As the horse gave way to the automobile, automation replaced the manual procedure of doing things, now about to fade into oblivion is the ancient method of giving automobile traffic signals. At the end of October it will not be required in Pennsylvania to give a hand signal when you are about to make a turn with your car. Naturally your vehicle must be equipped with automatic signalling devices though or you will be fined or killed. It really has been accepted practice for years though so I guess the legislators just want to bring their motor vehicle code manual up to date.

Summer is fast fading into obscurity and it seems as though we have had hardly any summer at all. Why just five months ago we were without electricity and phone service for several days. You just can't imagine how short the summer seemed to be. While we have endured a prolonged drought and many farmers will suffer financially this winter, the summer has been a pleasant one weather-wise. There has been no heat wave to speak of and the days have been rather pleasant and mild. It seems a shame that this period has to end so abruptly but actually in just about three weeks the kiddies will be back in school and fall will be on its way. Speaking of schools you owe it to yourself to visit and inspect the two new buildings the Mount has erected the past several months. The college can well be proud of these new buildings which grace the already beautiful environs of the school. A personal inspection of these buildings will afford local residents to see just what an asset to the community these buildings and the college itself are to our community. They are really something. Extensive building also is under way at St. Joseph College but will not be completed for several years, so massive and extensive is the rebuilding program of that educational institution.

With work nearing completion on north and south stretches of U. S. Route 15 we all are wondering when the State Roads Commission is going to complete the only unfinished stretch left, and one of the most important ones. This is the actual bypass of the town itself. Rumors are that bids will be let this fall and work will commence in the spring but this would not provide ample time for completion of the roadway for use during the centennial celebration of the Battle of Gettysburg in July of 1963. Unless this section is completed motorists will face a dead end at both the southern and northern extremities of town. This would be a shame and would represent a distinct bottleneck and traffic menace on the main highway. The bypass must be completed and before July of next year. It is simply a must, even if emergency fiscal appropriations are required.

Accidents Show

Need For

Driver Training

Eight of the nine deaths on Maryland highways last week were caused by "driver error" according to the weekly summary for the period ending Aug. 12, issued by the Maryland State Police.

Speed accounted for three deaths and alcohol was a contributing factor in five.

"Once again," said Colonel Jarman, superintendent, Maryland State Police, "it is apparent that highway accidents don't just happen, but, rather, are caused by the failure of motor vehicle operators to observe the fundamental rules of driving."

"This," he continued, "definitely points to the necessity of focusing attention on the importance of driver training. This training, with emphasis on fundamentals, must be required of all who seek a license to drive and in some way it must be made available to those who already have a license."

Section Of Rt. 15

To Be Improved

Construction of relocated U. S. 15 from the Lewistown by-pass to Tuscarora Creek may begin next year, a State Roads Commission engineer revealed this week at a zoning hearing held in Frederick. J. Herbert Clawson Jr., development engineer, said that section of the highway is slated to be "under construction by 1965, but it may be as early as 1963."

One thing you can still get for a penny is your incorrect weight.

Car Demolished In Saturday Wreck

Bernard Joseph Ott III, 19, Federal Ave., Emmitsburg, was charged Saturday morning before Justice of the Peace John Whitman with reckless driving by Cumberland Twp. Policeman Bernard V. Miller, following an auto accident about three miles south of Gettysburg on Route 15 near the Edgewood Bowling Lanes.

Officer Miller said Ott was driving south about 12:30 Saturday morning when he lost control of his car. It went off the east side of the highway near the John Donmoyer property, skidded 400 feet sideways before striking a utility pole broadside. The car then spun about and went into a field where it continued for about 600 feet, returned to the highway, crossed the road to the west side and finally came to rest.

Miller said the car was demolished and the pole broken off. Neither Ott nor a companion in the car was reported injured.

County Democrats Organize Committee

The Frederick County Democratic State Central Committee announces the selection of a Campaign Committee to carry on the party's activities in the coming State, County and Congressional Elections.

In announcing the committee membership it was emphasized that this is simply a steering and planning group and the important work in the election will be done by those public-spirited citizens in every district and precinct throughout the county who carry on the day-by-day party activity of keeping abreast with issues, discussing public affairs, voicing their opinions, voting and getting other citizens to vote.

The Campaign Committee is composed of five co-chairmen, these being: Samuel W. Barrick, Alton Y. Bennett, Mildred Smith Fisher, Delbert S. Null and Edward D. Storm.

Mr. Barrick and Mr. Bennett will be in charge of precinct organizations throughout the county. Those districts and precincts which have had no election of chairmen and committees will be reorganized with interested and active people selected by local precinct voters to guide this most important phase of the activities.

Mrs. Fisher, treasurer of the State Central Committee, will be the official treasurer of the campaign committee and also will work in cooperation with Mrs. James R. Hahn, an elected member of the State Central Committee. Mrs. Hahn, as the recognized leader among the ladies of the party, will have important work in Public Relations, Women's Activities, County Tours, Club Coordination and other administrative functions.

Mr. Null will be chairman of the finance committee and will raise funds for the many campaign projects from as wide a group as possible. In accepting his appointment, Mr. Null emphasized his belief that better government results when a large group of individual citizens make contributions to a political campaign. He expressed satisfaction that the Democratic party is not financed by a few well-to-do persons with special interests, and stated that his objective will be to continue efforts for a broad base of Democratic giving with no "obligations" resulting from the activities of his committee.

Edward D. Storm will handle public relations, advertising, inter-party news media and news releases. He plans a systematic program of "letting everyone" know who is putting their shoulders to the wheel and of letting the public know the exceptionally fine records of the experienced Democratic candidates and the splendid possibilities to be achieved on gaining the services of an unusually able and sincere group of "new faces" on the political scene.

The entire committee emphasized that they especially welcome the efforts of people who have only recently become awakened to the importance of party activity. Although Federal employees in the Postoffice, Fort Detrick, the Relay Station and all alphabet agencies are somewhat cramped by the current provisions of the Hatch Act, their wives and children are free to exercise their privileges of political activity.

Democratic headquarters will be located at the Herschberger Building on North Market St., Frederick, where the successful 1958 and 1960 central offices were housed.

The man who looks before he leaps often gives the other fellow a chance to get in ahead of him.

Southern States Dinner Meeting

The annual dinner meeting of the local Southern States agency was held last week at the Mt. Manor Restaurant. Guest speaker was John Rush from the Baltimore office. Plans were made for the open house to be held at the local Southern States plant, Emmitsburg Feed and Farm Supply.

The new addition to the local building will be open for inspection on Sept. 14 from 2 to 9 p.m. Hourly drawings and one grand drawing will be awarded. The survey, in which 38 farmers from various sections of the county were questioned, showed 28 of them reporting a total feed supply below normal. Six reported their feed supply critical.

Permanent pasture, mostly blue grass, was extremely hard hit. Of the farmers quizzed, 29 said their pasture supply was critical.

Thirty of the farmers questioned said their first cutting of alfalfa was normal. Only two said it was critical. Twenty farmers said the second cutting was below normal and three said it was critical. Eight reported the third cutting critical.

Mr. Wood said a rain this week could produce a normal fourth cutting of alfalfa in some areas. Normal yields were reported by most farmers for barley and spring oats. Half the farmers said their first cutting of clover was normal. Five said their second cutting was critical.

Feed dealers, Mr. Woods said, are reporting the greatest hay orders since they have been in business.

