The owner of a local store was pleasantly surprised last Friday when suddenly it was discovered that he had been visited by two distinguished guests . . . and customers. The happy little incident occurred at Crouse's Store and the visitors were none other than Carolyn 4, and John F. Jr. 2, daughter and son of President Kennedy. The children were on a ride with Secret Service men and their nurse and decided to stop for ice cream cones. Naturally they enjoyed them, the same as any other children. We have a sneaking suspicion we'll be seeing the children's famous parents one of these Sundays, possibly at Mother Seton's Shrine and the Mount Grotto.

For those of you who have been wondering about the why and whereabouts of new Route 15 by-pass of Emmitsburg, I have the latest information available. I took the liberty of writing recently to our Congressman, Charles Mc. Mathias, concerning the delay of completing this by-pass. "Mac" this week informed me that he had elicited information from the State Roads Commission, that according to its schedule, this route or by-pass, is scheduled for the advertising of bids this October and that completion is expected by the summer of 1965. This my good friends is exactly two years from now before you will be riding over that new road and the dead end at Toll Gate Hill will be us for another two years . . . that is if the Commission sticks to its present schedule. Thanks for the info "Mac."

Catholic parents in Missouri are embittered by the recent action of their State Legislature in turning down their request for bus transportation to parochial schools there. All they asked for was a paltry sum for this transportation. Incensed by the refusal hundreds of parents in Jefferson City have entered their children in public schools and there is turmoil and turbulence aplenty. In addition to this action, this fall Catholic parents in St. Louis plan to close their parochial schools and enroll in the public institutions. It will be simply impossible to accommodate all children in that state for many years. Some will be denied educations because, if additional schools are to be built, it would break the back of taxpayers there. It is estimated there are 50,000,000 Catholics in this country alone. If this thing should become generalized where in the world would the State Legislatures ever find enough money to build new schools to accommodate at least another 50,000,000 children, assuming that each family has one child? Bus transportation comes cheap compared to these figures.

The town is rapidly taking on a new clean look as many property owners are tidying up their properties and laying new sidewalks. The Town has been busy with workmen all week cleaning up the streets and the new look is a rewarding one to say the least.

Dam Would Make Town Resort Area

In just a few short years it is expected that Emmitsburg will be a major resort area fronting on an 8,500-acre lake eight years from now—if the report of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers for development of the Potomac River Basin is adopted in its entirety.

The final report of the Corps of Engineers, filling nine volumes, and concluding seven years of research and hearings, is ready to be sent to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors in Washington, the Corps of Engineers has announced. That board will study the proposal for several months, then either return it to the Corps of Engineers' Baltimore office for revision or, if the board approves, it will go to the governors of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia and to all federal agencies involved for study. Eventually the report goes to the secretary of the Army, from him through the Bureau of the Budget to Congress and then to the Senate Public Works Committee.

The final report of the Corps of Engineers for the $500,000,000 project designed to provide sufficient water for the Potomac River Basin, through 2010 differs little from the preliminary reports on which public hearings have been held for the last two years.

Members of the Art Dept., under the supervision of Arthur D. Gernand, have prepared appropriate scenery for the visit to Musicland and the Choral Groups, under the direction of Miss Mildred B. Trevett, will present musical styles from the period of the earliest preserved form of vocal music until the present.

The public is cordially invited to attend the performance and tickets may be purchased at the door both evenings.

Mount Parents' Day Draws Well

Over 2,000 persons gathered on Sunday at Mount St. Mary's College to participate in the tenth annual Parents' Day this year honoring Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton.

The day's program began with the celebration of the Mass at the college Grotto which is the oldest replica of Lourdes in the United States and has been designated as a national shrine by the Catholic Church.

Rt. Rev. George D. Mulcahy, rector of Mt. St. Mary's Seminary, delivered the sermon on Mother Seton and her association with the Mount. Monsignor described for the audience the beatification ceremonies of Mother Seton held early this spring in Rome. He further declared that in 1858 the preacher at a similar Grotto Mass had prophesied the events that are now taking place. He said that at that time it was stated that pilgrimages would come from all points of the world to pray at the Grotto Shrine. He concluded by stating that the "early apostles of the American Church" had referred to this shrine as a holy spot. He referred to such names as Bishop DuBois, Brute, Hughes and the first American Cardinal, John McCloskey, as well as Bishop James Walsh who is currently a prisoner in a Chinese Communist cell.

The Grotto program ended with a laying of a wreath on the site of Mother Seton's first house in Emmitsburg, by Sister Rosemary Pfaff, president of St. Joseph College, which was founded by Mother Seton in 1809.

Following the Grotto services a brunch was served in the Cogan Union Bldg. to the students, parents and guests totalling over 2,000. Departmental and student exhibits were also on display in the meeting rooms of the Union. The day concluded with an informal reception given by the college president, Rt. Rev. Robert R. Kline, and other members of the faculty.

Inserted for the first time are completion dates for the various phases of the project.

Construction of the Six Bridge dam on the Monocacy River is scheduled for completion by 1971. The Six Bridge dam, a few miles below Emmitsburg, would, according to the calculations back up waters into Emmitsburg—putting a part of the town under water and in effect turning the rest of the town into a beach area.

According to the estimates the Six Bridge dam would back up into Marsh Creek into Adams County to about Natural Dam. The YMCA is preparing Camp Waybright along Marsh Creek anticipating that the flood waters will fill in low lying areas there, leaving the camp on high ground with a vastly improved stream for swimming and boating.

