Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

The necessity for higher education is manifested by the number of local students graduating from college this year. I have no way of knowing just how many other seniors are being graduated from other colleges this June but I do know there is a bumper crop being turned out at the Mount. Five Emmitsburg young men will receive their degrees at the graduation exercises next week. As far as I can ascertain this is a local record. For many years college grads from Emmitsburg were a rarity but the modern day educational requirements for positions in industrial and professional circles is so demanding that now a far greater number seek higher education. My congratulations to those five who have the initiative and gumption, as well as intellect, to stick out the required time to earn their degrees. They'll never be sorry, believe me.

The above figure is a commendable one but it still should be even higher with two colleges right at our back door and two high schools as well as two elementary schools. There is every opportunity to obtain an education here in Emmitsburg, be you Protestant or Catholic, therefore the number coming out of colleges should be considerably higher for a town with the educational assets Emmitsburg has.

Repeated warnings concerning vandalism have been in vain and I'm afraid that when these offenders are apprehended, if they ever are, they'll suffer severe penalties. Latest damage reported discloses that windows have been shot out of the new disposal plant building on Creamery Road and no trespassing signs to the approach of the disposal plant proper have been riddled with bullet holes, as well as the metal roof to the main plant. Some parent will have extreme damage claims to pay if and when the boys are taken into custody. If your son has a rib better check on where and what he is doing with the weapon in his spare time.

The apathy of local citizens concerning mail carrier service is pathetic. Reasons for the denial of this service were given a few short months ago in this paper. Some of them were that not enough houses were numbered and sidewalks were non-existent in a number of areas. To date exactly nothing has been done in "Sleepy Hollow" to meet any of these requirements. Really folks, about all you do hear is griping why don't we have this or that? Or why doesn't the town do something? Well just who is the town but YOU and YOU and YOU? No numbers, no sidewalks, etc. It is highly possible that perhaps certain individuals want the town to bear the expense of these several items. Perhaps so but then you know you must pay for them in one way or another, more than likely by increased taxation. A number bemoan the fact that we haven't diversified industry here. Why, I'll tell you why. One simple reason is that not enough belong to the Chamber of Commerce or Lions Club to make any token attempt at obtaining industry here. A perfect example of this apathy is demonstrated by the fact that not enough members attend a Chamber of Commerce meeting to form a quorum. So diminished has been the attendance at the meetings that it is impossible to even hold an election of officers. This is one of the main contributing factors why there is no additional industry here in Sleepy Hollow or Stump Town or what have you. I am certain that little if any gain in population will be registered here when the new census figures become available. How could there be when there are no jobs or future here for our up and coming generation? What's going to happen to the five young graduates from our local college? Can they find gainful employment locally? You bet your shirt they can't and they'll be forced to leave our midst the same way as our young men and women have been compelled to do for the past

Thurmont Youth

Injured In Wreck

A charge of failing to keep to the right of center was filed against a Thurmont area motorist this week as result of an accident on Maryland 81 just north of Thurmont.

The motorist, James C. Few III, 16, Thurmont R2, was the only one injured in the accident, which occurred shortly after noon. State Police Trooper William F. Davis investigated, assisted by Trooper Leo L. Shank.

According to the police report, Few was driving south on Route 81 at an apparently high rate of speed when he reportedly failed to keep to the right of center on a curve and crashed head-on into a northbound dump truck loaded with sand. Scene of the collision was about one and one-half mile north of Thurmont.

The driver of the truck, George Oscar Ropp of Frederick R7, escaped serious injury. At first believed critically hurt, Few was taken to Waynesboro Hospital in a State Police car. He was released after being treated for severe laceration of the nose and bruises about the chest.

Trooper Davis filed the charge against Few.

The truck, owned by the M. J. Grove Lime Company, was damaged to the extent of about $200. The car driven by Few was considered a total loss.

THIS 'N THAT

GEORGE W. WIREMAN

Memorial Day, 1960

Solemnly we shall bow in prayer on this Memorial Day, 1960, for our heroes who have given their lives for their country. We remember and revere our men and our women in every branch of the service who have died for those they love and for honor and for the traditions that mean our way of living.

Many of them lie far from home. Some who once stood beside their comrades in battle lines now sleep eternally on the hill-sides and the beaches of Europe and Africa and some beneath the lush green of South Pacific jungles and some under the endless Northern snows and some in the depths of the seas. But, wherever they are, their graves plead mutely for a world in which there will be no more war, for the ideals they cherished, for universal peace.

And this Memorial Day their graves will not be lonely, for Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow meet there in the cause of those ideals which must go on in endless continuity forever.

Thoughtfully we go to our churches and cemeteries, and, when the volleys crash and our hills echo back the poignant Taps we pray for all our gallant heroes, the living and the immortal dead . . . in everlasting gratitude and in love.

Memorial Day, originally set apart for honoring the gallant men who gave their lives to defend the Union in the great conflict between the North and the South, is today recognized thru-out the United States.

Throughout the American population today there are many men who carry with them the memories of scenes of horror and bloodshed which they experienced during the Civil War, the First World War, the Second World War, and the Korean War. And there are those who lie in hospitals in many sections of our country who have had a taste of war. Few of them will talk about those days. Many bear on their bodies the marks of suffering. Some are maimed. Some are blind. Some have had their lungs partly destroyed by gas during the First World War, and still suffer the effects. Many are so exhausted nervously that they are unable to live normally. This is but a part of the price that the human beings now living are paying for their experiences with war. Is it any wonder then why Sherman said, "War is Hell!"

More than ever, America is becoming conscious of the folly of war, of its ruthlessness and injustice, and of its tremendous cost in lives and money. Yet, however, despite the fact that peace propaganda has been persistent, nationalism and militarism are being emphasized so greatly in Europe and Russia today that the world is still confronted by the age-old problem of formulating a plan by which peace may be maintained.

When one tries to enumerate all the causes of war, the task is like attempting to list the causes of fights between fifth-grade school boys. Human motives are numerous, and one cannot always know all the circumstances or the ambitions that start people on the warpath. We do know that the causes of war are many and that any successful cure will have to approach the problem from many and all angles.

