Town workmen are busily engaged these days excavating tons of earth from Rainbow Lake in an effort to enlarge the capacity of the reservoir. Several thousands of tons of dirt have been removed but it has not yet been estimated how much the capacity will be increased. Mighty Rainbow is at present a sorrowful looking spectacle. The reservoir has dropped almost seven feet and the town water Commissioner estimates this week that it is two-thirds empty. Should there be no rain in the near future Civil Defense Corpsmen will be asked to take emergency measures to insure the Town of an adequate supply.

Emmitsburg was proud of its Little League Park. I use the past tense of the verb because today it represents a public disgrace. Local individuals work hard during the summer months to beautify the park and have done an excellent job. However vandals have gained the upper hand and the place is a credit to no one. If there is one beer can or bottle there are hundreds. Broken whiskey bottles and paper beer cans adorn the once pretty ball diamond as the nocturnal drinkers party there. Several times individuals have tried to clean up the mess but their work is fruitless. Citizens and business places donate money to provide the place for our Little League games and there is no reason why this type of desecration and vandalism cannot be eliminated. A quick round-up by police some evening and some stiff fines should do the trick.

After the story in last week's Chronicle explaining the new Postoffice situation it was thought that the dirt would be flying by this time. In fact that was the opinion of the executive assistant to the Assistant Postmaster General. However a snag developed this week, according to an out-of-town newspaper, when it was stated that sewer and water lines and telephone cables would have to be relocated before erection of the new building could be started. At least one Town Official minimized the dilemma and said he thought the situation could be remedied in a very short time. We sincerely hope he's right in his prediction. It seems the project has been jinxed since its inception last November, almost a year ago.

Last week's complaint in this newspaper about the State Police shortage in this area brought about an explanation by the Police Barracks commander. Presently the Frederick Barracks is working five men short, a serious condition when one thinks it over. Just when this condition can be remedied is conjectural and it appears that we will have to wait until another graduating class of recruits is turned loose at Pikesville. Then we have been more or less promised that a Trooper will be assigned to the Emmitsburg area and might possibly reside here. This is indeed good news and we hope the situation can be resolved in the very near future. It would seem to me a good idea that some explanation should be forthcoming as to why the State of Maryland cannot employ a sufficient number of troopers to be able to cope with the present day demands of society. Quite recently the Department has been met with a deluge of resignations of troopers. We are interested in knowing why?

None Injured In Car Crash

Damage totaled $1,000 when two cars collided two miles south of Gettysburg on old Route 15 at 11 o'clock last Thursday morning. Pennsylvania State Police said A. Lester Eichelberger, 62, Leola, Pa., was driving north on Business Rt. 15 and made a left turn into the parking lot at Stuckey's in the path of a car driven south by Jean McNair, 34, Fairfield R2. No one was reported injured. Damage was estimated at $500 to each car.

Mother Seton School Bazaar Saturday

All is in readiness for the annual Fall Bazaar of the Mother Seton School and the affair will be held this Saturday, Oct. 23, General Chairman George L. Danner announced this week.

A record crowd is anticipated this year due to the local interest the event has mustered the past several years, also due to the record enrollment of over 600 children this school year. The Bazaar is sponsored by the PTA of the school and annually draws hundreds of local individuals of all faiths.

The bazaar will get under way at 1:30 p.m. and continue until 6:00 p.m. In store for public entertainment will be a multitude of games, movies, etc. There will also be the game you like to play. Various tables selling useful merchandise and articles will be in operation to add to the festivity and excitement.

The highlight of the event will be the meal, serving from 1:30 p.m. until 6 p.m. With the new school having larger and better kitchen facilities, the meal will be served cafeteria style. It will consist of a Barbecue sandwich, baked beans and franks, applesauce, spice cake, coffee, milk, pickles, etc. The cost of the supper will be $1.00 for adults and children. Pre-school-aged children will be fed free.

A tour of the new school will be held, so bring all your friends and neighbors and spend the afternoon.

