

EHS Senior Play Highly Successful

The Senior Class of Emmitsburg High School presented its class play last Saturday, under the direction of Mr. Robert L. Holmes.

The scene was set in England during the 1750's. The first act took place in Somersetshire on the estates of Squire Allworthy and Mr. Western.

phia Western. The women dressed in their elegant gowns, couffured hair, and beautiful capes and the gentlemen in knee socks, knickers, and waistcoats, created the 18th century mood needed for the presentation.

The proceeds amounted to approximately $200 which can be attributed to the well-done advance advertising. Yes, the play proved to bring a very successful evening by the large attendance and the congratulations given the cast afterwards.

On May 13, 1908, the U. S. Navy Nurse Corps was established.

CHARLES R. SNIDER Charles R. Snider, 59, Gettysburg R3, died Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Warner Hospital. He had suffered from a heart condition for several years.

A native of Emmitsburg, he was a son of the late William A. and Mary E. (McKinney) Snider, and had been employed at the rubber heel factory in Gettysburg until about eight years ago when he became an employe for the L. E. Smith News Agency.

Surviving are his wife, the former Evelyn Snider; a son, William A. Snider, serving in the Navy, stationed in Puerto Rico; three daughters, Mrs. Ernest Johnson, Lansdale; Mrs. Robert Leedy, Gettysburg R6, and Mrs. John E. Settle Jr., Gettysburg R3; 10 grandchildren and a brother, Joseph W. Snider, Lexington, Mass.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Peters Funeral Home, Gettysburg, with the Rev. Dr. Paul L. Reaser and the Rev. John S. Bishop, officiating.

explanation of each office was also given. Nominations from the floor then brought a second candidate for second vice president.

The candidates were: first vice president—Jack Hoke and Bill Wivell; second vice president—Carolyn Fierman and Philip Valentine; parliamentarian—Rachel Watkins and Edith Martin; and recording secretary—Linda Davenport and Betty Tokar.

Mount Takes M-D Track Crown

Mount St. Mary's College track team won 10 events and placed in a total of 13 to win their third consecutive Mason-Dixon track and field championship Friday and Saturday in Norfolk, Va.

Coach Jim Deegan, sporting one of the finest track records in the East, saw his team set five records including an amazing triple win by ace Bill Walsh. Walsh, one of the top trackmen in Mount history, took the oldest record off the books when he soared to a 6'3 1/2" in the high jump.

The Mount rolled up 71 points to gain the team championship. That was 14 tallies better than second place Old Dominion's 57. American U. came in third with 32 points.

Tom Neidhart set the Mountaineer's first record of the two-day affair when he traveled the mile in 4:21.9 landing a second place in that event. Dave Landis then journeyed the 120 high hurdles in 14.6 seconds to set another Mount record and took a first.

John Clarke turned in a 1:56 880-yard run for the final school mark. Kevin Murphy, Johns Hopkins' distance runner recorded the only other Mason-Dixon record when he was clocked in 9:40.7 in the two-mile run.

Mt. St. Mary's will play host to the annual NCAA small college eastern regional championships today and tomorrow. The top small college track and field men in the east will be on hand for the event.

Can Thrower Fined

Donald R. Mink, 19, Collingsdale, Pa., was arrested Sunday afternoon by Special Deputy Sheriff Edgar A. McDonnell, Gettysburg R2, on a charge of "littering" by throwing an empty beer can into Marsh Creek at Natural Dam.

Mr. and Mrs. William Umbel and family, Waynesboro, spent Sunday with Mr. Umbel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Umbel, and family.

EHS Student Council Elects

Over 1000 Will Graduate From County Schools

Frederick County high schools will graduate a record number of students next month.

Preliminary reports indicate that 1,049 students will receive diplomas in June, the first time in county history that more than 1,000 students graduated.

Frederick and Middletown High Schools show the greatest increases while Brunswick High School is the only high school with a decrease in number of graduates from last year.

Frederick High School, with 470, has 49 more graduates than last year's 421. Middletown will graduate 137 this year compared with last year's 90.

Brunswick High School which graduated 100 last year dropped off to 86 students this year.

The remainder of high schools in the county showed increases ranging from six to 36 graduates.

Walkersville High School will graduate 110, as compared with 83 last year, and Linganore, up nineteen from last year, will graduate 95 students. Emmitsburg shows the smallest gain, six graduates, making a total of 34, while Thurmont increased by 36, graduating 117 this year.

