BY ABIGAIL

The call for assistance for a local family that was burned out of their home and possessions last week met with the usual success that materializes here when someone is in dire need. Numerous individuals contributed food, clothing, furniture and money to help the destitutes get on their feet once again. That good samaritan, Frank Ligorano, as usual, went right to work and among his friends and associates at Mount St. Mary's College, was instrumental in raising approximately $85 to the cause. Frank takes a great personal pride and satisfaction in pitching in on these humanitarian projects. Several times before he has successfully come to the rescue of those in great need.

Statistics prove that Route 15 which bisects Emmitsburg east and west has been proven to be the most dangerous in the county statistics reveal this week. There are more accidents on this miserable stretch of highway than there are on the modern Route 40 from Hagerstown to Baltimore. This is incredible what with Route 15 being the main U. S. highway traveling from Maine to Florida with about 8000 cars a day passing through Emmitsburg. The most incredible thing about the whole deal is that the State Road Commission has been playing with the project for about the past decade and as yet has not come up with any definite plans for complete improvement of the highway. Here and there for several miles at a stretch improvements have been made but you'd think they'd give prime consideration to such a major highway as Rt. 15. However even the long range plans do not call for any complete improvement for a good many years to come. Oh yes, next year they will build about a mile of new road from the Pa. state line south towards Emmitsburg but then motorists will still be forced to travel through the narrow streets of the town for a number of years yet.

Here's a choice tidbit of news for the residents of Frederick City. Almost unheard of these days is a tax reduction. Well that is just what Frederickians will enjoy next year as officials there have announced that a 10c reduction in real estate taxes will be forthcoming. Sounds mighty nice and I hope it spread county and statewide, but what a fat chance it has to succeed. At any rate Emmitsburg seems to be holding the line despite heavy expenditures for improvements to the streets and sewer operating costs. The Town Council announces this week that the local tax rate will remain status quo—70c on $100.

Strenuous efforts are being made by several groups of women in Frederick to have banished the crude and immoral "girlie" shows which have been conducted at the Frederick Fair for so many years in the past. Heated debate with officials has taken place and I believe that a step in the right direction has been made. This writer opposed the action of the Fair Board several years ago and I am very happy that some other individuals have joined in the fight to eliminate these indecent shows to which our school children are subjected.

Mounties Win Two; Play Here Tonight

Coach Jim Phelan's Mountaineers started off their home season schedule in perfect fashion Saturday by polishing off Shippensburg by an 88-63 score at Memorial Gym before a capacity crowd.

In the Blue and White's initial encounter at Providence Friday night they wound up on the short end of the stick 65-59. The close score indicates that Phelan unquestionably has one of the best aggregations in the Mount's history. Providence has been rated as the fourth leading college basketball squad in the country.

A cold 20-minute spell in the early minutes of the second half during which they failed to sink a field goal proved fatal to the Mountaineers. The Mount held a 33-26 advantage after 2:49 of the last half and then went scoreless from the field until only 7:05 remained while Providence reeled off 23 points to take a 49-37 lead. During that period the only points by the Mount were a single foul by Dave Samuels, a pair of charity tosses by John O'Reilly and another foul by Saylor.

The courageous Mountaineers regained their stride after their letdown and battled back slowly, closing the gap and finally overtaking the Friars 56-55 on a layup by Eddie Pfeiffer with 3:07 minutes remaining.

Capt. John Hadnot, 6'10, tied the count with a free toss and then John Thompson, 6'11 Sophomore and the game's top scorer with 23, converted a pair of free throws as Providence went ahead 58-56. Dick Saylor knotted the score at 58-58 with two conversions as the clock showed 1:54 remaining.

Thompson broke the stalemate with a corner shot and Vin Ernst sank two free shots as the Friars moved ahead 62-58 with 1:13 left. Eddie Pfeiffer netted one of two free tosses for the Mount and in the final 45 seconds the Mountaineers were forced to commit fouls in a desperate effort to secure possession. A pair of fouls by Jim Stone and one by Ernst completed the scoring.

The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout the first half. A pair of goals by Dave Maloney sent the Phelan-men ahead 13-10 after 11:05 of the first half. The Mountaineers led the rest of the half although the Friars tied the count at 17-17, 21-21 and 23-23. Tally and Maloney landed twin pointers plus a foul by the former for a 28-28 half time margin.

Providence has been ranked as one of the strongest teams in the nation and its coach, Joe Mullaney, tabs his current squad as the best in the school's history.

In Saturday night's play with Shippensburg, the Mount took the lead right at the start and was never seriously threatened. At half time Phelan's outfit held a 39-28 advantage.

Throughout the second half the Mount easily maintained its lead over the scrappy but outclassed teachers.

