Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

Emmitsburg citizens hardly have any gripe coming when they receive notice in the near future that their water bills have been increased. Actually we have been getting a break for a long, long time by the low rate we have been paying. This week the Public Service Commission permitted Hanover to raise its rate high enough to bring in over $40,000 more per year to offset the expenses incurred by improvements to its water system. I understand that several neighboring towns are paying $16 per quarter while we still are enjoying an $8.00 rate. Predictions are that our rate will jump to about $12 this year, due naturally to the half million dollars we are spending at the present time for much needed improvements to our water system.

After a valiant struggle the past few years, our local theater has given up the ship and has closed its doors. The local show house, as well as thousands of small theaters the country over, is experiencing difficulty in keeping its head above water, financially, for the past decade or so. About two years ago a group of local young men took over the operation of the business, knowing they wouldn't make any money, but with the hope of giving the Town an entertainment house. They were right... They didn't make any money but they did provide entertainment. Then just recently a crusade organized by a local church, began knowing away at the management for showing Class "B" movies. These particular shows are condemned in part by the Legion of Decency. The owners, in defense, maintained it couldn't obtain enough Class "A" shows to fill the schedule, as many of the first-run shows were classified as Class "B". The debate went on for several months and finally the management gave up in disgust and closed its doors, perhaps forever. Ironically, some of the owners said they made more money and had better attendance at the "B" shows, and the theater, to my knowledge, has never shown a class "C" picture which is "condemned" for all.

With the closing of the local theater and the absence of local baseball for our teen-agers and to boot, no swimming pool or skating rink, I am beginning to wonder just what our youth is expected to do for recreation. Other than bowling there is no recreational facilities whatsoever and we are fast coming to grips with the juvenile problem here. This might be a modern world but you and I had a lot better times back 40 years ago. Before we have a real juvenile problem dumped into our laps we had better start making plans for our youth... and soon.

Contrary to some people's opinion, all is not quiet on the school situation. As a matter of fact there is plenty of action going on at the present time. Frederick and Baltimore lawyers are studying the situation at the present time and local individuals are working on the project. Our latest information is that the situation will be talked over at the next regular meeting of the Board of Education to be held in Frederick in April. The Jaycees report financial contributions are coming in intermittently but much more money is needed to meet the legal expense incurred. There are quite a number of local organizations, clubs, individuals yet to be heard from and we urge them to get their contributions in just as soon as possible. Now that the battle to protect our school has begun we cannot let ourselves appear as a "paper tiger", fierce and rough looking on the outside but soft in the inside. We have started the battle so let's finish it. Get those contributions in please.

Good morning! How are you this fine Spring a. m.? You do know today is the first day of Spring, the one you have been waiting for? Along about the middle of the week though one felt almost as though he was in the middle of winter with the mercury dipping to a freezing 15 degrees. We're over the "hump" so to speak, and our nice weather is just around the corner, even though you wouldn't

NEW RESIDENCE HALL AT COLLEGE NEAR COMPLETION

The three-wing residence hall at St. Joseph College, started last June, is expected to be ready for student occupancy in the fall semester. Sister Rosemary, president of the college, said this week that priority was given to this project of the college's ten-year program of campus expansion initiated in 1963 to alleviate crowded conditions in the present dormitory facilities and to accommodate an expected increase in enrollment.

The brick-faced residence is of modified modern architecture designed to harmonize with existing campus structures. The three-story building is 157x170 feet, of reinforced concrete and masonry, with a slate roof, and contains 100 rooms. It is erected on the campus entrance road adjacent to the Student Center. Double bedrooms equipped with built-in desks and chests of drawers, will provide resident facilities for 160 girls. Each floor will feature TV rooms, a counselor's office, study rooms, laundry equipment, vending rooms, and telephone booths. An elevator is also included in the plans.

Architects are Faulkner, Kingsbury & Stenhouse of Washington, D. C., and the general contractor is Consolidated Engineering Co., Inc., of Baltimore, Md.

Receives Medal

Staff Sergeant Maurice E. Fitz, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Fitz, Sr., Emmitsburg, has been decorated with the United States Air Force Commendation Medal. Sergeant Fitz was awarded the medal for his meritorious service as a requirements and planning branch supervisor while at Dow AFB, Maine. He is now assigned to Zaragoza AFB, Spain, as a liquid fuels system technician.

Science Fair At Local School

Emmitsburg Public School will hold its annual Science Fair and Achievement Night on Tuesday, March 24, 1964, 7 to 9 p.m.

Students in grades seven thru twelve will be participating in the Science Fair, entering projects in four categories—Physics, Biology, Chemistry, and Earth-Space Science. Mr. Francis Fair is director of the Science Fair with the assistance of Mr. Claude Corl Jr.

Judging of the science projects will be done by a group of students selected by the student Planning Committee. The judges will select five to ten projects from about one hundred entries. Those selected will be sent to the County Science Fair in April.

