The people of Emmitsburg should demand of Governor Tawes a sweeping investigation as to the planning and engineering of the new Emmitsburg by-pass. The ill-conceived and abortive stretch of new highway has cost the lives of three victims already and has been in operation just three weeks. In the planning stage for a decade, the new roadway, in the opinion of most people, is a veritable death trap and is fast proving itself just that. Police are working almost around the clock in an effort to stem the tide of mounting accidents and fatalities. In a five-day span there were five collisions, all at one intersection.

The engineering and planning geniuses in the State Roads Commission building ivory tower have really come up with the most idiotic bit of planning and engineering in modern road-building history. No one, in his right mind, would have laid out a road in the manner that the new Route 15 by-pass around Emmitsburg has been. In plain language, a high school youngster could have done a better job. Anyone knows it is sheer folly to have two main traffic arteries crossing each other. When it was first learned that the intersection would be of a simple nature prognostications indicated there would be trouble, and brother, trouble there has been and will be.

We dread to even think of what will happen when the second lane of the dual highway is installed in the future. With motorists being slain attempting to negotiate the present cross-over, what will they do when the distance of this cross-over is more than doubled?

It is our humble, but firm opinion, that the new by-pass should be closed immediately to traffic, rerouting it back over old Rt. 15, until such a time as the State Roads Commission can come up with something safe and sane. The road never should have been opened to the motoring public in the first place as many safety devices were not in readiness. For two weeks now the Commission has been installing signs urging caution but still motorists are losing their lives and bodies are being maimed and property destroyed. Our County Commissioners, State Senator, members of the Frederick County House of Delegates group, Congressmen and Senators should demand an investigation of the whole situation and especially why the Roads Commission did not install an overpass in the first place. Even the Adams County, Pennsylvania, coroner has written Maryland officials imploring them to take corrective measures and make the road safer. It was never fully understood why the new by-pass was brought right to the corporation limits of the Town ruining the value of several new homes in the area, when there were acres of vacant unimproved land all around the area east of Town. In all fairness to the people, and motorists, Governor Tawes should personally check and inspect the new by-pass and then fully investigate why the State Roads Commission couldn't come up with a better plan for the road. As it is, the new by-pass represents a landmark depicting the stupidity of the Maryland State Roads Commission.

By-Pass Score: 3 Dead, Six Wrecks

Six accidents, three of them fatalities, was the score on the new Route 15 by-pass of Emmitsburg, since its opening without notice Dec. 10. Five of the accidents and two of the fatalities occurred at the same intersection of Rt. 15 and Rt. 97, east of town.

State Police and local police have maintained an almost 24-hour vigil at the intersection but two of the accidents happened before their very eyes. The State Roads Commission is currently erecting a caution blinker at the intersection after placing a multitude of warning signs there.

The first fatality occurred about 24 hours after the new two-mile by-pass, with its four intersections, had opened. No. 1 fatality was Carl S. Eastbridge of Quarryville, Pa., who was killed Dec. 11, at the first northern section of the bypass at the Curtis Topper property.

The second fatality occurred when Francis Carroll Goldsborough, 62, of Philadelphia, a retired salesman for the Sun Oil Co., died Saturday morning in the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, of injuries suffered in a New Year's Eve accident.

Adams County Coroner Dr. C. G. Crist said the death occurred in the hospital at 3:35 Saturday morning. Goldsborough had suffered a broken neck, multiple fractures of the ribs, lacerations of the chin and tongue, and contusions of the body when his car was struck broadside at the intersection of the Emmitsburg-Taneytown Rd. with the new Rt. 15 by-pass at Emmitsburg, at 5:55 New Year's Eve.

Maryland state police said the car was struck on the side by a northbound auto operated by Gerald Thomas Zangari, Lancaster. The officers said Goldsborough had failed to halt for the stop sign on the Taneytown Rd.

Damage was estimated by Sperry Ford Sales, which towed the wrecked vehicles from the scene at $1,300 to Goldsborough's 1963 car which went down an embankment after the accident and at $800 to the front of Zangari's 1965 car.

Both Goldsborough and Zangari were taken to the Warner Hospital in the Emmitsburg VFW ambulance. Zangari was treated for abrasions and contusions.

A son of the late Francis Carroll and Mary Hill Goldsborough, Mr. Goldsborough was born October 24, 1902, at Easton, Md. He had resided at 214 W. Nipper St., Philadelphia, for some years with a sister, Mrs. Mary Wilson. He had never married. He had retired recently from his work as a salesman.

The family had gathered over Christmas at the family home in Easton, and he was reportedly enroute from there to visit some friends for New Year's when the accident occurred Thursday night.

His sister said he had apparently taken the wrong road near Emmitsburg, and was attempting to return to the right road when the accident occurred.

A 56-year-old Takoma Park, Md., woman, Mrs. Madeline Ruth Treible, Saturday became the third person to be fatally injured on the Emmitsburg Route 15 by-pass.

