Last Saturday's rain and Sunday and Monday's sleet and freezing rain sort of had us believing we were in for a rough time. The Midwest and some sections of the East received severe damage from the icy weather which broke down power and communication lines. We were rather fortunate here though as no interruptions in service were reported. Reports indicate it was the worst sleet and ice storm in half a century and I, myself, can not recall when the ground, streets and roadways have ever been so slippery. Numerous instances of people falling on the slippery streets were reported but fortunately none too serious. As we prepare to enter into February, usually our worst winter storm month, we at least have the thought that the winter won't be too long anymore. Why come Tuesday it'll be Groundhog Day already and if the legend about the little varmint holds true we'll only have six weeks more of winter facing

While the winter months are slowly sliding by April is fast approaching. This brings to mind that we have a local Town Election during that month and it is none too soon to be considering candidates for the two Commissioners jobs which will be open. Ordinarily there would be only one Commissioner up for office but the Town Charter is being changed to raise the number of Commissioners on the Board to four instead of the usual three. This gives us one more new Commissioner to be elected to the newly-created spot in addition to the regular expiring Commissioner's chair. Incumbent Commissioner up for election is J. Norman Flax. Mr. Flax has intimated that he will not seek re-election. As a matter of fact there are rumors that he might toss his hat into the ring for County Commissioner . . . only time will tell. If Mr. Flax is reticent about running for our local office I am extremely sorry to hear it. In our opinion he has been the Town 'work horse' Council and his loss to the community would be deeply felt. Right now there are many important matters under consideration, such as water, sewerage, annexation, house numbering and the new Postoffice. We really need all the experienced heads we can get on the Council. In addition we have a million dollars invested in a water and sewer system which requires expert management. Let us hope that Commissioner Flax will change his mind and seek re-election.

Work is rapidly progressing on the summer-winter resort of Charnita which is being established in the Zora section about three miles from town. Local merchants and Town leaders are anticipatory as to just what the resort will mean to the economic future of this community. It is my prediction that the resort will be very beneficial to this community. Customers from the Baltimore and Washington areas must come through Emmitsburg to get to the multimillion dollar resort and this just means that some of them will stop here for gas, food, clothing, refreshments, etc. One thing certain, it can't make things any slower since the new by-pass was opened nearly two months ago. We'll have more on this Charnita project in furture columns, in the meantime things look bright for the future of Emmitsburg.

bers of the Frederick County once again? Delegation:

The Time Is Now!

We don't believe there is a level-headed citizen in Frederick County who will dispute the fact that school construction costs in this county have gotten out of

The fact Frederick County has wasted from one to four millions of dollars in schools under construction at the present time, does not give any County Official the right to help this type of "throw-away" continue.

Truthfully, we doubt if one out of 100 realize how we get ourselves involved with these "cadillac" schools.

It all starts out innocently

School patrons of the various areas realize when their schools become old and obsolete—and this together with over-crowding-is a signal to go en masse to the Board.

The School Superintendent sometime prior to the meeting of the State Legislature—reviews the overall situation, and then comes up with various recommendations for school construction and his estimated costs of the same.

These figures are approved by our laymen School Board members and passed on to the County Commissioners. We have yet to hear a County Commissioner state he was a building expert—and be-lieving the School Superintendent and School Board know what they need— a recommendation for a bond issue is passed on to the County Delegation.

The County Delegation is a poball harder and longer than Wittenberg and went on to beat the by publishing pictures of them in balance with the State Senator tion has plenty of other persons An expert childden's photograph- to blame, so it approves the bond er with all the necessary equip- issue, and Frederick County is

Is Dr. Carnochan a better estimator than Dr. Sensenbaugh?

We have our doubts. Dr. Carnochan admits computing the cost figures for Sabillasville School and we don't think this county will ever live that one down.

Dr. Sensenbaugh was an Under Estimator. Out of the last four schools being constructed, only one—Carroll Manor—has come anywhere near being in line with the original estimate. Dr. Carnochan is an Admitted

Over Estimator. He says he would rather ever-estimate and return funds than to under estimate and run back to the Commissioners for more.

This is well and good, but the fact remains in two cases to date, over-estimations have been used instead of being returned!