By scoring 880 points out of a possible 1,000 in a survey conducted at the Marquette University College of Journalism, the Echo was cited for excellence, primarily in its diffusion of Catholic thought and the promotion of Catholic activity.

Editorial content, physical appearance, and uniformity and consistency of style also received special merit.

Ball Field Is Public Disgrace

Little League officials are highly perturbed about the condition of the ball diamond which has been the scene of alcoholic drinking parties recently. Littered over the premises are at least 102 beer cans, bottles and paper cases. Officials have asked the cooperation of the Town Council to take steps to protect the grounds from further desecration and vandalism.

UNICEF Drive Thursday

Millions of children around the world owe their lives and their well being to the assistance given them by this vital U.N. agency. And yet, although its achievements are immeasurable, UNICEF's resources are small. In 1964 UNICEF's income from all sources amounted to some $33 million. This roughly equals the amount spent every two hours for armaments around the world.

If UNICEF is to continue to bring better health, nutrition and opportunity to the children growing up in underdeveloped countries, it must have the resources necessary to do the job. Each year the fund must rely on voluntary contributions—from governments, groups and individuals—as its only source of income. Each year these have increased, but not at a rate sufficient to enable UNICEF to continue to help meet even the most pressing needs.

Trick or Treat for UNICEF program, a nationwide project for children to help children, is therefore more significant this year than ever before. On Halloween, when some three and a half million American boys and girls collect "treats" of coins for UNICEF, they will be drawing attention to the needs of hundreds of millions of less fortunate children in other parts of the world.

All local children are asked to participate in the local drive for UNICEF and are asked to meet at the Trinity Methodist Church next Thursday evening. Door-to-door solicitation will take place between the hours of seven and nine o'clock. Emmitsburg residents are asked to be on the lookout for these children and have their contributions ready.

Weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Elder and family and Mrs. Genevieve R. Elder were: Mrs. J. Carroll Elder, Mrs. Julia Siggins, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Elder and daughter, Susan, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mahan, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Matt J. Paidakovich and family and Mrs. Yvonne Wiegand, Silver Spring, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith and son, Robert, Timonium, Md.

Governor Tawes To Study Intersection

Governor J. Millard Tawes has promised an immediate investigation into the cause of numerous accidents at the infamous intersection which has been branded a "death trap" in East Emmitsburg.

Following the publication of an open letter to the Governor in last week's issue of the Chronicle, the State's Chief Executive responded almost immediately and promised to take a good look into the problem. Citizens here were shocked and irked when on October 10 a young Maryland couple was killed at the dangerous intersection, thus becoming the fifth and sixth fatality since the bypass was opened by the State Roads Commission last December 10. Since the opening there has been 24 accidents there, six of them fatalities. The bypass, the intersection of U. S. Route 15 and State Route 97, has been checked and double-checked by police and State Roads officials. Each time more signs warning of the impending intersection have been erected until the area is a veritable sea of signwork, flashing red and yellow lights. With all these caution devices employed wrecks are still occurring and people dying.

Governor Tawes, in a letter to the Emmitsburg Chronicle, stated: "I am referring your publication to Hon. John B. Funk, chairman-director, State Roads Commission and requesting that he have George N. Lewis, Jr., chief, Bureau of Traffic, make an immediate thorough study of the traffic movement at the intersection in question, in order to determine as quickly as possible what can be done to solve the problem which apparently exists there. I am also requesting that they have the Maryland State Police study the hazards involved at that intersection and submit a report, with recommendations, to the Bureau of Traffic, State Roads Commission. I shall insist that the State Roads Commission give this matter its immediate attention."

Fairfield School Burglarized

Several nearby Pennsylvania schools were vandalized this week. On Tuesday evening at Fairfield, the supervising principal, Dr. Curvin C. Smith, said the burglars "went from one end of the building to the other, smashing doors, breaking windows, desks, cabinets and anything that looked as though it might contain money." The intruders broke open a soft drink machine, but failed to get the money from the device. The burglars broke into lockers, refrigerators, closets, desks and cabinets throughout the building. Even cabinets in the home economics and art room were searched, as were the school files in the high school and elementary principal's offices. No records were found to be missing from the files.

