Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

You'll not be taking Route 15 to Gettysburg anymore folks. This week Governor Scranton of Pennsylvania renamed the highway from the Mason-Dixon Line to Harrisburg the "Blue and Gray Highway." It sounds like a pretty name and one that carries more significance than just mere Route 15. What Maryland plans to do about renaming its portion of the road to Washington is not known but in my opinion it would be nice to go along with Pennsylvania on the renaming of the highway which consists of over 100 miles. Another thing I like about it is that it is good advertising for this part of our country.

It had to come out some time or another and I just can't resist the temptation to expose the intention of some certain interests in Gettysburg who plan outright gouging of the public during the coming Centennial observance. It is a known fact that some restaurants already have their new menus printed and laid aside just waiting for the observance to start in July. You guessed it, these "new" menus will show a skyrocketing of prices that'll knock off your hat. Almost everything will show a decided increase and those ordering meals or full-course dinners will be scalped the hardest. On these menus the dinners will show an increase of at least $1 and some go even higher to $1.50. Meals formerly costing $2.00 have been hiked to $3.25 and $3.50. So much for the restaurants. There are rumors to the effect that some motels and other places of business catering to the tourist trade plan to take advantage of the situation. Already the motels have been said by some newspapers and magazines, to have the highest rates in the country. Well I am told that before this big event is over there is every possibility that Gettysburg will have earned the reputation these publications said it has. The bulk of the merchants in Gettysburg, making up retailers in clothing, shoes, hardware, drugs, etc. are known to be a reliable group and plan no such action. Their prices have remained in line all along and there is no gouging planned. In fact many will offer bargains during the coming occasion. They are a reputable lot, you can trust them in the future as you have in the past. These gentlemen plan to remain in business for a long time to come and I must congratulate them on the course they have chosen. As to the scalpers, they will leave a bad taste in the public's mouth for years to come. I didn't want to print this bad news but I couldn't contain myself any longer. It is the duty of a good newspaper to look after the interests of the public and now that I have done my duty I'll leave the rest up to you, the customers, the public.

For those youngsters who were "froze" out of the Little League for the simple reason that not all can be accommodated, there will be another opportunity proffered you Monday evening. John White and George Baker have agreed to try and form several teams from the "overflow" of the Little League and these youngsters will operate under adult supervision. So my dear friends, if you have a youngster who is red-hot to play a little baseball, have him show up at the Little League diamond Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock and he will be taken care of. This will be the last opportunity to join up this year. It is hoped to be able to equip this group with uniforms, just as the big Little Leaguers have.

Rt. 15 By-Pass Opening Nears

Pennsylvania State Highway Department officials made a semi-final inspection of one section of the Rt. 15 Bypass Tuesday and said that the chances are "very good" that the bypass will be open and ready for use by June 30.

Dates for final inspections have not been set but they likely will take place in about two weeks, a spokesman at Harrisburg said.

There are two sections that are not complete, one north and one south of Rt. 30 and it may be a close call for the June 30 opening. The possibility of formal opening ceremonies for the bypass on June 28 or 29 or July 2 were listed today as a possibility.

No part of the bypass will be opened until all are ready.

Community 4 covers the towns and surrounding area of Emmitsburg, Thurmont and Taneytown, and is a division within the Frederick Area X of the Girl Scout Council of Central Maryland.

Girl Scout camping applies the Promise and Laws to everyday living. It is meeting new friends and finding new interests. It is living amid the beauty of nature, learning to be helpful and sharing responsibilities with other girls. It is assuming leadership, but, most of all, it is fun. Most camp activities are carried out in small groups with the programs planned by the girls under the guidance of qualified adult leaders.

The campsite is located between Emmitsburg and Thurmont near the intersection of Route 15 and Route 76 in a grove belonging to St. Anthony's Church.

The camp will run for eight days beginning the weeks of July 15 and July 22, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week. Camp will open at 9:30 a.m. and close at 3:30 p.m. each day. Older girls will have an opportunity to camp out overnight.

The fee for the eight days is $4.50 per girl and includes program supplies, milk and insurance. Registration forms are available through any Girl Scout Leader. Registrations are open until 2 weeks before camp opens, however, we would urge those interested to register as soon as possible. Registrations will be dated as received and those received first will be accepted first if registrations exceed the camp capacity.

In the Emmitsburg area, a bus will be available, with the fee per day to be announced later, depending upon the number of registrations received.

Girls who are unable to pay the whole camp fee may apply for camperships, which are made possible through funds from private contributions and some funds from cookie sales.

100 YEARS AGO

LEE ENTERS MARYLAND: VICKSBURG IN AGONY

By Lon K. Savage

The Civil War raged on two fronts 100 years ago this week, moving swiftly toward what would become the war's turning point: the battle of Gettysburg in the East and the simultaneous fall of Vicksburg in the West.