We should like to remind the County Commissioners of their statements regarding Sabillas-

Commissioner Irvin Renn: "It is an undisputed fact that cost savings in schools are made when the school is in the planning stages, and not after the school has been put out on bid . . ."

Commissioner Lou Dorsey: Some feel the cost of the school is too high just as other schools. . This again shows that savings must be made when the School Board plans a school not when it is bid." Commissioner Russell Horman: (he voted against the school) . without a feasible answer as to why an eight - classroom school should cost the same to construct as a fourteen-classroom school and with the taxpayers interest in mind, I was forced to vote in this manner . . .' Let's go back to when the patrons of various areas know Brunswick High School was approved:

He reiterated his bitter opposition to laws which prohibit County Commissioners from any au-Just who is to blame for our thority in building schools except > Commissioner Horman: agreed with many of the same things Mr. Dorsey had said. Since this time, Mr. Horman had stated to this newspaper, "We (the county commissioners) made a bad error in approving the Brunswick High School. Had we

told the School Board and School

Superintendent to re-design and re-submit bids on that school, that may have nipped in the bud this runaway school building program." Back to the estimates: To show you the inconsistency of our School Superintendents (Dr. Sensenbaugh and Dr. Carnochan), look at the estimates made by each for Northeast Frederick Elementary, Burkittsville - Jefferson Elementary, Old Braddock Elementary and particularly Thurmont-Emmitsburg High School. Dr. Carnochan isn't even consistent with his own estimates. At the recent meeting with the County Commissioners and Delegation, he presented one sheet estimating the Thurmont-Emmitsof $2,500,000—another with it to cost $2,800,000! Which Is Right?

(We hope he doesn't claim a typographical error. That is the ficial school board papers whenever they are questioned.)

Dr. Sensenbaugh said this high school should be constructed for 450 to 500 students. Dr. Car-York office of Woltz Studios of plied the school Would Be Built nochan says it should be for 800 there we should think.

Dr. Carnochan has estimated the site improvement cost for this new high school at $200,000! There are those who say if the site work at Brunswick High costs more than $400,000, the work at Thurmont - Emmitsburg site will cost at least $600,000 considering the raw state of both sites.

Gentlemen, there are ways to control school building costs. No other county in the State of Maryland seems to have the problem we have. Why don't you look at the coun-and greater student populations than Frederick County and find out what can be done?

PEACE TALKS FAIL TO END CIVIL WAR

BY LON K. SAVAGE

Old Francis Preston Blair, Sr. had been something of 1964 tax return. a friend of both President Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy. Because of him, there were formal talks 100 years ago this week of bringing the two together and ending the Civil War.

The talks were conducted on the highest level and were in earnest, and there were hopes among some that they would bring peace to the divided nation. But when they were completed, peace seemed even farther away than when they started.

Blair, 73 years of age and a patriarch of the Republican Party, believed that, because of his familiarity with the two presidents and because of the South's well-known hopes for peace, he could bring about some sort of settlement to end the slaughter on the battlefields. Therefore, shortly after 1865 began, he had gained permission from Lincoln to pass to the South and return—and he embarked upon his mission.

Soon, Blair was closeted with Davis in Richmond. The Terms

Davis would agree, he told Blair, to negotiate to bring peace "to the two countries." That seemed a step, at least, in the right direction.

Back in Washington, Blair got a similar commitment stricting special preferences based ed. This applies in the case of a from Lincoln. He would agree, Lincoln told Blair, to negotiate "with the view of securing peace to the people of our one common country."

And therein—in the phrasing of their commithents —lay the hopelessness of the cause of peace.

Undaunted, Blair went to Richmond a second time (his presence was causing quite a stir in Richmond's newspapers) and showed Davis Lincoln's statement. Davis then appointed a three-member Peace Commision, headed by his Vice President Alexander H. Stephens, and on January 29, the commission went to work. The Talks

That day, the three Confederates showed up at City Point below Richmond, center of the Federal army's activity, and were allowed passage through the Federal lines. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant spoke with them briefly, gave them good lodgings on a boat in the James River and then let them go aboard the boat to Hampton Roads near Norfolk and Fortress Monrce on the coast.

