The Great Chicago Fire
EDITOR'S NOTE: This is third in a series of articles on Chicago, the second largest city in the United States. This week the author deals with the disastrous Chicago fire of 1871.

It is hard for us in this modern day and age to realize just how great and how disastrous the Chicago fire of 1871 really was.

ern day and age to realize just how great and how disastrous the Chicago fire of 1871 really was. Today, some eighty-eight years later, this spectacular event has a story for us, the living. In spite of all our modern methods of firefighting we must remember that this great catastrophe serves as a warning that only the narrowest margin separates man from nature. Most of the time, nature is kind to us, but on the other hand it can become mighty destructive. The story of the great Chicago fire also imparts to us the facts that, with courage and determination, man can win over the greatest of our destructive forces.

The summer of 1871 had been a dry one. Records show that there had been only about five inches of rain between July and October, and this was only about 25 per cent of the normal rainfall for this time of year. The city was parched and the weather for early October was unusually warm.

There had been a number of civic-minded citizens, who at various intervals stressed the danger of fire but the city fathers were more concerned with the purse strings of the city government than they were with the thought of public safety, and thus no drastic action was taken in the way of fire prevention.

On Saturday evening, October 7, 1871 Farwell Hall on the corner of Madison and Clark Streets was the scene of a public lecture, given by George F. Train, a world traveler and lecturer on moral subjects.

During the course of his remarks he made this statement: "This is the last public address that will be delivered within these walls! A terrible calamity is impending over the City of Chicago! More I cannot say; more I dare not utter."

Strange to say, the events that followed proved these remarks to be true in every sense of the word.

The first week of October had been a bad one for fires and to put it in the words of John R. Chapin: "An alarm of fire during the evening caused no anxiety, for it was a thing of frequent occurrence."

When a dramatic club of any kind stages a play, they usually have the night before the play is to be given, a dress rehearsal and the Chicago fire was no exception. A short time after the lecture at Farwell Hall was over, an event took place which has been referred to as the "dress rehearsal for disaster." Located on Canal Street was the Lull and Holmes Planing Mill, a small woodworking factory which was located in a neighborhood of lumberyards.

As the story goes, fire had broken out in the mill and by the time it was spotted it had eaten its way out of the basement and was moving north toward Jackson Street. This fire was a bad one and wasn't brought under control until sometime early on Sunday morning; but not until it had burned almost four blocks.

Fire fighting equipment was damaged and the firemen were in no condition for a return engagement. Some were burned and many others could hardly see due to swollen eyes as a result of the heavy thick smoke they encountered in fighting the blaze. This was not the beginning of the Chicago fire, but it was indeed a dress rehearsal for what was to follow in a few short hours.

One dark night, . . . when people were in bed, Old Mrs. O'Leary lit a lantern in her shed; The cow kicked it over, winked its eye and said, There'll be a hot time n the old town tonight.

The above verse was quoted in the Chicago Evening Post, and the author is unknown, but it tells in an amusing way, how the fire was believed to have started.

Located at 137 De Koven Street was a tiny shingled cottage where an obscure Irish family by the name of O'Leary lived. Located in the rear of the lot was the barn where the fire began. There are several versions as to how it did begin, and one such version is that Mrs. O'Leary had gone to the barn to get some milk for a belated customer and that an angry cow, disturbed several hours past milking time, kicked over a kerosene lamp and set the barn ablaze. This was around 8:30 on Sunday evening, October 8, 1871, and this much we are sure of. The fire began in Mrs. O'Leary's cow barn and went on from there. As to the exact cause of the fire, no one is sure and it is likely that no one ever will, but to this day Mrs. O'Leary's cow takes the blame.

At the height of the barn fire the O'Leary house caught fire on several occasions but was quickly extinguished each time. The neighbors however, were not so lucky for in a short time the shed next to the O'Leary barn was ablaze and then the summer kitchen and then the house, all belonging to the Daltons who lived next door. The Daltons had the dubious honor of being the first to be made homeless as a result of the fire.

De Koven Street was located on the West Side about three-eighths of a mile west of the South Branch of the Chicago River, and before midnight it had jumped across the river, and was moving rapidly in a northeasterly direction.

A lawyer, Jonas Hutchinson, in writing to his mother in New Hampshire on the night of October 9th had this to say about the fire:

"Our magnificent streets for acres and acres lined with elegant structures are a heap of sightless rubbish. It cannot be described. One needs to see the wreck to appreciate it and then he cannot believe that such havoc could be wrought in so short a time. Had you been with me all night and all day seeing this hell of fire doing its awful mission then you could realize how these ruins came."

"What a sight: a sea of fire, the heavens all ablaze, the air filled with burning embers, the wind blowing fiercely and tossing fire brands in all directions, thousands of people rushing frantically about, burned out of shelter, without food, the rich of yesterday poor today, destruction everywhere . . . is it not awful? It makes me sick. One could but exclaim: "My God, when will it end!" Chief Fire Marshall, Robert A. Williams had his hands full for two of the seventeen fire engines were being repaired, having been damaged by the fire the night before. Then too, there was only a small hand full of firemen on hand and as the fire grew in size the men and equipment had to

IN THIS WORLD

ALTHOUGH COSMETICS MAY HAVE ORIGINATED IN THE EAST, SUBSTANTIAL RECORDS IN THE FORM OF CARVED COSMETIC CONTAINERS PROVE ITS WIDE USE IN EGYPT AS EARLY AS 5,000 B.C.

