Emmitsburg's physical picture is slowly but surely undergoing many major changes these days. I'm sure that many of you who haven't visited the old burg for some years will see a vast difference in its appearance. The multitudinous changes were perhaps triggered off by the expansion programs at our two local colleges. First I believe was the program at the Mount, which resulted in the erection of five new, modern and magnificent buildings. Also under way is the erection of a 100-ft. belltower at The Grotto. The campus at the Mount has undergone great changes for the better. At St. Joseph College the accelerated building program is almost stunning to the imagination. A mammoth Central House and student dormitory already have been constructed and in addition a new home for the Sisters at Mother Seton School is almost completed and is located adjacent to the Little League field. Future plans call for a huge Basilica, a new Mother Seton School, science building and several other unannounced additions. Alumni and friends of the two institutions will hardly recognize them, especially those who haven't visited the scene for the past five years.

Soon local residents will be heating and cooking with natural gas, the installation of which is nearing completion and will be ready for service by fall, I am told. Another project beneficial to the health and expansion of the town is the new water system which also is nearing completion. Coupled with the modern sewerage facilities Emmitsburg has, these two projects should go a long way in inducing people to locate here. A new approach to town, the new Route 15 bypass, is about half-way completed and will, when completed, reroute heavy traffic, especially trucks, around the town, adding to the quietness of things to come, and changing completely the physical approach to the burg. The local bank is due for some major changes and already razing of several old buildings which the bank purchased for expansion, is almost done. Last weekend the newest motel, the Emmitt House, opened its doors to the public and at the present time several new homes are under construction. Yes, the physical appearance of the old burg is changing, more rapidly than we realize. The progress is not generally realized here as it creeps upon us slowly, but I like to hear from visiting natives and friends from out-of-town, their exclamations as they view Emmitsburg once more. Should the canonization of Mother Seton materialize and the great dam and lake come about, the changes will come at a dizzy pace.

Our thanks to Bernie Kaliss, English and Journalism instructor at the Mount, for his kind assistance in editing the paper this week thereby enabling the boss, Ye Editor, an opportunity to slip away this week for a short vacation... and thereby getting him off our backs for at least one week out of 52!

Three Local Youths To Enter The Mount

Three Emmitsburg students, three from Thurmont, and two from Fairfield are among the 255 freshmen who will enter Mount Saint Mary's College in September, according to an announcement by Guy A. Baker, Jr., college registrar.

The Emmitsburg students are Donald B. Byard, Jr., S. Seton Ave.; John J. Dillon, III, R2; and Harold E. Eyer, West Main St.

Three entering students from Thurmont are Bernard J. Fink, Jr., 5 Frederick Rd.; Gary L. Miller, R2, Box 6; and William E. Sanders, Jr., R2.

Entering from Fairfield are Stuart J. Sites, R1, and Ronald F. Schultz, also R1.

The 255 freshmen who will enter the college on September 13 represent the largest entering freshman class since the post war years. Twelve states and two foreign countries are included in the total figure.

LOCAL MAN ELECTROCUTED

An Emmitsburg District man was electrocuted in a Baltimore salvage company yard Wednesday when a crane lifting a tank which he was guiding touched high-tension wires.

Sources said Bernard R. Ricketts, 32, Simmons Rd., was guiding a 25-foot tank with his hands. The tank was being hoisted by a huge crane in a salvage yard in the Chesaco Park area of Baltimore.

The bottom of the crane came into contact with the wires, rated at 7,600 volts, and Ricketts collapsed.

Two Baltimore County policemen tried to revive Ricketts through mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, sources said, but failed. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. John Hyle, assistant medical examiner for Baltimore County.

He was born in Montgomery County, a son of James W. and Hattie Case Ricketts, near Key-Mar. Surviving besides his parents are his wife, Mrs. Mildred Robertson Ricketts; 6 children, Rose Mary, Bernard Jr., Robert, Steven, Deborah Jane, and Charles, all at home; the following brothers and sisters: Eugene, Union Bridge; Mrs. Kathryn Bodmer, Dickerson; Mrs. Dorothy Jones, Washington, D. C.; Walter and Forest, and Edwin, all of Taneytown; Thomas, Upper Marlboro; Leonard, Lisbon; Mrs. Edna Wright, Stevensville.

The body is at the Union Bridge funeral home of D. D. Hartzler and Sons, where services will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. Interment will be in Evergreen Memorial Gardens, Pinksburg. Friends may call at the funeral home this evening (Friday).

