Despite that seven-inch snow that blanketed the area Wednesday there are a number of signs that show evidence that Spring is just around the corner. As a matter of fact it will officially be here Saturday. Other signs that it is near are the wild flocks of geese that have been seen in the area this week and life beginning to show in trees, flowers and shrubbery. These are all indicative of the delightful season we are approaching.

As was predicted, there are numerous individuals who were reluctant to have Job Corps camps in their neighborhood and I feel certain that we are lucky not to have been included in the list. Tales of problems concerning the inmates of these camps are beginning to trickle in and it appears that the character of many of these boys hasn't changed one iota. The people of Harpers Ferry this week insisted there be no Job Corps located there and they won their battle with the Government. Under these circumstances we are strengthening our conviction that conversion of Cullen Hospital at Sabillasville to a reform school would be detrimental to the welfare of this community and this area of the county.

As you gander over the Town's voting list which is now appearing in the Chronicle it is downright amazing to discover so many names of prominent citizens missing from the list. There are educators, business men and women and just ordinary citizens who have never taken the time to register for the Town Election which comes off next month. Many wives do not follow their husbands' interest in local affairs and should be on the list. There is a glaring number of instances where the husband's name appears but not his wife's. Town business is our business and there should be several hundred more voters on the books. Citizens not registered to date have until April 17th to do so and the Town Office is open all during the week. And while we are on this subject of voting and electing, have you looked over the voting list to date? Should you spot any names of deceased persons or those who have moved away, won't you please call the Town Office. Council is trying to bring the books up to date and would appreciate your assistance in the matter.

After several years of looking and wondering what was inside that huge building at Saint Joseph's Mother House, we will all be given an opportunity to see first hand on a guided tour just actually what is inside. Several months ago, after the building had been completed and turned over to the Sisters of Charity, I made an innuendo in this column that it would be wonderful if the public were to be given an opportunity to satiate its curiosity and be permitted to see first hand what the new building looked like. Well, the good Nuns became interested in the little project and after thinking it over for a while announced this week that we're all invited to an open house to be held March 27. Everyone who is interested is more than welcome to the affair which will consist of a guided tour. School children, PTA, Firemen, Masons, non-Catholic parishioners, friends everywhere, (you name it), are most cordially invited to attend.

FOOD SALE
 The Presbyterian Handbell Choir will sponsor a food sale on Saturday, March 20 in the Fire Hall.
 The sale will get under way promptly at 10 a.m. and home-made pies, cakes, rolls, candy, etc., will be on sale.

Solicitors Named
 Francis X. Ligorano, Cancer Drive chairman, announced this week these additional fund solicitors had volunteered their services, Bernadette Henler, Norma Nusbbaum, Mrs. Austin Joy, Mrs. Leonard Sanders and Mrs. Mary Hatter. The drive starts April 1.

Mount Senior Dies After Car Crash

A 21-year-old Mount St. Mary's College senior, William Raymond Doyle, Jr., Mineola, N. Y., was fatally injured on Wednesday, St. Patrick's Day, when he was involved in a traffic accident at the foot of Toll Gate Hill south of town.

Doyle and his companion, James B. Kelley, 21, of Point Pleasant, Pa., had just completed practice teaching sessions at St. Joseph's High School and were on their way back to the college when the mishap occurred in early afternoon. Doyle's light sports car collided with a delivery truck on Tom's Creek Bridge.

The senior died at Annie M. Warner Hospital in Gettysburg two hours after his car collided with the truck.

State Police said Doyle increased the speed of his sports convertible to go up a grade, causing the vehicle to go into a side skid on the slippery highway.

The truck, driven by William R. Weagley, of Lantz, swerved to the right, police said, but was unable to avoid the collision.

Treated and released from the hospital with a bruised knee was a passenger in Doyle's car, James B. Kelley, of Point Pleasant, Pa.

Cpl. W. F. Davis said the accident was caused partly by the snowy conditions and because of worn conventional tires on the Doyle vehicle. Cpl. Davis said seat belts worn by Doyle were of no value because of the point of impact but that Kelley's seat belt prevented his further injury.

Softball League Organizing

At the third annual reorganization meeting of the local softball league, held last Friday at the Fire Hall, the attending members decided this is to be the best season yet for the organization.

Ambitious plans were discussed, among them being the erection of a temporary fence around the outfield, the invitation to two and possibly three new teams to join the league, and the selection of a "Commissioner" or "board of regents", consisting of interested, non-players, to act as a governing body.

With all these items to be acted upon, it was decided that another meeting will be held on Sunday, March 28, at 2 p.m. at the Fire Hall. All active participants from last season, and any interested parties are invited to attend. Anyone wishing to play in the league this year, who did not play last year, is asked to contact Gene Myers on East Main St. as soon as possible, so that provisions can be made to place them on the existing teams.

MRS. EDITH M. GORLEY
 Mrs. Edith M. Gorley, 63, of Frederick, died Wednesday, March 10, in Frederick Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Gorley had been employed by the Frederick Tailoring Company for the past 26 years. She was born in Emmitsburg, a daughter of the late Martin Ivan and Bessie May Long Harbaugh.

Surviving are these brothers and sisters: Elbert C. Harbaugh and Glenn Ivan Harbaugh, both of Rocky Ridge; Joseph C., Harvey E. and Clarence H. Harbaugh, all of Thurmont; Mrs. Nora M. Knott and Mrs. Roy Wastler, both of Thurmont; Mrs. John O. Ramsburg, Frederick; Mrs. Katherine Divers, Bedford, Pa., and Mrs. Martha Ferree, Graceham, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the M. R. Etchison and Son Funeral Home, Frederick. Interment was in Mountview Cemetery, Emmitsburg.

