Regarding the two-hour parking signs in several sections of the town which I mentioned in my column last week, comes a letter to this correspondent. The writer of the letter does not condone the town's laxity in enforcing the parking ordinance and suggests several ways in which the condition can be remedied. The letter follows: Dear Abigail:

I was reading your article about the two-hour parking in certain parts of town. I feel sorry for those people. They are lucky they can park for two hours. I can't park at all in front of my home unless I play the meter. I also have an apartment house and I made a parking lot for myself and my tenants. I have one of the smallest lots of ground in town, 18 feet wide to be exact, yet I manage to park off the street.

If the people that have those old fire traps and rat harbor sheds and barns would tear them down there would be plenty of parking space. Not only that it would help beautify our

All last winter I was kept awake by an old metal roof that was loose and has been rattling and about to blow off for the past year. It isn't only a danger to life but to parked cars also. Just take a few minutes some time and drive around the alleys and I think you will see what I mean. Weeds are growing up eight and ten feet tall and that is no good for people with asthma, etc. Also around the outside of the ball park this condition is plainly evident.

Most property owners take pride in their homes and try to keep them in order but then you have this other element I speak of. I wonder what the hundreds of strangers that have, and will continue to visit our town, think of it?

Sometime take a ride around town and I think you will agree with me. You are always making comments on things and some are very good and this time I know you will say the same about what I am writing about.

A Taxpayer

I always have been an advocate of tearing down many of the sheds and barns in our alleys which have come to disuse in recent years. Many of them are about half-way dilapidated and are outright eyesores and a fire menace. Naturally if the buildings serve someone a useful purpose they shouldn't be disturbed, but at the same time they could be repaired and painted. Of prime importance to the community is the widening of at least two of the main alleys, North and South. With the possibility of the Mother Seton School being relocated next years it is highly advisable that South Alley be widened and immediately as school busses and other means of transportation will be greatly increased in the alley next fall. Certainly some of the generous property owners in that section would donate a few feet of ground to the cause, if asked.

In answer to my question in last week's issue about the memorial descriptive plaques that adorned the Old Fountain, I have humbly been advised that they are now located on the grounds of Emmitsburg High School. Many thanks folks.

I was happy to read this week that Gov. Tawes has agreed to cooperate with the Dept. of Interior and Parks and will make Assateague Island a public park. This island, about 30 miles in length, is the last section of coastline remaining free of private ownership in our state. With seashore land becoming more valuable every year, the State has acted in time to obtain the land and it will be developed for the use of the public in the near future. After witnessing the commercialism of Ocean City, Md. it will be a pleasure to see some of our own free land put to good use. There will be no more honkey - tonks, carnivals, sideshows, etc., similar to those existing at our present ocean resort, just good clean ground, developed just enough for some peaceful and quiet vacation recing, fishing, water sports, etc. person.

> This is the time of year when over Labor Day weekend. it's nice to watch the sun come up in the morning - after a night's sleep, that is.

Regardless of the type of painting you're doing, use the best paint possible, even if it costs a few cents more.

That's just plain good economic sense, for the paint itself represents the smallest part of your investment. Biggest item is labor — and it takes just as much time and effort to apply a cheap "bargain" paint, with a dubious life span, as it does a good one. Your dealer is the best source of advice as to the type of paint to use for the kind of surface to be painted.

Adhesion and blister resistance of a new coat depends on the condition of the base coat or surface to which it is applied. Even the best paint won't hold up on a poor surface. So, in-spect carefully before you start. Scrape or sand blistered, cracked or loosely adhering paint down to bare wood, reprime, and then, put on the finest quality material.

One of the newest types, incidentally, is "Lucite" house paint. A water emulsion paint based on the same plastic in-gredients used in the newest auto finishes, it has many advantages over conventional oilbase paints. (Du Pont Paint Information Service)

Hunting Dogs Now

Dog training will be permitted between Sept. 10 and March 1, according to the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission, provided an attendant accompanies the dog or dogs.

The attendant shall not carry a gun or firearms of any description and must possess a hunter's license and display the tag on his outer garment. Dogs may run or be trained on woodcock, English ringneck, Mongolian and Melanistic pheasants, partridge (quail) provided the attendant does not permit the dogs to catch or kill any game during the training period.

LITTLE ROCK CAPTURED: SUMTER REPELS ATTAC

By Lon K. Savage

Another important Confederate city-Little Rock, Ark. -was captured by Federal troops 100 years ago this week.

The fall of Little Rock came under an onslaught of attacking Federals who heavily outnumbered the Confederates defending the city. But during that same week, Federal sailors and marines made another attack-a dramatic, night attack in boats—on Fort Sumter at Charleston, S. C., and could show nothing for it but their dead and wounded.