There on the boat, on February 2, they met with President Lincoln and Secretary of State William H. Seward.

The conference never had a chance. When all the formalities had been cleared aside, the irreconiciliable difference stood out like a sore thumb; they were trying to negotiate over the very issue they had been fighting for for four long years. President Lincoln would negotiate only on the condition that the nation be united; President Davis would negotiate only on the condition that there be two

Back to Richmond went the commissioners, and back to Washington went Lincoln and Seward, and that was that.

There was one result, however. Southerners, insulted that Lincoln would offer to negotiate on such terms, revived their fighting spirt and pledged again their resistance to the Federal government.

But even this new fervor could not last long.

> Dr. Hans G. Keitel, of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Pa., reached this conclusion after a series of 20 studies designed to determine how lest to prevent diaper rash. Creams, lotions, ointments, powders, sprays all were tried under Dr. Keitel's supervision. Of these, powders were the most effective. But best of all, the doctor found, was prompt changing of diapers. If, in addition, reasonably soft diaper material is used and non-porous diaper covers made of plastic or rubber are avoided, the problem of diaper rash will usually be kept under control.

When a child born today reaches the age of 35 there will be twice as many people (at the present rate of population growth) in the U.S. as at his birth!

The world's population in mid-1964 stood at an all-time high of just over three billion, and is expected to increase by more than one billion in the next 15 years. Put another way, the world's population is growing at the rate of 60 million people a year—larger than the total population of Great Britain.

Concern over the population explosion and its consequences recently led the American Medical Association to adopt the following policy: "There should be no restraint on the physician concerning the dissemination of birth control information, and as with care, such information should be equally available to both private and clinic patients."

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

In the recent political campaign there was a great deal of chatter about the Social Securation actuaries and statisticians of ity system. Now that the fuss at least ten of the nation's and fury is over, and before private insurance companies. the new Congress gets into session, is perhaps the time to consider Social Security.

When the system was started in 1937, it was sold to the American people as an insurance system. Since that time, before the U.S. Supreme Court, social C. W. Harder security officials have denied that it is really insurance, and that inasmuch as no contract exists between the government and the people, it can be stopped at any time.

* * *

In view of the fact that many millions are either now, or anticipating, some protection for the money that has been taken out of their paychecks it is high time that the facts be made known.

Recently Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio went through the entire 27 year operation of Social Security and found that over 5 ear spans Social Security administrators have consistently inderestimated payments out of the fund, sometimes by over 300%. In private business, of course, such people would be fired for gross incompetency.

It is high time that the facts about the system be brought from the coldly unemotional, out into the open by respon- but factual experts of the nasible technicians.

And rather than have a study wrong.

After all, the insurance companies of America have done quite well in forecasting in come and outgo, best evidenced by the fact they are able to stay in business.

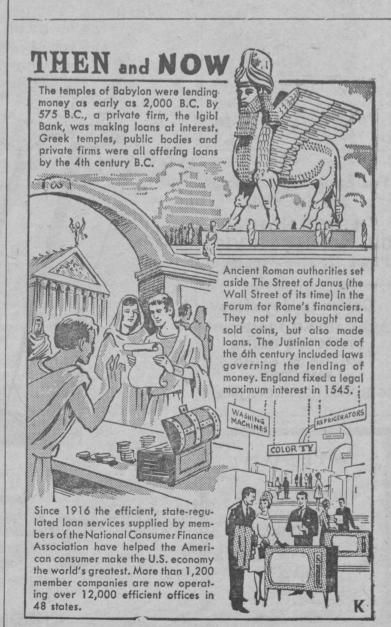

In addition, the public has confidence in their integrity and ability. This is best evidenced by the millions of dollars the public pays them voluntarily every year.

As it stands now, there are no reliable non-politically slanted figures on just how the future of Social Security stands. There is great opposition including the majority of the nation's independent businessmen, voting through the National Federaion of Independent Business, to tacking on a medicare plan, because nobody knows if this would bankrupt the system.

Bankruptcy of Social Security would be tragic.

