Most Anything At A Glance BY ABIGAIL

The on again off again space flight of John Glenn Jr. appears about ready to get under way after a series of delays caused by mal-functioning equipment. While the public awaits with abated breath stop a minute and consider the feelings of the astronaut himself. He appears calm and relaxed but inwardly he must be more tense than we are. Present plans call for the shot to get off tomorrow morning but don't bet on it. After a world-wide buildup concerning the three-times-around-the world flight can you imagine the chagrin we face if the ex-periment fails? After all the Russians already have accomplished the feat and we are merely chasing them so to speak. Let's pray for a successful venture not only for our pride but for the safety of the space pilot

That old addage that history repeats itself still rings true. Take the U-2 spy plane case a year ago when one of our pilots was shot down on Russian soil. The incident caused world-wide concern and our airman was imprisoned in Russia for a 10year period. Well this week one of the Commies' airmen was forced down on Italian soil after spying and photographing a new missile base we and our allies had installed in Italy. It will be interesting to note just what the disposition of this incident will be. Should we retaliate and sentence this flyer as ours was or should we continue spying now that the score is even? Mr. K's actions should be interesting in this incident.

For the umpteenth time a car has sheered off a utility pole across from the Catholic Church. To be more specific this is the eighth pole in about two years that has come to destruction at that site. The Town has implored the State Roads Commission to take remedial action and install a caution light there but the request apparently has fallen on deaf ears. The Jaycees also have contacted the Commission but to no avail. It is ure the anathy of the Roads Commission in this matter. Another rather important request also has been ignored. This one concerns a caution light at the entrance to St. Joseph College. This is intended to slack the pace of the cars about to pass the Mother Seton School where buses are daily engaged in loading and unloading little tots attending the school. They have little if any protection and it is felt that a light there would greatly help the safety of all concerned. I often wonder what motivates our socalled Roads Commission and wonder just how you can goad it into action but when I look at the unfinished bypass of Thurmont at Catoctin Furnace and the dead-end at Toll Gate Hill I can see that it is a hopeless condition and I come to the conclusion that the Commission's right hand doesn't appear to be in full knowledge of what its left hand is doing.

Polio Work Must Continue; Many Still Unvaccinated

The National Foundation was founded in 1938. For 20 years the March of Dimes supported researches, made many key discoveries about the growth of viruses in tissue cultures and the materials in which immunizing viruses are cultivated and the Salk Vaccine was made possible. At the same time the National Foundation was providing support for the development of the Sabin Live Virus Oral Vaccine, which before long is expected to be in full use. Both of these vaccines against poliomyelitis were developed by grantees of the National Foundation, exclusively supported by March of Dimes funds. The annual number of new cases of polio has been drastically reduced since the U.S. Public Health Service licensed the Salk Vaccine for use in this country. During one year on record almost 58,000 cases of polio were reported in the United States. It is expected that the figures for 1961 will show less than 2,000 cases. Polio has been checked, but it has not been crossed off, as a project to which the National Foundation must still give its attentnion. There are still too many Americans potential victims unvaccinated against polio and there are still thousands who were crippled in the prevaccine era and who need March of Dimes assistance with respiratory equipment, treatment and further rehabilitation. As many as 25,000 cases were provided assistance in 1961, and it is expected that the high cost of polio care will continue into 1962. In the United States figures obtained through surveys indicate that something like 38% of the children under 5 years have not been vaccinated. In Frederick County a survey in 1960 showed that something like 30% of the children under this age of five years had had no vaccine at all. In the school age group the results were considerably better but still not sufficient. We had sixteen cases of paralytic polio this summer and of this group 13 had either no vaccine at all or had been incompletely vaccinated. It is obvious therefore that we still will have the problem of caring for those who have been crippled as a result of polio for some years yet to come. It is the plan of the National Foundation in 1962 to offer some 500 health scholarships for students in medicine, nursing,

Reason For Worry

There was reason for worry in the federal army. Idle soldiers were growing tired of waiting, and their morale sagged. Abroad, the inactivity seemed to confirm a growing opinion that the United States could never be put back together again and that it was high time to recognize the Confederacy. Even in the South, the inactivity was hurting. Confederate soldiers, beginning to believe their services were not needed, showed little interest in re-enlisting as their terms of service expired.

McClellan, who had recovered from a three-week bout witd typhoid, now was talking of a federal offensive down the Chesapeake Bay and an attack on Richmond from the East. Lincoln openly disagreed with the plan, and time went by.

Finally, Lincoln decided to accomplish by order what he was unable to accomplish by persuasion. On January 27, he issued his famous General War Order No. 1, setting February 22 as "the day for a general movement of the Land and Naval forces of the United States against the insurgent forces.'

Included in the order were the Army of the Potomac, the Army of Western Virginia, the army and gunboats at Cairo, Ill., the army at Fortress Monroe in eastern Virginia, and the naval force in the Gulf of Mexico.

