Many times in the past individuals have asked just when was St. Euphemia's Hall erected? I would casually give them a vague answer estimating the building to be nearly 100 years old. No one seemed certain as to the age of the elementary school until this week when Ward Kerrigan was kind enough to bring a clipping from the Gettysburg Times which was re-printing happenings of 75 years ago. Says the clipping: Last Friday the new schoolhouse for St. Euphemia's was occupied for the first time. It is heated by a steam apparatus installed by the Gettysburg firm of R. B. Armor and Son. So, my dear readers, the school observed its 75th birthday last week.

Going back just 25 years ago we picked up this reprint from the same paper:

A radio broadcast from De Paul auditorium at St. Joseph's College, Emmitsburg, will be held Monday afternoon. The program, the first ever from the campus, will feature the new college march composed by Prof. William S. Sterbinsky, music instructor of the institution. Since St. Joseph's College was founded in 1809 it has been without a song it could call its own. Dr. Sterbinsky has dedicated his composition to St. Joseph's and called it "Hail, St. Joseph's." He has also written a song for high school department which was featured in a musicale Wednesday night.

From the Mail Bag:

Dear Abigail:

From your article in the Chronicle a month ago, I cut same out and sent to Governor Tawes, as you had written it, and added that I was only a commuter to Emmitsburg, mostly in the summer but saw that it was a bad situation and had to wait for traffic on the new Route 15 bypass. So you can see it was your article that got some results as the Governor wrote me and then I had a nice letter from Mr. John Funk of the State Roads and I think he could do more for the town, but that is beside the point.

I see that a blinker has been installed and no doubt a light will be needed with the heavy traffic this summer, so be happy that you wrote the article and if I had anything to do with the erection I am happy.

I would appreciate some back issues of the Chronicle. The last issue I got was the one in which you wrote about the bad situation. Thanks again and keep up the good work, you have a big job. If you know of any small parcel of land for sale, please let me know for my brother who would like to build or buy something small. No doubt the town will buzz when the recreational center at Zora gets under way. Hope this finds you in good health and when you find time, drop me a couple issues in the mail.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Helen Rafferty

Mount Team Bogs; Play Here Tonight

Mt. St. Mary's classy basketballers tumbled from the lead in the Mason-Dixon Conference last week when they were dumped twice before shaking off a losing streak Monday.

The Mounties were snagged in a heart breaker last Thursday night where their arch rival, Loyola pulled an upset and set them back 85-84 in overtime, in a sizzler played in the Baltimore Civic Center before 5,000 fans.

For the second time this season the Mountaineers had a seven-game winning streak stopped at the Center when they lost the overtime thriller to Loyola. Back on December 17 Manhattan snapped a seven-game streak of the Mount at the Center.

The rivals hooked up in a tense battle all the way. During the second half neither team was ahead by more than four points and the lead changed hands no less than 21 times.

Coach Jim Phelan's Mountaineers appeared headed for victory when they led by 11 points with 8:04 remaining in the first half but Loyola surged back to cut into the lead and at intermission trailed only 39-37.

It was nip and tuck in the early stages of the second half with the Mount going ahead 70-66 with 4:56 remaining on a three-pointer by Pete Johnston and a goal by Lou Martine. Three goals by Bill Morris sent the Greyhounds ahead at 74-72 in the next two minutes. Johnston and Joe Phillip traded baskets and then John Carrell sank a jumper to tie the score at 76-76. Loyola stalled for a full minute for one final shot by Maher but missed with three seconds remaining and the game went into overtime.

In the extra period the Mount moved ahead 79-76 but again Loyola rallied. The Mount was on top 84-83 and during the next 25 seconds foul shooters blew four consecutive tries.

After Devaney made his shot, John Carrell and Ed Folk missed a pair of tosses in the remaining seconds and Ed Folk's last second desperation shot went in and out of the basket at the buzzer.

The second straight loss came

Saturday night when Hampden-Sydney crushed the Phelanmen 105-82.

The loss knocked the Mounties into third place in the Northern League of the Conference.

Hampden-Sydney, scoring over 100 points for the ninth time this season, is now 7-1 in the South League where it leads, and is 13-6 overall. The Tigers' point total was one of the largest ever rolled up against the Mount.

Phelan's outfit was also way off in rebounding where the Virginians held a commanding 59-37 edge.