Appreciates Support Of Mass X-Ray Here

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

The Frederick County Tuberculosis and Public Health Association wishes to express grateful appreciation to you for the excellent publicity given for the Mass X-ray Survey in your community. We feel the notable increase in the number of people availing themselves of chest x-rays this year over the last year was due, in large measure, to better understanding of the problems caused by infectious tuberculosis and to their interest and desire to do something to reduce the suffering of individuals and to eventually eradicate the disease.

Our thanks to Mrs. George L. Wilhite who served as chairman of arrangements for the local area and to all of those who assisted with registering those who came for x-rays.

We appreciate the courtesy of the Emmitsburg police department for providing street parking facilities for the Mobile Unit. To all whose efforts in this project contributed to its success and to those whose interest in the health of their community has made it possible for us to provide this service, we thank you.

Very sincerely yours,
Frederick County Tuberculosis and Public Health Assn.

Susan Martin Takes Part In Conference

The American Institute of Cooperation has announced that Miss Susan Elaine Martin, Emmitsburg, R2, daughter of Mrs. George J. Martin and the late George Martin, has been selected for a part in the 1964 Youth Program of the 36th annual national farm business conference of the Institute to be held at Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich. The conference will take place August 9-12.

Miss Martin, who graduated from Emmitsburg High School in June, will serve on a panel on August 10 which will discuss "Career Opportunities For Youth in Cooperatives."

The theme of the three-day meeting will be "Dynamic Dimensions for Cooperatives," according to Walter Jacoby, A.I.C. Director of Youth Education.

The conference is the largest annual gathering on farm business opportunities, techniques, and problems, drawing over 3,000 leaders of farm business, credit, marketing, agricultural extension, and rural education, including an expected 1,000 farm youth and young farmers who will participate in their own discussion and tour programs.

Miss Martin plans to enter West-ern Maryland College this fall to prepare for a career in teaching. In addition to receiving several scholarships awards, she was active in the band and chorus and was secretary of her senior class. She is active in Youth Fellowship work in her church and teaches Sunday School and Bible School.

Also participating in the conference from this area is Miss Sylvia Ellen Brauer, Rocky Ridge.

Miss Brauer has been active in 4-H Club work for over 10 years with outstanding achievements in food preparation, food presentation, and clothing projects, as well as a dairy project. She has been active in dramatics, having had leading parts in several school plays. She is also active in church work, serving as chairman of various committees of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Beegle, Emmitsburg, have purchased the former home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Kenworthy on the north side of the Old Mill Road in Cumberland Township near Gettysburg. Immediate possession was granted.

Dr. and Mrs. Beegle expect to move into their new home on September 1 and will lease their present home in Emmitsburg. Dr. Beegle will continue to maintain his office here and will hold office hours as regularly scheduled.

Youth Center Teen-Dance Tonight

The popular music group from Emmitsburg, The Combinations, will play at a teen-dance to be held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars tonight at 8 o'clock. Admission is 75c.

The dance is sponsored by the Emmitsburg Youth Center. The dance was originally to be an outdoor dance at the newly restored basketball court and ice skating rink, but the rain held back work on the court, so that it was not ready for the dance tonight.

An outdoor dance will be held later in the summer.

Council Votes To Amend Ordinance On Licensing

The regular monthly meeting of the Emmitsburg Town Council Monday night took under consideration the matter of an amendment to the "Hawkers and Peddlers" ordinance to include all out-of-town businessmen who solicit in the corporate limits of the town.

The present ordinance requires a fee of $40 annually or $5 per day for a license to sell, vend, solicit, or canvass in the corporate limits of the town. Businessmen who are performing services not included under the present headings, such as garbage pick-up, laundry and dry cleaning pick-up, and others would be covered under a proposed amendment to the ordinance.

Commissioner Joseph M. Haley moved that an amendment be made to the ordinance that would cover those with services being included in the licensing process. The matter will be discussed further with Atty. Edward Storm, town counselor.

It was reported that the repair of the sidewalk in front of the town lot on South Seton Avenue for the gas main has begun.

A discussion was held on the question of continuing the water main at present up Federal Ave. and over the Gettysburg Road or east down DePaul St. For the present it was decided to go east down DePaul St. and eventually over the Gettysburg Road. The change in the route is to benefit the proposed new housing development which Richard Kline is undertaking as he has indicated that he would give the town a right of way for the water main. The water main will cross Flat Run which separates DePaul St. from the Kline property.

A bill for $21 was submitted by Robert G. Fitez for damages to his car by a stump on East Main St. which remains from the time the state had cut down some trees on the state right of way. Originally, the state and the town were each to pay half the cost of the removal of the stumps. State Road Engineer Hartman had indicated the responsibility of the state in this matter, according to Burgess Ralph Irelan, so the matter was referred to the state.