The total of 1,049 prospective graduates this year is made up of 521 boys and 528 girls. Last year there were 428 boys to 451 girls.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On Opportunities For June Graduates

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 20—Young men and women who will soon be pouring out of high schools and colleges to look for employment, whether summer jobs or permanent careers, face promising conditions, — undoubtedly the most promising in the nation's history. Business is moving along on an all-time plateau, and there are more jobs in nearly all fields than ever before.

Unemployment Wrongly Emphasized

Many preparing to graduate —and their parents—are disturbed by the government report that there are still 3.7 million Americans looking for work who cannot find it. A breakdown of the government's figures however, reveals that the situation is not nearly so distressing as it appears on the surface. Some 40% of those who are reported to be unemployed are in the following non-critical groups: Wives, whose husbands in many cases have steady jobs; teen-age girls, frequently living at home and seeking only part-time occupations; and teen-age boys, often in a similar living-at-home setup.

Less than a third of the jobless are husbands with families, and the greater number of these men are victims of temporary work shifts or short-term layoffs, who get jobless compensation to see them through till they obtain other positions. The heart of the problem concerns only about 135,000 family men, who have been without work for six months or more. Indications are that many of this last group live in areas where there are special industrial problems, resulting often from dying lines —like some coal operations—or alterations in government contracts in special fields.

Skilled Workers Actually Scarce

Both male and female graduates this spring should have little trouble finding employment if they are intelligent, adaptable, and trained in at least one special field. The truth of the matter is that there is a far greater scarcity of suitable workers in many lines than is generally recognized. A look at the want ads in newspapers across the country shows that many jobs are going begging in a great many sections. There is heavy unsatisfied demand, for example, for such specialists as scientists, engineers, metalworkers, nurses, doctors, lab helpers, salesmen, chemists, designers, stenographers, teachers, social counselors, management consultants, furniture craftsmen, mathematicians, and expert chefs.

Some areas state that they get virtually no replies to their job placement ads, no matter how attractive the wages and the fringe benefits. Still other sections say they are willing to accept even illiterates for simple labor and custodial jobs, but possible recruits usually refuse such work as too menial. Many cities report it extremely difficult to locate kitchen help, dishwashers, handymen, housekeepers, and clerks. Federal, state, and community programs to teach job skills are on the increase as a result of shortages of trained employees to take office situations at various levels of government.

Plenty Of Jobs For Those Who Want Them

It is safe to say that practically any reasonably accommodative graduate—whether highly skilled or not—will be able to get a job of some sort this summer if he or she really wants one. Those with special degrees from college will probably want to take time enough to try for the positions in their chosen fields with the best pay and the brightest chances for advancement. A high degree of education and capability warrants such an approach. Youngsters with a more general background will do well to become associated with some established firm that will offer a variety of possibilities within its framework. This goes, too, for those who are not yet clear what type of career they really prefer.

There will be many openings in different parts of the nation as a result of the government's anti-poverty and aid-to-education programs. Many June graduates may even find interesting opportunities in their own communities through these programs. It will be worth looking into at any rate.

Read John 6:1-14.

"There is a lad here who has five barley loaves and two fish; but what are they among so many?"—John 6:9 (RSV).

The Galilean woman prepared two fish, baked five barley loaves, and packed them as a picnic lunch for her boy. It was his cherished provision for his time of need.

As Jesus spoke to the multitude on the Galilean hillside that day, the lad listened attentively. When Jesus wanted to feed the multitude, the boy was willing to offer his package of lunch to the Lord. The result was that the private provision which was enough for one tired and hungry boy was multiplied in the hands of the Lord to feed five thousand hungry persons. The fragments left over, which Jesus ordered gathered up, filled twelve baskets.

The little that we are able to put in the hands of the Lord can also become a blessing to many beyond our knowing. But many of us are keeping things today for strictly personal use when the Lord has need of them to bless other persons.

Prayer

Lord, we pray for faith that prompts us to entrust all we are and have to Thee. Help us to put on Thine altar our carefully kept so-called securities. In the Master's name. Amen.

Thought For The Day

Today I will offer the Lord what He requests of me.

Aparicio Off To Fast Start For Orioles

One of the most pleasant surprises to the Baltimore Orioles this spring has been the fast start made by Luis Aparicio. A fast start for Little Looie may be construed by the baseball buff into believing that Aparicio is running wild on the bases as is his usual custom.