In the second half Bernie Haag and Ed Folk were ejected while Jack Campbell and Pete Johnston were lost on personal fouls.

Lou Martine was high man for the Mount with 15. Jim Livelsberger broke into the lineup and scored 12 points.

Jim Phelan's men shook off the jinx to break their 2-game losing streak Monday evening at Salem, Va., by trouncing Roanoke 99-83 in a Mason-Dixon Conference game.

The Mountaineers put up one of their best team efforts of the season and 12 players broke into the scoring.

Phelan's outfit grabbed a 4-0 lead in the opening minute and was never headed, leading by a comfortable 47-31 advantage at half time.

Both teams poured 52 points through the hoops in the final half but the Maroons were never able to threaten the smooth-working Mountaineers.

Five Mount cagers hit in double figures with Ed Folk setting the pace with 21, Pete Johnson landed 17, John Carrell 14, Lou Martine and Bernie Haag 11 each.

The Mountaineer record is now 15-3.

Tonight (Friday) the Mounties host Rider College of Trenton, N. J., in a non-league affair in Memorial Gym. The Mount downed Rider 79-67 last December in the Trenton Tournament. Game time is 8 p.m.

The Mounties will play their final home game next Wednesday evening, playing host to American U. in a Mason-Dixon Conference game.

New Betty Crocker Homemaker Named

state's highest-ranking girl will receive a $1,500 scholarship from General Mills, Inc., sponsor of the annual Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, with the state runner-up to be awarded a $500 educational grant. In addition, the school of the State Homemaker of Tomorrow will receive a complete set of the Encyclopedia Britannica from Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc.

Mount Receives Texaco Grant

Charles F. Stouter, local Texaco distributor, and C. C. Rowe, district sales representative of Texaco, Inc., presented Rt. Rev. Robert R. Kline, Ph.D., president of Mount Saint Mary's College, with an unrestricted grant for $1,500.00.

The grant was given as part of Texaco's Aid-to-Education Program which was established in 1956. The program, according to Augustus C. Long, chairman of Texaco, Inc., is based on the premise "that an investment in the education of America's youth and the continued strength of its colleges and universities is an investment in the future welfare of our economy and our country."

Annual unrestricted grants of $1,500 each are made directly to 150 selected colleges and universities. Schools receiving the grants must be privately supported and fully accredited by the appropriate regional accrediting association.

Other phases of the program include more than 300 undergraduate scholarships and graduate fellowships at over 80 colleges and universities. The program is designed to achieve a balance between broad general support of private education and more specific assistance such as student aid or contributions to designated fields of study.

Also present at the awarding of the grant was Charles R. Stouter, son of the local distributor who is a sophomore history major at the college.

Shafer, R7, Frederick, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grimes, Emmitsburg, was recently initiated into the Francis Scott Key Chapter of the National Honor Society. She was one of four teen seniors chosen at Frederick High School for membership.

Among the qualifications necessary to be chosen for the Society are high scholastic achievement, leadership in the classroom, high moral standards and outstanding personal character traits. She is a member of the Thespian Troupe 1277, Kefauver Chapter of the Future Teachers of America and Student Standards. She has been accepted under the Early Decision Plan as a member of the freshman class of Hood College.

Town Seeks School Injunction

Following many months of preparation during which meetings were held with the Frederick County School Board and the County Commissioners, the Town of Emmitsburg and six residents last week filed suit in the Frederick County Circuit Court to block any future plans for a consolidated school at Thurmont.

Following approval of the Thurmont site by the Commissioners and the School Board a hearing was asked before the Maryland State Board of Education headed by Dr. James A. Sensenbaugh, former county superintendent of schools. The hearing was denied Emmitsburg residents and it was then that plans for a court injunction to stop further proceedings to build the school, began taking form. It is understood that an arrearage already has been engaged to design the new school, the site for which was purchased last year.

Baltimore Attorney Alleek Resnick filed the suit last week with Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer, Frederick. The County Commissioners and School Board were given until Wednesday to show cause why the injunction should not be granted.

One of the allegations of the suit is that the vote of the school board in approving the Staub site on the northern border of Thurmont for the proposed consolidated school was not a unanimous one.

The suit says, "The vote of the school board in selecting the Staub site was four to two but the school board reported to the commissioners as being a unanimous vote."

