When the fire siren blasts off at 7 o'clock in the evening next Tuesday, don't be alarmed because it will be neither a meeting nor a fire. The one long blast, I am told, will be the signal for firemen to gather at the hall preparatory to starting off on a canvass of the residents of the Town in an effort to raise funds for the new annex to the present Fire Hall. All members are requested to gather at the hall at the sound of the siren Tuesday night. Form letters have been mailed to all property owners in the community explaining that the goal of $5,000 must be reached to insure the success of the building program. Most of us are aware that the present facilities of the company are inadequate and so the Firemen have instituted a building program which already is under way. So, my dear friends, if you haven't as yet mailed in your contribution, do so today and help those fire laddies save valuable shoe leather.

The recent graduation of half a dozen local young men from the Mount is indicative that our young men are becoming more aware of the fact that a fine education, equivalent to any college, is to be had right here in our own backyard. The number, while insignificant as numbers go, is the largest class of local young men to make the grade at the local institution of learning in many a year, and perhaps it could be a record. Three young ladies also earned their degrees at Saint Joseph's representing another local record, I believe. Our colleges, located in this pleasant valley, were first founded for boys and girls of this area but when the institutions grew faster than the community there had to be an influx of outside students to maintain operations. Both institutions have been overly generous to local students but the gesture has not been taken advantage of in too many instances. However, it is an encouraging sign to witness the increasing number of Emmitsburg young men and ladies obtaining their education right here at home... an education second to none.

Finally someone is attempting to do something about Daylight Time. For years now there have been holdouts across the Nation and one encounters difficulties when traveling. One city or town will operate under the "fast time" while others completely ignore it. Well the Senate has adopted a measure to make the Daylight Time standard equipment, you might say, throughout the country. Should the House go along with the measure we'll be rid of a nuisance that has been bugging us for years.

Pennsylvania's new school bus law which would provide transportation for children to parochial schools will undoubtedly go into effect this fall. The bill has been passed by the State Legislature and all that is needed is the Governor's signature, which I understand he will give. It is estimated that the cost to nearby Adams County will be $75,000. This will provide buses and drivers for the coming year. We in Maryland do not face such a dilemma. We have had some transportation for parochial students for a number of years and the program has worked very smoothly. Unquestionably with the cost of education constantly rising there will be pressure on for states and the Federal Government to absorb some of the cost of transporting these students to private schools. This cost is insignificant as compared to what it would cost if the entire load of providing education and schools for the millions who attend private schools, were saddled on the state government.

Reader Discusses Moon's Origin

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

I am one of the many people who believe the moon was contained in Earth's past.

When the moon was blasted out of Earth, it was an irregular shaped molten mass, it became rounded much as shot was formed in early days by dropping molten metal from Shot Towers and rounded by air friction. The craters seen on the moon were made by pieces falling off the hot mass and being drawn into and being imbedded in the soft bottom, as dust and grit are drawn against the rear of a fast railroad train.

When the moon was blasted out of Earth, an oblong hole appeared in Earth's crust reaching to the molten core, lava exuded through the vast crack and becoming solidified it left a ridge several thousand miles long. (The ridge has caused underwater explorers to wonder about it.) The tremendous weight of Earth on both sides of the hole caused a split of Earth's crust where the Atlantic Ocean is now. Again lava exuded through the rift, making another ridge as the first one; after millions of years of erosion, if you will look at a map you will see that the East coasts of Greenland and North and South America, with the Western Coasts of Europe and Africa make fitting pieces of a jig saw puzzle.

The land, which is the American continents now moved toward the first hole, the entire crust then settled into present positions. Earth then contracted into a much smaller sphere, the numerous seas and other bodies of water drained into the two big holes, making the oceans as we know them today.

National Home Ec Convention Slated For Atlantic City

God's Poor—Our Family, will be the theme of the annual convention of the National Catholic Council on Home Economics to be held in Atlantic City, N. J., on June 19 and 20.

Virtually hundreds of Catholic high schools throughout the nation will participate in convention activities and assist in some manner with the expanded program. The convention schedule is one packed with vast activity starting with registration Friday evening, June 18. The following Saturday and Sunday programs start at 9 o'clock in the morning and continue almost uninterrupted until 7 o'clock in the evening.

A good summary of the theme of the convention was published in the N.C.C.H.E. Bulletin. "Ever since the late John F. Kennedy first appealed to Congress for assistance for the jobless, for better schools, for better housing and health facilities the American public has become informed and concerned about poverty. Television, newspapers and periodicals are exposing the living reality of the American poor in slums where life is incredibly hard and mean; where children grow unhealthy on cheap food and the poor aged know life as a corridor of want and despair. The convention program is planned to suggest ways and means of utilizing our home economics know-how to alleviate the effects of poverty within our scope of operations."

The convention chairman is Sister Mary Philippa, I.H.M., Denis O'Connell High School, Arlington, Va., and the area publicity manager is Sister Mary Frances O'Connell, St. Joseph's High School, Emmitsburg, Md.

Town Stocks Rainbow Lake; Fishing Allowed

The possibility of a municipally-operated garbage collection was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Commissioners held Monday night in the Town Office. Chairman of the Board J. W. Houser presided over the meeting and appointed the following committee to study the trash collection system and the cost of operating it: Mayor Ralph F. Irelan, Joseph M. Haley and Quinn F. Topper.

