Emmitsburg could be classified as a model town following the peaceful Halloween which just passed. Only a few isolated incidents of vandalism were reported locally. However, thruout the county and state the usual hectic evening was experienced. Just why the local gentry lost their zest for the usual destruction is not known but perhaps the fact that the local authorities previously decreed that property destruction would not be tolerated was an influencing factor in taming the boys a trifle. At any rate it was a welcome relief and I believe that most youngsters had their little fun soaping windows, ringing door bells and general trick or treating. Let's hope this same serene scene can be repeated in the years to come.

The recent paving of two of the town's streets is a forerunner of better things to come I am told. It is the intention of our town legislators to do a little each year to help beautify the town's appearance. As available money is around, improvements will be made and some day we may have a Main street with curbing and gutter that will be in perfect alignment. As it is now there are hardly two sidewalks or curbs which are in alignment. Of course there will be plenty of squawking as usual. Some sidewalks will have to be shortened in depth while others will have to be increased but with the ultimate result I believe that everyone will be satisfied.

* * * With the county taking the lead in zoning land for future building I think Emmitsburg should take cognizance of the fact that it' is about the stituted some type of zoning ordinance locally. At present time property-owners have no protection whatsoever. You could spend $50,000 for a house and another individual could erect a shack right beside it, or perhaps a junk yard. There is no law prohibiting this sort of thing at the present time and there are a number of prospective home builders who are reticent about proceeding with construction. Can you blame them? It should not be too difficult to draft a zoning code and as I stated above I don't believe it is too soon. * * *

It is encouraging to note in a recent newspaper article that a large city nearby decreased the salaries of some of it's political appointees. Some very substantial salary cuts will be effected in the very near future as an economy measure. It appears everywhere that taxes are on the way up due to increased costs of operation, salaries, etc. but this is the first time that I have noted any decrease in an attempt to save the poor taxpayer's money. Everyone is entitled to a just and fair wage but it is good to know that there has been a beginning to eliminating the salaries for nonexistant positions and to making a more realistic salary schedule for those jobs that are part-time. Now that the first step has been taken it would be nice if this trend could develop into other areas of government where such a waste exists. . . .

With the coming of Veterans Day next week I believe it is very much in order to take our hats off to all veterans throughout the land. Locally, we have much to be thankful for in our veteran organizations. Really, these veteran organizations give much more to the community than we realize. The Halloween parade, Christmas Party for the school children, loan of hospital equipment, blood bank, free ambulance service, free supervised playground during the summer months, scholarships for college, services to the needy of the community and many other similar services are contributed by the veterans organizations. We are justly proud of our veterans and their contribution to our community life as well as the part each of them has played in the overall defense of his country. Let us be grateful this Veterans Day for our good fortune due to them and let us not forget those men and their families who have made the supreme sacrifice so that we might enjoy our peaceful and happy way of life here in our own little community.

New Winter Roads Plan

Governor Tawes and John B. Funk, chairman of the State Roads Commission, this week announced a plan by which snow covered and icy highways can be made passable for traffic in a short period of time, particularly to permit morning traffic to go to work after an overnight snow.

The plan, the two officials said, would require a cooperation of the State Police, the State Roads Commission, and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company. This is how it would work: Signs would be placed along highways where experience shows that icy conditions are prevalent in comment on Communism after such a short visit would be fool-Freedom To Investigate

Many Americans report that they are compelled to tour with "Communist guides" who show them only what the Russian rulers wish them to see. This I do not believe. First, because of the language difference, guides who can talk English are absolutely necessary. Englishspeaking persons are very, very scarce here. Second, I can testify that our guide-a womantook us everywhere we asked to go. She had no prescribed route; also, every question we asked she answered frankly. furthermore, tourists from the United States are well treated, especially since Mr. K's visit to the U.S.A. Unfortunately, the weather has been against us. It seemed very cold to us; two days it snowed hard, which made it impossible to see much from our taxi; but the guide took us into every building we asked to see. Let me add that our U.S. Embassy here was most helpful. Russia Now Is Materialistic

Russia was in wretched condition when the Revolution came in 1917. Moscow had narrow, poorly paved streets and mostly wooden houses. The new government's first act was to widen greatly the streets of every large city and build fivestory cement apartment build-As these were built the old houses were pulled down, and this is still going on today. This rebuilding naturally caused the people to worship Stalin, accepting blindly the new Communist form of government. In the course of 20 ing every family a good home in a modern apartment building and - through the collective farms - plenty to eat, - with free hospitals and other comforts. There are now no slums in Russia such as are in our large cities!