In Virginia, General Robert E. Lee's army of 80,000 swept rapidly northwestward, heading for a fateful invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania. Lee's men outdistanced their enemy, smashed into the Shenandoah Valley town of Winchester and captured it from the Federals and then moved on to the north.

But if the Confederates were happy over Lee's successes, their happiness was stilled by the events in Mississippi. There, Federal General Ulysses S. Grant tightened his grip around the trapped Confederate city of Vicksburg until his trenches were at places within 100 yards of the Confederate lines. Inside the city, Confederate General John Pemberton looked on in dismay as the city's starving inhabitants began eating mules, then cats and finally rats to keep alive.

In Virginia

Lee's movements met success at every turn, however, as his army stretched itself out through Virginia farmland toward Maryland. On June 9, Lee's opponent, "Fighting Joe" Hooker, sent a band of cavalymen across the Rappahannock River. They surprised Lee's cavalry commander, "Jeb" Stuart, and caused a fierce skirmish at Brandy Station, but Stuart finally sent the Federals scurrying back across the river.

Next day, Richard Ewell, commanding one of Lee's corps, moved swiftly through the Blue Ridge to the northwest, attacked Winchester on the 14th and thoroughly routed Federal Gen. Robert Milroy, capturing both troops and the town. Next day, his men moved on to Martinsburg, W. Va., and began splashing across the Potomac into Maryland.

Hooker, meanwhile, began moving northwestern too, trying to stay between Lee's army and Washington. He received a typically humorous instruction from President Lincoln: "If the head of Lee's army is at Martinsburg and the tail of it on the plank road between Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, the animal must be very slim somewhere. Could you not break him?"

No, Hooker had to admit, he could not without running too great a risk. Instead he slipped northwestward toward a town called Gettysburg.

At Vicksburg

At Vicksburg, the war was misery. Federal shells rained on the city day and night, and women and children moved into caves for their protection. Water, as well as food, was in short supply.

Outside the city, Confederate troops manned their defenses under a burning sun, living in dug-outs, continually ducking Federal shells, slowly losing strength simply for lack of food. Ammunition, too, was running out. The Federal siege inched closer to the city each day—so close that Federals and Confederates often spoke to each other across the lines at night.

The Vicksburg Confederates had only one hope: that Gen. Joseph E. Johnston would bring an army down from the northern part of the state and rescue them. But Johnston dilly-dallied, and gradually those in Vicksburg began to realize that their last hope was dimming. The end for Vicksburg appeared near.

Next week: West Virginia Becomes a State.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this proceeding is to procure a Divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Larry D. Webster, for the care and custody of the infant children, namely, Larry D. Webster, Jr., Cheryl Lynn Webster and Lorie Yvonne Webster, and for such other and further relief as the nature of her case may require.

The Bill states in substance, that the Plaintiff is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, and has been so for more than one year last past; while the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and that the last known address of the Defendant is 824 Christian Place, Indianapolis, Indiana; that your Complainant was married to the Defendant at Luray, Virginia, on August 3, 1956, by Rev. Robert Keyser, a regular ordained minister of the gospel; that as a result of the said marriage, three (3) children were born, namely, Larry D. Webster, Jr., age 6, Cheryl Lynn Webster, age 4, and Lorie Yvonne Webster, age 1½ years, all of whom are residing with your Complainant and whose care and custody your Complainant was granted in No. 19662 Equity, in this Court; the Bill further alleges that ever since the said marriage, the Complainant has always conducted herself as a kind, chaste, dutiful and affectionate wife toward the Defendant, Larry D. Webster, and that the Defendant, Larry D. Webster, between the time of the said marriage and the filing of the Bill of Complaint herein, without just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the Complainant and that such abandonment and desertion has continued uninterruptedly for at least eighteen (18) months prior to the filing of the Bill of Complaint herein and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties to the cause is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation, to all of which the Affidavit is made.

It is thereupon this 27th day of May, 1963, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, in Equity, ORDERED that the Plaintiff, by causing a copy of this Order of Publication to be published for at least four (4) successive weeks prior to the 29th day of June, 1963, in some newspaper published in Frederick County, Maryland, giving notice to the Defendant, Larry D. Webster, of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint and warning him to be and appear in this Court either in person or by Solicitor on or before the 30th day of July, 1963, to show cause, if any he has, why the relief sought should not be granted.

Army Exhibits

Coming To Gettysburg

Two U. S. Army exhibits will arrive in Gettysburg within three days of each other this month, each to lend a special historical flavor to the observance of the 100th Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

First to arrive, on June 27, will be The U. S. Army In Action exhibit—an indoor display which gives a three-dimensional look at the Army in action from 1775 through the Korean War.

On June 30, the Army's Civil War Centennial mobil van will arrive, bringing with it the opportunity for viewers to join General Warren on "Little Round Top" to save Gettysburg and join in other historic moments of that era through three-dimensional animations, pictures, cutaways, drawings, and other special presentation techniques.

Accompanying the Civil War Centennial exhibit for the Gettysburg visit will be a special display of photographs taken by the famed Civil War photographer, Mathew Brady.