But, a surprising fact emerges. Aparicio's fast start comes at bat, notably in collecting extra base hits and driving in runs. The net result is that he isn't getting as much chance to steal, a department he is the perennial American League champion.

He has developed into one of the most consistent batters on the team, and is making the best start in his 10-year major league career. Since opening day, he has ranked among the American League leaders in total hits, doubles and triples. With it all, he's still up there with the stolen base leaders, too.

Among the little Venezuelan's first 30 hits were five doubles, four triples and one home run. In his past two years with the Orioles, Luis collected totals of 45 and 37 in the RBI columns. Already in 1965, he has driven across 14.

If there is any explanation for Aparicio's performance, he can't find it. Typical of veteran players, he prefers to take his good fortune in stride, realizing there are other days in the game, too.

SEED NECKLACES

Chris is making a seed necklace like the one around her neck. She is using sunflower and red kidney bean seeds which make a red and black and white necklace for her white blouse.

There are many different kinds of seeds that can be strung into necklaces. Watermelon seeds make a pretty black necklace and pumpkin seeds a cream colored one.

But Chris is using sunflower seeds and kidney beans because it is winter time and both of these are easy to buy from a store. The only trouble is that they are so dry they have to be soaked in water to soften them in order to stick a needle through them. This soaking isn't needed when seeds are freshly gathered from the garden.

Chris soaks a few at a time of each kind of seed in a saucer and meanwhile strings those already soaked. She is using ordinary sewing thread, such as you'll find in Mother's work basket, and has doubled it for greater strength after threading it through her needle.

First Chris threads on 20 sunflower seeds, sticking the needle through the middle of a flat side of each seed. Then she threads on one red kidney bean seed, but with this seed she pushes the needle through from one end to the other.

You'll see a completed necklace using the same two kinds of seeds around Chris' neck. The materials for these necklaces are easy to find — just needle (not too fine, but very sharp), thread, scissors and seeds. If YOU wear one of these necklaces to school, every one of your friends will want one too.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry University of Wisconsin

Advice On Fattening Beef Cattle

On a recent cattle feeders day in Wisconsin a number of management suggestions were offered to visiting cattlemen, summarized somewhat as follows:

A single protein supplement, such as soybean meal, will give as good results as a mixture of two or more oil meals.

While soybean meal lacks vitamin A, trace minerals, and some unknown nutrients found in legume roughages, these may be supplied by adding vitamin A, 4 to 6 pounds of good-quality legume hay, and a mineral mixture containing also trace minerals that may be easily supplied in the salt.

Though soybean meal, linseed meal and cottonseed meal may differ some in price, they are worth about the same per ton. Linseed meal is somewhat lower in protein but has other compensating value. Generally the oil meal to buy is the one that sells cheapest per pound of protein.

Calves on a full feed of grass silage with a daily allowance of 3 to 4 pounds corn, milo, or other grain, do not need any more protein.

Urea is no better than another source of protein, but commends itself because it is cheaper. One pound of urea plus 6 pounds of corn or similar grain equals 7 pounds of soybean meal or cottonseed meal. Generally, molasses must cost only about three-fourths as much as corn or milo, pound for pound, to be economical. But it makes poor roughages more palatable and, in case of urea in the ration, provides quick energy for rumen bacteria that then are able to convert urea into protein.

By feeding stilbestrol to cattle on full feed of grain, an increased gain of 17 to 19% and increased feed efficiency of about 10% may be expected. Stilbestrol should not be fed to any breeding animal, and gilts intended for breeding should not follow cattle fed stilbestrol.

Stilbestrol implants are about as effective as feeding it and somewhat cheaper, but implanting involves handling cattle. Also heifers should not be implanted.

Animals respond most to antibiotic feeding when under stress of crowding, cold weather, muddy lots, or shipping. Much the same may be said for tranquilizers. Enzymes in finishing cattle rations have given conflicting results.

These are findings based on research and observations, and are bound to be of interest to all cattlemen.

Question: Are trace minerals other than those in trace mineral salt likely to be necessary additions to rations?

Answer: Under some circumstances supplementations with selenium, molybdenum and fluorine have been found beneficial. So have chromium, arsenic, and vanadium. But because of their variation in feeds, and the fact that their toxic levels in most cases are so close to their helpful levels, it will probably be some time and only after much more research work before any of these minerals will be generally recommended for livestock.