Captain Dick Talley, 6'4 Senior from Gloucester, N. J., went over the 1,000-point mark in his career by sinking 16 points for a total of 1,011. Following the game he was presented the ball.

John O'Reilly pumped in 20 points to be high man for the winners while Dave Maloney landed 18 and Eddie Pfeiffer looped 13. Seven other Mount players broke into the scoring column.

In Wednesday night's play this week the Mountaineers romped over Baltimore University, 94-58 in a Mason-Dixon Conference encounter at Baltimore. Dave Maloney led the Mounties with 20 points followed by Eddie Pfeiffer with 18, Dave Samuels 13, and John O'Reilly with 11. Another home stand will be made here tonight when the Phelan-men take on highly-rated Adelphi from New Jersey. Saturday night, the Mountaineers play host to Hampden-Sydney College in another Mason-Dixon Conference game. Both games start at 8 p. m. in Memorial Gym.

Campus Comment

Soldiers Camped Here During Civil War

Walking along the campus the other day, I thought of the historical significance of Emmitsburg in the Civil War. These grounds on which I walk are the same grounds trodden by Union and Confederate soldiers. They saw the same mountains, felt the same beauty. The shine of the sun was just as bright on them as on me. This interested me, so I went to the library to see what record was left of this drama.

Set Emmitsburg back almost a hundred years. The date is June 27, 1862. Sounds of the approaching army are heard, the dust from the countless marching feet is seen, although the army doesn't arrive in town for several days. Then on June 30, 1862, tired, hungry and dirty Union soldiers enter Emmitsburg. Some of us fear that they will break into our homes and take the food which we are already rationing out among our families and which before this war ends will be desperately needed. Others of us figure that since they fight for us, since perhaps our sons and husbands enter similar towns, we wish to share our limited supplies with these blue-clad men.

At any rate, they surprise us by their control and discipline. General George G. Meade rides up the street to Saint Vincent's Rectory where he asks to set up headquarters. Gen. Carl Schurz stops at the college and obtains permission to set up headquarters with his officers in the White House. If we stroll by the college, we see the field covered with the tents of the enlisted men. Guards stand sentry duty for the protection of the town and of the sisters.

Busy were the sisters cutting meat, peeling potatoes, and baking bread for the men. Some of the soldiers enter the chapel and see the sister with the winged headress praying for peace. The peace of the chapel overcomes them and many a soldier asks how the world can be so filled with blood and hate and death. But the world moves too fast for this answer. In a few days, orders come and within a matter of fifteen minutes the camp clears out. The soldiers dressed in blue, march through out streets. The excitement reflected on their faces—some look scared, others anxious, and still others wear a mask—is also felt by us who stand at our doors and wave. As the last company of men disappear northward, the tension breaks and our hearts, tears, and prayers go with these men.

On Saint Joseph's campus there exists a reminder of these times—the war, the men, in a field behind the school stands a statue surrounded by oaks, hedges, and in the summer, daffodils, called Our Lady of Victory. The sisters had the statue erected in thanksgiving for sparing, the immediate surroundings from battle.

And so it is easy to live a yesterday, especially when the setting is right here. Maybe we have grandfathers or great grandfathers who have lived through those days and re-live them by repeating the pageant to us. Or maybe we must take the experience from a book. Whichever way we gain the experience the information still awes us and makes us proud of our heritage.

Committee Strives To Have Work On Local Library Completed Soon

The trustees and officers of the Emmitsburg Library held their third meeting within a month Tuesday evening, Dec. 5 at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Oddo. Many details were discussed.

Mrs. Chatlos, who attended the meeting with the County Commissioners on the Library Budget, reported that the commissioners approved a county wide library system, of which Emmitsburg will be a branch. This will mean additional professional help and a wider selection of books for our town. The members agreed that this would be of great benefit to our library.

Other details were discussed, such as: installation of lights; obtaining furniture and other supplies; finishing the inside painting, and painting the outside and installing the sign. Each of these areas was delegated to one of the board members as his responsibility.

Due to the fact that the JC's have been busy on other projects, the shelves have not yet been installed, and the painting finished. The operation and setting up of the library has been held up because of this. There was a discussion on how best to get these done quickly.

The library officers would like to have the library in operation by the first of the year. There is a lot of work to be done quickly if this deadline is to be met.

Lions Club Christmas Party Next Saturday

An estimated 500 children will have the opportunity to meet and greet Santa Claus Saturday afternoon, Dec. 16 when the annual Lions Club Kiddies' Christmas Party takes place.

This will be the 32nd year the local Lions have conducted this community project and indications are that it will perhaps be the largest of any of the previous parties. Firemen will meet Sunday afternoon at 1 p. m. at the Fire Hall and will pack nearly 400 pounds of select candy for distribution, by Santa, to the local children.