THE ANCIENT EGYPTIANS WERE PROBABLY THE INVENTORS OF THE PUBLIC BATHS WHICH LATER BECAME SO POPULAR AND WERE CONSTRUCTED ON A GRAND SCALE AS PART OF THE GREEK AND ROMAN CULTURES.

DURING THE MIDDLE AGES, BATHING BECAME A PRIVATE AND COMPLICATED AFFAIR, ONE WHICH WAS NOT OFTEN INDULGED, AND PEOPLE USED AROMATICS TO CONCEAL BODY ODORS CAUSED BY PERSPIRATION.

MODERN SCIENCE HAS ELIMINATED THE USE OF PERFUMES AS A COVER UP BY DEVELOPING SAFE DEODORANTS SUCH AS ALUM THAT STOP BOTH ODOR AND THE ACTION OF ODOR-FORMING BACTERIA.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Being from Massachusetts, Sen. Saltonstall took more than ordinary interest during a hearing by a special sub committee of the Senate Small Business Committee on the way chains are dominating the shopping centers, when the subject of shoes was introduced into the testimony.

The shoe business, and especially the men's shoe business, is getting into a chaotic state, and there is even a grave C. W. Harder question whether or not the public is being hoodwinked.

Testimony at hearing stated in past ten years some 500 independent shoe manufacturers have gone out of business.

Three big operators, International, General, and Brown, now have a big share of the business, gained largely through buying out well known brands of shoes, and by opening their own retail outlets in competition with the independent merchant.

But where the public is perhaps being misled is the fact many of the best known names in quality, handmade shoes have become the property of the big mass production outfits.

Now there has long been a considerable segment of the male population believing the best shoe investment is a medium or high priced shoe from the standpoint of long wear, shape holding qualities, and comfort and foot health.

In today's market, this means shoes priced around the $25 per pair mark, and this price level is supposed to represent the best leathers, formed by a great deal of handwork into fine shoes.

Yet, many of the names that stood for the highest quality in men's shoes are now owned by one of the big combines, and while priced the same do not have the quality that made them famous.

Thus, there gets to be a substantial question involved herein of the public interest, and how it should be protected.

Due to work of Federal Trade Commission, Better Business Bureaus, others many steps have been away from the old principle of "caveat emptor" or let the buyer beware.

Thus, it would seem quite reasonable that whenever one of the old famous brand names of shoes now owned by a big mass production corporation and subjected to mass production methods is offered for sale, it should be definitely made plain, by signs, by brand marks, other means that the brand is a part of a big shoe corporation.

Obviously, some protection is needed here for the consumer, for there is no way for the buyer to tell how the shoe was made, as the making of bona fide quality shoe involves many skilled processes that only become apparent as the shoe is worn.

Fortunately, there are still independent firms making fine handcrafted shoes.

Obviously, a mass production operation putting out a famous old name brand is almost like a wolf parading in sheep's clothing. Thus, it seems logical there should be some public protection, as besides appearance shoes perhaps represent the only item of wearing apparel that can and does have a great effect on health.

stretched thinner and thinner around the fire area. Williams wanted to mass his forces north of the fire and meet it face to face, but he dared not leave the rear unguarded. And the fire burned on, out of control. The most crucial consequence of the spread of the fire was the increased heat, and with it the increased number of flying sparks, embers, and debris. The heat caused a powerful and ever-growing updraft, which in turn found an eager ally in the wind. In speaking of the wind, I might say that it too deserves a special mention. The wind was fitful but strong all day, and freshened during the evening. Its general direction was north-northeast, on a line from the O'Leary barn into the very heart of the city. By 1:30 on the morning of Monday, October 9, the courthouse and other buildings in the very heart of the business district were ablaze. By 2:30 it had spanned the river and was attacking the North Side fiercely. Most of Monday, October 9, the fire ranged over the North Side, sweeping as far north as Fullerton Avenue, which at that time was the city limits. It was on Monday that sections which had escaped the fire the night before, were wiped out. Monday saw the business district in complete destruction. By late afternoon, the fire was

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read Romans 12:16-21.

All things work together for good to them that love God. (Romans 8:28.)

Consider a good man who is terribly discouraged because of constant troubles. Confronted with problems one upon another, he begins to feel that life is against him. This depression poisons his disposition. He is well on the way to feeling that the future is hopeless.

Then one day some words of Paul come to him, with a persistence that will not be denied. He recalls that Paul had much to bear during his life as a Christian—enough to make him feel utterly discouraged and disappointed with life. Yet Paul could write, "All things work together for good to them that love God."

"If Paul believed that, so must I," the good man says to himself. "In fact, I will."

God knows how discouraged we can become when life becomes difficult. But we can live and labor in the assurance that God never desert us. Working in Christ's spirit, we can solve all our problems in accordance with God's will.

Prayer
Eternal Father, how thankful we are that Thou art familiar with our human needs and social problems. Help us to believe that when we bring our problems to Thee in prayer Thou art waiting to help us, through Jesus Christ our Lord. We pray in His name. Amen.

Thought For The Day
Never sufficient in myself, I will trust in God to make me equal to every situation.

Shenandoah Gears For Opening

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va. — Night thoroughbred racing re-

Strides Made In Heart Research

Your chances of recovering from heart disease and leading a full and satisfactory life are better today than ever before.