Demonstrate What?
Everyone knows that sometimes a sick or senseless creature, stirred by emotion that is so much a part of human nature and convinced his cause is right, wields a knife or pulls a trigger. Most of our citizens who are mentally well and normally sensible, despite any emotional impact upon them under stress, are going to retain the power of reason and practice restraint. But when you put a community under high emotional tension for many days and talk about force and revolution, there are likely to be some casualties, human nature being what it is. We have seen this happen in New York as well as Alabama.

Causes, they say, need martyrs. How foolish and costly, that Jim Reeb and Mrs. Liuzzo, or anyone, should have been offered so sacrificially on the propaganda altar. Yet, when no word of restraint came from the White House, when money, pressure, politics, and vindictiveness said "march," it was an invitation to martyrdom for somebody. Was it worth it? Well, if one is convinced that the only practical route (an extremist's view, doubtless) to important reforms, to persuasion of the people, and to democratic action is through the use of the force of "mobocracy," yes.

The Other Side Of It
Not many Americans subscribe to such a view, we hope. But that some do was brought out forcefully in an editorial in the National Observer during the Selma affair: "When the Hollywood stars gather, the great airlines and their cargoes flock in, and the newsmen and photographers and assorted celebrities ride forth, and the prophets thunder, there is no doubt that mountains can be moved and mighty reputations made. In the scope of things, it may well be considered by some that this is more important than what transpired, on Highway 80, between a triggerman from Alabama and a housewife from Detroit."

Are there not better ways of making social and political adjustments in our nation than to use methods, even if presumed to be non-violent, that do provoke violence? Must emotion on these matters run to riot? This sort of political action does not seem to belong to the best of American tradition. Should we not prefer reason and patience and deliberation?

Problem Is Man
The big problem in all of this is undoubtedly that of human nature. Plenty of laws are on the books already. If there is actually something that judicial action cannot do, then people need changing. Only through education and the best practice of human relations will the hate being generated on both sides be displaced by love and compassion. Street riots and demonstrations are short on love but long on hate.

Surely the leaders who plan these events and who direct so fully the energies and funds of those who are emotionally aroused know better than to hold out hope of a victory tomorrow. Neither songs of "overcoming" nor policemen's clubs will really solve social and economic problems. Sit-ins and mob violence can fan the passions into flame and get political notice, but the spirit of reason is consumed. These displays are hardly better than the human torches of South Vietnam. They are no' in the American tradition.

It Shames America
Our Negro and white populations must look more and more within themselves for the solutions to their problems. For example, to make the entire Negro experience in America into something sordid and degrading is a vast deception that only leads to making the white man an enemy and oppressor. This naturally leads to militant protest, and it is no better than the idea of some white persons to hold the Negro inferior by comparison. The Negro in America, on the whole, is blessed with the same graces and liberties that all enjoy. But there must be pride, character and self-respect.

If the events of March in Alabama have sent 40 years of increasing goodwill down the drain, as some insist that they did, then it is time to end these backward turns. Those who have created the civil rights Frankenstein should bring their monster to a halt. These stage-managed mob scenes in the U. S. are netting the Communists more than their attacks on our embassies abroad, and you need not think they are unaware of this. It is a shameful thing to bring up a generation of American children watching these tragedies, for many of them are being taught that righteous causes are espoused only through street demonstrations of mobs and fanatics.

"High school seniors are urged to obtain a social security account number card before starting out to look for summer jobs," W. S. King, social security district manager in Hagerstown, stated this week. "One of the first things a new employer will ask for is your social security number."

Mr. King explained that while social security may seem unimportant to a young man or woman just out of school, social security credits provide the basis for future benefits under the program. An account is established for each social security number, and over the years the worker's earnings are credited to the account. Should a worker suffer loss of income because of disability, death, or retirement, monthly benefits can be paid based on the average earnings credited to his account.

An application for a social security number may be obtained by writing or visiting the nearest social security office, or—in rural areas—by asking at the local post office.

What Price Affluence?

Good living has brought a worldwide increase in diabetes mellitus (sugar diabetes), the United Nations health agency reports.

