Emmitsburg will become a mecca for tradesmen this year, when large-scale building programs get under way. In fact work has already started on three of the large projects, two of which are owned by Mount St. Mary's College. The other is the new motel which will be located just south of town. There will be plenty of work for all those willing to handle a job for at least a full year here as construction gets under way. This is perhaps the most pretentious building program in the history of the town. The college is erecting two new ultra modern buildings and the motel will be a sizeable one. In addition, it is said that St. Joseph College has some plans for construction in the near future. The effect of this building on local economy will be enormous. Workmen will be housed here, must be fed and will spend money here where they are employed. It will only be of a year's duration but this should be a boon to local merchants. As to the permanency of employment personnel will be needed at both college buildings and also the motel. There will be a number of jobs of a permanent nature available.

Emmitsburg's two newest additions to the local business world open their doors to the public today. We now have a new Laundromat and a bakery. These additions to local business are extremely welcome and I have every confidence that their venture into local business will be a successful one. They both deserve our patronage and support and both are essential to our way of life here in Emmitsburg.

It was welcome news indeed this week that the Board of Education is considering enlarging our public school. This will I believe, just about squash any idea as to a consolidation movement for some time to come. It was a long and hard battle to avert the consolidation craze which hit the county in the last decade but it appears that we have held out and bested the struggle. We should remain alert though because you just can't tell when it will strike again.

Kerrigan Installed As Commander Of American Legion

The regular meeting of the Francis X. Elder Post 121, American Legion, was held Tuesday evening in the post home with 35 members present. One blood donor, Guy A. Baker Jr., was reported. Two guests, Richard W. Graham, Department Junior Vice Commander and Stanley King, Western Maryland District Commander, were present. One new member, Norman S. Sheeley was voted into the post. The newly-elected officers were installed by Commander Graham as follows: Commander, J. Ward Kerrigan; 1st Vice Commander, T. Eugene Rodgers; 2nd Vice Commander, Gerald Ryder Jr.; Adjutant and Finance Officer, Charles B. Harner; Chaplain, Richard J. McCullough; Historian, George Ashbaugh Jr.; Trustee for three years, Donald Miller.

Andrew Shorb and Thomas Harbaugh were commended for doing an excellent job on a fund raising campaign recently held. It was announced that a shrimp feed will be held on July 1, 1961 at Andrew Shorb's farm. It was decided to present a new flag to each church where Memorial Day services are held each year.

Delegates to the Department Convention to be held in Baltimore July 19-22 were selected as follows: Floyd Manning, Allen Kreitz, Joseph Rodgers, Charles Harner, J. Ward Kerrigan and Robert L. Myers. Alternates selected were: Curtis Topper, Eugene Sprinkle, Henry Filler, Earl Topper, Andrew Shorb and Robert Shorb. A donation of $25.00 was made to the Little League. It was announced that the meetings for the months of July and August will be held at Kump's Dam, weather permitting. The next meeting will be held July 11, 1961 due to the holiday.

Divorce Granted

An absolute divorce was granted in the superior court of the state of Washington on February 17, 1961 to Morris A. Zentz Jr., from Janet E. Zentz.

Public School May Be Enlarged

A strong possibility that the Emmitsburg Public School will be enlarged developed this week when a delegation of local individuals, representing the Parent-Teachers Assn. of the school and Mayor J. Edward Houck met with the County Board of Education.

The committee met Wednesday afternoon with the board. Present at the meeting were Norman Wiley, Harry Swomley, Daniel Naill, Robert Simpson and Mayor Houck. The existing crowded condition of the local school was discussed and it was disclosed that the Board was studying several remedial actions to correct the problem. Under consideration is the erection of a 4-to-6 room annex to the school. For a number of years now there has been an acute space shortage in both the elementary and high school levels and the meeting with the Board of Education elicited some form of promise to ease the condition.

Final Tryouts For Little League

Final tryouts for Emmitsburg's Little League teams will be held Saturday afternoon at the local Little League diamond near Community Field. All boys between the ages of eight and 12 who are interested in playing baseball are urged to be present at the field at 1 p. m.

The younger boys in the eight and nine year-old bracket will be given special attention and instructions. Team practice will commence next week.

Officials of the Emmitsburg Little League wish to thank the general public for the patronage accorded the bake sale which was held last Saturday in the Fire Hall. It was announced that $64 was cleared from the affair. The group also expresses its appreciation to the many donors of food and other items for the sale.

Brownies Tour Newspaper Plant

Brownie Troop 92 met on Tuesday at 3:30 at St. Euphemia's school. The business meeting was conducted by the president, Martha Byard, with leaders, Mrs. Jane Orndorff and Mrs. Nancy Danner attending. Nine Brownies were present. Mary Beth Eckenrode and Darleen Nusbaum made a report on the proper clothing Brownies should wear on hikes. The troop has been invited to attend a party given by Brownie Troop 71 on Monday, June 12 from 7-8:30. The party will be held at the Methodist Church on West Main Street.

The first summer meeting will take place on Tuesday, June 13 at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Nancy Danner, 211 East Main Street. It is requested that all Brownies note the change of time and the change of place for the next meeting.

Following the meeting, the girls visited the Emmitsburg Chronicle, where Editor Arthur Elder took them on a tour of the establishment showing them the presses and explaining the processes involved in publishing a weekly paper. The Brownies thoroughly enjoyed this educational visit, which is a part of a program designed to acquaint the Brownies with services offered to the community.

Many a man's wallet would be fatter if it weren't so full of credit cards.

Jaycee Installation Of Officers Held

The local Jaycees met last Thursday evening at Kump's Dam with 14 members present.

After installation of the newly-elected officers, President Allen Stoner presided over the meeting.

The top three winners of the Safe Driving Road-e-o were introduced and awarded a plaque for their skill and effort last month when the affair was held. Ronald Stouter, who placed first and went on to College Park, to compete in the State competition, made a few remarks on his experience there and also thanked the local chapter for making the trip possible.

Pat Boyle reported on the Past Presidents' night to be held July 13 at the VFW. All members and wives are asked to attend this affair. Also as many guests as you would like. Members will receive more information in a form letter.

Pat Boyle also reported that his committee is making plans for the annual Chicken Bar-B-Q to be held the first Sunday in August just south of town next to the public high school. Please reserve this date and plan to attend.

A report on the Cub Scouts was given by Carroll Frock. Things seem to be moving right along, with Dens being filled and getting organized. The chapter also voted to buy flags for the Cubs, from the money picked up from the Fun Circus. Eugene Rosensteel, E. Main St. is Cub Master and anyone interested in having their boy become a Cub Scout and grow right up through scouting, please feel free to contact him, or Carroll Frock Jr.

A Safety Lane check will be held in the near future in cooperation with the State Safety Commission and Sterling White was appointed chairman.

William Boyd was appointed chairman of the Building Committee and will meet with Gene Myers to see what can be done towards a permanent meeting place for the chapter.

Guests were from Thurmont, Frederick and Hagerstown. Light refreshments were served after the meeting.

Two New Business Concerns Open Today

Today marks the beginning of two new business enterprises in Emmitsburg — a modern fully equipped Westinghouse Laundromat with all the trimmings including a free parking lot and a new, modern fully equipped Pastry and Ice Cream store.

Work has been in progress since April 1 when the property at 200 and 202 W. Main Street was acquired by Samuel C. Hays.

The Laundromat is a self-service, 24-hours per day business enterprise, the same as is found in any modern city or town nowadays, with 16 Laundromats and 6 automatic dryers, all surrounded by pleasant colors and accommodations for customer convenience.

The first 100 customers to arrive after 9:00 o'clock Friday morning will have their washing done free of charge. There will be prizes for the ladies and refreshments for all.

The new Pastry Shop is located at 202 W. Main Street. It is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Newcomer who in another sense are not "newcomers" to the pastry business. Their experience in the baking business and handling of foods during the past will be welcome to old as well as new customers. Their equipment is new and modern, their recipes are some old—some new, but all good and their willingness to serve is genuine.

Everyone is cordially invited to drop in at the Grand Opening on Friday and Saturday—today and tomorrow—to see "what's new in Emmitsburg."

Clarence E. Hahn Recommended For Roads Board

Clarence E. Hahn, Emmitsburg plumber and bus driver, was recommended for appointment to the County Roads Board by the Democratic State Central Committee meeting in Frederick Wednesday night.

The endorsement of Mr. Hahn to the Board of County Commissioners for the six-year term, was a distinct surprise, since it had generally been expected that the incumbent member of the Roads Board from the northern section of the County, Edgar G. Emrich, Creagerstown, would be recommended for reappointment. The vote by the committee was reported close.

Two faculty members were honored for dedicated service in Graduation Week ceremonies at Saint Joseph College. Miss Julia H. Christie, head of the Secretarial Sciences Department and an alumna of St. Joseph College, received an honorary degree at Commencement exercises on Wednesday, June 7, and Adolph M. Wasilfsky, Ph.D., head of the English Department, was honored at an Honors Convocation on the campus June 6 for his twenty-five years of devoted service.