The project calls for construction of 16 major reservoirs and 418 headwater reservoirs in the four state and District of Columbia involved in the "basin."

Twenty-nine headwater reservoirs proposed have already been built by the Department of Agriculture and 41 flood control and seven multipurpose structures are already planned, and ready for construction. Under the timing of the proposed plan 50 headwater projects will be completed by 1965, 336 more by 1985 and 32 by 2010.

TWO MEN INVOLVED IN RAPING

Two Adams County, Pa., men are in the Frederick County jail, charged with rape and assault and battery on a 16-year-old Emmitsburg girl late last Wednesday night near a reservoir in a wooded area off the Hampton Valley Road west of Emmitsburg.

Clarence William Stouter, 27, Orrtanna R1, and Donald Lloyd Speelman, 26, Biglerville R2, were arrested late Friday afternoon by state police from the Gettysburg barracks and were released to Maryland police Friday night. They were identified by the girl who was raped by each man and beaten about the head and body before she was able to escape from the car in which she was held captive for several hours. She suffered lacerations and cuts about the legs in her escape through heavy brush and woods where she hid until morning before making her way back to her home near Emmitsburg.

Stouter, who is married and the father of three children, was arrested by Sgt. David James, of the Gettysburg station, Friday afternoon at the Gettysburg Shoe Company where he was employed. Speelman was arrested at the home of an aunt, Biglerville R2, where he lives. He is unemployed and single.

The two had gone to the girl's home about 10 o'clock Friday night where they talked with acquaintances who resided nearby, who knew Stouter as "William Hess" and Speelman as "Donald Chapman." However, the girl overheard Speelman call Stouter by his correct name, enabling police to trace him to the Orrtanna area. They were traveling in Speelman's car which a black 1951 model Ford.

The two men invited the girl to go for a ride with them and suggested they pick up a girl friend. However, when they arrived at the other girl's house the men continued driving toward the reservoir area where they parked in the woods and began molesting the girl. When she protested they threatened her with a gun, although she told police she did not see the weapon. They choked her and beat her with their fists about the head and body and forced her into submission. The men took turns holding her while the other assaulted her. She was able to escape from the front seat of the car about 1 a. m. while the men debated if they should attack her again.

Police found several articles of the girl's clothing in Speelman's car and found her right shoe under the cupboard in his aunt's kitchen. He had her coat and underwear still in his automobile. Police said that he had agreed to get rid of the clothes "but had not had an opportunity to do so" before he was arrested.

A preliminary hearing was held Saturday before Magistrate Richard J. McCullough, Emmitsburg, and the men are being held in Frederick County jail under $10,000 bail. Each is charged with rape and assault and battery for appearance before the grand jury in September, pending their request for an earlier trial.

The case was investigated by Tfc. William F. Davis and Tfc. William Newcomer, of the Maryland State Police.

Commissioner Flax reported that workmen were presently clearing a path through mountainous terrain preliminary to having an engineering survey made and to determine the condition of existing water lines. Many breaks in the line have been discovered and a number of sections of the main line were found to be exposed on the top of the ground. These will all have to be replaced and possibly rerouted to give a sufficient supply and ample pressure to the town's water consumers and colleges.

Commissioner Flax reported that quite a number of property owners were having sidewalks repaired and new water pipe connections installed. Those individuals seeking detailed information as to grades and dimensions of sidewalks are asked to contact the Street Commissioner as soon as possible.

Man About Baltimore

By H. George Hahn

In yesterday's paper we noticed a disconcerting item: Huck Finn has been suspended from school.

It seems that his language was incorrigible, his drawl annoying, and his social views unacceptable. His bare feet and fishing pole were distracting, his britches patched, his face muddled, his pipe disturbing, and his straw hat tattered.

Yes, the learned educators of Philadelphia's school system have seen fit to suspend Huck. Even though the last book they've read was Silas Marner some thirty-five years ago.

These minds have taken it upon themselves to Bowdlerize and blue-pencil Mark Twain's masterpiece. Huckleberry Finn is an account of a boy's life and a commentary on American living. Huck isn't a truant, but a real boy, and he lives a real boy's life. And that life is centered about the true hero of the book, the Mississippi River. The river gives the book life; just as that slow-moving, and muddy giant bows past steep and shady Hannibal, it breathes life and purpose into Huck's every action. But Huck's lift is Sam Clemens' life, too. Yank the dialect and color from Huck's speech and remove a part of his life. The book is a landmark in the use of a real American dialect in literature.

It is a judgment of society. Twain looks at the South through a boy's eyes and supplies a boy's reaction. He presents real life in the South, not the romantic julep-sipping, leisurely-living atmosphere of a Scarlett O'Hara. Yet Twain's Huckleberry Finn is not completely devoid of romance; it is flavored with it. It is a nostalgic remembrance of bygone days, filled with the wide-eyed adventures of a boy, adventures which years later are remembered pleasantly, yet vaguely; Twain makes these adventures vivid.

But Huck wasn't expelled from Philadelphia's schools, only suspended. He'll be back. But it won't be the Huck we remember. Now his hair will be combed; he'll discard his fishing pole and straw hat, he'll wear shoes, and won't smoke a pipe, he won't curse. Finally he'll take elocution lessons and hand-in-hand will skip off singing happily with Jim the slave.

Congratulations Philadelphia; he's all yours.

Nuns Awarded Honorary Degrees

Mother Superiors of five houses of the American Sisters of Charity in the U. S. and Canada and the Provincial Superiors of two Motherhouses of the Daughters of Charity in this country, made history at Niagara University, New York, Wednesday.