Both exhibits will remain in Gettysburg through July 4, and will be open to the public without charge.

Heart Murmurs Often Normal
By Madison S. Spach, M.D.
Department of Pediatrics
Duke U. School of Medicine
Heart murmurs are extremely common in perfectly normal children. At least three out of ten normal children have a heart murmur at some time during childhood. These completely innocent heart murmurs occurring in normal children are referred to as "functional murmurs."

By definition a heart murmur means that the doctor can hear noises other than the usual heart sounds when he listens to the child's chest. It is by listening with a stethoscope and by a few simple tests that the physician can usually tell the difference between innocent murmurs and those that result from actual abnormalities.

There are generally two groups of heart disease in children. The most common type, congenital heart disease, is the result of faulty development of the heart before birth. The next most common heart affliction in children is rheumatic heart disease.

Although many forms of congenital heart diseases and rheumatic heart conditions can be quite serious, there may be children with either type of heart condition of a mild nature which allows the child to lead a normal life.

In congenital or inborn heart disease, if the condition is severe enough to cause ill health, usually surgery can be performed to return the heart to normal. Such operations most commonly are aimed at closing abnormal openings between the various heart chambers.

There are other children who have heart murmurs from mild heart abnormalities, yet the function remains completely normal. These children require periodic medical check-ups but may never require correction of their defect as long as the heart function stays normal.

When a child has rheumatic fever, the main danger is that the heart may be involved with resultant damage to the valves

as to the heart muscle itself. Many children will recover from an attack without the heart being damaged.

For reasons yet unknown completely, the onset of rheumatic fever is related to infections caused by a germ called the streptococcus. By treating streptococcal sore throats with penicillin, attacks of rheumatic fever can be prevented. Also once an attack has occurred, the daily administration of small doses of penicillin or a monthly dose of long lasting penicillin, can prevent further recurrences.

dreds of miles away. When I am asked what is the best fertilizer for an orange grove, I reply, "The footprints of the owner." This applies also to house lots, especially in subdivisions of some northern city. Now let me give some simple rules regarding the purchase of such house lots. They are based on a careful experience and apply whether you are speculating or buying for the purpose of settling on the land and some day bringing up a family.

Every city has its best growth in some one direction, whether to the north, west, east, or south. Often the direction is toward the land highest in elevation. This is especially true if it is to the west facing the sunsets. Remember, too, that subdivisions which are near tenement districts or railroad tracks may not be as attractive as others. Personally, I made a mistake in buying land in Wellesley fifteen miles from Boston under the direct route of the airplanes leaving Boston for New York and elsewhere. I made this mistake many years ago, but those looking for subdivisions now should take this problem into consideration.

What About Houses?
 I do not like houses as an investment unless they are duplex houses, where I can live in one half and rent the other half. As an investment I like something that does not need to be shingled or painted, and that does not have windows that break. Even a new house depreciates from the very day it is completed; but the land, if in a proper neighborhood, gradually increases in value. This is the reason for buying an extra lot adjoining the one on which you will live. Also buy the lot to the rear of your house.

When buying houses or land, recognize that all land and all houses are worth something, but the price should be considered according to the above suggestions. It will always be possible to build and buy new houses. The price will depend upon supply and demand, just as does the price of mortgages. There will sometimes be a shortage of houses, and often a surplus of houses. There, however, will never be any more land on this globe. This is something to remember when you read articles on the coming "population explosion".

Importance Of Water
 The availability of fresh water is something to consider when buying house lots. The talk in the papers today regard-

 ALBERT JOHN GASPER

 Utica, New York

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Albert John Gasper.

The Bill recites that the Complainant, Jean Ann Gasper, is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, where she has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose last known address was c/o General Delivery, Utica, New York; that the parties to this cause were married on the 18th day of February, 1961, at Frederick, Maryland, by Rev. Trunk, a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage no child or children were born; that the Complainant and the Defendant have voluntarily lived separate and apart, without any cohabitation for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of the Bill of Complaint in this cause, and that such separation is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation.

The Bill then prays that the Complainant, Jean Ann Gasper, be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Albert John Gasper, and for such other and further relief as the nature of her case may require.

COURT ORDER

It is thereupon this 24th day of May, 1963, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the County of Frederick, one each week for four successive weeks before the 29th day of June, 1963, commanding him to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 30th day of July, 1963, and show cause, if any he has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

ing the "pollution" of water is very sound. This refers to the pollution of streams not only by waste from industrial companies, but also from the detergents which our womenfolk use every day and from the deadly chemical pesticides which are being sprayed in such profusion throughout the nation. This latter is the subject of a very popular book entitled "Silent Spring" by Rachel Carson. This book should be read especially by those who are thinking of buying land near a stream. Despite this, land adjoining good rivers should always be in demand—for homes, farming, and speculation.