With the recent developments in modern warfare; the invention of the A Bomb and the H Bomb; the development of germ warfare; the introduction of the rocket capable of carrying an atomic warhead; all of these have increased the hazards of modern war, so that future wars will be far greater destructive than you and I can even begin to realize. I shudder at the mere mention of "the next war," for when it comes it will be the destruction of civilization itself.

If we are to prevent war, we must foster the growth of world understanding in every possible way. We must develop an international mind. An internationalism. We must interpret our history from a world point of view rather than from just a national point of view. The practice of having students of one country study in another and thus exchange ideas is increasing in popularity, and the new attitudes resulting from this exchange of ideas have helped to bridge the gulf which now exists between nations.

International athletics is doing much to bring about a spirit of friendliness between nationalities. Now and in future years with movements for international goodwill, will spring from many lands. America will do her part in this work. Why, however, should we teach that our country has always been right; that we are superior in all ways to other people, when we are not? It only creates resentment and ill feeling. When we realize that other nationalities are just as we are, have the same desires, and are hurt in the same ways, we shall have become world-minded. This, to my way of thinking, is the real foundation for international and world peace.

Modern history has been colored with a continuous development of the conflicting interests and hatreds among all nations. Periods of peace have been broken by wars. Upon the termination of the First World War in 1918 all of the Western world wanted a permanent and lasting peace. The idea that nations, can, if they will, for international organizations with the purpose of eliminating some of the causes of war grew rapidly in the post-war years. We have international peace pacts, such as the Kellogg-Briand Pact, of which it was hoped that they would reduce the possibility of future international conflicts. We have also seen the establishment of international organizations such as the World Court and the League of Nations which have aimed at arbitrating difficulties between nations and consequently at eliminating causes of armed conflict.

The history of the League of Nations, unfortunately, leads us to the conclusion that we were not able to establish an international organization which can in all cases be depended upon to prevent war. It was not long after the League of Nations was organized that unrest and hatred began to develop and then followed World War II. Following this war, another international organization was born, namely The United Nations Organization.

The U. N. was organized with a much stronger faith than was the League of Nations, for World War II was far more impressive in the minds of freedom-loving people and the general opinion was that such a war must not happen again. Today, when we consider the many modern implements of waging war that are available at a moment's notice and their tremendous striking power, we must depend upon the United Nations Organization to maintain the peace and to bring all nations together where they can present their problems and effectively solve them without armed conflict. World peace depends upon the success of the U. N. and the success of the U. N. depends upon each and every individual who loves freedom and who truly regards it as his most prized possession. We, as individuals must hold the torch of freedom high and keep its flame burning forever.

In many respects we live today in an international society. Our table is filled with the foods of many nations. Our automobile contains materials that are gathered from the four corners of the globe. The radio messages can be extended around the world. Television brings us closer together than ever before. Railroads, ship lines, the cable, the telegraph, all have made the heart of distant continents accessible. Today, by means of modern jet transportation we find nations even closer. One nation cannot live alone. It must depend upon the raw materials from all parts of the world. We must be considerate of our neighbor. We must not wage a war, but instead, help him in any way we can.

We must educate ourselves to the horrors of war. We must think of the men and boys who have given their lives that we may continue to live in peace and enjoy our God-given right of freedom. As Memorial Day approaches us this year, let us awake to the folly of war. Let us remember those who died in World War I and World War II. Nor shall we forget the many who gave their last full measure of devotion to God and country in the Korean conflict.

As we place a bag or a wreath upon the graves of our departed soldiers, let us keep but one thought in mind . . . "that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion . . . that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain . . . that this Nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom . . . and that, government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from this earth."

Yes, the words of Abraham Lincoln are still remembered and are just as true in 1960 as they were on that historic day in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, November 19, 1863. Let us remember them, always.

Old House Made New

Careful Remodeling Retains Two Centuries of Grace

"After" view above shows how traditional beauty of this 200-year-old home was enhanced by remodeling. Photo below shows house before project started.

An old house can be made "modern" today without taking away any of the grace and charm of its traditional styling.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leddy, of Amesbury, Mass., proved this with their 200-year-old New England home by remodeling to modernize the house, yet retain its fine lines.

They discovered the secret is a combination of careful planning and wise selection of modern building materials.

Working with an architect, the Leddys first removed a small front porch and a large rear wing. The old wing was replaced by a long screened porch that extends beyond the house to provide a breeze-swept outdoor room with a view.

Color played an important role in making the exterior of this house attractive. Dark brown-black siding, reminiscent of the natural siding found on some old New England homes, is given a crisp look by the contrast of white doors and windows. A handsome roof of deep gray asphalt shingles was chosen for beauty and durability. The rich, soft texture of the asphalt shingles contributes dignity that belongs with traditional architecture.

Unseen but important to the livability of the house is thick mineral wool insulation used in walls, attic floors and downstairs floors for year-round comfort and fuel savings of as much as 40 percent per year.

In keeping with the Colonial architecture, the Leddys installed stock Dutch doors, wood windows and mellow wood kitchen cabinets of ponderosa pine. A new double casement window over the sink and a Dutch door with glass in the top half added light to the old kitchen.

Another Dutch door opens between the kitchen and "keeping room," or den, as we know it today. Many styles of tightfitting window units and doors of ponderosa pine, ready to be installed, are stocked by building material dealers.

Moravian Church Has New Pastor

Frederick Morgenstern, a member of the senior class of Moravian Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, Pa., has accepted the call to become pastor of the Moravian congregation at Graceham, Md.

It is expected that Mr. Morgenstern soon after his graduation will be ordained a deacon of the Moravian Church. This is the first order in the ministry. His ordination will take place in his home congregation, the First Moravian Church, Easton, Pa.

The installation of the new pastor at Graceham will be carried out on Sunday morning, August 14. The service will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. F. P. Stocker, of Bethlehem, President of the Executive Board of the Eastern District of the Moravian Church. On this occasion the new pastor will preach his introductory sermon. Following the service of installation, the congregation will join in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper in observance of the August 13th Festival of the Moravian Church, which is a traditional date of high spiritual significance for all Moravian congregations in all parts of the world. Mr. Morgenstern is the son of Harvey and Clara Lambert Morgenstern, of Phillipsburg, New Jersey.