Activities will get under way at 11 o'clock Saturday morning when the first free movie will be projected in the MG Theater, W. Main Street. Should the attendance warrant a second showing, it will take place at 12 o'clock at the same location.

Following the movie all kiddies will be treated to a free lunch in the VFW Annex. The menu will consist of hot dog sandwiches, hot chocolate, etc.

Following the luncheon, the children will be entertained on the Square from 1 to 2 p. m. when the big parade starts.

The parade will form at the Doughboy in West End and proceed to the Square for the distribution of candy and oranges by Santa Claus which will conclude the day's program. The Emmitsburg Municipal Band under the direction of Walter A. Simpson, will furnish the music for the parade and give a short concert while the candy is being distributed.

In the line of march will be the usual police cars, fire apparatus, etc. Boy Scouts will assist the Lions with the distribution of the candy on the Square and State, Fire and local police will handle traffic during the hour the affair is being held. The committee is composed of the following Lions: Joseph Sullivan, Cy Haley, Ralph McDonnell, Ralph Irelan, William Smith, J. William Strickhouser, John J. Hollinger and C. Arthur Elder.

The Lions are assisted in the promotion of the party by the local Homemakers Club, Boy Scouts, Town Council and the merchants and individuals who purchased advertising which makes the project financially possible. A full page advertisement of these sponsors appears elsewhere in this paper. Your patronage to the merchants is generally appreciated.

The Town Council has granted free parking all day Dec. 16 to give parents an opportunity to shop locally.

LINCOLN PROPOSES PLAN TO FREE SOME SLAVES

By Lon K. Savage

In carefully-chosen words, President Abraham Lincoln suggested a plan 100 years ago this week to solve a delicate problem: the emancipation of slaves in border states that still were a part of the Union.

It was noon on Tuesday, December 3, in his first annual message to Congress, that Lincoln chose to make his suggestion. As the message was read, both houses of Congress and members of the press listened intently to the suggestions. (In a revolutionary development in communications, news articles about the address began moving over wires immediately afterward, and they appeared the following morning in California newspapers.)

The President began on an optimistic note: "Fellow citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives: In the midst of unprecedented political troubles we have cause of great gratitude to God for unusual good health and most abundant harvest..."

Reviews War's Events

Lincoln then reviewed the events of the Civil War since the bombardment of Fort Sumter the previous April. Happily he reported, Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri and sections of Virginia and Tennessee appeared, at last, to be aligned with the Union. The number of volunteers for the Union army, he reported, had exceeded the number authorized by Congress. And despite war expenses, the federal treasury had a surplus of four million dollars as of October 1.

Moreover, he foresaw a wonderful future for the nation. If the Union stayed intact, he said, "the struggle of today... is for a vast future," and with somewhat cloudy optimism, he predicted that persons living then would see the United States' population reach 250 million persons—a number it hasn't achieved to this day.

Slavery Question

But his most original proposition dealt with the slavery question.

First, he reviewed well-known facts: that liberated slaves from the Confederacy were pouring daily into federal army encampments along the battle fronts. (These slaves were freed under the federal Confiscation Act of August, 1861—liberating slaves who had been forced to take up arms against the Union Army.)

Next, he turned to the matter of slavery in the border states—a delicate issue in Congress. "It is not impossible," he said, that these states might want to pass emancipation acts of their own.

"In such cases," he continued, "I recommend that Congress provide for accepting such persons from such states, according to some mode of valuation... to be agreed on with such states..."

In a nutshell, he suggested that the border slave states might want to sell their slaves to the federal government, and the federal government would set them free.

Finally, he suggested that steps be taken to colonize the liberated slaves "at some place or places in a climate congenial to them..."

It was a plan of gradual, compensated emancipation followed by a plan of colonization of Negroes. It was a plan that would meet with little success in the months ahead.

Next week: A battle in western Virginia.

ALL ABOUT BABIES...

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

By Kenneth S. Shepard, M.D., Director, Well Baby Clinics, Northwestern University School of Medicine

Starting Baby's Shots

Baby's third month is the one usually reserved for the beginning of immunizations. There are many theories about the immunization series. However, it is generally agreed that the series, consisting of the quadruple injection—diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and polio—may begin at this point in baby's development.

We know that the average child has a hereditary supply of immunity to many common diseases during the first six months of life. It is wise, therefore, to try to complete some of the artificial immunity by the time the child is six months old.

It has been shown in recent investigations that a better degree of immunity may be obtained by spacing the series of immunity injections more than one month apart. It has been found that from three and one-half to four month's spacing of the injections will give a higher degree of immunity. However, it is realized that financial and other circumstances may not make this sort of a spread-out program feasible.

Monthly injections for either three or four months are quite satisfactory and do give a good degree of immunity, especially if this is followed by a booster shot a year from the completion of the series.

