As I stated in this column some months ago, when you ask some public official for a favor someone has to pay the bill. We wonder why taxation is so high these days but there is an answer to the problem always. Just take this case that turned up this week in Frederick. The Board of Education called a meeting to hear the problems and needs of each school in the county system. A representative from each school district was invited to express his opinion or that of his PTA. Naturally Emmitsburg asked for more classroom space to alleviate the present overcrowding which necessitates using the stage for conducting classes. A Frederickian demanded the erection of a stadium for football for Frederick High, fully equipped with lighting, etc. Can you imagine what that would cost the taxpayer back? The individual says McCurdy Field in Frederick isn't satisfactory. Well many other teams of football, soccer and baseball have played there for years, including colleges and professional teams yet this citizen thinks the grounds are not suitable for high school play. I don't think the idea will go down so good with the County Commissioners. Again I say that the more pressure we place on politicians for things of this sort, the higher the old tax bill climbs.

Mr. "K" seems to have some unfinished business here in America as he remains on daily duty at the United Nations. Many of the other world leaders have returned to their homes but not Mr. K. It is apparent that he will leave here until he has achieved his purpose or mission... the wrecking of the United Nations. Khrushchev really has unmasked himself since he has been here and this ought to serve us to keep up our guard at all times. It is apparent that the ruthless butcher of Budapest is here for no good purpose whatsoever.

An odd theory as to the cause of the crash of the jet passenger plane at Boston this week which took the lives of over 50 people has been offered. Latest information has it that a flock of starlings, possibly several thousand in number, flew in front of the plane and many of the birds were sucked into the jet engines starting the motors for air and causing them to fail with the resultant crash into Boston harbor. The freak accident has started a clamor for the airlines to ground the new jets. This phenomenal bad break could possibly be attributed to the birds but it is my opinion that these planes, and all other new models, should receive more testing time before being made available to the general public for mass transportation. It appears that it is a mad race to get the air passenger business first regardless of safety.

Local Jayce Chapter Schedules Public Pancake Supper

A pancake supper has been announced by the Greater Emmitsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce. President Donald Eyer reports the affair will be held in the Fire Hall on Oct. 22 from 4 to 8 p. m. On the menu will be Duncan Hines Products, country sausage, coffee, pancakes, etc. The local Jaycee Chapter advises the public that the affair is public and that admission price includes all one can eat. Tickets will sell for $1 for adults and 50c for children.

The next Jaycee meeting will be held Wednesday night, Oct. 12 at 8:30 p. m. at the Fire Hall. President Donald Eyer announced this week that important business will be discussed and asks all members to be present.

Cong. Foley To Visit Emmitsburg

John R. Foley, U. S. Congressman for the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, will visit Emmitsburg as the guest of the Emmitsburg Democratic Committee next Wednesday, Oct. 12.

Lumen F. Norris, local chairman of the Democratic Committee said the Congressman will arrive here at approximately 10 a. m. and will stop off at the local VFW Annex where he will greet the public. The Congressman, seeking re-election in November, later will tour the town and meet many old friends. He also plans to visit Mt. St. Mary's College for a brief period.

Congressman Foley's visit here will afford an opportunity for old friends to renew their acquaintance and also for the candidate to meet new ones. Mr. Foley will be present to answer any questions that local citizens might ask. During Foley's visit here coffee will be served at the VFW and the general public is cordially invited to drop in and chat with their congressman and to have any questions, if they have any, answered to their satisfaction. The Congressman will spend about two hours in the Emmitsburg District.

Foley Announces Academy Exam

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman John R. Foley announced the competitive examination for entrance to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy will be held nationwide on Feb. 20, 21, 1961. These examinations will be given in 123 cities.

Congressman Foley emphasized the opportunity offered young men who choose this four-year course which leads to a commission as a career officer in America's oldest sea-going service and a Bachelor of Science degree.

"There are no appointments or geographical quotas for entrance to the Coast Guard Academy," he said. "I urge all qualified young men who are interested in this worthwhile profession to write for details and application as soon as possible to the Coast Guard Headquarters in Washington, D. C. Applications must be postmarked on or before January 10."

A candidate for the next examination for the Coast Guard Academy must be single, must have reached his 17th but not his 22nd birthday by July 1, 1961 and must be in excellent physical condition.

A high school diploma is the minimum education requirement, although high school seniors assured of being graduated by June 30 are eligible to take the examination if they will have at least 15 credits by that time. All applicants must have three units of English, two algebra and one in plane geometry, by graduation.

Jaycees Sending Out Survey Forms For Town Improvements

The Community Development Committee of the local Jaycees have their surveys in full swing. Local organizations have been contacted and the results are now being turned in. A survey was given to the Educational Leaders of our community and within a week that survey should be complete.

Today starts a survey for the general public. The survey consists of only four questions.

1. Do you live in the city limits of Emmitsburg?
 2. Would you attend a public meeting on community problems?
 3. What is your pet gripe about Emmitsburg?
 4. List briefly the three projects or improvements that would be most beneficial to the community.
- That is all there is to it, but from this we believe we can do our community a great service. We ask that you be honest with us and yourself so we can work to improve any problem that may arise.

You may answer the survey questions printed here by sending your opinion to Jaycee Survey, Box 160, Emmitsburg, Md.—or you may fill out a survey form at many of your local retail stores. We do ask that you sign these forms so we may use them in our survey.

Friday evening survey forms will be available outside the bank from 6 to 9 p. m. Saturday morning the forms will be available in front of the Post Office from 9 to 11 a. m.

Next week we will survey the local businessmen and also the youth of the community.

These surveys are just the first step that we must take in solving our community problems. Next will be the analysis which will give each problem careful consideration. Our local civic officials will be asked to join this task. After determining the importance of each problem as shown by the analysis of the survey, the Jaycees, with the help of the interested organizations, officials and members of the general public, will attempt to find a solution to these problems.

It is up to you, as citizens of Emmitsburg, to back this drive and see that Emmitsburg moves ahead.

The regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Grange was held Wednesday evening at the Lutheran Parish Hall with the installation of officers of both the Emmitsburg and Thurmont Granges. Mail Volume Reaches New High

A new all-time high in the nation's mail volume was reached during fiscal year 1960 ending June 30, which continued the steady upward trend of the past seven years at a rate exceeding even the population growth, according to advance information from the annual report of the Post Office Department which has been made available to Postmaster Louis H. Stoner.