Twenty-eight of the farmers questioned said they would have to buy hay. Eighteen said they would have to cull or reduce their herd size.

Under the proposal all personnel of both banks will be retained.

The merger is subject to the approval of the shareholders of the two banks and the supervisory authorities.

C., an application for approval of the merger of the Littlestown State Bank and Trust Company and the First National Bank of Gettysburg under the name or title of Adams County National Bank.

Drought Hits Emmitsburg Hardest In County

The drought is hitting county farmers where it hurts most—in the pocketbook. However, how much actually will have to be spent later for winter feeds because of short pastures and low crop yields now cannot be determined at this time, according to the County Agent's office.

A number of dairy farmers and beef men also, are being forced into feeding hay and green chop which normally would be saved for winter feed.

If rain does come, it could save a fourth cutting of hay for many farmers. However, even this would not be enough to make up what is already lost for winter feeding the County Agent's office reported. The third cutting of hay was lost or partially lost for most farmers.

To supplement pasture shortage, dairy farmers in particular, are feeding heavy with green chop. This was defined as chopped sudan grass and field corn which ordinarily would be used to fill silos. Even the canning factory source of corn roughage is lower than usual. A goodly number of farmers in past years had depended on cob-husks loads from the factories to supplement silo filling.

It was also pointed out that since the field corn crop is not filling out as usual, this crop will be used for silage instead of being kept for winter grain.

Results of a survey released this week by the County Agent's office showed drought damage throughout the county. However, some areas were pointed to as more critical than others.

Extension Dairy Specialist G. D. Wood, who made the survey along with Assistant County Agent Kenneth Shifflet, said an area around Emmitsburg appears to be the hardest hit in the county. The Creagerstown area, a pocket around New Market and New London and the tip of the county around Knoxville were also described as critical regions.

The survey, in which 38 farmers from various sections of the county were questioned, showed 28 of them reporting a total feed supply below normal. Six reported their feed supply critical.

Permanent pasture, mostly blue grass, was extremely hard hit. Of the farmers quizzed, 29 said their pasture supply was critical.

Thirty of the farmers questioned said their first cutting of alfalfa was normal. Only two said it was critical. Twenty farmers said the second cutting was below normal and three said it was critical. Eight reported the third cutting critical.

Benefit VFW Crab-Shrimp Feast Saturday

The annual shrimp and crab feast sponsored by the Emmitsburg Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 6658, will be held Saturday night at Kump's Dam Park. The scholarships are awarded on a strictly competitive basis.

Any profits derived from the feed will be used to meet the annual expenses of approximately $1,000 per year for operation of the ambulance maintained for use of the community, and toward the $1,000 allotted annually to the Scholarship program.

The public is invited to attend the feed at a cost of $2.50 per person. On the menu will be Shrimp, Crabs, Chicken-Corn Soup, Beverages, etc. Activities will begin at 5 p.m. and serving will continue until 9 p.m. In case of inclement weather Saturday night, the affair will be held Sunday afternoon beginning at 1:30 p.m.

County's Largest Parade Shapes Up

Plans for the largest parade ever to be held in Frederick County are moving along nicely and on schedule, according to Robert Dudrow, general chairman of the fayers who are sponsoring the event for the Antietam-South Mountain Civil War Centennial Assn. The parade will be held in Frederick City.

Lists of prizes and entry forms have been mailed out to more than 200 groups and organizations and many already have indicated their intention to enter. Both Junior and Senior High School Bands in the county will participate, along with many marching groups and organizations. The parade will cover a 2.8-mile route and will consist of 25 divisions.

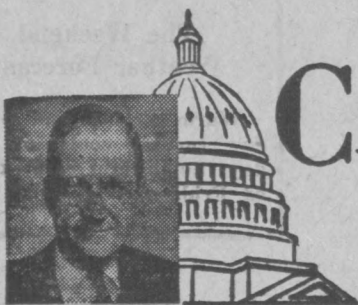

It was learned this week that a complete system of communications and public address will be established along the complete parade route and seating facilities will be available at a nominal charge at various points throughout the parade route. Tickets for these seats are now on sale at the Civil War Office, Francis Scott Key Hotel and are selling extremely well according to C. Lease Bussard, president of the local Civil War group.

More than 400 uniformed men representing 22 reactivated Civil War groups from far and wide will be on hand to insure the success of this undertaking. They come from as far North as New Hampshire, South from Alabama and West as far as Minnesota. Recent inquiries following newspaper announcement of the parade plans have indicated that many groups from Baltimore, Washington, Harrisburg and many other locations will participate.

Entry forms may be obtained at the Civil War Office at the Francis Scott Key Hotel or by phone if desired they be mailed. The official stand will be located in front of the Barbara Fritchie House and the judges' stand in front of City Hall, Frederick. For additional information contact the Civil War Office or Robert Dudrow, chairman. Phone MO 3-5361.

CAPITOL COMMENT

Charles "Mac" Mathies
Congressman, 6th District, Maryland

One of the most interesting phenomena of the legislative process in Congress, the institution known as the conference committee, entered into the affairs of our Sixth Congressional District of Maryland last week.

When the Senate and the House do not see eye to eye on certain features of legislative matters, the differences have to be resolved by a conference. The conference is composed of members appointed by the Senate and by the House, who get together and try to agree on a compromise that will satisfy a majority in each of the Houses of Congress.

During the past week a conference committee has dealt with appropriations for the Department of the Interior. I am very glad to be able to report that the Antietam Battlefield—certainly one of the most important Civil War sites in the entire country—will benefit again this year from funds which will be appropriated for the acquisition of more land and for the development of facilities at the battlefield site.

Earlier this year the sum of $1,400,000 had been requested for the purchase of Civil War lands at a number of sites. The House approved $400,000 for this purpose. The Senate was a little more generous than the House, but the conferees agreed to $400,000, the figure first set by the House. Fortunately, because the National Park Service has $600,000 remaining from previous appropriations, there is today over a million dollars available for the acquisition of Civil War battlefield sites. The encouraging thing for Maryland is that for the coming year the National Park Service will allocate the sum of $260,800 for the acquisition of lands at Antietam Battlefield.

In the report of the conference committee there is also encouragement and hope for those of us who travel the highways around the city of Washington. All commuters who travel daily from the Maryland suburbs into the District of Columbia will be glad to know that three million dollars has been provided for the salaries of employees of the National Capital Transportation Agency and for contracting work to be let by the Agency. As you know, the Agency is due to report to the Congress on the first of November of this year on its recommendations for plans and programs and its suggestions concerning rapid transit, highways and other means of transportation which will reduce the traffic clog which makes it difficult to get into and out of the city of Washington. The bill provides $100,000 to be matched equally by the state of Maryland to complete the acquisition of lands for the extension of the George Washington Memorial Parkway from the District of Columbia to the new Cabin John Bridge. Incidentally, the Cabin John Bridge will be opened some time during the latter part of 1962—another help for our travelers and commuters in the Washington Metropolitan Area.

A sum of money also has been appropriated and approved by the conference committee for the acquisition of the land for an extensive median strip for Interstate Route 95. We need this wide strip in the middle in order that there may be land available if it is ultimately decided to put a rapid transit system between the dual lines of traffic.