It wasn't so very long ago that turns to this Shenandoah Valley community for 31 nights beginning April 16, when Shenandoah Downs kicks off its spring meeting with the $2500 Inaugural Purse. The meeting closes May 21.

The night track, completed last year at a cost of more than $4 million, will be conducting its 3rd race meeting. Post time for the first session will be 7:15 p. m., and Shenandoah Downs will go on daylight time with the rest of the country April 24, according to General Manager Bob Leavitt.

The Inaugural Handicap will be a 5½-furlong sprint for three-year-olds and up. It is shaping up as a duel between Roy R. McClarin's Mighty Cross and Peter Vischer's Arch Rival. Mighty Cross will be making a comeback after a year's layoff, and the seven-year-old Arch Rival will again be going after his half-mile championship title.

Shenandoah Downs will conduct two meetings this year. The summer-fall session begins July 5 and closes September 24.

a working man with heart trouble was usually counseled by his doctor to retire and to rest. Today, more than 80% of those who survive their first heart attack return to work.

"The reason for this difference," says Dr. Francis J. Borges, director of the Cardiac Work Classification Unit of the Heart Association of Maryland, "is the continuing progress of medical research."

"Research scientists, particularly over the past decade, have discovered new knowledge and improved techniques of diagnosis and treatment that already have saved the lives of thousands and lives of thousands more."

Some of the achievements of heart research he mentioned are the more effective treatment of heart failure now available, the prevention of repeat attacks of rheumatic fever and much rheumatic heart disease in children, and the surgical correction of defects of the heart and the blood vessels.

Since 1949, the American Heart Association and its regional, state and local affiliates have channeled more than $40,000,000 into research to find new ways of diagnosing and treating all forms of heart and blood vessel diseases. Last year, research expenditures totaled more than $8,000,000. The national office allocates more than 50% of its funds for research, the highest proportion of any major voluntary health agency.

"Though much progress has been made," says Dr. Borges, "and the lives of many working people are now being saved, much research remains to be done. The heart diseases still comprise our number one health enemy."

Diseases of the heart and the circulation are responsible for almost 900,000 deaths each year, according to Dr. Borges. This is approximately 54% of all deaths in the United States. In Maryland in 1958, 14,618 people died of cardiovascular diseases, representing 54% of all cause of death. In a worker's productive years of life, between the ages of 45 and 64, adds the Heart Association spokesman, diseases of the heart take more than 212,000 lives, or 51% of all the deaths in this particular age group.

"Our fight against heart disease," says Dr. Borges, "has made impressive advances for more than a decade. I have every reason to believe that this progress will continue during the next decade and at a much accelerated pace."

Convinced that future progress in man's fight against heart disease can come only through an extended program of scientific research, the American Heart Association and its affiliates will, in 1960, spend upwards of $9,000,000 for scientific research.

How to Buy Upholstered Furniture

Armed with a little know-how, the average shopper can turn furniture detective and learn to quickly spot value. Attractiveness and low cost are no insurance against inferior quality. If the eye and wallet appeal remain after a thorough inspection—then you can be proud of your find.

The 4 F's of furniture quality are fabric, filler, frame and fastening. Sit in the chair to test for comfort. Be sure to lift the seat cushion and read the label listing the exact contents of the chair filler or stuffing. Foam rubber is the most widely used cushioning material at every price level. The Latex Foam Rubber Council points out that chairs and sofas with this cushioning—used for more than 25 years—retain that "good as new" appearance.

When buying, check the fabric covering. The tightness of the weave is a good test of durability.

A good frame is made of hard wood having no holes or faults. It should be thickest in the front where it must withstand most strain. Upending the furniture makes it easy to check for this and other important features. High quality coil or zigzag springs are important for your furniture's life. Also, check to see that they are firmly tied to the frame.

Joints should be fastened with wood dowels and then glued. Screws may be used also, but quality furniture is never nailed together. If you're still undecided about whether or what to buy—don't be afraid to ask questions. A reputable merchant will go out of his way to help.

Sometimes we Americans wish that Thomas Jefferson were here to talk things over.

Tom lived in a time of trouble, just as we do. He knew war and the threat of war, and that unquiet sense of a nameless dread in the air.

And yet nobody ever saw Tom worried. Think of those uneasy years when Tom was wrestling with an all-important decision: whether the people of this country were ready to stand on their own feet. We know now how right his answer was... but what made Tom so sure, back then?

And think of Tom in the White House, facing problems day and night that could mean disaster for America... and never doubting the outcome at all.

Tom had a feeling about the people of this country. He felt that God put good stuff in them, and that freedom brought it out. He never doubted for a minute that in the plain, everyday, self-respecting, unbossed men and women of America they would always have strength enough, and wisdom enough, and courage enough to handle anything fate might deal out. That's why sometimes we Americans wish that Thomas Jefferson might come striding back today, with his big farmer's shoulders and those mild grey eyes of his—back to the America that was once just an idea in his head, and to the people he believed in though they hadn't yet been born. We'd like Tom to see that he wasn't wrong.

Shelley Fabares

The other day a real brother-sister ruckus ensued between Paul and his TV sister Shelley Fabares. They were shooting an episode called "Mary's Growing Pains" and pretty Shelley was dressed in glamorous evening gowns for some sequences, then made up as an old woman for other scenes. Paul persisted in pointing his camera at her only when she was portraying an aged woman.