I was born and brought up in Gloucester, Mass., by the seashore, where the waves from the Atlantic Ocean dash up twice a day. This picture applies to the whole length of both our Atlantic and Pacific Seaboards. There never will be any more of it; hence, if possible, it is well to own some land as an investment on one or the other of these seacoasts. Let me close by emphasizing the importance of diversification. Do not put all your money in any one thing—real estate, stocks, bonds, or bank accounts—and be especially cautious about investing in deteriorating houses.

Read II Timothy 3:10-17.

All scripture is inspired by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for amendment, and for moral discipline. (II Timothy 3:16. MOFFATT.)

When our saintly mother lay dying, she was too frail to keep up her regular reading of the Bible. Speaking in a whisper, she told us to read our Bibles every day and added: "If you do that, you will find the Scripture promises are a comfort when nearing life's end."

At no time can the Christian do without the Bible. It is God's Word to His people, and the place where they meet Him. It tells about the character of God and how He calls forth our faith.

The Bible is not light reading. It cannot be read as you would read a newspaper or a magazine. It contains God's promises, warnings, words of love, comfort, and counsel. The Bible is our guidebook, the heavenly Father's gift to His children.

Meekly and prayerfully, we absorb its message into our hearts and find ourselves gradually transformed into the likeness of Christ. Old habits go, new ones are formed, and a deep love for persons fills our hearts through the power of God's Word.

Prayer
 We thank Thee, O God, for the Bible. Through its use, men in despair have found hope; in sorrow, comfort; in temptation, power to overcome; and in sin, a Savior. In His name we pray. Amen.

Window on the World

(The struggle of peoples around the world to win stability for their countries and better lives for themselves is one of the great stories of our time. Especially equipped to tell this story are CARE Mission Chiefs. On four continents they distribute the CARE food and Self-Help materials made possible by U.S. contributors; they are in daily contact with the men, women and children engaged in striving for growth. Here is a recent report by the Mission Chief in Sierra Leone, West Africa.)

SIERRA LEONE — When the Principal of St. Andrew's Secondary School in Bo, Sierra Leone, announced that CARE was about to begin a feeding program at the school, the assembly room shook with laughter. The American teachers — from Peace Corps and African-American In-Corps — were shocked: they'd seen the CARE posters in the States showing hungry children enjoying the food from America; and the children in the local primary schools were also participating in school feeding under the auspices of CARE. Now St. Andrew's too was to receive food. The boys' laughter was a disappointment to the staff.

The teachers questioned some of the boys. The laughter, they were told, was the consequence of joyful, ironic disbelief. Who could accept such an incredible thing as meals at schools? When the Principal explained the plans further, disbelief gave way to pure joy and irony was replaced by hope.

Now the hope is a reality; the students daily enjoy the CARE lunch. Made from basic food commodities (corn meal, flour, milk, and vegetable oil) donated by the people of the United States, locally available foods such as meat, fish, sugar, pepper, onions, oranges, and bananas are added. And the results have become immediately apparent: the students feel better, are more alert, and have greater sustenance for the sheer work of study.

St. Andrew's is one of forty-five post-primary schools in Sierra Leone. Students are selected on a competitive basis. Hard as it is to gain entry into a Secondary School in Sierra Leone, it is even more difficult to continue studies. There is not only the hardship of acquiring the school fees; room and board must be provided in most schools by the student himself, as there are few dormitories. Most students come from remote, rural — and poor — areas and they must seek housing and food from relatives or guardians. As highly as education is regarded in Sierra Leone, people are not usually able to give much assistance to the aspiring scholar. CARE's assistance in the School Feeding Program has dramatically helped. And with the additional assistance of CARE, St. Andrew's and other schools will go further.

Under the supervision of the Principal and the American teachers, students of St. Andrew's have begun clearing land with CARE tools to build their own dormitory. With a machine delivered by CARE, building blocks are being made. Carpentry and masonry tools have been supplied to the school and, when they are ready, CARE roofing material will also be provided.

Man About Baltimore

By H. George Hahn

It's fortunate that churchgoers
don't decorate the collection plate according to the quality of the sermon.

Bad sermons are not restricted
to any one denomination; in fact,
one might think that bad sermons
are the only threads of likeness
among Christian sects in America, possibly in the world. Very possibly the world, though we couldn't say definitely. We do remember sermons in German and Italian in the old world, but understanding neither language, we could judge their quality only by the destitute, yet sleepy and captivated, or rather captive parishioners.

There are many types of poor preachers, but probably the most outstanding are two. There's always the one, possessed of a fairly resonant and articulate voice, who thinks that his voice is the only necessary ingredient in a sermon. This type is a throwback to the old fire-and-brimstone paragon, Jonathan Edwards, possessing all the old Calvinist's
preaching qualities save content.
He'll rant and rave simply for the sake of ranting and raving. He'll scream maxims that even Polonius would have hesitated to utter.
And to show all that he's a wit,
he'll inject a little comic relief
by telling a joke which occasions
no chuckles and not too few throat-clearings.