Irelan announced that George Wood, County Extension Agent, requested an opportunity to talk with the members of the Town Council about the possibility of a recreation and park area in or near Emmitsburg. The project would be financed under a government program under which the government pays 80% of the cost and the town pays 20%. An appointment with Wood has been scheduled.

Present at the meeting Monday night were Burgess Ralph F. Irelan, Dr. J. W. Houser, president of the Board of Commissioners, Commissioners J. Norman Flax and Joseph M. Haley, and Town Clerk Mrs. Raymond Baker.

Parochial Schools Get No Govt. Aid

Sister Agatha, principal of Mother Seton School, Emmitsburg, was among other parochial school leaders of the area who denied this week that any federal or state support is given them, with the exception of the federal school lunch program.

Catholic principals, disputing Dr. Glenn L. Archer's statements that public taxes for private schools should not be allowed because it would be unwise for the Republic, said, "Our schools do not receive state aid. Everything is paid for by the parishioners."

Archer, executive director of the Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, told the Maryland Baptist Summer Assembly that he did not oppose church schools but he did "oppose taxes for these private schools."

Sister Agatha stated that they receive no aid other than the federal lunch program and they are encouraged by federal officials to participate in this. No other aid is given, she stated.

On the blue team, captained by Beverly Kemp, will be Ruth Sanders on first base, Jane Knox 2nd, Mary Ann Orosz, shortstop, and Kate Sanders on 3rd. Becky Hoke, Jody Rodgers, Joan Eiker, and Florence Knox will be in the outfield. Beverly Kemp will open on the mound for the blue team.

Appointed To Vehicle Position

Maryland's Department of Motor Vehicles this week announced the appointment of William J. Lucas to the position of Chief of the Department's Audits and Accounts Division.

Mr. Lucas succeeds the former Comptroller, Owen R. E. McGeeney, who retired in March, 1964, after completing forty-six years with the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Friend Or Foe?

On the heels of new efforts at Soviet-U. S. "togetherness" such as the recent trade agreement and the consular exchange treaty comes news of various spy rings and intrigues. These hair-raising episodes are more than enough to emphasize the real nature of Soviet purpose and attitude. These developments testify to the essentially unchanged character of Soviet international intent: to aggressively challenge the free world by every method and device at hand, open or secret, fair or foul.

The quality of Soviet espionage was also revealed when more than 40 sensitive microphones were found buried in the concrete walls of the U. S. Embassy in Moscow. These "bugs" had been operating for 11 years. It now develops that the tiny listening device found in the Ambassador's office in 1960 was not the only communication system available to the Soviets. It is reported that since 1949 more than 130 eavesdropping gadgets have been discovered in embassy buildings in Communist capitals.

Testing, Testing

Other western countries are having the same experience. Three years ago the Dutch found 30 tiny microphones hidden in the walls of their Moscow Embassy. They were tipped off by two Siamese cats which acted up when they heard the ultrasonic noises used to switch on the "bugging" system. The Dutch staff reportedly set traps and staged dialogs to test the microphones: grumbling about sewer repairs or complaining of parcel deliveries. Invariably, the complaints got quick service from the Russians. The Dutch diplomats are said to have grown accustomed to the 'bugs.'

It was sufficient for Mr. Khrushchev in recent interviews to allude to his outer space observation satellites. Soviet Cosmos space vehicles, the Soviet premier averred, have photographed U. S. military installations, and he could show the pictures. Thus the Red leader claims to have done successfully exactly what his Defense Ministry, in an article in Red Star, with great innuendo accuses the U. S. of doing. Not much has been revealed about our Samos satellites, but Air Force planes have been reported catching film packets ejected over the Pacific by the rockets.

An Open Sky

The objective of bragging about the photographs, of course, was to create opinion that would lead the U. S. to halt its U-2 flights over Cuba, Moscow's protectorate in the Caribbean. It's a big world and there's lots of room for snapping pictures. The closed society, however, makes espionage more difficult, particularly on the ground. That is why "open sky" activities may eventually break the Soviet determination to keep the lid on its military activities.

On the ground, Soviet espionage has undoubtedly achieved success. Stig Wennerstrom, the Swedish spy who also dealt in American and NATO military secrets with the Soviets, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in Sweden. A federal court in Kansas City has given a similar sentence to George Gessner, the Army nuclear weapons specialist who deserted to give information to the Russians in Mexico. Wennerstrom appeared to be the cold professional working for pay, but in his trial he admitted Communist sympathies. Gessner was a confused idealist, and he found the idea of nuclear war revolting.

A Dangerous Cancer

The same unsteadiness also prevails in higher circles. Several weeks ago, Robert Oppenheimer, the A-bomb physicist recently given an award by President Johnson, recalled that his colleague Niels Bohr once wanted the West to share our Los Alamos secrets with Russia in the interests of world peace. More than 90 per cent of Manhattan project scientists were said to have favored this sharing. Such intellectual commitment may have made possible a long line of informers and defectors giving away our atomic secrets, from Klaus Fuchs to George Gessner.