And Bud, who is putting on this show with his partner, Norman Lear, for Chrysler-Imperial sponsorship, has never lost his knack for news. "The TV Guide Awards Show" should have everyone in the country discussing and watching it because it's the first time the American viewing public will have a chance to vote for their favorites.

PAUL PETERSEN, who portrays Donna Reed's teen-age terror on her TV show, is a camera bug. Although personal cameras are barred on stage at studios, Paul's the pet of the set and is allowed to shoot all over the lot.

"When I'm on a diet I still love to raid the icebox late at night. I figure if no one sees me it doesn't count. But my wife fixed that. She found a picture of me when I was at my fattest, and pasted it right inside the refrigerator door where I'd be sure to see it."

As we dug out the facts of the astounding expansion of international Communism in its 40 years of existence on the world stage, there quickly appeared a very clear pattern or technique of Communist conquest. It has been repeated with amazing success over and over again, in nation after nation. It has just been successfully used in Cuba with devastating damage to the security of the United States. Without a notable exception, the United States has aided the Soviet empire in its piece-by-piece gobbling up of the dwindling geography of the free world. This is dramatic testimony to the insidious power and influence of the fifth column within the U. S. A.

The Encirclement Documented
It is my conviction that "Communism on the Map" is one of the most important documentary presentations of our times. The Communist conquest of approximately half the land area and half the population of the world has been accomplished a little bit at a time. Few people have been able to keep in their minds-eye a picture of the world map with each new conquered territory brought cumulatively into the Communist orbit. Few people remember details of the tragic take-over of Poland, of Czechoslovakia, the little Baltic nations, all of East Europe; then Manchuria, and the great fateful turning point for world Communism: China.

So we went back into newspaper files before 1917, the year of the Communist take-over of Russia, and tracked Soviet expansion developments week after week, month after month; we studied back issues of the world press, American newspapers, magazines, books and book reviews; radio and, finally, television programs. In the new filmstrip, we are plating all of this documented information onto the map of the world. The presentation thus will show the method of conquest in each country, the step-by-step strategy, who aided whom; and the resulting encirclement of the United States as Communism stretches its arms of control out across the land masses of the world.

Four Fateful Turning-Points
There have been four major turning points in international Communism's rise to power. At any of the four points, Lenin's basic plan for Communist world conquest could have been sidetracked and perhaps permanently blocked. At each point the United States gave decisive aid to the Soviet Union. At each point world Communism achieved a fateful victory. At each point the chances for survival for the United States diminished.

Britain and the United States became so anxious to maintain their wartime friendship with Stalin that, against the judgment of many sober minds, they permitted Soviet Russia, still a second-rate, primitive nation, to place its agents in the governments of all eastern European countries; and in a short time the Communists had total control of Poland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Albania, Yugoslavia—and were exterminating millions of people who might have resisted Communism.

Point 3: In 1948, China with its vast natural resources and half a billion people was literally handed over to world Communism. At the Yalta post-war conference, the U. S. permitted Russia to take-over Chinese Manchuria. Then, with the Moscow-trained Chinese Communists being supplied with Russian arms, the U. S. cut off aid to Nationalist China—and Communism established itself in control of much of Asia. This was one of the most remarkable actions in world history.

Point 4: In 1957-58, Cuba fell under Communist control—after the United States had withdrawn arms support to the Cuban government and otherwise aided Castro and his Communist cohorts. The U. S. State Department gave official recognition to Castro's military dictatorship before his bearded Bully Boys had reached Havana in force! Next week: Castro's Cuba—A Danger!

There are two thousand magazine publishing firms in the U. S. with a total volume of more than one and one-half billion dollars annually.

Point 1: November 16, 1933, the President gave official United States recognition to Soviet Russia. The Communist dictatorship under Josef Stalin had not yet consolidated its hold over Russia. The freedom-loving Ukrainians were resisting collectivization, and Stalin's lieutenant Khrushchev was conducting the systematic man-made famine in which 7,000,000 Ukrainians died. The Soviet Union was bankrupt. There was world-wide distrust of the "Bolsheviks." United States recognition gave respectability, monetary credit, and a wide-open opportunity for expansion.

Vaccination Of Horses Advised
Maryland horse owners should begin vaccination of their horses now, well in advance of the mosquito season, to prevent a possible serious outbreak of Equine encephalomyelitis in the State.

Last year, the Maryland State Veterinary Medical Association reported more than a dozen cases of the "sleeping sickness" disease in horses. In New Jersey at least twenty-one human cases and more than fifty horse cases were reported.

Mosquitoes are believed to be the principal carriers of the disease. The mosquitoes are infected from a common source, probably wild birds, and in turn transmit the disease to horses and humans. The disease is not spread by horse to man.

The veterinary association said horse breeders and owners should, in addition to early vaccination of their stock, participate in mosquito control efforts to prevent spread of the disease.

Farm Cooperatives Set Record
R. B. Tootell, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, reports that farm marketing and purchasing cooperatives set a new record in the use they made of the 13 banks for cooperatives last year.

More farmer cooperatives than ever before—2,693—had $622 million in loans outstanding from the banks at the year's end. Cooperatives borrowed $698 million during the year—a 25 per cent increase over last year.