Bell-Ringing Choir Plans Washington Trip

Emmitsburg Presbyterian Handbell Choir is the name of this group, the only one of its kind in Frederick County. They have been playing together for almost two years and are currently planning to attend the American Guild of English Handbell Ringer's National Convention in Washington, D. C., June 23, where 1000 other Handbell Ringers will be assembled to make music and learn more about handbell ringing.

Are You Registered?

The Town Council is seeking a complete up-dating of the voting list and citizens whose names do not appear below, if they are positive that they have registered, should call the Town Office, 447-2313, for clarification. The town clerk, Mrs. Yonnie Baker, has offered complete cooperation in this matter and would appreciate any information as to the possibility of having deceased persons names on the list, as well as those who have moved from the territory during the past several years.

Ground-Breaking Ceremony At Charnita Sunday

Charnita, the mammoth recreational resort enterprise now under construction near Zora, will hold ground-breaking ceremonies Sunday afternoon, it has been announced by E. Groat, public relations director for the group.

Mayor Ralph F. Irelan of Emmitsburg and Mayor William Weaver, Gettysburg, will take part in the ceremony. Other dignitaries and members of the area

Press will be on hand for the occasion when the golden shovel turns up the first spade full of dirt.

Officials of the Charles G. and Anita G. Rist Enterprises will discuss the project with representatives of press, radio and television. Helicopters will fly reporters and photographers over the 2,000-acre enterprise which will include ponds, swimming pools, golf course, camping and home sites.

The first phase of construction, which has already started, will include a swimming pool, several lakes and an 18-hole PGA-approved golf course and clubhouse. The general public is cordially invited to the affair which will get under way promptly at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Field Fire Extinguished
 The Vigilant Hose Co. extinguished a field fire on the property of Mount St. Mary's College Saturday afternoon.

Permit Issued
 A permit was issued in Frederick this week for six dormer windows costing $175 to be added to the home of Guy and Dorothy McLaughlin on Md. 97, a mile west of Emmitsburg.

Public Invited To Inspect Provincial House

Saint Joseph's Provincial House will throw open the doors to its monumental new building in an open house affair next week.

Officials at the Mother House of the Daughters of Charity have announced that the entire building will be open for public inspection on Saturday, March 27. Individuals, groups and organizations, regardless of race or religion, have been extended a public invitation to attend the event.

The mammoth building, under construction for several years, has attracted the attention of thousands of citizens in the area and passing motorists. Numerous requests have been received for an opportunity to inspect the building which houses hundreds of nuns, postulates and officials of the order. A magnificent chapel is included in the layout and the public will be shown all.

The open house will open officially at 9 a.m. and continue until 11 a.m. on the morning of March 27. In the afternoon the buildings will again be open to the public during the hours of one to four o'clock. Guides will take individuals and groups on a tour of the premises. The event represents a preview of the buildings which will be formally dedicated on May 1.

Local Man's Car Demolished

Gettysburg National Park Chief Ranger John Rogers is investigating an accident in which two men were injured at 1 o'clock Saturday morning. According to the preliminary investigation James T. Deatheridge, 28, Emmitsburg, R3, was driving east on the Wheatfield Rd. from West Confederate Ave. and failed to negotiate a curve. One hundred twenty feet of skidmarks were measured before the car struck and broke off a telephone pole at the intersection with the Emmitsburg Rd. The car also demolished a picnic table at Stucky's. Rogers said the 1962 car was demolished.

Removed to the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, in the Gettysburg Fire Company's ambulance, Deatheridge was found to have abrasions of the scalp, contusions and cuts of the leg, abrasions and cuts of the face and a bruise of the left shoulder. A passenger in his car, John Langly Jr., 21, New York City, a student at Mt. St. Mary's College, suffered lacerations of the scalp.

The car, according to the ranger's report, was owned by Deatheridge's mother, Ann Wentz Deatheridge, Baltimore.

Thieves Take Riding Equipment

Maryland State Police are investigating the theft of more than $315 worth of horse riding equipment stolen from an Emmitsburg area barn in February.

Police said the riding gear, including three saddles, two bits, two bridles, one bridle and bit combination and three horse blankets, were taken from the barn of Kenton T. Holsinger of Emmitsburg R2.

The robbery, said to have occurred Feb. 18, was just reported to the state police last week by an insurance agent.

Police said Holsinger told them he was too worried and confused at the time of the robbery to contact police.

No suspects have been found in connection with the case. Tfc. Earl F. Tracey is handling the investigation.

K Of C Meeting Held Monday

Grand Knight Lumen F. Norris presided over the regular meeting of Brute Council 1860, Knights of Columbus, held Monday night in the Council Home.

Final plans for the St. Patrick's Day festivity were announced and since the heavy snow caused many to be unable to attend the affair it will be held Friday night. George L. Danner was voted in as a member of the organization.

Prof. Ray Lauer was named editor of the forthcoming publication, The Knightletter, and the first issue is due in the near future.

Plans were announced for an open house for prospective members to be held in the council home on April 5.

Sister Margaret Receives Honor From French

Cited for outstanding contributions to the spread of French culture in the United States, Sister Margaret Flinton, D.C., chairman of the Modern Language Department at Saint Joseph College, has been named "Chevalier Des Palmes Academiques" by the French government. Instituted in 1808, the award is presented in recognition of eminent service rendered to France in the areas of culture, literature and language.