And it is silly to say the dif-ference could be made up out of general funds, because such general funds are only obtained by taxing people more. * * *

The first pensioners of the system paid ony 12c a loaf for bread. Today, that same loaf costs on an average 32c. Ten years from now, it could again double. Thus, it is time that peope know where Social Security is headed, not from polition's private insurance companies who cannot afford to be

Lessons From

McNamara's Cutbacks

According to political sagacity, the customary timing was required in announcing the closing of the defense installations after the elections. The Administration's move was not sudden at all, but it made no political hay to unsettle 63,000 federal employees before Nov. 3. Even so, the move probably required more White House courage than did the shaking up given Ala-bama through NASA's James Webb, who thought that Huntsville might have to give up something on account of various nonconformities. (It developed that five of eight House seats are now held by Alabama Republicans, and some of NASA's scientists were routinely sent elsewhere.)

Some of the communities where the 95 installations are to be cutback will surely experience unpleasant dislocations, economically and socially. The human factor is tremendous because of readjustments that are required when jobs are eliminated. The pressure of state and community politics on the Pentagon is intense. It is reported that one-third of our Congressmen have registered protests.

Protests Are Futile

Years of studies and investigation back up the Defense Department's decision, and the Secretary can well call them irrevocable. It is characteristic of federal government action that it must be arbitrary and cannot dwell too long on related factors only incidental to the main objective. In this case the government's need for material and manpower simply changed, and there is nothing that anyone can do to alter these aspects of change. Actually, one can wonder why these cutbacks were not put into effect earlier in the interests of economy.

The howls went up around the country immediately. It was as if several thousand shipyard But the pain undoubtedly would have been less severe if action had been taken months, or even years, ago. For too long, the Defense department poured millions into outmoded and unneeded military superfluities. Our $50 billion plus defense budget has unquestionably been padded with just this kind of federal subsidy for years. It was wrong to create this kind of dependency. The government must now be commanded for its resistance to pressure from Congressmen who in many cases "got" the bases and installations for their constituents in the first place. Government Likes To Spend

We are reminded of the controversy over what the President reportedly said a year ago to some senior citizens in the White House. He remarked that burdens such as medicare should be shared by all of us, who must have compassion for the less fortunate. In this context, the President said: "We are going to try to take all the money that we think is unnecessarily being spent and take it from the 'haves' and give it to the 'have nots' that need it so much." Whether he was at that time reallocating defense money or referring to the general rses of taxes, the plans now look the same. Governments always know how to spend better than anybody.

If our citizens within these affected communities will look straight at their problem, it may be possible for them to rebuild on a more permanent economic basis. The rest of us,

Useful Workshop Ideas By Will Ainsworth, Technical Consultant

Hanging Plant Basket

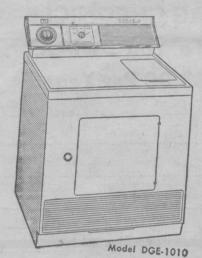

A neatly arranged display of growing flowers becomes more attractive when hung from an overhead support. A clay pot inside of a redwood planter, raised to desired height on wood blocks, keeps the planter clean and expedites changing the display from time to time. As a pleasing alternative you can make a basket from equal lengths of ornamental brass chain held between two wire rings. The weight of the pot on two cross bars keeps the chain taut. The links should fit the rings rather snugly. You may have to spread the punched openings slightly with an ice pick to fit on the lower ring.

Swinging Merry-Go-Round

Easy to make, this foot propelled backyard merry-goround carries a load of four. Get a sturdy steel wheel 4 to 5 ft. in diameter. Use rings or eyebolts for attaching equal lengths of welded chain. The bond crips are lengths of heavy lengths of welded chain. The hand grips are lengths of heavy rubber hose that just slip over the chain, which then is looped up and fastened to itself with small bolts. A steel shaft fitting the wheel hub is welded into a hole centered in a 3-in. pipe cap. Screw this on a 10 to 11-ft. length of 3-in. pipe. Set the pipe in the ground no less than 3 ft. and pour concrete around it for secure anchorage. Apply it for secure anchorage. Apply cup grease to the shaft to minimize friction.

PHEASANT FEEDER

Smack goes the hammer and the nail goes down a bit more into the ear of corn Pat is nailing to a log. One log, plus several ears of corn make a feeder for pheasants and large birds.

Pat is making a pheasant feeder. Of course he knows that not only pheasants will visit it — other large birds will too because they eat and enjoy corn.