The immunization injection is given in the upper-outer portion of the buttocks. Although it makes no difference in which side of the buttocks the shot is placed, the physician usually will give the first shot in the right, the second in the left and the third in the right again. With this routine there is less chance of muscle pain from having too frequent injections on the same side.

There usually is no reaction to immunization injections. There is occasionally, fever or irritability within 24 to 48 hours following an injection. If this occurs, a doctor will usually suggest a half-grain of aspirin dissolved in a teaspoon of water. This may be given at bedtime or at naptime or whenever it is necessary for irritability or slight fever, but not oftener than every three or four hours.

If, for some reason, the baby is not to be given the quadruple injection but only the triple toxoid which does not include polio, the first polio injection should be given when baby is six months of age.

To ascertain this, you take the value of the assets from the statement which is sent to stockholders and deduct the total of liabilities (except for the common stock). The difference is the net asset value of the company. Next, divide this figure by the number of common shares outstanding. This will give you the net asset value per share.

When you compare this asset value figure just obtained with the price your stock is selling for now, and with the price you paid for it, you will probably be surprised. Over a period of years, the ratio of net asset value to the selling price may average out fairly well, depending upon the industry. The more popular the industry or the company, the higher the price will average in relation to net asset value per share. Today, however, most stocks are selling considerably above their asset value. Readers who have a goodly number of shares of the common stock of any company should make the above computation.

Earnings And Growth

Why do stocks often sell for much more than their asset value? The reason is that most investors are looking at the earnings and the growth. If the earnings gradually increase and there is a chance for an increase in the dividend, then these earnings might entitle the stock to sell for the higher figure. In the last analysis, we buy for earnings and not for assets. The Waldorf Astoria would cost more to build on a prairie in Kansas, but its assets would be of no use.

The wise investor, however, does not consider merely the current dividend. Although the dividend may have looked good to you at the time you bought the stock, the market may have caught up with it so that the yield is no longer satisfactory at present prices. To ascertain the yield, you divide the dividend by the price. Many readers will be surprised, when they do this, to see what a small yield they are obtaining on the basis of the present price of the stock. You do not figure the yield on the price you originally paid for the stock,—but on the price it is selling for today. This means that the growth feature of the stock is very important. On this matter you must depend largely upon your judgment.

Competition

The competition to which the company is subjected may be even more important than the above factors. There are two kinds of competition. First, that which comes from some new industry taking the place of the industry in which your company is engaged. Second, that which comes from other corporations

Unlawful To Bring Alcoholic Beverages Into State

As the Holiday Season nears, when sales of alcoholic beverages increase, Louis L. Goldstein, Comptroller of Maryland, today issued a reminder to all Maryland citizens of the State law and penalties for unlawfully bringing alcoholic beverages into this State from the District of Columbia or any other State or foreign country.

The revenue laws of Maryland prohibit the importation and possession of any alcoholic beverages upon which the Maryland tax has not been paid. In the case of an individual the law provides for an exception to the prohibition. Any resident who is over the age of twenty-one (21) years is permitted to bring into Maryland tax free only one (1) quart of any kind of legally manufactured alcoholic beverages at one time, but he may not bring into Maryland more than two (2) quarts in any one calendar month. Any alcoholic beverages which are unlawfully possessed or imported are subject to confiscation and any person violating the Alcoholic Beverages Law may upon conviction be fined no more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) or be imprisoned for two (2) years or be both fined and imprisoned.

Mr. Goldstein also added that the laws of Maryland prohibit the importation and possession of cigarettes upon which the Maryland tax has not been paid. There is an exception to this law also which permits a resident of Maryland to possess not more than two (2) packs of non-Maryland tax paid cigarettes. As in the case of alcoholic beverages, the statute provides that cigarettes which are unlawfully possessed shall be confiscated and any person convicted of a violation of the Cigarette Tax Act shall be subject to a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) or imprisonment for one (1) year or both fine and imprisonment.

Comptroller Goldstein stated that he is particularly anxious that the residents of Maryland fully understand the law and that all persons will fully comply therewith so that it will be unnecessary for them to suffer the embarrassment and other unpleasant results should they be arrested and prosecuted for illegally importing alcoholic beverages or cigarettes.

The Comptroller concluded by stating that the Enforcement Unit, which is charged with the enforcement of the revenue laws of Maryland, will be particularly vigilant during the Holiday Season to insure that the revenues of the State of Maryland, which are shared with the twenty-three counties and Baltimore City are protected. These revenues are essential to pay for the necessary services of government and must be protected to the extent that non-tax paid alcoholic beverages and cigarettes are not unlawfully imported into or possessed in Maryland.

Almost every one of my readers has at least one share of common stock, and most of you are interested in many more shares. Unfortunately, few people realize that there are three very important factors involved in the purchase or holding of common stocks.