All would be ready to move out on February 22 in honor of George Washington's birthday, and commanders "will reverally be held to their strict and full responsibilities

This means tistics across the rest of the country are similar. To find out why shock occurs and to work out effective measures against it, the University of Southern California School of Medicine has begun a three-year study. A six-bed shock ward, staffed 24 hours a day, has been opened at County Hospital. There, shock sufferers will receive optimum care. Physiological effects, now poorly understood, will be measured. The data will be recorded and later analyzed by electronic computors. The doctors believe their study will help blunt the threat of shock in whatever way it strikes.

Harsco Corporation manufactures a wide and diversified line of steel products for practically every industry using pipe, notably the petroleum industry, as well as seamless cylinders for high pressure gas storage and transportation. Both of these seg-

The largest factor in the company's corporate earnings picture however is the Heckett Engineering Division. specialists in the operation of re-claiming metal from steel slag. The great advantage of this patented Heckett process lies in the fact that a greater percentage of metal from slag may be obtained at much lower cost per ton than any other method. Due to this cost advantage as well as the rising price in steel scrap, the num-ber of Heckett installations, which are rented rather than sold thus insuring steady royalty income, has grown over 200% in the past ten years. Currently there are 34 facilities in operation, 24 in the United States and the rest abroad. Such a facility costs approximately $2 million and Harsco, with a strong financial position and increasing earnings, can finance construction internally. For 1962, we estimate the company will earn $2.75-$3.00 per is an added favorable factor. In our opinion, Harsco at current levels offers good value and above average near term and longer range growth prospects.

Kratter Corporation. a real estate investment company, could receive renewed investment attention as it is in a group that we believe will be a market favorite in the next several months. Real estate investment trusts are a relatively new investment vehicle available to Wall Street having been created a few years ago as an outgrowth of real estate syndications. Kratter is primarily a real estate operation owning properties, leasing properties, buying leasebacks, and buying, selling and developing properties. These dividends currently at the rate of 14¢ per month are considered a return of capital and, therefore, are not taxable as ordinary income. We believe this stock is an intriguing growth situation and a relatively new stock investment medium. The excellent yield of 6.4% tax free should appeal to all investors.

That Monster: Debt

Some strange ideas about debt became popular in the Thirties when President Roosevelt's onepocket-owes-it-to-the-other school of economics caught on in some quarters. Today the expansion, of private and public debt imperils our nation's future, and if we are not more diligent about reducing the load, the buhble of inflated debt can one day burst. If it does, we're in for plenty of trouble.

The we-owe-it-to-ourselves school of economics never was realistics in its viewpoints. According to Dr. Melchior Palyi, in An Inflation Primer (Chicago: Henry Regnery Company, $4), those who still believe in the system think they "have taken out a patent on eternal prosperity, a world in which debts are owed to one's own 'pocket.'" No way has been found to avoid the consequences of honest debt short of irresponsibility or outright repudiation. Yet, there are those who look to "legerdemain" to arrive at other than honest solutions to honest fiscal responsibilities.

A Spreading Evil

"Easy money 'eases' the moral fiber of society," Dr. Palyi writes. "When government housekeeping is oblivious of the rules of economy, private households are strongly tempted to follow the same pattern. When acquiring wealth becomes a matter of gambling and politicking, as it does in the inflation morass, real values are likely to suffer . . . The drawn-out depreciation of the currency's purchasing power cannot fail to affect standards other than the monetary alone."

The huge federal debt itself forces the printing of money and continued monetization of the debt, in the absence of moral discipline of the people through their Congress. It may be said that our whole credit system and our economic security now depend upon the debt, for our liquid assets are backed largely by government paper or by claims on government paper. The inflated national debt in turn holds up a "paper edifice" of non-federal debt that is growing out of all proportions. If and when over-expansion forces liquidation, the government, Dr. Palyi shows, will not be able to step in and save the day. Free Market Thwarted

Economic stagnation can follow either runaway printing of money or a run on the dollar. If the "built-in automatism" of the market place serves to restrain the banks and brings an end to debt inflation, we may avoid the impending chaos. However, adjustments that bring back balance to the economy are not allowed to function, if super-booms are always projected (for political purposes) under artificial conditions. The inflated debts serve to thwart or delay the curative adjustments a free market could supply.

The principle that "one-pecket-owes-it-to-the-other" actually applies to a Communistic society only, Dr. Palyi declares. "When everything belongs to the state. all liabilities are a matter of mεre bookkeeping," but, conversely, "he who denies that the debt is more than a bookkeeping item, wittingly or unwittingly. negates the system of private property." This trinking often proclaims that the debt is not a burden on the nation because the government merely owes its citizens. Yet, the Treasury uses up 12 cents of every dollar of federal revenue each year just to service the debt. Are not taxes burdens? Serves The Red Cause

Dr. Palyi goes to the heart of the matter when he says: "Note low neatly the argument for the public debt's alleged economic innocence fits into the not-soinnocent frame of mind of the demagogues who plead for wealth redistribution. Why not indulge in such "transfers" by which the loss of one side is compensated, supposedly, by profits of the other? By promoting the something- for- nothing iluusion, debt-making serves not only as the motor of inflation, but also as an intellectual vehicle of collectivism."