The burglars gained entrance to the Fairfield School by breaking glass in the library doors to release the lock. David Sanders, head custodian, discovered the burglary at 6:45 Wednesday morning when he reported to the school. The vandalism during the night marked the second burglary at Fairfield this month. October 9 intruders took $50 from the school.

State police are conducting the investigation into both burglaries. School officials at Fairfield said they had received reports from Waynesboro schools of burglaries there in the last several weeks, including several that apparently occurred during school hours.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On: The Quest For Peace
 BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 21—Great hopes and great expectations were kindled earlier this month as a result of the Pope's speech to the General Assembly of the United Nations. His words were acclaimed the world over and found response in millions of human hearts. Surely they will serve, for a long time to come, as a guide to a noble goal. But the reality of peace for which man has searched for thousands of years still eludes us.

Champions Of Peace
 The Pope has put the moral force and prestige of his half-billion-member church squarely on the line for world peace, at a very critical time. There are wars, or rumors of war, on every continent, ranging from the very hot war in Vietnam to the civil upheavals in Africa. And, one by one, our contemporary champions of peace have been dying off. In the short space of a year, the thinning ranks of the advocates of world peace have dwindled still further with the deaths of Herbert Hoover, Adlai Stevenson, and Albert Schweitzer.

Although a man of outstanding professional ability and of dedication as a public servant, Herbert Hoover was not a success as President. He is best remembered for his humanitarian acts following each of the two World Wars and for his lifelong devotion to the cause of peace. He was without doubt the best champion of peace America has produced so far.

Are There Any "Just" Wars?
 Most of us would agree, I think, that true peace must be based on justice if it is to survive. But many of us have widely different opinions of what constitutes justice in a given situation. Our views are colored by our loyalty to our country, by our backgrounds, by our education and environment, and by our own experience.

Most Americans feel that the Civil War was a "just" war, but there are a very great many people living in the South who still vigorously dispute that claim. And we are at present in the midst of an agonizing debate on the rightness of our government's course in Vietnam. If peace is to triumph, war must eventually be outlawed; and that goes even for so-called "just" wars!

The Glorification Of War
 Loyalty and patriotism are strong, stirring words. But how many sins have been committed by national leaders throughout history as they appealed to these qualities in their followers. Love of country and willingness to sacrifice even one's life in the national interest or for the national honor have been instilled in all the peoples of the world since time immemorial.

Read where you will in the history of progress of mankind and you will find war glorified and the heroes of war venerated. We may be living in a world which aspires to peace, and I believe we are; but we are so brainwashed by the glorification of war that we hardly know how to go about working effectively for peace. Without being unfaithful to the sacred memory of those who died in war that we might live and prosper, we must search for—and honor—new heroes who have been or who are men of peace. We must train our children and grandchildren to look up to those who strive for a true world peace.

Is The World Ready?
 Time alone will tell how truly effective for peace has been the visit of the Pope to the UN. Perhaps, as President Johnson has said, the papal speech may be "just what the world needs to get us thinking on how to achieve peace."

Is the world ready for peace? I think not . . . because from childhood most of the peoples of the world are taught to rely on the might of arms and on the power and righteousness of their individual countries. The desire for peace is indeed in our hearts, but the will to work for it has yet to be formed and nurtured. What we need is a Great Society that will embrace everybody—the whole world. I am confident this will one day become a reality; but I fear it will be a long time building.

Air Force Seeking Prior Servicemen

M/Sgt. Ken Grimes, local Air Force recruiter, has just received an expanded list of skills and specialties in which the Air Force has urgent need. This list of 286 skills and specialties contains openings for men and women with prior military service in any of the Armed Forces. Prior to this new program, most specialties were frozen and veterans possessing one of the few that weren't, usually had to re-enlist at a rank lower than the one they held upon discharge. Under the new program they may, in many cases, be eligible to enlist in their former grade. This liberal policy is directed at aiding re-enlisting veterans to retire in a top pay grade. Sgt. Grimes reminded prior servicemen considering coming back in that they would once again be allowed to enjoy the many benefits that go along with a military career . . . free medical care for the serviceman and his dependents, educational opportunities, leave, job security, retirement, etc. He also stated that, although the Air Force now has an urgent need for the experience and training of prior servicemen, they should act now, because regulations governing re-enlistment may change at any time and otherwise qualified veterans might lose their eligibility. For particulars on the new Prior-Service Program, see Sgt. Grimes at 1 East Church St., Frederick, or call 662-8313.