Patrick B. Boyle appeared before the Board and inquired of the progress of the court injunction obtained by the Town to stop the movement of the County Board of Education to move the local public high school to Thurmont. The Council will confer with its Baltimore attorney concerning the matter in the near future.

The Council was advised that it would be necessary for it to purchase a new chlorinator for use at the new filtration plant of the water system. The purchase of a pump for the new well at Reservoir No. 3 was discussed and Public Works Commissioner Flax was asked to check prices on a suitable pump preparatory to any purchase of such an item. The well was drilled during last summer's drought but remains unusable due to the lack of a suitable pump.

Council announced that the State Game Commission had recently stocked Rainbow Lake and that it was now open to public fishing. The Town Attorney advised Council to institute condemnation proceedings against the Carson Frail property in West End since the Town and the owner could not agree on locating a water valve on the property. Consistent meetings with the owner have reached a stalemate and the valve is essential to efficient operation of the Town's water system.

Council is currently studying a new voter registration system and registrar's book and President Houser appointed a committee to study the cost of installing such a new system.

Chief John Law's monthly report showed seven vehicular arrests, 21 warnings, two criminal cases investigated, five day complaints and two night complaints handled. In addition there were five accidents investigated.

The secretary presented in the name of the members a Past President's Pin to Rita Byard. The treasurer's report followed. Reda Ohler's name was called for the draw prize but was not present. Want Ad for Teachers "Urgent vacancy," says the notation beside a teacher-wanted listing posted by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). The need is for a science and mathematics instructor — preferably an American — to teach prospective teachers in Gabon, Africa.

This is typical of the hundreds of jobs that UNESCO is trying to fill. Openings range from a geodesy expert for Argentina and an adult education instructor for Thailand to a music teacher for Afghanistan. Qualifications depend on where the vacancy exists; it may be in any of UNESCO's 119 member countries.

Americans apply through the U.S. State Department's Office of International Administration in Washington.

UNESCO notes that under the job quota system, Americans are entitled to 150 posts, but that only about 30 are on the payroll. More than 35 percent of the $50 million a year spent by UNESCO comes from the United States. However, the agency's director-general, Rene Maheu, complains that the U.S. intellectual contribution does not match its financial support.

To help rectify the situation, President Johnson issued a directive that U.S. federal agencies "promote the employment of Americans in international organizations."

If your home has been painted with a free chalking kind of oil-base paint—and you want to start taking advantage of the many benefits offered by the new emulsion house paints—there's a way.

The idea is to remove most of this powdery substance. Here's how to tell if there's too much: hold a double thickness of cloth—such as an old T-shirt—over your fingers and rub for a distance of about a foot along the surface. If the chalk that comes off fills the pores of the cloth, it's excessive.

A hard stream of water from a garden hose, together with a scrubbing of a scrub brush or long-handled window-washing brush, will sluice away most of the undesirable chalk. In some cases, water alone will do it.

Now, you're ready to apply an emulsion like "Lucite" house paint. Among its many advantages—in addition to freedom from chalking—are fast drying, ease of handling, and notably longer life—three vital factors for the do-it-yourselfer.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

The Emmitsburg Chronicle, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, Baltimore District, will publish each week in this column, tax information that will enable taxpayers to become more familiar with the Federal income tax laws. Clip and save for future reference.

Questions And Answers

Q. I read a tax article recently that said that when an agent proposes an increase in taxes and the taxpayer disagrees, the taxpayer can request a hearing on his case. My return is being audited by an agent and I don't agree with his proposed adjustments. How do I get this hearing?

A. Tell the agent you don't agree with the proposed adjustments and that you would like a district audit conference. You will then receive a copy of the Revenue Agent's report along with a letter telling you how to request the conference.

The request for conference must be made within 30 days from the time you receive the letter.

Q. I am a calendar-year taxpayer who filed an estimated tax return and paid the first installment on April 15. When do I have to pay the second installment in my estimated tax?

A. This is due on or before June 15.

Q. I recently converted my 3-story home into several rental apartments. What records will I now have to keep for tax purposes?

A. The Federal tax laws do not specify what records you should keep, only that they be sufficient to prepare a complete and accurate return. Records, cancelled checks, receipts, etc., clearly identifying dates, amounts, nature and purpose of payments and name of the payee are usually enough to substantiate payments claimed.

You must know both the cost basis and the fair market value at the time of conversion to establish a basis for depreciation. If you continue to live in the house while it is rented, you must allocate the expenses (depreciation, heat, light, repairs, etc.) between your own use and the renter's use.

Q. What happens if I fail to file employer's tax returns and pay the Social Security taxes I owe on the wages I pay my cleaning woman?

A. If an employer does not report wages and pay the social security taxes on them, the Revenue Service will require the delinquent employer to pay the back taxes with penalties and interest. Each year, Internal Revenue traces many delinquent employers and collects taxes and penalties on approximately $21,000,000 in unreported wages. The employee will generally be entitled to full social security benefits based on the wages earned. You can get copies of Form 942, "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Workers," from your local Internal Revenue Service office.

Q. If my son, who is a college student, earns more than $600 this summer will I lose his exemption?

A. No, you won't lose his exemption as long as he is under 19 years of age or qualifies as a full-time student and you provide more than one-half his support. He must attend an accredited school for at least five months during the year. The gross income test does not apply to your children who are less than 19 years of age or who are students.