His Excellency, the Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, D.D., Archbishop of Baltimore, presided over the graduation program in DePaul auditorium when sixty-four seniors received their bachelor degrees. William Oliver Martin, Ph.D., of the University of Rhode Island, delivered the commencement address. In announcing the awarding of the honorary degree to Miss Christie, Sister Hilda Gleason, President of Saint Joseph College, cited "her loyalty, her excellence in teaching, her self-sacrificing service as a member of the alumnae association, and her exemplification of Christian conduct in daily life." Miss Christie has served on the faculty at Saint Joseph College for 34 years.

The graduation week activities began formally with the Baccalaureate Mass on Tuesday morning, June 6. Right Rev. Joseph P. O'Donnell, of Reading, Pa., a cousin of senior Ann Boyle, gave the Baccalaureate address and Rev. James G. McAvoy, uncle of graduate Mary Anne Britt, celebrated the Solemn High Mass. The Mass was sung by the Saint Joseph College Cecilian Society.

On Tuesday afternoon, the graduates were received into the Alumnae Association in the traditional daisy chain ceremony on the lawn of the White House, the residence constructed in 1810 for Venerable Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, the foundress of Saint Joseph College. Carolyn Nalley, of Port Tobacco, Md., the recently-elected class secretary, gave the response for the class. The evenings honors convocation honoring Dr. Wasilfsky also included special awards to seniors earning academic honors.

The Graduates Mass on Wednesday morning was celebrated by the Rev. Robert R. Kline, Chaplain at Saint Joseph College and the newly-elected President of Mt. St. Mary's College.

Council Lets Contract For Street Work

Emmitsburg's Town Council this week released an announcement that Maitland Brothers of Littlestown were awarded a contract to resurface the streets of the town. Mayor Edward Houck said the work was to start immediately.

The Council also reported that a Health Dept. inspector would make a survey of the corporation limits this week to determine health hazards, if any, and to make certain they will be corrected. Trash piles, garbage heaps and other rat harboring health hazards will be scrutinized intensively and those individuals responsible will be made to correct the situation immediately.

In an effort to avert confusion among tradesmen doing repair work or building within the range of the parking meters, the Town Council has made available parking meter covers which can be rented for 25c. The covers are red in color and are available at the Town Office. All workmen doing painting, plumbing, carpentry, etc. must possess one of these covers, place money in the meters or be fined for a violation of the parking meter ordinance. A limit of one parking meter space may be reserved, and the cover must be returned immediately upon the completion of the service call.

Sister To Instruct Under Grant

Sister Margaret Flint, D.U., professor of French and head of the Languages Department at St. Joseph College, has been appointed as a demonstration teacher and instructor of applied techniques for the summer NDEA French Institute at Rivier College in Nashua, New Hampshire. The summer institute, made possible by the National Defense Education Act of 1958, is part of the Language Development Program conducting summer workshops in school teachers. Thirty-two teachers have received grants under foreign languages for secondary the Defense Act to attend the course at Rivier College.

Sister Margaret recently attended a meeting of 132 demonstration teachers of various foreign languages held in New York City in preparation for the summer session. Similar institutes, sponsored by the National Defense Education Act will be held throughout the country.

Final Assembly Held At Local School

The Senior Assembly of Emmitsburg High School was held in the auditorium of Emmitsburg High School on Tuesday morning, June 6 at 10 a. m. before an audience of parents, friends, faculty and underclassmen.

The following program was given:

Processional, Scripture reading, Lord's Prayer, salute to the flag, class song, "No Man Is An Island"; class history, Judy K. Valentine; class prophecy, Barbara Kelly and Kathy Springer; glee club selections; class will, Randy Valentine; speech, Linda Knox; presentation of awards, Arvin P. Jones, principal and Student Council; moving up exercises, and recessional.

The most outstanding award of the year was given to Katherine Springer who had established a record of perfect attendance for all twelve years of her school career. This is no mean accomplishment in recent years has achieved this record, and there is no other person on the horizon for such an award in the near future. In addition to this award she was also the recipient of the three highest awards given annually to the seniors: Music Award, given by the Ladies Auxiliary of VFW Post 6658; Social Studies Award, given by American Legion Auxiliary, Francis X. Elder Unit 121, and the Math Award, given by the Emmitsburg Homemakers Club.

The Math Award given to Kathy is very unique in that this makes the fifth member of Mrs. Glenn Springer's family who has won this same award. The first to win it was George, then John, Janet, Audrey and finally her youngest child, Kathy. No family in the annals of the school has accomplished such a singular feat.

The Danforth Foundation Award for General Excellence was awarded to Barbara Kelly and Randolph Valentine. And the last but by no means least award, was given to Grace Gross as the Outstanding Student in Home Economics.

Highway accidents killed 38,000 persons and injured 3,078,000 on U. S. highways during 1960.

Break Ground For Two New College Buildings

Twin ground breaking ceremonies highlighted the 153rd annual Commencement exercises at Mt. St. Mary's College on Wednesday at 9:45 a. m. The project initiated the erection of a new dormitory and student union bldg. with construction estimates set at $1,500,000. May and Rupert, of Washington, D. C., are architects for the new structures.

The new $725,000 Student Union building will be a modified two-story structure of stone, structural steel and lumber in a contemporary style to blend with the sloped site and surrounding buildings. It will be located on the main entrance road opposite the new library. It will be built in the shape of a "T", with service and parking to the rear or south side and the main entrance to the north. Access to the building will be provided in all directions. The location will be central to the entire campus.

The Student Union will contain a new kitchen and dining facilities for the entire student body, including the seminarians, along with lounge areas, game rooms, snack bar, college store, barber shop, meeting rooms, post office, publication offices and accessory rooms. Air conditioning will be provided for the dining area, lounge and snack bar.

The building will provide some 41,000 square feet on both levels. Efforts have been made to provide fresh and imaginative interior by arrangement of space and choice of materials. The kitchen and cafeteria will handle the present student body of 750 and can ultimately handle 1500 students. The dining rooms will be convertible to banquets to accommodate 700 people at one seating.

The college store will contain all text books and sundries and will be modeled after a miniature supermarket to provide all facilities now spread about the campus. The entire building will contain a public address system with AM and FM radio and record facilities.

The new dormitory will be located on the north side of the campus, east of Pangborn Hall. It will accommodate 208 students in double rooms. It will also afford prefect quarters, lounges, showers, laundry, linen and storage facilities. All rooms will contain built-in furniture, including desk, chest, closets, beds, etc. A 25 car parking lot will adjoin the building to the rear. Interior treatment will be simple yet durable and colorful.

The 200 foot length shall be normal to Pangborn Hall, thus beginning the quadrangle shape for future expansion. The building will be Colonial in style, "T" shape, three stories and a basement in height constructed of stone to match Pangborn Hall. Each floor will contain its own trunk storage area with supplementary space in the basement which will also have compartmentalized recreation rooms sound-proofed for TV, records, reading and conversation.

Construction will begin in July and completion is expected in twelve months.

SISTER TO GRADUATE

Sister Immaculata Quinn, D.C., Saint Joseph's Central House, will be among those in the largest graduating class in the history of St. John's University to receive undergraduate and graduate degrees at the University's 51st annual commencement exercises Sunday.

Tawes' Speech

The following is the complete text of Gov. Tawes' speech to the Mt. St. Mary's College graduating class delivered Wednesday at commencement exercises.

You have done me considerable honor in inviting me here today.

Someone has said that great honors are great burdens, and I only hope that I may be able to provide myself worthy of the great honor I have received here today.

As your commencement speaker, my remarks here today will be addressed primarily to the members of the graduating class of 1961.

And at the outset, let me offer you my most sincere congratulations on your accomplishment. The diplomas you are receiving here today are badges of achievement, marking yourselves as young men now well on the way to assuming positions of leadership in our society.

To be sure, all of you have my best wishes for success and happiness in the years ahead.

In my limited knowledge of this institution, one of the significant facts I have discovered is that it is founded on bed rock.

In the course of my travels I have had the pleasure of encountering many graduates of Mount Saint Mary's College. And my judgment of the college to a very large extent is based on my judgment of the men who were educated in these halls.

In such an appraisal, I am convinced that this college is accomplishing what one group of educators called "The Primary Concern of Education Today." That is to say, not the development of the appreciation of the "Good Life" for "Young Gentlemen born to the purple," but the cultivation of "An appreciation of both the responsibilities and the benefits which come to them because they are Americans and free."

I would like to examine briefly some of the aspects of the rather confused civilization in which we live—A civilization which you gentlemen, being youthful and therefore being serious-minded and ambitious, will, I suspect, try to change.

It is true of the history of this republic, I think, that we Americans generally have sought and found easy and quick solutions to most of our problems.

But today, we find ourselves thrust into a position of world leadership where there are no easy or quick solutions, and indeed where there looms the possibility of no solutions at all.