The crash Saturday afternoon, which led to the death of Mrs. Treible, occurred at the same spot where Goldsborough was fatally hurt Thursday night, the intersection of Route 97 with new Route 15.

Six other persons were hurt, some seriously, in the accident which claimed Mrs. Treible's life. Mrs. Treible was a passenger in the right rear seat of an auto being driven south on the Route 15 bypass by Jesse Elmer Jones, 46, Rockville, at 3:05 Saturday afternoon. She died about four hours after the accident in the Warner Hospital, D. C. G. Crist, Adams County Coroner, said the death was caused by internal injuries, a compound fracture of the left arm and fractures of both bones of both legs.

Jones was admitted as a patient at the hospital with a fracture of the pelvis and abrasions and contusions. His daughter, Elaine Caroline Jones, 15, was admitted as a patient with compound fracture of the right leg, a broken left leg and possible fracture of the skull. His wife, Margaret Julia Jones, 45, was admitted to the hospital with lacerations of eye lid and right ear and head injuries.

The three other persons injured in the accident were occupants of the car of James William Osman, 58, Baltimore, which, according to state police, was traveling east on the Emmitsburg-Taneytown Rd.

Osman, according to the officers, failed to yield the right of way to the southbound Jones car.

Osman was admitted to the hospital with five fractured ribs, a broken nose and a broken left arm. His wife, Jane Victorio Osman, 37, was admitted with a broken collar bone and broken ribs. Their nine-year-old daughter, Sheila Jane Osman, suffered abrasions and contusions and was admitted as a patient at the hospital.

Both vehicles were demolished in the accident, Maryland State Police said.

Mrs. Treible, wife of Samuel Treible, Takoma Park, was enroute home after visiting, along with the Jones family, with members of the family in Scranton.

In a minor accident Sunday, Walter Seifreid, Bethesda, was attempting to pass another car, which suddenly made a left turn into Rt. 97 in front of the Seigfried Volkswagen, causing $250 damage to the front right fender and grill of the Volkswagen. The other car sustained only minor damage.

Several passengers in an automobile operated by Myrtle May Ford, Monday afternoon when Mrs. Ford failed to stop at the stop sign at the intersection and crashed into the right rear fender of a southbound auto operated by Charles R. Angell, Thurmont. Damage to the Ford car was $500. Mrs. Ford told State Police that she had driven to the crash scene out of curiosity "to see where the fatal accidents" had occurred.

The Conference will meet on January 28 and 29 at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore to discuss the theme, "Curriculum Trends in a Changing World." The purpose of the meeting is to allow the citizens of the state an opportunity to participate with educational experts in a discussion of major policies in the administration of the public school systems.

Professor Orosz, who is a native of South Bend, Ind., and a graduate of Notre Dame University there, is director of the Mount St. Mary's teacher training program which has been specifically designed, through his efforts, for the curriculum of a small liberal arts college. The program includes special professional semesters of study in which the area high schools in Maryland and Pennsylvania are utilized.

Since coming to the Mount faculty in 1951 from Villa Madonna College in Kentucky, he has seen the college's education program grow from five graduates per year to about 50.

Last year he was a member of the college's steering committee during its self-evaluation review for the Middle States Association. He is currently doing post-graduate work at the University of Maryland.

Important Savings Bond Info Given

Q. I have a sizeable number of Series E Bonds of the $100 denomination which I've accumulated over the years through the Payroll Savings Plan. If an emergency arises and I have to cash some of these bonds, when is the best time to do so to realize their highest dollar return?

A. Your highest return would be obtained if the bonds are cashed on the date on which redemption values increase. Your bank bond teller can tell you which date that is, so don't fail to ask. By way of example though, let's say you need some extra money, the date is February 12, 1965, and the bond in question is dated September, 1956. If you cashed the bond on the 12th, your value could be $95.26. If you could hold off cashing the bond until March 1, the date of higher redemption value, your return would be $97.24.

Q. I am getting along in years, am in ill health, own over $20,000 in Series E Bonds and am wondering whether I could name my alma mater as beneficiary. I have no known next-of-kin and feel I owe my school much for the success I've enjoyed.

A. Sorry, the answer is no. Savings Bonds issued in beneficiary or co-owner form can name two natural persons only. A bond naming a school or any other type of organization can be registered in the name of that school or organization only. There is one way you could see the school gets the money, though, and, at the same time, insure it gets money on top of money. You could cash your bonds and buy bonds in the name of the school with the proceeds. You would, however, have to pay Federal income tax on all interest earned on the bonds up to the time of cashing them.

Q. The other day, a friend of mine told me of an incident where a friend of his needed money in a hurry and wanted to sell him a $500 Series E Bond for less than its cost price. Isn't that illegal?

A. You are absolutely right, Savings Bonds are non-transferable. Under Treasury regulations, the owner can cash them only through an authorized bond agent.