The commissioners said in reviewing the background for the suit, "The school board replied to our request saying that they had reviewed all of the sites available and had come to the unanimous conclusion that the Staub site was the best location for the school."

They said they sent back the first request of the school board for funds for the Staub site, even though it was $250 per acre less than the original site selected, "because the people of Emmitsburg complained about the site being so close to Thurmont."

Those filing the suit are the Town of Emmitsburg, town commissioners J. Norman Flax and J. W. Houser, Junior Chamber of Commerce leader Patrick B. Boyle, newspaper publisher, C. Arthur Elder, Robert C. Simpson and Mrs. C. A. Meyerhoffer.

They claim the ultimate cost of the Staub site will be higher than the cost of the Jamison-Wivell site.

This is the property halfway between Emmitsburg and Thurmont on U. S. 15 owned by C. H. Jamison and J. Norbert Wivell which was offered to the school system at $1,000 per acre. The Staub site cost $750 per acre.

"The Jamison-Wivell property was chosen by a committee representing the people of both Emmitsburg and Thurmont," the suit says. The funds for this site were refused by the commissioners.

They also pointed out that municipal utilities could be available at the Staub site while sewer and water would have to be added at an extra cost at the Jamison-Wivell site.

But, the suit points out, "The purchase of the Staub site is against the will and desires of the citizens of the north county area."

They claimed that, "The action of the school board in approving the Staub site was unreasonable and arbitrary and detrimental."

They ask for "a permanent injunction preventing the commissioners or the school board from spending any additional money on the planning, development or construction of a consolidated school on the Staub site."

They also seek "a temporary injunction preventing the school board or the commissioners from expanding any funds or making any contracts in regard to the Staub site."

The legal papers were served on all three commissioners and on Dr. John L. Carnochan, county school superintendent last Thursday by Sheriff Horace Alexander.

The suit against the commissioners and the school board was prepared in the office of Attorney Alleek Resnick of Baltimore.

Resnick appeared before the state board of education representing Taneytown protestants in a previous school consolidation case and won the verdict.

The Baltimore attorney tried to bring the Emmitsburg case before the state board but Dr. James A. Sensenbaugh, state school superintendent, declined to consider the case because of his own previous involvement as Frederick County School Superintendent.

The state board of education then declined to hear the case on the ground that it should be decided by the county board.

The suit points this out and says, "The state board of education has refused to consider an appeal in this matter although it previously considered similar problems in other counties."

Three In Family On Mending List

This was the scene recently at the home of Rev. and Mrs. John Chatlos when three of their four children were laid up with injuries from school athletics. Rudy, on the left, had his leg broken in a basketball game with St. Joseph's High School on January 14. Phyllis, in the center, had her foot stepped on and badly hurt in a basketball game on January 27. Calvin, on the right, had his leg broken in a Junior High Soccer game on November 4. Calvin's injury disclosed complications which necessitated an operation on December 31 from which he is still recuperating at home. It does come in threes!

New Consolidated School Named Catocin

Catocin High School is the official name for the proposed consolidated high school to serve Emmitsburg and Thurmont.

The Board of Education decided on the name last week after Ross V. Smith of Thurmont, told other members of the board, that Catocin was the name the people in the area preferred.

Dr. James A. Sensenbaugh, state school superintendent, refused to have the school named after him, as suggested by board member Haller Best, since it is not his policy to name schools for persons.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, is the United States' oldest overseas naval base, acquired through a lease agreement with Cuba in 1903.

Since its establishment, the Marine Corps has made approximately 300 landings on foreign shores which may explain why it is called "a force in readiness."

100 YEARS AGO

LEE NAMED SOUTH'S COMMANDER - IN - CHIEF

BY LON K. SAVAGE

Gen. Robert E. Lee became commander-in-chief of the armies of the Confederacy 100 years ago this week, but he would have exchanged the title for a single, solid, well-equipped army.

For what he was given to command was his old Army of Northern Virginia, now dwindling, starving and freezing along the Richmond-Petersburg line; a hodge-podge of an army gathering in the Carolinas to oppose Sherman's march northward, and an assortment of military groups scattered in the Deep South, notably that of Nathan Bedford Forrest in Alabama and Mississippi. Each of those armies was out-manned at least three-to-one.