This memorable paragraph ends Dr. Palyi's plea for sanity: "It would be the greatest irony of history, and an unparalleled tragedy for western civilization, if America, by exporting inflation, would force the world back into the commercial and monetary chaos from which it has been slowing emerging-wiping out the stabilization, for the sake of which the American taxpayer has spent around $80 billion since World War II. They turned to the Teamsters Union for money, by giving the union the blanket mortgage, subject in part to other mortgages, on all the property that was not owned free and clear by those who had already built homes or bought lots. Era Of Private Banking, Trusts, And Insurance Companies The big men of Wall Street were originally such men as Daniel Drew, Jim Fisk, and Jay Gould, who played with the stocks of the leading railroads of that day. There was then no Interstate Commerce Commission, or State Railroad Commission, or Securities and Exchange Commission. It was 'free for all' until Mr. J. P. Morgan came into the picture and brought order out of chaos. Mr. Morgan was a very wonderful man. After he had accumulated money for himself, he assumed control of the investment situation in general. Those who followed his order and generalship usually prospered; those who did not often fell into bankruptcy. The second era was that of trusts, organized by certain famous lawyers under the laws of Delaware. These were the beginnings of what are now known as "holding companies" but they were unsupervised. Among the most prominent were Havemeyer (sugar), Harriman (railroads), Rockefeller (oils), and Duke (tobacco). Following these, the great life insurance companies which had money rolling in every month and "unsupervised bankers" became powerful.

Era Of Mutual Funds The third great era of combining and accumulating large aggregates of captial, in which the small investor could buy shares, was that of the Mutual Funds. These have grown greatly during the past few years since they have been sponsored by many of the best New York Stock Exchange houses which send salesmen out all over the country. Before the Mutual Funds became popular, the stock exchange houses could not afford to do this as their commissions were only a fraction of one per cent. With Mutual Funds, however, they are allowed commissions of around five per cent. These Funds now control $24,000,000,000 in stocks and bonds. As their salesmen sell Mutual shares, the Mutual companies buy stock to protect the purchases. As the Mutual company stockholders sell, the Mutual companies must sell stocks they are holding. During 1961 the Mutual companies were obliged to redeem 4 shares for every 10 sold. Labor Unions As Bankers Meanwhile, labor unions, with membership dues coming in every month, are building up large reserves and may soon become the leading bankers of the U.S. | from his pay. The finance committees of these dinary advantages: (1) Labor unions are the only corporations now exempt from the antitrust laws: (2) labor unions have some advantage in connection with income and other taxes. Whether government ownership or something else will follow the labor unions, we do not now know, but history shows that "every dog has its day."

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

The American defense posture is too much at a grocery check out stand, instead of on the target range. That would seem to sum up the remarks of Senator Paul Douglas in criticizing the vast extent of the armed services commissaries.

The American defense posture is almost equal to a full division. Perhaps there are thousands of mothers who instead of singing "I Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier" are singing "I Didn't Raise my Boy to be a Grocery Clerk." operating in the United States.

This sales volume was presumably produced from a total of 914,247 holders of permits to buy in the commissaries, of which 744,517 live off the military posts or bases, presum-ably surrounded by privately

Sen. Douglas points out that a top combat man, or head this military employment is clerk in the produce section.

But in addition to the waste of potential combat power, the Senator's figures seem to indicate that there is a substantial subsidy involved, going mostly to the higher ranks, as majority of enlisted men eat in the company mess halls.

moitor's NOTE: Darothy E. Breese, meng Columbus, Ohio, mother, tells of the remarkable progress made by her daughter in overcoming the disability desced by a severe birth defect.)

By DOROTHY E. BREESE

My little Linda has done far more things in her five years than most people even dream of being able to do in an entire lifetime.

As the March of Dimes 1961
National Poster Child, she met President Kennedy in person and rode on a float in his inauguration parade. She starred in an hour-long television program with some of the country's most popular television and movie stars.

Linda has traveled from coast to coast and seen her picture in nearly every newspa-per printed. She has autograph books filled with the signatures of celebrities and famous peo-ple she has visited.

These are just some of the things Linda has done that are beyond the reach of most of us. But the one thing we wanted most for her was something the average person takes for granted—the ability to walk alone and unaided.

There were many times during the years that my husband, Dean, and I thought that Linda would never be able to throw away her braces and crutches. And to be truthful, there were terrifying moments when we feared we might even lose her.
Linda was born with an

You can imagine how much we worried about our little girl in those early days, because we knew she was never far from death. It could have come at any time. After all, 250,000 infants are born in this county.

Linda has won through. She improves every day. Now her trips to the birth defects center have been cut to just one every three months. Best of all—we have been able to en-remember the gloomy days. We know that many other parents of afflicted children are going learned to use them.

When, though—if ever—would she be able to run and play with her sister and two older brothers and the other first of its Birth Defects Clinical Study Centers in 1959.

When she was nine months old, it was found that Linda had water on the brain, which has the medical name of hydrocephalus. This condition was