Although subject to last minute revisions, the year's total has been estimated as 63.6 billion pieces of mail, which includes about one billion pieces of parcel post. It was stated that this would mean an increase of nearly 25 per cent over the corresponding figures for 1953 when the annual volume was 50.9 billion pieces.

During this same period, it was pointed out, the revenue of the Department has shown an impressive gain with an increase from $2,091,714,000 in fiscal year 1953 to $3,276,800,000 for fiscal year 1960.

Here in Emmitsburg, receipts of the post office climbed from $24,500 in 1953 to $38,900 last year.

"There is not much we can do about how much mail we have to handle from day to day or how many people are making use of the Postal Service," Postmaster Stoner stated, "but the whole Department keeps busy in devising ways and means for doing the job not only more efficiently but more economically."

Included among items cited by Postmaster Stoner as recent accomplishments by the Department were the following:

Established the first large-scale program of automatic mail handling by machinery on a nationwide basis.

Developed the "airlift" program which speeds up the delivery of approximately one letter out of every 17 on a "space available" basis.

Continued with the development of faster machines for letter sorting, parcel post sorting, and for mail culling, facing and cancelling.

Continued with plans for a new "automatic postal sub-station" which will vend stamps, envelopes, post cards and writing paper, and which will have money changers for both coins and bills.

The Handicapped

Recently I read of a radio technician who was helping to put up hay on a farm and during the operation his arm and leg were torn off by the baling machine. After he had underwent surgery he became despondent. "I thought my life was over," he once remarked. It was at this point that he needed help. He was referred by his doctor to the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, which he entered in a wheelchair. Staff members prescribed treatment and the right kind of artificial arm and leg for him. In a little over a month the arm and leg were ready. Thirty training sessions followed; and the patient, now proficient in the use of them, was ready for discharge, his mental attitude vastly improved.

It is this kind of rehabilitation that helps a handicapped person to improve his frame of mind and to develop a strong self-reliance. Dr. Winthrop Phelps has this to say: "Rehabilitation for some lifework should be the first consideration. If this does not prove possible, then treatment may achieve a second end, that of freeing the handicapped individual from being cared for by a second individual who may thus fill a more valuable role. The result is still economic rehabilitation for the family."

Care of the disabled, through out most parts of the world today, is viewed as a moral obligation. In some countries, such as Britain and Sweden, the government pays the cost of vocational rehabilitation. In the United States state agencies pay the cost. In 1953 the United Nations called a conference for the purpose of organizing, on a worldwide basis, better care for the disabled. Representatives of 26 international voluntary organizations responded. In some parts of the world rehabilitation of the disabled is comparatively recent. There is a clinic in Indonesia in 1955, its head, Dr. Douglas Toffelmier, said: "We shall be fighting disease and superstition in a country where physical disability is still regarded as retribution for evil ways."

We must keep in mind that not just the blind, the deaf and the crippled are considered handicapped persons today. A broad definition is usually given the terms "handicapped" and "disabled." The expression disabled person means a person who, on account of injury, disease, or congenital deformity, is substantially handicapped in obtaining or keeping employment, or in undertaking work on his own account, of a kind which, apart from that injury, disease or deformity, would be suited to his age, experience and qualifications. For those handicapped by loss of an arm or leg, artificial ones are available. Much has been written about the outstanding qualities of artificial limbs. Voices have been heard claiming that new, complicated hands have been able to replace the natural ones completely.

Many artificial hands, beautiful in form, have been produced; but it turns out in practice that the artificial hand consisting of two hooks directed from the armpit seems still to represent the best artificial hand.

As to the artificial leg, better results have been attained, because the function of the leg is much simpler than that of the hand. The invention of the mechanical knee has been a great advantage, and the same is true of the increased knowledge concerning the modern, light metals.

Doing things for themselves, no matter how limited, gives the handicapped persons a feeling of achievement. A whole array of aids and self-help devices enable the handicapped to do things for themselves. Besides artificial limbs and braces, there are self-propelled motor and electric chairs, electric typewriters that respond to a weak, uncertain touch, bookrests, ramps instead of steps in homes, handrails, Braille and Braille typewriters, lip reading, and hearing aids for those who are deaf.

Once a person has become handicapped as a result of an accident, the biggest fight is overcoming disablement. In recent years a vast number of newspaper and magazine accounts and books have told stories of successful efforts to overcome disablement. Not a small number of crippled persons are very good swimmers. Handicapped persons are and have been champion skiers. If you will recall, German ski champion Toni Brutcher, with the loss of his right leg, overcame his handicap. There are also others in this field of sport, who were once handicapped, but have overcome their disablement and have become champions.

Today we hear a lot about hiring the handicapped, and this is being stressed very strongly by many employment agencies throughout the country.

A recent survey was made of New York City employers. In its issue of October 1, 1959, the New York Times said editorially: "A three-year survey by the Federal Employment and Guidance Service, an affiliate of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, has found that fewer than one-third of New York City employers are willing to hire the physically handicapped who possess the necessary job qualification. Those close to the situation hold that the remedy might lie in legislation, or in voluntary establishment of new hiring practices."

Why this reluctance to hire the handicapped? Some employers fear that they are more likely to injure themselves on the job, raising insurance rates. These fears, however, have proved to be without real foundation. A bigger drawback to hiring the handicapped is the common belief that they are not good workers.

Companies that hire qualified handicapped persons have found not only less absenteeism and malingering among them but also better safety consciousness and production as well. The National Association of Manufacturers had this to say about hiring the handicapped in one of their recent publications: "In the past decade production records of thousands of physically handicapped persons in industry indicate beyond any question that so-called handicapped workers are equal to . . . and in some instances better than . . . their able-bodied associates in such important factors as attendance, turnover, safety and productivity." Whatever the handicapped lose in flexibility because of disability, they seem to make up for by concentrating on a job or a few jobs, learning to do them better.

One authority in the field of selective placement writes: "Very few jobs require all the physical abilities of a man. Most disabled persons have far more ability than disability. When such workers are placed according to their abilities in jobs making no physical demands they cannot meet, the disability will disappear as a job handicap." When the United States Civil Service Commission studied 6,000 types of positions, it found that disabled persons could fill effectively all but a very few jobs.