Build Your Own Workbench

cross member, use clamps to align and hold the legs and braces in place while drilling. Before bolting, glue all joints. Result: two solid square "u" supports.

Attach the plywood back to the 2x4's—flush with the top—with glue and nails or screws. Then attach the unit directly to the concrete floor and wall to add considerable strength to the bench and eliminate any possible wobbles. This task is quite simple when you use a fastening tool called Shure-Set. This versatile tool will drive steel fasteners through the two 2x4 inch horizontal braces into the concrete floor—and through the rear legs into the concrete wall—with the ease of forcing nails through wood. Available at hardware counters, the Shure-Set tool concentrates tremendous force on the fasteners and eliminates drilling—not to mention the cost of togglebolts, shields and plugs necessary with ordinary installation techniques.

Diagonal bracing is achieved by attaching the plywood sides flush with the top of the legs, with glue and nails or screws. Now place the top bracing strip across the front gap between the two "u" supports and screw in place. The simple and strong butt joint can be used in all cases.

The bench top should overhang the lower framework by 2 inches in front and 6 inches at the ends, to let you clamp work to the bench and to provide space for a vise. A pair of 3/4" plywood doors with deep shelves—which swing out to make their contents easily accessible—are fastened with continuous hinges for strength.

A well-designed workbench is the basic requirement of any home workshop. And few things are as satisfying or as practical as building your own—it's not as difficult as you might think with planning and the proper tools.

Make your bench rugged, and most important, functional. Length and width depend on needs and available working space; 30 x 60 inches is a good size for most small workshops. To reduce stooping, the bench top should be just as high as the top of your hip bone—about 40 inches if you're of average height.

First thing—have the following pieces cut to size:
 four legs, 2 x 4 x 39
 two horizontal braces, 2 x 4 x 28 bench top, 30 x 60 x 1 inches (oak or maple) two 3/4" plywood sides, 28 x 29 back, also of 3/4" plywood, 49 1/2 x 29 top bracing strip, 3/4 x 1 1/2 x 49 1/2
 assorted pieces of 3/4" plywood for doors and shelves

Construction begins with the frame—where the strength is. Brace each pair of legs at the bottom with a horizontal 2 x 4

POLICE DESERVE YOUR COOPERATION

When you would prefer to drive 10 or 15 miles over the speed limit . . . when you would like to go the other way down a one-way street . . . when you would like to park in a No Parking zone or do some other thing that is contrary to the rules, yet which seems harmless to you . . . these are the times when you might feel that traffic laws are against you. But then, when you see some one else high-balling it at a dangerous speed, zooming through a school zone, or under the influence of alcohol, then you wonder where the Traffic Officer is.

Too many of us seem convinced that traffic laws are for the other fellow . . . and only for him . . . we want laws to protect us against the reckless, irresponsible drivers . . . and so they do. Yet traffic laws serve a double purpose. They protect us against the unsafe driving of others, true. They also are designed to serve as a guide as to how to use the streets and highways with the greatest safety convenience, and to protect other drivers (and pedestrians) against our own misdeeds behind the wheel. It is no more than the act of an intelligent person to protect others by knowing and observing those same rules we depend upon to save us from the rash behavior of other drivers and pedestrians.

Violators pay an extravagant price for willful or thoughtless flouting of traffic laws. They exact a senseless price from the blame-less victims of the accidents they cause.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Can The Workingman
Remain Free?