Finally, it is extremely encouraging that we obtain the approval of the conference committee for $150,000 for stabilizing the banks of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. The stabilization program will be limited to the area which would be above possible inundation should the Potomac River ever be dammed. This is an important step forward in preserving this national monument and I look forward to the day when this work will be incorporated into the canal property as part of a National Historical Park.

Hagerstown Gears For Anniversary

Hagerstown Maryland, soon to be a central point in the commemoration of the Civil War battle of Antietam, was already a hundred years old when that celebrated battle took place. Which means that the town will be having its two hundredth birthday at the same time as the Antietam affair.

For this reason, visitors drawn to the place by the battle's national fame, will also be able to see some local history that dates back to the 1760's. Altogether, this will be quite a history show.

The location of the town plays a determining part in it. Hagerstown is only a hundred miles west of Chesapeake Bay—less than a two hour drive now. But two hundred years ago that was the American frontier. It was, in fact, the American frontier in a highly active state. The French and Indian War was going strong.

The first house in what is now Hagerstown happened to be a rich man's home. It had the spacious plan of a mansion—and it was also unmistakably a fort. Its stone walls were immensely thick and its location was strategic—over two great springs of water, so that, if necessary, its inhabitants could stand a siege.

This was the Johnathan Hager House, 1739, now standing in the Hagerstown City Park, recently voted by a national judging body as the most beautiful city park in the United States. The building will be open to visitors throughout the Antietam commemoration—August 31-September 17.

Hagerstown, however, is not interesting only in the past tense. It has consistently been an exciting place.

Just as its city park (when it got around to having one) proved to be the best in the nation, so was its Mayor the first municipal official to use Telstar. This happened July 26, when His Honor, Mr. Winslow Burhans, talked to the Mayor of Wesel, Germany, Hagerstown's "sister city."

Similarly, Hagerstown was the first American community to use television in its public school system. Way back in 1902, it was the first to have a bookmobile. In fact, it had the first bookmobile in the world.

Further, with a population of about 40,000, it has what many large cities get along nicely without—a museum of the fine arts. This is a lively going concern, too, owning a handsome stone house and putting on shows that are vital and important.

Finally, there is that famous publication that for 165 years has been bringing Hagerstown's name into hundreds of thousands of homes—the one and only Hagerstown Town and Country Almanac. It tells the weather day by day a full year ahead and seldom misses.

The Bureau sends up balloons, science scours space with satellites—and these efforts still have not made anybody sure whether to take an umbrella or not. The Almanac, first published in 1797, goes blandly on. It has a circulation of 250,000 and its fans would not be without it.

Hagerstown indeed seems to be an answer to the well-worn complaint that all small American cities are alike. It is like nothing but itself.

Visitors wanting information about the Bicentennial should write to the Mansion House, Hagerstown, Md., or the Tourist Division, Maryland Department of Economic Development, State Office Building, Annapolis, Md.

100 YEARS AGO

LEE ADVANCES IN EAST,
KIRBY SMITH IN WEST

By Lon K. Savage

Gen. Robert E. Lee, commander of all confederate troops in Virginia, gazed through his glasses from atop Clark's Mountain near Gordonsville, Virginia, 100 years ago this week, watching the movement of federal forces to the north.

A hot August sun beat down. Beside him, Gen. James Longstreet looked through glasses, too, at the panorama that stretched before them.

It was August 18, and as the two officers watched, the flags of federal Gen. John Pope's army floated above the tree tops some 15 miles to the north, between the Rapidan river in the foreground and the Rappahannock River off in the distance.

Shifting their glasses, the two watched as the white tops of federal army wagons moved over the rolling terrain back toward the north and the Rappahannock. Little clouds of dust rose, marking the tramp of soldiers, and, as Longstreet described it later, "presently, (the clouds) began to swell into dense columns along the rearward lines . . . the clouds grew thinner and thinner as they approached the river and melted into the bright haze of the afternoon sun."

Then Lee put away his glasses, and with disappointment in his voice turned to Longstreet. "General," he said, "we little thought that the enemy would turn his back upon us this early in the campaign."

Pope Withdraws

To the north, between the Rapidan and Rappahannock, Pope, indeed, was turning his back on the Confederates and beating his way back across the Rappahannock. And although his withdrawal was a disappointment to Lee, it marked one of the great changes of that summer of 1862: Lee's change from a defensive warfare at Richmond to an offensive against the federals nearer Washington.

Lee had arrived in central Virginia from Richmond only a few days earlier and had been anxious to attack Pope at once. But before he could attack, Pope had learned of Lee's plans. An officer of Gen. "Jeb" Stuart's staff had been captured by Pope's men and on his person was found a message from Lee to Stuart outlining the Confederate plans.

In fact, Stuart, himself, had nearly been captured that very morning. Surprised at a farmhouse by a federal detachment, he jumped a fence and ran into a nearby woods to escape, leaving his famous plumed hat behind as a prize memento for the federals.

At any rate, Pope wheeled his army around and pulled back behind the Rappahannock to safer ground. As he did, Lee ordered his army to cross the Rapidan and prepare for an all-out attack.

Smith's Offensive

As Lee moved out against Pope in Virginia, Gen. E. Kirby Smith moved out from Knoxville, Tenn., to the north in another major Confederate offensive.

Smith headed for Cumberland Gap along the Kentucky-Virginia-Tennessee borders with 6,000 troops. Learning Cumberland Gap was heavily guarded by federals, he turned westward and slipped through Roger's Gap into Kentucky. On the 18th, the same day that Lee and Longstreet had watched Pope's army from the mountain top, Smith occupied the town of Barbourville.

A Confederate army again was on Kentucky soil.

Next week: Lincoln and Horace Greely.

BABSON

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Investing Today

BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 16—While on a recent vacation I have been relaxed and able to think at length about certain fundamentals of investing for safety and profits.

Study Depressed Securities

After years of intensive study and the spending of millions of dollars in statistical research, I have learned certain things: (1) It is impossible for any man or group of men to accurately forecast business conditions so as to justify the investing of all of one's money in any one way, or in any one class of security, or in any one company or industry; (2) investors who decide to buy even depressed issues should always distribute their funds over securities and be ready to undergo disappointment if some of them do not do well. Yes, many stocks at times are classified as "depressed," but eventually turn out to be valuable.

Emphasis should also be placed on the importance of the well-known axiom, "He profits most who serves best." It is possible to make large profits in connection with investments; but to be in a position to keep these profits without undue risk, the investor should have for his primary objective the rendering of service. This especially applies to the buying of "depressed" stocks even when few have the courage to do so. When money or effort is directed properly so that society and economic law will unite to reward the investor, he is on safe ground. When a man attempts to profit in any business without a desire to render commensurate service, he is a foolish gambler. In fact, this question of service forms the line of demarcation between investing and gambling.

My mind is now filled with several other thoughts. We are living in a new world. Authority and responsibility have been focused at Washington, while the whole world lives in the fear of a new, totally destructive war. Since 1931 all has been in the melting pot: currencies, credits, debts, exchanges, tariffs, taxes, banks, corporations, laws, liens, and licenses. Much of the world is ruled ruthlessly by self-appointed Communist party leaders. Familiar landmarks are gone. New administrations can only moderate or speed up the journey ahead. Whether these paths will lead to glory or to grief, no man now can say. There is but one certainty. The old ways have temporarily, at least, been laid upon the shelf.

The President can provide new heads but not new hearts. Furthermore, Newton's Law of Action and Reaction, the Theory of Relativity, and the Law of

When a man attempts to profit in any business without a desire to render commensurate service, he is a foolish gambler. In fact, this question of service forms the line of demarcation between investing and gambling.