Perhaps it is this factor that makes Communism the dangerous cancer in the world of nations that it really is. It can lead some weak intellects to pursue false promises that take the individual away from reality, forsaking completely the values related to freedom and liberty. Overall, this new "togetherness" is going to offer spies, defectors, and plotters new opportunities. We have had enough of this already without encouraging it by policies that open the doors to further intrigue.

Post Office Big Attraction At Fair

Visitors to the New York World's Fair from Emmitsburg have an unusual opportunity to see a post office of the future, Postmaster Lewis H. Stoner said this week.

A carefully-chosen group of 80 employees from New York area post offices man the facility which handles all the Fair's mail and some from the Flushing, New York area. The outside mail is used to keep the highly mechanized devices operating at "full tilt."

The post office handles approximately 250,000 pieces of mail each day.

Postcards to friends and relatives back home are a big item. About 30,000 are mailed from the Fair each day. One third of these are addressed to persons overseas. Foreign visitors have no trouble understanding U. S. postal operations. The facility has staff members who speak twenty languages.

Postmaster Stoner notes that residents of Emmitsburg who attend the Fair and wish to try out their foreign language ability can either talk with the multi-lingual window clerks or listen to a tape recorded presentation in the post office lobby which features individual earphones for those who speak Japanese, French, German, Italian and Spanish.

New equipment on hand includes an experimental Pitney - Bowes Centrifuge which spins envelopes rapidly around a wheel-like mechanism and places them upright on their longest side. They then move into a machine which cancels stamps and postmarks envelopes at a rate of 500 letters a minute.

Letters are sorted to go all over the world by machines which position the mail so that the addresses are visible to an operator who sits in front of a keyboard similar to that on a typewriter. By pressing the correct buttons, 100 letters a minute are automatically directed to bins for 50 different destinations.

A larger device, the Burroughs sorter, drops letters and cards into 131 different bins at a rate of 58 letters per minute for each of the twelve operators.

The work area is surrounded by a ramp and gallery for visitors which is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. Tape recorded vignettes explain the action on the work floor and describe the operations of each machine.

Outside the building, mail boxes from 21 countries serve as background for the red, white and blue mail box of the United States. Postmaster Stoner suggests that

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

Modern David Harum

This being the season for what has been called "The biggest gamble" — the yearling sales, with auctions at Keeneland, Ky., Saratoga, N. Y. and Del Mar, Calif., following one upon the other, it might be in order to mention a modern day David Harum. In 1943 Fred W. Hooper had worked himself to a frazzle developing the largest heavy construction contracting firm in the South, building roads, dams and bridges. So with instructions from his doctor to take it easy and a letter of introduction to trainer Ivan Parke, Hooper set out for the Keeneland sales at Lexington to buy a few Thoroughbreds. He had never owned a Thoroughbred but had raced some quarter horses, and a half-bred named Royal Prince which had run up a score of 49 wins in 55 starts, on the bush tracks in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. So, though a stranger to the sales ring, Hooper knew a bit about horse flesh. He bid $10,200 to obtain his first Thoroughbred colt, a son of Sir Gallahad III out of One Hour, named him Hoop Jr. and two years later proudly led him into the winners' circle at the Kentucky Derby. The Hooper Stable has since been consistently among the top money-winners of the country and horses bred by him at his 5,000-acre Montgomery, Alabama farm have put him among the leading breeders in recent years.

"But Can It Be Found In The Bible?"

People often indignantly demand that Catholics prove their teaching from the Bible.

The Bible is their "rule of faith" ... and they argue that every man has the right and ability to discover for himself, by his interpretation of the Bible, what he must believe and do in order to be saved.

We do not question the sincerity of these people and we applaud all who strive earnestly to understand and observe the Scriptures. But—are they right in calling the Bible, privately interpreted, the sole source of Christian teaching?

"Hold the teachings that you have learned," wrote St. Paul, "whether by word or by letter of ours" (2 Thess. 2:15). He refers to Christian teachings, some oral, some written ... and demands that all be received.

Christianity did not begin with the Bible. It began with the coming of Christ. The Lord instructed His Apostles to "go forth ... teach all nations" — and to insure that His truths would always be maintained, Christ established His Church, "... the pillar and mainstay of the truth" (1 Timothy 3:15).

The last part of the Bible ... written by St. John ... was not completed until 60 years after the Crucifixion of Christ. There was no Bible in anything resembling its present form until nearly 400 years after Jesus had died on the Cross. And the widespread distribution of the Bible as we know it today was impossible until the invention of printing, some 1400 years after the Savior's death.