There is a lot that the public can do to help the handicapped. That the social rehabilitation of the public toward the handicapped is an education need today is evident from Henry Viscardi's autobiography, "A Man's Stature." The handicapped author repeatedly refers to disparaging and often insulting remarks made to his face and behind his back during childhood, adolescence and adulthood.

It is easy for someone to laugh at a crippled person and to make insulting remarks about his or her handicap, but it is often hard to be on the receiving end of such remarks. This reminds me of the story that Jimmy Durante, one of America's famous comedians, once told about himself and his big nose.

"Everytime I went down the street I'd hear, 'Lookit the big-nose kid!' And when anybody would stare, I just sneaked off. Even if they said nothing, nothing at all, I'd shrivel up and think they was saying, 'What an ugly kid. What a monster.' And then I'd go home and cry. All through life, even when I am making a fortune on account of the big beak, and while I am out there on the stage laughing and kidding about the nose, at no time was I ever happy about it. Here is a case where Jimmy has made the best of the situation, and has mastered his handicap well.

How clear that the proper attitude toward the handicapped should be part of the parental training of every child. The education of the youth and the education of adults in their behavior toward handicapped persons will be a new advance in human relations. Healthy and well-formed children must be taught to grow up without prejudice towards the disfigured, malformed, or otherwise different members of society.

So many are the ways the handicapped can be helped. Whatever aid is given, it falls short of the best if they are not told of the hope God's word holds forth. This hope brings the greatest possible improvement in mental attitude and health, for it is the hope of everlasting life. The next time you see a handicapped person offer him a few words of encouragement. It is the greatest medicine one can give to the less fortunate of our society.

Fire Prevention Week Being Observed

When was the last time your home heating unit had a thorough, professional going-over? This question along with many others will be asked as the nation observes Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9 thru 15. According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, defective heating units cause nearly ten per cent of all fires of known origin. Before cold weather comes, have your furnace checked by a qualified professional—and repaired if necessary. Help keep your home and family safe from fire. Remember, the emergency fire phone number is HI 7-4141.

Looking Ahead

Knott's Berry Farm
Walter Knott, who at age 31 was eking out an existence selling berries in a southern California roadside stand and today is the owner and operator of the fabulous, internationally-famous Knott's Berry Farm and Ghost Town in Los Angeles, is gravely concerned for the future of America. He is devoting his personal energies and the resources of his unique enterprise to awakening Americans to the dangers of international Communism and encroaching Socialism.

Walter Knott, at 70, has only one motivation—to aid in the preservation of freedom and opportunity for his four children, his grandchildren, and his beloved nation. He has achieved great success in agriculture, in the development of unique marketing practices, in the restaurant business, and as a showman rivaling the late Phineas T. Barnum of circus fame. As the slang saying goes, "He's got it made!" He could sit down and let the rest of the world go by. But Walter Knott, even at 70, cannot be idle as he sees the threats of destruction from without and within confronting an apathetic American public. He is in the fight to awaken America to her peril. Aware Of Blessings

In all of his endeavors, beginning with the time when, as a fatherless boy, he made a living growing peas on vacant city lots and lived in a shack made of weeds, he has been keenly aware of the blessings of freedom and opportunity. He is afraid that Americans generally—never having experienced life without freedom and opportunity—are unaware of their value, and thus may lose them.

In many ways at his fascinating showplace in Buena Park (southeastern Los Angeles) he reminds the three million visitors a year of some of the colorful history of America. It is in sharp contrast to the wholesale killings and violence depicted in the present crop of Western movies and TV fare. Ghost Town, as resurrected out of the past of Walter Knott, is a place of tranquil peace, friendly, authentic old-timers, a place where God-fearing pioneering Americans made their contributions to progress in freedom.

Loved The Soil
But it is in his own personal life—with its meager beginning, its arduous upward climb—that the millions who visit his enterprise each year find their most commanding reasons for strengthening and safeguarding the wonderful mechanism which we call the American way of life. By understanding God's laws, by educating himself in the science of agriculture, by developing a satisfaction out of rigorous physical labor, by keeping steadfastly before him the bright hope in his American dream, Walter Knott himself has become a dramatic example of the goodness of the American way.

"All my life," he says, "I've wanted to be a farmer. To me there has always been a feeling of security and a definiteness of purpose when I am working with my hands in the soil. I've always felt that if a man has a plot of ground, and a willingness to work hard enough, he can make himself a living from the earth. And what more fundamental security than in knowing that one's success or failure depends upon one's self?"

From Rags To Riches

When he was 18 he earned enough money picking cantaloupes in the Imperial Valley to rent 20 acres adjacent the community of Pomona, buy a wagon and team and a few hand tools. Living in a grass hut constructed by a Japanese who couldn't make the land pay, Walter worked every daylight hour planting, cultivating and harvesting peas; and then he spent half the nights in his wagon, searching out profitable markets all over the Los Angeles area. He made enough to get married, homesteaded a farm in the Mojave Desert but had to abandon it for lack of water, and finally put his roots down in Buena Park, renting a few acres of berry land and marketing his produce at a roadside shack. He and his wife Cordelia and their three youngsters lived behind the shack in two rooms.

If you are ever in the Los Angeles area, go out to Knott's Berry Farm and see what freedom and opportunity permitted Walter and Cordelia to build. None of you will ever forget it. It is an American dream come true.

LIVING with your HEART

Many women believe it's as impossible to take the backache out of housework as it is to take the heartache out of soap opera.

But it just isn't so. For years, the Heart Association has been compiling facts to develop easy work techniques as an aid to the homemaker with heart disease. These principles, it has been found, apply just as well to the healthy individual who wants to make her work as easy as possible.

According to Miss Lucy Morse, a Registered Occupational Therapist with the Heart Association of Maryland, the average homemaker is not nearly so economical with her own energy as she is with her household budget. She thoughtlessly bends, reaches, pushes, pulls, lifts and walks where planning would reduce or end the need for much of this work. Miss Morse says this happens partly because work surfaces, shelves and appliances are too high or low, equipment haphazardly scattered, or shelves and drawers cluttered with seldom-used items.