Q. We are opening our home to several city children this summer. Will we be able to claim any deduction for them?

A. If you have them with you only for the summer, there is no deduction you can claim for them. In order to claim them as dependents, they must be members of your household, live with you for the entire year, and obtain more than half their support from you during the tax year.

However, a charitable deduction is allowable under certain conditions for the cost of maintaining in your home any full-time student, other than your dependent or relative.

Q. I'm thinking about doing some free-lance work. Are there any special tax situations I might run into?

A. Income from free-lance work is taxable just as income from any other work is taxable. However, since you would ordinarily be considered an independent contractor, you would file a Schedule C with Form 1040, and you would be liable for self-employment tax if you have self-employment income of $400 or more. Ordinary and necessary business expenses will be deductible from gross income on Schedule C, assuming that you are engaged in a bona fide business and not merely a hobby.

Information on self-employment taxes may be obtained from any Internal Revenue Service local office. You may obtain Publication No. 421, the Optional Self-Employment Tax Table you use if you do not wish to compute the self-employment tax yourself.

Q. I just discovered I have diabetes and must go on a special diet. Are the special foods I must eat deductible?

A. No they are not. Be sure, however, to keep records on the amount you spend for drugs or medicines that are prescribed by your doctor. These are deductible.

Providence, Rhode Island

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Janie V. Morris.

The Bill recites that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County, Maryland, where he has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose last known address is 7 Gay Street, Providence, Rhode Island; that the parties to this cause were married on the 28th day of September, 1956, at Newport News, Virginia, by a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage five children were born, namely, Leo Henry Morris, 7 years of age; Robert Augustus Morris, 6 years of age; Emma Jean Morris, 5 years of age; David Lee Morris, 3 years of age; and Michael Morris, 2 years of age; that the Defendant did, on or about the 15th day of October, 1962, abandon and desert your Complainant declaring her intentions to live with him no longer as husband and wife, that said abandonment and desertion is deliberate and final and has continued uninterruptedly for more than eighteen months prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint, and that the separation between the parties is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation.

The Bill then prays that the Complainant, Charles Augustus Morris, be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Janie V. Morris; that he be awarded the care and custody of the infant children in these proceedings mentioned; and for such other and further relief as of the nature of his case may require.

Read John 20:19-29.
Christ breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost. John 20:22.

Thomas was not with the other ten disciples when Jesus appeared among them the first night following His resurrection. Therefore, when the disciples later told Thomas that Jesus was alive, he did not have the faith to believe without first seeing and touching the risen Lord.

The next Sunday, the disciples were again gathered together, and this time Thomas was with them. Jesus appeared as before, and confronted Thomas. Upon seeing the living Lord, Thomas cried out, "My Lord and my God."

This disciple has often been referred to as "doubting Thomas." However, he displayed no less faith than any person who fails to submit his life to the ruling presence of the Holy Spirit. This divine power which God sent to aid His children enables us to dispel fear and unbelief. When we are acquainted with the immeasurable grace and mercy of Christ, we humbly cry, "My Lord and my God, how great is Thy Love!"

Prayer
Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Thy loving and tender care and provision for our lives. We thank Thee for the Holy Spirit sent to guide and direct us. Bless us in all that we do. May we do it for Thy glory and for the

Extend Mortgage To Cover Fix-Up

If you are buying an older home which needs repair work and modernization, explore the possibility of stretching the mortgage loan on the house to cover the cost of the improvements.

You can get the kitchen of your dreams earlier and with less strain on your family's finances, for example, if the mortgage financing at the outset is sufficient to pay for the improvements. The alternative is a supplementary loan, which can prove burdensome later.

Very often a mortgage can be made to include the cost of new kitchen cabinets, sink, floor, lighting and even major appliances, such as a built-in electric dishwasher.

Master's sake. Amen.

Rich Race Saturday At Rosecroft Raceway

Maryland's most famous harness race, the $30,000 plus William E. Miller Memorial, reaches its final stage on Saturday, June 12, when 10 of the nation's best 3 year old pacers go for the top purse of the 32 night meeting.

The top 5 finishers in Monday's two qualifying races are coming back in Saturday's $20,000 final with a host of top names in the harness sport represented in Maryland's richest harness race. Among the drivers going post-ward will be Stanley Dancer, Del Miller, and Russell Valles Key and the pacers are among the fastest sophomores in the nation.

The final 10 starters represent the cream of a group that numbered 68 as late as three months ago.

Sixteen colts went to the post Monday night in two events to determine this elite final group which in past years has proved to be a showcase for future champions. This year should prove to be no exception.

Rosecroft Raceway closes its 1965 season Thursday, June 17, with an Appreciation Night where everyone will be admitted to the clubhouse or grandstand free of charge. Feature of Appreciation Night will be the drawing for a 1965 Corvair Monza from Hicks Chevrolet.

A "How-To-Do-It" PAINT POINTERS

The new emulsion house paints offer a number of important advantages — foremost among them: easy brushing, fast drying, and longer life. But their advent has also prompted a new set of painting tips.