News of the award was received recently from the New York office of the French Embassy in an announcement from Edouard Morot-Sir, cultural counselor and representative of French universities in the United States.

In 1949 Sister Margaret established at Saint Joseph's the Omega chapter of Pi Delta Phi, national French honor society. In 1950 she inaugurated the annual cultural contest on a nationwide scale for high school students of French. Last year she sponsored a performance by Le Treteau de Paris, and has arranged for the troupe to return in April to produce "L'Annonce Faite a Marie."

Sister Margaret has served on two NDEA French Summer Institutes as demonstration teacher and professor of applied techniques at Rivier College, Nashua, N. H., and has also conducted a variety of workshops in eastern states on the teaching of French. She will participate in the Indiana - Purdue University Foreign Language conference this month.

Second vice-president of Pi Delta Phi, Sister Margaret holds membership also in the Modern Language association, the Maryland chapter of the MLA, the AAUP, the Alliance Francaise of both Washington and Cumberland Valley.

A native of Troy, N. Y., Sister Margaret received her B.A. from St. Joseph College, Emmitsburg, and her master's degree from the Catholic University of America. She resided in France for two years for doctoral studies, and in 1953 received the Doctorat de l'universite from the Corbonne.

Lighted Cigarette Causes Crash

Pennsylvania State Police said Donald Dick, 18, Fairfield R2, and his parents were hurt when Donald lost the glowing tip of his cigarette while driving a half mile west of the Emmitsburg Rd. on the Bullfrog Rd. at 9:45 Sunday morning. The youth, police said, reached down to put out the fire and lost control of his auto which left the highway and struck a utility pole.

According to the officers, Crawford Dick, father of the driver, had fractures of facial bones; Mrs. Crawford Dick, the mother, had fractured ribs and the driver suffered an injury to his right leg.

Police said the auto was demolished. They estimated its damage at $350 and said damage to the pole was $150. The car was headed east at the time of the accident.

Benefit Card Party Tonight

Friday evening, March 19 is the date set for the benefit Card Party being sponsored by the Alumni Assn. of Emmitsburg Public School.

The event will be held in the school cafeteria beginning at 8 o'clock. A host of nice prizes will be offered and the public is cordially invited. Mrs. Charles F. Stouter is chairman of the affair.

No matter how poor we may be in grammar ourselves, we enjoy detecting the mistakes of the other fellow.

OUR LIBRARY

What is Emmitsburg Reading? "A Book of Comfort," by Elizabeth Goudge. This book contains a treasury of the writings that have meant most to the author over a lifetime of reading. It contains selections from the Gospel according to St. John, from Socrates, from Gerard Manley Hopkins, from Rupert Brooke, from Dylan Thomas, from Robert Browning, Shelley, T. S. Eliot, and from many other writers of different styles and attitudes. The selections here gathered possess an almost mystical power to strengthen in times of tribulation, to enlarge our capacity for joy, for faith, for delight in the world about us, and to touch and restore the soul. It is a book to give and to own; a book to be read and be comforted for years to come.

"The Best Loved Poems of the American People," by Hazel Fellemann. Poems of love and life—poems of home and mother—poems of childhood and youth—poems of God and country—poems of laughter and whimsy—poems of ambition and inspiration! They are the poems most frequently asked for by the readers of the New York Times Book Review, through its "Queries and Answers" Department. As editor of this popular department for many years, Miss Fellemann has been able to keep her finger on the poetry pulse of the American people.

"Not Under Oath," by John Kieran. Recollections and reflections—John Kieran, born in 1892 in New York City, son of the president of Hunter College. After graduation from Fordham University, he chose the farm for himself—briefly. But the newspaper was his fate, he gets lured from one paper to another. This book gives us all that John Kieran's admirers from any of his five careers—could have hoped for: a raconteur's look at his own celebrity-studded past, a naturalist's love for the object of his quiet explorations, a newspaperman's flair for depicting the off-beat character, a scholar's tribute to the delights of his library and through all, a happy man's enjoyment of living.

"Acts for Comedy Shows," by Vernon Howard. How to perform and how to write them. Let's have a comedy show, comedy acts for one player. Funny scene—two players. Amusing plays in Poems. Special acts for extra laughs. Secrets for a successful show. Eight chapters—each a thing needed for your success in art and occasion.

"South Africa: Crisis for the West," by Colin and Margaret Legum. After sixteen years of apartheid, South Africa is further than ever from solving its race problems. A small but powerful white minority holds the black majority in its grip. The years of apartheid rule have turned a nonviolent situation into one of active violence. It is the argument of this book that the South African racial crisis cannot be resolved without international intervention. The white society can rule, but it cannot create the conditions it regards as essential to its own security; the Africans, who will settle for nothing less than a fully representative government, can challenge this rule, but they cannot break it.

"The Hobbit," by J.R.R. Tolkien. The background of the story is full of authentic bits of mythology and magic and the book has the rare quality of style. It is written with a quiet humor and the logical detail in which children take delight—this is a book with no age limits. All those, young or old, who love a finely imagined story, beautifully told, will take Hobbit to their hearts.

following the mishaps that the family has had in the while past." The gift came as a complete surprise to the pastor, Rev. John C. Chatlos, who was overwhelmed by this most generous gift. Both he and the other members of the Chatlos family wish to thank all those members of the Church of the Incarnation who made this gift possible.

Until we try we don't know what we can do, and that's why some people have such a good opinion of themselves.