All classes, grades one through twelve, will participate in Achievement Night. Classrooms will be open and teachers present to talk with parents and other visitors. A sampling of children's work will be on display in each room.

Bunny Hop

A Teen-Age dance will be held in the Fire Hall tonight, starting at 8 and continuing until 11 o'clock.

The affair is being sponsored by the Emmitsburg J. C.'s and music will be furnished by The Combinations. All teen-agers are cordially invited.

Banns Announced

Banns of marriage were announced for the first time on Sunday in St. Joseph's Church for Miss Margaret Bouey of Emmitsburg and Francis Smith of Taneytown.

Homemakers Gather For Picture

The regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Homemakers Club was held at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Harner Feb. 27, with 15 members and the following guests present: Mrs. William Slemmer, Sr., Mrs. William Slemmer, Jr., Mrs. Roy Seifert, Mrs. M. D. Holmes, Mrs. Adrian Martin and Mrs. Pauline Seabrook.

Mrs. John Chatlos called the meeting to order with a prayer. Mrs. Luther Cregger, clothing leader, gave a demonstration on color and you. Three guests were models, showing various colors and shades on whites, brunettes and blonds. She pointed out that color has more influence on personal appearance than the lines and designs of the costume.

The Directors' reports were given by Mrs. Cregger. Mrs. Floyd Lewis, Mrs. Charles Harner and Mrs. Cregger were named a committee to make a patriotic motif for a table decoration at the annual spring meeting. Mrs. B. P. Ogle and Mrs. Paul Beale will serve as hostesses at the meeting, and Mrs. Cregger will be delegate. Following the meeting pictures were taken by a photographer from Lane Studios, Gettysburg.

Scouts Give Resume Of Year's Activities

Troop 1300

During the past year the Brownies have been learning what the Brownie B's are: Be Discoverers, Be Ready Helpers, Be Friend Makers. These are new to the Girl Scout program.

On a seed time hike in the fall we discovered all sorts of seed on trees, weeds and flowers. From a color hike we brought back leaves to make up a leaf scrapbook. Once we marked off one square yard of ground in the backyard. Each girl listed what she found in her square yard of space and the winner had listed 34 items.

At Day Camp there were visits to the Grotto and one day was spent on an all day hike to Cunningham Falls.

We did handwork—some just for fun—tin can stilts, for instance. My, what a clatter! Some handwork was done for others. We made roses of pretty hankies and gave them for Mother's Day gifts. Dad was remembered on his day with gifts, too.

One of our nicest parties was given for a dear friend in the neighborhood. To help the late Mrs. Estelle Watkins celebrate her 80th birthday, the girls made small gifts and then all went to her house to present them to her. She treated all 20 of us to cookies and we took a picture of the girls grouped about our Birthday Lady.

For Hallowe'en we had a very different kind of party. Dividing into groups of 3 or 4 girls each, we decided on a chairman, a designer and a model. Then taking only newspapers and pins each group worked out a costume to be presented by the model. We had a flower girl, a bride, a princess and a fairy. In November we made place mats for our tables at home and also turkey centerpieces from brown paper bags stuffed with newspapers. For Christmas we made gifts for Mother and Dad and tree decorations for our home and for the tree at our meeting place.

To begin the new year we made calendars so each girl would know what day it was. The Valentines we made were used on the trays at the Pape Nursing Home in Gettysburg. The old folks were most appreciative of the small attentions from our Brownies.

We have started some seed in egg cartons lined with foil and placed them in a sunny window. Yes, they are growing. Each girl planted a small section and we are very proud of our radishes and carrot tops.

At the Brownie "fly-up" in October we lost a great many of our members who became members of the new Junior troop 405. However, we did have some girls left in the troop and some new ones have joined us. There is room for several more girls if you want to join. We meet after school on Monday at the Methodist Church and our leader is Mrs. Ralph D. Lindsey. Other members of our troop are: Vida Antolin, Phyllis Davis, Patty Eyler, Kathy Gillespie, June Hardman, Gloria Long, Valerie McClellan, Laura O'Brien, Deborah Rohrbaugh, Jennifer Simpson, Bobbie Jean Staub, Lorie Ginter, Rose Marie Staub, Yvonne Rosensteel, Shirley Wilson, Beth Anne Little and Shirley Manning.

Troop 1487

Junior Girl Scout Troop 1487 experienced a year of varied activities. Highlights were our Mexican farewell party for Kristine

Odde who left to spend a year in Mexico; a Hallowe'en party; Thanksgiving tray favors for Victor Cullen Hospital patients; a Christmas play for the Brownies given the night we caroled with other troops; a Valentine party; and work on many achievement badges.

Our outstanding achievement was the successful adoption of the patrol system. A Girl Scout troop belongs to all its members and the troop is richer because of the strength and ingenuity of patrols, all working together on troop plans. Patrol leaders this year include: Dorothy Marshall, Karen Warthen, Juanita Lindsey and Beverly Davis.

