a newspaper published in Frederick County, Maryland, once a week for four weeks before the 21st day

If you're transplanting shrubs or trees this fall, don't be afraid to prune back some of the top-growth. Pruning helps balance the top of the plant with the root system, that's suffered loss in moving.

Newly planted trees and shrubs need a good supply of water around their roots. The first year after transplanting is usually critical.

So, don't be afraid to prune back the top. And keep newly transplanted trees and shrubs well watered all winter. Wrapping the trunk or shading the new plantings will help, too.

Go Easy On Fertilizer

Probably as many plants are killed with kindness as are starved to death. Maybe more.

Don't fertilize ornamental plants or shade trees heavily in the fall. Wait until dormant season, or early spring.

Heavy feeding now may stimulate new growth, which will be tender and winter-kill.

We recently saw a southern magnolia that was nearly ruined by too much fertilizer at the wrong time. A heavy feeding in the fall had stimulated new growth, and activated the tree in general. It didn't have time to harden off before winter set in.

The results? Seven feet of the top were killed by cold. The top had to be trimmed out and these folks ended up with a poorly shaped tree.

Cure For Hardpan

When you're transplanting and run into hardpan, take extra care. There are lots of places in Maryland where heavy clay soil or hardpan can be found. They'll create problems for trees and shrubs, unless you go to work to insure good drainage and loosen up the subsoil for roots.

When you're transplanting, leave a good sized ball of dirt on the tree or bush. You ought to dig a hole twice as big around, and twice as deep as this ball of dirt, even in good soil. But wider and deeper yet, if the soil is full of clay or hardpan.

Fill the bottom of the transplanting hole with coarse material, such as sand or gravel if drainage has been a problem. On hardpan, a posthole digger or crowbar can be used to penetrate the hardpan.

Then, in the area close to the roots, fill the hole with topsoil, or a mixture of topsoil and organic matter. This will provide easy going for new roots for the first year or so.

University of Maryland Extension Service Fact Sheet 80, "Planting Ornamental Trees and Shrubs" gives lots of helpful suggestions on how to do it. You can get a copy from your county agent.

Laurel's New Track Used For Present Meet

Laurel Race Course presented its new mile-and-one-eighth main track and one mile turf course on Wednesday when the modernistic plant opened its annual 14-day fall meeting, highlighted by the eighth running of the world famed $100,000 Washington D. C. International on November 11.

Construction on the $1,000,000 improvement program began two days after last season's international under the supervision of Laurel vice president and general manager George H. (Brick) Martin. The nine furlong main track, formerly one mile in circumference, gives Laurel the largest racing surface of any eastern track between New Jersey and Florida.

Prompting this major reconstruction program was Laurel's quest to provide the finest grass course possible over which the global mile-and-one-half International is run. The "old" turf track and hoe for the year, or put away other gardening tools, clean them up, oil and repair them. It'll save time when you're busy next spring, and will make your tools last longer.

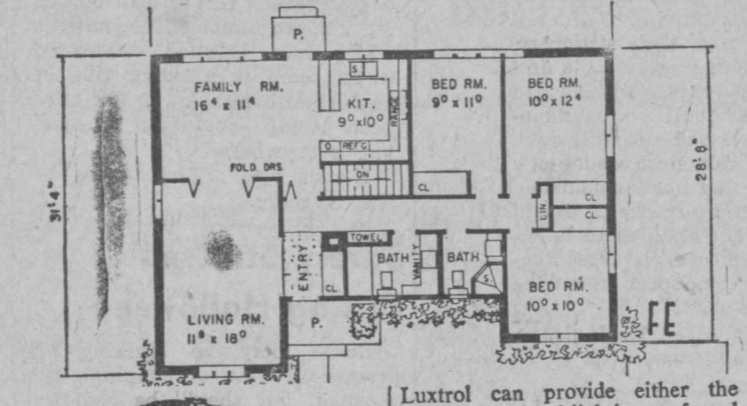

You can transplant trees and shrubs until early-or-mid-December if the weather is mild enough to work outdoors.

There won't be a "Garden Living" television program this week, or next, but be sure to watch channel 11 on Saturday, November 14, from 1:30 to 2:00 p. m.

COLONIAL RANCH HOME FEATURES MODERN LIGHTING

Due to their innate warmth and charm, colonial ranch homes are among the most popular design now under construction. Here, Clifford N. Wright, A.I.A., has executed a moderate price home with the true character of this traditional style.

The well balanced assemblage of exterior finish material, battens on plywood, brick veneer, and field stone veneer, combined with the well covered entry yield a welcoming facade to the incoming visitor. Such added details as properly sized shutters and well-proportioned boxed window give the resident true pride of ownership.

The clean planning and interior styling lend this home equally well to either traditional or contemporary decorating and furnishings.

The slate floored entry gives direct access to the living room, family room-kitchen, and bedroom hall, adding a note of luxury to the overall plan. The living room is independent and thus clear of all cross traffic.