If you're getting ready to paint your house with a product such as "Lucite" house paint, here are some things to remember to insure best results:

1. Paint masonry while it's damp. On a hot day it's a good idea to sprinkle it. Bricks, blocks, etc., may be so porous that they soak up the water in the paint too fast. As you know, you can use the same paint on both masonry and wood surfaces.

2. Don't spread the paint too far. "Lucite," for example, spreads so easily that some people are tempted to brush it too thin. Length of life depends greatly on film thickness, and an emulsion paint properly applied will give you much longer wear than an oil-base product.

3. Don't paint in the hot sun, which sometimes causes too fast drying. Leave the west and southwest sides of your home for cloudy days or early morning.

And all you need for clean-up is the same material you sprayed on the masonry—plain water.

New Reconstruction Era?

"I will send to Congress a law," the President said. "We will have legislation for the President to consider," said the Attorney General. These statements, unintentionally perhaps, reveal attitudes about our system of law and lawmaking that may put this nation into great strains in the near future unless the country and its leaders get things in better perspective. Every maladjustment, each uneven spot, each need for progress — all call for the executive branch to automatically send to Congress a law. Too many of these, unfortunately, are in danger of passing.

In this era of proliferating legislation, leaders in Congress as well as in the White House may have the best of intentions. But it does ill become the national legislature of the world's leading free nation to act as if it were eager to take orders from some pressure group or from the executive branch. When haste and political payoffs are the order of the day, we are bound to have less opposition, with sensible questions being overlooked or even unasked in the rush to get some bill passed. Unless the Congress is a truly deliberative body, as many injustices may be created as are relieved by its curative legislation.

A Questionable Bill

The headlong speed with which we are reaching this new plateau of immediate federal action is suggested by the fact that only a year ago we were requiring a constitutional amendment to eliminate the poll tax. Now, however, we propose to eliminate the guarantees of the First Article of the Constitution simply by passing, if not rushing, a very shaky, makeshift measure through Congress. Moreover, the "Voting Rights" Bill is punitive, for it singles out six states as if to punish them for their past sins. It ignores progress where such has been made, as well as dire needs for reforms in election practices in other states.

Agitators for Negro rights also mostly ignore the improvements that have been coming very fast. Yet, the Southern Regional Council, which supports Negro rights in the South, estimates that twice the number of Negroes voted in 1964 as in 1960. It says that in 11 Southern states the number of registered Negroes more than doubled between 1952 and 1964. In the last election, more than 2.2 million Negroes in the South were registered, or 43.3 per cent of those of voting age. Even in Alabama, the number of Negroes registered in 1964 over 1960 showed a 50 per cent increase.

15th Amendment Adequate

A great deal has been made of the Selma situation. Yet, in February a federal court acting under recently passed civil rights laws ordered that all Negroes who could read and write in Dallas County and who desired to be registered by July 1965 would be registered by a federal referee. In other words, the right to vote had already been insured for all literate Negroes under the existing law. All told, some 16 federal laws, six criminal and 10 civil, are said to be on the books already protecting the voting rights of minorities.

Moreover, the 15th Amendment unequivocally prohibits the denial of the right to vote on account of race. Since the amendment is self-executing, there is no reason why the federal courts cannot go about the business of enforcing it without any additional help from Congress. In fact, it is the responsibility of the federal government to enforce the amendment. The Johnson administration now wants to do this by discriminatory legislation that sets up its own system of federal registrars and a special court in Washington. There are other striking resemblances to the legislation of reconstruction days.

In all of this, many of our leaders have shown a disregard for the Constitution. While decrying discrimination, they have prepared legislation that reaches new lows in discriminatory practices and reminds one of the punitive tactics of politicians in post Civil War days. Moreover, these proposals readily appear to have come because of various kinds of political duress, as a result of demonstrations and marches and even White House sit-ins. This is no way to bring about good laws. It will certainly behoove Congress to debate this monstrosity slowly and carefully, giving the people as much time as possible to make their wishes known to their Congressmen.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

Sea Legs and Horse Sense

CAPTAIN HENRY JOHN ROUS

One of the most influential men on the 19th Century British Turf was the former sea-captain, Henry John Rous. He was elected to The Jockey Club while at sea, and was later made an Admiral in the British Navy while serving as Jockey Club Steward and Official Handicapper. He had once saved a foundering ship by jettisoning her 36 guns and ammunition and pumping his way from Labrador to England, for which he said he received "a court martial, a full acquittal and a cold letter of approbation from the Admiralty." Some years later, at the helm of The Jockey Club, he saved that organization from foundering in bankruptcy.

While still in the Navy, Captain Rous became involved in a controversy that resulted in January 1 becoming the universal birthday of the race horse. Prior to 1833 the birthday had been May 1. It seems that in April of 1832 Captain Rous had a 3-year-old filly that was beaten carrying 132 pounds by a 2-year-old named St. Giles who was required to carry only 114 pounds. A few weeks later St. Giles became a 3-year-old and proceeded to win the Epsom Derby. In this country the American Jockey Club adopted the January 1 rule in 1842 but the May 1 birthday was observed in the South until after the Civil War.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Readers often ask if communists heavily infiltrate the government.

Undoubtedly, as witnessed by the disclosures that have been made over the past few years, there are some communists who have wormed their way into positions of responsibility and influence, but it is most difficult to believe the Potomac is merely a tributary to the River Don.