Troop 1487 takes this opportunity to thank Mr. Paul Carter for granting permission to use the Emmitsburg Pharmacy window for Girl Scout displays throughout the year.

Our leader is Mrs. Richard Dickson and the members of the troop are: Jacqueline Balmer, Denise Bouey, Beverly Davis, Debbie Dick, Pamela Dickson, Patricia Dickson, Mary Beth Eckenrode, Wanda Eiker, Darlene Glass, Marlene Glass, Linda Gillespie, Holly Keepers, Susan Keepers, Carolyn Keilholtz, Mary Margaret Kozt, Juanita Lindsey, Nancy Mathias, Dorothy Marshall, Connie Michael, Lynn Miller, Barbara Myers, Mary Ellen McGucken, Darlene Nushbaum, Rose Mary Ricketts, Shirley Sheeley, Paula Trembley and Karen Warthen. Mrs. F. S. K. Matthews is an honorary member.

Scout Night

Held Monday

Last Monday night an appreciative audience watched the Girl Scouts of Emmitsburg present a program as part of their Girl Scout Week observance, in the high school auditorium.

The program opened with the flag ceremony. The flag bearer was Phyllis Chatlos, representing Senior Troop 88. The color guard was Marty Byard and Diane Dutro, both members of Cadette Troop 1316. The Salute to the flag was given and the National Anthem sung.

Cadette Troop 1316 used as their theme "Footprints Around the World." Each member had given a nickel for every inch her foot was long as her contribution to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. The troop told how this money each year is used to strengthen the footprints of Scouting around the world through international exchanges of persons and ideas. At the close of this part of the program each troop was given a chance to present its gift to the fund. One troop had each member give a penny for every inch she was around the waist. Another troop gave a penny for every year she was old. One troop tried to cover the world with their pennies. A total of $17.71 was given to the World Friendship Fund in Memory of Juliette Low, the Founder of Girl Scouting in the United States of America.

Brownie Troop 1300 with Mrs. Ralph Lindsey as leader pantomimed a story from South Africa. "The Sunbeam Story" showed how one sunbeam was not very strong, but all together they were very strong. So, one penny is not much, but put together, they make quite a sum.

Junior Troop 405 presented "Sisters Around the World," as several members, dressed in native costumes of many lands encircled the Statue of Liberty, while the choir composed of the rest of the troop sang "When E'er You Make a Promise" and "God Bless America." Mrs. Frederick Culbreath is the leader.

A new song, "The Growing-Up Tree" has just been published and made on record. Troop 1316 presented this recording for the Scouts of the community.

Brownie Troop 1317 showed "A Brownie Meeting," in action as they conducted a business meeting and then played games led by two Cadette Scouts, Diane Dutro and Mary Kay Sherwin, who are helping this troop while working on a proficiency badge. The leaders are Mrs. George Danner and Mrs. Louis Orndorff.

The evening closed appropriately with the "Junior Campfire" of Junior Troop 1487. Around the fire they talked about their summer experiences at Day Camp and on the overnight trip to Cunningham Falls Park. They sang many of the songs learned at camp and led the audience with the closing song, "Taps." The leader is Mrs. Richard Dickson.

The Scouts wish to thank Mr. Grushon, the janitor of the school, for his services; Mrs. Earl Rice who played the piano; Rudy Chatlos who worked the lights and curtains, and Calvin Chatlos for his accordion solo.

Troop 405

Junior Girl Scout Troop 405 began its life on September 9, 1963 with 14 girls. After the Brownies "flue-up" the troop increased to 33 members, as the "flue-up" changes Brownies into Juniors.

The troop has been very active along many lines. They visited the Gettysburg Battlefield in November. For Christmas they made door wreaths and kitchen dolls for their mothers for presents. The troop joined with the other Scouts of Emmitsburg to go caroling and had refreshments afterwards, at the Methodist Church where they meet each Monday after school. The troop had a Christmas party at the VFW Annex where they exchanged gifts and played games.

The members of this troop have been busy since Christmas working on their badges which include: Cook, Gypsy, Child Care and Pen Pal. The whole troop became drama-minded after the Elves Patrol put on a 3-act play. The Rose Patrol presented another 3-act play based on Girl Scout Week. The other patrols are busy writing and preparing their plays for presentation.

The Elves Patrol which is working on the Cook badge visited their troop leader and prepared an entire dinner which consisted of baked chicken, two different types of salad, celery and carrot sticks, kool aid, and dessert. They also played games and learned some dances of other countries. The girls worked hard on their part of the program which was

Lutherans Oppose Taxing Churches

The Lutheran Synod of Maryland has endorsed a move to intervene as friends of the court in the suit filed by Mrs. Madelyn Murray, Baltimore atheist, against the state to get church-owned property on the tax rolls.

As of now, church property is not taxed.

Mrs. Murray filed suit in the Circuit Court of Baltimore recently to have church property brought under the Maryland tax laws and named Louis L. Goldstein as the primary defendant.