The Nuns became the first sisters in the 106-year history of the university to be awarded honorary degrees. The awards were conferred at a "Solemn Academic Convocation" honoring the Beatification of Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton, the first U. S. native to be Beatified. Mother Seton founded the American Sisters of Charity in 1809 at Emmitsburg, Md.

Sisters of Charity who were honored at the exercise included Mother M. Claudia, of St. Joseph's Motherhouse, Seton Hill, Greensburg, Pa.; Mother Joanna Marie of the Motherhouse of the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth at Convent Station, N. J.; Mother Maria Gertrude, Mother General of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, Rockingham Station, Halifax, Nova Scotia; Mother Mary Omer of the Motherhouse and Novitiate of the Sisters of Charity, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mother Loretto Bernard, Mother General at Mount St. Vincent-on-Hudson, New York City.

Daughters of Charity who received honorary degrees were: Sister Mary Rose McPhee, Sister Visitatrix of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, Marillac Seminary, Normandy, Missouri and Sister Eleanor McNabb, Sister Visitatrix at Saint Joseph's Central House, Emmitsburg, Md. All received honorary Doctor of Humane Letters Degrees with the exception of Mother Loretto Bernard, who was the recipient of an honorary Doctor of Pedagogy degree.

Also receiving honorary doctorate degrees were His Eminence, Archbishop of New York, the highest ranking prelate of the Roman Catholic Church in the Archdiocese in which Mother Seton resided and performed many of her outstanding labors and the Very Rev. James A. Fischer, C.M.V., provincial of the Western Province of the Vincentian Fathers, St. Louis, Missouri. Cardinal Spellman received an honorary doctorate in fine arts and Father Fischer was the recipient of an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Cardinal Spellman also was named an affiliate of the Congregation of the Mission at the exercises. The latter honor is the highest honor the Vincentian Fathers may bestow upon one not a member of the Vincentian Community.

The Vincentian Fathers at Niagara University are honoring the nine degree recipients in recognition of their close association with the cause and works of Mother Seton. The American Sisters of Charity in rule and spirit are very close to the Daughters of Charity, co-founded by St. Vincent de Paul and St. Louise Fives, Executive Secretary of the Mount St. Mary's Alumni Association and chairman of the Athletic Council, has announced the formation of the Mount Saint Mary's Spike Shoe Club on the college campus at Emmitsburg. This organization is designed primarily to promote the sport of track and field and to encourage a lasting camaraderie among Mount collegians participating in the sports.

The organization will be built around the present contingent of trackmen and will include all members of the alumni who have an interest in the sport. Monies raised by the group will be used for scholarship and award purposes.

The initial officers chosen by the group are: John O. Clarke, Belle Harbor, N. Y., president; Thomas A. Niedhart, Danbury, Conn., vice president; Chester F. Zarnowski, York, Pa., treasurer; and John F. McKee, Roslyn Heights, N. Y., secretary. Faculty members are: moderator, Rev. James T. Delaney; scholarship committee, Rev. Carl J. Fives, Dr. John J. Dillon, Jr., and Coach James G. Deegan.

The alumni membership will be divided into at least two districts; each having its own officers. All scholarships and awards will be given in accordance with NCAA rules.

ATTEND BALL GAME

On Saturday, April 27, members of the Safety Patrol at Emmitsburg High School and other schools across the state were fortunate to enjoy an afternoon of baseball—compliments of the Baltimore Orioles. Approximately 25 students and supervisors left the school at 10 a.m. and had time enough to tour Druid Hill Park Zoo before they journeyed to Memorial Stadium. On slate for the afternoon was a game between the Orioles and the Los Angeles Angels. Complying with the crowd's demands, the Orioles won 4-2 and gave the Safety Patrol students quite a show.

The round trip was very enjoyable and the students will mark this down as a memorable day in 1963.

100 YEARS AGO

GRANT'S INVADING ARMY POURS INTO MISSISSIPPI

By Lon K. Savage

Blue-coated Federal troops poured into the state of Mississippi 100 years ago this week, beginning one of the greatest campaigns of military history.

They were the troops of General Ulysses S. Grant, and they marched into the Deep South state with spirits high and with a goal which, if reached, would go far toward ending the American Civil War. The goal: Vicksburg, on the eastern banks of the Mississippi River, the "Gibraltar of the West".

It was not the first time Federal soldiers had entered Mississippi during the Civil War—not by a long shot; but this invasion was quite different from those that had preceded it. The soldiers were stepping off big boats at the little town of Bruinsburg, 30 miles south of Vicksburg on the Mississippi River, and marching up the bank and into the Mississippi hinterlands.

It was the climax of months of planning. Grant had brought his army south on the Louisiana side of the river and while General Robert E. Lee and General Joseph Hooker were fighting the battle of Chancellorsville had brought them across the river in boats south of Vicksburg.

The first troops started across April 30, and for more than a week they swarmed up the banks into Confederate territory, and marched off to the northeast. Next day, they met Confederates at Port Gibson and drove them back. By May 3, they had captured the important town of Grand Gulf.

In Vicksburg, Confederate Gen. John C. Pemberton watched Grant's advance uneasily and prepared to meet an attack on Vicksburg from the south. But instead, Grant continued moving northeast toward Jackson, the state capital. Pemberton wired his superiors for help but got none. Finally, he cautiously sent out troops to find a weak spot in Grant's line.