100 YEARS AGO

LEE, IN DESPERATION, PLANS FINAL ATTACK

BY LON K. SAVAGE

There was only one long, slim chance for the Confederacy, Gen. Robert E. Lee reasoned 100 years ago this week.

Around him were the remnants of his once-powerful Army of Northern Virginia, now reduced to 60,000 ragged, famished but stubborn men stretched out over a 30-mile battle line from Richmond southward to beyond Petersburg. Feeding his army and the people of the two cities was a lone railroad coming from Danville, and it could not last long.

Opposite Lee's line waited the huge, powerful army of Ulysses S. Grant, 120,000 men, armed to the teeth and ready for full battle. At that very moment, Grant's men were pushing southwestward, to cut that last railroad into Richmond.

If this were not bad enough for Lee, Federal Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman was coming up from North Carolina with another 80,000 to 90,000 men—men who would be on hand for battle within weeks. Opposing Sherman was a little army of 30,000 Confederates under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston.

The One Chance

There was that one chance—the last hope of the Confederacy—that ran through Lee's mind. It was: to hit Grant a quick, sharp blow, break his line and force him to fall back and regroup. Then, perhaps—and this was hoping for a lot—Lee could slip his army out of Petersburg, head into North Carolina and join forces with Johnston. The two Confederate armies, he hoped, then might be able to defeat Sherman before Grant could catch up; once having beaten Sherman, they then could turn on Grant.

There was some reason to hope for success. The North had long since grown sick of war, and one more Union defeat might bring peace on terms the Confederacy could accept. It meant giving up Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy; it meant that the Confederate government, itself, would have to flee. But it was better than waiting for starvation. It was the only hope.

Federal Raids

As Lee mapped out his plans, the fiber of the Confederacy was falling apart at every seam. Down in Alabama, Federal Gen. James H. Wilson began a raid, heading for Selma and the Confederacy's last important munitions center outside Richmond.

Two days earlier, Federal Gen. Edward R. Canby began another raid on Mobile, to clean up Confederate resistance there. And late in March, Gen. George Stoneman raided from East Tennessee eastward into North Carolina and Virginia.

All of this brought upon Lee the realization that his army must move or perish. Early in the month, he had discussed the possibility of abandoning Richmond with Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy. Now, he was not sure the time had come to take that step, but he was sure the time had come to make some move.

On March 24, Lee gave orders for an attack by some 30,000 men against Fort Stedman, a bulwark in Grant's line just east of Petersburg.

It was the beginning of the end.

Next week: Fort Stedman.

Science Fair Scheduled

The Sixth Annual Frederick Area Science-Math Fair has been slated for April 1-3 at West Frederick Junior High School, according to an announcement released jointly by Glenn E. Warneking, director, and James Masood and Eugene Shaff, co-chairman of the event.

Held in liason with the National Science Fair - International, the event will be open to student entrants currently attending participating schools in Frederick County.

Warneking, Frederick County Schools science and mathematics supervisor, along with Masood, a teacher at West Frederick, and Shaff, science teacher at Brunswick High School, said rule books and application forms for students are available now from designated teachers in participating schools.

Applications, when completed, are to be returned to John Wilson, Frederick High School teacher and chairman of the Registration Committee, not later than Friday, March 26.

Awards to students entering will be made in junior high and senior high divisions, with the first and second place winners in the senior high division being given trips to the 18th Annual National Science Fair-International at St. Louis, Mo., May 5-8.

Almost 40 other awards ranging from a five-day science-oriented tour aboard a U. S. Navy ship, to medals, books and savings bonds, given to students as reminders of jobs well done and as stimuli for future accomplishments.

General categories for entries in the senior high division include projects in biology, chemistry, physics, earth and space science or mathematics. Junior high entries, judged as a single group, may be in biological science, physical science, earth and space science or mathematics.

After students set up their projects Thursday, April 1, judging will take place before exhibits will be opened to the public Friday and Saturday, April 2 and 3. The awards assembly at 7 p.m. Saturday climaxes the event.

Judging of the projects will be carried out under the direction of a committee headed by Anna May Hughes of Frederick High School. Placing is based on 30 points each for creative ability and scientific thought, and 10 points each for thoroughness, skill, clarity and dramatic value.

Participating schools include Elm Street and West Frederick junior highs in Frederick, along with Brunswick, Emmitsburg, Frederick, Linganore, Middletown, St. Johns, Thurmont and Walkersville high schools.

Other committee chairmen include: Russell Heyde, Awards; Harper Long, Physical Plant; Charles Doebler, Security; Audrey Pressler, Reception and Francis Mullen, Publicity.

Helpful Income Tax Information Listed

The Emmitsburg Chronicle, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, Baltimore District, will publish each week in this column, tax information that will enable taxpayers to become more familiar with the Federal income tax laws, which will help them to prepare better and more accurate returns and pay their just tax, no more, no less. Clip and save for help in preparing your 1964 tax return.

Q. Before I retired last year, my boss told me to look into the special benefits for those over 65 in the new tax law. What are they?

A. There are several specific benefits in addition to the lower rates that will cut tax bills for all taxpayers. For the taxpayer 65 or over, the 1964 law provides:

1. An extra $100 on the minimum standard deduction.
2. Removal of the one per cent floor on the deduction of medicine and drug expenses.
3. Tax free treatment in many cases for gains from the sale of a home for $20,000 or less and reduced taxation on gains from sales over that amount.
4. Broadened coverage on returns.

Q. Last year I cashed in a bunch of U. S. Savings Bonds to make a down payment on a house. How do I figure the interest on these bonds for income tax purposes?