Times Are Rapidly Changing

My mind is now filled with several other thoughts. We are living in a new world. Authority and responsibility have been focused at Washington, while the whole world lives in the fear of a new, totally destructive war. Since 1931 all has been in the melting pot: currencies, credits, debts, exchanges, tariffs, taxes, banks, corporations, laws, liens, and licenses. Much of the world is ruled ruthlessly by self-appointed Communist party leaders. Familiar landmarks are gone. New administrations can only moderate or speed up the journey ahead. Whether these paths will lead to glory or to grief, no man now can say. There is but one certainty. The old ways have temporarily, at least, been laid upon the shelf.

The President can provide new heads but not new hearts. Furthermore, Newton's Law of Action and Reaction, the Theory of Relativity, and the Law of Diversification will continue to influence economic phenomena. There cannot long be human dictatorship over fundamentals. Therefore, in the midst of radical ideas and reactions to them, hold fast to the old ideals—the ideals of service and reward, of patient probing for facts, of constant flexibility to changing conditions, of timely caution and courage.

Use Your Own Brains

Administrations can be changed; new legislation can be enacted; the Constitution can be amended; the map of the world can be altered; but the basic laws of economics will continue to rule. Now, investment opportunities may lie in some of the "depressed" securities. Having already declined from relatively high price levels, they should be less vulnerable to further marked declines, and I believe they offer the best opportunity to invest for safety, for profit, and perhaps for income.

But avoid new companies, especially if in the electronics field. Insist that a company have at least five years of earnings to compare. And—most important of all—use your own brains. Do not depend upon rumors or tips.

Art Festival

Scheduled

Plans have been announced for the First Annual Art Festival of South Mountain to be held at Burkittsville on September 13, 1962, in conjunction with the unveiling of the plans for the War Correspondents Memorial and Museum by the State of Maryland and representatives of the Press Association, according to C. Lease Bussard, Executive Vice President of the Antietam-South Mountain Civil War Association today.

The elaborate art display is being arranged by the Burkittsville Civic Committee in cooperation with the Gathland Day Committee, a special committee of the Antietam-South Mountain Association. Professional assistance will be rendered in setting up the displays by Mr. Jack Davis, Head Professor of Art at Hood College, along with others who have offered their services within the Washington - Frederick County areas.

Prizes will be offered, and displays will be accepted from persons in both Frederick and Washington Counties. A qualified group of judges will be announced at a later date. It will be the first large-scale art display to be held outdoors ever attempted in Frederick County. Plans are that it will continue each year as a commemoration to the beauty of the Gathland State Park area.

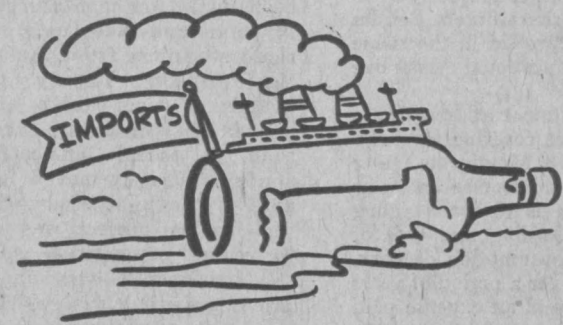

Whenever you read of a miracle, believe it if you must but don't invest any money in it.

The world is so filled with propaganda that people often doubt the most authentic information.

Highway Lifesaver

The head-on collision, deadliest of all automobile accidents, is being steadily eliminated on highways protected with tough steel median guard rails which separate traffic moving in opposite directions. The celebrated Pennsylvania Turnpike, shown above, has just passed the halfway point in a program to install median guard rails over its entire length. Not a single head-on collision fatality has occurred on another highway, the New Jersey Turnpike, busiest of the nation's toll roads, since it completed installation of a center divider down its entire 118-mile length in 1961. Many localities throughout the country are modernizing their roads by adding this safeguard.

LIFE WAS STILL WITHIN HER REACH

It was a peaceful Sunday morning in the couple's Glen Burnie home. Suddenly, the elderly woman clutched her heart and crumpled to the floor. Her invalid husband watched helplessly. He was unable to move.

Minutes later, the woman regained consciousness. Her one chance for help was the phone . . . 18 feet across the room. Inch by inch, she slid on her back across the floor. Futilely she tried to lift herself to the phone. Then, with one final burst of strength, she knocked the telephone table over. Slowly, she fingered the dial to find 0.

At that point, the Glen Burnie operator, Mrs. Joan Barker, took over. She contacted the woman's son, keeping the line open while he called the doctor. Then she connected the stricken woman with her daughter-in-law who reassured her help was on the way.

That week, we were pleased to receive the following letter from the woman's family. "If it hadn't been for your operator's help, our mother might not be living. We really appreciate the help Mrs. Barker gave. It's so good to know that the telephone company has real people with hearts!"

No 'Pig in a Poke' for 4-H'ers

Young 4-H swine raisers throughout the state gained quite a bit of new knowledge this past year while completing their projects supervised by local club leaders and their county extension workers. Besides going to regular 4-H Club meetings members enrolled in the swine program often have a chance to attend special educational events like the group pictured here.

Dr. L. N. Hazel, of the animal science department at Iowa State University, demonstrates the probing for hog fat covering for Iowa 4-H'ers Terry Hoy, 16, of Adel and Bob Smith, 18, Monticello. Other 4-H'ers are settling down to a demonstration and lecture on swine research. Ultimate goal of the swine program is to teach young farmers latest methods in scientific breeding, feeding and care of swine. They also learn about marketing and consumption of pork.

Members who have done an outstanding job over a period of years have an opportunity to win a $400 scholarship and an expense paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. In the county as many as four members are cited for honors and a 4-H medal. Sponsoring the swine program for the fifth straight year in cooperation with extension and National 4-H Service Committee is the Moorman Mfg. Co. of Quincy, Ill.

CONSERVATION

Fish Management On The Potomac
Recent studies by fishery personnel on the Potomac River in Washington and Frederick Counties reveal that fish traps took more than 35,000 pounds (17 tons) of fish in a 40-day trapping period.

Director Ernest A. Vaughn points out that the individual D-trap set during this period was only half as successful as an angler, requiring more than three hours to catch a fish. Incidentally, the traps were not baited and were made of poultry wire with iron frame in a D-shape with double funnels measuring 36"x24"x24". One hundred and ten such traps were placed in the area of Falling Waters, Sharpsburg, Point of Rocks and Dickerson, covering a total area of 513 acres and fishing 110,880 hours, or 4,620 days.

In an effort to improve small-mouth bass fishing in the river, a pilot project was set up by Biologist John E. Arve and assisted by Regional Fish Culturists William E. Harman and Robert W. Abraham. The fishery personnel trapped more than 12,000 channel catfish weighing 29,000 pounds, most of which were stocked in small lakes and ponds in the Piedmont area of Western Maryland.

Many successful fishing trips have been made to the State community ponds and lakes as a result of these stockings from the reclamation project. Twenty thousand pounds of blue catfish and 4,000 pounds of sunfish were taken. More than 68 pounds of catfish and sunfish were removed in each acre of the pilot study. The trap reclamation project was designed to reduce competitive species of the smallmouth bass and to improve growth rates. Officials regard this experiment as successful and expect to make further studies in the same area during November.