Then, there's the thin and be-speaked artium baccalaureus. He's just out of the seminary and the ink's still liquid on his degree.
He'll address the throng, leading off with a mention of some problem which he believes tears at the souls of all Christendom—for instance, the intrinsic distinction between the transcendental beauty and truth. Undaunted by loud yawns and louder coughs, he'll glance at his watch and flex his voice dramatically to the ecstas-

ic thrills of the professor of public speaking 239.

We sometimes think a fleeting sacrilegious thought that perhaps preachers are frustrated and insecure actors or teachers. They're now immune to a critic boldly storming up the center aisle toward the door in the midst of the most elegant syllogism of the sermon. They're now removed from screaming students, flying rubber bands, and weeping girls with pigtails in inkwells.

Sermons have outlived their usefulness. Centuries ago when much of the populace was illiterate, a priest or parson would explain
and clarify a Scriptural passage.
Now, newspapers, magazines religious and otherwise, and Reader's Digest condensed books flood the American home. And while not many laymen read Scripture any longer, everyone has at least a vague notion of the distinction between good and evil, right and wrong. Lest this notion become any more vague, let's hope that sermons divest themselves of their obscurity and trite repetition.

Possibly, sermons effect more harm than good. Protestants have a custom of complimenting a minister on his sermon. We wonder how much untruth this practice evokes. Catholic priests don't carry on this custom; they're not presumptuous.

At any rate we've truthfully never heard a "good" sermon. If the purpose of a sermon is to instruct the common man, why not test sermons before the great god public via television? If they're popular after a rating
poll, then we'll cease writing inane pieces such as this and enroll in a seminary.

Henry Ford's famous Tin Lizzie
—the Model T—was introduced 55 years ago on October 1, 1908, and featured left-side steering.

New Farm Bills Being Introduced

"An attempt to correct the mistakes of 30 years of repeated government program failures is under way in Congress," stated
Noah E. Kefauver, Jr., president, Maryland Farm Bureau, as he praised a bipartisan legislative effort to provide for new wheat and feed grain programs.

Maryland's Senator J. Glenn
Beall and Congressman Charles McC. Mathias are among the sponsors of new farm bills introduced in Congress last week.

This new legislation sought by Farm Bureau, the nation's largest farm group, is a transition program for wheat and feed grains.
It is designed to bridge the gap between the current burdensome
surpluses and a return to the market price system as a means of determining production needs.

Provisions would (1) prohibit dumping of CCC (surplus) stocks

on the market, (2) repeal the emergency feed grain program passed earlier this year, (3) ban future referendums, (4) provide cropland retirement to ease the withdrawal of wheat acres, (5)
provide price supports at the higher of 50 per cent of parity, or the average world market price for the preceding 3 years.

"The principles of this new farm program effort are those for which wheat farmers voted in last month's wheat referendum," declared Kefauver. "Enactment of this legislation would be a second giant step toward a prosperous and relatively free agriculture."

Screens, with openings as small as 15 ten-thousandths of an inch,
are used for fuel filters in jet aircraft. They are made by electro-forming pure nickel.

Five Steps to a Lovely Lawn

Early spring is a good time to groom your grounds. Studies conducted by Heritage House, which offers the homeowner convenience lawn products, have produced this simple five-step procedure which makes lawn-tending easy . . . and leaves you more time
for lawn-lounging:

RAKE. Clear the lawn of stones, twigs, and leaves which have gathered over the winter.

RE-SEED. Rake bare patches to loosen the soil. Seed by hand if patches are small, cover lightly, and water. Use a spreader if bare areas are more than five feet across.

NOURISH AND PROTECT. Fertilize! And make sure your grass is not done in by enemies. A special Heritage House product,
"Weed Killer plus Lawn Food,"
does both jobs at once.

WATER. In general, it's best to water heavily and infrequently. Soak until water penetrates three to six inches.
Don't water again until the ground feels dry. There are exceptions for certain regions and types of grass.

MOW. Mowing schedule and cutting length also depend upon region, weather, and type of grass.
In temperate areas, cutting to 1½ inches is usually recommended.
Newly seeded areas should be allowed to grow to 3 inches before cutting.

brides love me!

Pardon my blushing, but I, REDDY KILOWATT, can steal

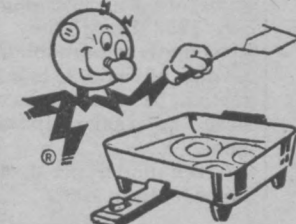

the heart of any June bride. Yes sir, modern brides can't resist the electric way of making housework fun. With an electric coffee maker, I can help her make coffee with ease . . . and make coffee

that tastes better than ever before.