Sherman Fearful

Meanwhile, more Federal troops poured in until they numbered 40,000, and more were on the way. Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, commanding the tail end of Grant's force, expressed fear as he left Bruinsburg that Grant was overextending himself, that Bruinsburg supply line could be cut and his army isolated in enemy territory. But Grant plunged on until his army was directly between Vicksburg and Jackson, ready to turn either way. "All we want now are men, ammunition and hard bread", he wrote Sherman. "We can subsist our horses on the country and obtain considerable supplies for our troops." In short, there would be no supply line; the army would feed off Mississippi farms.

To Grant, the invasion was the realization of a dream. Writing about it years later, he said that when his troops had crossed the river, he "felt a degree of relief scarcely ever equalled since . . . I was now in the enemy's country . . . All the campaigns, labors, hardships and exposures from the month of December previous to this time that had been made and endured were for the accomplishment of this one object."

Next week: Grant captures Jackson.

profit would take almost 500,000 feet of lumber. Although I'm not an authority on timber I am smart enough to know that it takes a lot of trees to make a half million feet of lumber. I'm wondering how the Watershed will look when all these trees are gone and how long it will take for the proposed planting to heal the scars?

In addition to the loss of beauty, the game in this area will suffer as a result of this operation. Shortly after the close of World War II, Mr. Sam Hays with the cooperation of the Indian Lookout Conservation Club and the Game Commission, set aside over 500 acres of the Watershed as a Game Refuge. Anyone who has hunted deer and grouse during the last 15 years will surely agree that this refuge has saved countless numbers of deer and grouse. Now I'd like to know where game can go for protection from the increasing number of hunters?

Now that I've mentioned the dark side of this question it would be only fair to mention the bright side. That will come years from now as the opened forest grows new shoots, sprouts, and shrubs. This makes the finest kind of browse for deer and is a necessary part of their diet. Also, the tops left from the timber cutting will offer excellent cover for grouse in that area. When that time comes, we may not have much game but at least they will have plenty to eat.

I'm not really against this timber cutting operation but my deer and grouse friends are and they asked me to mention it to you . . .

It was suggested by the Den Mothers that the Cubs pay their dues monthly instead of weekly. This way will save time, and also provide more money for the Den Mothers to work with, as this would be paying also for weeks when meetings are sometimes missed. Dues would be paid according to the number of Fridays in the month—if there are five Fridays the monthly dues will be 50c per month. The Pack is greatly in need of money, and several money-making projects were suggested. It was decided to hold a meeting of parents of all Cubs on Wednesday evening at 7 p.m., May 8, in the VFW Annex to discuss means of raising money for the Pack. All parents are urged to attend the meeting. Following the business, refreshments were served.

Safety Film Available For Showing

Fast or slow, speed kills, maims and costs money. The high mortality and severe injury rate resulting from auto collisions is vividly illustrated in "Broken Glass," a 13-minute color film.

In offering this film for free use by Marylanders, the Maryland State Health Department indicated that the topic is of particular interest to drivers of all ages, as well as to anyone concerned with accident prevention. Controlled impact experiments at the University of California's special test site demonstrates what happens when cars collide at various, predetermined speeds. Scientifically designed dummies test stress inside automobiles to measure the hazards to occupants. Also dramatically illustrated is the often unforseen danger to children who are not restrained in cars.

Slow motion photography reveals the passengers' lack of control at the moment of impact and provides indisputable evidence that seat belts are a life-saving element in driver and passenger safety. Anatomical diagnosis of the dummy riders by a medical doctor is presented, along with a safety expert's analysis of skid marks at the collision scene.

A picture survey of the numerous accidents in familiar, frequently traveled routes shows the need for undeviating driver attention. The film emphasizes that the most infallible safety factor is the driver himself, when he devotes all his skill and attention to being a careful driver. This film, and others on the same subject, may be borrowed from the Maryland State Health Department's film library, 301 West Preston St., Baltimore.

Who needs muscles?

Do you know how easy it is to take a corner with a Corvair or park one? Turn this newspaper sideways and it will give you a pretty good idea. The wheel handles just about that easily.

The Corvair's engine is in the rear, for not only greater traction, but more balanced weight distribution. And that's what makes the steering so completely effortless.

The engine is air cooled, too. No radiator. No water or antifreeze. No boiling over or freezing up to worry about. It takes the weather and the terrain as it comes.

So think about those trips to the beach this summer, those bright sunny days and balmy moonlit nights.

And besides, looking at it from a very practical point of view, it's Trade 'N' Travel time right now at your Chevrolet dealer's. He's got some beautiful buys.

C. C. D. JOURNAL

Nothing else is more distinctly Catholic than the practice of devotion to the Mother of God. The Catholic looks back to the story of Christ and finds Mary and her Son, the Saviour of the world, so closely intertwined that the history of one becomes almost the history of the other. We never forget that of the thirty-three years of Christ's earthly life, thirty were spent in the most intimate association with His mother.

During the days following Calvary, Mary was the only strength of the Apostles and it was in her room, the beloved Cenacle of tradition, that they waited after the Ascension for the coming of the promised Holy Spirit.

Catholic belief has always maintained that Mary's body and soul were reunited immediately after death and taken up to heaven. Mary was crowned Queen of Heaven and earth because she participated so closely in the work of Redemption.