At the same time, all church worship was discouraged. The old Russian churches under the Tzars had done nothing for the people; so Stalin decided to wipe them out. Almost all the people you meet state proudly that they are "atheisth." We, however, insisted on visiting one of the beautiful remaining Orthodox churches. Our guide stated that she had never been in a church before, although we found that this one was attended each Sunday by over 4,000 praying people, all of whom must stand since there are no seats. True worship is coming back in Rusia gradually; but first everyone who is willing to work is being given shelter and food.

Education Now The Goal During the years Stalin, and now Khrushchev, have directed great efforts toward free eduaction. Most beautiful school and college buildings have been built. Everyone must attend school from the age of 7 to age 14. At 14, they are given competitive exams and those who pass are admitted free to high school for three years. At the age of 17-directly after high school-everyone must go to work in a factory, or on a farm, or in construction work, or in the army. During those two years they are carefully watched to see whether they deserve a college training in sci-years this has succeeded in giv- | ence, mathematics or "inventions.'

Of the million children attending school in Moscow, about 50,000 are now in colleges or universities. They are constantly checked and about 5,000 are given the very advanced work which results in development of space missiles and other remarkable inventions. Certainly there is much that we in the United States can learn about educating our young people. Moreover, if any of the Russian students feel they were overlooked in the "sifting" described above, they have the opportunity of studying under the world's most complete correspondence courses.

Russian Government Finance I was given excellent opportunity to learn how Russia raised the money to build these thousands of apartment houses and beautiful highways and to give such excellent free education. This is the answer: Instead of selling bonds to the banks as we do in the U.S., the Russian government, which owns all the property, prints money to pay the workmen, teachers, professors, etc.-and also to provide old-age pensions, etc., direct. Every worker in Russia receives newly printed rubles for his or her work. This both reduces the cost of financing and immediately circulates the money among the consumers.

"But how does this prevent inflation?" you ask. Here is answer: The government collects rent from all its apartments; it makes a profit on all goods-including foods-sold in its government - owned stores. In addition it makes a profit on its vast electrical power distribution, its railways, busses, telephone-telegraph, and factories; also from the collective farms and fisheries. These profits are used for depreciation charges on all property. Hence a percentage of the rubles which were issued to construct are annually destroyed. Large amounts of currency are therefore constantly being retired. If these profits are not sufficient, small taxes are collected, although the goal is to have no taxes. Incentive Or Fear?

We who are fortunate enough to live under a free-enterprise system wonder how Russia can achieve efficiency and progress without giving rewards in the form of increased salaries or gold-braid uniforms. Such rewards are being given in Russia to a certain extent; but as there are no labor unions or strikes, there are no wage increases except to those who produce more. In fact, the motto is: "Those who do not produce cannot eat unless disabled." Furthermore, since the government owns everything and no one gets private profits, the factory and farm workers are told "the factory or farm in which you work really belongs to you.' Although I speak without authority or actual knowledge, I feel that fear is an economic factor. Certainly the fear of very severe punishment prevents graft from developing in some part of this great economic machine. This fear may percolate through every family and worker. How long this universial fear can continue without a blow-up, only the future can tell. This is well discussed by Eleanor Roosevelt in

It is Maryland's first experience in televising one of the regular campus courses. Using its own staff and resources, it is telecast over Channels 9 (Washington, D. C.) and 2 (Baltimore, Md.) on Tuesday and Thursday. Instructor in the course is Dr

Frank Goodwyn, professor of Spanish. He is assisted by Mrs. Eulalia Jarrin de Herdoiza, Maryland graduate student from Ecuador, South America.