In the United States alone, there are an estimated 4 million cases, says a new study by an expert committee of the World Health Organization (WHO). Summing up current knowledge, the committee says:

—Diabetes "may be genetic. If one twin develops the disease, it will appear in the other in seven out of 10 cases."
—There is "unassailable evidence" that overweight predisposes people to diabetes.

—Well-fed countries have the highest incidence of the disease.

—Known in 1900 as the disease of the wealthy, diabetes now appears in all classes. This suggests increasing food consumption, decreasing exercise and growing obesity as contributing factors.

The WHO committee says the most important countermeasure is early detection, followed by treatment, either through diet, with insulin or both.

A New Tide of Displaced Persons

The worst of Europe's own postwar refugee problems have been solved, but a new "imported" one has risen: the influx of Cuban refugees into Spain.

According to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), government and voluntary agencies have managed to take care of approximately 260,000 persons who have fled to the United States from Cuba in recent years.

However, about 15,000 others have sought asylum in Spain, where facilities for their care are pitifully inadequate.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

The Emmitsburg Chronicle, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, Baltimore District, will publish each week in this column, tax information that will enable taxpayers to become more familiar with the Federal income tax laws. Clip and save for future reference.

Questions And Answers

Q. I just got a bill for the balance due on my 1964 taxes. I thought I could pay this off in installments?

A. You may be able to if you can show that it came from underwithholding, etc., and that undue hardship would result if you had to pay the bill in full. When you get a bill, you should promptly write or visit your nearest Internal Revenue office to arrange payment of your tax bill.

Q. Why does the Internal Revenue Service suggest that people drop exemptions for withholding purposes and then hold up their refund checks for proof of the exemption they have dropped?

A. The situation you describe does not occur. The Internal Revenue Service advises taxpayers to increase their withholding by dropping an exemption, for instance, when they expect to be under-withheld for the year. This will avoid a balance due at year end.

Any inconvenience connected with the audit of your return will be minimized greatly if your records are in good shape. As to the right to an exemption, the same proof is required whether the exemption had been claimed for withholding purposes or not. Therefore, you can be assured that dropping exemptions for withholding purposes will not affect the time it takes to get your refund.

Q. Will I be able to get a refund on excise taxes I pay now if Congress reduces these taxes later?

A. We cannot answer this question since it would require anticipating legislation. The answer to your question depends on the provisions of the law as passed by Congress and signed by the President.

Q. I'm planning to combine a business trip with a vacation this summer. How do I determine which expenses will be deductible and which will not?

A. The general rule is that expenses ordinary and necessary to the conduct of your business will be deductible.

Q. If the trip is mainly a vacation trip, then travel costs will not be deductible.

If the trip is primarily business, those expenses which would have been incurred had the trip been totally for business are deductible. Special rules apply for travel outside the U. S.

To qualify for the deduction, adequate records must be kept to substantiate your deductions. Paid bills, cancelled checks, receipts and keeping an account book or diary will meet record-keeping requirements if they show the necessary information. Expenditures should be recorded at or near the time you make them, to insure accurate figures.

Rules for deducting business travel, entertainment and gift expenses are explained in IRS Publication No. 463 available at no charge from any Internal Revenue Service office.

Man obtains amino acids from the food protein he eats. Meats, fish, milk, eggs and cereals are among rich dietary courses of protein.

Protein found in the foods we eat cannot be utilized directly by our bodies, as the molecules are too big to "get through"—the delicate structures of our absorptive mechanisms. Thus, the proteins are broken down into amino acids by enzymes in the digestive tract. These tiny amino acids are able to pass through the walls of the intestine into the blood stream and are then distributed in the body where they are needed. The amino acids are "put back together" in almost unlimited varieties of combinations to construct the required body proteins.

The many kinds of food proteins commonly eaten are made up of different combinations of these amino acids. At the present time 22 distinct amino acids have been defined, all but eight of which can be synthesized by our bodies from other intermediates as we need them. The other eight must come from foods and are thus known as the "essential amino acids." The body needs a certain balance of these to maintain proper protein nutrition.

The nutritive and biological values of a protein are terms used to describe protein quality or the proportions in which these essential amino acids are found in a food. In other words, since animal proteins (as in eggs and milk) have a better balance of these essential amino acids than do most vegetable proteins (such as in corn and rice), they are said to have a higher biological value than do the vegetable proteins.