Asset Value
The first factor (but not the most important) is asset value.

...by Dr. George S. Benson DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM Searcy, Arkansas

Education Faces The Task

More and more educators, as the challenge of Communism becomes clear and its purposes and devices understood, are declaring ideological war on the Moscow-centered conspiracy. The significant development about this, however, is that professional educators today are not only opposed to Communist ideas intellectually but are beginning to do something about it. Almost 25 years ago when I first began to speak and write extensively, it was considered almost unbecoming for an educator to raise any sort of question about Socialism or Communism. Not so today. Both public and private schools at all levels from their administrative boards on down to classroom instructors are finding ways to instruct students about the dangers of a political scheme that leaves no room for individual liberty and makes the state the supreme boss of all human affairs. Professional school men, not just PTA's and civic clubs, are now generally desirous of doing whatever they can to pass the blessings of our posterity on down to the young people who are soon to come into leadership. New Program Cited

During these 25 years we have worked hard to point the way toward development of responsible citizenship programs in our schools. We are much gratified if the National Education Program, reaching both adults and young people, has had a part in bringing about these better understandings. The School of American Studies at Harding College, we believe, has provided leadership and has served as a pilot program for many other colleges and universities. Our efforts to convince American citizens that the American way of life can be preserved against Communist encroachment have borne fruit.

During the past 25 years we have been opposed many times by professional educators who sometimes unintentionally serve as apologists for socialism. We have been told that you can't defend Americanism, that an educator must consider everything "relative." We have been warned that it is permissible to educate but wrong to indoctrinate. One of our carefully documented films on the spread of Communism was even called a "distortion" of events and "harmful and misleading propaganda" by 92 professors of the University of Washington, about 7 per cent of the faculty.

Facts And Persuasion We bow to no one in our respect for truth and fact, but we are not willing to go along in namby-pamby fashion ignoring the lessons of history. We think enough facts are in to permit some decisions. We are willing to reach conclusions and to act upon them in order to preserve the priceless heritage we possess as Americans. More than this, we would like to convince others of the superiority of the American way, with its reliance upon individual freedom, Christian ethics and morality, freedom of private enterprise, and constitutional government. Is that plain enough?

One of the latest institutions to join the educational trend toward a study of the Communist threat to free institutions is the University of Southern California. Newspaper reports from the West Coast tell of a new program being established there to provide an "intensive, scholarly, and objective" review of Communist strategies, propaganda, and purposes. We hope their program will not become to "objective" as to limit its usefulness.

Toward "Total Response" Apparently it will provide great service to the nation, for Dr. Rodger Swearingen, who will direct the program, is quoted as telling educators that ultimately education may be the decisive factor in the "total response" that we must make to the "total challenge" that Communism presents to America and to the free world. "Most Americans know dangerously little about this vital subject. Most high school students know next to nothing. The time has come to learn and teach," Dr. Swearingen said. We are glad to have him aboard and wish him well in his efforts to prepare teachers of history and social studies who can inform their students of the real nature of the Communist threat.

Few classroom teachers of these or other subjects have undertaken intensive study of world Communism. Whether special courses are added to school curricula or whether units on Communism are included in present courses, our schools must overlook thoughtful, diligent instruction along these lines. When our schools show the evils of Communism, then in contrast show the blessings of the American way, we shall have dedicated citizens. I'll buy it, even if you call it indoctrination!

Hurricane Losses May Be Deducted On Tax Return

Maryland and District of Columbia residents who suffered losses in the recent hurricanes now have guides showing how to treat those losses for Federal income tax purposes.

This announcement was made this week by Irving Machiz, District Director of Internal Revenue, who said copies of IRS Document No. 5174, titled, How the Federal Income Tax Applies to Hurricanes, Floods, Tornadoes, other Disasters, and Thefts, are now available at this office. The booklet is free.

He said the booklet contains valuable information on casualty losses resulting from hurricanes, floods, tornadoes, other disasters, and thefts.

Some of the important topics covered are:

- 1. How to figure the loss to your home;
2. How to figure losses to trees, shrubs and other improvements;
3. The different ways under the law in which losses to rental property, business property, and property held for personal use and pleasure, such as boats and automobiles, are treated;
4. How to take insurance proceeds into account for tax purposes;
5. The tax-free treatment of rehabilitation payments, disaster relief, etc.;
6. How farmers compute their losses;
7. How to postpone tax on the gain if your insurance proceeds exceed the cost of the property destroyed;

8. The information you should furnish when you claim your loss;
9. Where to claim the loss on your return.

Mr. Machiz said copies of Document No. 5174 may be obtained at your local Internal Revenue office.

Model Boats and Ships

Being a model builder, I know what's happening these warm days in homes all over the country. Model boat builders of all ages are itching to get to the local pond with that new fleet built during long winter nights.