Whatever has happened to the 14(b) dispute (right to work) by now in the Senate, where a heavy majority of more than 2 to 1 generally gets what LBJ wants, the fate of the right to work principle can provide a good test of the state of the nation in its maturity of thought and action. If right to work goes out, something essential is lost. Some two dozen senators are preparing, as this goes to press, to face the log-rollers. There remains some hope that the Senate will not fall victim to the White House lobbyists or to the threats of union bosses. Those Senators showing strength of principle will merit the regard of every citizen.

Some of the most reprehensible political eye-balling has been undertaken by LBJ's team with HHH doing some of the hatchet work. Legislators from farm states were made to understand that if they wanted a good farm bill, they could vote for the unions. This technique is no way to pass laws that are sensible, beneficial, or right, much less acceptable to the "consensus."

Way Of Compulsion

President Johnson who in 1948 vowed never to vote for repeal of the essential provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, finds himself president "of all the people." He apparently misreads the consensus on this one, for he is cracking the whip for repeal through his assistants. The American people, however, have no love for coercion and compulsion, even when it is recommended by organized labor, whose general objectives have found almost unanimous approval. Eliminating the right to join or not join unions erodes the basic and essential freedoms that all enjoy.

Congressman Ashbrook of Ohio drew an interesting analogy when the House was swooshing the repealer bill through back in the summer. The compulsion that labor's bigwigs want, he said, was like the idea of the Berlin Wall that forces everyone behind it to enjoy whatever is there for them. People should have the right, as he says, to make choices to be in or out, on whatever moral or other grounds they choose. It is certainly a compliment to the people of the nation that, outside union headquarters, the demand for repeal is almost nil.

The Economic Angle

Actually, it is very evident what the union officials want: more money in union treasuries. If dues in unions average $4 a month and initiations average $10, that's a kitty increase of almost $30 millions if 500,000 unaffiliated workers are forced into unions. Special assessments on these workers could bring in other millions to labor's treasury, some of it for political purposes. With federal protection comes power. With power comes security, prestige, wealth. What is sought, therefore, is power but at the expense of freedom and liberty.

Columnist David Lawrence has recently cited the perceptive, even prophetic, essays written more than a century ago by Herbert Spencer, the English philosopher. Spencer outlined the basic requirements of a free society, showing how accumulations of coercive power in politics tend to deprive men of liberty. Men can become slaves by electing despots for themselves, he said, even when they substitute trade-unions for kings, for the individual is then subservient in his dependence for fear of having work denied to him.

The New Despotism

Lawrence draws some interesting parallels with our own situation, in which power is being requested increasingly, so that a new despotism continually challenges our people to keep their own rights to "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness" as well as to recover those rights which have been forfeited. There seems no question but that right to work restrictions set up by Congress do seriously limit and curtail individual freedoms. The free society should have no place for the compulsion that limits the voluntary way of doing things.

This controversy therefore suggests the larger problem that faces our age. The concepts of modern Statism that underlie collectivist doctrines are all founded on the idea that people as individuals have no rights of their own which the State, or some agency of it, must respect. In a period in which so much has been said about securing civil rights, eliminating discriminatory poll taxes, and insuring various kinds of human rights it would seem that our leaders in Congress would all join the two-dozen senators

Read Acts 16:6-11.
Not with eyeservice, as men-pleasers; but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart. (Ephesians 6:6)

Several years ago, some friends of mine prepared to go to the foreign mission field. Their application had been accepted, the date set for their departure, and preparations almost completed.

Then came the disappointment. For reasons never fully explained, they were told they could not go.

I would have been tempted to accept the rejection grudgingly. But they accepted it in faith, and began seeking God's will for their lives. They found wide-open doors for service among the needy near at hand. In the isolated country schoolhouses, still existing on the Alberta prairies, they ministered the Word of God. Many of the children as well as their parents had never attended a Sunday school. Here my friends have served the Lord wholeheartedly.

In all circumstances, Jesus' faith in God should be an example to us. With His whole heart, He was obedient to the Father's will.