The fact that this is not a government lending institution was emphasized by the governor, who pointed out that most of the loan funds for the Farm Credit System are obtained through sale of bonds and debentures to the public. Sales of such securities amounted to $3.3 billion in 1959. These securities are not even guaranteed by the government, either as to principal or interest.

They tell us the chemical content of the human body is worth only 98c. Always thought that was a rather humiliating appraisal.

Driver Registration Continues In State
Applications for the re-registration of drivers' licenses were mailed Monday to persons whose last names begin with the letter "S". Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, John R. Jewell, urgently requests that the middle name in full, and not just "the initial", be given in the space provided on the application form. If the name is not spelled out in full, it will be necessary to return the application, thereby creating unnecessary trouble and delay in receiving the new license.

If you are in this name category and do not receive your application by April 11, notify the department in writing, giving your full name, correct mailing address and the number of your present operator's license.

REGISTRATION NOTICE
The Burgess and Commissioners of the Corporation of Emmitsburg announce that the registration of voters is now going on at the Town Office. This registration will continue until April 16 at noon when it will cease until 10 days after the town election which will be held Monday, May 2, 1960.

To be eligible to register and vote you must have lived within the Corporate limits of Emmitsburg for the past 12 months and must be 21 years of age or over.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry

Hog Wallows Keep Hogs Cool

After a severe winter in most parts of the country, hot weather was bound to follow, and hogs among other livestock are bound to suffer from the heat unless suitably protected.

Louisiana would seem to be hot enough during a summer for a good test in this respect. The experimenters there found that a hog wallow increased both rate and economy of gain by hogs. With a wallow, hogs gained at the rate of 1.90 pounds daily per head but without a wallow, only 1.46 pounds.

The cooling effect of a wallow also saved 35 pounds grain for every 100-pound increase in live weight, the difference between 386 and 351 pounds of grain.

The average body temperature of pigs with wallows was between 104 and 105 degrees, and without wallows one degree higher, to that extent indicating less comfort.

When just coming out of a wallow, a pig had a 102-degree body temperature. This surely constituted periodical welcome relief.

conditioning hog barns in hot weather. Now air-conditioning is seriously discussed by experienced hog men, and is spoken of as a development for the future.

As a matter of fact, one meets with air-conditioned quarters for farm animals in different parts of the country, and these quarters aren't always intended for high priced race horses or valuable breeding animals, but for commercial stock as well.

Creasure comfort, therefore, is a definite profit factor in livestock production, both summer and winter. Let us remember that in the corn belt states especially we have a mid-continental climate which is apt to be tropical in the summer and almost arctic in the winter.

Question: Why do you recommend only one-half percent salt in a hog ration when you consistently advocate one percent salt in dairy cattle rations?

Answer: Let us remember that a dairy cow or heifer eats hay, or both hay and silage or pasture, in addition to her grain. Maybe two or three times as much forage as grain. So if the grain alone carries one percent salt, this amount is "diluted" by the amount of forage eaten. The salt may not amount to as much as one-half percent of the ration as a whole. That's why we recommend letting cows or heifers have voluntary access to salt in addition to any that they get mixed with their grain.

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Government Bonds For Small Investors

BABSON PARK, Mass., April 7—I am often asked what are the best types for those whose funds are limited and who need steady income to help with their living expenses or to provide a major part of such expenses. Here is my answer to these people and to others in similar circumstances:

U. S. Government Bonds Are A Buy

Among the best investments from the point of view of safety of principal and continuity of income are U. S. Government Bonds. These are available in different series and maturities to accommodate different types of investors, and are selling not far above their low prices for the past 20 years. The longer maturities now return a yield of over 4%, which is more than you can get by leaving your money in a savings bank.

The full faith and credit of the United States is behind these government bonds, and I am sure Uncle Sam will never default on these obligations. It is entirely possible, however, that the money in which you will one day be repaid may purchase less than it does now, but that is a risk which you must take with almost any investment you make. Of course, government bonds are taxable, but there are comparatively few investments you can make which are not taxable.

Don't Overlook Municipal Bonds

Many of the bonds of cities and towns throughout the country pay well today and should be safe investments. A further advantage is that income derived from these municipals are non-taxable. I suggest, however, that you choose your municipal bonds carefully. It is desirable to know something about the financial affairs and tax income of the city or town whose bonds you buy; otherwise you should employ an investment counselor.

Usually, the best municipal bonds are those of localities of substantial size, though under 100,000 population. Avoid bonds issued by the larger cities. The risks involved in holding them are too great and too numerous, especially for people of moderate means and income. I also prefer bonds of interior cities which would probably not be bombed in case of World War III.

Advantages Of Turnpike Issues

In my opinion, the bond issues of most of the larger turnpike authorities should prove to be safe investments for those who are really dependent on their investment income for their living expenses. These roads provide the safest and fastest mode of auto and truck transportation we have yet developed. The medium-term future of the better turnpike bonds should be excellent as far as earnings are concerned. Some of these turnpikes may get into financial trouble because of competition with each other, or from airplane and helicopter facilities, but at present most of them are doing well. Of course, their income would be adversely affected in case of war, particularly if such a conflict should force a return to gasoline rationing.

Some Other Good Investments

Government, turnpike, and municipal bonds are not, by any means, the only investments today which offer safety of principal plus a good return. Most Mutual Funds offer good opportunities for income. They provide diversity for those whose limited savings would not permit them to buy many different stocks. Remember, however, that these Mutual Funds are only as good as the judgment of their managements.