The Lutheran Synod, representing 100,000 members in the state, said it would authorize Earl E. Manges, of Cumberland, and G. F. Flentje, Jr., of Baltimore, to enter the case as amicus curiae.

The Rev. Howard H. Ritterpusch, secretary, was also instructed by the Synod Executive Board to inform the 175 congregations of this action and invite those congregations of the Synod holding property in Maryland to join in this suit with the Synod.

Mrs. Bowers, the former Shirley Liller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Liller, formerly of Emmitsburg R2, was accompanied to Washington by members of the Soroptimist service project committee. The group was escorted on a special tour of the White House prior to the interview. Afterwards they visited the late President's grave in Arlington Cemetery.

COMMAND IN WEST GIVEN TO SHERMAN

By Lon K. Savage

Ulysses S. Grant, promoted a week earlier to the command of all Federal armies in the Civil War, made his first important decision in that job 100 years ago this week: he gave his old job—commanding the armies in the West—to William Tecumseh Sherman.

Grant traveled all the way from Washington back to Nashville, Tenn., to see that this change of command went smoothly, and he ordered Sherman to come from Memphis to Nashville to meet him.

The two soldiers, fast friends now, met each other with a deep understanding that had grown up between them in their service during the war. Then they went into a huddle to plan some of the grand strategy of the last year of the Civil War.

Grant's Plan

Grant explained his plan to his friend. Sherman would take over the army at Chattanooga, facing the Confederate army of Joseph E. Johnston, then quartered in northern Georgia around Dalton.

Grant, himself, would keep his headquarters near, or with the Army of the Potomac in Virginia. Gen. George Gordon Meade commanded that army, but since Grant was his superior and would stay close to Meade, it was obvious that most of that army's movements would be under Grant's commands.

And along the Virginia coast east of Richmond, Gen. Benjamin F. Butler commanded a smaller army.

Grant's plan, as usual, was quite simple and fitted perfectly into his philosophy that you "find out where your enemy is, get at him as soon as you can and strike him as hard as you can, and keep moving on."

Grant's enemy was Robert E. Lee in Virginia, and Grant would "get at him" as soon as he could by moving on Richmond. He would use Meade's and Butler's armies. Sherman's enemy was Joseph E. Johnston, and he, Sherman, would "get at him" by moving into Georgia.

As Sherman put it later, Grant "was to go for Lee, and I was to go for Joe Johnston."

Central Command

But Grant was to call the signals for the whole operation, and it was this central command, that was new in the policies shaping up for the Federal military machine.

In addition, the whole Federal military machine was to follow Grant's tactics of all-out-war—of hammering, hammering, hammering, relentlessly and perpetually until victory came.

When it came time for the two men to part, they still had not resolved all matters, and Sherman rode Grant's train northward as they continued talking. Finally, he debarked and headed south again, as Grant rode on to Washington.

Grant now had a half million men under his command, and all were being aimed in a single direction: at the enemy.

Next week: The Red River campaign.

There are more outdoor boats in use than all other kinds of pleasure boats put together. 4,085,000 is the estimate for out-boards, more than the combined total for inboards, sailboats and boats for paddles and oars. — Sports Afield.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Computers
BABSON PARK, Mass., Mar. 19, 1964—Every reader of this column is interested in reducing taxes. We see in the newspapers much about the cut in federal income taxes, but almost nothing about a cut in state or local taxes. I believe this will be discussed much more during the next year or two as readers become better acquainted with what computers can do, to reduce county taxes at least. Readers who wish to reduce local and state taxes should send for a salesman from a leading computer manufacturer, such as International Business Machines. What A Florida County Is Doing

In a talk which I had recently with Mr. Paul Pickett of Orlando, Florida, who is on the Budget Committee of Orange County, I gained some very interesting information. He tells me that one of these computers, at a rental of about $7,000 a month, should save the county a net of over $20,000 a month on extra help. Now such a modern computer could do the schedule programming in a few days that it takes school teachers (supplementing their regular employment) several weeks to accomplish. When I asked Mr. Pickett whether the school teachers would complain, he stated, "Many of them will be glad to have extra days off; while many of those who take their places when they have time off are housewives with no regular employment. Thus the employment situation as a whole should not be upset."

In view of the activity of salesmen of the leading companies, it is probable that many more counties may be making this same saving. Whatever the facts are, I am only passing this along to readers as an illustration of what the introduction of computers may accomplish, or upset—according to the circumstances.

Revolution In Education
As the Federal Government is constantly assuming more of the cost and maintenance of road building, the present trend indicates that the greatest "local" expenses will be our public schools. It looks now as if the education of our children could be considerably improved at lower cost by the use of computers.

I feel certain that fewer new school houses will be built and that computers may materially reduce the construction of new college buildings. The taxes which voters are now assessed for the maintenance and operation of buildings used for educational purposes can be considerably lowered and the efficiency of the teachers increased.

Time Now Wasted

For some peculiar reason, parents want their children to spend more time at school. Are they really anxious to have these children learn more; or are they using the school as a sort of "parking lot" for the care of their children a good portion of the day? Of course, I am opposed to the large number of "drop-outs"; but the present educational system may be more responsible for these drop-outs than the children.