The two attacks seemed to be representative of the Civil War during the early years: victory in the west, defeat in the east for the Federals.

The attack on Little Rock had had its origin back in July, when Vicksburg and Port Hudson had been captured and the Mississippi River had been cleared of Confederates. Once that job was done, Federal General Frederick Steele was dispatched from Vicksburg to Helena, Ark., to join forces with Gen. John W. Davidson, coming south from Missouri. The two got together on the White River and moved straight west for Little Rock with 14,500 men. At Little Rock

That was more than enough. At Little Rock, Confederate General Sterling Price, the former Missouri governor, had only 7,500 men to defend.

Davidson and Steele approached the city on September 10, moving along the Arkansas River, Davidson on the south bank, Steele on the north. Davidson made the first attack against 1,200 Confederates at Bayou Fourche, just east of the city.

There wasn't much to the fight. Davidson attacked on two roads, while Steele opened an enfilading artillery fire from across the river. The Confederates, in a hopeless position, fell back through the city. Price, who had been across the river to oppose Steele, realized his plight, crossed back into the city, burned eight steamers and then retreated for Arkadelphia. It was as easy as that; total casualties numbered only 200 for both sides. At Sumter

The Federal attack on Sumter was more dramatic but Sumter had been reduced by artillery fire to rubble in recent weeks, and Federal Admiral John A. Dahlgren figured it would be a simple matter to seize the historic but now useless fort. On September 8, he ordered 400 sailors and marines to attack the fort in boats, telling them they would find "nothing but a corporal's guard to oppose you."

The "corporal's guard," however, turned out to be more than 400 well armed Confederates, sent to the fort on suspicion of an attack. The Federals came in boats, pulled by a tug; 800 yards from the fort, the tug turned them loose, and the Federals swiftly rowed through the night toward the island fort.

Suddenly, a shout went up from the fort; a rocket shot into the air, and missiles rained in from all sides on the luckless Federals from nearby Confederate land batteries and gunboats. From Sumter's crumbling parapets, Confederates poured musket fire and grenades into the boats. Two boats landed on the fortress island, and their occupants were captured.

The others fled, and when the night was over, 124 of the 400 were dead, wounded or missing. Next week: Chickamauga.

Bogus Crisis

Federal aid to education has never made much sense, and it makes a great deal less now than ever before. A decade ago we were debating the idea far and wide, at which time the alarmists were pedicting the direst of consequences if the education of our children were left to the States. But we have gotten along quite well without crisis or chaos, with the states assuming both the financial costs and the direction of our public schools. Even so, the alarmists are still at it, rolling out the crises before each Congress.

Education is of such a nature, it is true, that you never are quite well satisfied, regardless of what you accomplish. This is as it should be. We are not satisfied, even when the progress is astounding. There is no stopping place for achievement and excellence. This is as it should be. But this does not give excuse to the National Education Association and other groups to keep their lobby oiled-up year after year, to manufacture incessant "crisis" for Congressional consumption, and to line up with every call for more and bigger government. Facts Are Dramatic

We have come to rather expect the national party platforms and the occupants of the White House to go along with any lobby that looks like it can get out a significant portion of the vote. Politicians are reluctant to buck the education lobby, but it is a credit to Congress that when it looks for the facts it finds no school crisis to exist. The House Education Committee has again shelved the White House plans for federal grants to participate in the paying of teachers and the building of classrooms. The Congress remains unconvinced.

Statistics assembled from the educational organizations themselves, as well as from the federal government, show that the states, counties, and cities have met successfully the postwar boom of enrollments and classroom shortages, and are rapidly increasing salaries of teachers. The U. S. News & World Report has recently researched these matters, and its findings make a dramatic case for the idea that propaganda and exaggeration, not facts, provide the basis for these perennial "crisis" in American education.

Progress Impressive Spending for public schools has quadrupled since the end of World War II, and even perpupil-spending is double what it was 15 years ago. Totla outlays, including spending for colleges, reached almost $25 billion 1960. This includes some federal spending for impacted areas, etc., but President Kennedy nonetheless asked for $1.5 billion more in federal funds for all the schools. Even the South has made substantial progress: eight of 11 Southern states have boosted teachers'

salaries more than the national average in 15 years. Earnings of public school teachers have increased 164 per cent since 1946. The average of $5,940 for nine months of works puts the pay of public schoolteachers away ahead of averages of government workers and workers in private industry. This has helped improve teacher shortages and produce a more favorable teacher - pupil ratio. Classroom shortages have shown marked improvement, despite swelling enrollments. shortages have decreased by 24 per cent since 1956. To describe all this as crisis requires high imagination.