Do not put all your investment funds into any one basket, whether it be individual Bonds, Stocks, or Mutual Funds. Also, do not forget that one of the better investments for a retired person or for one with limited income is to buy a two-family house in a good residential area and to live personally in one half while renting the other half. This house should have a backyard with two or three trees.

Make it a habit to keep your feet on the ground and you'll never have far to fall.

Most of us think of a quarter as a silver coin worth one-fourth of a dollar. However, a social security "quarter" can be worth far more to you and your family than twenty-five cents.

Social security uses the term "quarter" in counting the work credits that you need to receive social security benefits.

To get social security payments for yourself or your family, you must have credit for a certain amount of work under social security. These credits are called quarters of coverage.

Generally, a social security quarter is the work credit you receive for one-fourth of a year's work under social security. Most people, who work for someone else get one quarter credit for each calendar quarter of the year in which they are paid total wages of $50.00 or more. Steadily employed persons usually earn four quarters of credit in each year.

CHRONICLE PRESS
 Emmitsburg, Md.

If you work for yourself, you get social security credit for four quarters for each year in which you have a net profit of $400.00 or more.

Most people now reaching retirement age (62 for women, 65 for men) in the first six months of 1960 need at least 18 quarters or four and one-half years of work credits under social security. People reaching retirement age in future years will need more quarters of credit.

Don't endanger future benefits to yourself or your family. You can make sure that you get credit for all the quarters you earn by following these simple rules:

1. Be sure your employer has your correct social security name and number as shown on your social security card.

2. If you work for yourself, your income tax return should show your correct social security number.

3. Check up on your social security account at least every three years. Ask your social security office for the postcard form to request a statement of your earnings.

You can get a complete information about how you can earn quarters of coverage and how many you need for retirement benefits by asking your social security office for the free booklet, "Social Security Credits."

Dreamy Creamy Fudge Drops

When you're making chocolate candy, use semi-sweet chocolate squares if you want the very best. Proof-positive is to be seen—and tasted—in these creamy fudge drops, satiny dark and delicious. The fudge may be cut into squares if desired. The gay decorations are optional but make a charming contrast to the rich chocolate.

Creamy Fudge Drops

|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 3 squares semi-sweet chocolate | Dash of salt |
| 1/2 cup water | 2 tablespoons butter or margarine |
| 1/2 cup evaporated milk | 1 teaspoon vanilla |
| 1 cup granulated sugar | 1 cup broken nuts |
| 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar | |

Add chocolate to water and milk and place over low heat. Cook and stir until mixture is smooth and blended. Add sugars and salt and stir until sugars are dissolved and mixture boils. Continue boiling, without stirring, until a small amount of mixture forms a very soft ball in cold water (or to a temperature of 232°F.). Remove from heat and add butter. Cool to lukewarm (110°F.) and add vanilla. Then beat until mixture begins to thicken; add nuts and continue beating only until mixture loses its gloss. Drop from teaspoon on waxed paper and chill until firm or spread at once in greased 8x4-inch pan, cool until firm and cut in squares.

ABUNDANT LIFE

GOD TAKES CARE OF HIS OWN

God takes care of His own. Of this we can be sure, for the Bible is full of examples of how God has brought deliverance to His people in all kinds of need.

Just as it is true of Biblical times, so it is true today. God has His eye on us, and if we will only call upon Him and trust Him completely, He will see us through any trial.

A modern-day example of how God looks after His own is the recent experience of a family living in the West.

The father and mother, with their four small children, became lost while on a vacation trip. They found themselves suddenly in the burning desert country, and their automobile became disabled in a deep canyon. It was one of those places where the sun beats down relentlessly, the temperature often going to 120 degrees.

Realizing at once their serious predicament, with no food or water in the car, the parents knelt beside the automobile and prayed for divine guidance. Being devout Christians, both knew how to pray.

"Dear God," prayed the father, "for reasons known only to you, we have been brought to this desolate, isolated canyon. Unless you provide the means for our deliverance, we will soon perish from heat and lack of water.

"Give me guidance, O God, on how to survive, and send help before it's too late."

Later relating their experience, the father said: "Almost immediately after prayer we seemed to be seized with a new urgency. Our minds became alert and clear to the dangers we all faced. We seemed to have an uncanny knowledge . . . without a moment's hesitation . . . on what to do to survive. God surely looked after us.

"We had found a large overhanging rock, which shielded the family from the intense sun. I realized that the water in the radiator would provide our needs for awhile if it was carefully rationed.

"During the heat of mid-afternoon, when the sun was not shaded by the overhanging rock, I dug holes in the sand and buried the children up to their necks, so they could escape the deadly heat."

This is the condition in which rescuers found the family three days later—each buried up to his neck in sand.

"Of course, we became discouraged," the father related after the ordeal. "But my wife and I both felt the Lord was telling us what to do. We knew we would be saved."

Those familiar with the desolate region marveled at the family's being found alive. Not one of them required hospital treatment.

Yes, God looks after His own. He loves us and has the power to rescue us from any harmful situation.

OUR STATE UNIVERSITY

As this is National Library Week, it seems in order to examine the requirements of libraries if they are to continue to provide good library service. National Library Week is devoted to the importance of reading in American life and to the importance of libraries of all kinds.