At any rate, from visits I have recently made to schools, I do not see much change in the methods of education from when I was in school many years ago. Most leaders of Parent Teachers Associations and other organizations probably agree with me. The immediate question is: Who runs the school? Do the parents, or the teachers, or the taxpayers, or the politicians? It is a very complicated situation; in most communities the school committee are made up largely of businessmen and others who know very little about proper improvement of their schools. When some one committee member makes a study and tries to bring about a reform he is persecuted as one who simply wants publicity.

Importance Of Computers

The early part of this column explains how the budget commissions of many states are using computers to reduce expenses, but I forecast that computers must also be used to increase the efficiency of teaching. Parents seem to believe that the amount of time spent in school determines their children's education. This is all wrong. Instead of the time being increased, it should be decreased. This will someday be done with greater use of computers.

There are several companies which will demonstrate how this can be accomplished—resulting in fewer teachers, better education, lower taxes, and children trained to concentrate and get real jobs for which they are best fitted. Research and new machinery have entered almost every phase of family life except education. I believe education is on the verge of a revolution in which computers will play a prominent part.

STATE POLICE TO STEP UP ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM ON DEFECTIVE EQUIPMENT

Last year the State Police stopped more than 92,000 motorists for defective motor vehicle equipment, such as headlights, turning signals, steering mechanism, brakes, tires, windshield wipers, and windshields and other windows. Four per cent of this number were arrested. Warnings were given to 88,000 who were directed to have the defect corrected. However, there was no follow-up by the police to see that it was done. Because of the ease of detection by police officers, defective lights accounted for the major portion of these equipment violations.

To focus attention on the responsibility of the motorist to maintain his vehicle in safe condition at all times, the State Police has inaugurated a program to promote motor vehicle owner cooperation.

Effective immediately motorists stopped by the State Police for defective equipment violations, except in flagrant cases where arrest is indicated, will be given a written warning and directed to have the defect corrected immediately.

The motorist will be given, also, a post card to be returned to the State Police within five days, certifying that the defective equipment has been corrected. This program will enable the police to follow up on each case and to take appropriate action for non-compliance.

The State Police stated that this follow-up program will help to focus attention on the responsibility of the motorist to see to it that his vehicle is in safe condition at all times. This is just as important as his responsibility to drive safely at all times.

LAKE, SEA & RIVER BY GEORGE ROUNDS

A boat is one thing the average person can do without—unless he likes to be free from crowded highways, to get away from the smells and noise and tensions of Main Street, to be lulled into a peace of mind he never thought possible, to feel the sting of the spray and the hum of his water skis across the silver surface of the lake, to be able to reach otherwise inaccessible coves, or to drop anchor over the best fishing holes in the county. If none of these is your cup of tea, try the ball scores or the society pages and forget you even read this far.

But, if you've ever chewed over the possibility of becoming your own Admiral, or felt the pangs of envy after a ride in a friend's boat, now's the time to put on your shopping hat and find out how easy it can be to go boating, how attainable are the joys of the nautical life.

Before you embark on your aquatic orgy, though, take a good look around—at yourself, your family, your checkbook, and your community. Decide what you want to do with your boat and what your family expects to get out of boating. Determine how much of the budget can be tagged for a boat and its upkeep. Find out just where you can use your boat and where you'll keep it. All of these govern your selection. A good general rule to stash away in the depths of your skull is: keep it simple—simple to buy, simple to use, and simple to maintain. If any one of these becomes a hardship, you may come to hate boating, the boat, and even yourself for getting into either one. There is a boat for every need and every budget. Your job is to find the one that fits you, and a good time to start looking is now.

An inexpensive way to get into boating for the first time is with a used boat. Used boats of every description are generally more plentiful in the fall, and, if they have been maintained properly, are reliable buys. The relative newness of a used boat depends first on the original quality that was built into the boat (brand names can be a good guide here) and on the care the previous owner has given it. There are some boats abroad today that were built in the 1890s and still look new. You can be sure they were well built and lovingly cared for. You'll find everything from "mechanics specials" to "cream puffs" in the used boat market. If you can find a cream puff that suits your needs and your budget, you should have no qualms about buying used.

Your first boat will be more or less a trial horse for you. By trying on for a season or two to see how it fits, you'll get a fair idea of what your dreamboat should be. If you can experiment on a minimum investment you'll come out ahead when it's time to get that dreamboat. Used boats, because of their low cost, are well suited to the "experimental stage" of your boating career. Some people like to look at used boats as being broken in, which is fine as long as they aren't broken down in the process. In addition, a used boat can give you a greater return in relation to your initial investment when you're ready to sell it.