In these circumstances, there will be required of you more patience, more fortitude, more understanding than has been required of any previous generation.

You will agree, I think, that we Americans are regarded abroad with a mixture of fear and admiration, and that in some areas, at least, the fear outweighs the admiration.

You will agree also, I believe, that this world leadership is not something that we sought or willed. On the contrary, it was thrust upon us, leaving us without alternative.

But unless the freedom of the individual, the dignity of the individual, the due process of law and the other attributes of our western civilization survive upon this continent, they will survive nowhere else on this earth.

It is a terrible challenge and a terrible responsibility. But I am convinced that it is a challenge we will meet boldly and a responsibility we will discharge with honor.

But let us be courageous enough to face the fact that the experience we have had in finding the easy and quick solution might prove to be our undoing in a time when there very obviously are no quick and easy solutions.

It is my belief—a belief which I share with most Americans nowadays, I think—that our success in the role of world leadership will depend upon the degree and the extent we cultivate the skills and develop the understanding of our citizens through education.

Throughout the ages, the ability to anticipate and discount bad ideas, and the capacity to understand and appropriate good ideas, without waiting for events to indicate their badness or their goodness, has been the supreme achievement of man as a thinking animal.

When the Lord of ancient Israel sought the most crushing reproach, the most devastating penalty he could invoke upon an unrighteous people, he asked that they be deprived of the capacity to see and to understand.

"Make the heart of his people fat," He cried out, "And make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts, and be healed."

And, from Isaiah until today, we know that insight and understanding are gifts of God, and that to be healed of our afflictions we need only use them—to see with our eyes, hear with our ears and understand in our hearts.

Only a few short years ago, the world was startled by an event of great importance in contemporary history—the launching by the Russians of the first earth satellite.

Sputnik I created astonishment here and abroad, not because it was an unexpected invention, for it was fairly common knowledge that science and technology had advanced to the point to make possible such an achievement.

We were stunned, as were people elsewhere, by the fact that it was the Russians themselves who enjoyed the first success in the long-awaited effort of men to explore the outer space.

The first reaction in this country, as I have suggested, was astonishment, shock, disbelief almost.

Thereafter followed a period of near-hysteria in which plans and remedies of our infinite variety were offered. Our educational system, in particular, was subjected to merciless attacks. Was it possible that an educational system built up so systematically, so methodically, so painstakingly over so many years, was of an inferior kind?

There was a loud clamor for more emphasis in our schools on science, mathematics and technical subjects. The Russians had done it this way, we were told. If we were to survive we must imitate them. Now, I have no experience or learning that would equip me to discuss with any degree of authority the Russian educational system in relation to our own system of education. Nor do I possess the training and the knowledge that would equip me to pass an authoritative judgment on the curricula of our schools, colleges and universities. But I would say this—that it would be most disturbing to me to see this great nation of ours turn its eyes from the past and forsake its traditional concept of education—the training of the talents and the cultivation of the minds of the individual men and women of this country.

Perhaps we need to teach more science, more mathematics, more of the technical skills and practical subjects. But not at the expense of the humanities—not at the expense of the arts, of philosophy, of religion—of all the disciplines which have lifted us out of barbarism and brought us our civilization. Human freedom and dignity could not survive in a generation of robots. We know what achievements of men survived the great catastrophes of history—the eclipse of the golden age of Greece, the decline and fall of the great Roman Empire. When mankind awoke after slumbering through the bleak millennia of the dark ages, what resources from the past did he possess with which he could build a new civilization?

We know for one thing, that there was preserved for his use the religious experience of his ancestors. The Church of Christ the faith of Christianity—was a light that remained unextinguished through these dismal years and became the beacon to guide men to a rebirth of civilization. Undestroyed by the ravages of barbarism also were the varied expressions of the human spirit—poetry, art, music, drama, the dance, philosophy, history. The rebirth began and the dark age waned when man began to search for a richer and more meaningful life in religion and the humanities—a heritage which is indestructible. Vandalism cannot destroy the creations of the human soul and the human spirit.

A great German poet and philosopher once remarked that if the Romans had been required to learn Latin they would not have had time to conquer the world. A really moving episode in history concerns a Gothic king of the Fourth Century, who, having conquered Rome, was so awed by the civilization which lay before him that he decided to forego his ambition to destroy it, and instead of the conqueror, became indeed the conquered one.

"It was my first wish," he said, "to destroy the Roman name and erect in its place a Gothic empire, taking to myself the title and power of Caesar Augustus."

"But when experience taught me that the untameable barbarism of the Goths would not suffer them to live beneath the sway of the law, and that the abolition of the institutions on which the state rested would involve the ruin of the state itself, I chose the glory of renewing and maintaining by Gothic strength the fame of Rome, desiring to go down to posterity as the restorer of that which it was beyond my power to replace." "Wherefore," he concluded, "I avoid war and strive for peace."

Many centuries have gone by since Rome was sacked, but that is not to say that civilization has conquered the forces of darkness and barbarity. Evil has not been stamped out of men's souls.

The inhuman and almost incredible atrocities of World War II in which a concerted effort was made to destroy a whole race of human beings, stand as evidence all too convincing that our civilization remains imperiled. And our situation is all the more frightening in the knowledge we all possess that nations now possess weapons and resources capable of the total destruction of humanity.

Our hope for the future, I think, lies in the determination of each of us, as individuals, to sharpen our perception and increase our understanding through education. Let us not make our hearts fat. Let us not make our ears heavy. Let us not shut our eyes.

May you—each of you—have these in full measure: Health, Wealth, Strength, Grace, Patience, Charity, Love, Faith and Hope.

It is to you and the young men like you who are graduating this spring, that we look for the courageous and enlightened leadership needed to guide us in our destiny. May you find happiness, good health and good fortune in a world at peace.

Stewardship Awards Given Nine

At a recent Sunday Worship Service nine young people of Incarnation United Church of Christ received Certificates of Merit for their participation in the Annual Stewardship Project conducted by that denomination. Robert Simpson, superintendent of the Sunday School, presented the certificates to the following: Phyllis Chalos, Rudolf Chalos, Wanda Eiker, Calvin Harmon, Edith Martin, Susan Martin, Joyce Sanders, Betty Tokar and John Wagerman. In addition, Mr. Simpson presented the Congregational award of a red seal to be placed on the certificate to Susan Martin for her winning poem, Phyllis Chalos, Rudolf Chalos and Joyce Sanders for their winning posters in their age group, and Edith Martin and Betty Tokar for the winning posters in their age group. These winning posters and poem were sent for judging in the Synodical Contest and Rev. John Chalos presented blue seals to the winners from Incarnation Church: Phyllis Chalos and Susan Martin. Mrs. C. Russell Andrew, Stewardship Chairman of the Women's Guild, presented each contestant with a gift from the Guild. The girls received sweater guards and the boys tie clasps. The winners were awarded cash prizes by the Guild. Mrs. Andrew, in cooperation with the Sunday School, conducted the project.

Mrs. Genevieve R. Elder has returned to her home here after spending several weeks visiting her sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Matt J. Paidakovich and Mr. and Mrs. Otto C. Wiegand, Silver Spring, Md.

Mrs. Edwin Chrismer, a former resident of Emmitsburg, will celebrate her 86th birthday next Tuesday, June 13, at the Jenkins Memorial Hospital in Baltimore, where she is now a patient.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith and son, Terry, Timonium, Md., were Sunday visitors here with friends and relatives.

100 YEARS AGO

Yankees Are Routed In Battle At Big Bethel

By Lon K. Savage

The front lines of the Civil War's eastern campaigns were beginning to emerge 100 years ago this week as Yankee and Confederate generals began pairing off at various strategic points.

First, Confederate Colonel John Bankhead Magruder had taken a command on Virginia's peninsula between the York and James Rivers, where he came face to face with Union General Ben Butler, the Boston lawyer who had occupied Baltimore some weeks earlier.

From Ohio, General George B. McClellan's troops had begun moving into Western Virginia where they had already tangled with Confederate Colonel George Porterfield.

At Washington, Major Irvin McDowell had suddenly been elevated to brigadier general commanding Union troops around the nation's capital, and before a week had passed, General P. G. T. Beauregard, the hero of Sumter, took command at Manassas, 30 miles to the south.

At Harpers Ferry, 50 miles northwest of Washington, Confederate General Joseph E. Johnston had taken command, replacing Thomas J. Jackson who was to become the immortal "Stonewall." Forty miles north of Johnston and Jackson, General Robert E. Patterson took over a Union army at Chambersburg, Pa., and—100 years ago this week—began a slow movement south toward Harpers Ferry.

Butler vs. Magruder

With all these alignments, someone was bound to strike some action. It turned out to be the Butler-Magruder combination in eastern Virginia.

By coincidence, both Butler and Magruder chose the same day—June 10—to attack each other. Butler's men moved out first.