What They Really Want What then do the proponents of federal aid, being more interested in propaganda than in facts, want? They say little about federal control, although they are aware that it is an established principle that federal direction and control cannot be separated from the supplying of federal funds. There is some evidence that those seeking federal money actually want the federal control. Overview, a magazine of school administrators, editorialized in 1960: "The long held view . . . that education policy should be made by local units of government will have to go . . . the national welfare demands a national system of education." The U.S. Office of Education has projected its vision to include expanding federal programs of aid. And it declares the federal government "must also develop new avenues of assistance and patterns of educational leadership." This is one way of describing a centralized, federalized, socialized school system for the whole nation, a system that would put all education right under the thumb of a federal administrator and the occupant of the White

Newspapermen Hold Meeting

OCEAN CITY, Md.-In retail selling, all business is local, and there isn't anything more 'local' than the home town newspaper, an executive of one of the nation's principal advertising agencies told Maryland and Delaware editors here Saturday.

Hans L. Carstensen, Jr., vice president of N. W. Ayer & Son, nc., spoke at a meeting of the Maryland-Delaware Press Association on the subject, "An Agency Man Looks at Newspapers."

"I don't believe any advertising man could refute the idea that in retail selling all business is local, and that all products are sold locally by one person to another,' Carstensen said. "Certainy there isn't anything more local than the local newspaper. Local news is the backbone of every one of your businesses. But for the most part you and your colleagues across the country haven't been selling yourselves as much as you might as a vital and integral part of the communities you serve." "Maybe you expect everyone to local paper." Carstensen told the editors that ocal merchants get a better response to, and place more advertising in the newspapers than any other medium. And the newspapers are able to offer advertisers more effective local merchandising support than any competitive medium, he pointed out.

"How, then, could you permit an advertiser to feel that other media have a greater impact on the trade in the face of these facts?" he asked.

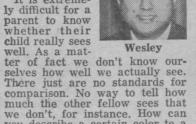

"I believe that all of you who advertise and promote your publications can do yourselves a great deal of collective good if you will stop competing against each oth-

ALICE B. BLAKELY 918 Northwest Shephard St., N.W. Washington, D. C.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Alice B. Blakely. The Bill recites that plainant, Stanley T. Blakely, is a resident of Frederick County, Maryland, being a member of the Armed Forces of the United States, stationed at East Coast Relay Station, Fort Detrick, Frederick, Maryland; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, residing at 918 Northwest Shephard Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.; that the parties to this cause were married on July 17, 1962, at Wilmington, N. C., by Rev. Boykins, a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage no child or children were born; that between the time of the said marriage and the filing of this Bill of Complaint your Complainant has discovered that the Defendant has committed the crime of adultery in Frederick County, Maryland, with a certain man whose name is unknown to him at the present time; and that since the discovery of said adultery your Complainant has not lived or cohabited with the Defendant as husband and wife, nor has he forgiven or condoned her actions in any way.

The Bill then prays that the Complainant, Stanley T. Blakely, be divorced A VINCULO MATRI-MONII from the Defendant, Alice B. Blakely, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require.

COURT ORDER

It is thereupon this 19th day of August, 1963, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the County of Frederick, once each week for four successive weeks before the 14th day of September, 1963, commanding her to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by so-licitor, on or before the 15th day of October, 1963, and show cause, if any she has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed. BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Heredity BABSON PARK, Mass., September 12 - Nobody sensibly thinks that we are not affected

f u ndamental, and has existed for all the thousands of g e n e rations that have preceded us. But, we have come from so many g e n e rations that it is absolutely impossible to pick out any one person and say that this is "the one" from whom we have descended. Therefore, although we must recognize that the life of each of us is affected by one or more previous generations, it is absolutely silly for us to attempt to single out any individual as responsible for our inherited characteristics. Our Mother's Blood

There is, of course, no question but that our mother's blood came to us through the imbilical cord, and no doubt we were very much influenced by what our mother was thinking about during the nine months preceding our birth. She, in turn, was largely influenced by the way her husband treated her and by the various events that happened to take place during those nine months

So you see that heredity can be, and often is, affected by very strange and tiny circumstances which complicate the whole problem still further. Therefore, although we must all believe in heredity, both in a general way and even with regard to our specific immediate and sometimes even irresponsible-link for any of us to tie to. ancestry, it is a very delicate --Isabel Babson's History

I like to date my own ancestry from a brave woman who came from England or Holland with her son James. and landed in Salem in 1637. This was a year when the so-called "witches" were being so brutally treated, and Isabel took her son James and got on the first fishing boat which hap-pened to be coming to Cape Ann. She landed on the beach and built a rough log cabin which is now 69 Main Street, Gloucester.