A special feature is Luxtrol light control which makes it possible, by turn of a dial, to brighten or dim valance and cove lighting in the living and family rooms. In the family or recreation room, course here was about seven-eighths of a mile.

A seven furlong and a mile chute have been constructed as additions to the main track. Replacing the hedge as the turf course "trail" is the placement of a gooseneck aluminum rail which has extensions covering the inside 10 feet of the grass. Thus, on International Day, the field in the global classic will have an area of unused grass near the rail.

Stretch runners in the International will have an added boost to their chances as a result of the construction of a new finish line—about a sixteenth of a mile beyond the regular wire, making the stretch run 1,345 feet.

First of the four stakes to be decided this fall is the $70,000 Selma Stakes on Saturday, Oct. 31. Traditionally one of the season's most important tests for 2-year-old fillies, the mile-and-one-sixteenth Selma has again attracted all of the top Juvenile misses of 1959, including Cain Hoy Stable's Heavenly Body.

Maryland-raled 2-year-olds compete in the six furlong $10,000 added Maryland Futurity on Friday, November 6.

The $20,000 added Turf Cup, one mile and a furlong on the turf, heads the card on Saturday, Nov. 7. Among the past winners of the challenging Turf Cup was Hasty House Farm's Mahan who immediately followed with a score in the 1957 International.

The International, of course, climaxes Laurel's autumn meet on Veteran's Day with the title of "Best Horse In The World" up for decision. Outstanding representatives from the United States (Round Table and Bald Eagle), France (Midnight Sun and Mi Carina), England (Nagami and Primera, New Zealand (Up and Coming), Australia (Vogel), Mexico (Lea B), Russia (Garnir and Flang) and Lightning (Peru) have accepted Laurel invitations.

Your Home . . . How Safe?

Webster defines the word HOME as "a dwelling place of a man and his family." A good bit of man's time is spent at home and it has been said that a man is safe from all harm when he is within the walls of his proverbial castle. This fact, however, is far from true, for you might as well face it, your home is not as safe as you might think it to be. A reporter recently stated that man is almost as safe on the highway during the rush hour as he is in his own home.

Statistics tell us that every eight seconds somewhere in the United States a serious accident takes place in the home. Each year about 84,000 lives are lost, and in some years the accidents in the home outnumbered by far, the accidents that occurred on the nation's highways. It is interesting to note that in 1954 accidents cost the United States in the vicinity of $9,800,000,000, almost twice the amount of money that the United States spends on education.

It is true that most of the accidents in the home never make the headlines of our daily papers, but they happen just the same. When the statistics are compiled each year, the results of accidents in the home paint a dark picture and prove that the home in which we live is far from being a safe place in which to dwell.

What can be done to minimize the hazards in the home? What can we do to keep people from crippling and killing themselves accidentally, in the home?

First, let us look at the causes of some of the accidents in the home, and then determine what we can do to prevent them from happening.

Falling in the home is a major reason for a large number of the accidents in the home and statistics show that nearly 18,000 persons a year are killed by falls. This accounts for about 50 per cent of home accidents. A vast majority of the falls may be traced to older people, and older bones break easily and take longer to mend, which means that fatal complications may set in. If you are between the age of fifty-five and sixty-five, watch your step. Burns and fires are responsible for about 30 per cent of home accidents. Various other causes make up the remaining 20 per cent.

Slipping on highly polished floors causes a number of accidents and the National Safety Council reminds the housewife to polish her floors with a nonskid wax. Carpets of a nonskid material should be used, for a slip on a carpet can be just as painful as on anything else. Old chairs are often not very reliable and the legs become wobbly and the backs are weak.

When a housewife climbs upon a chair to hang her curtains or to dust, she is inviting serious trouble. Hanging a curtain in this manner may cost her a broken arm or leg, or even worse.

Stairways have been the scene of many accidents in the home. Reports show that many more women than men fall downstairs. Why, you may ask, is this the case? It may be that women, being at home more than men, use the stairs more often. High heels may make one look inches taller and slimmer, but on the stairway they are a real hazard.

It is an old established fact that the most dangerous spot in the home is the bedroom. Statistics show that some people have a habit of leaping out of bed, which makes them dizzy and the result is a bad tumble. Others will get up in the middle of the night to go to the bathroom, without a light of any kind, and stumble over shoes, rugs, chairs and even lamp cords. If you must get up at night, take your time in getting out of bed. Give your body a chance to adjust itself. A flashlight kept near the bed for night use is found to be very helpful in preventing accidents of this nature.

Next to the bedroom, the kitchen ranks highest as the most dangerous room in the home. It is here that power, heat and various sharp tools are in almost constant use. Then, too, there are boiling pots, flaming gas burners, humming electric motors, deadly poisons and the powerful bleaches. Knives and old tools are the causes of 14 per cent of the casualties in the home. Tin cans, broken glass and razor blades should never be thrown into waste baskets where children can get them. Poisons such as ammonia and powerful bleaches and certain corrosive preparations for a clogged sink should be kept out of a child's reach. Under the kitchen sink is no place to store them. Stock them high overhead in the pantry.