Between 1 and 2 A.M. that day, three regiments of New York infantry and artillery left Fort Monroe and headed toward Little Bethel, a village north of Hampton, on the road to Yorktown. Their orders were to take it, then attack Big Bethel, a second village farther up the peninsula toward Yorktown.

Hardly were they on the march when Colonel Magruder roused his men at Big Bethel and, within a short time, Southerners were marching down the peninsula toward the advancing Northerners.

The federal advance, meanwhile, ran into trouble. One of Butler's regiments mistook another of his regiments for Confederates and opened fire with musketry and artillery. The second answered the fire. Ten men were hit—two of them killed. There was a retreat; reinforcements were brought up, and by the time the confusion was straightened out the Southerners had learned of the federal advance and had fallen back into their entrenchments at Big Bethel to await the attack.

Federal Attack

The federals moved into Little Bethel according to orders, found it vacated, then attacked Big Bethel.

The Confederates were too well prepared. The first federal attack was broken up; two attacks on the rebel flanks also failed. A third and final flank attack, launched with loud cheers, ran into a heavy fusillade, and the federal captain leading it was killed while standing on a fence, flourishing his sword and shouting encouragement to his men.

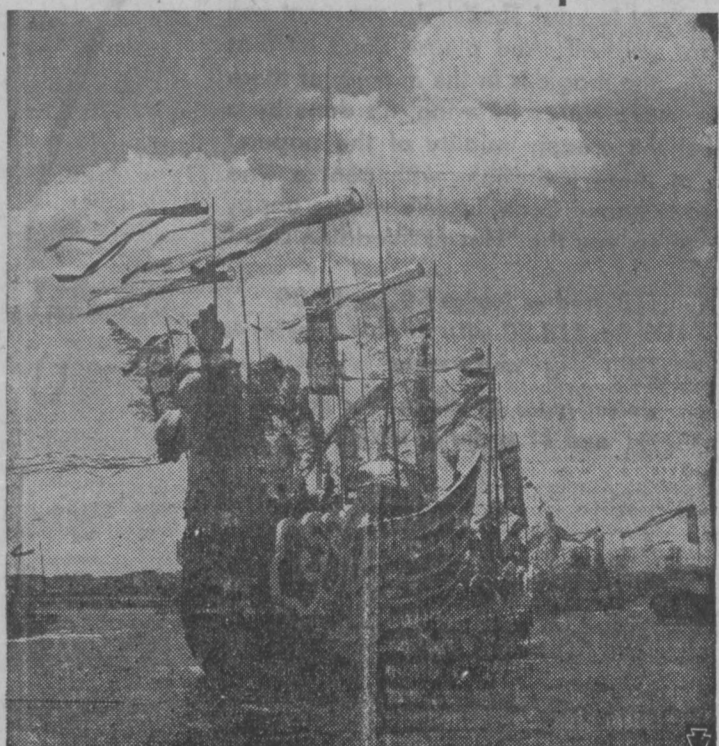

That ended it. The Yankees withdrew and headed back for camp. Eighteen of their men were dead; 53 wounded and five were missing. Only one Confederate was killed; 10 were wounded and one was missing.

It was a paltry fight compared to those to come, but it did for the Southern spirits what the minor Yankee victory had done for the north a week earlier: it encouraged and inspired them into an even higher pitch of patriotism.

Next week: Federals defeat Missouri troops at Boonville.

Largemouth bass seldom move any distance from the place where they hatched. An exception to the rule was an eight-year-old seven-pounder tagged by the Missouri Conservation Commission on Muncy Cove of Bull Shoals. The next time it was heard from was on the Arkansas portion of Bull Shoals, 18 miles from the tagging site.—Sports Afield.

It's Festival Time In Japan

The giant seagoing fowl, shown above, is enough to make a seasoned mariner rub his eyes in disbelief. It's one of several brilliantly decorated barges featured each July 9-11 in the Three Ships Festival at Matsushima, Japan. Competing with the festival for the attention of tourists and camera fans, reports the Japan Tourist Association, is the splendor of the region itself. One of the three most scenic areas in Japan, Matsushima (Pine Islands) includes numerous islands of various shapes and sizes scattered about Matsushima Bay, each island being covered with aged, gnarled pine trees.

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Electric Utility Securities

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 8—At one time electric light and power stocks were as popular as electronic stocks are today. The favorite was Electric Bond & Share, which shot way up in the stock-market boom of the 1920's and then plummeted down to practically nothing. There were so many similar cases that President Franklin Roosevelt had Congress pass legislation to take the "water" out of these stocks and dissolve electric utility holding companies.

Why Securities And Exchange Commission

It was at this time that the Securities & Exchange Commission was formed, with President Kennedy's father as Chairman. And it was as a result of this housecleaning that Electric Bond & Share dropped almost out of sight! In fact, instead of a "stock dividend" there was a "reverse split" which forced stock owners' shareholdings virtually out of existence. I fear that the present exaggerated craze over "electronics" may later run into similar troubles for some of the companies.

Electric light and power stocks have since become both safe and popular. This has been due to the growth in population and also to the numerous new uses for electricity in every home, store, and factory. Furthermore, such public plants as the Tennessee Valley Authority's and the semi-publicly owned plants of the Northwest have served to keep rates from becoming too high and hence retarding growth. Electric rates are the lowest in history and consumption per family has increased 8 times. I believe that much more growth is ahead with the greatly expanded use of electricity for heating and air conditioning.

First Mortgage Bonds And Preferreds

The safest electric utility securities for the small or large investor to buy today are the first mortgage bonds of an electric light and power. Your local bank will be glad to select such a bond for you. Otherwise, purchase from your broker such a bond issued by the company which sends you your bill each month! You should then get a yield of about 4½ per cent. You must, of course, pay regular taxes on the income from the bonds and for other securities of an electric company (with a few exceptions).

In addition to the bonds, most electric companies issue both preferred and common stock. The preferred stock carries a fixed dividend, if earned, which usually yields over 5%. Be sure that any preferred which you buy is "cumulative" and, if possible, "non-callable." A cumulative stock means that if the dividend is not paid in any year, it must later be made up and surely paid before the common stockholders get a penny. "Non-callable" means that the company cannot call in the stock and pay you off for it if money rates go down. A "callable" preferred is a case of "heads or tails"—with the odds in favor of the company. If the stock is "callable" and money rates go down, the company pays you off; but if money rates go up, the company leaves you "holding the bag," so to speak. Other things being equal, you can buy the preferred of your local company.

Electric Utility Common Stocks

If you are young and patient, the best investment may be in the common stock of your electric power company. This has no fixed or cumulative dividend; but you are entitled to all the earnings (less proper reserves) after the fixed interest is paid on the bonds and the accumulated interest is paid on the preferred stock. Such common stocks are "growth" stocks. They do not yield much income when you buy them; but the income should increase every year with the growth of the population and the prosperity of the country.

There is an exception to all rules, and it may now be too early to sell and take your profits on electronic stocks and reinvest in electric power stocks. Much depends upon the international situation. The chief present customer of the electronic companies is the U. S. Government. Electronic devices are an important part of every missile, and hence of our defense expenditures. But this wild spending race cannot continue forever. Either some form of international disarmament must come about, or else World War III will come. Although there would develop thousands of new uses for electronics under a peace regime; yet in the meantime there could be a terrific drop in many now popular electronic stocks.

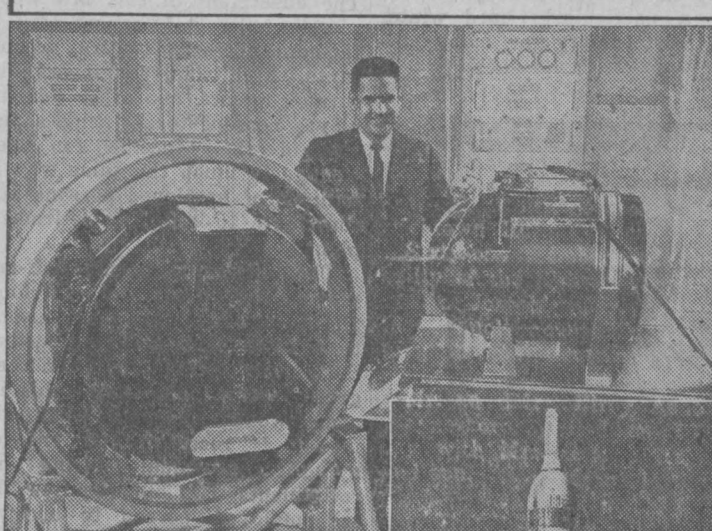

Veterinarians Offer Advice

The Maryland State Veterinary Medical Association today warned farmers to delay pasturing livestock after spraying grass crops against aphid and spittle bugs, to prevent accidental poisoning.

The veterinarians recommended that at least 10 days elapse, between spraying and pasturing, unless there has been a washing from the rain.

Some of the symptoms resulting from too soon pasturing after this type of spraying include going off feed, incoordinate gait, muscular twitching, eye blinking and frothing at the mouth.