Libraries and library service at all levels have experienced a rapid growth throughout the State. In some counties where there was little or no library service, we now have active, county-wide systems.

In 1940 the libraries of the University of Maryland had book collections totalling 142,000 volumes and had a staff of 12 people. Current holdings of the libraries are approximately 440,000 volumes; 77 people are on the library staff. In the short time of twenty years the number of volumes has increased by over 200 per cent, the number of staff members by over 500 per cent. During the same time enrollment has increased from less than 5,000 to 14,000 students.

In order to maintain and improve library standards of the future more materials—books, periodicals, visual aids, music, etc.—must be made available. But also more young people must be persuaded to choose the library profession as their career. They must be made aware of the exceptional opportunities in public school, special and university libraries throughout the State. Your local librarian and the University librarian will be glad to provide you with information about librarianship as a career.

Tax Deadline Nearing

It's later than you think—only two weeks remain in which to file your Federal income tax return. That is the word from Irving Machiz, Director of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District.

During the next two weeks more errors will be made on tax returns due to haste than during the first three months of the filing period, the Director said. Care in the preparation of your return will help to avoid costly errors.

Legible printing of taxpayers' names and addresses on the top lines of 1959 individual Federal income tax returns will assist both the taxpayers and Internal Revenue Service.

A carefully printed or typewritten identification of the person or persons filing will make it immediately possible for the Revenue Service to credit the return and any accompanying payment to the right source. It also will help speed refunds to those whose returns call for checks from Uncle Sam, he added.

"When taxpayers move, particularly during or near the filing period," Director Machiz said, "they should make sure the Postmaster gets their forwarding address, especially if they are due refunds."

The taxpayer who has printed and signed legibly knows his return will be properly processed; the tax agency in turn can do that processing with greater speed and accuracy, Mr. Machiz stressed.

The Holy Land Observes Lent

The important Christian observance of Lent and Easter is of particular significance in the Arab world. On this very ground where the magnificent drama of Christ's life actually was played, devout Christians initiate the observance of Holy Week on Palm Sunday as they participate in the solemn Procession of Palms which begins at the top of the Mount of Olives.

"After the Lord had risen from supper, He poured water into a basin and began to wash the feet of the disciples, to whom He gave this example." (John, 13:4, 5, 15.) This sacred ceremony of the Washing of the Feet, symbolic of Christ's humility at the Last Supper, is performed on Maundy Thursday in Jerusalem, and in Christian churches throughout the world.

During this season many Christians prayerfully watch for the gift of the Holy Fire at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. For each year on Saturday of Holy Week the faithful participate in the Ceremony of Light when the Orthodox Patriarch enters the Tomb of Christ, and a fire is passed from Heaven lighting his torch, thus symbolizing the victory of the Cross.

As the ceremonies of Holy Week come to a climax, on Good Friday, willing hands bear the cross that weighed so heavily on the divine shoulder as Jesus bore the symbol of His martyrdom through the streets of Old Jerusalem, now in Jordan. Retracing the way of the cross, worshipers follow the way led by Christ to salvation for mankind.

All About Dogo

First In War

Our friendly, loving house pets, that bark at an approaching stranger to ward off the undesirables—are a big change from their armor clad ancestors. But the business of protection is not new for the dependable canine, says dog authority, "Tex" Fawcett, of the Purina Dog Care Center.

The identity of the earliest dog soldier is not known. History tells us that the Gauls used packs of dogs, wearing armor covered with sharp spikes and trained them to run among the enemy—inflicting wounds.

The armor clad greyhounds of Cyrus of Thymbria are credited with winning a victory over Alyattes of Lydia—who never sallied forth without his dogs again.

Napoleon once wrote the commander of his troops, warning him that "You should have a large quantity of dogs which can be posted in front of your fortifications."

Charles V held up his war dogs to his troops as examples of courage and loyalty. The 400 dogs accompanied English troops sent by King Henry VIII to help Charles in his war with France. Later, the Spanish king kept the dogs and sent the soldiers home.

Warfare has diminished the dog's role as a combatant but increased his importance as a messenger, scout and sentry.

A MESSAGE FROM "YOUR PHARMACIST"

HOW MUCH PROFIT DO YOU THINK a Pharmacy earns on each sale? Very few people realize how reasonable drug store service really is.

AUTHENTIC STATISTICS REVEAL:

- The actual wholesale cost to the pharmacy, of everything you get from us, averages 65.4c of every dollar you spend. This leaves 34.6c for all expenses and profits.
- Salaries or wages in the average pharmacy are 19.2c per dollar of sales. This leaves 15.4c.
- Other expenses like rent, heat, insurance, telephone, advertising, repairs, license fees, electricity, deliveries and state taxes amount to 11.4c of every sales dollar.

THIS LEAVES 3.7c NET PROFIT.
Which means that, if the average pharmacy were to reduce all prices only 4c on each dollar, it would lose money.

ARE WE COMPLAINING?
Of course not. We try to achieve this national average to be competitive and depend on increasing volume for satisfactory total profit.
If something is sold below its cost plus overhead expense, then other articles must be excessively priced. Personally, we prefer to make a fair profit on each sale, instead of raising prices on unfamiliar items.

Rear Admiral Addresses Hospital Group

Stressing that "the life of a community depends upon modern hospital facilities," Rear Admiral Frank P. Kreuz, Jr., commander of the U. S. Naval Medical Center, addressed executives of Frederick County's leading industries Tuesday night at a dinner in the Francis Scott Key Hotel, in Frederick.