She loves the way I cook breakfast,

lunch and dinner in an electric fry-pan . . . so easy, convenient and takes up such a small amount of room. I'm a real trouble-saver with an electric toaster . . . she just puts in the toast and forgets it until it pops out, ready to eat. I can also help her keep ahead of the "sunbathing

season" with an electric ultra-violet

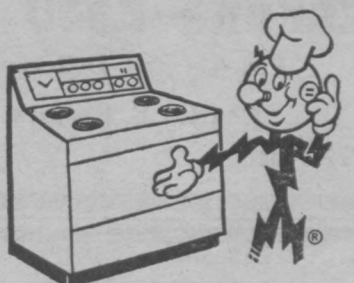

sun lamp . . . for just minutes a day

she can have a beautiful tan all year-round. And, no husband can resist food cooked on a flameless

electric range...cooking is easier, faster, cleaner. The modern bride will have fun experimenting with her new electric assist her in preparing unusual and tasty dishes for her husband. All brides love ME and their elec-

"OPINIONS FROM THE FIELD"

A Vanishing Sport

When the soldiers returned from WW II they brought with them a new concept of sport fishing, that being Spin fishing. Its enormous popularity since that time has made the level wind reel and braided line almost a thing of the past. The spinning reel with monofilament line and light lures have changed bass fishing techniques considerably and it is indeed rare to see a fisherman today wading the stream with a minnow bucket floating at his side and using a bait casting rod and reel. However, those fishermen who did or still practice this type of fishing will agree that for real excitement minnow fishing with a casting rod is pretty hard to beat.

Part of the fun and most of the hard work took place the afternoon before the actual fishing expedition. It was at this time the fishing buddies got together to seine the minnows. Often it was fairly simple to get enough minnows but sometimes it turned out to be quite a task. I can think of easier things than pushing a minnow seine up through a dozen or more swift riffles but the laughing and joshing between friends made the time pass quickly and soon the bucket contained an ample amount of bait. Then the bucket was hidden along the creek to be picked up the next morning.

Shortly after daylight the minnow bucket is retrieved and the bait is divided. Then a short drive and we are ready to start fishing. I have trouble getting that slippery devil on the hook but I finally manage to do so and step into the water. Wow! what a thrill when that cool water gets above the knees. This initial shock soon wears away and the minnow is cast as gently as possible into a likely looking pool. I feel a slight bump on the line and watch the first short run as a bass "kills" the minnow and drops it. Seconds tick by like hours as I await the next run and suddenly the line starts to peel off the reel. Wham! the hook is set and the battle is on. Hours later my buddy and I slosh up through the field to the car. The sand in our shoes is grinding on our ankle bones and our pants cling like wet dish towels but we are happy because our stringers hang heavy at our sides. Any 5 pounders? No, the largest might be 16 inches long.

It's strange how we used to enjoy this vanishing sport because I can't remember a single time that we were greeted by a bevy of bathing beauties offering Camels as we stepped from the stream

Farmers Interested In Watershed Conservation

Farmer interest in watershed conservation is increasing steadily, according to reports of accomplishment under the 1962 Agricultural Conservation Program, William L. Dudley, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee for Maryland, said today.

ACP conservation measures were applied last year on more than 113,000 farms within authorized and organized watersheds throughout the Nation. The total farmer and rancher investment in these soil, water, woodland, and wildlife practices in such watershed conservation during 1962 amounted to about $40 million, half of which was covered by ACP cost-shares.

In 467 small watersheds authorized under Public Law 566, which have been approved for the installation of major works of improvement such as dams and reservoirs, land-treatment protective measures were carried out on more than 34,500 farms—representing ACP cost-sharing of $6 million. Other reported small watersheds, primarily those receiving planning services under Public Law 566, included about 30,000 more farms which received ACP cost-sharing of almost $6 million. Authorized flood prevention watersheds accounted for most of the remainder.

With the public's increasing awareness of the importance of watershed protection has come a recognition that proper land treatment on individual farms and ranches is the key to the success of any watershed program, Chairman Dudley declared.

Structures to store water or prevent flooding are only partly effective unless basic conservation practices are applied to the farm and ranch lands above them. And every farmer who manges his land wisely through the application of needed conservation measures is contributing toward watershed conservation work. The ACP stimulates and makes possible greater amounts of planned conservation work.

While farmers reap the immediate benefit from improved land management, the Chairman explained, a watershed protection program really benefits everyone in the community and Nation. Direct results of upstream watershed protection are reduced siltation of lakes, streams, and reservoirs; better and cleaner water; and fewer damaging floods. But indirect results include such equally important benefits as the economic stability and prosperity of both farm and urban industry, which are necessary for basic rural areas development.

Some ACP practices which help protect watersheds, for which farmers may obtain cost-sharing assistance, include tree planting and the improvement of timber stands, grass and legume cover, terracing sod waterways, farm ponds, conservation, and strip-cropping.

Conservation work stimulated by other ASCS programs — for example, the conversion of feed grain and wheat land to conserving uses—also benefits watershed conservation programs.