From the newspaper headlines, one would gather that accidents taking place in the bathroom would make this room the most dangerous in the home, but it is relatively safe. Accidents that take place in the bathroom are just a little more dramatic which causes them to make the headlines in our newspapers. People drown, get scalded, electrocuted or poisoned in the bathroom.

One will reach for something operated electrically, while portions of their body may be still wet from their bath. To correct accidents of this nature it is best to keep electrical equipment out of the bathroom.

Fire in the home is another major cause of death in the United States. Did you ever know that every twenty-four hours there are about sixteen deaths from fire in the home? Did you also know that every day some nine hundred homes catch fire? This is indeed a deplorable record for a nation that is safety-conscious.

What are the causes? A good many of these fires started when mother went out for a few minutes to visit with the neighbor or to do some shopping. If you love your children, never leave them home alone, not even for a few minutes. If you do, the unexpected will happen.

What about the attic? Is it safe? Attics and basements are places where parents like to stack their junk. The attic is piled high with old pictures, newspapers and clothing. The basement is stacked with cans of paint, bottles of turpentine, cans of kerosene and gasoline, oil-soaked rags and empty burlap bags. These items make the nearest bomb you ever saw. All they need is just one little spark to blow your home sky-high.

If you must store these things, keep them in a fireproof place far away from the house. As for the attic, toss away the needless trash and free the house from this fire hazard.

Traditionally, man's home was his castle, a tower of security. There is no reason why it cannot continue to be just that of he combines a little more carefulness with reasonableness. Eliminate all the man-made contraptions at once. Safety does not depend on the place in which you live. It depends upon the individual. It is up to each one of us to instill ourselves with this sense of safety or caution. If we practice safety in the home we will insure for ourselves and our families a happier life in the age of accidents and the unpredictable.

Your Personal Health

The Child Killer
More than 10,000 children from one to fourteen years of age die as a result of accidents every year. And for each child who dies, approximately 200 are injured, five of them permanently crippled.

Even a tiny infant moves about enough to get into life-threatening danger. Crawlers and toddlers are exposed to increasing hazards as the scope of their activities widens.

A four-month-old baby can roll over on its own. That means that it must not be left alone for a second in the bathtub, on the bed, table or bathinette. At six months an infant can crawl rapidly and all over the place. A little later it tries to haul itself upright by pulling on electric appliance cords, table cloths and pieces of furniture. Everything possible and some things seemingly impossible will be put in the mouth.

During the second year, a child can climb on chairs and window sills, negotiate the stairs, reach up to the top of stove or table, poke into electric outlets. Even more things go into the mouth.

The three- and four-year-old is no longer baffled by closed closets and drawers, only by those securely locked and completely out of reach. Children of this age have been known to sample furniture polish, laundry bleach, shampoo, insecticides, cleaning fluid. No container is too far back in the closet to be found.

After this age and on into the early teens, a child is adventurous, willing to try anything, with little idea of what danger means or what is likely to be dangerous. So it's up to parents to be ever watchful, to install all possible safeguards, and to teach children the elements of safety as they grow old enough to understand. This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by Your Tuberculosis Association.

FREE CHEST X-RAYS HERE WEDNESDAY

The annual Mass X-ray Survey will be conducted in the Emmitsburg section of the county on Wednesday, November 4, according to an announcement by Mrs. Freda S. Doll, Executive Director of the Frederick County Tuberculosis and Public Health Association. The survey is a joint project of the TB Association and the Frederick County Health Department.

All persons eighteen years of age and older, will be given an opportunity for a chest X-ray, the primary purpose of which is to detect tuberculosis and other chest abnormalities in the early stages when they are easiest cured, said Dr. Forbes H. Burgess, Frederick County Health Officer.

In 1948, after a year of operation of the Frederick County Tuberculosis and Public Health Association, seventy-one new cases of active pulmonary tuberculosis were reported in this county—in 1958, after ten years of constant effort to control this infectious disease, thirty-four new cases were reported. This is a gratifying decrease in the case rate but tuberculosis is still a major health problem because it is so easily spread from person to person and we must keep fighting TB if we are to eventually control it, said Dr. Burgess.

Mrs. Robert G. Fitez, president of the Emmitsburg Homemakers' Club, will act as chairman to secure volunteers who will assist in filling in the statistical and technical records of those getting X-rays, said Mrs. Doll.

The following schedule has been released for Emmitsburg and the surrounding community: Wednesday, Nov. 4, the unit will begin X-raying at the H. O. Toor Shoe Company at 9:30 a. m. and continue there until 11:30. The mobile unit will be at the Emmitsburg Manufacturing Company from 1:00 until 2:00 p. m. and will then move to the Square where X-raying will continue from 2:30 until 5:00 p. m.