Undoubtedly what prompts such queries is the lengths that are sometimes gone to apace communistic practices.

For example, for many years now the Russians have believed that some bureaucrat sitting behind the desk in a Kremlin could solve the problem of food production.

Undoubtedly, the fall of Khrushchev was largely prompted by his failure in this direction. And bear in mind he had the power, and used it, to arbitrarily send people to work.

So, what is new. Only that recently the nation has been treated to a spectacle of a Secretary of Labor deciding in Washington how to produce crops in California, Texas, and a few other areas.

The American people think it uproariously funny when a Russian bureaucrat tries to tell Russian farmers who have been tilling the soil all their lives how they should farm.

Yet somehow the humor of a comparable situation in this country seems to escape them. For after all, The Honorable Secretary, Willard Wirtz, despite whatever intellectual attainments he may have, cannot boast of much practical experience in farming.

If more money was paid to workers, then everything would be hunky dory, regardless of whether or not the labor was competent at any price is his position. Of course, he recognizes that such actions would raise the price of food to the housewife, but he shrugs this off airily saying the housewife would be glad to pay a little more for food. Apparently he knows not much more about housewives than he does about farming.

For after all, the American farmer has already seen rising labor costs create a spread so great between what he receives and the consumer pays that he is having problems of survival. But it is wrong to believe that because Russian bureaucrats and American bureaucrats think alike, that the American government is riddled with communists. It must be understood merely that the less a bureaucrat knows about a subject, the more he feels competent to issue edicts on the matter. Henry Ford pioneered mass production by planning for interchangeable parts as alike as two peas in a pod. Perhaps the world is now working for a system of interchangeable bureaucrats, so that bureaucratic silliness will not be an exclusive monopoly of either the communists or capitalistic world.

Your joy no one taketh away from you.

Being happy is one proof of our trust in God. If we really believe in Him then no matter what is wrong, no matter what problems confront us, no matter what the outlook we will not brood over them; we will be happy in the knowledge that God will guard us and help us through trying times.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On:
The Dow-Jones Industrial Average

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 10—In our annual forecast published in this paper December 31, we stated that the Dow-Jones Industrial Average could push up to 1,000. That day the Dow stood at 874.13. Most readers then felt that we were too optimistic. However, today, despite the mid-spring shakeout in the market, we are sticking to this forecast that the Dow Industrials will reach at least 1,000 in 1965. Of course, there may be reactions such as the one touched off by Chairman Martin's remarks concerning the similarities between certain economic conditions today and in 1929. Nevertheless, we feel that the May high of 939 on the Dow Industrials will be exceeded before Christmas.

What Does The Dow
Industrial Average Include?

The Dow-Jones Industrial Average is made up of 30 active common stocks representing a number of the greatest corporations in America. They are as follows: Allied Chemical, Aluminum Co., American Can, American Tel. & Tel., American Tobacco, Anaconda, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, General Foods, General Motors, Goodyear, Int. Harvester, Int. Nickel, Int. Paper, Johns-Manville, Owens-Illinois, Procter & Gamble, Sears Roebuck, Std. Oil of Calif., Std. Oil of N. J., Swift & Co., Texaco, Union Carbide, United Aircraft, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Woolworth.

Besides the Industrials, there are two other Dow-Jones Averages—one for the rails and one for the utilities. However, for the purpose of this discussion, we shall confine ourselves to the Industrial Average. That is the "Average" which is best known. It is the one that everyone talks about. The others are of interest chiefly to technical market students who study the action of all three and by complicated processes try to determine where the stock market is going.

Do The Industrials Represent
The Stock Market?

There are 1575 U. S. companies listed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange alone; not to mention the many additional concerns on the American Stock Exchange and the vast number traded on the over-the-counter markets. Thus, it seems rather foolish to think of the Dow Industrials as representative of the whole market for U. S. stocks. Not only is this brief list of 30 stocks unrepresentative, but it is also "doctored up" by the mathematicians who run the Average. By this we mean that adjustments have to be made continually for stock splits, stock dividends, etc.

Also, in a handful of 30 issues, if one stock has a really big rise the effect on the "average" can be quite misleading. Just think what would have happened to the Dow Industrials if the men who run it had included International Business Machines, —or even Xerox, Polaroid, or Syntex? Had such issues been in there, the fabled figure of 1,000 for the Dow would look commonplace by now. Just recently, duPont ran up about 20 points and the Industrial jumped. Then, when the anticipated dividend increase did not materialize, it ran down again. Brokerage house wags are now saying: "As duPont goes, so goes the Dow!"

What Makes The

mind today is not the technical nature of the Dow-Jones Average. We have gone into that in detail a number of times in the past. Despite certain shortcomings, the Dow gives a good picture of major market moves over a long period of time, even if somewhat deceiving from day to day. What everyone wants to know is what makes the Dow Industrial Average move, up or down. The answer, is: Events. When we were an agricultural country at the turn of the century, we used to watch crops most attentively. Our country was then the breadbasket of Europe. Good crops made good times. Good times made the stock market go up. Crop failures were distinctly bearish.