CAREER DOGS

By Bob Bartos, Manager Friskies Pet Foods Research Center The list of jobs for which dogs are qualified is growing constantly. They lead the blind, aid police in apprehending criminals, find lost children, protect missile bases and herd and guard livestock. In England, their success in still another field gives promise of many new job openings for our four-footed friends. British aviation experts are using dogs to help unravel the cause of airplane accidents. Especially trained dogs scour the site of crashes and retrieve bits and pieces of the wreckage which provide the clues to the cause of the crash. When a piece is too large for the dog to handle, he stands over it and barks 'til help arrives.

It all began as an experiment following a crash in Ireland when more than 100 Boy and Girl Scouts were unsuccessful in a search for parts. A dog, flown into the scene of the crash, retrieved enough pieces in just two hours to determine the cause of the accident. The three dogs currently in the program have proved so adept at the work that the Royal Aircraft Establishment is not only expanding the service, but is fitting the dogs out with small radios so that handlers can give their charges instruction from five miles away.

Feeding tip: If your dog is a picky eater, it may be that he's deficient in Vitamin B-1. Giving your pet a quality prepared food such as Friskies, which contains liver and other sources of Vitamin-B, should perk up his appetite.

State Highway Fatal Increase

Twenty persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Ten of those killed were drivers; five were passengers and five pedestrians. Alcohol was a contributing factor in eight of the deaths; speed in nine and "driver error" was present in 16 of the fatalities.

"The year 1964 closed on a rather dismal note," commented Col.

Carey Jarman, superintendent of the Maryland State Police. "In December we saw 72 motor vehicle deaths which raised the total for the year to 610—the highest yearly total since World War II. In 1963 the total was 596; in 1962 it was 590 and in 1961 it was 461.

"A fact that stands out in our investigation of highway accidents is the reluctance of motorists to use seat belts. Many cars still are not equipped with them. Also our investigators frequently report 'car equipped with seat belts but not in use.' These same reports indicate that occupants of vehicles suffered serious or fatal injury because they were ejected from the car. In many such cases, investigators feel that the use of belts would have prevented or lessened the seriousness of such injuries. Troopers of the State Police never fail to fasten their seat belts. It is the first thing they do when they get behind the wheel of their patrol car. They know that a securely fastened seat belt might save their life.

"Last week one of our Troopers had the misfortune of colliding with a car, the operator of which was under the influence of alcohol. The Trooper's car was demolished. Investigators are convinced that his life was saved because he was held securely in place by his seat belt."

BY LON K. SAVAGE

Ben Butler, the Massachusetts politician who probably bungled more military commands than any other Union general in the Civil War, finally was removed from command 100 years ago this week.

The reason: another bungle—at least a bungle in the eyes of Ulysses S. Grant and President Lincoln. On Christmas Day, Butler had led a land-sea assault on Fort Fisher near Wilmington, N. C., had fought his way almost to the fortress' walls and then had given up, withdrawn his men and sailed away, leaving the fort unhurt.

His quitting when victory seemed almost in hand was enough to infuriate Grant, and Grant's anger was even stronger when he heard from the navy commander on the expedition, the respected Admiral David Porter, that the fort could have been taken simply if Butler's men had fought to take it.

And on January 4, 1865 Grant formally requested that Butler be removed from his command. Lincoln okayed the request, and Butler was sent packing for the Old Bay State, a general without an army.

Butler's Career

It ended the war career of one of the Civil War's most controversial generals.

Butler, a longtime politician, was controversial even before the war when he frequently declared himself on the side of the Southern cause. Then, when war broke out, his fellow Americans were surprised to see him among the first to go off to war, in a general's uniform, to crush the Southern rebellion.

Midway in the war, Butler commanded the occupation of New Orleans, where he issued a famous order that sent Southern blood pressures rising. After several Southern women had insulted Federal officers in the city, Butler wrote an order that such women hereafter would be considered women of the street. The order sent Jeff Davis, the Confederacy's president, into such a tizzy that he ordered that Butler, if ever captured, should be hanged as a common felon.

In Virginia

Later, Butler turned up in command of Federal troops along the Virginia-Carolina coast, and here he muffed another chance. As Grant and Lee slugged it out around Cold Harbor in 1864, Butler moved up the James River toward Richmond with 30,000 men—enough to crash into the Confederacy's capital and perhaps end the war.

But somehow, Butler managed to get his army bottled up in a cul-de-sac by a handful of Confederates southeast of Richmond and never did get out until after Lee's army had swooped in around Richmond and Petersburg to save the city.

His exploit at Wilmington on Christmas Day, 1864, may not have been the boner Grant thought it was. After considerable delays, Butler and Porter did manage to bring their large force in ships down to Fort Fisher on the Cape Fear River; they did launch their attack in reasonably good style, and had they continued it, they certainly would have met hard opposition.

But when Butler sized the situation up, he decided he could not win the fight and, over Porter's protests, he sailed with his men back to the North. It was the last military maneuver of the war for the old politician.