Prayer

Heavenly Father help us to accept and gladly obey Thy will for our lives. May we humbly serve Thee wherever the Holy Spirit leads. Keep us consecrated and submissive, desiring only to walk in Thy ways. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thought For The Day

End Of Another Season

Schools are full again and vacation time has been spent. For many of us, our thoughts turn away from boats and boating. Unlike the summer when we couldn't wait to get down to the dock for a spin or a few hours of fishing, fall and winter don't usually figure into our boating plans, even when they aren't accompanied by ice and snow.

The danger is that we might forget that the rig that gave us good service all summer is due to get some service itself for a change. You can shorten the spring outfitting time by getting the boat and motor and all your gear into shape now. Even if you're blessed with 12 months of good boating weather, your rig should get some attention about now. It worked hard for you all summer and is ready for a physical.

We've talked before about making up a list of maintenance items during the season. If you did so, you're ready to have this work done. If you made a note of the additional gear or replacement gear you planned to get for next year, now's the time to get it. Many marine stores, anxious to clear the decks for the new season, have sales about now that you can take advantage of.

Lets look at a few items of boating gear that might normally be overlooked:

Life Jackets: Are they still in top condition? If they spent the summer rubbing against other gear stashed up under the foredeck, it's possible that some of them could have gotten considerably worn. Replace them if there is any doubt about their soundness.

Ground Tackle: This includes the anchors and anchor lines. If you've used them frequently, they could be showing signs of wear. The shackle tends to absorb most of the wear on the anchor itself. Examine it to be sure it isn't worn or rusted to the point where it might give way. Anchor lines should be checked thoroughly. They take a whale of a lot of strain and might be weaker than you think. It's a good habit to replace them annually, if not more frequently.

Controls: The controls to your motor do wear out. Constant shifting and changing the throttle settings can build up wear which results in play in the controls. Just like control linkages in your car, your boat's controls can give you problems if they have become loose or worn to the point where the gears don't engage fully or the throttle keeps popping back and forth. Adjustment, repair, and possible replacement may be needed. Steering cable wears fastest at the pulley points. The constant bending and straightening can take its toll. Check these places carefully.

Wiring: Often overlooked, the wiring throughout the boat needs checking out. Bouncing over the waves all season might have loosened some of the connections, worn off some insulation, or even broken some wires. Save yourself time and trouble later by fixing them now.

Motor Clamps: The clamps that hold that kicker in place on the transom are subject to strain — strain that could fatigue them. Examine them for signs of cracking. Don't wait until they break completely. It could mean the deep six for your motor. At the very least it will probably damage the transom of your boat. Have your service man take care of it now.

Boat maintenance and care is made up of a lot of little things. It may seem like a pain in the neck now. But a slight pain now is far better than a major headache later.

In 1900 the total deer population of the United States was 500,000. The estimated hunter deer kill for 1965 is 2,042,640 out of a herd of 14,365,500.—Sports Afield.

French Composer To Be Featured At College Concert

Omega chapter of Pi Delta Phi at St. Joseph College will sponsor a guitar concert of original French compositions on Tuesday, October 26, in DePaul Auditorium. "Ses Chansons—Sa Guitare" will feature Anna Marly, noted European composer, author, guitarist.

Trained in singing, composition, and ballet by prominent European professors, Miss Marly gave recitals of her own songs and poems at the age of nineteen. During World War II in England she gave daily concerts for the troops and broadcast daily for the Allied radio stations. Also during that time, she wrote 20 songs for the French Underground Forces, of which the "Chant de la Liberation" became their official anthem. After the war, she toured Europe as an envoy of the French Ministry of Information and Culture, and for several years has given recitals in South America.

A native of the Riviera, she sings her own songs equally well in Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Greek, English, and Russian. Her creations have been featured by Edith Piaf, Yves Montand, Claude Alphonse and others. A member of the French Society of Authors and Composers, she has written over 300 songs.

A special feature of the Fine Arts series of St. Joseph's 1965-66 Cultural Program, tickets for the performance are available through Pi Delta Phi at St. Joseph College. A cordial welcome is extended to the public to attend the performance.

A student who has not previously attended a school of college rank may compete for any one or all three of these state scholarships. Students already attending college may compete only for a Teacher Education or a Senatorial Scholarship.