He attended the public schools of Phillipsburg, where he was a member of the high school band. After graduating from high school, he enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps and served until September, 1948, when he was discharged with the rank of corporal. In the fall of 1949, Mr. Morgenstern enrolled in Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa., to begin preparation for ministerial service. While in college he was a member of the college band, of the Archaeology Club, of the Pi Mu Fraternity, and for two years served as a representative on the Student Council.

He graduated from Moravian College in 1953, and in the fall of that year entered Moravian Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, from which he will graduate on May 29.

He was united in marriage with Lois Bachman, at Easton, Pa., on Sept. 9, 1950. The family now includes two children, Denise Ann, aged six, and Frederick Lambert Morgenstern II, aged six months. From 1955 to 1958, Mr. Morgenstern served as student pastor of the Salem Congregational Church at Wind Gap, Pa.

One of his favorite avocations is flying, for which he holds a private pilot's license.

One of the elements in the program of expansion of the Graceham Moravian congregation is the construction of a new parsonage. This project is now under way, and it is hoped that the new and adequate parsonage will be completed so that the new pastor may move in on August 10. The present parsonage, which is attached to the historic church building of the Graceham congregation, will be converted for use in the Christian Education program of the congregation.

The present pastor of the Graceham Moravian congregation, the Rev. John R. Hoesman, will close his active pastoral career and enter upon retirement and pension on July 31. He has been pastor at Graceham since 1957. During this period the congregation has made excellent progress in all aspects of its work.

The Rev. Mr. Hoesman was ordained to the Moravian ministry in 1923, and will complete thirty-seven years of pastoral service before he retires.

Safety Official Stresses Caution Over Holiday

Greater Automobile Speed Means Greater Chance of Death. This warning is given by Paul E. Burke, executive director of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission. He stated "The Slow Down and Live campaign which is being conducted throughout the United States and Canada by the Association of State and Provincial Safety Coordinators will be inaugurated Memorial Day. This campaign will be promoted throughout the summer months ending Labor Day. The theme will be—"Highway Safety—Makes Driving Fun."

Memorial Day coming on Monday this year will make a longer weekend and this long holiday weekend will entice extra thousands of motorists to the highways. Many will be week-enders, dashing off for three days of fun before they return to the old grind. Others will be taking short drives to enjoy the beautiful spring weather. Too many will throw caution to the winds when it comes to traffic safety. Thinking only of the holiday, they'll cut loose on already crowded highways, endangering not only their own lives but the lives of others. They'll be dangerous demonstrators of the truth that "Speeders Lose."

Last year in Maryland seven people lost their lives during the Memorial Day weekend on our streets and highways. This could have been avoided by courteous, considerate and careful drivers. Let's cheat death out of this holiday and follow this "Safe Speed Check List."—It will insure your chances and prove — "Highway Safety—Makes Driving Fun."

1. Slow down before you get to curves and intersections.
2. In a line of traffic, stay well behind the car ahead (one car length for each 10 miles an hour of speed).

3. Drive within the posted speed limits—they are there for your protection.

4. Limit the number of miles you try to cover—when you're tired or find yourself becoming inattentive, Stop.

5. Watch areas where children are playing—They do not always see you.

6. Don't drink and drive.

8. Be courteous at all times.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

The Shock Of Your Life

So she took a bobby pin out of her hair and poked it into the thingamijig and all the lights in the house went out. She was lucky; she might have electrocuted herself.

Electricians are sometimes difficult to get hold of, but they are the only ones who should fix electrical appliances. You may have done it successfully ninety-nine times, but the hundredth time you'll be a job for the undertaker.

That goes, too, for Scotch tape around frayed electrical wiring and that 30 ampere fuse you put in the box instead of the 15 that belongs there. Of course, you wouldn't dream of putting a penny in the box to replace the burnt-out fuse when you haven't got another handy. Or would you?

Very new houses and apartments usually have heavy wiring to carry boilers, air conditioners, and such new gadgets. They can take, in addition, two or three appliances at the same time. But most old places (and these days that can mean only three years old) just haven't the wiring voltage to carry what you've got plugged into them right now.

If there are small children in the house, remember that an empty outlet fascinates them and small fingers or a metal toy can

NITROGEN BATS 1,000 IN FRUIT TREE LEAGUE

See by the paper where they imported seven fruit bats for zoos in this country because they are such a curiosity. Then Uncle Sam comes along and says those bats must go. We haven't any around here and this is no time to start raising them, he says.

Thus a noble blow was struck for the fruit-grower, who has enough problems as it is. Probably his biggest one in this area is how to get the right amount of nitrogen into the buds. He knows that each season the nitrogen content of the buds determines the potential yield of fruit.

When the fruit trees don't have enough nitrogen, neither the blossoms nor the leaves are healthy. Too much nitrogen in the buds, with more heaped on during the growing season, often results in too much foliage and too little color in the fruit. It also can bring about too heavy a set of fruit which, unless thinned, can produce under-sized fruit in a dry season. All fruit trees require nitrogen fertilizer and seem to respond to it more than any other plant food element. But many growers feel there still is much to be learned about its use and applications.

Fruit trees often are fertilized ahead of blossoming time. It's hard to fertilize that far ahead of the crop and have the application just right. What is right for an average season may be too much for a dry season and not enough for a wet season.

The amount, times, and distribution of rainfall has considerable effect on the way trees and fruit respond to nitrogen fertilizers. This has caused many growers to change from one nitrogen fertilizer to another.

There is one nitrogen fertilizer coming onto the market recently in larger volume. It is urea, a 45 per cent nitrogen fertilizer which does something positive about solving this problem. Fruit growers are showing considerable interest in it. Here are some of its advantages so far as they are concerned:

Urea takes less time and labor to apply the recommended amount of nitrogen per tree than other nitrogen fertilizers. Urea's effect is relatively constant despite extremes in rainfall distribution.

Pome and citrus fruits can absorb urea through the leaves, and five pounds of urea in 100 gallons of insecticide spray is a satisfactory and economical method for applying urea to these fruits.