Next week: The South loses its last port.

Lime Essential For Plants

The use of lime and soil pH readings go hand in hand and directly affect the well-being of ornamental plants, according to information released by the Maryland Nurserymen's Association.

Some soils by nature are very acid (sour). Others are strongly alkaline (sweet). By controlling the acidity level of the soil, it is possible to lock up certain plant food elements and to release others.

The degree of acidity is designated chemically by a pH reading. pH readings are placed on a simple scale with a range from 0 to 14. pH 7 is neutral. Readings above 7 are alkaline; those below 7 are acid. Although a pH reading can not be used to determine fertility levels, it can be used as a guide for providing a good soil environment.

The chemical nature of lime (calcium oxide) is such that when applied to soils, the pH goes up. Since most acid soils are deficient in calcium, it is most convenient to use lime as a conditioner, especially since most ornamentals prosperity. His image as the fatherly supervisor of good times, with something for every American and mellowness toward the Reds for the sake of peace, was apparently enough to commend him and his program to the voters.

Difficult To Pin-Point

So, not many citizens got excited, it seems. As in 1960, too many thought nothing of defaulting so that "they" (to use the tasteless phrase of one well-meaning "go vote" appeal) would make choices. There was some excitement late in the campaign, when morality in government got a boost as an issue because of misconduct of a Johnson associate. But it was not enough to depend upon the pitiful records of a couple of fallen associates to defeat the President at the polls. Not even the wheeler-dealer history of Lyndon in Texas, in best seller paper-back, could unseat him or separate Texas from him.

Nevertheless, we do believe that some real issues of slipping morals and softened integrity and careless ethics remained submerged under the surface of American life. These were difficult to dramatize, though the Arizona Senator tried bravely. But there will be another time, when more people may care.

Some Do Care

Serious concern, for example, was voiced recently in a Chicago speech by the chairman of the world's biggest utility, Frederick A. Kappel, of American Telephone and Telegraph. Said he: "You don't have to be a puritan to sense that moral standards have slackened. It is hard to escape the feeling that things are worse than they used to be. The crime statistics keep going up. Disrespect for law and order is widely apparent . . . and it isn't just poverty and narcotics and racial tensions that generate all the trouble. There are many other factors as well."

"I would say these include, for example, a weakening of religious belief and training; the idea that society owes everyone a living, . . . and, to a great extent nowadays, people simply seem to take misbehavior in stride. They don't get up in arms about it. . . . A bad actor isn't really bad, he just makes mistakes because his childhood was unhappy. Attitudes of this sort have tremendous influence." Such a description of the general moral climate of the nation deserves study by every one of us.

For Good Or Evil?

Although we do not feel that Congress can or should legislate morality, nor the federal government enter this area in its expansion efforts, we do believe that definite relationships between the government and its people do exist. It is rather the quality of government, its laws and its administration of justice that induces good attitudes, respect for others, and regard for high standards. Much more is involved, indeed, than the occasional removal of some weak or defective character from the government service. Good government is a mighty force; poor government based on bad principles is a destroyer.

On the whole, U. S. government has been good. We have produced no Napoleons, Machiavellis, Hitlers, or Castros. History reveals some unpleasant paragraphs and unprincipled characters, but the people have always mustered the moral strength to come back to the right and the true. They must, and will, do it again. The immorality of expanded federal power, the grasp for public spending, the cheapening of our money, the easy haste in judicial overturn of law and precedent, the condoning of civil disorder—these only begin the list of negative contributions to public morals. Government ought to lead, as much as it can, away from moral decay.

enjoy a pH of approximately 6.0. As a rule of thumb when soil tests are not made, not more than 50 pounds of hydrated lime nor more than 100 pounds of magnesium limestone should be applied per 1000 square feet in any one year. Magnesium limestone may be applied at the same time that plant food is used; however, hydrated lime should be applied to the soil at least 30 days before or after the application of plant food.

A simple test that the home gardener can make to prove this point is as follows: Hold a teaspoon of very moist soil in one hand. Add a pinch of hydrated lime and a pinch of plant food. Within a few seconds ammonia gas may be detected in the mixture. This is present because the calcium oxide is releasing the nitrogen. A quick release of nitrogen from the soil can bring about an unbalance of plant nutrients and plants will turn yellow.

When using lime on the lawn and around ornamental plants, do not permit it to contaminate the soil where azaleas and other acid-loving plants are growing. The action of lime is straight down; be careful when applying it to any soil.