Seventy-five students are enrolled in the Spanish course for With silent dive he takes alive, credit. Sixty per cent come to the College Park campus, and for ty per cent go to the Baltimore Where torrents rush and blizzards campus for laboratory and quiz sections which meet once each

Two-thirds of the non-credit students are women, over half of them being homemakers. Threefourths of the non-credit students do their viewing on Channel 9 in Washington.

Every walk of life is represented in the TV class. Outside of the homemakers, the largest occupational groups consist of government employees, business and industry representatives and teachers.

The program is seen by students from five states and the District of Columbia. They are Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Delaware. The heaviest enrollment in Maryland comes from Montgomery County followed by Prince George's County, Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Anne Arundel County and Washington County, in that or-

Outside of Maryland, the bulk of the viewers are located in the District of Columbia and in Virginia. Virginia has the largest group of homemakers, while the District of Columbia has the largest group of government employees, businessmen and teachers.

Foreign Policy Bungling

The two authors of the book, The Ugly American, lived through the eventh which they have written into fiction. They have found, and exposed in their best selling book, a situation in the U.S. foreign service that has already contributed to the advance of Communism and could lead to disaster for America. The authors are William J. Lederer and Eugene Burdick. Both are established writers. But they wrote The Ugly American not for profit, but because they love their country and wanted the American public to know what's going on in the U. S. foreign service.

"It is easy in a time of great events-of Sputniks and Explorers and ICBM's and 'dirty' and 'clean' atomic weapons—" the author says in a factual epilogue in The Ugly American, "to overlook one of the hard facts of history: a nation may lose its power and integrity slowly, in minute particles. We believe that a nuclear cataclysm is unlikely, but that our free life may well be lost in a succession of bits and fragments." A distinguished research group recently published a study entitled "Protracted Warfare" which showed that as a matter of fact the Communist world strategy is to advance "by bits and fragments." and other U.S. foreign service personnel to have limited knowledge of the people and problems of nations to which they are assigned, and also of the tactics of the Communists, even unable to speak tht language; but very skillet in conducting cocktail parties and striped trouser "diplomacy." "It would seem a simple fact of life," Lederer and Burdick observe, "that ambassadors, to at least the major nations, should speak those languages. Yet, in France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, and Turkey (and all over Asia) our Ambassadors cannot speak the native tongue . . . (or read loial newspapers) . . .

"On the other hand, at least nine out of ten Russians speak, read, and write the language before they arrive on station Blockage of information itself is not the only penalty we pay. eral characters in the book are Americans unattached to any government agency who go out and work with the natives to improve their lot; and these are building good will for America. But instead of giving moral support to these effective Americans, U. S. State Department people hinder them and sometimes even force them to

"Most American technicians abroad," the authors assert, "are involved in the planning and execution of 'big' projects: dams, highways, irrigation systems. The result is that we often develop huge technical complexes which some day may pay dividends, but which at this moment in Asian development are neither needed nor wanted except by a few local politicians who see such projects as means to power and wealth." Common-Sense Suggestion

And in summation they say: "We do not need the horde of 1,500,000 Americans — mostly amateurs-who are now working for the United States overseas. What we need is a small force of well - trained, well - chosen, hard-working and dedicated professionals. They must be willing to risk their comforts and in some lands—their health. They must go equipped to apply a positive policy promulgated by a clear-thinking government. They must speak the language of the land of their assignment, and they must be more expert in its problems than are the natives."

Dollar diplomacy, the authors are convinced, cannot succeed. "If the only price we are willing to pay is the dollar price," they "then we might as well pull out before we're thrown out. If we are not prepared to pay the human price, we had better retreat to our shores, build Fortress America, learn to live without international trade and cimmunications, and accept the mediocrity, the low standard of living and the loom of world Communism which would accompany such a move." Americans should read this challenging book, then talk to their Congressmen about some common-sense changes in our State Department and foreign service practices.