It is estimated by biologists that there are more than 200 pounds per acre of desirable and undesirable fish in the Potomac River of the Piedmont area. More than 75% of these fish should be removed according to authorities in order to provide good fishing.

Fishing Notes From Central Md.
By Bob Abraham, Fish Culturist
The Potomac River has been in excellent condition for any and all types of fishing. Warden Henry Hough reports that the Potomac in Montgomery County at Violets Lock, Swains Lock and Pennyfield Lock have been producing many fine smallmouth bass. Fishermen have been having best results with hellgrammites and minnows.

Regional Warden Guy Gearheart and Warden Ray Toms report that at the Brunswick and Point of Rocks area of the Potomac River fishermen have been catching many large bass on hellgrammites and floppy plugs. Wardens also saw a 10 pound channel catfish near the mouth of the Monocacy taken on a hellgrammite.

shots as a deer hunter's weapon... and it isn't too soon to start practicing with it. How many times have you sat on stand and watched a fat partridge or rabbit strut by, seemingly knowing you wouldn't blast off and spook every deer within miles. A sling shot would have put him in the pot. Mmmmmmm! Good eats! A good sling shot isn't expensive, is fairly easy to become accurate with (at close ranges) and will be good for your palate come fall. Oh, one other thing, how you handle the sling shot problem with Junior is your problem.

Cleanliness Is Next To Fishiness

It's true. Just let a little gasoline on your hands transfer to natural or artificial bait and you have to be in fish heaven to score. A small jar of soap powder allows a wash even in salt water after handling engine and keeps bait sweet.

Fish Finder

When fish are biting scary, try threading your line through the eye of a bell sinker. Leader eye or a stopper knots holds line in place for casting. But when a fish bites he can slowly pull out line until he turns to move away. Then strike!

ALL ABOUT BABIES...

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

By Alfred M. Salasin
National Association of Bedding Manufacturers

Baby's Nursery
Expecting a baby? Or, is there a new baby in the house already?
In either event, this column should be of interest.

Here are two check lists. The first is for those who are expecting a baby and would like to know the articles to buy for the nursery. The second consists of six pointers for baby's safety and comfort in the nursery, after the baby has arrived.

Furnishing The Nursery
Here is what you will need.
Basinet and crib, each with comfortable mattress, waterproof sheeting, mattress pads, linens and blankets. Chest of drawers for clothes, sheets, and carriage accessories. A large work surface, such as a table top or a top of a chest, with open shelves nearby.
Tub, folding canvas or plastic, washable rugs and a screen to cut off draft.

Also, blinds to darken the room, tray for toiletries, bottle warmer, cleansing tissue box, plastic jars and bottles, comfortable chair with low arms for mother, electric clock, a night light and thermometers for bath and for baby.

Safety And Comfort In The Nursery

Here are six pointers to help you assure baby's safety and comfort.

1. Be sure that paints and finishes on the crib and other furniture are non-toxic. Babies chew on anything.

2. Sides of the crib should lock securely so baby can't push them down.

3. Beware of pen spaces between the mattress and crib sides.
Fill these spaces with bumpers.

4. Check the safety straps on bath table and high chair.

5. Avoid the use of plastic cleaner-type bags for mattress covers.
These may cause suffocation.

6. Be sure that the mattress surrounding the sound sleep which all is smooth and firm eliminating any danger of sagging pockets which might block out air.

A word about baby's mattress.
Buy the best crib mattress you can afford. Baby's growing body needs a sleeping surface that offers proper support. In the early years of development, growing bodies need the support which a smooth, buoyant mattress affords.
It is important to the future posture of the child as it is to assuring the sound sleep which all youngsters need during the most important time of their life. Hand-me-down cribs often do for new additions to the family, but brand new bedding can't be duplicated.

Getting The Nation Moving

In his Yale speech President Kennedy did a good thing for the country by calling for further "dialog" about problems that beset the nation's economic life.
However, in laying down the ground rules that virtually prevent straightforward attacks upon the basis of our problems he has severely limited the usefulness of the debate that he recommends. Must we, for example, avoid searching for alternatives to deficit spending, on the grounds that debt is good for the nation, a theory some of his advisors are recommending?

Mr. Kennedy is taking action of various kinds. Overhauling depreciation allowances for faster federal tax write-offs will be appreciated by business, but this may or may not help shore-up the economy as a whole.
What it will mean in any event is a temporary reduction in federal tax revenues in the period to which it applies. It is not a windfall, nor is it equivalent to a tax cut for businesses and corporations. It seems to be a move in the right direction toward long overdue reform of our tax laws. But even this, whether or not it includes an actual tax cut, may prove to be no panacea for avoiding recessions.

Remedies Not Mentioned

It is currently being projected that President Kennedy will follow the advice of his counselors and bring about a general tax cut. No one can deny there would be some sort of a stimulus because of extra funds in private and corporate hands.
We need "seed money," but would it be used that way? It does not necessarily follow that $6 to $12 billions saved from taxes would head off a possible recession. If such savings could be achieved without government borrowing or deficits, the prospects might be more pleasing and more stimulating.

Where do the basics lie? It is granted that a tax cut plus tax reforms might stimulate the nation's economy. But would not the most direct approach be to find ways and means to relieve the people of the tremendous burden of federal spending, of deficits and debts that cheapen our money, and of general waste that pervades the "big government" operation? It is notable that the President's advisors and consultants rarely mention these possibilities.

A Pleasant Exception

It was therefore a welcome surprise when Defense Secretary McNamara announced that our defense costs could be slashed enough to save $3 billion over the next five years, without endangering the nation's safety.
This is indeed a move in the right direction. The Secretary is proposing to divert $900 million from the dollar drain overseas, by means of more careful defense spending. If the Department of Agriculture, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and all the others were economy-minded, it staggers the imagination what could be saved!

Whether the rather desperate remedy of a quick tax cut this year could further dampen business confidence is a question Mr.
Kennedy must study. Fears economic and fears political are the associated twin bugaboos that always haunt any White House occupant, but this question of tax cutting is more political than economic. Neither President Kennedy nor business itself can be too much blamed for the fact that there's less steam in the economy than both would like to see. The facts are that the cost of producing goods has risen so high that American goods are being priced out of the market, both at home and abroad. Wages, feather-bedding, high overhead, taxes, and depreciation schedules all contribute to this condition.

The Frontiers Remain

Even so, given the right kind of climate for operation of the enterprise system, American industry will forge ahead to produce all sorts of new goods and services. Real tax reform, including better depreciation schedules, could come easily if we cutback government spending.
This would do much to provide the conditions under which enterprise could flourish, providing more jobs and more goods for everyone. That, in fact, has been the whole American story so far, under freedom and God's providence.

Surely the American people must realize that our economy is being increasingly hobbled by oppressive tax burdens brought on by excessive government spending at home and abroad.
If Mr. Kennedy really wants to get the country moving, as he said he did in the campaign, he could start by working on next year's budget—downward. That would remove the need for a dangerous deficit-financed tax reduction. This kind of solution is basic, and it would provide the spark America enterprise needs in order to move ahead.