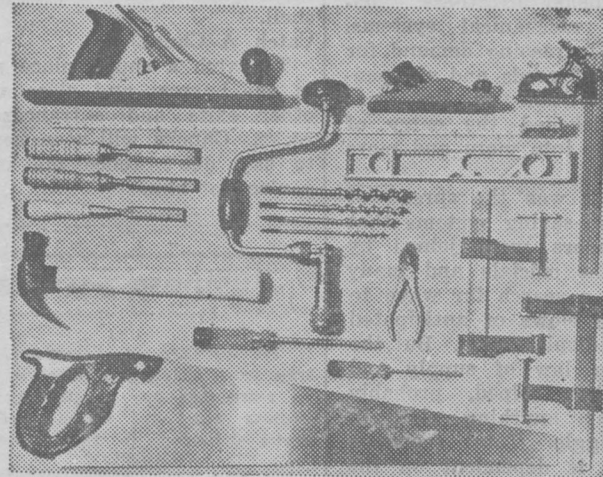

During one month alone, the Maryland Blue Cross Plan covered bills exceeding $1,000 for more than 500 subscribers.

Let the weak say, I am strong.—(Joel 3:10).

There is never a time when we do not have available to us all the strength, all the power, all the help we need to cope with anything. God, in His infinite mercy provides all these things. All we need do is to seek His assistance.

It pays to feed heifers, dry cows the Purina Way!

Grain feeding of heifers and dry cows is an accepted practice by leading dairymen here in the East. They do it to make more milk . . . and more money. Many report 1,000 pounds more milk during the next lactation when a dry cow is properly conditioned on Purina D & F Chow. You feed it according to body weight . . . a thousand-pound cow, for example, needs only 10 pounds a day. Purina D & F—full name, Dry and Freshening Chow—is specially designed to help build body condition, which later converts to low-cost milk. You'll find D & F in coarse or pellet form, whichever fits your feeding situation best.

Either way, it's one of the smartest feed buys on the market today. Ask for it by name—"Purina D & F"—at our Store with the Checkerboard Sign.

The Morality Issue, Post Mortem

One of the most distressing realizations one can have looking backward at the elections derives from the fact that too few Americans really cared to search out the real issues or even to find the stamina required to make any choices at all. This itself is partly a matter of weakened morality. Whether this was cause or effect we are not quite sure, but it does seem that too few of us were thinking deeply about issues. Perhaps there was not enough moral ferment on the political scene, no sharp focus for debate, and far too much self-satisfaction with the state of prosperity.

We do not blame Senator Goldwater, who now and then brought up more than enough to light a considerable political blaze but whose campaign obviously did not catch fire. We do not blame President Johnson, who joined very few issues indeed, for wanting to coast into a full term on the basis of Test-drive a Ford—and you're in for some surprises. Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which 1965 Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, XL and LTD Hardtops) with 289-cu. in. V-8 engines rode quieter than a Rolls-Royce. These tests were certified by the U. S. Auto Club.

When you feel a 1965 Ford in action—with the strongest Ford body ever . . . a revolutionary new frame that "tunes out" vibration . . . new ultra-soft coil spring suspension—you're bound to be impressed. But the ride is only one of Ford's surprises . . .

■ New swept-back instrument panel adds five inches extra knee room. ■ Transmission tunnel is lower for extra foot room. ■ Trunk has more space than ever—holds four 2-suiters standing upright.

■ Handy new "reversible" ignition key—works either side up.

■ Hot, but hushed, 289-cu. in. V-8 is standard equipment in XL and LTD models. ■ Smooth, thrifty all-new Bix Six in other models—the most powerful standard Six offered by any car in Ford's class. ■ V-8 options to 425 hp.

■ All Ford automatic transmissions have three speeds, not two as in some competing cars. Result: you pass faster, shift smoother, save on gas. ■ Fully synchronized manual transmissions—you can even shift down to first without clashing gears. ■ New Ford LTD 4-door hardtops have 10 courtesy lights, 5 ash trays. Upholstery treated to keep its beauty with Scotchgard® stain repellent. ■ Luxuries you'd expect only in the highest priced cars.

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On: Automation's Effect On Employment

BABSON PARK, Mass., Jan. 7—Since the dim, dark days when the wheel was first invented, every step taken by man to ease his work load and hasten production of goods has been greeted with cries of alarm. The charge has always been the same: Easier, stepped-up output would mean the employment of fewer people, and this while obviously be followed by massive joblessness. So far in human history the alarms have been completely wrong.

Long-View Economists Have Known Better

Economists with long-range insight have always recognized that technological improvements may very well mean temporary dislocations. When Henry Ford began his fantastic belt-line automotive operations, the usual alerts were sounded. Unemployment would sweep the country as a result of consequent lay-offs. More highly schooled observers, however, were aware that the making of new mass-production machinery and other associated innovations would more than absorb the men displaced by the installation of belt-lines.

When the stock market crash of 1929 was followed by deep and frightening plunges in industrial production and all other economic factors, the blame was fixed by many on displacement of men by machines. It took a lot of people a long while to realize that the blame actually lay with wild and uncontrolled financial excesses. Business dropped because production had soared so heedlessly above demand that the Law of Action and Reaction took over to correct matters. It showed, actually, that a bust must follow a feverish boom. Efficiency Never A Basic Fault

Around 1950, there began a true emergence in the field of electronics, instruments, and controls of a series of machines designed to operate machines. The development was given the term "automation", and without delay the usual chorus of gloom arose: Machines to run machines would mean that millions of workers would be thrown out of jobs as soon as the new concept spread into wider operation. Labor unions at first tried violently to prevent the extension of these "job-stealing" mechanical systems. But ever-increasing demand for all types of goods and sharpening competition on the price front quickened the entry of automation into more and more lines.