The change was political rather than military, for it indicated a growing resentment in the Confederate Congress against President Jefferson Davis. It was no less than an effort to take from Davis his command of the military. Davis Signs It

Davis did not consent to the bill creating Lee's new position, but when it was passed, he signed it into law, suavely pretending that it made Lee a military advisor to him and ignoring the humiliation that it was supposed to inflict.

And when Lee took over the position, he could do little more than issue an order, again trying to rally the dwindling power of the South behind him.

Resorting to last-gasp measures to build his army, Lee announced he would pardon deserters (except those who deserted to the enemy) if they returned to the fold within 20 days.

"Let us oppose constancy to adversity, fortitude to suffering, and courage to danger, with the firm assurance that He who gave freedom to our fathers will bless the efforts of their children to preserve it," he wrote.

As for the future, he wrote, "I rely for success upon the courage and fortitude of the army, sustained by the patriotism and firmness of the people, confident that their united efforts under the blessing of Heaven will secure peace and independence."

The Problems

But his real problems he saved for a letter to Secretary of War Seddon in Richmond that same week. February 13, he wrote, had been "the most inclement day of winter." On that day, he reported, his soldiers "had been without meat for three days and in scant clothing took the cold, hail and sleet."

His men's strength, he wrote, would fail under that treatment even if their courage survived. His cavalry could not gather in one place because no one place had sufficient forage. "You must not be surprised," he told Richmond, "if calamity befalls us."

Across the other side of the Richmond-Petersburg line, Ulysses S. Grant watched and waited for the end. Lee was losing nearly a regiment a day in desertions, alone, he figured. It could not be long.

Next week: Columbia, S. C., is socked and burned.

Manpower Grab

A reader from Houston, Texas, who has no ax to grind or financial stake, other than as a taxpayer, writes of his concern about the invasion of the federal government into a field where he thinks it does not belong. Our reader is one of many Americans shaken to the roots by an article, "The Great Manpower Grab," by U. S. Representative Frank T. Bow, in the October issue of the Reader's Digest. I agree with my friend from Texas that encroachment of the federal establishment into job placement and employment counseling is a strategic assault on the free enterprise system.

His letter states: "I believe the American system, at least, should afford a person the opportunity to seek employment in the traditional manner and permit the employer the same right to evaluate the prospective employee, without the government running a closed shop employment service. . . Any government agency which purposely changes statistics to justify its own existence, as stated in this article, deserves the fullest opposition."

A Basic Liberty

One of our most essential personal liberties is that of choosing our own life's work, or of working where and for whom we choose. These basic freedoms, it appears, may soon be challenged by a federal agency which proposes to become the manpower agency for the nation, through which every working American would seek work. Chosen already as the agency to fight poverty in the front lines by "mobilizing the troops," the U. S. Employment Service is preparing to use that war to press its control over American employment.

Representative Bow's well-documented article ought to be read by every member of the Congress. He shows that under the guise of helping the unemployed USES is extended its tentacles into high-school testing and counseling, college placement, company personnel practices, union hiring, and even professional and managerial job placement. All this for an agency that was set up to mobilize labor in World War I, found new life in the Thirties with the unemployed, and in 1964 enjoys a budget of some $200 million. Recent and proposed legislation could give it untold millions.

The Closed Shop

Representative Bow shows that instead of concentrating on the jobless, however, the USES is expanding in directions where it is neither needed nor wanted. "If this is permitted to continue it can only result in absolute control of American manpower and its allocation," he said. That would mean the complete surrender of our free enterprise system. He believes that legislation the Congress will face could completely federalize job placement and clamp on the whole country a federal "closed shop" that might even make getting a job require political clearance in every community of the land.

He wrote: "Here is just what this will mean to citizens. If you are a high school or college student, you will have to accept the guidance of a government employee or risk being numbered among the forgotten unemployed. If you wish to change jobs and thereby better yourself, you will have to win the approval of a government clerk before you can be referred to a new position. If you are an employer, you will have to accept whoever is sent to you to fill a job or you will risk getting on the government's black list."

Seeking A Monopoly

The USES already has thorough control over the 1,900 state employment offices, and it will not allow the states to limit their help to the unemployed or underemployed. It encourages the padding of placement statistics to meet quotas and make it appear deserving of public support. It wants more money from Congress, more power to force employers to register all job openings with them, and anything that will bring a monopoly to the agency. Its parent body, the Bureau of Employment Security, with a staff of nearly 60,000, will spend in fiscal 1965 more than $455 million above some $3 billion collected in unemployment taxes.