In general, boats hold their values better than cars. National figures show that a five-year-old boat, an inboard, generally is worth one-half its original price—thus it has depreciated an average of 10% each year. The first big bite naturally comes in the first year when its value may drop 30% or more. The amount of depreciation depends on the care the boat received, the design, the make, the size, and the hull material. A recent study, for example, showed that aluminum outboard boats hold their value well over the long pull, dropping to 71.5% of the current price for an equivalent new boat after four years of service. This price strength, even after years of service, is a nice advantage to the owner, particularly when you consider the low maintenance required with aluminum.

But there are advantages in the other hull materials, too. Fiberglass and wood, like aluminum, have their good points and their shortcomings. A lot of ink has been spilled on the subject of hull materials and we'll highlight some of them next time around.

For the time being, though, if you'd like to start shopping for your yacht, whether it be fourteen or forty feet, here's a final tip—find some reputable boat dealers in your area, ones that know boating and boats and are proud of the services they offer, and lay your problem in their laps. Give them the third degree about anything that you don't understand, and rely on the ones that know the score. Just don't latch onto the prettiest boat or the one with the most goodies. Looks and accessories don't make a good boat out of a clunker.

What do physicians stand "FOR?"

The medical profession has been accused of being "against" almost everything. Here are just three of the things we are FOR:

1. We are FOR free enterprise. This includes farmers whom we support in their effort to shake off too many government controls, businessmen who want to compete freely for your patronage, and physicians who want to keep you as healthy as their skill and training enables them.
2. We are FOR helping those who need help. We prove it nationwide by providing the American people with $700 million of free medical care annually. We feel no government agency could replace this form of freely given effort or the work of such privately run agencies as the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Cancer Society, Heart Association and similar groups. We support the Welfare Department in its aid programs to the needy, and the Health Department's fine job of providing medical attention through its clinics and nurses. We heartily endorse Medical Assistance for the Aged through a workable, State-administered Kerr-Mills program.
3. We are FOR keeping America the greatest, strongest, freest nation on the earth. We want you, our patients, to enjoy freedom of faith, freedom of speech, freedom to educate your child as you see fit, to vote for whom you like, and to choose your own physician, hospital or nursing home when you are ill. We want these same freedoms for ourselves.

BECAUSE WE STAND FOR THESE AND OTHER PRINCIPLES, WE OPPOSE, AND WILL ALWAYS OPPOSE, THE KING-ANDERSON BILL OR ANY OTHER ATTEMPT TO FOIST GOVERNMENT CONTROL ON THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. WE OPPOSE IT BECAUSE WE HONESTLY BELIEVE IT WOULD BE "BAD MEDICINE" FOR YOU. WE BELIEVE IT WOULD LEAD TO FURTHER SOCIALIZATION OF OTHER PROFESSIONS AND INDUSTRIES, UNTIL THE AMERICA OF OUR CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN BECOMES A TOTAL WELFARE STATE. WE ASK YOUR SUPPORT.

'Star-Spangled Banner' Observing Anniversary

To Americans, for 150 years, the Star-Spangled Banner has been an idea. The phrase has meant, about equally, our national flag and our national song. Very few of us have ever stopped to consider that the Banner was actually a most substantial physical object. In point of fact, it weighed about 200 pounds.

Other facts about its substantial nature were that it was forty-two feet long by thirty feet wide—and hence had an area of 1260 square feet. Its red and white stripes were two feet wide. So were its white stars. It was made of wool that was hand-woven and hand-dyed explicitly for its creation. It contained about half a million stitches. It was flown from a staff that was 97 feet high and a crew of two dozen men was needed to handle it. It was quite a flag.

That was how it looked back in 1814 when, streaming against the sky of Baltimore, it made its single and supremely dramatic appearance in American history. Today it remains the biggest American flag ever flown in battle. For a battle flag was what it was, above all things.

It was made for a particular battle. It flew in that battle. It emerged from that battle identified with a great patriotic song of which it was the inspiration. And then it never flew again. In time it was forgotten. It was even abused. Americans went on singing its song—eventually they made that song their national Anthem. So the mighty flag entered into their heritage—but only as an idea.

For Vengeance

It came into existence during the War of 1812. The British, who had just sacked Washington, were on their way to Baltimore, vowing to destroy that city utterly. They considered the war won militarily, but, as a final act, they were going to raze Baltimore to the dust, for vengeance. Baltimore had been giving them a bad time.

Baltimore clippers, operating as privateers, had almost driven British commerce from the sea, had outtailed, outmaneuvered, outfought British men of war again and again. So Baltimore was to be punished. That done, the war would be over, England the winner. Already peace terms were formulated. They would make England the dominant power in North America.

But Baltimore fought back. It defeated the British army on land and it withstood bombardment by the heaviest battering force of the great British navy. The land invaders included troops that had beaten Napoleon, the Invincibles of the Duke of Wellington. The bombardment was made with rockets and bombs—the latest things in missiles. Baltimore had untrained militia and guns that dated back to the Revolution. But it had an unbending defiance and it expressed that through its big flag.