A. Subtract the amount you paid for the bonds, the issue price, from the amount you received when you turned them in. The difference is the interest you must report on your return, assuming you hadn't reported it as it was accruing.

For further information contact your local Internal Revenue Service office.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

By Elizabeth Stewart
Women's Medical News Service
Avoid Overweight—Eat To Live
An old saw maintains that the only certainties we all face are death and taxes. Now a third can be added for many of us: Overweight.

According to some estimates, about 25,000,000 Americans — more than one in eight of us — are overweight. We weigh between 10 and 20 per cent more than is healthy.

Apart from being an aesthetic problem, overweight can lead to serious medical problems. Heart trouble, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, diabetes — all seem to be related in some way to overweight, although scientists are not certain why.

According to Dr. Michael H. K. Irwin, Medical Officer of the United Nations and author of a Public Affairs pamphlet on overweight, people who are overweight may have a shorter life span than those their age who are not. The mortality rate, he says, is 8 per cent higher for a middle-aged person 10 pounds above the normal weight for his height, 18 per cent higher if he is 20 pounds overweight.

If you want to remain a long-stemmed American beauty — and live longer — watch your weight. Eat sensibly, exercise, and if you gain weight for no apparent cause, see your doctor.

A Rhythm Story
A study of the relationship between the rate at which infants suck pacifiers and the rate at which their hearts beat has been made by Dr. John J. Boehm of Lexington, Ky. Dr. Boehm studied the sucking rate of 30 babies ranging in age from a few days to two months. He found that many infants suck in exact time with the beat of their hearts!

Rx For Population Explosion
President Johnson made an 18-word promise in his State of the Union message that was heard round the world — in many places with thankfulness. The promise: "I will seek new ways to use our knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population . . ."

Commenting on the President's statement, Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, one of the nation's most distinguished obstetricians, and head of Planned Parenthood, said: "We have the knowledge and the means to help ensure that the world we bequeath to our children and grandchildren will be a better place to live, a world in which every child will be wanted — and will therefore be well-born. Family planning is the key."

Syphilis On Rise
Most of us think of syphilis as exclusively an adults disease but, alas, it is not. Adults can and do pass it on to infants at an alarming rate. Between 1960 and 1963 syphilis among the newborn-to-one-year age group jumped nearly 180 per cent, according to the U S Public Health Service Communicable Disease Center, reflecting the rise in syphilis in the adult population.

To protect babies and mothers, Dr. William J. Brown, director of the Center's Venereal Disease Branch, urges the following: All pregnant women should be blood tested for the disease both early and late in pregnancy so prompt treatment can be started if necessary. Treatment during the first 18 weeks of pregnancy will prevent infection of the baby. Proper treatment even later may cure the baby although it can't prevent possible damage to bones and teeth.

Careful examination of babies whose mothers have had no prenatal care or who gave birth without medical attention.

Reporting by private physicians of all cases so that these can be treated and followed up.

If there is even the slightest suspicion that the disease has been contracted, see a doctor promptly. You'll save yourself — and your child — a lifetime of heartache.

Child Study Assn. of America
Doctors advise against starting bowel training before the baby's muscular and nervous system is able to meet this demand from adults.

If you begin training too early, your child is more likely to go back to soiling later on. Also, if you start too early, you are likely to become tense and angry with your child. He may become confused and resist you. You may find out also, that you waste more time putting him on the pot than it takes to wash the extra diapers. Wait until he can show you that he is ready to have a movement and can get himself there under his own steam. Probably this will be somewhere between a year and a year and a half.

If you are patient, you will probably find that he has his own regular time and rhythm. Put him on the pot or toilet at his time and not when you think he ought to go. Don't make it all too important, but be pleased when he performs. Then he will be pleased too, and more ready to do what you want.

Don't be surprised, though, if he lapses occasionally. Take it casually, change his pants without any scolding, and remind him to tell you the next time.

The time to begin to train a baby to be dry is difficult to set at a fixed age that would apply to all children. They vary considerably in the point at which they seem to be ready to take this step.

When your baby begins to understand what you want him to do, it's time enough to start. Then, take him to the toilet when he

BEAUTIFY THE BIRD BATH

Here a bird bath is the feature of a small, formal garden. It stands where four paths meet and is set off with sweet alyssum and four beds of bright petunias. Note raked earth paths.

This low bird bath is set off by the dark green of the yew hedge in the background; embellished with dwarf snapdragons. This pretty scene occupies a small bed at the side of a terrace.

A bird bath is ordinarily placed in a garden not only to afford a place for birds to drink and bathe but to provide a feature in the landscape. For this reason it deserves to be given a colorful setting. The two illustrations show two entirely different conceptions of bird bath placement, yet each is an example of good planning and planting.

The top picture shows a bird bath used as the center of a formal garden, surrounded with sweet alyssum plants and four beds of petunias. The bath serves as a focal point, at the meeting of the paths as they come from different directions in the garden. Notice that both pedestal and petunias are light in color, contrasting with the dark, raked earth of the paths. In the bottom picture the low bird bath has a small area all to itself in a little bed at one side of a terrace. It has a dark green background of a yew hedge and a suitable foreground of dwarf snapdragons. Once again, both bird bath and flowers are light in color. In this case they do not contrast with the paving which also is light, but with the yew background.

Is there a bird bath in your garden? If so, is it properly featured and planted? It's so easy to beautify a bird bath. Why not try?

Star-spangled key to a home of your own

A key to your own home is a mighty nice thing. Especially if it has stars and stripes on it.