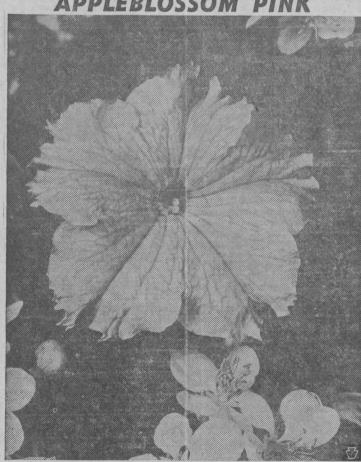

Making the feeder is easy and quick. Pat finds a log heavy enough so it cannot be dragged away by small animals and to this he nails several ears of corn. He is using long nails, long enough to go through an ear and anchor it firmly to the log.

Last winter Pat had such fun watching all the bird and animal visitors to a feeder like this one. One day a huge crow gulped down kernels of corn. Another day a squirrel arrived and sat eating corn for five full minutes. Still another time a flock of grackles came and fought and | what happens!

fussed with one another over the corn until you would think it was ice cream or candy - a real treat.

Would you like to have fun watching birds and wild creatures? Then make a pheasant feeder and set it on the ground under a tree that already has suet and a bird seed feeder hanging from its branches. Watch for a few days and see

APPLEBLOSSOM PINK

Precisely matching the pink of the tight, round bud at the lower left is the big petunia flower in the center. Appropriately, it is named Appleblossom. Let it bloom in your garden this year.

Precisely matching in color the pink bud of an appleblossom, this new petunia is appropriately named Apple Blossom. Its unusual, pale salmon-pink color plus its hybrid vigor, disease resistance and good performance in test gardens throughout the United States and Canada have earned it an award for 1965 from All-America

There is more to this petunia than can be observed on the surface. Certainly it has soft coloring and the petals of its 31/2 inch wide blooms are prettily fringed. But when these flowers start to appear early in the season and continue to open for weeks and months, the canny gardener realizes that the blooming season is exceptionally long. This is due to the resistance of this variety to botrytis, a disease which causes plants of petunias to blight, thus cutting short their life span. Both flowers and plants of size and are beautiful when massed along the house foundation, in a planter box, window box, large flower pot or almost any other place you'd like a handsome petunia.

Since plants grow only a foot high, spread a bit more than that and are compact, you'll know just how much space to allow for each one. Stems of Appleblossom last well in water after cutting, making them desirable for in-door decoration.

It is only on such close-up ac quaintance that you can really delight in the delicate coloring of the petals, the white throats and bright yellow stamens of Appleblossom are uniform in this pretty flower.

Capital City Commission The Legislative Council has proposed legislation which would create the Maryland Commission on the Capital City which would be composed of fifteen members. The Commission would study and consider possibilities for preserving and improving the City of Annapolis as the capital city of Maryland with particular emphasis upon the place of their facilities for State buildings, agencies and offices as part of its studies. The Commission would review the landmark resources of Annapolis, study the relationship between governmental activities and the facilities of the community and make specific recommendations for such community needs as are considered necessary to improve the development of the City of Annapolis and of agencies of State Government. While the Commission would be advisory only, it would at least focus attention on a priceless historic asset which is rapidly undergoing the changes brought about by increased commercial activity in the Annapolis area.

Expansion Of Home Rule To provide an intermediary form of local government in the counties and to make an easier transition from limited county government to Home Rule, the Council has proposed legislation which would enable counties to adopt 'Code Home Rule". Such legislation, if enacted, would permit counties to establish greater local authority in the county governing body and would, in turn, reduce the demand on the local delegation to the General Assembly to pass purely local laws. Many of Maryland's counties are experiencing the kind of population increase which demands more governmental services at a local level. Such demands have also forced a re-examination of the powers and responsibilities of local governments in the counties. Thus, most Legislators can be expected to consider carefully any legislation such as Code Home Rule because of the great amount of time devoted in the Assembly Sessions to local matters.

them by their union leaders, and struck. The strike along the East and Gulf coasts was attributed to a "misunderstanding". Readers can expect to hear of quite a few more "mis-understandings" in other fields in 1965.