With the right kind of care and the right kind of government, fruit growers can get the nitrogen in and bats out and they might end up with a profit.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

YOU ARE AS YOUNG AS YOUR FAITH!

An old proverb states that you are as young as you think you are. I believe it should say you are as young as your faith.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, on his seventy-fifth birthday, had this to say about youth. "Youth is not entirely a time of life—it is a state of mind. Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years, but by deserting his ideals."

"You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubts; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair."

"In the central place of every heart there is a recording chamber; so long as it receives the message of beauty, hope, cheer and courage, so long is that person young. When the wires are all down and the heart is covered with the snow of pessimism and the ice of cynicism, then, and only then, is a person old."

When I was growing up my mother said to me, "Oral, be young while you are young, for whatever you are in youth, you are as you grow older." She meant that preparation for growing older begins in youth. In fact, the Bible says, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." If we remember God when we are young, He will be near us when we are older.

Since we live with our minds, actually, our eyes can see only what our minds see. Our ears hear what our minds hear. If we are young in mind and spirit and see and hear wonderful things in our minds, then that is what our eyes see and our ears hear. So we must be careful what we think and believe. We become what our believing is. Our being young in mind keeps our bodies vigorous.

The Bible states that we are to become like little children. What is the secret of a child's strength? I believe that it is enthusiasm for life, a lively curiosity, a burning interest in things about it. I have noticed that some people as they grow older withdraw from life and see nothing.

The only way, then, that we can become as little children is through our minds! We must wake up and scarcely be able to wait for breakfast before going out into God's wonderful world to see what the day has in store for us. With that attitude we become like little children. But we must remember that the Bible teaches us to become childlike, not childish.

As we grow older, we must keep Christ in our hearts. We must believe in God. We must rejoice over our many blessings and let the morning sun shine in our faces and the angels sing in our souls. We must remember that age is a state of mind, a state of spirit, a state of faith in God.

We are as young as our faith.

Remember Freedom's Source

Freedom is every man's God-given birthright. Governments do not have any freedom to give. Governments may restrain or limit or take away freedom—or protect it. Protecting freedom is the basic function of Government in the liberal tradition. Comparatively few men who have walked the face of the earth have enjoyed any considerable degree of freedom, probably not more than 5 per cent. Yet, very few Americans have a genuine appreciation of freedom, or clearly understand its source. Thus many are standing by unmoved while the protective structure of freedom is dissipated.

Freedom can live only when coupled with justice. Otherwise, the strong take away the freedom of the weak. Justice lives only where men recognize the authority of God. The strong have no other restraint. God alone transcends the principles of both freedom and justice, and it is only when man fears God that he is able to harmonize freedom and justice, through the exercise of self-discipline.

God Is Indispensable

The well-being of every society of mankind over any long period has always been in direct relationship to its respect for God. In no area of society can man ignore God and succeed for long. We like to look on the classic painting of General George Washington kneeling in prayer at Valley Forge. We likewise can draw from history the scene at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, when the men who wrote the Constitution prayed to Almighty God for guidance. We are impressed by the fact that each session of Congress is opened with a prayer.

Preceding Washington and our war for freedom, there was the landing of the Mayflower at Plymouth. The ship swung into the bay on Saturday, and there before the Pilgrims' eyes was the shore of their new world. But they didn't go ashore. They remained on board over Sunday and conducted their worship services. Then, before they set out for shore, they drew up the Mayflower Compact. It began: "In the name of God, Amen." Even after 340 years, this is a thrilling moment just to remember.

A Godly Nation

God was mentioned in every one of the Colonial charters. A church building was one of the very first structures in every new settlement as our sturdy families moved westward across America. Our social standards, our political system, our economic laws and our religious laws took into consideration the Bible. Our government has made a conscious effort to preserve through all these years our God-given freedom.

The nation has expanded much, however. Many immigrants have been admitted. The world has become much smaller with speed of transportation and communications. International relations have become much more complicated, and maintaining freedom has become increasingly difficult. It must become the central task of every American citizen—or else we may lose freedom. Great and powerful forces are at work to destroy it. Unless we mobilize the citizen-strength of America and utilize all our resources, our nation could fall and the world could be plunged into another Dark Age.

Lesson of History

The history of man is a history of the rise and fall of nations. History shows that 21 different civilizations or nations have reached the zenith on the world stage—and have fallen. No nation ever has remained leader among the nations of the world for more than a few generations. No nation having lost that leadership ever regained it. America is now at the peak—the foremost nation in productivity, in wealth, in power, in prestige. But no nation ever had greater problems.

Our gravest problem is the apathy of our 170 million people. Who among the readers of this column really, genuinely feels he is earning the right to freedom through citizenship activity. Aren't most of us letting someone else ("George") protect our freedom for us? Aren't most of us too busy at home or at work to bother with the grave problems facing us as a nation?

America is truly at a critical crossroads. Freedom is in jeopardy. Our nation needs you—wherever or whenever you are. The first call upon you is to get an understanding of the source of Freedom, how it must be protected, and the nature and strategy of the forces seeking its destruction.

In 1970 the investor-owned companies plan to serve the increased power needs of this region with generating capability of approximately 52.8 million kilowatts. By 1980 regional capability estimated at 96.4 million kilowatts will be more than triple the 1959 total.

His report went on to show that energy output of 137.1 billion kilowatt-hours by electric company systems in 1959 is expected to increase to 262.3 billion kilowatt-hours in 1970. By 1980 anticipated electricity output of 485.3 billion kilowatt-hours will be over three and one-half times the 1959 figure.

The major expansion planned by electric companies in this particular region for the next 20 years insures that increasing generating capacity will be available to serve the homes, factories and farms of the region with all the electricity they can use, according to the power company manager.

His report further states that the power production record and future plans for this area, "tie in with the plans of the nation's other regions, with electricity-producing capability expected to quadruple in the next 20 years."

On a nation-wide basis, the study by the Institute predicts that by 1970 the electric companies will more than double their present power producing capability. By 1980, it is expected to reach more than 492 million kilowatts, nearly four times today's total.

To provide the greatly expanded power supply systems to meet these future needs will require great sums of money, according to E. E. I.