Registration for the examination will take place during the month of October at all public and non-public schools in the state and at all institutions eligible to participate in one of the scholarships programs.

ASC Group Holds Election

Results of the 1966 election of ASC community committeemen for the 19 communities of Frederick County were announced this week by Harold M. Free, chairman of the Frederick County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The elections were held by mail and ballots were tabulated publicly by the incumbent ASC County Committee on Oct. 15, in Winchester Hall, Frederick.

The Emmitsburg chairman is Joseph Vivell; Charles F. Grimes, vice chairman; Harry Swomley, Jr., regular member; Daniel Nail, 1st alternate and Charles Brauer, second alternate.

Thurmont chairman is Staley Weller; John Simmers, vice chairman; Claude Favorite, regular member; Albert V. Stambaugh, first alternate and Roscoe Harbaugh, Jr., second alternate.

The ASC Community committee chairman, vice chairman and third regular member automatically become delegates to the county convention where the ASC county committee will be elected. The alternate committeemen become alternate delegates to the convention. The county convention will be held in Frederick today.

ACS county and community farmer-committees are in charge of local administration of such national programs as the Agricultural Conservation Program, the feed grain program, the voluntary wheat program, the National wool program, acreage allotments and marketing quotas, commodity loans and storage facility loans. Each year local farmers earn thousands of dollars through participation in these farm-action programs.

Last year 835 farmers, 28% of the total farmers in the county took part in one or more of the programs administered by the ASC committees. Funds disbursed under committee supervision amounted to $293,698.00.

Teachers Map Program During Annual Meeting

The Delegate Assembly of the Maryland State Teachers Assn. approved a nine-point legislative program at its second session on Saturday, Oct. 16. Six of the items call for direct financial assistance by the State to all levels of public education totalling $26,000,000.

At the heart of the 1966 legislative program is support, in principle, for the proposals of the Legislative Commission on Taxation and Financial Relations (the Hughes Commission). The tax reform recommendations of the commission will have considerable effect on school financing in the future.

Specifically, the two major items in MSTA's 1966 legislative requests are a part of the recommendations for tax reform. The largest of these, $12.6 million for school construction aid would be a part of the tax program, as would the $7.5 million request to provide for an increase of $10 per pupil in the operating program. This would automatically increase the foundation program enacted in 1964 from $340 to $350 per pupil.

Mount Forms New Council

Rt. Rev. Robert R. Kline, Ph.D., president of Mount Saint Mary's College, this week announced the inauguration of a new academic council. The body, which was ap-proved by the college's governing board and the faculty, will assume the overall responsibility for the academic life of the college.

It will consist of the chairmen of various academic departments under the leadership of the acade-mic dean of students with the president serving as a member, ex officio. It will study and evalu-ate all matters associated with the academic aspects of the college and will continue the self evalua-tion process started during the 10-year Middle States Association accreditation review. It will dis-cuss and review interdisciplinary problems, reports of other com-mittees, and will make recom-mendations to the faculty.

In cases which affect areas not represented directly on the coun-cil, a member from that area will sit with the council.

Msgr. Kline said that the new committee was another step in the college's planning and devel-opment program and was in ac-cord with the Middle States rec-ommendations.

Cullen School Has Opportunities

David Curran, superintendent of the school which is expected to be-gin operation later this month, said applications can be obtained at the training school.

The positions to be filled are those of boys' group supervisors. An examination will be given to all applicants Saturday at Victor Cullen.

Curran said four or five super-visors will be hired at a time and from 10 to 15 people will be need-ed within the next three or four months.

The applicant must be a high school graduate, Curran said. Experience in working with youths is desired. Salary for those with no experience is $3,040

For those people with experi-ence the salary range is $4,290 to $5,365, the maximum after two years of service.

9, 10 and 11, it has been an-nounced.

The Fair will be open during the school hours, 8:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m., for the pupils. An addition-al opening is scheduled for Tues-day evening, Nov. 9, when parents will be given an opportunity to purchase books from 7 to 8 p.m.