Representative Bow cites one employment service official who predicted that USES can enjoy a virtual monopoly in five years, if adequate funds without restrictions are provided by Congress. "We are not living in a free enterprise system, but rather operating under a controlled economy," this official commented. The American people truly should act fast in demanding that Congress clamp down on USES expansion. I hope his readers and mine will respond with vigor, before one of our basic freedoms is lost.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

The great barracuda of our southern Atlantic waters, with its dark-spotted, silvery, pike-like body and a mouth full of wicked, razor-sharp teeth, is unfortunately classed by many anglers in the same category with sharks and other undesirable fish.

This mistaken idea may be traced to some areas of the West Indies, where large barracuda became poisonous for human consumption by feeding on certain poisonous fish that inhabit various offshore reefs.

It is well to be forewarned of the possible results of eating a large barracuda; but let it not discourage you from enjoying the thrills of fishing for this great game fish that has been weighed in a record 103 1/4 pounds. Most of the great barracuda that are caught range from five to 15 pounds, but it is not uncommon to take a 30- or 40-pound fish.

"Although great barracuda can be caught on various types of lures, such as plugs, spoons, jigs, feather lures and cut bait, my favorite is a six-inch chrome-plated spoon, with a strip of cut bait placed on the hook in such a manner that it trails back of the lure," remarks Robert D. Hall, Salt-Water Fishing Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

It has been proved on innumerable occasions that a strip of bait cut from the belly of a bonito or some other species of fish, used in conjunction with a trolling lure, increases the success of the lure in making a fish strike. It is apparent that such a combination will create a strong desire in a fish to follow up the lure if it fails to be hooked on the initial strike. It may be the odor or taste of the bait that causes this reaction on the part of the fish.

The savagery of a barracuda attack and the shearing ability of the fish's great saber-toothed jaws is clearly illustrated by its power to cut an 18- or 20-pound blackfin tuna in half.

Don't sell Mr. Barracuda short. This well-armed and hard-hitting

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On:
Selling As A Career

BABSON PARK, Mass., Feb. 11—Why do so many people reject salesmanship as a career? When high school students and college undergraduates are asked what they plan to make there life's work, almost without fail only the smallest percentage mention selling. Why does this unthinking attitude on the part of the public persist?

Why The Unpopular Image?
It seems that the old call, "There's a salesman at the door!" is what many people think of as the only thing selling represents. Of course there are door-to-door salesmen doing an important job and doing it well. But these compromise perhaps 2% of the total sales force in this country. The other 98% are engaged in selling materials, services, and advertising to the millions of retailers and corporations that make up the backbone of the nation's business.

As in any trade, there are occasional get-rich-quick artists out to make a fast buck. They don't know that real—and lasting—salesmanship demands getting close to clients and giving them better service than any rival is willing to provide. So, if such high-pressure fellows are here today, they are gone tomorrow. And they certainly do not reflect the true and great value of salesmanship. You will even find similar fly-by-nights in Congress, in labor unions, and—yes—in the professions! But you don't "down" an entire vocation because of these unhappy exceptions.

Salesmen Key To Our Economy

Those who look dubiously at the selling profession are obviously unaware of the enormous importance of the salesman to our economic complex. Our manufacturers have learned how to turn out not only all the military and aerospace material we need but also all the consumer products that we can possibly use. Business is always afraid of the bogey of overproduction, especially with our efficient and automated know-how. Here is where the salesmen come in, creating and satisfying new needs all along the way, working hand in glove with both production and promotion officials.

How could anyone think that such a job is less honorable, less inspiring, than other occupations? Young men with clear vision and high ambition should certainly consider selling as a most desirable pursuit. There is, in addition, a special appeal in the fact that a salesman's earnings will be in direct proportion to his own hard work and his real ability.

Strong Incentives In Selling

A genuine salesman gets a wallop out of his job because he recognizes that his efforts result in a higher standard of living. If only a thousand customers buy a product with no special sales pressure or advertising, the price of the article may have to be set at $10 in order to ensure a company profit. But with well-organized sales and promotion programs, mass production may be able to drop the price of the product to as little as $2.