Miracle Of Miniaturization

New miniaturized inertial guidance systems providing pin-point accuracy, and free from all outside interference, are being developed for Air Force ICBMs like TITAN (lower right). This new lightweight inertial system allows ballistic missiles to carry larger payloads to greater distances.

The guidance system for THOR, America's first operational intermediate range ballistic missile, weighs approximately one thousand pounds. It is compared with the new TITAN inertial guidance system; complete airborne package, weighing less than one-third of THOR.

Millions of man-hours were spent developing uses for new materials, new circuitry, new designs, more sophisticated components, and greater performance and reliability so as to assure the Air Force of incomparable deterrents for our nation's defense arsenal.

ACHIEVER Guidance Systems are developed by AC Spark Plug, the Electronics Division of General Motors, in Milwaukee, Wis.

Feed, Grain Program Explained

The final report on the signup under the 1961 feed grain program in Maryland shows 78,827 acres to be diverted this year from corn and grain sorghum plantings on 4,141 farms. William L. Dudley, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, has announced. The report covers the signup through May 19, the last date for accepting applications. Corn and grain sorghum plantings on these farms averaged about 39.0 acres for 1959 and 1960.

Nationally, the signup through May 12 showed 16.6 million acres to be diverted from corn and grain sorghum plantings on 751,696 farms this year. Corn and grain sorghum plantings on these farms averaged nearly 102.3 million acres for 1959 and 1960.

For the farms signed in Maryland, possible advance payments under provisions permitting about half of the payments to be made this spring come to about $1,180,851.00.

Under the 1961 feed grain program, farmers may earn payments in the form of certificates for diverting corn and grain sorghum acreage to conserving uses. Producers may receive grain or the cash equivalent of grain for their certificates. The program is expected to achieve a better balance between production and utilization of corn and grain sorghum acreage this year, and at the same time to maintain producer's income.

While the program is voluntary, corn and grain sorghum producers will not be eligible for price support on any of their 1961 feed grain crops unless they cooperate in the feed grain program.

May 19 was the deadline for corn and grain sorghum farmers in Maryland to file an "intention-to-participate" form under the 1961 feed grain program.

ALL ABOUT BABIES...

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

A Change That's Important
By William Kitay
Member, National Association of Science Writers
Editor, All About Babies

The one thing the young mother learns quickly is that the most important problem of dressing her baby is the diaper. And the reason is simply that the need for a change is the main cause of baby's discomfort.

In addition to mastering the proper technique of diapering, she must also give thought to the disturbing possibility of running out of diapers.

For the mother-to-be and for the new mother who still is finding it a bit difficult to keep baby neat and comfortable and in a diaper that does not fall off, here are a few pointers:

To be effective and to do its job properly, a diaper should fit snugly on baby. A snug fit does not mean a tight fit. A diaper that is too tight will make baby quite uncomfortable. The same holds true for a diaper that is bulky.

Diapers today come in many shapes and sizes. The most popular is the pre-folded gauze diaper. These have a double or extra thickness; in the back for the girl, in the front for the boy.

Before placing the diaper under baby, fold the top edge down about three or four inches. The size of the baby will determine exactly how much. This is to assure a snug fit. Then, draw the bottom of the diaper up between baby's legs, smooth it out and pin it to the top edge at the corners.

When pinning the diapers, put your hand between the diaper and baby's tummy and slide the pin through the cloth slowly and carefully. Check the pins to make sure they're really closed. You'll find that the pins will more easily go through a diaper that has been specially treated by a professional diaper service to make it soft and fluffy.

Babies use diapers for about the first two years of their lives, using from 100 a week in the beginning to 35 a week when they are almost trained. Despite this knowledge, the mother who does her own diapers must always be ready for the emergency of running out of diapers.

One effective way of making sure there is an unlimited supply of diapers on hand is to subscribe to a diaper service. A diaper service delivers a specified number of hygienically clean diapers at regular scheduled intervals, delivers them attractively packaged and sealed against dampness or contamination.

New Information Center At Resort

OCEAN CITY — A new office and information center, planned and built by the Ocean City Chamber of Commerce, was officially dedicated and opened to the public on May 30th.

One hundred city, county and state officials and guests attended the ceremonies.

The glass and brick structure, located 2 miles from Ocean City at junction of U. S. 50 and route 707, has a tall tower and large lettered sign that can be seen from a long distance.

An immense replica of a marlin proclaims that Ocean City is the "White Marlin Capital of the World." Reproductions of the sign will be erected eventually throughout Maryland and in neighboring states.

According to J. D. Quillin Jr., president of the resort Chamber, the center cost about $16,000. It is the first community sponsored information center of its type to be constructed in Maryland.

The building will be staffed by Mrs. R. S. Kline, secretary, and assistants who will provide travelers with a variety of information about the greater Ocean City area.

THIS WEEK IN CONGRESS

By Congressman Charles McC. Mathias Jr. (R-6th Dist., Md.)

During the brief Memorial Day recess of Congress I was back "riding the circuit" through the Sixth District. The opportunity to be away from Washington for two days made it possible to be in Sharpsburg on May 30th when the American Legion conducted its traditional commemoration at the National Cemetery. In Rockville that same day I took part in Memorial Day Services and the community parade.

I was happy to see that things are beginning at last to look like spring in Garrett County. It has been a particularly hard winter in Garrett County for many citizens, because of the unfortunate combination of harsh weather and a bad economic situation.

While in Oakland, the county seat of Garrett County, I had a conference with the county commissioners and other community leaders to discuss the economic situation there. As of the first of June, there were 1018 people unemployed in Garrett County, an unemployment rate of approximately 20%. With a high percentage of unemployment in other Western Maryland communities, it will continue to require the combined energy and talent of all of us, in private business and government, to resolve this chronic problem. It is apparent that nostrums alone will not do the job. Next week I hope to report to you on progress on plans for formation of an economic council to assist in this work.

Self-Employed Individuals Tax Retirement Act.
Two weeks ago I reported to you in this column that I was a co-sponsor of the Self-Employed Individuals Tax Retirement Act. Since that time I have received a large volume of mail from persons interested in knowing more about the bill and how it will aid their retirement plans. This bill has been favorably reported to the House of Representatives by the Committee on Ways and Means. It is currently pending on the House Calendar and I am hopeful that it will pass the House this week.

The purpose of this bill is to provide a system whereby the self-employed individual can be covered by voluntary pension plans similar to those which wage-earners have enjoyed since 1942. The enactment of this law would give equality of opportunity to farmers, doctors, lawyers, accountants, architects, engineers, insurance agents, and other self-employed persons to set aside a portion of their income for their old age in much the same way as millions of employed persons now contribute to company retirement plans.

The bill would permit self-employed individuals to contribute $2,500 or 10% of their income to a retirement plan and deduct the amount contributed from their gross income. The tax on this income would be paid when the money is received and enjoyed by the individual during his retirement. The bill requires the self-employed person to account for receipt of these funds when he is between the ages of 59½ and 70½.

The energetic League of Women Voters has upset the scheme laid at Annapolis to carve the new Eighth Congressional District out of Howard and Prince Georges. In Maryland the mathematically equal number of people for each district should be about 350,000. Our District, the 6th, has almost 650,000 people. But the League of Women Voters has been able to suspend the inequitable plan to create the Eighth District out of Howard and Prince Georges by getting nearly 30,000 signatures, three times the minimum necessary, to force the issue to be placed on the ballot in 1962. In the meantime Maryland's additional representative in Congress will be elected at large by the whole state. The energy displayed by the members of the League of Women Voters is the kind of citizen participation in government which makes democracy work.

AAA RELEASES VACATION TOURS
Two-week summer vacationers have always bemoaned the fact that they could never go very far nor do many things in such a short period of time. Harry E. Uhler of the AAA Automobile Club of Maryland has announced that, in response to popular demand, the AAA is now offering several exciting and glamorous tours within the two weeks' period.

"The American Automobile Association, in cooperation with its affiliates throughout the country, is offering a variety of tours, specially designed for the two-week traveler, with destinations to all parts of North America as well as overseas," Mr. Uhler said. The Caribbean, Hawaii, Mexico, the Western U. S., Canada, and Alaska are playing host to many 14-day holiday seekers.

"The AAA official said it is now possible for East coast residents to take a complete tour of Hawaii in fourteen days. He reported that AAA also offers go-when-you-please tours of Mexico for 6, 7, 8, or 9 days, with rates from $54 and $219 minimum, plus transportation. Western Parks maintain tours of 12 days' duration cover Yellowstone, Grand Teton, historic Salt Lake City, mile-high Denver and beautiful Colorado Springs. Eight days and seven nights in the coral islands of Bermuda can be had for as little as $53.25 plus transportation. Caribbean "Jaunts", covering the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, Haiti and Jamaica, are available for periods of less than one week to 14 days and 13 nights. Alaska tours out of Seattle call for only eight to twelve days' time.