The energy-conscious homemaker is the woman who will have energy left at the end of the day—and her work done, as well. If standing still with the arms relaxed is taken as "zero energy-burning," reaching to an elbow-level shelf requires only 12 per cent more. At eye level, it takes 24 per cent; above the head, 50 per cent—and the same for bending down.

You can determine your individual upper-shelf comfort limit by standing about a foot from the wall, and reaching as high as you can without straining. That's it. Without changing position or bending, lower your arm to a point a few inches from your side and chalk-mark the wall there. That's your lower comfort-boundary. The area between the two points is where your kitchen things used most often should be stored.

How high should your counters be? Miss Morse says, two or three inches below the elbow. But if your counter is too high, use a sturdy straight-backed kitchen stool, high enough to raise your elbow-high to the working surface with your feet resting on the floor or a platform.

Often a kitchen chair and a small kneehole table are found most comfortable for kitchen work. Remember—sitting takes less energy than standing.

If you own a portable table, put it to work; it will save you thousands of steps a year. It's handy when you set and clear a table, or piled with cleaning supplies and wheeled between rooms, or used as a kitchen work surface.

Do you find ironing tiring? Don't stand, says Heart Association's Occupational Therapist Lucy Morse. Get an ironing board designed for sit-down ironing. Sit in a back-supported chair with the board over the lap and two inches above the thighs. Think of your work as though it were on a production line—for example, the laundry cart for un-ironed clothes on one side, the ironing board in front of you and the finished product piled on a rack, table or chair at your other side. Use the cart, also, to take laundry to the machine, to the line or dryer, and back to the sorting table and ironing table, and ironing board. Use it, as well, to carry fresh bedding from the linen closet and soiled bedding to the hamper or washing machine.

If you live in a two-story house, you'll find it cheaper to get an extra set of cleaning materials than to buy another back. Keep a set on each floor. And by all means use an apron with king-sized pockets. That way, you can store cleaning materials while you work—and save many steps.

Reorganizing your housework may mean breaking in a whole new set of habits. It may not be easy, at first. But in the end the rewards are many.

A Town Meeting Center

If it has accomplished little as yet, it has served as a center at which the representatives of many nations can meet and talk. This of itself is a great step forward; but in addition it has active committees with appropriations which are doing difficult work to improve the health, social, and economic conditions of the world. Hence, without any necessary votes, these Committees are doing much to eliminate economic causes of war. Considering that the U. S. refused to join the old League of Nations, we have made a great step forward.

It is good to have the headquarters in New York City and have the meeting now attended by the actual heads of the world's great governments. To have these men meet and talk with one another must result in some good, and at least delay World War III. We know that Russia is against us; but a majority of the total membership is with us. The great difficulty

NO. 18,453 EQUITY IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR FREDERICK COUNTY, IN EQUITY NEVA R. BOONE VS. RICHARD P. BOONE

The object of the Petition is to procure the custody of an infant child by the Petitioner, Richard P. Boone, from the Complainant in the original proceedings, Neva R. Boone.

The Petitioner states in substance that a decree was passed on the 20th day of September, 1956, granting the care and custody of Richard Lee Boone, a minor child issuing from the marriage of the parties to this cause, to Neva R. Boone; that since said date, your Petitioner has paid unto the said Neva R. Boone the sum of Ten Dollars ($10.00) per week for support and maintenance of said child; that subsequent to said decree, the said Neva R. Boone has remarried twice, being presently married to Robert F. Davis, a member of the Army Air Force, stationed in Lockhorne A.F.B., Lockhorne, Ohio; that said marriage will eventually terminate by divorce; that on the 3rd day of September, 1960, the said Neva R. Boone (Davis) accompanied by a man other than her present husband brought the said minor child from the State of Ohio and left it with its maternal grandmother, directing the said maternal grandmother to enter the child in the elementary school system of Frederick County for the current year, the said Neva R. Boone (Davis) having returned to the State of Ohio with another man other than her husband; that subsequent to the passage of the original decree in this cause, your Petitioner has remarried, the marriage being intact, and that the Petitioner is currently employed in Frederick, Maryland, and earns sufficient monies to provide a suitable and stable home for his family and infant child herein mentioned; that since the said Neva R. Boone (Davis) placed the child with his maternal grandmother in Frederick County, and returned to the State of Ohio, the said maternal grandmother refused to permit reasonable visitation rights to your Petitioner; that your Petitioner believes that the best interest and welfare of said minor child will be promoted by the modification of the original decree passed in this cause on the 20th day of September, 1956, by awarding the care and custody of said minor child to your Petitioner, Richard P. Boone.

The Petitioner prays that the care and custody of said infant child be granted to the Petitioner, and that in the meantime the Court will grant temporary custody to the Petitioner until such time as this matter can be heard and permanent custody determined.

It is thereupon this 22nd day of September, 1960, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Petitioner give notice to the said nonresident Defendant of the objects and substance of this Petition by causing a copy of the same to be published in some newspaper published in Frederick County, once a week for four consecutive weeks prior to the 29th day of October, 1960, commanding here to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 29th day of November, 1960, and show cause, if any she has, why the Decree should not be passed as prayed, and as further ordered that in the meantime, the temporary custody of said child be granted to the Petitioner Richard P. Boone until such time as this matter can be heard and permanent custody determined, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 1st day of November, 1960.

is China, with her 600,000,000 people. China's position now is unpredictable. She claims to be against us; but she may be preventing Russia from taking any fatal step. When China gets enough atom bombs, she will attack Russia via her "back door" if Russia should attack Germany and our allies from her "front door." Of course, if it were not for Chiang Kai-Shek and Formosa, it would probably be better to have Red China a member of the United Nations; but we must hold Formosa at all costs.

Difficulty Of Different Languages And Currencies

From my experience traveling about the world, it seems as if the United Nations should work for one of the international languages, such as "Esperanto." This, however, is in the far-distant future and may require World War III to bring about. An international currency could be instituted at any time. Such a currency would greatly help foreign trade and benefit every country. This United Nations money would have to be based upon a gold standard, but each nation could continue to have its own rate of exchange based upon its financial stability. Rate of exchange would be determined by the demand for and the supply of each nation's own currency. This means that it would take more French francs to buy this United Nations money than it would take German marks or English pounds.

Such a situation could work toward equalization of social and economic conditions. Without any international legislation by treaties, or otherwise, this could gradually result in more universal welfare legislation, wage standards, and various other changes which must come about before world peace is attained.