So swift was the spread of these labor-saving systems that labor leaders were joined by government officials and many others in a search for ways to soften the blows of anticipated employee displacement. But the underlying law of supply and demand has helped, probably more than anything else, in this struggle. Total economic expansion is dependent on the pace of the rise in productivity, or output per man-hour of work. Automation, like all other efficiency procedures, has enabled industry to turn out more goods at a more reasonable cost. Hence, markets are enlarged and more workers are taken on to fill the steadily increasing demand.

Employment Rises Despite Automation There is, too, the steady growth of automation-oriented industries to supply the machines needed, to service them, to replace them when more efficient devices are researched and developed. Naturally, there are temporary reshufflings of personnel, some necessary lay-offs, but retraining and upgrading eventually take care of most of the men and women affected. As always, those lacking versatility and adaptability are the worst off. And the high degree of skill needed in this age of machines-to-run-machines is steadily upgrading the quality of the nation's "average" employee.

The fact remains, however, that since 1950 more than 10 million more jobs have been created, even though this marks the period during which alarmists assured everybody that millions of jobs would be done away with, not created. Unemployment has risen somewhat during this time, but far less than the gains that have been seen in the country's population and in the labor force itself. There has always been a jobless problem; facts appear to indicate, however, that it has been helped by automation more than it has been aggravated . . . in spite of persisting claims to the contrary.

BLINDS FOR DUCK HUNTING

DUCKS AND OTHER WATERFOWL ARE SHARP-EYED, so the hunter has to be well-concealed. The portable grass blind, favorite of veteran hunters, is easily made. Use any amount of chicken wire about 4 ft. wide, and cut 1/2" laths to fit this width. Space the laths about 18" apart with small nails. Then weave grass or rushes upright between wires — you can roll the blind up and use it again many times.

NATURAL ROCK AND STUMP BLINDS keep you hidden from ducks. Wear dark tan clothing, which is less conspicuous than other colors. When ducks approach, keep your face down, and keep your gun close to your body to decrease light reflections.

FOR SAND BAR OR FIELD, try the barrel pit blind — drill drain holes in a large watertight barrel. Build in a shell shelf and seat. Put in a rock-bottomed hole. Cover it when you leave to keep the blind dry.

FOR FAST ACTION many duck-hunters prefer the model 870 Wingmaster by Remington, offered in versions chambered for either 3" magnum or standard 2 3/4" shells. It makes those long wet days worth it!

Luci Baines Johnson Will Head March of Dimes Teen Program

Luci Baines Johnson, America's most famous teenager, will be honorary chairman of the 1965 March of Dimes Teen Age Program against birth defects. Luci, who has some very strong opinions about young people and their place in society, is leading a task force of thousands of young people in the fight against birth defects.

"There are a lot of good and useful things we can do right now—without waiting to turn 21," she says.

Her opinion is confirmed by March of Dimes spokesmen. "Teen-age volunteers are among our most dedicated workers. Their interest, their contribution of time, talent and energy has been impressive. There can be no doubt that they have played a significant role in the conquest of polio."

Cites New Hope

"The victory over polio gives us heart and hope that answers can be found in an infinitely more complex disease area—birth defects. It is a problem in which young people have a special stake—not only because of the large percentage of babies born to mothers under 20 but because of the relationship of the health of teenagers to that of their future children," Luci points out.

More than a quarter of a million seriously defective infants are born in this country each year—one every other minute—700 a day. The problem of birth defects is far greater than polio ever was.

Young people who have joined the Teen Age Program of the 1965 March of Dimes fight against birth defects will shoulder many responsibilities. Many are helping to carry out the public education program against birth defects. Others are assigned to help in various ways with the Mothers' March for the March of Dimes. Some help out at one of the more than 3,000 local chapters of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

TAP also gives young people the opportunity to help solve these problems through year-round programs of education, service and fund raising.

Most TAP volunteers work through school or club groups, teaming up to work on planned projects or to initiate programs of their own.

Help Plan Programs

March of Dimes educational programs provide material for club and organization meetings. Films, publications and exhibits on the subject of birth defects are available for meetings. Local chapters can help plan a program and supply a speaker to discuss the problems of birth defects, new treatment techniques and research breakthroughs.

Through a program of Health Career Awards, many chapters of The National Foundation offer March of Dimes scholarships to attract students to the health fields. Ranging from $100 to $500 per year, these awards are "starter incentives" to help students begin their first year of professional study in the fields of medical social work, medicine, physical therapy, occupational therapy and nursing.