"It's even possible to have a nice two-week tour of three or four countries in Europe," Mr. Uhler said, "because, when the first jet took off two and a half years ago, time and space restrictions became a thing of the past."

Alaskan Tour Pamphlets Available

Availability of the American Automobile Association's 1961-62 Alaska tour book was announced this week by Dick Hartman of the AAA Automobile Club of Maryland. Containing detailed information about points of interest and accommodations, the 64-page guide to the 49th state also features a detailed trip log of the Alaska highway and easy-to-follow strip maps.

If your son or daughter played a string musical instrument in high school he may be eligible for a scholarship at the University of Maryland.

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, through Manager Ralph Black, is the sponsor of a new scholarship in the amount of $300 to be presented to a young Marylander who has excelled in the playing of a string instrument during his years in high school. The scholarship may be awarded to a student already admitted to the University and planning to enter September, 1961, or to a person who plans to apply to the University for admittance. The scholarship recipient must plan to major in music or music education.

Inquiries should be directed to Professor Homer Ulrich, head of the department of music, Room 3, Music Building, University of Maryland at College Park.

"Like all other AAA tour books," Mr. Hartman said, "this new Alaska guide is far superior to any other existing tour book covering this region. It contains many features found in no other source. The detailed maps alone are indispensable to the Alaska-bound tourist."

Mr. Hartman pointed out that the guide also contains valuable information such as average temperature information for principal cities, suggestions for trip preparations, driving tips, data on Canadian customs regulations, etc.

AAA compiled the book after painstaking research and firsthand inspection by one of its long-hand inspection by one of its long-experienced field representatives. The guide is not for sale. It is available free of charge only to members of AAA affiliated motor clubs.

Even on a sunshiny day, engineers at the Delco Appliance Division of General Motors can reproduce anything from a fine mist to a deluge with this special windshield spray. The "cowl shower" is used in actual road tests for improving current windshield wiper designs as well as developing entirely new wiper mechanisms for cars of the future. The division also makes the electric motors that power the wipers, drive heaters and defrosters, and for other automotive applications including window lifts, seat actuators, and convertible top-lift mechanisms. Delco Appliance produces approximately 1,000,000 of these small motors each month. Illustrating the growth in the use of electrically-powered devices on passenger cars and trucks, present output compares with a total of two million motors produced by the division and predecessor companies from 1908 to 1940.

POLIO BREAK-THROUGH—Following the introduction of the Salk vaccine, Dr. Albert B. Sabin of the University of Cincinnati School of Medicine developed a new vaccine against polio which could be swallowed with a cup of ordinary drinking water. It did not have to be given by injection as do Salk shots. This fall, after years of clinical tests and preparations, the Sabin-type vaccine is expected to be ready for marketing in the U. S.

TODAY'S meditation

Read John 5:31-39.

Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand. (Revelation 1:3.)

During the past two years in my nursing field, I have been through many temptations and hardships. It was so great a burden on me that I almost forgot there was a God. Suddenly, a change came to my mind; instead of studying my lessons one rainy night, I took my Bible and opened it to the book of Revelation. After reading that part of the Bible, I was frightened because I had forgotten God's book which is meant to be everybody's guide.

Accepting the Lord as my Savior and reading the Bible as my guide-book, I have now become very happy. Many changes have come into my life since then. I have overcome the many temptations that confronted me. The Bible is the key to all my doings. My advice is to believe in Jesus and read the Bible every day.

Prayer
Almighty God, creator and ruler of all heavenly and earthly things, may our worship of Thee have more vitality and our lives encourage others to follow Thee. Lead everybody to read the Bible and spread the good tidings. For Christ's sake. Amen.

Thought For The Day

The Bible is my chart in the voyage of life, and Christ the captain of my soul.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

If you are retiring in the near future, you can speed the delivery of your first check by bringing all necessary evidence with you on your first visit to the district office, so stated W. S. King, district manager of the Hagerstown Social Security Office.

Almost everyone who applies for monthly benefits must prove his age. A birth certificate is the best evidence, but if not available, there are many other types of evidence which will prove age, such as baptismal certificate, insurance policy, family bible, etc.

Evidence of recent earnings may also be needed to establish your monthly payment. The 1960 withholding tax statement (Form W-2) is the best evidence for an employee. The self-employed should bring copies of the two previous years' tax return and evidence to show that tax returns were filed with Internal Revenue Service. A cancelled check, money order stub, or bank receipt is sufficient evidence to show that the return was filed.

If married, and your wife is also applying for monthly benefits, evidence of her age will also be required.

Mr. King stated if you have any doubt what evidence will be needed to process your claim, call the social security office before you retire and the representative will be glad to explain just what evidence you might need. If you have the necessary proofs when you apply for benefits, it will help speed up your first check.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kestner

Any boat owner with even a little adventure in his soul can have the time of his life exploring strange waters with his boat, reports Willard Crandall, Boat Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. There is all the excitement of investigating the unfamiliar combined with the thrill of sharpening your boat handling skills by navigating your own boat under new conditions.

Before setting off on your trip, however, here are a few pointers which may make your trip more pleasurable. A first step is to make sure that your boat and motor are in good shape. Accessories, especially those having to do with safety, should be checked. Be sure to take an anchor even if your boat is small. Study water maps and charts of your proposed trip so as to familiarize yourself with the waters. Ask a waterfront boat dealer near your launching site for information about channel markers and so on. Don't assume that everything will be the same as on your home waters.

Once underway, keep a continuous lookout. In shallow waters a change of color most frequently signifies a change in depth. Judge what may be under the surface by what you can see above it and on shore and don't go unnecessarily close to shore. In the bend of a river, however, channels often go close to the outer bank.

Whenever you have a doubt about there being clear water and enough of it, slow down. Hit something at slow speed and hardly a scratch will result. Hitting something at half speed will cause just about as much damage as hitting something at full speed. If there is a marked channel stay in it. The rule is to pass between any pair of markers unless they are equidistant from the same shore. Do not go close to a single marker; it may be there to keep you off a rock or sunken wreck. Keep to the outside of the single marker.

To prevent yourself from losing your way, look for landmarks over the stern on your outward journey. That's the view you'll have of them when returning. Rely on a compass to guide you if you plan to go on open water. Should a fog arise, you'll be glad you did.

With a few simple precautions and careful planning any boatman can partake of the unlimited adventure offered by navigating strange, new waters.

TV Stars To Aid Charity Drive

TV's "Bonanza" star Lorne Greene and singer Cab Calloway will be among the motion picture and television stars headlining the giant Multiple Sclerosis Telethon to be seen on WBAL-TV over the Father's Day Weekend.

The "MS Telethon" will begin at 11:15 p. m., Saturday, June 17th on Channel 11, and will continue without interruption for 18 hours until 5:00 p. m., Sunday, June 18th. The entire telecast will emanate from Mergenthaler High School Auditorium and is open to the public.

Lorne Green, who stars as the father of the Cartwright clan in the Bonanza series, has had an acting career that has taken him from his native Canada, where he also directed a dramatic arts school, to New York, where he co-starred with Katherine Cornell on Broadway, to Hollywood, where he played leading roles in such movies as "Peyton Place" and "The Silver Chalice." On the "MS Telethon" a new facet of his talents will be seen when he sings "High Noon" for Maryland viewers.

Cab Calloway is no stranger to Maryland. It was in Baltimore that Cab began his career which has seen him become one of the most dynamic personalities in the entertainment world.

Names of the other stars flying in for the 18 hour "MS Telethon" are expected to be known within a few days, according to campaign chairman Thomas Parr.

WBAL-TV personalities will also be featured throughout the program. Joining with the national talent will be approximately 100 outstanding performers from all over Maryland and adjoining states.

Receiving pledges from the 5-state area will be almost 100 "VIPs", representing a cross-section of community leadership. Chapter chairman Joseph D. Tydings who is coordinating this phase of the telethon said invitations are being made to representatives from all 18 Maryland counties in Channel 11's viewing area.

Funds raised on the "MS Telethon" will benefit patients throughout the 36-county area covered by WBAL-TV. Contributions from outside Maryland will be credited to the local chapter of MS.

In the state of Maryland alone there are an estimated 2000 suffering from MS. Funds will be used to carry on the much needed patient therapy and clinical care and to support the world-wide research program to discover the cause and cure of MS.

4-H Scholarships To Be Announced

Six $800 college scholarships will be awarded next November on a national basis to 4-H Club girls majoring in home economics, and enrolled in their junior year.

Each state will select only one candidate from the applicants, and her record will then be sent to the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago, which administers the scholarships on behalf of the donors.

Two scholarships each are provided by the Sperry and Hutchinson Company of New York; Sunbeam Corporation, Chicago; and the Whirlpool Foundation, St. Joseph, Michigan.

The awards are offered to either current or former 4-H members who have completed a minimum of three years in 4-H work. They must have a good scholastic and 4-H record as well, according to the eligibility rules. A primary interest in the home economics field and need for financial aid also is a prerequisite.