A lazy man would understandably seek a less demanding job. A salesman must have a real missionary spirit, with plenty of honesty, courage, energy, imagination, and firmness. He must have strong but courteous persistence, plus remarkable adaptability. He must realize that he will often have to face frustrating circumstances. His work must be planned out, often under great pressure. A successful salesman cannot be a clock watcher; he will wish, in fact, that his working day were even longer than it is. Opportunities Unlimited marketing engineer, and product service man,—these are a few of them. A high-spirited young fellow will prefer to work on commission, thus leaving it up to himself whether he makes $30 a week or $300. His chances are what he makes them, and he will be helping our economy.

Read Luke 7:19-27.

Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgement. (John 7:24).

Even those who were with Jesus throughout His ministry failed to learn the lesson of impartiality which His words and acts could have taught them. It took a vision to show Peter that God is no respecter of persons. After two thousand years men are still slow to learn. While our minds give assent to the principle that all men are of equal worth, we often feel and act as though some persons are more important than others.

Jesus conversed with a sinful woman of the despised Samaritans, dined with a publican, reached out to touch a leper, and received little children as persons of infinite value. Still we look on the outward appearance, forgetting that God looks on the heart, which is the real person.

Jesus values persons not only for what they are, but also for what they can become. We need that kind of insight and farsightedness. How long will Christ's followers deny Him by looking with contempt on those for whom He died?

Prayer

Our Father, help us to overcome the blindness of prejudice that we may reject false standards. Help us to look upon others with the clear vision and loving concern of Jesus, our Savior and Master. In His name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day

There are no inferior children in the family of God.
Carrie H. Hardcastle (Tenn.)

No matter what other nations may say about us, immigration is still the sincerest form of flattery.

I will restore health unto thee.—(Jer. 30:17).

If we seek it in earnest prayer God's radiant life will fill us through and through and help to heal the ills that may betake us. By acknowledging that He is the Spirit of health and perfection we can more easily put aside any ideas that disease cannot be cured.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT from Annapolis

By GOODLOE E. BYRON
Frederick County Delegate

Just as the President of the United States delivers an annual State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress, so the Governor of Maryland presents an annual State of the State message to a joint session of the Maryland General Assembly. The Governor reviews annually the accomplishments of the State in the past year and projects many of the problems and responsibilities facing state government in the coming year.

This year's message was no exception. Governor Tawes called attention to great accomplishments in public education, health and welfare in 1964. He referred to Maryland's rapidly expanding population and the concurrent demand for increased services. Fortunately for the State, the Governor was able to report an increase in total state income from 11.2 billion to 11.8 billion dollars.

Such an increase resulted in a surplus of considerable amount in state revenue.

However, the Governor addressed himself to the rapidly expanding numbers of college students and the need for increased funds for public higher education. Significantly, 73% of the Governor's capital budget is earmarked for improving the plants of the University of Maryland and the State Colleges. Attention of the Legislature was also directed to a proposed 7-station State-wide educational television network which would serve the educational, cultural and informational needs of all of the citizens of Maryland, from children in pre-school age to senior members of society.

Because of Maryland's increased prestige in the scientific industrial community, the Governor recommended that funds be appropriated for the expenses of the Maryland Academy of Science. Other expenditures would be earmarked for an increase in pay of some 25,000 state employees.

So that local Government already hard-pressed for new and more flexible sources of revenue may meet the demands placed upon them, the Governor has recommended a complete study of State and local fiscal relationships. And, to face the serious problems of an increasing traffic accident rate, Maryland's Chief Executive called for action in the establishment of a self-supporting system of motor vehicle inspection in the State. Finally, reform of election laws must be given attention by the General Assembly.

Many Legislators considered the Governor's 1965 message to be his most far-reaching and imaginative since taking office in 1959.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

By Elizabeth Stewart
Women's Medical News Service

Contrary to popular belief, the more often a woman becomes pregnant the more important it is for her to have close medical supervision. Dr. Leslie Quinlivan, of the Pittsburgh School of Medicine, drew this conclusion after studying more than 47,000 women who had a varying number of pregnancies. He comments, "The woman who has been pregnant several times is not an easy obstetric case. The hazards do not decrease with every delivery."

Dr. Quinlivan found the maternal death rate four times higher in a group of women who had six or more babies than in other groups. They suffered from acute high blood pressure, diseases of the placenta (the organ within the uterus to which the developing baby is attached and from which it receives nourishment from the mother), ruptured uterus and other disorders more frequently than women who had had fewer pregnancies.