Never would the Catholic believe that Mary had power of herself. Her power came from her relationship to her Son. When the famous Council of Ephesus proclaimed Mary the Mother of God, it was not she who was glorified, but her Son whose divinity was proclaimed to the world. Out of all the women of the world, the Trinity had selected this one woman for the most important office ever held by a mere human being. At the moment of the Incarnation, she bore the closest possible relationship to the Trinity. God the Father looked upon her as His beloved daughter; God the Son accepted her as His loving Mother; and God the Holy Spirit took her to Himself as His pure and immaculate bride. So, by virtue of her closeness to God, Catholics have known Mary's intercessory power. Her Son had worked His first miracle, changing water into wine at Cana, at His Mother's request. Now that she was with Him in heaven, He could not refuse the requests that she made for her beloved adopted children on earth.

To Mary the Catholic world has flocked in pilgrimage and procession; in May crownings and rosary crusades; in singing of the litanies and personal prayer. Catholic Churches all over the world were named in her honor because hers was the first house that held the Son of God, and there seemed a singular fitness in naming for her the house that men built to hold her Eucharistic Son.

The importance of Mary's example before in history, both men and women need this devotion to Mary. She is needed if we are to reestablish the home, without which there is no civilization. Her purity must be the safeguard for our young people. Her lovely life must remind us of the importance and dignity of woman's simple work and the fact that we serve Christ and our fellowmen best when we walk her virtuous, laborious, unselfish and utterly devoted way.

Before Mary, Immaculate Virgin and Mother of all the world, we must kneel in love, in imitation and in trust.

THE CORNER STONE

TO ITALIANS CHEESE IS A Taste Treat and a Tradition

To the Italians cheese is a great deal more than something to eat. Cheese-making is a specialty, an art, a tradition handed down through the centuries.

The culture and development of Italian cheeses has been a painstaking process for centuries. Italy has created an impressive variety of cheeses from creamy "Bel Paese" to the crumbly "Asiago" . . . from the melting "Mozzarella" to the firm "Caciocavallo." World-wide markets now are constantly demanding the Italian cheeses so delicious, so varied in texture, flavor, size and appearance. Here are just a few of the many varieties:

ASIAGO, one of the most famous hard paste cheeses, is slightly sharp and very palatable. It may be used both as a table cheese and for grating.

MOZZARELLA, egg-shaped and creamy yellow, was originally made of buffalo's milk and still is in the regions of Italy where the buffalo is not extinct.

GORGONZOLA, named after the village of Gorgonzola, has a sharp, spicy taste and green veining. Excellent with crackers or blended into oil-and-vinegar salad dressings lending character to a bland meal, accenting a delicate one.

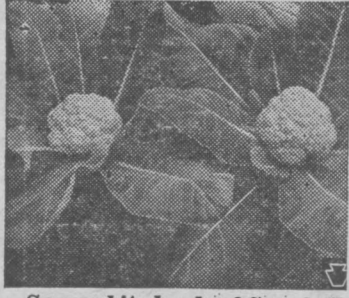

CACIOCAVALLO'S characteristic shape is that of a round or elongated pear. There are two varieties of Caciocavallo: the young, relatively mild type — best suited for use as a table cheese — and the aged, sharp and tangy variety used mostly for grating.

BEL PAESE is creamy, mild and packaged in a box bearing a miniature map of Italy on the cover. Bel Paese is superb for snacks and perfect companion to any fruit.

RAGUSANO is a hard cheese, made in Sicily and used as a hard cheese when aged up to six months, and as a grating cheese when aged for a longer period.
PECORINO SARDO, one of the best known of the Sardinian cheeses, is a deliciously sharp and generally used for grating. It is stronger than but similar to Romano.

FLOWERS TO EAT

Snow white heads of Snowball cauliflower reflect good care. Heads have been blanched.

Choose a variety of Italian Green Sprouting type broccoli for longest yield of side shoots.

Maybe you never stopped to think about it, but when you are eating a vegetable you're most often eating its leaves (as with lettuce, cabbage or spinach) or its roots (as with carrots, beets or turnips). On rarer occasions it's the stem that tastes so good (celery, kohlrabi) but sometimes you have flowers to eat.

This is the case with cauliflower and broccoli, both members of the cabbage family. Of the two, broccoli is easy to grow, cauliflower a bit harder as it takes a little time to protect the developing heads of bloom from the sun which would turn them purple.

Market gardeners often start broccoli seeds indoors about six weeks before their frost-free date and grow them for an early crop. Most home gardeners, however, plant the seeds outdoors, either under the wax paper protectors called hotkaps or directly in the row and expect heads to mature in late summer.

Twelve to fifteen seeds are sown to each inch of row and, when seedlings are about two inches high, they are transplanted to set 18 inches apart. Thus only a very short row need be sown.

Cauliflower heads have poor texture and color if they develop in warm weather. Hence the aim is to have them growing during the cooler days of fall. Seeds may be sown early in July, in a short row, spacing seeds 10 to the inch. As with broccoli, 2-inch-high seedlings are transplanted to stand 18 inches to 2 feet apart.

Like all cabbage relatives, broccoli and cauliflower are attractive to various cabbage worms. A weekly dusting with safe rotenone, freshly purchased each year, will control them.

Brown, of Georgetown, Md., is chairman of the program which will launch the continuing effort to remind Americans of the Principles of Democracy and Freedom. Arthur H. Help For The Jobless Reducing unemployment is a job everybody can work at, and that's no paradox. All hands—private, public, state and federal—should be concerned for the jobless and for an economy that is not creating enough jobs for its people. Everybody, including the President, is viewing with alarm a range of unemployment that has amounted to more than 5 per cent since the New Frontier took the reins of government. And the Federal government has shown willingness to take over the whole responsibility. That is one reason why the rest of us ought to take over the whole responsibility. That is one reason why the rest of us ought to be concerned.