TAP service projects range from helping to distribute literature to being of service to patients and to helping raise funds for research and patient care.

Dances, Games Help

Teenagers have raised money for the March of Dimes by putting on dances, basketball games, contests of all sorts and sales of everything from balloons to garden seeds. Much of this money has gone into the establishment of 50 March of Dimes birth defects centers throughout the country.

These birth defects centers make diagnosis, evaluation

Spanish Pastries For Cocktail Appetizers

Tiny little pastries called Empanadillas will make a hit at your next party. These Spanish appetizers are made with a pastry of olive oil, egg and flour, and a filling of meat, fish, egg or almost anything you like.

(Olive oil in the pastry gives it flaky crispness.) For convenience, they can be made up in advance, frozen, and kept on hand to be baked shortly before they are to be served.

A typical Spanish filling calls for chopped cooked veal, raisins, onions, pimientos and parsley. Or use any other leftover meat or chicken. If you haven't enough meat, extend it by adding chopped hard-cooked eggs.

Pastry: Combine 1/2 cup Spanish olive oil, 1 egg, 1/4 cup water and 1/2 teaspoon salt; sift in 3 cups flour. Knead as for pie crust, divide into four equal parts. Roll out on flour board to 1/8 inch thickness, cut circles with biscuit cutter. Place a teaspoon of filling on half the circles, top with second circle and crimp edges together. Repeat with remaining pastry. Brush tops with a little oil. Bake at 400° for 25 minutes (30 minutes if taken direct from freezer). Equally good hot or cold.

Filling: Sauté 1 cup cooked veal, beef or chicken, and 1 cup minced onion in 4 tablespoons Spanish olive oil. When onion is tender, add 1/4 cup raisins, 1 2-oz. can diced pimiento, drained (or 1/4 cup), 1/2 teaspoon salt. Simmer 5 minutes longer. Add 1 tablespoon minced parsley. A tablespoon or two of white wine or sherry may be added if desired.

Read Mark 1:32-42.
"You shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you shall be my witness . . . to the remotest parts of the earth." (Acts 1:8, Weymouth).

In the early days of radio we used batteries which arrived with the chemicals inside, but we had to add water to activate them.

Similarly, the one vital element necessary to fill our hearts with power is the Holy Spirit. Through prayer, His power becomes activated in us. We must be charged with power before we can be a force for good.

During His ministry, Jesus often left the press and throng of humanity and departed to a quiet place, there to commune with His Father and receive new strength and power. If the divine Son of God needed to draw fresh strength from time to time, how much more do we need revitalizing?

As the disciples at Pentecost received power, so also may we when we open our hearts and let the Holy Spirit take control of our lives.

Prayer
Our Father, grant that we may

"There has been no increase in the social security tax rate for employees, employers, and the self-employed for 1965," W. S. King, District Manager of Social Security in Hagerstown, stated this week. The rate continues at 3 5/8 per cent of an individual's annual earnings up to $4800 for employer and employee alike, and 5.4 per cent on net earnings up to that amount for the self-employed, he said.

King explained that he was stressing this point at this time because in some sections of the country questions were being asked at social security offices about "the new tax rate for 1965," with the inquirers asserting that they had read about a change in rate in certain business publications. "The source of many of the misconceptions has been traced to several privately produced leaflets outlining a number of proposed amendments to the social security law which were considered by Congress in 1964 but not enacted. The leaflets were sent out in sample lots to prospective bulk purchasers while the legislation was still under consideration. "The failure of the legislation to pass the Congress should have ended all interest in these publications, and in most cases it did. However, at several widely-scattered locations these leaflets, which mentioned a proposed social security tax increase for 1965, were understood to mean that the proposed changes had been made. This was evidently why people began asking for more details."

Brownies List

Recent Activities

Brownie Troop 1300 started early this year for Christmas as they decided to have a party for their parents and put on a play for their entertainment. November 30, the group planned and made invitations to the play. December 7, the girls made or at least started work on gifts for their mothers. This was not quite completed and was finished at the December 14th meeting. They also wrapped the gifts they made. The gifts and wraps out of the way, the group worked hard on the play to be put on the evening of December 22. Characters were chosen and the staged put in order.

The dress rehearsal was almost a big failure as the Chicken Pox had taken a big toll on the actresses. They managed to substitute with girls who had returned from their bouts with the spotted demon, however, and put on the play with fair success and much giggling and fun.

The group wants to thank all the parents for their cooperation in helping and supplying the refreshments. Mrs. Betty Meredith had charge of this department and served punch, cup cakes and hard candies. Francesca Cunningham did a dandy job of playing Santa Claus for the play which was entitled "Santa's Workshop." ### Work Is Begun On Multi-Million Dollar Resort

Adams County, between Zora and Fairfield, has a new 13-acre lake this week.

The lake is the first of three to be constructed near here on the 2,000-acre recreational project to be known as "Charnita." They will vary in size from 12 to 30 acres and will provide fishing and boating facilities for vacationers and permanent residents of the resort, which eventually will include a 250-room mountaintop hotel, apartment houses for senior citizens, a commercial airport and a shopping center.