The way to get one is to save U. S. Savings Bonds for the down payment. Or if you're beyond that point, for furniture or appliances, or the other things inside a house that make it a home.

A nest egg in Bonds can go a long way towards providing a nest and its contents — because each Series E Bond pays back $4 at maturity for every $3 you save.

Another thing you'll get is a nice red, white and blue feeling. The kind you get by giving your country a financial hand while you're saving.

It's easy to start saving Bonds today. A call to your payroll department, or a visit to your bank will do it.

Quick facts about Series E Savings Bonds

- ✓ You get back $4 for every $3 at maturity
- ✓ You can get your money when you need it
- ✓ Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen
- ✓ You can buy Bonds where you bank, or on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On: Perpetual Prosperity

BABSON PARK, Mass., Mar. 18—The country never had it so good. That is what we hear all over the nation today. Dollar incomes after taxes are at record peaks. The physical volume of production is higher than it has ever been before. And now a new prod to the economy in the form of excise tax cuts is expected to go into effect after midyear.

Stitch In Time

Yet, President Johnson is not planning to rest on his laurels. He knows that the history of good times is that bad times always return—sooner or later. He wants to prepare now, while business is booming, to ward off any sinking spells the very minute they appear. He understands that the beginning of a downturn is a shadowy area at best. Usually, not even the economists can say for sure that a decline has set in until after it has gotten started.

Hence, if the government is going to do anything to stave off a recession, it cannot afford the time loss of waiting on Congress to formulate plans and enact them into law. The anti-slump arsenal must be ready and waiting in the closet . . . to be hauled out at the first sign of trouble.

Anti-Recession Arsenal

While this column is going to press, a task force is preparing—at the President's request—all manner of plans for warding off any recession that may appear. The Council of Economic Advisors has been alerted to develop "early warning signals" for use in determining when a letdown in production and in incomes may be about to start. For it is realized that, to be effective, the anti-slump tools must not only be available . . . but they must be used early.

Biggest objective is to have vast sums "ready to go." These would be poured into the economy by Executive order whenever the Council warned the President of the need. Among methods most talked about: The right to raise unemployment benefits and to lengthen their time of payment; standby authority to order tax cuts, perhaps even a tax moratorium; that could be trotted out of the "freezer" at the drop of a hat; and standby lists of ordinary government supplies that could be bought in increased quantities at any time.

Will It Work?

The intention of leveling the hills and raising the valleys of economic fluctuations is a noble one. But it is a new stand for government to take. It is not the same as the Administration's saying that no one will starve, that no one will have to sleep in the streets. It is actually the assumption of a responsibility for doing something that no one in history has been able to do. Cycles appear to be a part of nature . . . in weather, in harvests, in animal life, and in human populations. Granted the historical fact that in periods of high good times men begin to think more and more that "things will not change." Their minds become conditioned to boom. It becomes very unpopular to suggest, when the economic sun is shining brightly, that it will ever rain again. But . . . it usually does; at least, it always has.

As economists, we are very much impressed by the power of rising credit totals to carry production and trade along to higher and higher levels. This has been true in other booms; and we see the same forces at work now. The correlation is certainly worth noting. We are experiencing the best good times of all. We are having the most massive increase in credit history (credit is the other side of the debt coin). However, just as in other eras of debt buildup, there will intervene some force—now unknown—that will check the upswing. The day and the hour will not be recognized until it is upon us. But, at that moment, the chain of bigger debt, bigger boom will be broken.

The Danger

The Babson theory of action and reaction in economics (as Newton's in physics) points to the conclusion that the greater the prosperity, the more severe will be the correction. And we very strongly suspect that men have learned more about adding power to the uphill climb of business than they have about braking its descent. Use of stimulants—too many and too soon—in an incipient slump could greatly add to the severity of an eventual correction.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

Without the Salk Vaccine which came into use in 1955, and the Sabin Vaccine of 1961, some 35,000 American children and adults might have been stricken by poliomyelitis last year, the Health Insurance Institute said recently.

As it turned out, 1964 marked the lowest point ever in polio incidence in the United States—only 121 reported cases. The year before that, 449 cases.

Moreover, there was no seasonal rise or noticeable "outbreak" in 1964. The year before there were eight outbreaks of paralytic polio. And the majority of cases in these outbreaks were among unvaccinated persons.

The Institute, reporting on its analysis of U. S. Public Health Service data, said that this infectious disease which often cripples or kills (8,822 deaths from 1952 through 1961) its victims, may be nearing the vanishing

OUTDOOR SPORTING TIPS

String Along With The Game

A fish stringer—the kind with extra large safety pins—makes a fine game stringer. Just attach it point in this country.

In any case, the success in arresting high polio incidence in the U. S., as well as many other countries, fixes the two vaccines as great victories for medical science ranking alongside the preventive measures used against cholera, smallpox, diphtheria, yellow fever, etc.

The effectiveness of the Salk Vaccine showed up dramatically after 1955, the year it was approved for general use and then given widespread application. Polio incidence dropped from 28,985 in 1955 to nearly half that number the next year—15,140.

By 1960, the year before the Sabin Vaccine came into use, the incidence had dipped to 3,190. In 1961 and 1962, cases numbered 1,312 and 910, respectively.

The annual incidence since 1960 are a far cry from the disease's peak years of 1949 when 42,033 were stricken; 1952, the worst polio year with 57,879 reported cases; and 1954 with 38,476 cases.