For instance, Russia, Germany, China, and the United States could continue to compete; but "fight" with economic weapons rather than with military weapons. Either this will happen or else World War III will result in a one-world dictator who will force such equalizations. I wish the United Nations would start a study of such an international currency.

New Military War

In conclusion, I must remind readers that even the missile will not be the last development in military weapons. The next step is an accurate anti-missile which can defend a nation against accurate missile attack. The fact that this has not yet been invented may deter any nation from starting a conflict. Then missiles may be used containing concentrated poison gas or destructive biological bacteria instead of nuclear bombs. The gossip which I hear over here is that the scientists are working on a ray with an invisible source which could be used to "read or black out" the minds of world leaders. This machine would be undetectable by police or other defenders and the source of it could not be found before or after using. In fact, I am told that these killing mental rays would pass through walls of buildings as do radio or TV waves today.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH COLUMN

One In Ten Has It

"I like tomatoes, but tomatoes don't like me."

You have heard that statement, or similar ones. Maybe you have laughed at it. But allergy is no joke. Doctors take it seriously. Allergic diseases are seldom fatal, but the symptoms are always distressing. Sometimes there is so much discomfort that work, sleep, appetite, and recreation are interfered with an general health suffers.

Allergy is sensitivity, or hypersensitivity, to substances which are harmless to most people. About one person in ten is allergic to something. The substances that cause allergy are called allergens, and there are hundreds, even thousands of possibilities: pollens, house dust, furs, various foods, feathers, cosmetics, drugs, and even heat, cold, and sunlight. The most common allergic diseases are hay fever, asthma, skin disorders like hives, and stomach and intestinal disturbances.

These diseases are not imaginary. If you have allergic symptoms, you should get medical advice both for immediate relief and future protection. The doctor can make tests to discover the allergens which are causing trouble. Sometimes this is easy, but frequently it requires great patience.

Once the causes are discovered, you can learn to avoid the troublemakers as much as possible. Drugs may be prescribed to ease the symptoms. In some cases injections, medicines, and vaccines are given to desensitize the patient. With complete cooperation with your doctor, you will be able to save yourself from years of unnecessary suffering and disability. This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by your Tuberculosis Association.

Ford Division National Teen-Age Press Conference, Oct. 12-14, in Dearborn, Mich.

The young writers will preview the 1961 Thunderbird and Ford diesel and standard trucks, and will compete for five scholarships ranging in worth from $800 to $8,000.

They are: Mark Ferree, president of the ANPA, and executive vice president and general business manager of Scripps-Howard Newspapers; James S. Copley, chairman of the board, The Copley Press; and Russ Stewart, vice president, The Chicago Sun-Times.

In addition to U. S. representatives, two youths from Puerto Rico, and one each from Venezuela and Peru will participate.

TODAY'S meditation

Read John 10:11-18. In thee, that they also may be one. That they all may be one; as in us. (John 17:21.) Thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one.

saw the inscription of John 17:21: "That they all may be one." Through its attitude and what it does, the Y.M.C.A. seeks to give meaning to universal brotherhood in Jesus Christ.

Our unity is in Christ, our Shepherd. The fold is one, although there is a diversity of sheep. The pasture which nourishes the sheep is the Word of God.

To belong to one single flock and to follow one Shepherd is to conquer geography and enlist individual differences. It is the creating of a Christian brotherhood through our oneness in Christ.

Christian brotherhood transcends all barriers. It does not know groups, races, levels of society, nationalities, or denominations. In the diversity of ideas, traditions, and experiences, love bridges the differences and develops united participation and brotherhood.

Prayer
Our Father, through the inspiration of Thy spirit, we pray for the reality of Christ's love in our lives. We pray there may be no contradiction between our saying and our doing. Show us the Shepherd, Jesus Christ, in whom and through whom, in the unity of faith, we join our hearts in prayer. Amen.

Thought For The Day
We love one another because God first loved us.

Legislation Provides Cropland Protection

Any farmer who diverts cropland to permanent cover under a Conservation Reserve contract is protected in his cropland and acreage allotment history for an additional period equal to the period the land was under contract, Chairman William L. Dudley of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation said today.

Previously, these acreages have been protected only for the life of the Conservation Reserve contract. Doubling of this period is provided under a new law passed at the recent session of Congress and signed by the President in September.

The legislation provides that cropland which is diverted from an allotment crop to a conservation use under the Conservation Reserve program shall continue to be classed as cropland for twice the period of the contract and, for purposes of determining future allotments, shall be considered as though it had been planted to the commodity.

This new provision, Mr. Dudley said, does not apply to contracts terminated before the end of the period for which the contract was originally signed.

Contracts under the Conservation Reserve program range from 3 to 10 years. ASC officials hope that the new legislation will encourage participants to maintain former allotment crop acreage in vegetative cover for at least twice as long and perhaps permanently.

Group Seeks Gas Tax Repeal

Maryland drivers have a $9,100,000 stake in a petition campaign that began at gasoline service stations throughout the state last Saturday.

That figure represents the amount of money collected so far in Maryland as a result of last year's 1-cent increase in the federal gasoline tax, according to Charles A. Newland, Chairman of the Maryland Petroleum Association, sponsors of the petition drive. The total 4-cent federal levy nicked the state's motorists for $91,300,000, while the Maryland 6-cent tax took another $54,800,000, he said.

During the week-long petition campaign, Mr. Newland said, motorists will have a chance to ask Congress to make good on its promise and let the extra penny in the federal tax expire on schedule next June 30.

The petroleum official explained that when Congress increased the tax to 4 cents, it provided that the fourth cent would be in effect from Oct. 1, 1959 to June 30, 1961, nine months from now.

"The start of the petition campaign—on Oct. 1—has been timed to coincide with the first anniversary of the penny increase," Mr. Newland said.

He urged all motorists to take part in the drive—which continues through next Monday, Oct. 10, pointing out that "so many temporary taxes tend to become permanent unless taxpayers speak up."

"The first federal gasoline tax," he said, "was a temporary 1-cent levy imposed in 1932. It was extended repeatedly, increased and then finally given permanent status in 1941. In the 28 years since this first temporary tax was levied, it has cost consumers a total of $17.4 billion.