As powerful, spend-eager, and expansion-minded as it is, the federal government simply cannot, under our system, give everybody a job. But at times the government seems by its actions to be trying to put our private economy under suspicion, rather than to encourage its strong points and stimulate it to action. If the federal government wants to solve unemployment, while preserving our private enterprise economy, there are several things it can do.

Tax Reforms
In the first place, industry needs more realistic depreciation schedules that will encourage expansion by permitting more rapid write-offs of new machinery and other production equipment. The government has already helped some with this, but still further consideration should be given in the tax laws. Orders for new machine tools have been encouraging. These have to some extent resulted from revised federal policies. The more modern, faster, and productive the tools at each worker's command, the more he can produce. Productivity provides jobs and brings good pay.

It is most essential in the second place, that taxes on corporations be lowered. When the government takes more than half the profits of successful corporations, not nearly enough is left for expansion, improvement, and incentive. One of the most unfair burdens on our industrial economy is the system of double taxation that permits the federal government to rake-off huge portions of the same corporate income on at least two different occasions.

The Double Tax
For example, if a closely held corporation makes 10 per cent profit on its investment before taxes, the Treasury will take 52 per cent, leaving it 4.8 per cent profit after taxes. If 40 per cent of that 4.8 per cent is then set aside for plant investment, there would be 2.9 per cent of the profit available for use of the stock holders. (This is not far from the national average.) Then, if the owners of this closely held company are themselves in the 60 per cent personal tax bracket, they will have in the end only some 1.15 per cent of their original 10 per cent profit left.

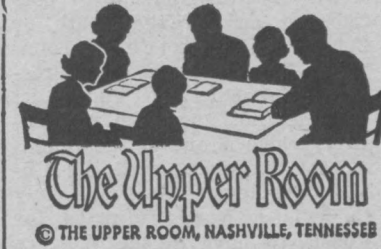

Instead of risking that slim, inadequate profit to expand business or make more jobs, owners are tempted to put it into government bonds for twice that profit without the worries and the risk. It is also important, in the third place, that the government not confuse the issue of corporate profits by making them out as exorbitant or even adequate. It should be an obligation of the government to help inform the public about corporate profits. (Many persons are under the impression that profits run from 25 to 50 per cent on corporate investment.)

Sharing Fairly
Fourth, the government should encourage a fair division of the fruits of increased efficiency to stockholders, consumers, and employees. Government should openly discourage any one of these taking the whole of such gains. Regardless of which might want the lion's share, this greediness would ultimately lead to trouble for all. For the past decade most of the gains from increased efficiency, automation, better tools, have gone to employees. In fact, the pressures have been so great that in some instances even more than the total amount of gains has gone into wages and fringe benefits.

In view of these conditions: unrealistic depreciation schedules, too heavy tax burden on corporate income, and channeling of productivity gains to one group rather than dividing these gains among the three groups necessary to create jobs and maintain prosperity, it is little wonder that we are in trouble with markets and short on jobs. If government would correct the first two of these inequities and then use its influence to create proper understanding of the third, the problem of unemployment would eventually fade away.

TODAY'S Meditation

The World's Most Widely Used
Devotional Guide

Read Deuteronomy 11:18-21;
John 6:35-40.

"I am that living bread which has come down from heaven; if anyone eats this bread he shall live for ever." (John 6:51. Neb.)

We have a great responsibility to guide others within our homes and elsewhere to the true bread of life. We can do this as the result of our knowledge of Jesus Christ gained through Bible reading and experience of His redemptive power.

Our grandsons came to visit us one evening. Expecting a treat as usual, the smallest one climbed upon the stool and said, "What are we going to eat tonight, Grandma?"

Oh! that we were as eager to feed on God's Word! that we, the young and old, parents and grandparents, were as eager to tell of God's love presented in the Bible as we are to give food for our physical bodies!

Does the Bible, which tells us about the bread of life, have as important a place in our daily lives as the bread we eat for our physical bodies?

Prayer
Our Father, bless the reading of Thy Word in our family circles that our spiritual bodies may be fed a new life flow through our lives to our loved ones and to others. In the name of Christ, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Thought For The Day
The Bible is as necessary for our spiritual life as bread is for our physical life.

OUTDOOR SPORTS TIPS

Fast, Fast, Fast .22 Loading
This works for tubular .22 magazines and it's a slick way to load 'em fast. Just pre-pack the shells in large-size soda straws and tyst the ends closed. In the field, tear off and pour the ready-stacked hulls into the tube.
Flyline Storage
Right now you're taking flylines off winter storage reels and you know how poor storage can mess them up. Get some of the large size paper air filters used in many late model cars and try wrapping the lines around these. Works great.

Don't Forget The Laundermat
Camping, fishing, fassing around in the woods, spring weather can get clothes and gear soaked. Don't forget this tip: Nowhere in the USA are you too far from a laundermat. Here, for a quarter or two you can dry all your gear out. Start again fresh and rejuvenated.

COMMENTS FROM THE CAPITOL

by Vant Neff

How about a round of applause for Cortland S. Gross, head of Lockheed Aircraft? He stands up for what he believes. 14,000 Lockheed workers did not want to join the union. In the last ten years, unions have been defeated at Lockheed on four different occasions, in their attempts to make all employees join up. In the face of White House pressures and the possible loss of a $1.4 billion government contract, Mr. Gross again recently said he didn't believe his employees should be forced to join a union if they didn't want to. Most of his employees felt that way, too. The contract was settled without the forced union memberships demanded by union leaders.