The Adams County Equipment Co., Littlestown, began work on the new lake last week for Charles G. and Anita G. Rist, Baltimore developers and owners of the recreation-resort project west of here. Construction was started earlier on private roads to the proposed 200-acre golf course and clubhouse, ski slope, swimming pools, rental cabins and camp sites. The first phase of the development will be completed this spring.

Sale of 1,000 acres to persons planning to build permanent homes or resort cottages will begin April 1. Tracts from a half-acre upwards will sell for $1,000 to $10,000 depending upon locations, Rist said. The tract will have more than two miles of lake front sites. Design and type of construction will be restricted by the Charnita corporation.

Camping facilities and vacation cottages will be available by the day, week, month or season, Rist said. He indicated that costs to guests will range from $2.50 a day for campers to a minimum of $10 a day for cottages. Luxury cabins will be designed to rent for as much as $50 a day.

In an area of 35 acres, approximately 500 camp sites will be available and will include water and toilet facilities, wooden tent platforms, barbecue pit and playgrounds for children. A five-acre amusement park is also planned.

An Olympic-type swimming pool with locker rooms and cabanas will be centrally located near Rt. 116 and will be open to the public as well as guests of Charnita. One of the three lakes will be stocked with fish, leaving two other lakes for water skiing, boating and canoeing.

An 18-hole, par 72 golf course will be constructed this spring and is expected to be ready for use in 1966. A clubhouse will also serve patrons of the 4,000-foot ski trail. Edmund D. Auld, Silver Spring, has designed the golf course and predicts it "will be the most challenging course in the East." Cost of the course will be approximately $225,000, with a similar cost for clubhouse.

Rist estimates that by the time Charnita is completed—in about 1974—he will have invested $5,000,000. He expects the venture to gross in the neighborhood of $2,500,000 annually and to serve 20,000 vacationers a day.

Apartments for retired residents will rent for $75-80 a month and will provide complete residential facilities and services. Permanent homes will range in price from $10,000 upwards. A complete shopping center will be built near Rt. 116.

The second phase in the development of Charnita will include a large coliseum-type auditorium for conventions and trade shows, and with facilities for theatrical productions, hockey and basketball. Rist said this would be added only after all other facilities are completed, including a Swiss Alpine Village complete with shops, stores and chalet. Access to the Swiss Village will be by bicycle or chair lift only and automobiles will be prohibited from the area. All roads throughout the project will be private and will be maintained by the management, Rist said.

The ultimate goal in the final development of the project will be a 250-room hotel atop McKee's Knob, which has been renamed "Mount Charnita." The hotel will have a revolving observation dining room on the 18th floor and will provide a view of more than 60 miles from an elevation of 1,300 feet. The hotel will accommodate about 1,250 overnight guests and will include conference and dining facilities for another 800 persons. It will be erected on a 75-acre section of the development.

Transportation facilities will include an airport for private planes, bus service and planned tours for guests. Day camp programs will be available for children of vacationers and organized bus tours will permit 30 people to visit nearby areas. The staff of permanent employees will include an engineers, recreational director, golf professional, road foreman, and other attendants.

A central water system will be constructed to serve the entire development and sewage and garbage disposal plants will be installed. Fire and police protection will be handled by the Charnita staff of trained personnel.

Rist said he began acquiring the land for Charnita about two years ago and was able to purchase approximately 15 adjoining properties to provide a large unbroken tract. He says he will continue to buy additional property in the area "as it becomes available," and estimates that Charnita will provide more than $100,000 annually in real estate taxes for the county. He will employ approximately 50 local men and women full time, with an additional summer staff of students during the peak seasons.

St. Joseph College Production Planned

"Caledonia!", a production of the Singers and Dancers of Scotland, will appear at Saint Joseph College on Monday, January 11, at 7:45 p.m. in dePaul Auditorium, under the auspices of the Art Program of Saint Joseph's and Mount St. Mary's College.

Under the direction of founder, Andrew MacPherson, the company will perform at the Emmitsburg campus in the course of its third American coast-to-coast tour. "Caledonia!" made its American debut three seasons ago scoring an instantaneous hit. Because of the outstanding success of its first tour, the Singers and Dancers of Scotland have been called back for a second and third tour which will again take them across the United States and Canada.

"Caledonia!" is a special production that presents a complete panorama of Scotland through the authentic music and dances of that country. A special section of the program is devoted to songs set to the poems of Robert Burns. The featured soprano soloist is Hilda Stewart, a native of Glasgow, who studied at the Royal Scottish Academy of Music. Heading the dance wing is Billy Forsyth who placed first in the 2963 World Championship Competition held in Scotland. The bagpipe airs are played by one of Scotland's foremost pipers.

The public is invited to attend the performance. Admission is $2.00 and tickets may be purchased at the door.