OUTDOOR SPORTS TIPS

Fishing From Logs

Sure, you can fish from logs, but a better way is to keep a fishing log. Write down where, when, how. Record weather, barometer, water and air temperature. List how many you caught, what size and what they were feeding on. The next season, you'll have a record of when to fish and when not to. It even works if you follow the maxim. The best time to go fishing is when you can.

Dry Matches The Hair

Here's an interesting tip that's well worth trying out . . . since the life you save may be your own and all that. If matches get wet, dry them by wearing them in your hair. Apparently doesn't matter if your hair is wet or not. Heat from scalp and natural oil puts the strike back in.

Underwater Flashlight

This isn't startling new but now's the time to remember it. If you lose something overboard you can light the bottom by sealing your flashlight in a fruit jar. Weight the jar on a line lower it in the area. You can see what's up . . . er, down.

Emergency Jack

Okay, this is crude . . . but it works! We wholly recommend you equip your car with a jack, ax, shovel, water, if you're headed into remote country. But if you get a flat and your jack breaks down you may be able to change a tire like this. Select a sapling that you estimate is strong enough to hold the car's weight, but small enough to bend as you drive into it. Then, you literally inch the car up the tree. Another man lifting with a tree-trunk lever will help the car climb. Gradually the car inches ahead (or behind) and is raised the 10 or so vital inches.

Tennis Ball Trailer

Keep the ball on your trailer hitch in shiny good shape by slitting an old tennis ball so it will fit over it.

Funny Files

The occasion might arise when you need a special small file for work on reels or other precision gear. Make 'em yourself. Use toothpicks or whittled wood pieces, coated with glue and dipped in abrasive powder.

Wormery

Next time you catch some trash fish, don't throw away. Bury them in your back yard around

MISUNDERSTOOD VEGETABLE

Kohlrabi is delicious when golf ball size knobs are pulled and cooked as described below.

Some people claim it's a "beet with the bump on top of the soil". Others are certain it's a turnip because the flavor, though milder, slightly resembles that of the turnip. Actually it's a member of the cabbage family to which the turnip also belongs and its name tells the connection—kohlrabi (Kohl is German for Cabbage).

Essentially a cool-weather crop, kohlrabi grows equally well when seeds are sown in early spring or when planted in late summer for a fall crop. The varieties commonly on the market, Early Purple Vienna and Early White Vienna, are quick-maturing so that short rows, planted every two or three weeks are the best way for the gardener to handle this vegetable.

Sow seeds in a shallow drill, thin 2-inch-high seedlings so that those left are 6 to 8 inches apart in the row, and pull the plants for use when the knobs are golf-ball size — and tender.

Since many people misunderstand and think that size is synonymous with "getting the most for your money", they think kohlrabi is a hard, woody vegetable. Actually they've tasted it only when overgrown and fit only for the compost pile.

Try any one of the following ways to prepare this vegetable and you'll agree it's a valuable addition to your table. 1 — Peel it, cut it into paper thin slices and use these in salad with any preferred dressing.

2 — Peel and slice, then boil in a small amount of salted water until tender. Drain. Serve with white sauce.

3 — Put 2 tablespoons of butter into a saucepan, add half of a small onion, chopped fine. Brown onion, slightly. Add peeled and thinly sliced kohlrabi, turning slices frequently to brown them slightly. Then add just enough water to prevent burning and continue to add it little by little, only as needed until slices are tender — which takes about 20 minutes.

4 — Wash the leaves and cook like spinach. Chop them fine when tender. Put them in a serving dish and over them place the knobs cooked as in number 3 above. Delicious!

plants or shrubs. They'll help the plants along and attract WORMS BY THE SCORE which will help you score on the next fishing trip.

Sports Afield

Anyone who, for the first time, encounters the new freeze-dry foods for sportsmen that were introduced a little over a year ago at the National Sporting Goods Association show in Chicago will be impressed, but will undoubtedly retain a sneaking notion that the whole thing is too good to be true. Yet, the excellence and practicability of this type of food cannot be too strongly emphasized.

"I have used it in quantity for months," says John Jobson, Camping Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, on two lengthy wilderness trips, one to the north-central Yukon Territory and the other to the coastal grizzly country of British Columbia, not to mention forays into the mountains of northern California. I have never eaten better or with more ease in the field."

Consuming such exotica as fresh pork chops, aromatic and wholesome chicken stew, superb shrimp cocktail, fresh boneless Creole and choice beefsteaks in the midst of shrieking, subarctic gales may seem like a starving man's delirium, but it's true nonetheless.

Even using the term fresh is done advisedly, for that is exactly how the food—both meat and vegetables—appear when prepared according to directions. Take beefsteaks. As they come from the package, they are rather small, undistinguished-looking objects, so lightweight that a person gets the impression that if he tossed one in the air, it would sort of drift to the ground like a piece of goose down.

But just add water, and an amazing transformation occurs. As the cells fill, the hemoglobin unites with the water, and blood is formed. The steak swells, and it's a juicy piece of meat ready to be broiled or pan-fried—exactly as would be its counterpart, fresh out of the butcher's showcase.