Poor protein nutrition in the body can result from a deficit of a single essential amino acid in the diet. For without the reasonable proportion of every essential amino acid to build up a complete full protein where it is needed in the body, the protein cannot be constructed. If the body is called upon to build a needed protein at a time when one of the essential amino acids is missing, it is much like trying to make a souffle without egg whites. It just can't be done.

The best way to be sure you are providing your body with all of the essential amino acids is to eat a good variety of protein-rich foods each day. This means that such foods as meats, milk, poultry, eggs, nuts, cheeses, cereals and fish should be consumed regularly.

America's first fully-commissioned warship was the schooner Hannat, commissioned September 2, 1775.

PHYLLIS DILLER WAS AMONG THE first performers signed for guest appearances (at least two) on Dean Martin's new weekly variety show... You've seen about the last of The Entertainers. TV's hard-luck show goes off the air soon, to be replaced by a London-produced series called F-6. It's one more entry in the James Bond—U.N.C.L.E.-type sweepstakes, and stars Patrick McGeehan (Danger Man) as a secret agent... World War I, the documentary series which CBS recently moved from Tuesday night to Sundays at 6:30 in hopes of improving its ratings, is now being dropped from the schedule altogether. It will be replaced by Zoorama, an educational show emanating from the San Diego Zoo... Baseball manager Bill Rigney and outfielder Albie Pearson of the Los Angeles Angels will appear on... Dean's guest the Bing Crosby Show.

ROBERT STACK STARS IN THE Bob Hope anthology's first two-parter, "The Quiet Spy." Also in the cast of the European-intrigue drama are Felicia Farr, George Macready and Victor Buono... Two former ABC stars, Richard Long and Peter Breck, will be back with that network in next season's The Big Valley, starring Barbara Stanwyck... My Favorite Martian producer Jack Chertok is developing a series to star Corbett Monica, currently working as second banana in the now-cancelled Joey Bishop Show.

JULIE ANDREWS, WHO IS UP FOR AN Oscar for her role in "Mary Poppins," stars in a 60-minute color special for NBC, being taped in Hollywood to be aired in the fall. Also set to appear in the musical special are Gene Kelly and the New Christy Minstrels... Boating Tips...

Oddly enough, the place to begin to learn water skiing is on dry land! Mercury boating authorities suggest the following steps for the beginner. Put on the skis, making sure the foot harnesses are snug and comfortable. Next, get the feel of the tow line and bar by having someone pull you up from a sitting position. Keep your elbows straight. This will approximate the actual pull of the water, sit down and raise the tips of your skis above the surface. When your ski tips clear the surface, yell "Hit it," and the boat operator will throttle forward, giving you a fast, steady pull. As the water pressure forces your skis up, hold them straight and retain the same position as you did on dry land. Keep knees bent and elbows straight and resist the tendency of the skis to wobble while you are coming up out of the water. Once you're up and planing keep your knees bent to help maintain balance. Turning is easy: to turn right, for instance, just press hard on your left ski and lean to the right. Occasionally you may wish to make a dock start. Sit on the edge of the dock with toes of the skis out of the water and about 10 feet of slack coiled next to you on the dock. When the rope tightens, transfer your weight to the skis and hold your arms straight, ready for pull. You'll be towed away smoothly.

GREEN AS ?

Lime Sherbet, a variety of green nicotiana, is chartreuse green; colors deepest in shady spots. Envy zinnia is apple green against olive green leaves. Blooms are 3.4 inches across.

Nature usually reserves the color green for foliage, but sometimes she experiments and tries it for flowers. These green blooms always have been a curiosity in the garden, some of them beautiful, some interesting, others hardly worth growing.

Thus, there is a green gladiolus (beautiful), a green tulip (interesting) and a green rose (hardly worth growing). But there are two new annuals that have green blooms and are both beautiful and interesting to grow.

One of these is a variety of flowering tobacco or nicotiana named Lime Sherbet. Nicotiana is known especially for its good performance in shady spots and such locations bring out the deepest color in Lime Sherbet's chartreuse-green flowers. Plants grow 18 inches high and bear many delightfully scented blooms, excellent for cutting. New this year is a green zinnia, named for what visitors to your garden will feel when they see it — Envy. This flower is apple green against the olive green of the leaves. As with Lime Sherbet, the color of Envy flowers is deeper if plants are shaded. Since zinnias do not sunny situations, the deeper color, if desired, can be obtained by covering the plants with cheesecloth on sunny days.