The Chicago deadline is October 20, so applicants should contact their deans and the state Extension office well in advance of that date, the 4-H Service Committee advises.

The six successful candidates will be selected in Chicago by a committee of Extension Service personnel. The winners will be announced during the National 4-H Club Congress held November 26-30. The recipients, however, will not attend the Congress, but will receive their scholarships through the state 4-H Club office.

Thrifty Americans go into the 21st year of the U. S. Savings Bond program with a record high of $43.6 billion in E and H bonds salted away. The first E bond was issued May 1, 1941.

Fellowships Granted Heart Researchers

Seven Maryland scientists have been awarded fellowships by the American Heart Association to support research in the field of heart and blood vessel diseases. The awards were made public today by Raeburn H. Parker of Monkton, president of the Heart Association of Maryland. Support to be received by the seven will be given under the national research program of the Heart Association.

The awards are among 202 totaling approximately $2,000,000 given to scientists throughout the country. Support is for research to be carried out during the 12 months beginning July 1.

The Maryland researchers who have been notified of their Heart Association support are:

Dr. Emil Blair, of the University of Maryland School of Medicine, for his work with Dr. R. Adams Cowley in study of blood clots and how they affect heart action.

Dr. John Michael Criley, of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, for the continuation of his work as a research fellow under the direction of Dr. E. Cowles Andrus and Dr. Richard S. Ross. Dr. Criley will forward his studies of kidney function in relation to congenital heart defects. Hewill also advance his work toward the improvement of techniques of diagnosis.

Dr. Nancy B. Cummings of the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, will continue her studies of the effects of advanced kidney failure on brain metabolism. Dr. Cummings is an advanced fellow under the guidance of Dr. DeWitt Stetten, Jr.

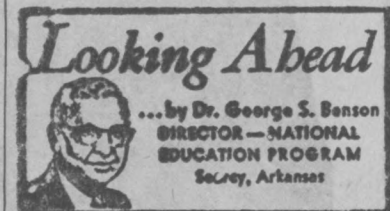

Dr. Herbert W. Dickerman, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, will continue his work as an established investigator of the American Heart Association. His studies concern blood chemistry, especially amino acids and proteins in the blood stream.

Dr. John T. Fales, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, will begin studies as an established investigator in the function of heart muscle. He will attempt to measure the amount of energy expended to perform a given amount of work.

Dr. James L. Gamble Jr., of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, will continue his work as an established investigator. His work deals with the study of animal cells and the role of a cell part, the mitochondria, in the regulation of the transport of salt across cell walls.

Dr. J. O'Neal Humphries, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, will work as an advanced research fellow with the guidance of Dr. Victor A. McKusick and Dr. Richard S. Ross in studies of heart sounds. By placing a miniature microphone inside the heart, he will investigate the exact origin, transmission and timing of sounds generated within the heart.

In addition to these awards made public today by Mr. Parker, additional research support by the American Heart Association will soon be announced. Also, the Heart Association of Maryland will shortly announce support by the local unit of several important research efforts at Maryland institutions.

Independent Italy

Individual initiative and personal responsibility have not yet disappeared from the American scene. Public examples of this type of citizenship, however, are rare enough to show up most dramatically when they do occur. The government has so much intruded itself upon the daily affairs of the people (a development that we ourselves have permitted), that the first impulse of many persons when hard luck strikes is to see what the government will do about it. In these days of distressed areas, we are too often dependent upon Uncle Sugar.

But down in Italy, Texas, where some weeks ago a tornado ripped through the town and left no building untouched, they are rebuilding the little town without federal aid. "We're not ungrateful for all the offers," they said, "but we just figured we could take care of it ourselves." And so, this town of 1,183 souls let it be known that they would not need either the briefcase brigade from Washington or the assistance of the federal treasury in rebuilding their little town.

They Didn't Have To

They could have done otherwise. Nobody outside would have prevented it. Their congressman, Representative Olin Teague, offered to ask President Kennedy to declare Italy a disaster area. The Small Business Administration had men poised with briefcases ready. But the city fathers (I believe they are mostly young men, praise be) said no and thank you kindly.

They figured they'd take care of the local problem. Besides it occurred to them that the federal government might be worse off than they were.

So they wired Mr. Teague that offers of help were appreciated but that they would like to see the money stay in the Treasury, which needed it more than Italy did. Just apply it on the federal debt, the mayor suggested. The citizens of this Texas town refused flatly to accept any government financial aid, federal or otherwise. What the insurance did not take care of, they'd take care of out of their own pockets, they declared.

Capital From Loss

The storm came late on a Sunday afternoon. As soon as it was determined that there were no casualties, the townsfolk began to dig out. Next morning the town looked about to see its buildings in splinters and its main streets so cluttered with debris that trains couldn't cross the streets. Some buildings were left off lightly, but none was left untouched. Actually, most of the $750,000 worth of damage was covered by insurance.

By mid-morning on Monday the business section was cleared and plans were being made to make capital out of the disaster. Many stores and small businesses had long needed new store fronts. Almost as the insurance adjusters came in, came also the workmen to rebuild; carpenters, masons, glaziers. The disaster was turned into an opportunity, without federal aid, to spruce up the town. Some signs of the tornado remain—a few foundations where houses had to be torn down, a business structure owned by non-residents.

Town Shows Stature

It was good to see, editorialized the Wall Street Journal, that the 'Old Frontier' has rebels against the new conformity." So Texans have again supplied an example that all America needs to follow. Italy has a new face and a taller look as well, in terms of stamina, independence, initiative. Even Texans, who are not particularly noted for lack of self-respect, can sit taller in the saddle after this example.

A weak, decadent America can result from the actions of dependent, suppliant, gimme-minded citizens who see no way to handle matters at home except to call upon Congress or the President, patronizing the bureaucracy we have allowed to develop in our extravagance, laxity, and negligence. In the nature of things, there is not apt to be retrenchment until we all begin to act like the citizens of Italy, Texas.

Office gossip travels faster over grapevines than are slightly sour.

from
Polly Ponds

Q: I have very fine thin hair and I thought if I grew it long it would look thicker—and it only looks messy. Could you tell me what I could do about it?

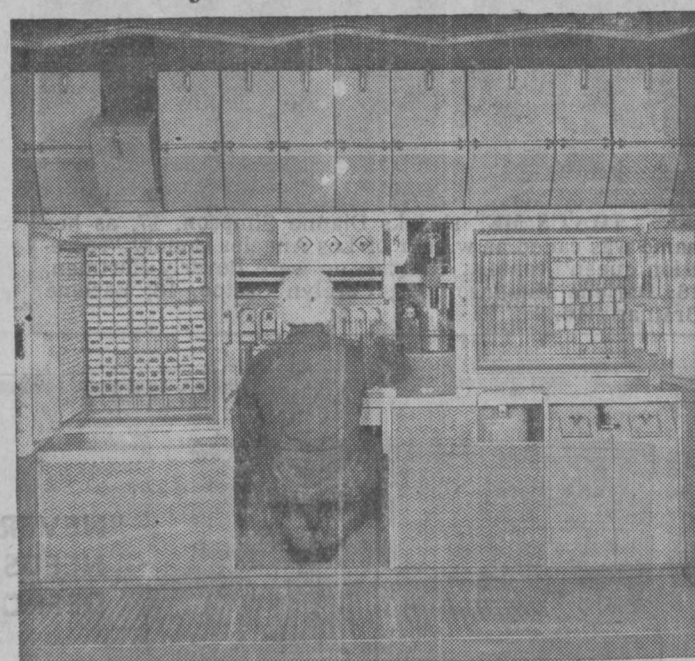

A: Unfortunately, length often accents the thinness of hair instead of making it seem thicker. This is especially true if it's fine and has a tendency to straggle.

Your most attractive hairdo would be short and head-hugging. It will look tidier, less meager and will be easier to maintain.

Show it in its prettiest light by making it shine. To do this, shampoo at least once a week—add a tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice to the rinsing water. Then brush your hair until it's dry. For extra sheen, wrap a nylon stocking around the brush bristles and give it another fifty strokes. When hair is attractively styled, shining and clean, its thickness and texture is only incidental.

Out of This World Kitchen

When it's mealtime in outer space here's where the crew of an American space vehicle could have it. This mockup of the Space Kitchen recently constructed by Whirlpool Corporation for the Aeronautical Systems Division, Air Force Systems Command, shows how all foods and beverages required by a three man crew on a fourteen day space mission could be stored and prepared.

Canned and dried foods will be stored in pulldown pivoted bunks, one of which is shown swung down for demonstration purposes. Bunkers run the entire length of the kitchen. Below bunks at far left with door open is the freezer. Door of freezer contains racks of bite-size sandwiches. Immediately above head of the make-believe spaceman is a three cavity heating oven. Canned foods are placed in oven, automatically heated to 170°F in approximately 30 minutes. Partially visible below oven is rack of feeding nipples. Nipples are attached to canned foods, then cans are attached to food expelling devices shown fastened in place in feeding tray located in front of the man. Would-be spaceman is reaching for polystyrene tube containing coffee.