The fight lasted two days and through it all the great Banner streamed in the city sky. And the high gods of drama, looking down, put a poet on the scene so that the sight should be properly told. That poet was Francis Scott Key. In the very heat of battle, he wrote the Song that became the symbol of the American flag. The Flag Was Lost

And the Banner itself was taken down and, as far as national consciousness went, was for generations lost. The officer who had commanded at Fort Mifflin took it—and kept it too. The story is that, when he wished to make a pleasant gift to a friend, he would cut a strip from the immortal flag and present it with his compliments. After almost a century his heirs asked the Smithsonian Institution to take custody of the faded and tattered remains. It is there today, but the memory of it lives, as vividly as its original colors, in Baltimore, where it was conceived and created and flown.

Today, the ladies of the state are engaged in making a second Star-Spangled Banner. It can scarcely be called a copy. They are making, once more, the Banner itself.

In a plant that dates from the 18th century—the Dickeyville Woolen Mill—they had yarn made that repeated exactly the fibre of the original. This 35 members of the Baltimore Weavers Guild wove into cloth on hand looms in their homes—30 warp, 23 weft, just as in the flag of 150 years ago. And now, today, ladies from patriotic, church and veterans societies, are putting in the half million stitches, working in the lobby of the Baltimore State Office Building, the immense folds resting on a forty-four foot table. They begin at ten a.m. and sew until eight p.m.

Absolute perfection in reproducing the original is demanded. Every seam is first pinned, then basted with a long stitch and a short. Next it is sewn in a running stitch, eight to the inch, no more, nor less. Then it is felled—still another forty-two foot seam—this one in blind stitching, also eight to the inch precisely. Three sewings for every seam. And it might be mentioned that, while the Banner has fifteen stripes, the seams count up to thirty, for each red and white stripe is divided into two pieces of cloth lengthwise. Multiply it all by two.

The ladies sew quietly. One hardly ever hears them speak. A line of onlookers, many with cameras, files by most of the time. Not a Copy

The inspiration for this project came from Baltimore's Flag House Association, a group which preserves the home of Mrs. Mary Pickersgill, the professional flag-maker who made the original Banner. Its executive secretary, Mrs. J. Elmer Weisheit, has supervised the work, since last October, when manufacture of the yarn was begun. The Association means for the new Banner—never call it a copy!—to be hung at the Maryland Building of the World's Fair this summer and fall. Then it is to be returned to the Flag House, where it, like its predecessor of 150 years ago, was conceived. "Where else should it be?" asks Mrs. Weisheit. "That is its home."

particularly baby's room, safe. It's easy to get carried away by the need for a super clean floor in baby's room. Clean, yes, but not shiny. A slippery, polished floor invites spills. When you are totting a heavy infant, a polished floor can surely be a menace.

Always have plenty of light around. It's easy to stumble in the dark. Here's a way to make the light switch in baby's room easy to find: Using one of baby's cotton swabs as a brush, outline the light switch with fluorescent paint. Do this too to switches in dark hallways.

Baby should sleep on a firm mattress without a pillow to avoid any possibility of an accident. This applies to baby's carriage as well as the crib.

When feeding baby, you take an unnecessary risk when you bring your child into your bed. After a weary day of round-the-clock activity you may doze off while baby is feeding. There's always the risk of baby falling off the bed or of you injuring or smothering an infant lying beside you.

While on the point of feeding, let's not overlook bottle-propping. Although bottle-propping looks innocent enough, a baby can easily get into trouble should he regurgitate. Should this happen, baby may not be able to cough and the milk or formula may, as a result, flow into his lungs.

This brings up another thought. Babies cannot, when they're tiny, blow their noses. Use a cotton swab to clear the nostrils before or after bath time.

When dressing and diapering baby, get in the habit of using a pin cushion. Safety pins, ironically, continue to be a safety hazard. Never hold safety pins in your mouth or leave them on a table within baby's reach.

Perhaps the most important safety tip of all is this:

Print, in large letters, the name of your family doctor and his telephone number on a card and tape it in the most prominent place in

THE HIGH ROAD
L.W. PRENTISS

Handsome Highways

Modern highways are designed to be efficient, long-lasting... and handsome. Highway engineers nowadays definitely have an eye for beauty.

Of course, the design engineer must also be cost conscious. He is sure to be criticized if his highway design calls for "frills." Fortunately, beauty and frugality in highway design are not incompatible. The engineer often uses his ingenuity to design a highway that is handsome at no extra cost.

For instance, the modern practice is to take advantage of the natural terrain to design long, easy curves that blend pleasingly into the landscape without sacrificing the motorist's clear view of the road ahead. Such a road is not necessarily more expensive to build than one that is constructed in long, straight slashes, and it is likely to pay dividends in safety because it is less fatiguing to drive on.

A small stand of trees in the median strip of a multilane highway not only is attractive but also shields motorists from the headlight glare of opposing traffic. The same safety advantage is gained when side-hill topography makes it possible to build the two halves of a divided highway at different elevations. Sometimes a small stream flows between the two roadways of a valley highway.