Both of these unusual-hued annuals are easy to grow from seeds and, while both may be transplanted, they will thrive when seeds are sown where plants are to bloom. This is especially true of the zinnia.

Tydings Plans To Organize Campus Groups

U. S. Senator Joseph D. Tydings (D-Md.) has announced plans to establish a series of meetings with student government representatives of all major Maryland campuses following a "Day on Capitol Hill" with three top officers of the University of Maryland student government association.

"Several years ago when I was president of the Student Government Assn. at the University of Maryland," Sen. Tydings said, "I felt it would be useful for campus leaders to meet with representatives of our national government." The Maryland senator has called for a closer association with governmental officials of local, national and international affairs to "provide better understanding of the problems and attitudes discussed among the citizenry, both on and off the campus."

The first of nine sessions planned by Sen. Tydings was held on May 11 with President-elect Ted Levin, Vice-president-elect Miller Hudson and Secretary-elect Margaret Hall of the Maryland U. Student Government Assn. Their visit included question and answer sessions with members of the senator's staff, a Foreign Relations Committee hearing, tour of the Capitol building and lunch with Senator Tydings in the Senators' Diningroom.

"We were fortunate to be able to make arrangements for the University of Maryland group to coincide with the particularly meaningful debate and vote on the poll tax amendment to the voting rights legislation now pending before the Senate," said Sen. Tydings. "It is hoped that each group will have an opportunity to spend an equal amount of time witnessing similar legislative action from seats in the Gallery."

"I am looking forward to having those representatives of the various student groups who are interested in learning more about the legislative and governmental processes come to Washington to meet with me and members of my staff."

Highway Fatal Show Increase

Eight persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Two of those killed were drivers; three were passengers; and three were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in two of the deaths; speed in five; and "driver error" was present in seven of the fatalities.

"In the five cases where the victims were either drivers or passengers," observed Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police, "only two of the vehicles involved were equipped with seat belts, and in these two cases they were not being used. In all five cases the use of seat belts, in the opinion of the investigating officer, would have reduced the severity of the injury to the victim."

Colonel Jarman continued: "This same story is repeated week after week and it is hard to understand why so many motorists are willing to gamble their lives rather than use a seat belt—a known life saver."

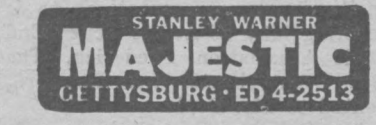

Children's Feet Need Attention

"Children's feet need regular checkups," states the American Foot Health Foundation. With a good percentage of America's youth suffering from a variety of foot ailments, the Foundation emphasizes the need for both preventive care and daily maintenance.

"When foot problems become evident in the child, early professional care should be sought," according to the organization's president, Dr. H. Arthur McAninch. "This is important in order to keep the disorders from developing into lasting, painful deformities by the time he or she becomes an adult," he continued. "The bones in the feet (there are 26 in each foot) take almost 20 years to develop completely. But enough damage can be done during the first six years of a child to cause him distress for the rest of his life. Socks that are too short, shoes that are not properly fitted, and garments, such as leotards that bind the feet, are contributing factors to breakdowns in foot health—for they cause undue pressure and resulting trouble."

Dr. McAninch urges parents to check their children's feet on a regular basis. He suggests looking for cracks in the skin, especially between the toes; blisters; ingrown nails and warts — and watching how your child walks — often the first sign of foot trouble.

Senator Brewster Announces Aid For Poor Children

Senator Daniel B. Brewster today announced that Head-Start projects to give eight weeks of pre-school training this summer for 350 children of the poor in Frederick County will be made possible by a contribution of $48,376 from the Office of Economic Opportunity, the Federal agency coordinating the War on Poverty. Operation of the Head Start classes at Child Development Centers to be established will also provide employment for 28 adults from the neighborhoods where the children live and for 21 volunteer workers who are needed to assist in preparing the youngsters for the first grade this fall. "Availability of these funds in Frederick County will enable us to give these children a head start in escaping from the clutches of poverty by striking at the root cause: lack of early education," Senator Brewster said.

Workman Injured
Gerald Gear, 62, Fairfield R2, was treated at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, this week for a laceration of the head suffered when a tree fell on him while working at Charnita. He was taken to the hospital in the Gettysburg Fire Co. ambulance.