Dr. Quinlivan's report highlights the importance of prompt and continuous medical care throughout pregnancy for all women.

Hundreds of wives between the ages of 17 and 47, married from periods of from one to 21 years, proved upon medical examination to be virgins.

They told psychologist, Dr. John Blazer who was doing a study of virginity in married women, that they had refrained from having relations with their husbands for a variety of reasons: fear of pain, belief that the sex act is "naughty" or "wicked", fear of pregnancy, dislike of contraceptives.

After studying the replies, Dr. Glazer, who was formerly with the Mental Health Clinic, Bristol, Virginia, concluded that the one thing the women have in common is ignorance. None of the reasons given would be enough to account for the continuing failure to consummate a marriage. The doctor concludes that if the woman and her husband can obtain adequate scientific knowledge and guidance from a qualified doctor, nurse, or psychologist, at least some of the women might be helped to overcome their blocks and have a normal married life.

There is substantial evidence that the distress of menopause experienced by one in every two women can be eased by supplying estrogen, a hormone which nature reduces sharply at that time. Menopause, with its hot flashes, sweats, nervousness, and fatigue, is primarily brought on by the shortage of estrogen which accompanies the cessation of menstruation.

New York Obstetrician - gynecologist Dr. Sherwin A. Kaufman told Women's Medical News Service that many physicians prescribe oral doses of synthetic female hormones to prevent or eliminate the common menopausal symptoms, unless there is a medical reason not to do so. Dr. Kaufman, who is affiliated with New York University Medical Center, comments: "Although doctors are not unanimous about the use of hormonal therapy, I believe there is no need for most women to suffer the disagreeable symptoms of menopause for months or years when there is a safe, effective way to alleviate such symptoms."

Hormonal therapy, Dr. Kaufman believes, may also give a woman some protection against other conditions associated with aging, such as coronary heart disease and the thinning and weakening of bone structure (osteoporosis) which can lead to crippling fractures.

The effectiveness of hormonal therapy for women suffering the ill-effects of menopause has also been reported in medical journals by Dr. Robert A. Wilson, of Methodist Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Drs. Roger W. Robinson, William D. Cohen, and Norio Higano, of Memorial Hospital, Worcester, Mass. These researchers reported using a birth control pill containing the female hormones as the medication.

Not all of Bux's thoughts are along these lines, however. Here's some in an entirely different vein — also from "Table Talk."

NO. 20,859 EQUITY

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Eldridge T. McBride.

The Bill recites that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, where she has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose last known address was Three Churches, West Virginia; that the parties to this cause were married on the 27th day of October, 1945, at Romney, West Virginia, by Rev. Social Security News

During 1964, the Hagerstown Social Security Office assisted 2,182 persons in filing applications for all types of social security benefits, district manager W. S. King said this week.

Applying for old-age insurance benefits were 630 employees; 159 self-employed persons, including farmers; and 1,393 dependents of both living and deceased workers. The latter figure includes wives, widows, children, and a few dependent husbands, widowers, and parents.

During 1964, 357 disabled workers applied for disability benefits for themselves and for 161 of their dependents — wives, minor children, and disabled adult children who were themselves disabled before age 18.

The office also issued 6,094 social security cards, served 11,806 persons who called at the district office and handled 8,078 telephone calls.

"If you have a question or want assistance on social security matters," King said, "simply get in touch with your social security office in Hagerstown located at 59 North Cannon Avenue. The office is open Monday through Friday from 8:45 to 5:00 p.m."

Firemen See Bids

On New Annex

Bids for a new annex to the Fire Hall were received and opened at the regular meeting of the Vigilant Hose Co. held Tuesday evening in the Fire Hall. President John S. Hollinger who presided, said no action was taken as to the letting of a contract. The firemen are currently studying the bids.

A first aid course to be conducted in Gettysburg was discussed and it is hoped to have several members join the class. Chief Sterling H. White reported only one fire call answered since the last meeting. Richard Hardman was voted in as an active member and applications for membership were received from John G. Humerick, Donald E. Shorb and William Kaas. It was announced that the annual winter feed for members would be held in the Fire Hall on Thursday, February 18, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The county firemen's banquet will be held at Walkersville on Tuesday, March 2 at 7:30 p.m., it was announced. Admission to the banquet is $3 per person. Ronnie Cool and Larry Orendoff were named to next month's refreshment committee.