Employers Urged To Correctly File Forms

Maryland employers were asked today to take a little extra care in reporting worker social security numbers when they file their Maryland Unemployment Insurance Tax reports for the July-to-September quarter.

The reports, together with the tax money itself, are due the end of October, and the Department of Employment Security expects to receive anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 wrong social security account numbers if the usual pattern holds true. The quarterly reports relate to the earnings of some 800,000 to a million Maryland workers.

Robert D. Kimble, Executive Director, said that additional correspondence and sometimes even personal visits are necessary to straighten out incorrect numbers. The corrective effort, he said, is expensive and time-consuming for both the employer and the Department.

A worker whose number is incorrectly reported receives no "credit" for his earnings in the Department's records. Since entitlement to benefits rests squarely on earnings in prior employment, such a worker is deemed ineligible when he becomes unemployed and files a claim for benefits.

The worker, who frequently has immediate need for cash to tide him over till his next job, gets his money in the long run, but the time consumed in establishing his eligibility is often considerable.

Most errors in social security number reporting occur at the time of hiring, especially when numbers are given verbally or from memory. Others occur when employers take the account number from income tax withholding forms.

The majority of such errors can be avoided if company officials would insist upon seeing the worker's social security card at the time of hire.

The Maryland Unemployment Insurance Law requires every covered employer to keep a record of the correct name, address and social security number of every employee for a period of four years.

YOUNG IDEAS from Polly Ponds

Q: I have a bratty ten-year old sister who always hangs around and making a pest of herself whenever my friends come to see me. She's noisy and awful. What can I do about her?

A: If you shout, threaten and lose your temper, your sister probably couldn't be bribed from your side if you paid her. Ten-year-olds enjoy attention, even if it's not of a very flattering nature.

Try treating her antics with lofty indifference. When you speak to her, use a polite tone of voice accompanied, if you can manage it, by a sweet and loving smile. If nothing else, this will make you appear more noble in the eyes of your friends.

It's also possible that your calm and regal attitude will bore your sister to the point where she'd rather go off with her own friends instead of wasting her time on yours.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Livestock Needs Salt

Doctors occasionally advise a "low-sodium diet" for some heart and kidney patients, and people sometimes ask, if this sort of diet is recommended, why worry if farm animals go without salt for periods of time.

It should be understood that a human patient on a low-salt diet is, or should be, under close supervision of a physician. Without a doctor's watching the persons would be flirting with danger.

Dr. Bohstedt

Medical authorities call attention to the risks involved in low-salt, or salt-free diets, especially during hot weather when the body loses salt through excessive sweating. A person with a low sodium reserve may suffer serious—even fatal consequences.

Here is where animal experimentation has erected many glaring danger signals. Chickens, sheep, pigs, horses, cattle and laboratory animals, even fish, suffer when salt-starved. Symptoms have varied all the way from unthriftiness and slow growth or production, to a gradual wasting away and death.

These symptoms developed because salt and its two elements, sodium and chlorine are involved in all vital body processes, in respiration, digestion and blood circulation. Short-change any one of these functions in their essential chemical requirements, and the results can be serious. Here are a few of the uses of salt in the body of man or beast: The chlorine is needed for the hydrochloric acid of the stomach juice to enable the digestion of protein. The sodium is an important constituent of the bile and is necessary for intestinal digestion of all nutrients. Sodium also figures in the sodium bicarbonate of the blood for carrying poisonous carbon dioxide out of the body through the lungs.

Other functions of salt affect the response of muscles and nerves. In fact there are few body processes that do not in some degree make use of salt.

Blood surely is identified with life itself. Its liquid part, the plasma, contains six per cent salt in addition to two per cent sodium bicarbonate.

For robust good health, salt is as essential as any other nutrient. Be sure salt is mixed with the feed and, for larger farm animals, be sure salt is also available free choice at all times.

Question: Are cobalt "bullets" the answer to the problem of cobalt deficiencies?

Answer: Tests show these bullets or pellets are effective, but so is the cobalt of trace mineral salt. As for economy, bullet treatments cost about $1.40 per cattle and 42 cents for sheep. With a price differential of $18.00 per ton between plain salt and trace mineral salt, cobalt can be provided in trace mineral salt for the merest fraction of the cost of the bullets, and with all of the other trace minerals as a bonus.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kestmo

In discussing lures, a strange situation presents itself—a single good lure will catch as many fish of most species as would the largest assortment of lures. But the well-informed fisherman carries a large number along, because he never knows what that unpredictable and temperamental critter, the fish may want at a given moment.

Justifiably, one of our oldest lures, the spinner spoon, should head the list of lure types. Though designed for trolling, this lure can be cast—if you're a skillful enough caster. You must add a dipsey sinker to give proper casting weight for your tackle, of whatever type it may be; merely slip the brass eye of the dipsey onto the snap along with the eye of the spoon.

You'll also need that dipsey when trolling, for without it, casting or trolling, your line would soon twist so badly as to become unmanageable. Most American spinners, except the smallest, which do not usually twist a line much, seem to have some provision—usually a lead keel to prevent line twisting.

Then there are the wobbling spoons, or casting spoons, of a completely different type, not revolving. Some of these have a treble hook dangling loosely behind; some, a single larger hook, brazed onto the blade. For about all species other than bass, these and spoons of the spinner type are equally effective. But the unpredictable bass may show a strong preference for one or the other, so it's well to have both along to try for him.

With most wobbling spoons, a pork rind has even more advantages than there are with the spinner-type spoon, in that it greatly improves the lure's action, and it will often also prevent the lure from revolving at certain speeds. It's most convenient to replace a treble hook by a fairly large single, because the rind will often tangle with the treble on a cast.

Jason Lucas, Angling Editor

of Sports Afield Magazine, is often asked whether spoons or plugs will catch most fish. Lucas says it depends on the species. Generally one can get most pike, pickerel or muskies on a spoon-type lure. But this is the case where it is considered desirable to have just two lures along, the other being some good plug of suitable size.

For bass, nearly all experienced anglers seem to prefer plugs to spoons—but, bass being what they are, will take spoons of both types when they decide that that's what they want. Though a pork rind works excellently with a spoon, it generally does more harm than good with a plug.