But in this Atomic Age we have to look beyond our border for events that may influence the Dow. The whole world is our back yard. South Vietnam, Santo Domingo, the Congo, China, etc. are the places making the events that move the market up or down. These are the places that give President Johnson his "headaches." These are the areas that touch off the "brush fires" which could lead to conflagrations. This means that our readers should also watch what goes on in China, in Russia, in Colombia and other "forgotten spots," for unexpected events that could sharply affect the stock market. As the Industrials move toward 1,000, what happens in faraway places may have more to do with day-to-day price movements than the domestic business news.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

Here are timely tips on a variety of health topics—some new, some old, all worth a place in your mental file of keep-well practices: Seat Belts? Yes, But

People who have hernias shouldn't use auto seat belts, according to Dr. Benjamin Payson, an internist. The pressure produced by a crash could be disastrous, he warns.

Post - Crash Checkup

Speaking of traffic hazards, people who have been involved in accidents are advised to undergo a thorough chest examination even if there is no visible sign of injury. At least one out of four such persons turns out to have some degree of heart damage.

Icy Dip

With hot weather in the offing, here's a quick-and-easy recipe for relief. Immersing the hands in ice water will bring down the body temperature, says Dr. William L. Bolton, of Today's Health Magazine. It's simpler than an alcohol sponge. (Of course, if you can get the man to fix the air conditioner . . .)

Cigarette Impede Smell

Excessive smoking of cigarettes can damage the sense of smell. The more cigarettes smoked, the less accurate the smelling function, it was indicated by a recent study of 500 industrial workers.

Good Eating

No really dedicated health seeker will neglect any of the "fundamental four" food groups in his diet. Here they are: (a) milk and milk products; (b) meat, poultry, fish and eggs; (c) vegetables—green and yellow—and fruits, especially citrus; and (d) bread—preferably whole grain—and cereals.

Good Thinking

Give frequent thought to the hazard of home accidents. Keep an eye out for exposed wiring, slippery floors, roving razor blades, rickety stepladders, broken glass, fire hazards. Home accidents rank high as a cause of injury and death.

EVERYBODY LOVES A DAISY

A midget shasta daisy and a daisy-like zinnia are new for your 1965 garden. The zinnia is bright yellow; named Daisy Mae. The white-flowered shasta daisy is named Little Miss Muffet. A plant is shown with one of a standard shasta to show the size difference.

Two new daisy-like flowers for everyone to plant and love are being introduced this year. One is a miniature white-flowered shasta daisy, a hardy perennial, named Little Miss Muffet for its "tuffet"-like plants. The other is really a zinnia, but its single, bright yellow flowers look more like daisies; furthermore its name is Daisy Mae. As you know, most shasta daisies are tall-growing plants. Little Miss Muffet grows not more than 15 inches high and usually nearer a foot in height. It blooms with the other shastas, during July and August, and the little plants are covered with flowers. Use it as a border for a perennial bed. It will delight you year after year.

Daisy Mae grows to the same height as Little Miss Muffet and might be used with it for a yellow and white color scheme, though Daisy Mae, being an annual, will last only until frost. However, it begins to flower early and continues late, its many 2-inch-wide flowers excellent for cutting as well as effective in the garden.

Tick Fever
Cases Reported

Two cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, which is transmitted to humans by the bite of an infected tick, were reported in Maryland recently. State Health Department epidemiology chief, John H. Janney, M.D., pointed out that May through August is the period when ticks are most prevalent and reminded residents of rural and suburban areas that they should take precautions to prevent tick bites.

Also particularly subject to this seasonal hazard are vacationers, campers, picnickers, sportsmen and persons whose work takes them into wooded or bushy areas, Dr. Janney said.

Spotted fever, a serious disease in humans, is caused by an organism known as rickettsia, the epidemiologist explained. Ticks become infected by feeding on wild animals and dogs which harbor the rickettsia organism, and can then transmit it to humans, dogs or other animals by biting them.

During the last decade, cases of spotted fever have averaged 15 each year, with approximately 15% resulting in death. Although the number of cases rose from nine in 1963 to 18 in 1964, there was only one death in 1964 as compared to two fatal cases in 1963.

Five safeguards were suggested by Dr. Janney: Avoid tick-infested areas, learn to recognize ticks, know how to remove ticks from the body, inspect children and pets daily, and consult with the family physician if fever and a rash develop three to ten days after a tick bite.

The public health physician recommended keeping children and dogs away from high grass and wooded and bushy areas, which frequently are inhabited by ticks. He added that ticks often are found in great numbers in high grass bordering pathways, where they cling to tips of leaves and can fasten on passing animals.

Ticks usually crawl over a considerable portion of the body before biting and can be felt and removed before they become attached to the skin. A tick must be attached to the skin for several hours before infection is communicated; however, a tick may escape notice easily because its bite is painless. For that reason, Dr. Janney emphasized, children who play outdoors near grass, weeds or bushy growths should be inspected twice daily—from head to toe—for ticks which may adhere to their bodies, hair or clothing.

Dogs or other pets that run at large also should be examined thoroughly each day, Dr. Janney said.

A tick which has become attached to the skin can be removed by grasping it with tweezers or with paper held between the fingers and pulling it off. The tick should be burned or the spot touched with iodine or disinfectant. Tweezers should be used to remove ticks from dogs.

Onset of spotted fever usually is characterized by listlessness, slight fever and influenza-like aches and pains; intense headache may follow. In most cases an eruption appears on the forehead, wrists and ankles and spreads rapidly to the rest of the body.