Reasons For Expected Disturmances

Looming on the not-too-distant horizon is trouble on the steel front. In the two previous pacts, Big Steel and the steel workers have agreed on fringes instead of wage boosts. This time the union wants raises of at least 15c an hour and doubling of the shift dif-ferentials. So far, the White House has let labor go way beyond the 3.2% annual productivity guideline in pay hikes (auto workers got about 5% last year), even though it has warned company managements against increasing steel prices. President Johnson, anxious to hold the loyalty of both labor and business, would prefer to stay on the sidelines during important negotiations. He very evidently believes in free collective bargaining. But will he dare to permit an industry-wide strike that might throw the entire economy out of whack? There's no question but that there will be interesting doings in the steel industry very soon. Whether the Steelworkers Presdent McDonald is dethroned by his rival, I. W. Abel, or not, the union's aims will be high and its tactics tough.

Auto Gains Spur To Other Unions In addition to the innumerable built-in wage boosts automatically given employees by multi-year union contracts already in force (last year the hourly average gain in such deferred raises was 7.1c; this year it will climb to 7.3c), the stage is set for heavy wage demands right through this year. Almost always at bargaining tables union negotiators ask for new wage advances that are substantially greater than those included in the deferred contracts. We can get some idea of the upward pressure that will be applied this year from the realization that these "built-in" raises do not include such costly items as more liberal medical care, insurance, longer vacations, and more holidays.

Neither do they take into account cost-of-living allowances, which almost invariably become part of the base pay. There are many contracts that will be expiring and reopening this year, with raises and fringes being granted in many instances large enough to encourage fresh drives throughout the rest of the affected industries. Any pressure will be especially intense with business still zooming along and with the example of the 5% pay and fringe-benefit gains that have already been awarded the auto

Employer Resistance Will S iffe-One reason for expecting mor labor difficulties this year is that management's determination to reject excessive demands in as strong as labor's yen to make them. It will be seen that many omployers - particularly those in the more experienced group-will prefer to risk an expensive strike rather than allow labor costs to move any nearer the danger point. They reason that business will not always be this good, so they must plan against less prosperous times. Also, many feel that they will have to fight the profits squeeze without being able to lift prices very much, to avoid antagonizing the White House and weakening their competitive position in the market

Management, in general, is also getting its back up over the efforts being made by unions to have a say in a number of areas that employers have always considered their prerogatives. These include such key issues as automation, contract letting, and the shutting down or even sale of businesses. Management is finding that the National Labor Relations Board and other "referees" are inclined to favor unions in such incursions; and they know that the whole problem must be fought out at the bargainingtable level. Such dissensions will stir up considerable trouble in 1965.

Lack Of Minerals Caused Lack Of Stamina

The origin of man is said to be in the Near-East. There many nations have had their lowing be some of the reasons? When the Hebrews first entered the country of Palestine, it was a timbered country. Now try to find the once-famous Cedars of Lebanon! They are extremely rare.

It appears that the increase in population and in navigation resulted in such a demand for housing and shipbuilding that the hills and mountain sides were denuded of forests, and were not reforested.

We have it on apparently-good authority that the city of Antioch in Syria in the fourth century A.D. had a population of 400,000, but in the year 1936 only 28,000 people.
A deforested countryside suffers a rapid runoff of rain-water, a lowering of the water table, a consequent drying of springs, and ultimately soil erosion and loss of fertility. The prevalent overgrazing with goats hurries the disaster along. Greece even now has more goats than people. In the early days communication and transportation were primitive. The food supply was extremely simple, as unfortunately it is even now in some countries. Certainly there were no supermarkets. People lived from the produce of the soil, with little protective food from animal sources.

It was comparable to farm animals subsisting on the crops of a particular farm or ranch, and if this should be located in a mineral deficient region the animals sooner or later would show the symptoms of mineral deficiency and perhaps die from malnutrition. At least they would suffer deficiency

Even salt has frequently been lacking, and the Bible mentions salt about as often as any other mineral

In general, the soils of Mediterranean countries through the ages have become poor. So it is not surprising that some scholars of antiquity have at-tributed the passing of so many nations to a deficiency of min-erals, whether major or minor, therefore trace minerals such as iodine, cobalt and zinc.