WAR EMERGENCY EFFECT ON FUELS — These headlines from Eastern Seaboard newspapers during World War II illustrate the effect of submarine sinkings upon the fuel supply in the East. This area is even more dependent on insecure foreign fuel today than it was then.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The United States is developing a short sighted domestic fuels policy that could be disastrous in time of national emergency, a coal industry spokesman contends. "This nation is becoming dangerously dependent upon imported residual oil, and in the event of a national emergency the coal industry would be hard put to immediately meet the nation's requirement for fuel," Joseph E. Moody, President of the National Coal Policy Conference, Inc., said.

"During World War II, schools, hospitals, court houses and many public buildings were closed and essential war production was hampered for lack of fuel. There was energy fuel rationing in the East. All of this was attributable, in major part, to submarine sinkings of tankers off our Eastern Seaboard. Yet the excessive volume of imports of foreign residual (waste) oil is making us even more dependent on insecure fuel sources today, while weakening our own coal industry which would have to fill the gap if such imports were cut off."

"We believe that the coal industry is at its minimum rate of production from which it could expand to meet a national emergency within a short period of time. There is a need for us to be able to intelligently develop the coal resources of this nation not only for current use but to plan for the future needs of the country," Mr. Moody points out.

Mr. Moody pointed out that both the coal and domestic oil producing industries have asked the Congress to include a reasonable limit to residual and crude oil imports as a part of the Trade Expansion Act it is considering.

"Such an amendment is crucial to the coal industry and to the national security," he declared.

eyes and a mass of golden curls — I laughingly taunted him that she was his favorite.

"No," he replied. "I love them all alike, but she shows her love for me more than do the others." I feel sure that our Lord loved all His disciples equally, including Judas. Yet it is said of John that he was "the disciple whom Jesus loved." I wonder if it was because John showed his love to his Master more than the others did.

God loves us all equally, whatever the color of our skin, whether we are sinners or saints. But I think it makes a difference in our relation to Him when we love Him and show our love.

Prayer

O Lord, Thou who dost love impartially because Thou art divine, we are grateful for Thy love for us. Help us to increase our love for Thee that we may not falter or fail in following in the Master's footsteps. In His name. Amen.

Many Malformed Births Expected

By Cong. Daniel Brewster (D-Md.)

Medical authorities estimate that the wide use of the drug thalidomide in Europe will result in the birth of from 3,500 to 5,000 cruelly malformed babies. This tragic statistic brings into sharp focus a pressing problem in this country. We urgently need to tighten up our laws which regulate the distribution of drugs.

We have been spared a similar epidemic of birth abnormalities here because a dedicated civil servant, Dr. Frances Kelsey of the Food and Drug Administration refused to be bulldozed into approving an application to market thalidomide throughout the United States.

Quite often these days we hear complaints about "too much government interference with and regulation of business." I am sure the untold thousands of American mothers who have been saved from the anguish of giving birth to a deformed child are thankful that the government "interfered" in this case.

During her successful fight to keep this drug off the market, Dr. Kelsey was subjected to tremendous pressures from industry sources. She was referred to as a "stubborn bureaucrat," as "unreasonable and irresponsible." A trade journal editorially criticized the Food and Drug Administration for "dilatory tactics which certainly cause a loss to the industry of millions of dollars."

Despite this pressure, Dr. Kelsey and the Food and Drug Administration persisted in their demands for more factual information on the drug. Finally she and the Food and Drug Administration were vindicated when a report from West Germany confirmed the harmful effects of the drug. On August 7th, President Kennedy, on behalf of a grateful people, presented Dr. Kelsey with a gold medal award "for distinguished civilian service."

This near tragic incident and the results of an intensive study of drug industry methods and procedures by Senator Kefauver's

Senate Subcommittee clearly pointed up the need for more effective consumer protection.

The Senate is now considering a bill which would provide most of the necessary safeguards. While the language of the bill is highly technical, it embodies the concept of consumer protection which President Kennedy outlined in his message to Congress last week, namely:

"The physician and consumer should have the assurance, from an impartial scientific source, that any drug or therapeutic device on the market today is safe and effective for its intended use; that it has the strength and quality represented and that the accompanying promotional material tells the full story—its bad effects as well as its good. They should be able to identify the drug by a simple, common name in order to avoid confusion and to enable the purchaser to buy the quality drugs he actually needs at the lowest competitive price."

I predict that this long overdue revision of our Federal Drug laws will be overwhelmingly approved by both the House and the Senate.

Horse Disease

Becoming Problem

With the great increase in the number of ponies in Maryland during the past several years, laminitis or "founder" has become a most serious problem, according to a report of the Maryland State

Veterinary Medical Association. Laminitis is an inflammation of the sensitive lamina of the feet which may cause hoof deformity. The causes include riding on a hard-surfaced road at a fast pace; drinking of cold water by an overheated animal; eating of excessive amounts of grain; overheating an unconditioned animal and toxemias as a sequel to pneumonia or foaling.

YOU and your DOG

SUMMERTIME IS FLEA TIME
It's the good old summertime, when children play, adults relax, birds sing... and dogs SCRAATCH!

Hot weather can mean misery to a dog unless his best friend — his master — comes to his aid with an unconditional war on fleas.

According to Sergeant's Dog Care Center, fleas really thrive in the "dog days" — the hot and sultry time from July through September.

Favorite hiding places on a dog are under the legs, around the root of the tail, in and around the ears, and along the neck. Also, Sergeant's indicates, many types of dogs can be host to scores of fleas without scratching or otherwise indicating their presence.

The modern way to combat them at home is with flea and tick spray available at almost every drugstore.

It's very important to spray around the dog's bedding and around floor, baseboards and furniture where he spends most of his time. This is a clean and effective way to prevent colonies of fleas from setting up housekeeping where they can re-infect the dog or cause discomfort to other members of the family.

Army National Guard's Mobilization Termed 'Most Successful' in History

WASHINGTON—Now that the period of the "Berlin Mobilization" is coming to an end—now that the active services have had time to increase their striking power and the immediate need for the reserve forces is over—many people are asking: "How effective were these National Guardsmen and Reservists, anyway? How long did it take them to become truly combat-ready?"

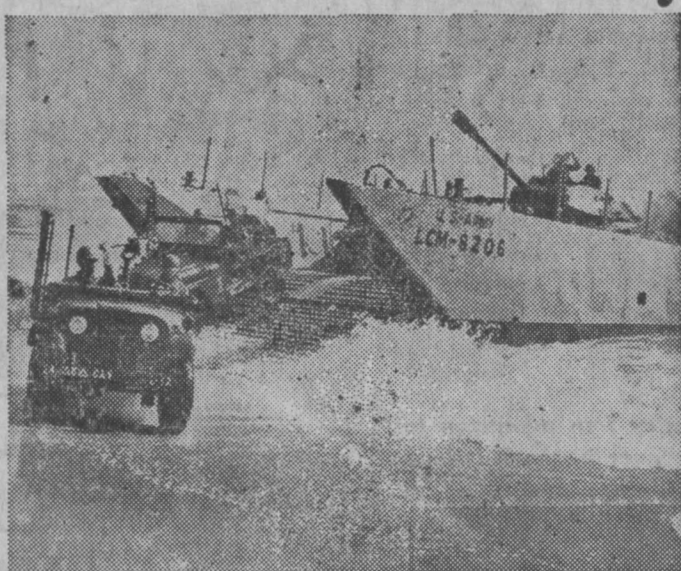

The answer from one high Pentagon source: "This was the most successful mobilization in the history of the United States." Thus states Major General Donald W. McGowan, Chief of the National Guard Bureau.