The report states: "Today, the electric companies have about $43 billion invested in electric plant and equipment. To reach the level forecast for 1970 will require about $52 billion in new construction. To double it again by 1980, the companies will have spent on new construction from the end of 1970 through 1980 more than $91 billion. This means that during the next twenty years, more than $143 billion will be required to expand the electricity supply systems, a sum more than three times the present investment."

The study pointed out that the electric companies have every confidence in their ability to attract funds in the free market to provide the power needs of the future.

Try this method to see if a fly rod has a true dry-fly action: Run a line through all the guides and tie it to something, then back off quite a distance and pull a slight bend in the rod. If the bend comes almost entirely in the upper half of the rod, but isn't confined too closely to the tip, it's a true dry-fly action.—Sports Afield.

The capability of the electric companies which serve this area of the United States was generally to that of the northeast section of the country in 1959, according to a report issued this week by John W. Morgan, District Manager of the Potomac Edison Company.

Based on a nation-wide study recently completed by the Edison Electric Institute, the manager's report showed that of the eight power supply regions of the country, this area's capability of 29.3 million kilowatts last year ranked

NOTICE OF MUNICIPAL CHARTER AMENDMENTS FOR THE BURGESS AND COMMISSIONERS OF EMMITSBURG

Pursuant to the Charter Amendment Resolution No. 3, passed by the Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg on May 4, 1960, the following is published as a fair summary of the proposed amendments.

The proposed amendments make an entirely new charter for the municipality and changes the name of THE TOWN OF EMMITSBURG. The limit of $10,000 on property which the Town may own has been removed. Boundaries are not changed. Property qualifications for Commissioners are required and for the Burgess are raised, both set at $1,000 and technical changes made in old section 153 and other sections of the Charter. The old Charter is Sections 161 to 184, inclusive, of the Code of Public Laws of Maryland—1930 Edition. Voting by machine is allowed in addition to voting by ballot. Many obsolete provisions and sections which have not been followed have been omitted. Sections 157, 158, 165, 166, 167, 173, 174, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 182 and Chapter 188 of the Laws of the General Assembly of 1939 have all been included although the wording and organization or placement of these sections have been changed. The Board of Commissioners have retained all of their specific powers and their general powers have been expressed in more general terms, thus broadening their overall powers. The Commissioners are allowed to meet as they decide; limitations on their taxing power have been eliminated; provisions regarding the constable, town treasurer and tax collector have been expressed in more general terms and financial information and requirements have been amplified and made more specific and detailed. Tax collection powers have been changed to agree with modern state law; the borrowing power has been enlarged and generalized; the town is enabled to codify its ordinances and the entire charter has been reorganized under a modern type charter so that specific provisions may be more easily found. The NEW CHARTER shall become effective on July 4, 1960, unless a proper Petition for a Referendum thereon shall be filed as provided by Section 13 of Article 23A of the Annotated Code of Maryland, and provided that the other provisions of Article 23 A of said Code applying in such cases are all followed.

Colonials Outsell Moderns

New homes in modern variations of colonial design are out-selling houses in all other styles in many parts of the country today.

Many builders and architects feel the reason for this enthusiastic acceptance by home buyers of the return to traditional styling is that it offers the dignity, grace, and beauty that is lacking in more casual home designs.

Good examples of the elements that give richness and solidity to colonial design are louver shutters, double-hung windows, panel doors, wide board siding, and more practical interior zoning.

Double-hung windows and panel doors of ponderosa pine are available in styles that are exact replicas of doors and windows hand-made by Colonial craftsmen.

The windows come in weather-stripped units with frame and sash fitted together at the factory. Panel doors also are available in units with the door pre-hung in its frame.

Colonial entrance adds to beauty and dignity of this home.
A similar style of ponderosa pine panel door is used throughout the house to provide continuity of design.

Wide double-hung window of ponderosa pine with its slim mullions and large lower sash is duplicate of an early American design, yet is completely modern in function.

Wheat Referendum Set For July 21

Chairman William L. Dudley of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee today announced that the annual marketing quota referendum for wheat growers will be held July 21 as the first step in the wheat program for 1961 required by present law.

The purpose of the referendum is to determine whether or not wheat growers wish to market their 1961-crop wheat under a marketing quota system. Quotas have been proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture, as required whenever the wheat supply is more than 30 per cent above normal. They will take effect if approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum.

In proclaiming quotas for 1961,
the Secretary established the national acreage allotment at the minimum of 55 million acres permitted by law. Of this, 175,370 acres were allotted to Maryland, from which local wheat farmers will receive individual farm allotments before voting in the referendum.

The Secretary also announced that the minimum national average support price for 1961 wheat will be made known before the referendum on the basis of the latest available supply information. Based on the present wheat supply and the present law, the legal minimum wheat support for 1961 would be 75 per cent of parity, the same percentage as this year.

If marketing quotas take effect, a grower who complies with his allotment will be entitled to market his total 1961 wheat crop without penalty and will be eligible for price support at the full rate.

A grower who exceeds his acreage allotment will be ineligible for price support and will also be subject to marketing quota penalties if he harvests more than 15 acres of wheat. A grower who obtains approval to produce 30 acres or less of wheat to be used exclusively on the farm will not be subject to penalties.

If marketing quotas are disapproved in the July referendum, all wheat produced will be eligible for marketing without penalty.

Price support will be available at 50 percent of parity to those who comply with their acreage allotments.

Voting in the referendum will be done at polling places to be announced later by the county ASC committee. Every wheat grower who expects to have more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest in 1961 will be eligible to vote, except those who participated in the up-to-30-acre feed wheat program in 1960.

The wheat referendum is required, Chairman Dudley said, by the fact that the national wheat supply is at almost twice the normal level. If quotas are approved for 1961, this will be the eighth successive year in which they have been used for wheat.

States, receives most of its for-from Asian countries with Latin America and Europe in second and third place, respectively.

Contrary to popular belief,
most foreign students finance their own education. About 5% are financed by the U. S. Government. Another 5% are financed by their home governments. About 26% are supported by U. S.
foundations, and the Institute for International Education.

dents who were enrolled at Col-amount to $1,800 per year and are subject to Federal income tax.