We now enjoy a wide variety of foods, including protective foods from animal sources. And those animals in our care can be well guarded against numerous deficiency diseases by superior forages and sup-plements, including trace mineral premixes and trace mineral salt.

Question: With the nitrate problem in silage, more common than it used to be, what precautions need to be taken to avoid trouble?

Answer: Feed liberal amounts of grain to reduce the amount of silage eaten. Give cattle some 30,000 International Units of vitamin A daily. Feed trace mineralized or iodized salt instead of plain salt.

SAUDI ARABIA DESERTS BECOMING GREEN

deserts have by no means yet become a Garden of Eden, much of the land is turning greener with fields of grain and vege-tables as a result of the coun-try's rapid self-development of the past decade. And with the change, the national diet continues to improve Fund contributions.

As the country's agricultural wealth develops, the date palm, often referred to as the "King of the Oasis," will relinquish its importance as a staple food, in the opinion of Minister of Agriculture Hassan Al Mushari. But the cultural importance of the date, he believes, is such that it will be honored for many years to come.

The date is as familiar to Arabians as the apple is to Americans. It can be eaten raw, cooked, baked into cakes or pressed into a syrup. Eminently palatable, dates are rich in an invert sugar that is more easily digested than the ordinary sugar of the cane or beet. No other fruit, weight for weight, is so nourishing. This accounts, at least in part, for

HEART AND BLOOD VESSEL DISEASE are the leading cause of death in each of the 50 states, as shown in map. In the nation as a whole they are responsible for 54 per cent of all deaths. Differences among states can be explained to some extent by such factors as age, sex and ethnic composition of their populations. The nationwide attack against these diseases is spearheaded by your Heart Association, supported by your contributions to the 1965 Heart Fund. The month-long campaign reaches its high point on the weekend of Heart Sunday, February 21, when more than 1,750,000 volunteers will visit their neighbors to distribute heart-guarding information and to receive Heart use as a food source accounts for only one of its assets. The tree is a natural lumgeryard. The trunk makes excellent house-bullding timber. The midribs of the larger leaves go into furniture, beds and cradles. Chicken coops and crates are also made from them. The fronds are an excellent fuel for cooking. With the larger fronds the Arab fences his yard and garden against encroaching sand. The leaflets are woven into baskets and mats which are put on floors and on benches. The fibre which fringes the frond is made into rope.

The heart of a palm that has been cut down is eaten. It tastes like green almonds and is considered a delicacy. The spine of the tree has been used as a needle. Even the stones of dates do not go unused. Crushed, they are fed to herds of livestock as fodder.

Probably the oldest known cultivated tree, the date palm has nobly served man since the Babylonians are believed to have first grown it more than | as you would your father's sis-8,000 years ago. Perhaps the | ter." palm's prominence is best evidenced in an admonition by the Prophet Muhammad to the Islamic people: "Honor the palm

A SAUDI BOY proudly displays cluster of a variety of large,

The Arabs followed that admonition, and wherever they went they took the date palm with them. In Elche, Spain, for example, date groves abound that were rooted in the rise of the Arab Empire. There in Valencia date cultivators still use words of their craft learned from the Arab erg. from the Arab era.

Today, the date palm is cultivated extensively in the Mid-dle East, North Africa, North-ern India and Australia. Its only large-scale introduction in a new country in modern times was in Southern California early this century.

Most oases in Arabia would not exist except for the date palm. The tree sometimes reaches a height of 100 feet With its well-insulated, single growing point situated at the center of the top of the tree, and a comparatively small area of foliage, the palm can withstand extreme heat and dry-ness and protects other desert plants which can survive only in its shade. The date palm has no tap root; rathed, its roots pase of the trunk in great profusion. New roots are quickly produced in great abundance to replace old ones killed by flooding or other causes. Classic date growing areas in Saudi Arabia are the palm-rich Al-Hasa and Qatif oases in Eastern Province where more than three million date paims

Ripening clusters of dates visible on the stately palms attest to Saudi Arabia's promi-nence as one of the world's largest date growers. With an annual harvest of about 200,000 tons of dates grown from eight and a half million trees, exports have historically produced foreign exchange for the country.