Because highway engineers now have stronger materials to work with, new bridges and overpass structures are likely to have the lightness and openness associated with modern architecture. Structures are simpler, more graceful.

By working with nature instead of against nature, designers beautify roadside slopes and at the same time minimize drainage and snow control problems, thus holding down maintenance costs.

No doubt there are many beauty aids for highways that are still undiscovered. The whole science of roadbuilding has advanced tremendously in the last ten years, and new engineering developments are coming thick and fast. There is a growing recognition that the design features that tend to reduce drivers' tension are important in accident prevention. In other words, good-looking highways are likely to be safer highways!

As highway construction technology continues to advance, we can look forward to safer driving on more and more good roads that look good.

Chevrolet will go to any length to make you happy

Things have changed a lot since a Chevy was only a Chevy. Especially your ideas of what you want a Chevy to be.

So now you have the Jet-smooth Chevrolet—17½ feet of pure luxury, bumper to bumper. The size makes it a luxury car. But not the price.

Or you can choose the thrifty Chevy II, a 15¼-foot family car with all kinds of passenger and luggage space.

This year, your choice might be the new 16-foot-plus Chevelle, sized to fit nicely between Chevrolet and Chevy II (and between parking meters, with five whole feet left over).

Then, too, there's the sporty 15-foot Corvair, so right for so many people (you girls, in particular) that we've never touched an inch of it. And finally, Corvette—still 14½ feet and still too much for any true sports-car lover to say no to.

The long and short of it is, you don't have to go to any length to find exactly the kind of car you want. Just see the five different lines of cars at your Chevrolet dealer's.

HELEN M. BREAM
248 Chambersburg Street
Gettysburg, Pennsylvania
NO. 20,592 EQUITY

In the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland
ORDER OF PUBLICATION
The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Helen M. Bream.

The Bill recites that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, where he has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, residing at 248 Chambersburg Street, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania; that the parties to this cause were married on the 25th day of October, 1952, at Uniontown, Maryland, by Rev. Warnefeltz, a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage three children were born, namely, Robert William Bream, 10 years of age, Barbara Helen Bream, 5 years of age, and Mary Ann Bream, 3 years of age; that the parties to this cause have voluntarily lived separate and apart without any cohabitation for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint, and that the separation between the parties is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation.

The Bill then prays that the Complainant, William Glenn Bream be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Helen M. Bream, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require.

COURT ORDER
It is thereupon this 16th day of March, 1964, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the County of Frederick, once each week for four successive weeks before the 18th day of April, 1964, commanding her to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 19th day of May, 1964, and show cause, if any she has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

In Memoriam

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY
Girl Scouts of the United States of America here repeat the challenge of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy to the Senior Girl Scout 50th Anniversary Roundup and the promise we made and will keep.

The Challenge

"... With my greetings, I send you a serious challenge. As you work and play together, I ask you to pause to consider how best you as individuals can prepare yourselves for service to your country and to mankind."

The Response

We will re-examine the Girl Scout Promise and Laws and work harder to use them as principles to live by.

We will keep on open mind in order to learn from our own experiences, from situations, and from other people.

We will develop in ourselves a craving for knowledge.

We will try to find our prejudices and erase them.

We will respect freedom as the right of every individual.

We will try to leave a small part of ourselves in everything we do.

We will promote peace in our world by first finding peace in ourselves.

ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pittinger, Emmitsburg R2, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon Bown, to Melvin G. Keyton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Keyton, Woodsboro.

Miss Pittinger is a graduate of Emmitsburg High School and is presently employed at the Towne Restaurant in Woodsboro. Mr. Keyton is a graduate of Elmer Wolfe High School and is presently employed by Black and Decker, Hampstead. Plans are being made for an August wedding.

Annual Meeting Of Thurmont Cooperative Held

The 29th annual stockholders' meeting of the Thurmont Cooperative was held Friday evening, March 13, in the Thurmont High School.

The meeting featured reports on business operations, youth activities and an illustrated description of the annual meeting of the American Institute of Cooperation held at Lincoln, Neb., last August, by Alice Grace Stambaugh.

Following the invocation by Rev. Martin A. Case, pastor of the Methodist Church, the Star Spangled Banner was sung, led by Mrs. Clifton Blair, accompanied by Miss Margo Emrich, at the piano. This is the 150th anniversary of our National Anthem.

President Ross S. Stull conducted the meeting and John L. Baumgardner, secretary, read the previous meeting's minutes.

D. S. Weybright, manager of the Cooperative, gave a financial report and general operations for the past year. The concern operates plants at Thurmont, Rocky Ridge and Union Bridge, and is owned by farmers of Frederick and Carroll Counties, who use its services. Through its bulk plant at Loys, the association provides anhydrous ammonia, a gas fertilizer, to a wide area in Central Maryland.

The evening's program was under the supervision of William G. Baker, Thurmont Vo-Ag instructor and included: vocal solo by Mrs. Margaret Blair, "Ah Sweet