Not many years ago the pork-rind black eel was devised. It was a complete innovation in lures, and often proved extremely successful for bass—for which it is used almost exclusively—when other lures failed. But don't forget that, bass still being bass, it will quite frequently fail completely when one of the other lures works fine.

The black eel is best fished without a weight. It is fished by short, quick twitches, with long pauses between. Practice this in shallow water where you can watch it, and you'll find that you can make it look more alive than a live eel. Then you're ready to use the same movements in deeper water, where you can't see it.

Latest of all, and closely related to the black eel, is the plastic worm. This usually comes with a weighted head. Nothing could look less promising for bass, especially since live worms are about the poorest bait possible for bass in most places. But, surprisingly enough, these artificials are often very fine producers indeed.

A lure we've taken over recently from sea fishermen, who have used it a long time, is the jig. Jigs are at times among the best producers of bass and some other species. They are usually fished by the bottom-skipping method.

Finally, is it true, as one so often hears, that the newer lures are far more effective than the old ones—so much so that they're responsible for the decline in fishing almost everywhere, which every angler of moderately long experience admits?

The fact is that the old lures which have been on the market for perhaps two generations or more will, on the average, catch more fish than will new ones on the average. The reason is simple enough when we realize that when those old-timers were devised, hundreds of other plugs came out at the same. Fishermen found that a small number of them caught a lot more fish than the rest, and those few very productive ones have remained on the market long after the rest have been forgotten. It was a process of "survival of the fittest" and it is still going on.

OUR STATE UNIVERSITY

Within several weeks, Maryland beef cattle producers and swine producers will begin their annual fall feeder sales. At the sales, feeder cattle weighing between 300 and 900 pounds, and feeder pigs weighing 25 to 125 pounds are graded and penned, according to breed, sex, grade and weight. Then, they are sold to farmers who will feed them for the slaughter market.

Purpose of the organized producer sales is to help the development of the livestock industry in Maryland, and the improvement of livestock production efficiency. Through this method of marketing farmers can compare the quality and weight of their cattle and hogs with other producers. If the quality and weight does not compare favorably he can improve his production through a better management program.

sales in 1953, producers sold their feeder calves to anyone who might stop at the farm, or delivered them to a buyer who would sell them on a commission basis.

Assisted by the University of Maryland departments of markets and animal husbandry and the Maryland swine and beef cattle producers, more than 300 of the States breeders are now participating in the "cooperative marketing" of their animals each year.

Since 1953, farmer organized feeder cattle sales have accounted for the sale of 12,113 head for a total return of $1,416,637.31. The sale of 14,027 feeder pigs since 1956 brought a total return of $217,589.06 to the producers.

Non-participating producers benefit from the program because impartial price, weight, and grade information is made available to all interested persons. This information is also the basis of the educational programs carried on by the university in formulating livestock programs.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

Built on Integrity

Aqueduct, New York City's oldest race track, celebrates its "first" anniversary on September 14, as the "Big A". Originally opened in September of 1894, Aqueduct was the hub around which a visionary and dedicated group of 20 Jockey Club members began rebuilding New York racing in 1955. Today, alphabetically and otherwise, Aqueduct is the country's A-No. 1 race course. It is also one of the oddest from the standpoint of financial organization.

Aqueduct was literally built on integrity. "We had $1,000 capital and the names of the 20 trustees on which we were able to borrow $63 million from the banks," says John W. Hanes, Chairman of the Board. About half of the loan was used to buy the existing New York tracks; the remainder went to build the "Big A". A handy subway ride from Times Square, Aqueduct in its first year has broken all records for attendance and parimutuel handle, and crowds of 70,000 are handled comfortably. Aqueduct's 66-day inaugural meeting produced about half of the $36,000,000 in parimutuel revenue New York State derived from Thoroughbred racing in 1959. What did the Aqueduct stockholders get? The satisfaction of a good job well done. Each of the 20 trustees owns five $10, non-saleable and non-dividend paying shares in the New York Racing Association; all have endorsed their certificates so that in the event of death they revert to NYRA. Income is used to discharge the debt and put on top-quality racing.

Price Of Condemned Cattle Raised

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The State Board of Agriculture in regular session on Sept. 28 approved the recommendation that the maximum appraisals values allowed for cattle reacting to brucellosis or tuberculosis test be increased from $175 to $250 for a grade cow, and from $275 to $350 a head for purebred cows.

In making the announcement, Dr. Gordon M. Cairns, Dean of the University of Maryland College of Agriculture, explained that the action of the Board in increasing the maximum appraisal value brings these values in line with general price conditions. The average price received by Maryland farmers for milk cows in 1956 was $175 per cow. In 1959 it was $251 per cow, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

The recommendation was developed by the State Brucellosis Committee and presented to the State Board of Agriculture for its consideration.

In the Brucellosis Eradication Program, all cattle reacting to the blood test have been sent to slaughter. During the past year, out of 10,000 cows tested in Maryland only nine reactors to the test were found. This compares to four years ago when one cow in every hundred reacted to the test.

The incidence of tuberculosis in cattle in Maryland is about half the Brucellosis rate, Dean Cairns said.

Under a Cooperative State-Federal government agreement, the herd owner may be reimbursed up to a maximum of $25 from each of the governments for a grade cow, or $50 for a purebred. In computing the indemnity, the sale value is subtracted from the appraised value and the balance divided into thirds, with the State and federal governments each reimbursing the owner for a third up to the maximum values. The remaining third is absorbed by the herd owner.

Primary objective of the Brucellosis eradication program is to free all herds in the State of the disease.

Miss Keepers Heads Brownie Troop

Holly Keepers was elected president of Brownie Troop 93 at a meeting Friday evening in St. Euphemia's Hall. Other officers elected were: Josephine Haley, vice president; Mary K. Sherwin, secretary; Glenda McGlaughlin, treasurer, and Diane Dutrow, flag keeper.

Fourteen members were present with leader Mrs. Ralph Long, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Sanders and Mrs. Howard Fitz. Mrs. Sanders displayed king crabs and numerous shells that she found while visiting the seashore near Milford, Del. The girls discussed making bed dolls and door stop dolls for a winter project. It was decided to let the troop committee make plans for a Halloween party at its meeting Friday at 6:30 p. m. in the hall. This week the troop will be shown through the fire hall. The meeting closed with the Brownie tunnel and then the group was treated to snowballs.