General McGowan is a man who ought to know. He has spent a lifetime in the National Guard and has been through three mobilizations himself. His accomplishments include leading an armored cavalry regiment through the Normandy invasion, commanding a Guard combat division, and guiding the entire 470,000-man Army and Air National Guard through the most crucial—and fruitful—years of its existence.

"To see how well the Guard did in this mobilization," General McGowan said recently, "you have only to look at the record of the two divisions that were called to active duty: the 32nd Infantry Division of Wisconsin and the 49th Armored Division of Texas."

Here are the facts that bear out General McGowan's claim. Back in 1955, both the 32nd and the 49th were among six National Guard divisions selected for a new high-priority status by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, then Army Chief of Staff. General Taylor called this his "Six-by-Six" plan because he required these six divisions to be combat-ready within six months after they were mobilized. All but forgotten by the general public, the plan is significant now by the contrast that it offers to the events of the past ten months.

Instead of taking six months, the 32nd and 49th were declared completely combat-ready in four months—and this included the two weeks it took them to get to camp and two weeks to leave at Christmas time. If the world situation had required it, they could have made it in three months.

HIT THE BEACH!—Jeeps and tanks of the mobilized 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment of the West Virginia National Guard roar down the ramp of a landing craft at Ft. Miles on the Delaware coast. The swiftness with which the 150th became combat-ready last winter earned it a place in the Army's elite Strategic Army Corps (STRAC).

It was a grueling experience, not soon to be forgotten by the members of these units.

At Fort Polk, Louisiana, the 49th Armored was challenged in the dust and mud with rugged combat exercises requiring its tanks and men to maneuver and fire exactly as they would on the battlefield. At Fort Lewis, Washington, the 32nd was challenged in the tall pines and in the mountains, day and night, against a tough, clever aggressor who turned a routine tactical exercise into an infantryman's nightmare.

But all this seemed worthwhile when, immediately after being declared combat-ready, both divisions were assigned to the Army's Strategic Army Corps (STRAC), the first National Guard units ever to be assigned to this elite fighting force.

So impressive was the Guard's performance, in fact, that General James Van Fleet reported: "The quality of these units is far above any previous mobilization that took place in World War II or Korea."

Are there any specific reasons for such a marked improvement in our citizen-soldiers?

"Yes," says Gen. McGowan, "and the primary one is the six months training program which provides active duty basic training for every non-prior service man we enlist. This has raised National Guard training to the unit level across the board.

"Then, too, we avoided our mistake of both world wars of reorganizing Guard units after they were called up. In 1959 we converted the entire Army Guard to the new Pentomic structure and when the Berlin crisis came upon us, we were able to provide the Army with the type of units it really needed. All they had to do was finish their training."

"And finally, this was the first mobilization in modern history in which we were able to preserve the integrity of our units. In Korea, you will remember, many of our key officers and NCOs were pulled out of their units to beef up overseas-bound active Army units. This helped the Army but it sure weakened our Guard units."

These are the facts of the Berlin Mobilization. But they do not tell the whole story. It remained for Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington to put the overall effect into words.

"This is the first time," he said, "that a President has been able to use the military power represented by our reserve program to achieve a foreign policy objective."

State Fair

Opens August 27

The Maryland State Fair, an eleven day long exposition held in Baltimore County, will open Monday, August 27 at 10 a.m.

The largest Agricultural Fair in the State, it will feature Farm Queens from twenty-three counties, young farmers with the zest for the rustic, livestock exhibitions and demonstrations of life on the farm and in the rural homes.

To highlight the opening day's activities, a Queen will be selected on August 27 and the winner will reign during the days of the Fair. She will receive a four year scholarship to the University of Maryland, provided, of course, that she desires to enter the University and can meet the minimum requirements.

The crowning of the Queen and the four runners-up will take place on Sunday, September 2.

At the Exhibition Hall, which will be open from 10 a.m. in the morning until 10 p.m. in the evening, every day of the Fair, demonstrations will be featured such as quilting, soap making, baking, painting, saddle making and the skills of many artists and craftsmen.

A varied and interesting schedule of events is planned for the entire period of the Fair. Monday, August 27th, will feature Baltimore County Day and the selection of the Farm Queen. Tuesday, August 28th, Kiddies Day — half price until 5 o'clock. At eight o'clock in the evening, the visitors to the Fair can enjoy an excellent exhibition of Square Dancing by a group of professionals. Wednesday, and Thursday, will GOING through some women's magazines with me, a friend of mine was entranced by a two-page color photo of a living room. "Ah, these people with their wonderful imaginations!" she sighed. "I wish I could afford a course in interior decoration."

My mouth fell open. There she sat, surrounded by the most beautiful ideas on color and decoration in the world, and she didn't realize that there was her course in decoration—free!

As a matter of fact, many homemakers don't know how to get the most in decorating ideas from the wondrous color photos they see. It requires a little study of the components of a lovely room, not a mere glance at the total effect.

Since color is the most important and the most controllable element, you can learn how to use it effectively by studying the way it occurs in five locations: walls, ceilings, floor coverings, furnishings, and accessories.

Take deliberate notice of the main colors, secondary colors, and accents. Try to find within the room the source of the color scheme. Look for repetition of identical colors. For example, is the color of an important picture a large vase, or a striking fabric used to keynote the room. Look for the central theme, for once you have learned how those with "imagination" get their ideas, you can do the same.

The story is told of a grande dame of decoration who was invited for lunch by a grande dame of society. As she entered the room she remarked: "Your maid forgot the daffodils."

The hostess' eye darted to a mahogany Empire stand located between two north windows draped in soft, filmy yellow. The stand was bare. With a laugh she rang for the maid, who brought in the daily bouquet of flowers which were, in fact, the basis for the entire color scheme.

Like the decorator in the story, you can, with practice, develop an analytical color eye, if you learn to look for the individual colors in a room. Before long, you may become quick enough to analyze and catalog colors — perhaps even steal them from some of the superb movie sets you often see.

Good, conscientious paint dealers these days are purveyors of color and often have literature you can use for color scheme ideas.

One of the best booklets on the subject is Du Pont's "Home Painting and Color Guide." A free copy may be obtained from a Du Pont paint dealer, or by writing Dept. AP-621, Du Pont Company, Wilmington 98, Del.

YOUR Social Security

We Americans are noted for our caution and for the eye we keep on the future. We provide for our retirement and for our families in case of our death or disability through company pension plans, insurance, savings, investments, and in other ways. One of the most valuable protections we have is our social security. Therefore, it is important that we do our part to insure the accuracy of our social security accounts or the accounts of the people who work for us.

One of the most important ways in which you can do this is by taking care to give your correct social security number at all times. You may feel that your name is uncommon and that it will always provide sufficient identification. But chances are your name is more common than you think.

For example, of the 924,000 Browns in the social security files, more than 11,862 are named Charlie Brown. So it is absolutely essential that the earnings of each of these Charlie Browns be reported under his own social security number. And that can be assured if each employee is careful to show his employer his social security card when he reports for work, and make sure that the number is copied correctly.

Then when his earnings are reported for social security credit, they will be entered on the social security account which is being kept for him under that number. The benefits payable to him or to his family in the future will be based on the average earnings in that account.

It's a very good idea for every worker to check on his social security once every three years. He can do this by sending in a pre-addressed post card available at any one of the 600 social security district offices. He will receive in the mail a statement of his social security account, showing the earnings that have been reported for him. If he finds any discrepancies or inaccuracies in this statement, he should take the statement and any personal records he may have to his social security office.