To his right is the cold water nozzle for reconstituting liquids, such as milk or fruit juice. Next to nozzle is water transfer pump. Stored within the interior of the refrigerator shown at far right are tubes of reconstituted liquids, sandwiches and canned foods which the astronaut has removed from freezer, placed in refrigerator to thaw. Below refrigerator is hot water nozzle, disposal areas for wet and dry waste. Although containing versions of most appliances found in American homes, the Whirlpool Space Kitchen weighs only 800 pounds, is 7½ feet high, 10 feet long. Following delivery to the Air Force, the Space Kitchen will undergo extensive ground testing by Aerospace Medical Laboratory personnel at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

THE CAPITAL PUNISHMENT QUESTION

The capital punishment question, in which law enforcement officers have a basic interest, has been confused recently by self-styled agitators "against the evil of capital punishment." A brochure released not long ago, pleading for "rehabilitation" of murderers while passing lightly over the plight of the killers' innocent victims and families, charges that law enforcement officers "become so insensitized by their dealings with vicious criminals that they go to the extreme of feeling that the death penalty is absolutely necessary."

To add to the burden of conscience borne by peace officers, prosecutors, and jurists and to brand law enforcement officers as callous, unfeeling men "insensitized" to the sanctity of human life are gross acts of injustice to these servants of the public. This ridiculous allegation is mutely refuted by the compassion which wells up in quiet tears flowing down the cheeks of hardened, veteran officers who too often see the ravaged bodies of victims of child molesters.

There can be no doubt of the sincerity of many of those who deplore capital punishment. A realistic approach to the problem, however, demands that they weigh the right of innocent persons to live their lives free from fear of bestial killers against statistical arguments which boast of how few murderers kill again after "rehabilitation" and release. No one, unless he can probe the mind of every potential killer, can say with any authority whatsoever that capital punishment is not a deterrent. As one police officer has asked, how can these "authorities" possibly know how many people are not on death row because of the deterrent effect of executions?

Maudlin viewers of the death penalty call the most wanted slayer a "child of God" who should not be executed regardless of how heinous his crime may be because "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him." (Genesis 1:27). Was not this small, blonde 6-year-old girl a child of God? She was choked, beaten, and raped by a sex fiend whose pregnant wife reportedly helped him lure the innocent child into his car and who sat and watched the assault on the screaming youngster. And when he completed his inhuman deed, the wife, herself bringing a life into the world allegedly killed the child with several savage blows with a tire iron. The husband has been sentenced to death. Words and words and words may be written, but no plea in favor of the death penalty can be more horribly eloquent than the sight of the battered, sexually assaulted body of this child, truly a "child of God."

The proponents of "rehabilitation" for all murderers quote those portions of the Bible which they believe support their lavender-and-old-lace world where evil is neither recognized nor allowed. But the Bible clearly reveals that enforcement of moral justice is nothing new to our age. In fact, in referring to man as the "image of God," the Old Testament, so freely quoted by opponents of the death penalty, also states, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man." (Genesis 9:6). There are many passages in the Old Testament which refer to capital punishment being necessary to enforce the laws of society. Since the Old Testament was written about and to a nation while the New Testament was written to individuals and to a non-political body known as the Church, there is a difference in emphasis and approach. Certainly, however, the moral laws of the Old Testament remain with us today.

Misguided do-gooders frequently quote the Sixth Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," to prove that capital punishment is wrong. This Commandment in the 20th chapter, verse 13, of Exodus also has been interpreted to mean: "Thou shalt do no murder." Then the 21st chapter, verse 12, says, "He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death." We can no more change the application to our society of this basic moral law in the Old Testament than we can change the meaning of Leviticus 19:18: "thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," which Jesus quoted in the New Testament.

To "love thy neighbor" is to protect him; capital punishment acts as at least one wall to afford "God's children" protection.

Christie Citation

The following text is that inscribed on the citation awarded Miss Julia Christie when she was awarded an honorary degree at Saint Joseph College this week.

Our late Holy Father, Pius XII, in speaking of the vocation of a teacher pointed out that "the teaching office is a lofty position which calls for intellectual disconcertment and for goodness of heart for a capacity of intuition and delicacy of spirit, for adaptability and adjustment as well as human depth, capable of bearing all for love of neighbor." How well Julia Hynes Christie, teacher at Saint Joseph College for thirty-four years, exemplifies that exalted description.

Born in Chester, N. Y., she later moved to Phillipsburg, N. J., where she attended Saint Philip and James High School for three years. Miss Christie made her first appearance in the Valley that was eventually to claim her as its own, when she came to complete her secondary education at Saint Joseph's Academy, then a part of this campus. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Joseph College in 1927, returning in November of the same year to join the faculty of her alma mater in the secretarial science department. Miss Christie took her Master's degree from Teacher's College, Columbia University in 1931. Early in her educational career, her excellence in teaching, devotion to her work and loyalty to all that concerned Saint Joseph's made itself manifest. This service to the College resulted in her appointment as chairman of the secretarial science department.

Enthusiastic concerning every aspect of her chosen field, Miss Christie is a member of the Business Teachers' Association. Numerous summers in various secretarial positions with the State Department of Health in Trenton, N. J., have kept her abreast of new trends and developments in the business world.

Keenly interested in her students, not merely in the technical and professional competence in which she so efficiently trains them, but in their development as Christian women, Miss Christie has rightfully earned the respect and affection of countless alumnae. More forceful than her words has been the power of her irreproachable professional conduct, the impact of her exemplary Christian life.

Gifted with a warm, friendly manner, Miss Christie's serene and dignified presence on the Saint Joseph campus has served as a familiar and welcome beacon to returning alumnae. Her devotion to the Alumnae of Saint Joseph College through the years has been proverbial. Selfless and self-effacing, this gracious lady has been untiring in performing with enthusiasm and efficiency the numerous hidden duties inseparable from the work of such an organization. She has served on the administrative board of the College as well as other College committees. Personal self-sacrifice has been evident in her assistance to faculty and administration far beyond the demands of her obligations as a teacher.

In appreciation of the loyalty of Miss Julia Hynes Christie, of her excellence in teaching, of her devoted service as a member of the Alumnae Association, and of her exemplification of Christian conduct in daily life, Saint Joseph College proudly confers upon her the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, admitting her to all its rights and privileges.

Wasilifsky Citation

The following text is that which appeared on the citation award presented to Dr. Adolph Wasilifsky for 25 years' service to the faculty of St. Joseph College. The award was presented at an honors convocation at the college this week.

A dedicated teacher, a lover of learning in general and of the humanities in particular, Dr. Adolph M. Wasilifsky exemplifies the vital contribution that the layman is making to Catholic education today.

A native Baltimorean, he attended high school at the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and was graduated from Loyola College in the same city. He received his Master's Degree from Georgetown University and his doctorate from Cornell University. After 12 years' experience at other institutions of higher learning, Dr. Wasilifsky took his place in the English Department of Saint Joseph College in 1936. The college appointed him chairman of the division of the humanities in 1944.

During the quarter of a century he has spent at Saint Joseph College Dr. Wasilifsky has demonstrated an enthusiastic love of teaching and an unmistakable gift for firing the hearts of countless students. Saint Bonaventure might well have had him in mind when he stated "the only true educator is the one who can kindle in the heart of his pupil the vision of beauty, illumine it with the light of truth and infuse virtue."

An omnivorous reader, yet no dweller in an isolated ivory tower, Dr. Wasilifsky has widened his horizons by European travel and enriched his professional life by membership in the Association of American University Professors and the Modern Language and College English Associations.

An inspired and inspiring speaker, Dr. Wasilifsky has frequently addressed civic, educational, and parish groups. Whatever may have been the burden of his subject, he always has endowed it with the unmistakable stamp of eternal truth and with the flaming message of a Catholicism to which he has unwavering devotion.

Because of his unflinching influence over hundreds of students, of his 25 years of dedicated service and of his constant exemplification of Cardinal Newman's concept of a Christian gentleman, at this Honors Convocation of 1961, St. Joseph College pays special tribute to Dr. Adolph M. Wasilifsky.

Local Man Jailed On Disorderly Conduct Charge

An Emmitsburg resident, Paul Boling, was sentenced to 50 days in the Frederick County jail in lieu of $50 fine last week in Frederick after he was found guilty of disorderly conduct and drinking on a public street.

Boling was arrested May 28 by Chief W. E. Law of the Emmitsburg Police Dept. Law said he observed the defendant, his brother, Harold J. Boling, and Arnold Staley, all of Emmitsburg "creating a disturbance on the main street." Both Staley and Harold J. Boling have posted $50 collateral for the violations.

Boling's only defense was that he had had too much to drink when the incident occurred.