"A hospital must have modern facilities to draw both doctors and patients. Providing these facilities are available, there is nowhere that a patient can get better care than in a community hospital," Admiral Kreuz said. In reporting to industrial leaders, called together on behalf of Frederick Memorial Hospital's building fund campaign, on the newest techniques in hospital care, the Admiral stressed the necessity of building facilities for the future.

"Our younger doctors and interns today are learning astonishing new techniques which can prolong or save lives and bring patients greater comforts. They will only be attracted to those communities which provide the hospital facilities considered modern medical techniques require.

"We have learned at Bethesda that we must build for the future. Techniques and facilities considered modern only ten years ago have in many instances already become obsolete," he said.

Admiral Kreuz commended the hospital's administration for its decision to include a recovery room, enlarged and modernized pediatric facilities and an intensive care unit in its plans.

"We are beginning to learn," he said, "that the psychological impact of hospitalization on children is far greater than we once realized. Play areas, a common dining room, isolation units, and the grouping of pediatric facilities as planned by Frederick Memorial will be essential for any pediatric department in the future."

Turning to the recovery room and intermediate care unit, the Admiral said, "The best in surgery requires the best in post-operative care. This cannot be accomplished without recovery rooms and intensive care units. We are in the process of adding such units to our facilities at the Naval Medical Center."

Admiral Kreuz commended the hospital for the extent of its emergency room service, and told the group, "The finest and most important thing that you can do is to make possible the finest medical care for your employees and your community."

Admiral Kreuz was introduced by Rear Admiral Allen G. Quynn, president of the Frederick Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees and vice chairman for the hospital's $650,000 building fund.

Admiral Quynn stressed the advantages to the hospital and the community of the hospital's full accreditation by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals.

"This accreditation means that the hospital has high standards in its medical and nursing staffs; that its records are up-to-date; and that it sets high standards in patient care. To continue this accreditation, we must provide a recovery room and embark upon this program of expansion and modernization," Admiral Quynn said.

The dinner was called by James R. Austin, manager of American Optical Company's Frederick plant and chairman of the corporate division for the fund campaign.

"Corporations have a responsibility as great as any individual in seeing that the community has efficient, modern hospital facilities," Mr. Austin said. "We are asking our larger corporations to assume responsibility for 23% of the campaign goal. This is a big job, but the shoulders of all of us together are broad enough to carry the burden."

John W. Morgan, district manager in Frederick for the Potomac Edison Company and chairman of the industrial employees division of the campaign, said:

"The employees of our industrial firms also have a civic responsibility toward their hospital. Widespread participation by our employees will be necessary to make the campaign a success.

"I am hopeful that to assist industrial employees in participating, our business firms will give permission for in-plant solicitation and pay roll deduction."

W. Jarboe Grove, president of the M. J. Grove Lime Company and general chairman of the campaign, expressed his appreciation to the executives attending. He said that the campaign "was based on an urgent, community need," and that by their participation industrial firms would be "rendering real service to their employees and the community."

The meeting was opened with an invocation by the Rev. Paul Althouse, pastor of the United Church of Christ. Advance copies of the campaign brochure, "Secure Our Safety," were distributed to those attending.

THIS 'N THAT

almost burned out, and rain began to fall shortly before midnight which helped to put an end to the holocaust.

Tuesday, October 10, was a scene of almost complete desolation. With the exception of an unfinished building on Monroe street and a fortunate structure at Market and Randolph, the entire business district was gone.

The burnt area extended north and south for four and three-quarter miles, and had an average width of one mile. Within these limits, there were only smoking ruins.

The fire over, the citizens of Chicago set out at once to look after the suffering of the victims. A temporary relief committee was organized, schools and churches were opened to the homeless, and food and clothing were distributed. The task of rebuilding was a tremendous one and this is the subject I shall cover in my column next week. It is the story of the citizens of Chicago who refused to take defeat and who came back fighting, to build a city, which today ranks as the second largest in our nation.

Foresters Caution Against Fire

With winter losing its grip, Maryland's hardwood forests are turning green again, but they are also facing one of the periods of greatest danger from forest fires which can quickly turn green woodlands into black ruins, a spokesman for the state's wood-dependent industries warned today.

Warm weather, gusty spring winds and dry grasses and leaves make an explosive mixture, said L. D. Peterson of Luke, chairman of the Maryland Forest Industries Committee. With this combination the tiniest spark of fire can set off a roaring forest fire.

Making the situation more dangerous, he said, is the natural human spring clean up urge — farmers clean up barnyards and hedge rows; householders clean up yards, garden patches and trash heaps; and cottage owners clean up the winter's accumulation of trash.

In almost all cases, burning seems to be the easiest and fastest method for disposing of trash and brush, he said. Such fires can easily get out of hand and spread to nearby woodlands.

The industry spokesman offered a few simple rules to keep the danger to a minimum. Refuse burners should:

1. Burn refuse on a calm day, preferably after a rain.
2. Burn in late afternoon or evening when the air is damper and calmer.
3. Clear a fire break all the way around the refuse pile.
4. Always keep water and fire fighting tools on hand.

5. Never leave a trash fire unattended.

Following these rules and always exercising caution with fire, Peterson said, will help keep Maryland Green with forest cover.