By what "rule of faith" did the millions of Christians live during those 1500 years?

The answer is, of course, that the teaching of the Church was the rule of faith for the Christian world. And St. Paul reminds us that Christianity consists of "one Lord, one Faith, one Baptism" (Eph. 4:5). "God is a God of peace, not of disorder," St. Paul said further (1 Cor. 14:33).

Yet today we have nearly 300 different religious denominations, all calling themselves Christian ... all professing the Bible as their rule of faith ... and all differing to some extent or another in their understanding of what the Bible means. Could Christ have left a "rule of faith" that would permit such confusion? Would He have left the interpretation of His Word to the fallible and changing judgments of men—when our very souls depend on a correct understanding and observance of the things Christ has taught us?

Because it certainly does matter what a man believes, we invite you to examine the rule of faith of the first Christians—a rule that is still maintained by the Catholic Church. Because the Bible is God's Word, and because He gave it to us for a purpose, we invite you to see what this purpose is. An interesting pamphlet on the correct use of the Bible, will be sent to you free upon your request. And nobody will call on you. Ask for Pamphlet KC-13.

SUCCESSFUL HOVER—The U.S. Army's experimental aircraft, the XV-5A, demonstrates hover flight at Edwards Air Force Base, California. The fixed wing aircraft rose vertically on the jet thrust provided by two wing fans and a nose fan, hovered motionless, and then descended slowly for a landing. The demonstration flight was another step toward performing the full flight cycle from vertical take-off, transition to conventional horizontal flight, and then vertical landing. The XV-5A uses the basic thrust of two J85 jet engines. Ryan Aeronautical Company designed and built the aircraft under contract with General Electric.

FARRAGUT ATTACKS, CAPTURES MOBILE BAY

By Lon K. Savage

It was 100 years ago this week that Admiral David Glasgow Farragut became an American legend with his statement: "Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead!"

It occurred in the Battle of Mobile Bay, in which Farragut attacked across a mine-filled bay, conquered two forts on land, three gunboats in the bay and defeated the Confederacy's strongest sea vessel, the ironclad "Tennessee."

Farragut launched his attack August 5 with a fleet of seven wooden warships and four monitors, heavily armored gunboats with revolving turrets. His plan: to run from the Gulf into the bay through a three-mile wide channel, under the guns of Fort Gaines on his left and the more powerful Fort Morgan on his right. Across the channel were mines—called torpedoes in those days—and inside the bay awaited the gunboats and the "Tennessee."

First Shot

It was 7:15 a.m. when the Federal fleet, heading into the channel in two columns, opened fire on the forts. Half an hour later, the firing was general.

As the ships passed under Fort Morgan's guns, the lead vessel, the "Brooklyn," suddenly halted and signaled to Farragut, on the flagship, "Hartford" right behind, that it was too close to a monitor. Farragut, fearing a traffic jam of ships behind the halted "Brooklyn," ordered the "Brooklyn" to go ahead, but still the Brooklyn delayed.

Exasperated, Farragut ordered his own ship to pass the "Brooklyn" and take the lead. As the "Hartford," with Farragut lashed to the rigging above so that he could watch the battle, passed the "Brooklyn," the latter signaled that there were torpedoes ahead. It was then, according to the story, that Farragut spat out his command: "Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead."

Forts Rake Ships

Meanwhile, the two forts were raking the ships. On the Hartford, a signal officer wrote that "shot after shot came through the side, mowing down the men, deluging the decks with blood and scattering fragments of humanity. . ."

At the same time, the "Tecumseh," one of the monitors, struck a mine, careened to one side and sank almost immediately, taking 93 of her 114 crewmen to the bottom.

By 7:30, the other ships had passed the forts and were in the bay, beyond reach of the forts' guns. Now, they set upon the gunboats and made short shrift of them, capturing one, destroying another and sending the third fleeing across the bay to Mobile.

But the battle was not won. The ironclad "Tennessee" now headed into the Federal fleet with its power to destroy every ship. Farragut, his guns being almost useless, ordered his ships to ram the monster. One wooden ship did ram the "Tennessee" and pulled back almost a wreck herself, with the "Tennessee" hardly damaged.

For more than an hour, the Federal ships circled and blasted into the ironclad. At one point, one of Farragut's own ships collided with and almost sank his flagship. But little by little, as the Federals bounced shot after shot off the ironclad, the "Tennessee" began having trouble. Her commander was wounded, her guns damaged. Finally, her steering gear was shot away and she wallowed helplessly in the bay. A white flag went up, and she surrendered.