Despite painstaking care in construction, there will be moments of apprehension when the models hit the water. Is each ship seaworthy? It is—and that's when the fun begins. Neighbors arrive with picnic hampers and fleets of their own, and the race is on!

Hobbyists from Dad to the small fry cheer rigged schoomers and motorized craft across the line to victory.

Power is as varied as the models themselves. Some depend on a stiff breeze. Others use liquid fuel or electricity, and advanced models have radio control.

Whatever the ship or its power, model boats grow more popular each year. It's not difficult to understand why. For centuries there has been a mysterious bond of affection between men and ships. That's why most weekends you'll find us along local waterways—models in tow!

Phones where you need them keep the whole family happy

Daughter's at the age where just asking "How's Bill" wins a big pink blush. Her own phone in her room gives important privacy and makes her feel you realize she's growing up.

For mother, the extension phone in the kitchen is like a "third arm"—saves countless steps during the many hours she spends there. She can always keep an eye on what's doing—and do it more easily!

Dad has a phone in his workshop that he wouldn't trade for a new set of tools. It gives him convenience and privacy for making or taking calls in his "leisure office."

Extension phones cost only $1.15 a month each, plus tax, after a small installation charge. And the new, little Princess extension phone, with built-in night light, is just $1.90 a month, plus tax, after installation. Your choice of five Princess colors at no extra charge.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read II Peter 1:1-8.
I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine
eye. (Psalm 32:8.)

To young and old alike, guidance is necessary. Thus a mother's hand will guide her little child when he is learning to walk.
The good example of others, or perhaps a timely word of warning

from a faithful friend, can guide us.

God guides by His counsel and by His Holy Word. He also guides us, as our text says, with His eye.

To think of God's eye as a guide may seem strange. But why should it? The eye can express joy or grief, approval or dislike. A look from a person may restrain his child from doing wrong. When Peter denied his Lord, Jesus

"looked upon Peter" and "Peter went out, and wept bitterly."

Today's text assures us of God's guidance. It is also worded this way: "I will counsel thee, mine eye shall be upon thee." In other words, God will give us His counsel and then look to see if we are taking it. Therefore, let us keep looking in God's direction.

Prayer

We thank Thee, O God, for this promise that Thou wilt guide us with Thine eye. Help us, dear Lord, always to remember that Thine eye is not only leading us
but also guiding us, at every step into Thy way. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day

the righteous."

production this year to help reduce the supply of feed grains.
Grazing of the diverted acreages was not permitted after the close of the program sign-up in late May.

The period for keeping the land
in a conserving use and out of production runs through the end of the year, but participants who normally would work or plant land this fall for 1962 crops could perform these usual activities on diverted acres under existing provisions.

CAPITOL COMMENT

by Charles "Mac" Mathias
Congressman, 6th District, Maryland

One of the greatest assets of the Sixth Congressional District is its press. The people of each of the five counties are extremely fortunate in having available to them a fine selection of independent aggressive newspapers.

Riding the circuit throughout the length of our 200 mile district, I am constantly made aware of how well informed are the people with whom I speak on the many facets of local, national and international affairs.

It is continually encouraging to note the alertness of my constituents as to what I, as their Congressman, have been doing in the course of representing them.

These newspapers, their editors and publishers are deserving of all our thanks. They maintain consistent high standards of reporting. In my opinion their fairness in dealing with controversial matters is without question. They are well aware of their responsibilities to their readers and work diligently to be worthy of this trust.

As this my first year in Congress draws to a close, I extend to the press corps of the District my sincere appreciation. I could not have asked for fairer interpretation of my activities. All our newspapers have reported my actions fully, accurately and without bias.

I can state further and without equivocation that these newspapers have been a very constructive factor in helping me carry out my duties to bring responsible representation to the people of the District.

As a read my constituent mail,
I consistently find references to news items in the local papers. My own efforts at reporting to you my weekly activities and thoughts
in this "Capitol Comment" column brings much mail on what I have said. Often I get good constructive suggestions on different matters in relation to a specific area or problem. These are very helpful, mainly because they enable me to have the feel of the pulse of our District.

Too often, we in America take our press for granted. We fail to appreciate the tremendous tasks
which confront them in gathering, evaluating and reporting the news of the day in a balanced presentation. Our press is a highly sensitive nervous system communicating to the people the doings in all the fields of endeavor in today's complex society.

A free press is a privilege and should not be an indulgence in any extreme. It is my honest opinion that a good newspaper is reflective of a sound community. We must all do whatever we can even if it is only through subscriptions to safeguard this precious bulwark of freedom.