How Body Heat is Regulated

At one of the dedication exercises for the St. Lawrence Seaway this summer it was reported that the temperature stood at 100 degrees and the people, including Queen Elizabeth II, were flushed of face.

This is one of the body's devices for cooling itself, by in-creasing blood circulation in the capillaries of the skin, and in that way-radiator-likethrowing off body heat. Another way of get-ting rid of surplus heat is through perspiration. Dr. Bohstedt Much cooling is brought about by evaporation of moisture from the skin. Loose fitting, light clothes are an aid in this respect. In previous articles I have paid my respect to salt as especially necessary in the human and animal diet during hot weather, to replace the salt that is lost in perspiration. But animals such as dogs, pigs, and catle do not perspire. Don't they need any salt? Indeed they do, for salt is a universally needed mineral for the all-essential body processes Respiration is another avenue of heat loss from the body, both in the actual heat thrown off in the breath, and in the times the surface of the body. Because of this tremendous surface, the lungs are great heat regulators.

We are more apt to be thirsty in hot weather, and certainly a cooling drink helps in regulating the body temperature. So much for pulling down the body temperature. What about the need for conserving or increasing body heat?

This is done by increasing the oxidations in the body. On cold days we eat more, we walk more or work harder, or we shiver more. All these serve to burn up calories and to keep the body warm.

Then too, we share with ani-mals the need for body covering. Where we have clothing, they have thick skin, or heavy hair or fur, wool or feathers, to help maintain a comfortable body temperature. Beyond all this, the hypobrain, serves as a sort of built-in thermostat that is quite effective in keeping the body temperature within safe limits. Question: Is silo gas dangerous only in tower silos, or also in bunk and trench silos? Answer: In bunk and trench silos the gases are usually freely dissipated, but beware of a pocket created overnight by settling silage in an upright silo! Start up the blower a minute or two before re-entering evaporation of moisture from the lungs. It should be known that the lungs have about 20

Fall cleaning time again! Take it easy by making a list of jobs to do, then do just one a day. When you add that check mark "finished," you'll have a real glow of satisfaction.

1. ✓ SPEND A MORNING cleaning pantry shelves. Use a detergent for them. For seldom used pans and roasters, clean them inside and out with an oval soap pad . . . they'll be bright and shiny for holiday use.

2. ✓ OVEN CLEANING! That's a periodic job not limited to fall, but it still needs to be listed as a part of the basic kitchen cleanup. An oval soap pad is the easy way, easier on hands too.

3. / PAINTING THIS FALL? After the paint dries, use a little plastic mesh ball to scrape bits off windows and floors—this won't harm glass or tile either.

4. ✓ LAST CALL for cleaning outdoor equipment. Aluminum chairs and garden tools thrive on a rub-over with a sudsy oval soap pad for use again, the first ane day.

American Ministers Visit Bible Lands

A group of 13 Americans from Louisiana returned recently from a month-long trip to the Middle East where they were guests of three Arab governments.

The group was composed of seven Baptist ministers and wives, a doctor on the faculty of the Louisiana State University Medical School, a woman active in church affairs, and a woman school teacher. Their tour through the Arab states took them from Cairo to Beirut, Baalbek, Damascus, Amman, Jericho, and Jerusalem. In Cairo they were received by Secretary-General Abdul Khalek Hassouna of the League of Arab States and Arab Christian and Muslim religious leaders. In Lebanon the group had an audience with President Fuad Shehab and with the Maronite Patriarch Meouchie. Jordan's King Hussein welcomed them in Amman, and in Jerusalem the group toured the historical sites of the Holy Land. In all the countries, members of the group held discussions with civic and educational leaders. The doctor was especially interested in public health edu-cation and facilities in the Arab States. countries, and the teacher studied public education methods. The upper picture shows the group during a conference in Cairo with Ambassador Abdul Khalek Hassouna, Secretary-

General of the League of Arab

The lower picture shows two of the American ministers chatting with representatives of the different Islamic and Christian religious groups in the Gaza