The group voted to pay for an eye examination and glasses for a local indigent man. Lion Kelz reported progress on the compilation of an information file which the club inaugurated at the last meeting.

Initiate Column For Teen-agers; Weekly Feature

The chivalrous Mount has proven itself again. To them, 29 shivering, cold and sleepy girls owe much thanks. No, they did not come charging up on their white steeds and ask us to hop on. Rather, they pulled up in their Chevys, Fords or Cadillacs and asked us to hop in.

Maybe if we start from the beginning you will be able to see why we owe the Mount our thanks.

The night was cold and the bus was filled with Joe's girls—disappointed Joe's girls, as we were returning after seeing the Mount-Loyola game. It was a quiet bus as most of the girls were sleeping, for it was late, nearing 1:15 a. m. The bus was chugging along just outside Taneytown when a few girls noticed that the old purr of the Rosensteel engine was slowly but definitely dying out. Then came the final hill that broke the bus' back. This hill was just not going to be scaled and the bus rolled back, never to be started again.

Try to picture 29 girls huddled together in the cold night air. If you can see us, then you will be able to envision our happiness when a familiar male voice inquired, "You girls need some help?" Twenty-nine "Yeses" echoed to answer his loaded question. Little did he know what he was getting into—for in less than two minutes he was on his way with what was now an integrated bus—Mounties and Joe's girls!

We still aren't sure whether or not they thought we were Hood girls and this was what gave them the incentive to stop but pretty soon all twenty-nine girls were home safe and asleep.

So again "our guys" proved themselves and we wish to thank them. I am sure twenty-nine girls that night had dreams—not of failing out, or subjects—but of their Paul Newmans that rescued them from the cold—and who live right down the road.

Do you stand when elders enter the room? Wondering how to solve that minor war that you're waging with girlfriend, boyfriend, parents or teachers. What to wear that will be most attractive to you.

These are just some of the questions that a teenager might ask, and the Emmitsburg Chronicle is going to try to answer them. The "Chronicle, realizing that many of its weekly readers are teenagers, has decided to devote a complete column to you, your interests, your needs, your problems.

I would like to welcome any letters that you might want to send. These will enable me to decide what you want to read about and also, I will be able to solve any problem you might have. Names will be withheld upon request. Here is your chance to get an interested reply as I am very anxious to answer your letters as best I can.

So until next week—

Three Injured In Zora Wreck

Three persons were hurt in an accident at 4:10 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Zora intersection of Route 116 and 16. State Police said Wilbur M. Allison, 79, 41 Johns Ave., Gettysburg, was driving east on the Sunshine Trail, Route 16, and attempted to make a left turn into the restaurant at the intersection.

Police said Allison's car crashed headon into a westbound auto operated by C. L. Baker, 36, of Waynesboro R1, and then swung around from the impact and was in collision with another eastbound car operated by Elizabeth B. Harner, 44, E. Main St., Emmitsburg.

Allison, his wife, Ruth G. Allison, 70, and Baker were removed by the VFW ambulance to the Warner Hospital in Gettysburg, for treatment of injuries suffered in the accident.

Mrs. Allison was reported this week by the hospital as in a critical condition. She suffered shock, extensive lacerations of the face, contusions of the neck and chest, fractured left wrist, possible ruptured spleen, fractures of six ribs on the left side, and fractures of the forehead.

Her husband, who was reported as satisfactory, sustained shock, lacerations of the face and upper lip, fractures of facial bones, contusions of the left arm and left knee, contusions and sprain of the back.

Baker suffered lacerations of the upper lip, lacerations of both knees and a contusion of the chest.

Mount Tracksters Place Second

Bill Walsh, Mount St. Mary's Sophomore, took second place in the triple jump and the Mount two-mile relay team finished third new VMI field house record but Saturday night at Lexington, Va.

Walsh jumped 45-9 1/2 to set a new VMI held house record but a short time later another new mark was set when Jim Sherrard of VMI leaped 45-9 1/2 to take the event. In the two-mile relay VMI copied first place with a new record of 7:47 with Tennessee, Mt. St. Mary's, Maryland and Duke finishing in that order in the 10-team field. Making up the Mount squad were John McKee, Tom Neidhart, Phil Banashek and John Clarke.

No, the age of chivalry is not yet dead. If a teen-age girl drops her book, usually a teen-age boy will kick it back to her.