Later, she helped her son

James build a stone house which may still be seen on Route 127 halfway between Gloucester and Rockport. There James cut staves in the woods out in back and made barrels which he sold to the fishermen to pack with dried codfish for Bermuna and the West Indies. Then there is another story, telling how James' son John lost all his sons at sea. But one was married and had left a pregnant wife on shore, from whom our family all descended.

A Memorial To Isabel Babson Isabel Babson in the 17th century did for eastern New England what Florence Nightingale did two centuries later for the whole world. She acted as physician, midwife, and nurse to all the families then living on Cape Ann. This year (1963), at approximately the 300th anniversary of her death, a handful of people bought for a memorial the property on Isabel's home site at what is now 69 Main Street, where she lived and served the people during her lifetime.

The purpose of my column this week is to tell my readers that the Isabel Babson Memoria lis designed to call the world's attention to the importance of those nine months which precede baby is little influenced by great-grandparents and earlier ancestors, who increase to large numbers, the baby is tremendously affected by what his mother is doing and thinking during those vital nine months before the umbilical cord is cut and the effects of direct inheritance are thus ended.

European Common Market I cannot close without one important comment on the work of the six countries which have combined to trade in goods and commodities and eliminate tariff barriers. In short, I wonder if these six nations will realize their real ideal and goal until they recognize the importance of heredity by combining in a new spirit. In order for the Common Market to be a success, it must unite its dreams and prayers in a common laboratory at Brussels. Instead of each country having its own theology or selfish ambition, it must ally with the others in one spiritual laboratory if it is ultimately to succeed.

Topping Off - Florida Style

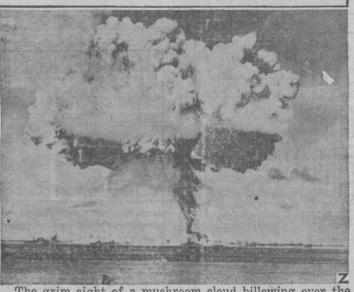

When builders finish the roof of a building, it is traditional to hold a "topping-off" ceremony with the workers hoisting a roof tree and a few beers. But in Florida they do things differently. At the topping-off of the 16-story Royal Admiral apartment house in Fort Lauderdale, a contest was held to show that the building is only a stone's throw from the surf.

The building will have 216 rental apartments with ocean view, heated swimming pool, individual central air conditions.

Toward World Peace

The grim sight of a mushroom cloud billowing over the land . . . spreading radioactive fallout . . . will soon be a thing of the past . . . pending ratification by the U.S. Senate of the and Great Britain.

As a result of renewed testing in 1961-62, first by the USSR and then by the U.S., radioactive fallout will double in 1963. Dangers of overexposure include a shortening of life, increased incidence of leukemia, sterility, serious injury to the central nervous system. malformation of human tem, malformation of human

Patchwork Out; Do Complete Job On Leaky Roof

Patchwork sometimes pays—when the elbows of a favorite jacket give out, for instance. But it's false economy to patch a shabby, leaky roof. A roof usually wears out evenly, so when one or two leaks de-velop in an old roof, others may be quick to follow. Sometimes just walking on an old roof to patch it opens up new leaks.

Better than spot repairs is a complete new roof. Asphalt shingles, which are low in applied cost, durable, and attractive, can be applied over most existing roofs, making re-roofing practical in any season. A new asphalt shingle roof will add value to the house and will protect it for

FOR WARM ATTIC

A pre-fab fireplace, which is easy to install, can keep an otherwise unheated attic warm even in cold weather if the attic is well insulated with mineral wool before it is finished

Use batts or blankets of mineral wool labeled R-19 in the ceiling and R-11 in both outside and knee walls for the right amount of resistance to the passage of heat. For extra wayning sage of heat. For extra warmth from radiation, leave the flue pipe of the fireplace exposed to the point where it passes through the ceiling.

Music Bridges Generations

Do you enjoy teenager's music — or cringe at the sound of it? How does your teenager feel about your music preferences?
Build a bridge of better underprogram.

Teens can tell
why they prefer certain types of music impress teenagers with melodies of an earlier generation. For this program, you'll need your own group, some young adults, a musical instrument and refreshments.

An electric organ with the harmonic drawbar system of mixing tones permits the player to choose from thousands of tones, and has both the instant response needed for popular music, and legato action for the smooth, lilt-ing songs of yesterday.

Invite at least one teen who plays the harmonic drawbar electric organ and another who can explain why teens like heavy beat, dissonant songs.

Give the teens twenty minutes for their kind of music. Then let member of your own group demonstrate your generation's favorite melodies.

The result will be a better understanding of each kind of music, a greater respect for each, and a closer relationship between generations.