The duration of the fever customarily is from seven to ten days, but the disease usually responds well to antibiotics if administered early. Although vaccination is effective, it must be repeated annually and is not recommended except for those who must frequent infected areas and who are continually exposed to ticks.

Dr. Janney remarked that control of ticks by pesticides is not practical except in limited areas around houses where insects are found in large numbers.

Many Licenses
Suspended In State

More than 59,000 Maryland operators licenses were either revoked or suspended during the first ten months of fiscal 1965, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles John R. Jewell reported this week.

Of the total, 53,887 were suspended either because of an accumulation of points as a result of violations of the law; as a result of hearings held either at DMV headquarters at Glen Burnie or in the various counties; for failure to comply with financial responsibility requirements, or for medical reasons.

Revocations totaled 5,604 with 4,846 the result of the point system and 758 the result of hearings either at DMV headquarters or in the counties.

In addition to the 59,491 revocations and suspensions, some 1,603 individuals were refused operator permits.

While the number of revocations for the first ten months of fiscal 1965 exceeded the number for a similar period in fiscal 1964 by 5,604 to 5,424, and the number of refusals for the same period of 1965 exceeded the 1964 figure by 1,603 to 1,574, the number of suspensions for the first ten months of fiscal 1964 exceeded the comparable figure for 1965 by 56,353 to 53,887.

Commissioner Jewell also reported that the Department administered 89,381 driving tests during the first ten months of fiscal 1965, some 1,412 fewer than during a similar period in fiscal 1964. Of the total, 66,210 passed while 23,171 failed.

Some 130,057 operator licenses were assessed points from July 1, 1964 to April 30, 1965, or approximately 6,000 more licenses than were assessed from July 1, 1963 to April 30, 1964.

A total of 2,246 licensees were convicted of operating under the influence of alcohol during the fiscal 1965 ten month period as compared to 2,454 during a similar period in fiscal 1964.

From July 1, 1964 to April 30, 1965, some 8,429 licensees attended the Driver Rehabilitation Clinics, 288 more than during the same period beginning July 1, 1963. Some 20,932 licensees have attended the Driver Rehabilitation Clinics of the Department of Motor Vehicles since July 23, 1962, when the clinics began operation.

U. S. Poultry
Exports Decline

A loss of U. S. broiler export markets of upward to 25 per cent for 1965 is being predicted by E. Rankin Lusby, executive secretary, Maryland Farm Bureau.

"Poultry exports are being sharply reduced because of the U. S. government's failure to fight for agricultural products in trade negotiations with the Common Market area," said Lusby.

Recent tariff hikes are expected to cut deep in the broiler trade to Germany. Last year over 30 per cent of the U. S. birds went to this American developed market area.

"High subsidies on Common Market agricultural exports is another practice that is causing the U. S. poultry producer problems," added Lusby. "When a country guarantees another country a price below actual cost, it is impossible for our producers to meet the competition."

"Broiler exports could be doubled," said Lusby, "if our government officials would negotiate for reasonable tariff policies by the Common Market." "U. S. farmers can compete for Western Europe's markets under normal circumstances because they can produce a top quality product at a competitive price due to efficiency, know-how and use of modern mechanized equipment."

The U. S. Navy's first atomic-powered aircraft carrier USS Enterprise, is 1,040 feet long, has a flight deck equal to four and one-half acres and has a total displacement of 85,800 tons when fully loaded.

What They Wore...by PHYLLIS JOYCE

IT WAS CUSTOMARY IN NORTH INDIA FOR A BRIDE'S WEDDING GOWN TO BE RED OR YELLOW TO REPEL DEMONS. IF SHE DIED BEFORE HER HUSBAND, SHE WAS AGAIN DRESSED IN HER BRIDAL ATTIRE TO SHOW SHE HAD BEEN LUCKY ENOUGH TO AVOID THE CALAMITY OF WIDOWHOOD

THROUGHOUT THE YEARS WEDDING DRESS HAS TRADITIONALLY BEEN AN ELABORATE REFLECTION OF THE CONVENTIONAL DRESS OF THE TIME. TYPICALLY THE GOWN OF THE GAY NINETIES WAS AN ORNATE AFFAIR WITH TREMENDOUS LEG-O-MUTTON SLEEVES

THE WEDDING GOWN OF SARAH YORKE JACKSON, THE NIECE OF PRESIDENT ANDREW JACKSON, WAS OF SIMPLE DESIGN WITH A DEEPLY POINTED BACK AND FRONT BODICE AND A LOW NECKLINE. AFTER THE DEATH OF THE PRESIDENT'S WIFE, SARAH PRESIDED AS FIRST LADY

OUR LIBRARY

Our patrons will be delighted at the new selection of fiction books in the Emmitsburg Public Library. You may also want to keep in mind the fact that if you don't see it on our shelves, it may be requested on inter library loan from C. Burr Artz or in case they don't own the book we still have Enoch Pratt to rely on. If the book you wish is very new, we may be a while getting it. Processing and ordering are time consuming.

New fiction that may interest you this week are as follows: "The Barrymores," by Hollis Alpert. The full, fascinating story of Ethel, Lionel, and John—the Royal family of the American Theater. "Memories of A Catholic Girlhood," by Mary McCarthy. This distinguished novelist, short-story writer, and critic has been cast in the form of eight connected episodes. Mary McCarthy and her three brothers were left orphans in the influenza epidemic of 1918. The family background was mixed—Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish—but it was agreed that the four young children should be kept together and brought up in the Catholic Religion. This book is the history of that decision.