Employers should keep a complete, accurate record on their employees and should report their wages to assure them continuous protection under social security.

The social security office in Hagerstown will be glad to answer any of your questions.

Merchants Plan Window Decorations

Plans are now being formulated to include one of the largest window display programs ever attempted in Frederick in the forthcoming Civil War Commemoration activities, according to Dr. Clifford Maloney, chairman of the Window Display Committee.

The program and exhibits was announced this week by C. Lease Bussard, President of the Frederick County Civil War Centennial Association, and Executive Vice-President of the Antietam-South Mountain Civil War Centennial Association. In making the announcement, Mr. Bussard stated, "We have had an excellent Committee in operation headed by Dr. Maloney and assisted by Ernie Berger, local Civil War enthusiast and local historian." "The merchants throughout the Frederick area have been extremely helpful and cooperative in this giant venture, and I am sure that these efforts will bring much information, enjoyment and entertainment to the people of Frederick County as well as to those thousands that will visit the area as our guests. It is indeed gratifying to learn of the tremendous interest that has been expressed in this project through our schools and through our youth organizations."

According to the chairman, it is hoped that all displays can be made about the same time, which has been established as the week of Sept. 10-17, since this week will coincide with Frederick Day on the 12th, and the final week of the Commemoration highlighting the Reenactment of the Battle of Antietam when more than 300,000 persons will visit the area. Prizes will be awarded and the windows will be judged by a qualified group of judges furnished by the Arts Council for Frederick County, a Division of the Chamber of Commerce. Certificates will also be awarded to the School, group, or individual responsible for each window.

Bursitis Quite Painful

Sometimes it's "household knee." Or "policeman's heel." By any other name it's still bursitis and it is one of mankind's more painful and disabling ailments.

Bursitis means inflammation of a lubricating sac about a joint. The sac, called a bursa, is sort of like a collapsed balloon with some fluid inside. It is located at various places in the body where joints or tissues touch and rub, and without cushioning there would be friction.

Bursitis can hit at many points in the body, but most often occurs in the shoulder, elbow or knee, says a recent publication of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

In almost every case bursitis follows unaccustomed strain or overuse of an extremity. By taking a little time to work up to your physical condition, and especially by working up the muscles that you plan to use in any repetitious motion outside your normal activity (strengthening your wrist and arm before you start painting your house, for instance), you can probably keep clear of this common and painful disease.

If you get bursitis no one need urge that you see a doctor. The pain is so acute that you will be the first to seek relief.

In recent years science has learned much more about bursitis and there is much your doctor can do to relieve the pain and promote healing. One of the mainstays in treatment is aspirin. The newer cortisone-type drugs have been used with some success and heat treatments and x-ray also have their place in bursitis therapy. In extreme cases surgery may be required. A treatment long used in this painful ailment is complete rest in bed. Anything that will lessen the chance of the afflicted joint being moved will ease the pain and speed healing.

Like any other bearings, your bursae stay trouble-free much longer if you warm them up slowly and let them get fully lubricated before you race your motor.

Oceans May Provide Huge Power Source

An answer to the world's fuel problems may lie in the five oceans according to Princeton University scientists. There is enough deuterium (heavy hydrogen) in the water, they say, to supply the world with power for millions of years, adding that the deuterium contained in one gallon of sea water can produce more energy than hundreds of gallons of gasoline! "But tremendous technical difficulties" must be overcome before this immense power source can be tapped.

'Lemonade' drunk every morning by backward youngsters at a school in Brighton, England may be giving them a chance for a normal life. It is the first large-scale test of a drug called dimethylaminoethanol which is mixed in the pleasant-tasting drink. (In America, where it is known as "deaner," doctors claim the drug makes children more relaxed and happier.) The British test, several months under way, has given encouraging results so far. . . . A new moon map, at a scale of 1 to 1 million, has been issued by the Department of the Interior "to aid moon exploration."

Sugar is extracted from cane by osmosis in a new process which the developer, Chemetron Corporation, says can make conventional mills obsolete. Instead of the usual crushing, the cane is cut into strips and treated in a vertical tower to extract the sugar. Advantages claimed include greater yield and purer end product. . . . Water lost from reservoirs in the 17 western states by evaporation and consumption by trees and plants is twice the amount used for public supplies in the entire country.

Scrapers and other human tools 30,000 years old have been discovered next to the bones of a mastodon in a Mexican excavation by Harvard archeologist Cynthia Irwin. She says it is the first definite association between the extinct animal and man. . . . A blood flow meter the size of a building brick has been developed by Dr. Alfred W. Richardson of St. Louis University School of Medicine. The transistorized unit, only one-thirtieth the size of previous models, measures blood flow as it is pumped through the heart-lung machine during open heart surgery.

A billion million possible combinations of answers are mullied over by an electronic computer put to work by a London firm on a problem new to the electronic data processing field—telling women what make-up they should use. The woman fills out a 51-question form which is fed into the "beauty brain." The machine's analysis dictates the proper cosmetics in each case.

Insurance Conversion For W. W. I Vets

Mr. F. E. Quinn, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Baltimore, said World War I veterans 65 or older holding USGLI term insurance policies may now convert to a lower-cost form of insurance as the result of a bill signed into law by President Kennedy July 25.

The new plan of insurance, called "Special Endowment at Age 96," primarily provides death protection only, Mr. Quinn said.

The premium, which remains level through the life of the policy, is lower than the premium for the term policy which is being exchanged.

Mr. Quinn warned that not all holders of USGLI term policies should make the change. Those disabled should keep their original term policies which provide a monthly income in the event of total permanent disability while at the same time waiving the insurance premium.

At the time of exchange a provision for premium waiver in case of total permanent disability may be added to the new policy at an extra premium.

It will not be necessary for World War I term policy-holders to write or telephone the Veterans Administration regarding the new plan of insurance, according to Mr. Quinn.

The VA will notify all eligible policyholders and will send them full information concerning conversion of present policies.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

Your Emotional Digestive System

Was it something you ate or someone you hate? The finest meal, eaten in bitterness, will upset your digestion.

When you get emotionally upset, any part of your digestive tract can get upset too. This state of affair can bring on nausea, vomiting, pain, diarrhea . . . you name it, you can get it. Continued tension and upset can help cause ulcers, constipation, spastic colon, colitis. Some people, without organic disease, are never free from some abdominal distress. That's because they're upset practically all the time.

Anger, fear, and other unpleasant feelings interfere with the flow of digestive juices and the rich blood supply the stomach needs for good digestion. So if you have had a shock or a severe disappointment, if you're fearful or angry, postpone your meal for a couple of hours. Wait until your uncomfortable emotions die down.

The dinner table is not the place for criticism, nagging or sharp arguments. Don't use mealtimes to relate all the frustrations and complaints of the day. Try not to think about them while you're eating. Don't pick on the kids at mealtimes, even if they don't eat up all their vegetables. They're better off enjoying a relaxer meal, and you'll feel better, too, if you don't argue with them while you're eating.

If you have frequent digestive discomfort, don't decide for yourself that the cause is purely emotional. Constant digestive trouble calls for a visit to your doctor. Whatever the basic cause of your indigestion, the doctor is in the best position to help you.

You have a perfect right to your opinion—provided it agrees with mine.