As a contrast, take the recent publication in Moscow of the interview with the President by the editor of the Russian newspaper Izvestia. It created quite an international stir and most experts were surprised that the interview was published in its entirety with a minimal of editorializing. The Soviet News Agency, Tass, did, however, editorialize. Here in the United States freedom of the press is a bastion to any encroachments on our liberties. We recognize always that the people have a right to know the facts as they exist.
A strong press and recognition of our duty to keep it strong will insure these rights. I could not do my job well without our fourth estate for it serves me well daily in acting as my eyes and ears and digesting the reports for me to read in the morning at breakfast or when I arrive in the office.

I know that my constituents
will join me in extending thanks to the Sixth District press for keeping us better informed and therefore better citizens.

Changes Made In Feed Grain Program

A recent change in 1961 feed grain program provisions
now permits turning of livestock
on diverted acreage, William L.
Dudley, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, announced today.

He explained that the action was taken to permit farmers to carry out customary after-harvest salvage through turning livestock onto cropland acreages from now until the end of the year without being put to unreasonable expense for protective fencing in instances where diverted acres might be in the same field.

The authorization has been extended to all 1961-program diverted acreages in order to treat all participants in the program on the same basis. In most areas, this important period of protection of the diverted acreages has passed, and there is little likelihood at this time that conservation cover could be severely damaged by releasing livestock on the farms to utilize crop residue in the normal manner.

The Chairman pointed out that the main purpose of the feed
grain program was to remove corn

Average length of life is at an all time high of 69.7 years in the United States. If you are 22 years old you can expect to live 50 years more; if you're 40, you can reasonably expect to live a third of a century more; if you're 50, you have a quarter of a century due you. And if you've already reached high of 69, why, the statistics say you can expect to live an average of 11.7 years more. Living longer depends a lot on your alertness. For example, cold weather means closed windows in homes and automobiles. If you have nausea or dizziness accompanied by a headache, don't pass it off as motion sickness in a car; instead, open the windows and breathe fresh air for several minutes. The surgeon general of the Public Health Service says: By the time a victim is suddenly aware that he is being seriously poisoned by carbon monoxide he may be only seconds from unconsciousness."

Fallout shelters are providing tax savings in six states. Maryland, New Hampshire, Ohio and Wisconsin have laws exempting shelters from local property taxes; Oregon reduces the increased value of the entire property by up to $1,500; while New York provides for a $100 allowance on the tax valuation of a home for each person the shelter is intended to accommodate. Automation and new production methods have created a switch in the carbon dioxide business, says Cardox. Output of liquid carbon dioxide, which is easier to handle and produce, exceeded the annual output of dry ice for the first time last year. But that's not the end of dry ice, its use will continue in local delivery trucks and portable containers.

Health Dept. Studies Air Pollution

Continued reports of gross beta radioactivity in the air as well as more recent reports iodine-131 concentrations found in milk samples taken in Maryland do not indicate a need for counter measures at this time, according to a report today by Dr. Perry F. Prather, Commissioner of the Maryland State Department of Health.

The Health Commissioner explained that the United States Public Health Service intensified its surveillance of the nation's air, water and food supply upon resumption of nuclear tests by the Soviet Union. One of the reasons milk has been selected as a product to be tested is that it is easier to get accurate results from it than from other food items.

The Maryland State Department of Health has participated in the Public Health Service Surveillance Network since 1956. At the request of the Public Health Service several months ago, air sampling in Maryland was placed on a daily around-the-clock basis. Air samples are collected at the Bureau of Laboratories in Baltimore; the filters are given a preliminary survey by laboratory technicians and forwarded to the Public Health Service for more precise analysis. Consequently, daily estimates of beta radioactivity of air particulates have been recorded. Counts during the past year have ranged from 1 to 55 micromicrocuries per cubic meter of air. A mi-crocurie is a millionth of a portion of the amount of radiation given off by a gram of Health Dept. represent a composite of commercial dairies in the Baltimore-Metropolitan area. Last month milk sampling was stepped up a once a month to a twice weekly service, and tests by the Public Health Service were extended to include measures of radioactive iodine-131 which is a relatively short-lived product of a nuclear explosion. The Public Health Service reports shows concentrations between November 6 and November 24 ranged from 30 to 50 micromicrocuries of iodine 131 per liter. (A liter is slightly more than one quart.) This level does not exceed the Federal Radiation Council guidelines for yearly consumption under normal peacetime conditions.

The Health Commissioner emphasized that the Baltimore Metropolitan area is one of approximately 60 strategic locations in the nation that have been selected for the intensified sampling of milk. He added that State Health Department specialists are attempting to develop the technique and instrumentation to test milk and water in addition to air for specific radioactive substances.

Mahoney Is Critical Of Tawes' Policies

George P. Mahoney, on behalf of the Mahoney-Lee-Barrick ticket, today criticized Governor Tawes for what he termed a completely unprovoked attack upon the workmen of Maryland.