The Institute said that for the 10-year period of 1946-55, a total of 328,902 persons, mostly young people, were afflicted with polio. The year average—32,890. Had the disease continued with its peculiar high but fluctuating incidence after 1955 without the medical arresting means of a vaccine, it is conceivable that somewhere between 30,000 and 40,000 persons a year might have been subsequently afflicted.

What ever happened to Chester?

An installer-repairman for C&P—he was last seen around the turn of the century, walking Baltimore's cobblestone streets, past rows of tightly clustered homes on his way to install one of those newfangled telephones. What he needed for his job was a little knowledge of electricity and a very strong back.

Chester probably wouldn't recognize his job today. For one thing he wouldn't have to lug that stuff around on his back anymore. Oh sure, he'd still have to know your telephone inside out. But he'd also have to bone up on a mile-high pile of other communications equipment that has been developed in the last fifty years to give you ever-improving service.

Chester's job has changed. So have most jobs at the telephone company. The only thing that hasn't changed is the way all of us at C&P keep trying to bring to everyone in Maryland the best possible telephone service now and in the years to come.

The Seething World
The cauldron is bubbling in the Congo, the flames are crackling in South Vietnam. Chaos if that is the word, seems imminent in each place. Yet, the idea goes out from the pundits that negotiated arrangements ought to be encouraged so as to produce "peace." Opinions float down from high places, some tied to the usual "trial balloons," that we ought to let Africans straighten out their Congo mess and leave Vietnam to the Asians. The world understands well enough, apparently, that President Johnson has wanted to push the cold war chiefly on television.

Not much of this seems to make sense, in this seething world that appears to have lost its reason. Mr. Johnson can no more reason with the Russians on the TV than he could save South Vietnam by sending Mr. McNamara to view the jungle from a helicopter.

Victories In The U. N.
The rebels in the Congo also are being supplied with Soviet and Chinese arms through Algeria, Ghana, and other Red sympathizers. An all-out assault could be coming, and it could be too much for the few mercenaries Premier Tshombe has been able to assemble. His unfriendly neighbors know they have him surrounded. These nations are some of the ones Mr. Johnson wants on good terms with, so as to win "victories" in the U. N. But "disengagement" appears to be the key idea in the developing American policy toward Africa.

These "victories" in the U. N. look mostly like vilifications and humiliations to the rest of the world, but they may give a clue to our Congo intentions. (This kind of reading is about the only way one can find any U. S. policy.) We should, a U. N. Security Council resolution insists, force Tshombe to take some of the rebel leaders into his government. This would not end rebellions. There can and will be rebellions anytime the Communists, with or without a Gbonye, promise the ignorant Congolese their pie in the sky now, without any effort, time or sacrifices on their part.
A Flurry Of Sense
Despite that one little flurry of reason in the House in late January, when strong objections were raised to foreign aid for Nasser, there seems hardly any hope that the State Department will want to divert aid from such enemies as Nasser, Ben Bella, and Nkrumah, so as to favor a really staunch friend like Tshombe. This strange idea, moreover, will never meet the approval of any appeasing statesman who is blind to Communist infiltration and incitement. So, the CIA continues watching swarms of Reds assemble around the borders of the Congo Republic.
And in the U. N. we endure the spectacle of amoral demagogues, backers of cannibalism, attacking a Congo mercy mission as imperialism. And then we dignify the attack with a lame reply. Do we not see it all clearly, including the U. N. diatribes, as part of the Red conquest? If we must retreat, someone ought at least to blow the bugle. Then we could withdraw officially, leaving Asia and Africa for the Communists to colonize. Co-existing, we should find our interests merging with those of the Soviets. In the meantime, we could prepare for survival by devoting ourselves without interruption to socializing the U.S.A. and the hemisphere.

Moral Weakness
We are reaping what we have sown. The year 1965 brings troubles that we are not morally prepared to handle. In Britain there is economic foolishness and political knavery to be restrained. Europe strains at the tether, wanting to go her own way. American power, on which we have spent $660 billions since World War II, is ignored. Having given away $100 billions, our influence is suspect by some and taken for granted by others. Our 25,000 state department employees, augmented by scores of other agencies that spend billions, swarm over the world reaping no victories.
Little attention is paid to foreign crises by our President, who proposes to build a Great Society in which the government's role in the life of Americans is dominant. He has indicated that he interprets the purpose of the people as wanting to peacefully co-exist with the Communist world. With Secretary Rusk, he seemingly believes most of our foreign problems will go away if they are left alone. This is a beautiful life for the Reds, who rush into any power vacuum that develops exploiting the U. N. clapnet and reaching for control of continents. We must cease giving the world to the hammer and sickle by default.

tarpon fishermen who prefer to do most of their fishing in the passes or the mouths of the rivers emptying into the Gulf favor certain tidal conditions for each locality. "It has been my experience that tarpon will usually move into the upper reaches of a river on an incoming tide and, as the tide starts to fall off, will drop down with the current into deeper water," remarks Robert D. Hall, Salt-Water Fishing Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.
It is a well-known fact that tarpon are more often taken at night; and as the season progresses, the best fishing is limited to the evening.

Young men can work eight hours a day and play ten, but after 40 you can't and you might as well quit trying.

SPORTS AFIELD
By Ted Kesting

Tarpon afford one of the most thrilling and spectacular brands of salt-water fishing, and these great fighting fish inhabit many of the warm seas of the world. Depending on where it is found, the tarpon is known by many names, such as sabalo, savanilla, grande eaille and silver king. The scientific name of this beautiful silvery fish is Tarpon atlanticus.