Self-employed persons, including farmers who have net earn-are required to report their in-true regardless of whether the self-employed person has to pay any income tax and regardless of his age.

Good records make it possible for you to accurately report your income, so you will be meeting your legal obligations, and at the same time protecting your rights under social security. Internal Revenue or the Social Security Administration may ask to see advantage is that good re-

Read II Timothy 1:8-14. I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him. (II Timothy 1:12).

God has spoken to me in various ways and in many situations, but never so clearly as one morning in 1950. Jack, our only son, had left the day before for army training in preparation for overseas duty.

My devotional guide directed me to this verse: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him." Quietly I let it speak directly to my deep need. As I fully committed Jack to God that day, there came to me a peace and an assurance such as I had never known. I can truthfully say that I was less anxious about him during those months of overseas duty than ever before.

I am reminded of Abraham Lincoln's statement that he had been driven to his knees many times because there was no other place to go. There is wisdom in making it a practise to turn always in faith to God, the one true source of strength and power of the living of these days.

Prayer
Our Father, we give Thee

thanks for Thy ever-present, loving nearness. Grant us the faith to believe that in Thy strength we can face any situation and come out victoriously. In the name of our blessed Redeemer we pray. Amen.

I shall take time to listen to God.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Why The Summit Conference Broke Up
BABSON PARK, Mass., May 26—It does not seem reasonable that the Summit Conference of the four largest world governments broke up suddenly in a turmoil without a cause. The Spy Incident.

Khrushchev must have known for a long time that we were flying spy planes over Russia and that it was a routine thing with our Intelligence service. Surely it could not have been the real reason for the Summit Conference break-up. Something else must have happened to cause Khrushchev to give President Eisenhower an ultimatum and demand the abject apology which Khrushchev, of course, knew he would not get.

It also was a general surprise when President Eisenhower indicated that the U-2 spying would be suspended, at least for the time being, though many interpret this as a final cancellation. Many rumors are flying in the various capital cities as to the reasons for the collapse of the Summit Conference and the calling off of the spying.

A Real Probable Reason

When I was in Moscow a short time ago, I heard the United States bases discussed. The United States, it was said, was depending mainly upon these missile bases which surround the Russian empire. Furthermore, it was understood that in the event of the outbreak of World War III, these missile bases would be the first targets of attack; that is, Russia would first try to destroy these.

Also while in Russia, I heard that the U. S. bombers were to be gradually withdrawn following the U. S. Defense Department's disagreement as to whether we should depend upon bombers or upon missiles and rockets. This may have been another "Eisenhower compromise." Also when in Russia, I heard much about rocketry and missilery. Rockets are necessary to perform stunts in space, such as going around the moon; but there are various types of missiles that are sufficient for fighting on land or water. They can be fired from East Germany to any city in the United States, or from any of our cities to Russia.

What Khrushchev Knew About Bases

What may have made Khrushchev so ugly and insistent on an apology from Eisenhower is that he was just learning of these mobile bases. For instance, now most rocket bases are fixed. Eisenhower, however, was probably informed that the mobile rocket bases are a practical success. If this is true, the United States may have no further need of spies to discover rocket bases in Russia. Furthermore, the United States may be able to give up rocket bases in countries now surrounding Russia.

The land-based mobile rocket, will work as follows: Instead of being on a fixed foundation, it will be on a heavy weighted car operating on heavy rails. This mobile base could be moved each night so that it would be constantly in a different location. Some nights it might be moved only twenty-five miles, other nights a hundred miles. Furthermore, at junction points it could be shifted to another railroad. Of course, Russia will also adopt mobile bases, but she has no such railway systems as we have. This would make the work of both the United States and Russian spies more difficult and dangerous.

Other Possible Reasons For Khrushchev's Sudden Leaving

Khrushchev probably had news from Moscow which caused him to destroy the meeting before it opened. It may have been some action of the Presidium directly after he left Moscow, or he may have felt that some other man was looking for his job and he had to be home to protect it. He may have heard that the younger element in Moscow is getting aroused, as in other countries, demanding reduced armament expenditures so that they may have more consumer goods. He may have been informed before the meeting that he would not get satisfactory action on Berlin.

Finally, Khrushchev must have been anxious to get home to speed work on his submarine fleet, as submarines will eventually take the place of all land bases, fixed or mobile. The Chinese Government, too, may have passed along threats to him which he could not ignore. At any rate, knowing he was blocked on all the most crucial subjects, he saw that it would be impossible to get any agreement on a reduction of armaments.

SPEAKING & CARDS

WHAT ABOUT POKER?

Poker is often called "the national card game of the United States." That isn't exactly so, for the ancestors of poker were not American. But it is the sort of game which suits the American temperament; each man is on his own, and poker is strictly a game for individual skill.

Though known in other forms since the 14th century, it first came to this country through the port of New Orleans under the name of "poque," a French game. Poque was played extensively at the time of the Louisiana Purchase of 1803, and was very popular with Southern settlers moving West. They pronounced poque as "pok-eh," which Northerners decided was the Southern pronunciation of "poker," the name which remains to this day.

Poker may be played by any number from two to as many as fourteen. In Draw, five to seven is said to make for the best game, and in Stud, up to nine is best. It can be as serious as you want a game to be, or it can be played by those who are simply interested in having fun. It is one of the best social games, since a player is never at his partner's mercy. An easy game to learn, poker has become just as popular with the ladies as it has long been with men.

Poker probably has more variations than any other game, and many people play different forms in order to speed up the game. A good many books have been published on poker, but the basic rules are not difficult and you can easily learn from a friend or from one of the inexpensive books on card games available at your dime store or stationers.

Here's a handy check-list of the all-important rank of hands for those of you learning the game.

Q: I'm fifteen but I'd like to look older. I think I would, if I used a lot of make-up. My mother doesn't agree with me. Which one of us is right?

A: Your mother. Too much make-up on a fifteen-year-old's face seldom adds either glamor or age. On the contrary, it can have you looking even younger—like a child who's been playing with somebody else's cosmetics.