Within three weeks, the forts had surrendered under a bombardment, and the Confederacy had lost its last Gulf port.

Next week: Total war in Atlanta.

The term "social security" means different things to different people. Whatever it means to the users of the term, the Social Security Administration wants everyone to know what it represents in family protection provided through its old-age, survivors, and disability insurance system.

Most people know that social security insurance payments go to retired workers and to their families. Fewer are aware of the benefits for families of workers who die. Still fewer have heard of disability insurance for eligible severely disabled workers and their dependents.

This three-way family protection is worked for and paid for by employees, their employers and the self-employed; yet there are many among those who work and pay social security taxes who do not realize the full extent of the financial protection they are providing for themselves and their families.

The Social Security Administration urges you to write or visit your nearest social security office for benefit information whenever you or someone in your family retires or becomes severely disabled. You should also get in touch with your social security office whenever a worker in your family dies. Your nearest office is at 59 North Cannon Avenue, Hagerstown.

OUTDOOR SPORT TIPS

Line Dryer

Thread a needle with the end of your line, then run it through a sponge. Draw a line through sponge and you've got it really dry.

Eye On Perch

If you're ever fishing for perch and run out of bait, bait with the eye on one of the fish you've already caught. Works sometimes better than the bait.

Only The Big Ones

When small fish keep taking your bait don't get excited. Move! But make sure to move away from the weeds into deeper weedless water. Little fish need the sanctuary of the weeds for safety, won't stray far from it.

Whistle Rabbit

Old hunters say when a rabbit is running in front of the dogs a series of short sharp whistles will bring the rabbit's trail right past them.

Multitasked Minnow

Safact. Clip part of a minnow's tail off and the injured swim will attract fish. Predator fish, especially lazy old fat ones, can't resist the easy meal.

Safety Pin Guide

What happens when you're on a favorite fishing trip and you bust a guide on your only fishing rod? That's easy. Just clip the catch section off a safety pin. Bend shank so legs projects both ways from eye. Lash these legs to rod with leader wire or strong monofil. Works great!

Small Streams For Trout

Trout fishermen! Learn small stream techniques and fish them. Most fishermen follow the fish truck to the big waters. BUT check local stockings and you'll find the smaller brooks get their share of fish . . . but not fishermen.

Squirrel Trick

Beginners might not know this trick to bring a squirrel around to your side of the tree. Just throw a stick past tree to other side. Squirrel will hear it and scoot around away from the noise. When he comes in sight, BAM!

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Discusses
Advice For Young Investors

BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 6 — From time to time the younger element among my readers write in asking advice about how to get started on an investment program. Hence, I would like to devote this column to this group who are just starting out to build their future.

Readers who are further along in years may also find this column useful in assisting their children and grandchildren to start out on a firm footing financially.

First Things First
I earnestly beseech young people to use their heads and not their emotions in financial matters. My first principle, therefore, is to establish a firm foundation before embarking on building an investment program. This means acquiring adequate insurance protection for your family in case an accident or illness should result in your untimely death. My general recommendation is "straight" life insurance without the expensive frills.

Of course, home ownership should be an early consideration. I urgently advise young people not to overextend themselves by buying a home beyond their means. They should, however, endeavor to locate in a good and growing community so that their home can be a real asset in years to come.

Build Up Reserves
Sad to say, too many young people are overanxious to acquire a fortune. In their haste, they make a few purchases of stocks without first building up a nest egg of savings. Hence when some unforeseen emergency arises, they find they must part with their investments either at a loss or before the maximum profit potential is realized.

My second principle, therefore, is to carefully build up a savings fund as a reserve against a rainy day. Many young people today find it hard to save anything, but sensible budgeting and steadfast resistance against indiscriminate spending can produce surprising results. A gradual but persistent accumulation of savings, moreover, will provide you with funds to pick up good stocks when the market is low. Most investors could achieve greater investment gains if only they had the patience to store up reserves to invest when bargains appear.

Earning A Living
In times such as this, when the stock market has had a prolonged rise, it is easy for investors to expect quick and large profits. All too often the stock market is viewed as a medium for supplementing one's income. I cannot stress enough that your livelihood and the foundation for financial independence lie in the building of a good career which will produce a higher level of income over the year.

By and large, the wealthy people I have met in my lifetime did not build their fortunes by speculating in the stock market. Rather, they speculated on themselves, either by working hard in their own business or by making themselves more valuable to their employers. As their earning capacity grew, they were able to channel their surplus funds into wise investments and thus compound their financial progress.

Investing Versus Trading
Most readers lack the training, experience, temperament, and time to make a success of trading in the stock market. On a short-swing basis, it is difficult to spot the turning points of the market and of individual stocks and to "pick winners". The average investor attempting to trade the market will more often than not find himself kicking up a lot of dust but making little real progress. Certainly, buying on margin and selling sort are not for the average investor!