"Although I have chosen to conduct this campaign by offering positive approaches to the many issues of importance to our citizens," Mr. Mahoney said, "I have in several occasions stated that I will not stand idly by while the opposition engages in indiscriminate attacks which serve to discredit our State or its citizens.

In this category is the statement of Governor Tawes in his press conference last week in which he characterized the union members of Maryland and this typify the approach of the incumbent administration to the problems of this State. Time after time during the past three years requests by various groups of our citizens for action have been treated with indecision, with negativism, or with decision. Demands for solutions are met not by forthright discussion of the issues involved, but by bitter denunciation of the group which made them. Such an approach makes a sham of the democratic process. It would be interesting to learn from Governor Tawes precisely what labor has demanded of him to provoke his attack on the so called labor lobby.

The truth of the matter is clear. Mr. Tawes is aware that he has lost the support of Maryland labor by his blatant anti-union maneuvering and that he has lost the support of Maryland teachers by breaking his 1958 promises to them. He seeks to make capital out of the failures of his administration by attempting to discredit any group or organization whose disfavor he has incurred.

One of the primary obligations of any elected official is to treat with consideration the legitimate requests of his constituents. This clearly Governor Tawes has not done. It must rank among the greatest failures of his administrations.

Soccer Coach Lauds Local Player

Thomas "Woody" Stoner, a senior at Mt. St. Mary's College and a member of the college soccer team, has been called by the coach, "The best goalie ever, has allowed fewer goals than any previous to this time." In the November issue of the college paper, Woody has been credited with bringing the "Mount from the paties of the conference to the team to beat in sight of one year," by his ever unending string of unbelievable plays around the goal, as a goalie, by his great desire and inspiration, and by his invaluable leadership. "Because of this leadership, inspiration and all around great play, Woody has been picked as the player of the month." Woody is a graduate of St. Joseph's High School, Emmitsburg and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stoner, Emmitt Gardens, Emmitsburg.

Girl Scouts To Give Veterans Presents

Intermediate Girl Scout Troop 72 met on Tuesday evening with leaders Mrs. Charles Shorb and Mrs. Ralph Ohler. The meeting opened with the flag ceremony by Frances Wagerman, Josephine Rodgers, Judy Hardman and Darlene Eyer. Roll call and collection of dues followed. The girls decided that each member would bring a box of cookies or candy to be given to a Veteran who is a patient at Victor Cullen Hospital, instead of exchanging gifts among themselves. The girls will meet on Sunday, December 10 at 1:30 to decorate the windows of their meeting room. On December 19 the troop will go caroling. The remainder of the meeting was spent working on their Christmas projects. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 12.

Feature Race Saturday At Pimlico Track

The Pimlico Cup, one of the nation's most gruelling tests for thoroughbreds at a distance of two-miles-and-one-sixteenths, will have its silver anniversary at Pimlico this Saturday, December 9. It also will be the final 1961 stakes event of the major eastern and northern racing season.

First run in 1919 when it was won by Exterminator and then captured twice more in succession by the famed gelding, the Pimlico Cup has had many exciting renewals and this year's race may provide another in the series.

Predicting the field is a little difficult. Among the better known performers considered possibilities for the race are Mrs. J.A.S. McKean's Polyad and Peter Fuller's Hillsborough. They have been racing in New York, where the season is now ended and each holds a stakes decision over the other.

Hunter's Rock, who carried the colors of Mrs. Henry Obre to victory in the Dixie Handicap on the grass recently at Pimlico, is another strong candidate for Cup honors.

Chances are that the remainder of the field will come from a group which includes John S. Burrows' Dirce, Mrs. E. H. Ellison, Jr.'s Sun Energy, Graham French's Plenilunio 2nd, Haskin Farm's Little Tipper, Pinecrest Farm's Bride's Rock, Bayard Sharp's Sunshine Cake and Tally-Ho Stable's August Sun.

The last ten days of the Pimlico meeting find the track in a spot where it is the "only game" between Florida and Rhode Island and that means that race-trackers from all over the East will be flocking to Baltimore for their action.

To meet the demands of these patrons, there is special bus service from New York, busses bring fans from all sections of the Philadelphia and New Jersey areas and of course, there are the usual busses from Washington, D. C. and Virginia. The Pennsylvania Railroad adds extra cars to handle fans from New York on down the line to Baltimore.

In addition to the running of the Cup, and the continuance of three distance series always featured at Pimlico in the fall, the final days of the meet are providing keen duels for the riding and training championships of the session and two jockeys, Tommy Lee and Robert Corle, are battling it out to see who will win the most races in Maryland for

None Injured In Vehicular Crash

Damage totaled $150 when a car operated by Walter A. Monday night at 10:15 o'clock. Police said both vehicles were headed south when the truck struck the car as it sought to make a left turn into the Bull Frog Rd. No one was injured.