One of the reasons for using a lot of make-up is to conceal. At your age, you have nothing to hide. A light touch of foundation and powder-in-one will give your complexion a pretty, slightly matte finish. Lipstick is all you need to give your face color and vitality. Eye make-up can wait until later.

Cosmetics used sparingly and with discretion will give you something much more attractive than great age—a prettier, more appealing face.

Great Men of English Letters

JOHN GAY

John Gay—the famous poet and author of The Wife of Bath—was born in England in 1685. Before he turned to writing... Gay was secretary to the Ambassador at the Hanoverian Court.

Using the invaluable contacts he made while serving at Queen Anne's Court, he launched his writing career. His wit and humor are apparent in such works as, The Art of Walking the Streets of London, The Distressed Wife and The Rehearsal at Gotham.

Like many of the literary men of his day, Gay enjoyed a rousing evening with friends. His favorite spot was the White Horse Tavern in Edinburgh. Here he would discuss the theatre while sipping their famous-White Horse Scotch Whisky.

An adaptation of John Gay's most brilliant satire, The Beggar's Opera, has known tremendous success in the off-Broadway theatre. We know it as The Three-Penny Opera, now in its fifth year.

Describes Interesting Trip By Group

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:
The annual trip sponsored by the Ladies' Bible Class of Tom's Creek Methodist Church was made on May 21. This year it was a trip to Washington D. C. The first stop was at the Islamic temple, a magnificent church of the Mohammedan faith. We were asked to remove our shoes upon entering and the only chairs we saw were outside for us to sit on to put our shoes on.

The next stop was the White House where the group found people waiting in line for several blocks, but the long line kept moving until they were in the White House. Now we moved on to visit the Pan-American Union which is headquarters of organizations of American States, the oldest international organization in the world. Contributions from each of the 21 republics together with a generous gift of money from Andrew Carnegie, paid for this beautiful building of Spanish architecture situated in the midst of beautiful landscaped gardens. The group then proceeded to the Smithsonian Institution, which was established by Congress in 1846 through the generosity of James Smithson, an Englishman who, in 1829, bequeathed his entire property to the United States of America which now is to be found in Washington as an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men.

The next point of interest was the National Historical Wax Museum. This museum is a modern development of an ancient art. It is unique in that it has thematic unity. The theme being American history, beginning with the landing of Columbus to our Modern times. The bus then carried the group to the Franciscan Monastery. This is a most beautiful building. It is reminiscent of the early Franciscan Missions in California. The visitors saw before entering, the monastery gardens, known as the Pilgrimage Hall. The Cata Combs were next from which the visitor could form an accurate idea of those in Rome. It was in these subterranean passages that the Divine Services were celebrated during the ages of persecution, as is evident from the numerous altars found there today. We were told that more than three thousand people had already made the pilgrimage that day. Our last stop was the Prince Georges Plaza at which the group spent an hour or more shopping and dining at the Hot Shoppe, then home.

Those making the trip were: Mrs. Cameron Johnson, Mrs. Paule Beale, Mrs. Roy Glass, Mrs. Ray Glass, Mrs. Kermit Glass, Mrs. David Glass, Mrs. Raymond Baumgardner, Mrs. John Baumgardner, Mrs. Robert Baumgardner, Mrs. Pauline Seabrooks, Mrs. Andrew Keilholtz, Mrs. Carroll Phillips, Mrs. John Stonestifer, Mrs. Charles Copenhaver, Mrs. Raymond Roop, Mrs. Richard Valentine, Mrs. Charles Valentine, Mrs. Robert Grimes, Mrs. Russell Ohler, Mrs. Carrie F. Liller, Mrs. Guy Ohler, Mrs. Mae Grushong, Mrs. Ralph Shorb, Mrs. Lloyd Ohler, Mrs. Charles Linn, Mrs. Esther Warren, Mrs. Bertha Ohler, Mrs. Raymond Keilholtz, Mrs. George Martin, Miss Nancy Dinterman. The trip was made via the Rosensteel Charter Service, driven by Eugene Rosensteel.

Miss Rybikowsky Bride Of M. J. Capezio

Miss Theodora Marie Rybikowsky, Baltimore, daughter of Mrs. Vincent Bernard Rybikowsky, 212 E. Main St., Emmitsburg, became the bride of Marion James Capezio Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion J. Capezio, Baltimore, recently at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Baltimore. The Nuptial mass was performed by the Rev. John C. Griffith.

The bride, given n marriage by her uncle, Paul Goulden, wore a gown of white silk organza with V neckline trimmed with appliques of Alencon lace and sequins, fitted bodice with a full skirt, and a nobi sash in back. The skirt ended with a train. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white carnations which was presented to the Blessed Mother statue.

The church was decorated with palms and large baskets of white lilies and carnations. The soloist, Clair Redding, cousin of the bride, from Mt. St. Mary's Seminary sang "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," "O Lord I Am Not Worthy" and "Mother At Your Feet Is Kneeling," while the bride placed her bouquet at the Blessed Mother statue.

Miss Theresa Rybikowsky, Montgomery, Ala., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an orchid street-length dress of silk organza with a sabrina neckline, short sleeves, full skirt with sash. A spray of daisies was embroidered around the neckline. She wore a headpiece and shoes to match with short white mitts and carried a white lace fan on the center of which was an orchid.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Carole McCurley, Miss Mary Jeanne Wills, Baltimore; Miss Judy Jung-hans, Silver Spring; and Miss Mary Jane Scott, Emmitsburg.

Appreciates Paper's Support

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

It is with a deep sense of gratitude that the Maryland Division of the American Cancer Society extends its heartfelt thanks to the Emmitsburg Chronicle for its support of the 1960 Cancer Crusade. Over the years the Chronicle has been most generous in its support of the Research, Education and Service programs of the Society.

This year, more than ever, the Society is indebted to you for bringing the facts about cancer to the public which enabled a continued breakdown of the barrier of ignorance and fear so long associated with cancer.

For this we are eternally grateful.

Frank H. J. Figge, President, American Cancer Society, Maryland Division, Inc.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

"GOD HAS BEEN HERE ALL THE TIME!"