MARINE CORPS OFFERING COMMISSIONS

A commission as an officer in the Marine Corps Reserve can be earned while still attending college, a release from the Corps recruiting station in Hagerstown, announced this week. By attending the platoon leaders class during two summer vacations, with pay, candidates receive commissions as second lieutenant, upon graduation from college.

The Marine Corps offers the college man the opportunity to become an officer in one of the world's most respected military organizations. At the same time he can discharge his duty to his country and prepare himself for effective leadership in business, a profession or in military service.

The Marine Corps has several officer programs for interested young men. The Marine Corps selection officer will visit Mount St. Mary's College on October 11, 12, 13. Interested students should contact the officer selection officer at the college on those days. S/Sgt. George J. Getz, USMC, Hagerstown, will be most happy to advise or assist those interested, prior to the officer selection officer's visit. Sgt. Getz' phone number is REgent 3-7080, Hagerstown, Md.

Shrine. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Vincent Tomalski.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of chantilly lace and net with fitted bodice and scalloped neckline, sequin and pearl trimmed wit hlong tapered sleeves ending in points over the wrists.
The bouffant skirt of lace tunic over ruffles of lace and net extended to points at the sides. Her finger-tip veil of lace was attached to a crown of iridescent pearls.
Her flowers were of white roses and streamers placed on a white prayer book.

The sister of the bride, Miss Mary Elizabeth Barbe, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Ann Althoff, Miss Ellen Sutton and Miss Frances Saylor.
The maid of honor's dress was of rose chiffon and lace accented wit ha bow of toffeta and appliques of lace and chiffon attached to the bouffant skirt. The bridesmaids dresses were styled identical to that of the maid of honor only in the color of blue.
They wore matching half hats of small chiffon flowers and pearl trim with short veils. Each girl wore a pearl necklace, gift of the bride. The maid of honor carried a cascade bouquet of blue and white mums. The bridesmaids carried cascade bouquets of pink and white mums.

Allen Angleberger, Thurmont, served as best man. Ushers were Harold Barbe, brother of the bride, Eugene Myers and Richard Frymyer.
Robert Wetzel was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Alma Seltzer, organist, who played the traditional wedding march.

For her daughter's wedding,
Mrs. Barbe chose a steel blue dress of crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Vernon Hines, Jr., sister of the bridegroom, was attired in a lavender dress of wool with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church social hall, after which the couple left for a wedding trip through the northern states. Upon their return, the couple will reside in their newly furnished home at 608 East St., Thurmont.

ter, Mary Elizabeth Barbe.

College Student
Stabbed, Robbed
Near Town

Tfc. William F. Davis has joined Trooper James E. Powers in the State Police investigation of an attack on a Mt. St. Mary's College student by a motorist with whom he had hitched a ride.
The man sought, white, of stocky build and in his 20's or early 30's, stabbed and robbed the student along a stretch of old U. S. 15 south of Emmitsburg
Sunday night. The incident occurred a short distance from the top of Toll Gate Hill, where new and old sections of the highway converge.

James Poling, 19, of Westfield, N. J., was the victim of the attack, sustaining six stab wounds about his hands, legs and abdomen.
The attacker also made away with $4 he took from Poling, who was hitch-hiking back to the college Sunday night between 9 and 10 o'clock after spending the evening in Emmitsburg.
Trooper Powers said Poling was heading back to the college when picked up on Route 15 in Emmitsburg by the unidentified man traveling alone.

The man was driving an old model car which was described by Poling as being made in the late 40s or early 50s and possibly being a black Chevrolet.

After driving south on Route 15 in the direction of the college, the driver failed to follow new Route 15 and turned and went toward the college on the old road which now has little traffic.

About a quarter of a mile south of the intersection of the two roads, the man asked Poling how much money he had, the victim told police.

Suspecting he was about to be robbed, Poling told police he reached into his wallet and gave the man $4 and asked him if he wanted the change he had in his trouser pocket.

"No, I don't want the change,
I want you," Poling told Police
the man replied.

The driver then pulled the car to the side of the road and stopped, Poling jumped out of the car and began to run away but stumbled and fell in a ditch.

The driver of the car had also jumped out of the car in pursuit of the boy. With the boy lying in the ditch, the man pounced on him and began stabbing him with what police believe was a pocket knife.

About that time, automobile lights were noticed approaching the scene so the attacker ran back to the car and left the scene, the Poling boy advised Trooper Powers.

Poling, with blood streaming from his cuts and stab wounds, got out of the ditch and started running back toward Emmitsburg when he was picked up by a passing motorist and taken to Emmitsburg where he was treated by Dr. George L. Morningstar.

Police said Poling suffered two cuts on his left leg and one cut on his right leg, abdomen and on the back of each hand.

Poling is reported in good condition at the college infirmary.

The getaway car was last seen traveling south on old U. S. 15.

Two Wrecks Occur
Here Sunday Evening

Two automobile wrecks occurred within minutes of each other Sunday evening at about 9:15 o'clock on U. S. Rt. 15, about a mile north of Emmitsburg, State Police report.

In the first accident a brand new 1960 Buick was completely wrecked, causing $4,000 worth of damages. The driver, Etta Marie Stalker, 43, Manassas, Va. was slightly injured and was taken to the Annie Warner Hospital in Gettysburg in the VFW ambulance.

Miss Stalker was traveling south on U. S. 15 when while rounding a sharp curve at the Curtis Topper property, the car skidded on the wet road, flipped over and travelled 30 feet on its top.

A few moments later, several hundred feet north of the first wreck, a 1959 Ford driven south on U. S. 15 by Norman Austin Overbaugh, a 52-year-old Thurmont shoe store manager, slowed suddenly because of the accident ahead and was hit in the rear by a 1957 Dodge station wagon driven by Albrt Rowe Townes, a 26-year-old Army man of Perry,
New Jersey.

The Townes auto was then also hit in the rear by a 1958 Plymouth operated by Martin Henry Esser, a 23-year-old Erie, Pa. laborer, driving the Townes car into a ditch, and causing $250 in damages to the Pennsylvania auto and $100 in damage to the New York car. The Thurmont auto had $71 in damages.

Because of the wet road caused by a slight shower in the area, there were no charges filed against any of the four drivers involved in the two accidents by investigating Troopers James E.
Powers and L. W. Pfeltz.