My advice, therefore, is to adopt the long-range approach and put your hard-earned money to work by investing in sound growing industries and companies. This especially applies to young investors, who have the advantage of a long life span ahead of them. They should allow time and the growth of the economy to work for them. By gradually purchasing a few shares of stocks now and again, particularly when the market is flat on its back, it is possible to build up a portfolio which can eventually show satisfactory growth. This requires patience, persistence, and courage, but the rewards are well worth the effort.

Music Lessons

By Max Aronoff, Director
The New School of Music
Philadelphia, Pa.

My recent column on preparing a young child to love music, has resulted in many letters from readers asking me to suggest the proper age for starting music lessons. I can only answer that the age varies, depending upon the readiness of the child. Usually, a strong desire to take lessons is a good sign the child is ready for formal instruction.

After teaching children for forty years, I'm convinced that musical training can be significant part of everyone's education, regardless of whether there is any thought of the child pursuing a career in music. There is no such thing as a musically untalented child. Under a competent teacher, every child can develop some ability to express himself musically.

Appreciation of good music is, of course, an additional reason for taking lessons, but the discipline of music study is important, also. Needless to say, the boy or girl who is engrossed in practicing just won't find as much time to be tempted by less desirable, or delinquent activities.

The selection of a teacher is a problem that parents should ponder more seriously than they generally do. It can take a music school five years to undo damage inflicted on a student by an inept teacher. Parents can send their boys and girls to one of the music schools across the country that provide classes for youngsters as our own New School does. Or, parents can enroll their children with a private teacher, after investigating that teacher's accomplishments and standing very carefully.

At the New School, we urge beginning students to take one or two years piano lessons and at the same time start studying an instrument. If a child has any ambitions for a musical career, we stress the increasing demand in the country for string players, as opposed to the minimal need for young pianists and vocalists.

Practice is the big hurdle for children in their first two years of study, and a parental push is necessary, now and then. If my own father had not pushed me (and rather vigorously, too), I would not be a violinist with the world famous Curtis String Quartet today. A parent can also help a child by surrounding him with fine music in the form of records and FM radio broadcasts.

After the child begins to hear proof of his own progress and can play more interesting pieces, the initiative to practice will come from himself. When this happens, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that your careful preparation has paved the way for your child's musical development and for the broadening of his cultural background.

Read Matthew 20:20-28.
Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant. (Matthew 20: 26-27).

How often we imagine that our pettiness and meanness are from without, like briar scratches! How sure we are that big people, important occasions — even grand temptations! — would make us big-hearted and high-minded! We forget that the most distinguished personages of His day in His obscure land won footnotes in history only because their very littleness blinded them to His bigness.

Christ's inner quality is displayed in the big moment before Pilate. We find it most clearly expressed, however, in the small moment with the children, with the widow and her mite, the epileptic boy, the tawdry, evasive woman at the well.

We are not small or weak because others give us no chance for greatness. Jesus worked daily with the same lowly, rejected material that surrounds us day by day. It could not hide His glory.

Prayer

O Lord, may I stop blaming others for my forgiveness, my neighbor for my spite, children for my tantrums, society for these thorns and thistles in my heart. Purge! Prune! Uproot! Burn! Make the tree good, Lord — the tree, my life. In Christ's name. Amen.

Thought For The Day
We are not small or weak because others give us no chance for creative work for God.

Little Big Inch To Serve Area

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y.—Liquefied petroleum gas distributors began loading propane from Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation's new truck-loading terminal which opened here this week.

The Watkins Glen terminal is an extension of Texas Eastern's

Little Big Inch products pipeline which carries propane from Mont Belvieu, Texas, near Houston, more than 1,500 miles away.

"This marks the beginning of large volume, all weather, economical propane service by pipeline from the Gulf Coast and southwest to the important agricultural and industrial markets in central New York, northern Pennsylvania and the northeast," said

Millard K. Neptune, senior vice president of Texas Eastern, head of the company's Little Big Inch Division.

Baker Air Force Gas Corporation, Malone, N. Y., one of upper New York state's largest propane distributors, received the first truck load of propane from the Watkins Glen terminal. The Malone company is a distributor of propane produced in the Gulf Coast natural gasoline plants of Union Texas Petroleum of Houston, a division of Allied Chemical Corporation.

Charles Benson, Union Texas Petroleum's northeastern sales representative, said the pipeline would become a principal source of supply for his company's independent dealers, as well as for those of Fuelane Corporation, a Union Texas subsidiary that operates throughout the northeast area of the United States.