Also by Mary McCarthy the novel "The Groves of Academe." It is Henry Mulcahy's conviction that he is hated by the President of Jocelyn College because of his superior abilities as a teacher and his independence of mass opinion; this hardens into the deliberate belief that he is being made the local victim of the academic witch hunt. The novel opens at the moment when he rounds on his persecutors and boldly chooses to style himself a Communist. To the President, a professional liberal, the haunting figure of Mulcahy becomes a nemesis.

"A Child Possessed," by R. C. Hutchinson. Stephen Lopuchine has committed himself to love and marriage to Helene Milesco, a great beauty and an internationally famous actress. Apart for more than a decade, both Stephen and Helene feel that marriage has brought them only misunderstanding, anguish, betrayal. Stephen has long believed their only child to be dead, but she still exists—a retarded creature, now fifteen, im-mured in a Swiss hospital. When these three finally confront one another, Stephen sees a single course: to rescue his daughter from the dark world in which she endures. To him she is more than a child possessed. She is a gift from God—His affirmation makes A Child Possessed an intensely moving and illuminating story of a love so strong it can—almost—achieve a miracle.

"P. S. Wilkinson," a novel by C. D. B. Bryan. This book won the 1965 Harper Prize. This is the story of P. S. Wilkinson's coming to grips with the world around him—a young man conscious of his obligations as a privileged member of society and anxious to make good on his commitment.

Number Of "Firsts" At Recent Mount Commencement

The 157th Commencement Exercises held at Mount St. Mary's College last Wednesday were marked with several historical firsts. It was the first commencement exercises presided over by His Eminence Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, Archbishop of Baltimore, since his elevation to the College of Cardinals by Pope Paul in February of this year. Cardinal Shehan is president ex officio of the Mount which is the second oldest Catholic college in the United States, founded in 1808 and operated under the auspices of secular clergy coming from many different dioceses and archdioceses. In his few brief remarks His Eminence reminded the audience of the great traditions of the Mount and its historical significance in the Catholic Church in the United States. The Cardinal received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the college in 1947 while serving as Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore.

The second historical first was the celebration of the diamond jubilee of Rev. Peter A. Coad, dean of the Mount faculty. Father Coad became the first diamond jubilarian in the long history of the Mount. He received his A.B. degree from the Mount in June, 1890.

The late Baltimore philanthropist, George C. Jenkins, was the only other alumnus to nearly reach this historic mark. Mr. Jenkins, who graduated in 1855 and would have celebrated his jubilee in June, 1930, was called to his heavenly reward only a few weeks prior to the commencement celebration.

Father Coad, who was born in Johnstown, Pa., on December 23, 1869, lost his parents, a brother, a sister, and a grandmother in the great Johnstown flood. He had entered the Mount in the fall of 1885; received his A.B. in 1890; an M.A. in 1892; and was ordained to the holy priesthood in the college chapel by Bishop McGovern of Harrisburg, Pa., in 1894.

With the exception of the two years, 1894-1896, when he served in the parish of St. Mary's, at Sharpsburg, Pa., and the three years, 1898-1901, when he studied in Greece, Father Coad has spent his entire adult life on the Mount campus.

Up until very recently he has been very active and alert, celebrated daily Mass, took his daily walks, read the newspapers and the "Congressional Record," and taught a class in Patristic Latin in the Mount Seminary.

His name, which has become a legend to a host of students, alumni, and friends of the Mount, was given to the Coad Hall of Science by the Council of the College although he has declined all honors in the past.

John W. Williams, Taneytown, who received a bachelor of science degree in business administration, is reported to be the first Negro graduate of the college in its 157 year history.

Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Williams, Sr., R2, Taneytown, was a graduate of St. Joseph's High School in Emmitsburg. In addition to his academic endeavors while attending the college he also was a varsity track and cross country runner. He intends to enter the field of public accounting as a career.

Fatalities Increase On State Roads

Twenty-five persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Eight of those killed were drivers; twelve were passengers; and five were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in eight of the deaths; speed in fifteen; and "driver error" was present in twenty-two of the fatalities.

"Excessive speed was certainly the major culprit in the highway fatality picture last week," commented Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police. "It was a contributing factor in 60% of the twenty-five deaths, the highest weekly toll so far this year.

"Of itself excessive speed for conditions is one of the most prevalent driver errors because it substantially reduces an operator's ability to control his vehicle and keep it on the road. Coupled with alcohol, speed produces a much more serious potential for highway tragedy, as evidenced by the six deaths caused by this deadly combination. Also, speed and alcohol are not compatible to defensive driving, one of the major factors in survival on today's highways."

The Superintendent concluded: "Every driver has a two-fold responsibility in highway safety and maximum safety will not be achieved unless this responsibility is exercised. First of all, he must develop safe driving skills and attitudes for his own protection and for the protection of others who use the highway; secondly, he must demand that adequate measures are taken to control those drivers who wilfully or negligently fail to obey the fundamentals of safe driving."

The U. S. Navy has approximately 900 combatant vessels, 143 of which are submarines.