Freeze-drying combines the best features of quick-frozen foods with dehydration. The food does not change its basic character; it retains essential nutritive elements; it rehydrates readily and rapidly, absorbing a volume of water approximately equal to the amount removed in drying; and its stable without refrigeration. From the standpoint of preservation alone, this method may be called the greatest invention since the metal can.

Combine all this with space-saving, light weight, ease of preparation without trimming, peeling or long waiting, and one can see that this deal deserves a long, interested look from all outdoorsmen.

Henry Ford enjoyed old-fashioned dancing and encouraged his friends and associates to join him in weekly sessions. Soon more than 34 universities, colleges and institutions were offering dance instruction under Ford patronage.

High School Had Outstanding Team

St. Joseph High School completed the 1963 baseball season undefeated, rolling over seven opponents in their quest for the unblemished record. Two other contests, with St. Maria Goretti of Hagerstown and Lincroft of High School, were cancelled because of weather.

Combining flawless fielding, timely hitting and strong pitching, the Josephites downed every opponent they faced to record the first athletic undefeated season in the school's history. The pitching was provided by stellar Jack Topper, who impressed all who saw him winning five games, and fast-balling Gene Lingg, who spelled Topper on the mound and contributed two victories. The infield combination of Jim May, Dennis Stahley, John Little and Mike Tracey, performed errorlessly with only two mis-throws ruining the fielding excellence. Clutch hitting was the secret of most of the victories, led by Don Byard, Sam Cool, Jim Topper and George Brown.

The team was coached by Fr. Jim Delaney, who in his first season guided the team to its undefeated record.

The scores were as follows:
St. Joseph 14, St. Maria Goretti 7; St. Joseph 16, St. John (Frederick) 1; St. Joseph 10, Emmitsburg 8; St. Joseph 10, St. John (Westminster) 6; St. Joseph 8, Emmitsburg 2; St. Joseph 9, St. John (Westminster) 0; St. Joseph 6, St. John (Frederick) 5.

Cattle Vaccination Urged By Vets

Maryland farmers today were advised to vaccinate all calves over three months old to avoid possible costly losses by blackleg disease in areas where the disease caused losses in the past.

Blackleg, an acute infectious disease caused by a spore and gas-forming germ in pasture soil, affects principally young cattle from three months old to two years old and is most common from early spring to autumn.

The Maryland State Veterinary Medical Association said the best treatment is to prevent it. Blackleg bacterin is a reliable and effective immunizing agent against the disease, once considered to be the biggest killer of calves.

Widespread immunization has steadily decreased its incidence. Many cattle owners, to avoid taking chances of losing animals with blackleg, follow the practice of vaccinating every six months all animals between the ages of two and ten months. One dose of bacterin is generally considered sufficient for an individual animal.

New Books At Library

For children and adults, the Emmitsburg Public Library is pleased to announce that it now owns a collection of six books on the life of Mother Seton. Five of the six were donated by the Seton Guild in Emmitsburg. "Mrs. Seton," by Joseph Dirwin; "Mother Seton," by Rev. Charles White; "Letters of Mother Seton to Mrs. Julianna Scott," by Msgr. Joseph B. Code; "Elizabeth Seton," by Code, and "Little Birds and Little Fishes," by Mary Louise Callahan. The other book, "Mother Seton and the Sisters of Charity," was received from the C. Burr Artz Library in Frederick. This book written by Alma Power-Waters, is a junior and young adult version. Any of these books will be ready to circulate June 15. The books are currently displayed in the library window. The library board expresses sincere thanks to Father McGowan and the Seton Guild for their generous contribution to the local library.

The Board of Directors of the Library met Tuesday evening with Bill Ryder, chairman, presiding. The librarian reported the circulation for the month of May, 100 adult and 350 children books for the month and 1,840 since January 1. A letter from C. Burr Artz stated that the position of Co-ordinator of County services has been filled. The Co-ordinator will join the County system July 1 and will make regular visits to the branch libraries.

It should be noted that registration for the summer reading program is still open to anyone interested. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, July 2, 1963.

Road Fatalities

Continue To Rise

Twelve persons were killed on Maryland highways last week, according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police, an increase of three over the previous week.

Five of those killed were drivers; three were passengers; and four were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in four of the deaths; speed in three; and "driver error" was present in nine of the fatalities.

According to Major G. E. Davidson, Field Commander of the Maryland State Police, "half of these deaths were the direct result of failure to grant right-of-way. Three of those killed were pedestrians crossing the roadway improperly, and three occurred because of failure to obey stop signs. This experience certainly emphasizes the fact that infringement upon the rights of others may have a terminal effect on our lives.

"It is so easy to develop bad habits by 'slipping' through a stop sign when no one is looking or take a short-cut across a busy street or highway when we think we can 'get away with it'."

"We may successfully 'get away with it' time and time again," added Major Davidson, "but the more we disregard important rules of the road, the more likely we are to become a victim of our own bad habits."