"This pipeline service and its new terminals is good news not only for our distributors and marketing outlets," said Mr. Benson, "but also for the farms, homes and industrial concerns throughout the area. It assures dependable and virtually unlimited supplies of high-purity, HD-5 propane, particularly during cold winter months when the fuel is most needed."

Propane is pipelined and stored in large caverns in underground salt formations near Watkins Glen. These storage caverns are being developed as demand for propane increases. At the terminal itself, dehydrated propane which meets rigid purity specifications is pipelined into two 30,000-gallon above ground tanks with a delivery capacity up to 18,000 barrels daily through the truck-loading facility.

The opening of the Watkins Glen terminal also completes another step in Texas Eastern's $13 million propane pipeline construction program which will extend this same kind of service as far northeast as Selkirk, N. Y., near Albany. One terminal has been opened at Greensburg, Pa., and two others are being built—one at Oneonta, N. Y., and the other at Selkirk. Both will be opened later this year.

When the entire project is completed late this summer, the new eight-inch diameter propane line and its terminals will be the northernmost extension of the Little Big Inch which extends through Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and now into New York.

Mont Belvieu is the largest single liquefied petroleum gas storage center in the world. The 380-mile extension of the Little Big Inch system to Watkins Glen will give New York direct pipeline access to this enormous propane supply for the first time and will supply New England users by truck or rail from terminals along the pipeline.

Important highways run north, south, east and west from Watkins Glen. The availability of this fuel in this part of New York and throughout the northeast is expected to increase demand for propane when many customers start using the fuel for home heating and other purposes for which only limited supplies of propane have been available in the past.

In Emmitsburg, Md., the Matthews Gas Co., a Fuelane distributor, will be supplied with propane produced in Gulf Coast plants and shipped north through the new pipeline.

Mathias Introduces Farm Aid Bills

Congressman Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) this week introduced a group of four bills in the House of Representatives which he calls the "Farm Relief Package."

Concerned over the plight of Maryland farmers in this third consecutive drought-year, Mr. Mathias has been holding meetings with farmers and other interested parties over the past several weeks in his Sixth Congressional District. His "Farm Relief Package" is a result of these meetings.

Referring to the four bills, Mathias said: "I believe these bills will improve our present farm legislation and make the granting of relief to individual farmers more effective and more beneficial at times when relief is needed."

Bills included in the Mathias "Farm Relief Package" are:

(1) Dairy Farmers Indemnity Bill—Modification of a bill previously introduced to indemnify farmers whose markets are cut off as a result of some Government action for which the farmers are in no way responsible. This bill will adjust the amount of payments to the "current market price in the area" rather than the "milk support price."

(2) Amendment to the Consolidated Home Administration Act of 1961—to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to make economic disaster loans, as well as loans for natural farm disasters.

(3) A bill to eliminate the test of financial need as a prerequisite for the sale of feed for livestock in emergency areas. This will make uniform throughout the country the interpretations placed on this particular question by local administration officials.

(4) A bill to provide additional drought disaster relief by reimbursement of one-half the cost of shipment of hay. This will make more effective the program for the transportation of hay from areas of supply to drought areas.

Many Pets Killed By Motorists

Unsuspecting motorists kill many pets which are seeking relief from summer heat in the shade of their automobiles, according to a report from the Maryland State Veterinary Medical Association.

Dogs like to rest on the pavement, in the shade of the car, says the veterinarians, while many cats prefer to crawl next to the motor, under the hood of the car. Unsuspecting pet owners start their car engines, and often injure the cat or dog.

The veterinary medical association cautions pet owners particularly to look under cars before driving away during the hot months.

Many Drivers Losing Licenses

Maryland's Department of Motor Vehicles this week announced that mandatory revocations of operators permits under the point system rose sharply during the period from January 1, 1964 thru June 30, 1964.

John R. Jewell, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles stated that a six-month activity report from the D.M.V.'s Driver Licenses Division revealed point system revocations for conviction of 12-point violations, during the first half of 1964, increased more than 23% over the previous six months.

According to the report, 3,237 drivers had their licenses revoked from January through June, 1964 following conviction of motor vehicle violations carrying the maximum point value. 2,489 motorists were similarly revoked during the last half of 1963.

In making the announcement, Commissioner Jewell said the figure indicated a "substantial increase in the number of serious offenses recently committed on Maryland highways."

"Motorists should be mindful always of the possibility of accidents and the importance of their license as far as employment is concerned," he concluded.

Under the law, leaving the scene of an accident where personal injury is involved, driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs, operating after suspension or revocation, loaning or altering an operator's permit and obtaining or attempting to obtain a permit by misrepresentation are 12-point violations. Conviction of these & other maximum point-value violations require mandatory revocation of the driver's license.