Who's the champ when it comes to spending union funds for "personal expenses"? He's David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers. Mr. McDonald drew $38,619.71 for "expenses" in 1960. He beat out Jimmy Hoffa by $20,000. Now that the Internal Revenue is getting so sticky about itemizing business expenses, we wonder whether the same rules will apply to the fancy expense accounts enjoyed by union leaders.

It's very funny, but did you know that the New York newspaper publishers helped to pay the strikers to remain on the picket line? It worked something like this: unemployment insurance is a tax levied 100% on the employer. So that in New York when a worker goes on strike, between unemployment insurance payments plus strike benefits, many receive almost as much money to remain on the picket line as they would working.

I submit that unemployment insurance was never set up as a lever with which labor leaders could club management into submission. How lenient are your laws? Legislators had better take a look now.

It seems to me that it is far more reprehensible for the Government to give false news than it is to tell the public nothing. National Security may be served by the government keeping a secret from time to time . . . but national security will never be served by the Government misleading the public by distributing false information.

What can we believe when the Administration establishes a policy of "managed news"?

What disturbs me most is how well-meaning Americans can still be hoodwinked by the Commie line. At one far western university, students and professors alike, can hardly wait to picket patriotic organizations who come to the coast. With so many examples of Red perfidy, how can anyone who is rational still imagine that Communism is anything but a terrible scourge. If it's true that there's a sucker born every minute, it is just as true that there's a Red ready to lead suckers down the garden path.

Between the lines in their speech, men reveal more than they intend. For instance, did you notice on TV when the President was asked about the New York newspaper strike, he said — "those poor men" meaning the strikers. Not a word about the newspaper stands, many of them tended by blind or crippled men, put out of business. Not a word about the union's demands — which that great impartial jurist Judge Medina called — "fantastic"! No word about what the strike has done to many, many businesses in and about New York. Just those poor strikers. If that's the way to win votes — I'm glad that I'm just a reporter.

By the best evaluation, the Russians have been guilty of treachery and broken agreements no less than 67 times since World War II. Personifying the perfidy are such incidents as: The agreement that when the Poles attacked inside Warsaw, the Russians would launch a simultaneous attack from outside the city. The signal was given — the Poles attacked. The Russians not only held back, but when American and British flyers responded to the desperate pleas of the Poles for help, the Russians denied the flyers the use of Russian held air fields. The Poles were slaughtered. Later, to complete the annihilation of everyone who might prove a leader, the Russians marched all the Polish officers they could gather into a forest, shot them down and buried them in a common grave.

The Russians promised the Hungarians freedom and the right to form their own government — if they would lay down their arms. When the Hungarian freedom fighters complied, the Russians moved in tanks and slaughtered the Hungarians.

You've heard and read how the Russians threaten to "bury us" . . . how they'll blow us off the earth with 100 megaton bombs . . . how they "defend" themselves against Finland, but if we attack Cuba, it will trigger World War III . . . how their planes follow our carriers and how Russian "fishing boats" strangely turn up right next to islands where and when we conduct tests.

Now we are in negotiations with these same Russians about the curtailment of atomic tests. Do our statesmen believe Russia will keep that agreement? Are we to stand still on the "promises" of such an enemy, while Red China too strives frantically to arm itself with nuclear weapons?

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Cuba

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 9—Although this week's column will be mailed from Babson Park, Mass. as usual, it is being written in Florida less than 300 miles from Cuba. Furthermore, Palm Beach—where some of the Kennedys have been staying much of the winter—is much closer to Cuba.

How Many Russians Left in Cuba?

No one really knows how many Russian soldiers, technicians, or officers still remain in Cuba. The estimates range from a low of about 2,000 to a high of 18,000. When these Russians leave Cuba they go in covered "wagons" and they are dressed in civilian clothes. They claim to have removed all "offensive weapons"; but they admit to selling a large number to Castro which are classed as "defensive". These would be able to "blow up" areas in Florida, but not any large American cities elsewhere.

Our Intelligence is trying to get the facts by photographs.

This is in part a reason why certain camera company stocks sell at very much higher prices than they did in 1960. Although we own permanent rights in Guantanamo on the southeast corner of Cuba, we are very careful to allow no one to pass the lines to enter or leave Guantanamo who has not a high character and reputation. It is rumored that Castro has dug a tunnel under Guantanamo, and threatens, in case of war, to blow it up!

What Russia Wants

Khrushchev will not allow Castro to destroy Cuba, as some Republicans are urging Mr. Kennedy to do. He knows that such an event could well start a world war. Furthermore, President Kennedy knows that the American people would much rather lose Cuba now than start World War III. Consequently, Russia seems to be "sitting in the driver's seat" at present.

I further believe that Mr. Kennedy wants to go to the voters in 1964 under the slogan "I kept you out of war". I also believe that if any Republican candidate for the 1964 election urges that we now "clean up Cuba", he will surely be defeated. Another thing to remember is that the Cuban people are 90% Catholic and that the Pope is working for a friendly settlement. The Pope probably has no influence in Russia; but he should have real influence in Cuba.

What About Central & South America?

Friends tell me that Castro will try both to placate Russia and also to entice the Communists of Venezuela, Colombia, and especially Brazil. All these and the other countries of Central and South America I have visited. In fact, the Babson Institute once had a branch in Guatemala. I owned a fine stone building which was destroyed by an earthquake. Fortunately, I was not there that night. If I had been I would have been killed.

I repeat that we will not get into a war with Russia over Cuba. On the other hand, I know the Latin American people, as I have indicated above. The trouble with these nations is that they have no "middle class"; they are either very rich or very poor; and whether rich or poor, they are temperamental. One sad fact is that the rich do not invest their money in their own country, but send it to Switzerland to be invested in high-grade stocks listed in New York or London.