During World War II a boy from one of the churches in my town was stationed in England. He was a gunner in one of the large bombers and completed fifty bombing missions over Germany.

During a lull in the bombing and fighting, a chaplain from the air base decided to take a ride with this boy's crew. They got in the plane and soon they were out over the English Channel.

The flight was uneventful until they started over the mainland of Europe. Suddenly the air was filled with anti-aircraft shells and it looked as if their plane could not possibly escape being blown out of the sky.

It was the chaplain's job to encourage the boys. He took the microphone of the intercom and said, "Boys, be of good cheer, for God is with us."

From the rear gunner's position came the cynical reply, "He might be up there in front, Chaplain, but he shore ain't back here."

About the time the gunner finished his sentence, a shell came bolting through the fuselage near him. But by some unexplainable miracle it failed to explode as it came hurtling through.

When the terror-stricken young man recovered his wits he called back to the chaplain, "Correction, please! I didn't know it, but God has been back here all the time."

In a few minutes the pilot was able to set the crippled plane down safely without injuries or loss of life.

Many times God is all around us but we do not recognize Him. Often we feel we are all alone and forsaken, that no one cares or is concerned about us, but if we would just look around, we would discover that God had been there all the time.

The Bible tells us that God notices when a little sparrow falls to the ground. He is all observing and ever-loving, and He is by your side.

There is a promise in the Bible that means a great deal to me. It is, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." That means that God will be with me all the time; that I will never have to worry about a thing, because He will help me and meet my needs.

I am away from home a great deal. My wife and children must stay at home much of the time while I am away. One night several years ago, while I was in a crusade 1,400 miles away from home, my wife became very frightened and upset.

When she told me about it later, I told her, "Honey, don't ever be afraid again. God is awake all night long watching over you. God is with you all the time."

$1500 Awarded In Civil Suit

An Adams County jury Tuesday afternoon directed that Emanuel J. Kump, Emmitsburg R2, pay Lester McLaughlin, Gettysburg R2, $1,500 damages as a result of his injuries while McLaughlin was seeking to play "good Samaritan" at an automobile accident scene along the Gettysburg Rd 2 miles north of Emmitsburg. McLaughlin had sued Kump for injuries received by McLaughlin when Kump's car struck McLaughlin as he stood near an overturned auto owned by Catherine E. Ott, Hanover, on October 1, 1958.

Mrs. Ott's car had skidded and upset on the highway. McLaughlin, a passerby, halted his car and went to assist the occupants of the wrecked car. He was standing off the road with Mrs. Ott when the Kump auto, headed north, came upon the scene and allegedly struck McLaughlin and then struck the overturned Ott auto.

After McLaughlin sued Kump, Kump had Mrs. Ott entered as an additional defendant claiming that the incident was Mrs. Ott's fault because she had not placed warning flares. He also alleged that, while his car struck Mrs. Ott's, her car must have struck McLaughlin.

The jury's original verdict held Kump guilty, Mrs. Ott not guilty and McLaughlin to receive $1,500. It was muddled by the court to read that the jury found in favor of McLaughlin and against Kump in the sum of $1,500 and found in favor of Mrs. Ott.

Commissions are not paid on arguments won, but on sales made.

Thurmont Jaycees Hold Charter Night

S. Fred Steppe, left, state president of Maryland Jaycees, presents Thurmont President Donald Fitzgerald with charter.

Thursday evening, May 19, the Thurmont Chapter of the Junior Chamber of Commerce held its charter night celebration at the American Legion ballroom with approximately 150 persons in attendance.

Paul Connolly, vice president, acted as toastmaster and the meeting was opened with the pledge to the flag, followed by the invocation given by George W. Wireman. The meal was prepared and served by the ladies of the Legion Auxiliary.

Following the dinner the toastmaster introduced members and guests from visiting Jaycee chapters including Hagerstown, Frederick, Emmitsburg and Waynesboro.

Before presenting the charter to President Donald Fitzgerald, S. At the close of the installation ceremonies, Mr. Steppe, state president, presented the charter to President Fitzgerald and outlined briefly the work of the Jaycees and how a community can benefit by their existence. BURGESS AND COMMISSIONERS

Unemployment Check Misuse Results In Fine

Fines of $100 apiece were laid on brothers, Lester and Francis Miller, R2, Thurmont, last week in the Frederick Magistrate's Court, after the two had been convicted of accepting unemployment benefits while working.

Both men are regularly employed as masons, they said, and during a full week earn salaries above the amount of their fines. However, the charges against them, filed by the Department of Unemployment Security's claim specialist, Clarence Shull, originated during the winter when the trade was at a virtual standstill.

Shull said Lester had been overpaid $137 and Francis, $74. The men never reported obtaining part-time work to the department, he charged. Depending on their wages, the unemployment allotments would either have lessened or been voided altogether.

Evidence of the infraction was produced by periodic check of area payrolls against names of out-of-work claimants. When claimants accept benefits they must sign an oath declaring they are not working.

Neither of the Millers disputed signing the oath or being employed. Lester maintained he "never paid much attention" to department instructions and added that from time to time he told clerks at the state agency he was working. "They didn't write anything down or say anything more to me," he testified.

Francis said simply, "I didn't know it was overdrawn."

Shull explained that before proceedings began against the pair they had been notified of the overpayments. Neither restitution, nor appeal was received from them, he said.

Planning Helps Pare Down Food Budget

The homemaker who has a new electric refrigerator-freezer can save time and labor and pare down the food budget if she plans family meals in advance.

Here's how to find extra hours and save money:

1. Plan a week's menu and shop just once a week—preferably on Monday or Tuesday, the slower days—instead of making three or more weekly trips to the supermarket. Fresh foods stay fresh for a week in the roomy refrigerator compartments that are specially cooled and humidified.

2. Look for sales of frozen foods and freezable fresh foods. The freezing section will keep large quantities of them for weeks.

3. Double or triple recipes when making a casserole, stew, soup, spaghetti sauce, or baked goods. What isn't needed immediately can be frozen to make effortless meals later and add extra hours for enjoying unexpected guests.

4. Forget about defrosting the freezer, as frost never forms in many of the new electric refrigerator-freezers.