A few of the favorite fishing grounds for tarpon are the west coast of Florida, from the Keys to the western edge of the state; Aransas Pass, Texas; the Panuco River near Tampico, Mexico, and nearly all the islands of the West Indies. But while tarpon may range far and wide in the warm waters of the South, it is the west coast of Florida that attracts the greatest number of fish during the late-spring months.

There are a number of methods used in fishing for tarpon, and one of the most popular ways is to drift a pinfish, crab or mullet about two or three feet above the bottom.

Because of the stonelike structure of a tarpon's mouth, it is often difficult to set a hook unless you allow the fish enough time to get the bait past the forward part of its mouth. In some instances it is a good idea to strip off 20 or 25 feet in a coil on the seat or stern of the boat and allow the tarpon to run off this amount of line before attempting to set the hook.

HOSTING HINTS

By AUSTIN NICHOLS

When inviting guests let them know what time to come and what to expect. "Drop over on Sunday" could mean either for cocktails, dinner, or possibly for after-dinner cards and conversation. Avoid this confusion by making your invitation specific.

Have a special place near the door ready in advance for hats and coats. This may avoid crushed clothing (and feelings) and prevent wet garments from being carried over your best rugs.

When serving refreshments observe this rule: keep them ample, easy to prepare, and high in quality. Whether your guests are bourbon connoisseurs or just enjoy a drink of good whiskey, it may add to your pleasure and theirs to have a quality brand such as Wild Turkey.

If conversation lags, try the Big Question technique: ask a question of one person, a question on which many guests are likely to have an opinion. Sample: "Does a woman's intelligence really show on her face?"

Final hint: keep a bottle or two of water in the refrigerator. To get extra ice cubes in a hurry, just fill the empty tray with the extra-cold water. Don't keep ice cubes too long as they can absorb food odors.

National Guard Unit Receives Coveted Citation

Company B (Forward Support), 729th Maintenance Battalion, Md. Army National Guard, stationed at Highfield, Md., has just been notified that the unit received a superior on the annual General Inspection conducted by the Inspector General section of Headquarters, Second U. S. Army at Ft. George G. Meade, Md. This is the seventh straight year that this unit has received a superior on the inspection. The unit is commanded by Capt. William C. McCleaf of Blue Ridge Summit.

The Inspector General commented on the high average drill attendance for the past year which was 98% and stated this indicated high moral and spirit in the unit. He also stated that the performance of administration and supply functions in the unit were outstanding and the condition of organizational equipment and individual clothing indicated highly effective supervision by Officers and NCO's.

Lt. Col. George C. Gibson, Commanding Officer of the 729th Maintenance Battalion announced that of the five units in the Battalion, four received superior ratings and one an excellent.

Capt. McCleaf also announced that recent promotions in the unit were: Weldon B. Shank, Jr., to First Lieutenant; Carroll A. Scott, to Sergeant; Harold H. Hahn, Charles W. High and James E. Meek to Specialist Five and Carroll A. Frazer to Private First Class.

There are several openings in the unit for personnel who may have a desire to join. The openings are for clerk typists, supply clerks, stock record clerks, automotive repairmen and signal repairmen. These openings occur for men with prior service as well as new enlistments. Personnel with prior service, including Reserve Components, would be taken into the unit in the grade they now hold or its equivalent. New enlistees would be trained in the job of their choice at the time of enlistment and could go on active duty for a period of 20 to 46 weeks, depending on their choice within the Company. Anyone desiring information regarding joining this unit of the Maryland Army National Guard, may contact Warrant Officer Stanley E. McIntire at the armory weekdays between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The unit presently drills one weekend per month. Prospective members are invited to attend these drills to see the operation of the unit. The armory is located between Ft. Ritchie and Blue Ridge Summit, and the phone number is Highfield 241-3114.

Capt. McCleaf also stated that the unit is scheduled for annual field training during the period July 3 to 17 and the encampment will be at Camp Pickett, Virginia.

Homemakers Hold Regular Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Emmitsburg Homemakers Club was held at the home of Mrs. Luther Cregger on Feb. 25. Miss Beatrice Fehr, county economist, gave a demonstration on interior design. She discussed line, space, color, light, texture, balance and pattern in room coordination.

Mrs. Charles F. Stouter, president, announced the annual County Homemakers' meeting would be held at Hood College on March 27. The theme of the meeting will be of an international nature and Mark Evans, television commentator will be the guest speaker. Mrs. Luther Cregger will be the delegate to the meeting and Mrs. Charles A. Harner and Mrs. William Slemmer, Jr., hostesses. Floral arrangements will be in charge of Mrs. Victor Fiery and Mrs. Kenneth Glass.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held on March 25 at the home of Mrs. George Eyster.

Dentists Warn Heavy Smokers

The board of governors of the Maryland State Dental Association this week admonished the public to cut down on smoking.

Noting a rise of mouth cancer and a pre-cancerous lesion known as leukoplakia, a white callous on the lining of the mouth, the board voted unanimously at a meeting in Baltimore to warn smokers against heavy use of tobacco.

Dr. Morton H. Hollander, of Baltimore, chairman of the association's public relations committee, said leukoplakia is not found in mouths of non-smokers and in the days before women smoked no leukoplakia was discovered in women. He declared:

"It is an established fact that some cases which are allowed to continue for a long time do turn into cancer lesions. Since we dentists see more leukoplakia lesions than ever it is important that we be sure to alert our patients to the dangers of heavy smoking. It is something for all smokers to think about and we feel it incumbent to warn smokers of what can happen."