All of the above means that it will be very difficult to help Cuba or any of the South or Central American countries. Russia knows this. President Kennedy also knows it; but does not know the real answer, which is one of the fundamental difficulties with the Cuban problem. Geographically Cuba is a wonderful base for Russia to have in the Western Hemisphere; but from a temperamental standpoint Russia knows that neither Castro nor any successor of Castro's can be depended upon. Hence, I believe President Kennedy is now right in keeping out of Cuba—directly or indirectly.

Some babies sleep without any trouble. Others, like adults, are born bad sleepers.

Slight disturbances wake them up. The born bad sleepers frequently lie awake for hours after being put to bed. Sometimes babies will lie awake in order to attract attention.

These discoveries emerged from a review of medical literature dealing with the management of healthy babies who won't sleep.

Doctors list a few of the more common causes of sleeplessness: Teething, too much light, gastro-intestinal distress, a tight abdominal binder, unsuitable underwear, a knobby mattress, a poorly made bed, or insufficient bedclothes leading to cold hands and feet and discomfort caused by a wet or soiled diaper.

If sleeplessness persists, the first thing is to consult your doctor to rule out any organic disturbance.

Then look to the baby's comfort. A loose sleeping bag will keep the baby from being uncovered. Most babies like flannel pajamas, a hard, smooth mattress covered with a blanket and a flannel sheet. Tight clothing should be avoided, and the baby should always be freshly diapered.

A professional diaper service will always assure a ready supply of clean, processed diapers. If the baby is afraid of the dark, there should be a small light in the room. A warm bath at night has the effect of soothing many babies and promoting their sleep. A quiet period before bedtime is recommended.

If your baby understands, you may find it sometimes helps to suggest that its eyes look tired, that it looks sleepy and will very soon be fast asleep.

Dr. Morris Witkin, a pediatrician, has this suggestion for handling the difficult baby:

"To insist on sleep where there is no desire is senseless, for sleep will not be commanded. One cannot stampede a child to sleep. To smack him or use corporal punishment is disastrous. Postpone bedtime an hour or so.

"Then put the baby to bed, letting it know all further tomfoolery will be ignored. The child must read in the mother's voice and gather from the tone of her voice that she is determined to have her way. Once the child realizes the futility of resistance, the battle is won.

Booze Consumption Down In County Frederick County's share in the state alcoholic tax for the first three months of this year is considerably less than that for the preceding period. State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said that Frederick County will receive a check worth $9,064.50 to cover its share for the January-March period. This will bring the total for the three quarters of this fiscal year to $33,748.50. The quarterly check is considerably less than the check received for the October-December period when $14,357.50 was received. It should be noted that the October-December period traditionally produces a greater amount of revenue presumably because of the holiday season. The state records show that during the most recent period 18,129 gallons of distilled spirits

Auction To Benefit Frederick Academy

A second sale of interesting antique items collected by the nuns over a period of more than a hundred years is scheduled to take place Saturday, May 25, at the Frederick Academy of the Visitation. Delbert Null will chant the pieces off the auction block as he did last September 15, when an earlier sale netted more than $5,000.

Proceeds from the May 25th event will go into a fund being collected for the repair of the old buildings, several of them pre-Revolutionary. The beautiful gardens will be open to the general public throughout the day, and bread and rolls baked by the nuns will be offered for sale.

Among the antiques to be sold are a primitive wooden confession- al, typical furnishings of the students' dormitory cubicle, an assortment of antique musical instruments, many receptacles of alabaster and brass, and a large number of gilt-framed paintings.

SCIENCE TOPICS The biggest game of all may be captured by U. S. scientists within a decade, according to the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. Object of the hunt: asteroids. These are minor planets from 1 to 500 miles in diameter which sometimes pass close by the earth in their orbit of the sun. These huge floating masses would be bunted from space into earth orbit by means of chemical rockets. Astronauts would rocket to the orbiting asteroid, mine its raw material (nickel, iron and other metals) and set up facilities to manufacture rocket fuel or industrial products. Wheat Referendum May 21 "To protect the right of small farmers to produce enough wheat for their livestock and poultry, every wheat grower of 15 acres or less must make himself eligible to vote in the May 21st wheat referendum," stated A. Kenneth Miller, following a State Board of Directors of Farm Bureau meeting in Randallstown. May 13th is the deadline for small growers to become eligible by signing the back of their allotment form (MQ-24) and returning it to their local ASC (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation) office. On the MQ-24 form, small farmers must agree to participate in the program if it receives the required two-thirds vote on May 21. Said Miller: "The authors of this dictatorial and complicated wheat plan have deliberately designed it to discourage the small wheat producer from voting." "It is for this reason," Miller said, "that growers need not be confused by the confusing rules." "By signing the back of the allotment form, a grower meets a condition to vote. After meeting this condition, the grower can vote as he deems best," stressed Miller. "To become eligible to vote "no" is the only protection available for a small grower if he does not wish to have his acreage cut and be required to comply with marketing quotas," concluded Miller. Mounts Downed A fine route-going performance by George Amoss, Mt. St. Mary's pitcher, went for nought Tuesday afternoon when Washington College snared a 4-3 decision in 11 innings at Emmitsburg. Amoss allowed nine hits and fanned 12. The Mounts led 3-2 going into the ninth but Bill Natwick homered to send the game into extra innings. In the top of the 11th a double
